PRESIDENT PROCLAIMS PEACE.

By ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Germany has signed the peace treaty. Five years after a proud and boastful monarch started to conquer the world, a beaten people have affixed their signature to an Allied bill of their indebtedness and guilt.

Word of the signing was flashed to America and followed by a proclamation by President Wilson issued at the White House, as follows:

"My fellow countrymen, the treaty of peace is signed. It ratified and acted upon in full the execution of the terms will furnish a starter for a new order of affairs throughout the world. The severe treaty and penalties imposed upon Germany are severe only because the great wrongs done by Germany must be righted and repaired. It imposes nothing upon Germany she cannot do; she can regain her rightful standing in the world only by a prompt and honorable fulfillment of the terms.

"The treaty is more than a treaty of peace with Germany. It liberates great peoples who would never otherwise have been able to find a way to Liberty, and it ends, once and for all, the old, intolerable order, one under which groups of selfish men use the people of empires to serve their own ambitions and power of dominion."

GERMANS SIGN WITHOUT RESERVATIONS.

VERSAILLES, June 28.—Foreign Minister Mueller and Colonial Minister Bell, German signatories, made the following exclusive statement to the United Press:

"We are signing without mental reservation. What we sign will be carried out. As a German people we will use every means to meet the terms. We believe the Entente will find it to its own interests to change the terms if they see that the treaty is impossible of execution.

"We believe that the Entente will not insist upon the delivery of the Kaiser. High officials will not assist in the attack upon Poland. Germany will make every effort to prove herself worthy to enter the League of Nations.

The accident occurred at the Illinois river bridge when the car backed off the approach and overturned. The party were discovered and aided by the four Fayetteville men, Messrs. Williams, Eason, Wood and Ham, who on the same day rescued the body of James McChristian, of Prairie Grove, who was killed in a runaway. None of the Butler family was seriously hurt, a bridge hook having caught the heavy truck and preventing its further probable motion and instant crushing to death of the passengers.

SALVATION ARMY TO KEEP BRASS RAIL AND BAR

NEW YORK, June 28.—Prohibition or no prohibition, the little old brass rail, the mahogany bar and the foaming beer spigot is going to stick. Firmly convinced of the beneficial psychology of the brassy rail, the Salvation Army has so decreed. The "waterfront" saloon is too valuable a socializing and democratizing asset to be allowed to perish with John Barleycorn, slum workers believe. The atmosphere of the saloon, deodorized of all its stench, alone will justify the continued existence of the saloon, they say.

"You can't take away from a man without giving him something in return," Brigadier James Welte, purchasing agent for the Salvation Army during the war, said today. "Deprive the 'floaters' and saloon frequenters of a place to congregate and something equally as undesirable as the saloon will take its place.

"The Salvation Army does not intend to eliminate the saloon. It aims to reform it—make it a power for decency and cleanliness rather than a demoralizing influence in the community."

Already Salvation Army officials in New York have secured options on saloon locations in preparation for the day when prohibition goes into effect. But not for a single day will these places close their doors. The same old mahogany bar, the same brass rail and the same bartenders—in many instances—will remain. Only the "kick" in the drinks will disappear.

New York's pioneer "soft drink" bar, located in the heart of Broadway's Tenderloin, just off Broadway near Forty-seventh Street, where hearts are supposed to be light and lights are bright and champagne flows like water, has proved the theory of its founders. Two months ago Tango Lizards, Folly girls, "pugs," and Broadway habitués draped themselves across the hardwood bar of the Victoria Hotel. From noon 'til early in the place was crowded.

Today the place still is crowded, but the men who lounge with holo-nailed boot upon the nail are bronzed, weatherbeaten veterans of the A. E. F., or Uncle Sam's navy. And the women, not the delicately tinted, hand painted Folly favorites, but clear-eyed Salvation Army lassies, war workers and returned nurses. And before the war many that now call for a "grape fizz" had called for a gin rickey or a Scotch straight.

RADICAL CHANGES BEFORE EDUCATORS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 28.—Milwaukee took Boston's place in the universe today—as the hub of knowledge.

Thousands of educators from all sections of the United States began arriving in this city today to attend the annual convention of the National Educational Association, which got under way this morning. Committee organization is being completed today and the convention proper will open Monday. The convention will close July 4.

Announced as one of the most important conferences in the history of the association, the convention's principal task will be formulation of an educational program to be adhered to in the future throughout the United States. This policy will be moulded by the leading educators of the nation.

Association officers state the educational policy finally adopted will probably be termed "radical," basing their opinions upon the work of the peace conference, which they declare will of necessity force changes in the present educational program.

Important legislative subjects which will receive consideration at the convention include: creation of a department of education with a secretary in the president's cabinet; a nationally higher salary for teachers and a progressive physical education program for all states. Resolutions embodying these aims are expected to be adopted by the convention at an early session.

For the first time in its history, the convention this year has assumed international significance. Great Britain has sent the Rt. Hon. Herbert Lewis, Parliamentary Secretary, Board of Education, London, as its accredited representative, while France is represented by Prof. Albert Feulherat, head of the Department of English, University of Rennes, Rennes, France. Both are scheduled to address the convention on international topics in reference to education. President Wilson has also been invited to address the convention on July 3.
