In 1827, the settlers headed for the mountains. They came in two groups: the first arrived in March, bringing livestock and tools to clear land and build homes; the second arrived in October by boat to Van Buren, then overland to Boonesboro (later Cane Hill). It didn't take long for them to start looking for land, usually by a beautiful spring, and start building homes. One of the first buildings was a log house for the church and Sunday school that they organized within a year of their arrival. Two Cumberland Presbyterian preachers had come with the early settlers.

In the meantime, Charles had gone to Alabama to bring his father John and family to Arkansas. The older brothers and sisters were married with families and not interested in moving.

Barbara was married to Captain John Taylor Rather. William Blunt also had married and had a large family. Olivia had married William Harvey Campbell. They went with John but soon returned to Alabama.

In 1833 Colonel John took his wife Mary and children, Sarah, Elizabeth, Evan White and Mary Anne to their new home in Arkansas. Charles had acquired land and they built a log house by the spring, where many traces were found and legend says, De Soto built a fort there 400 years before.

McClellan House started before the Civil War finished afterwards.

Colonel John and family settled in their new home and John became very active in the growth of Boonesboro. He was the first surveyor from 1833 to 1840. In 1834, a group took steps to start a school. Colonel John McClellan was on the Board of Trustees of the college. It was Cane Hill Collegiate Institute until the legislature changed it to Cane Hill College in 1852. They met in the log church house at first. Soon a permanent brick building was built. J. B. Russell built a large frame building and opened a female seminary with library and music department. Miss Mary Bellar of New York brought her grand piano. It was shipped to Van Buren, hauled overland to Cane Hill where it is at present in the Church Annex.

Colonel John, patriarch of the McClellan clan, after a very active life died in 1842 at age 74. He was the first buried in the family cemetery located on his farm. Flashback described it as one of the country's most romantic cemeteries. It is enclosed by an ornamental fence and has several massive vaults. Charles McClure McClellan, John's son, the pioneer, died in 1844 unmarried and was also buried in the cemetery. Many pioneers related to the McClellans by blood or marriage are buried there.

Colonel John left the farm to Evan White McClellan. White married Sarah Jane Trusdell in Cane Hill. She was born in Princeton, Indiana, but she was educated (as a child) in Cane Hill. Her father was a man of wealth but he spent it helping people and the town. He put up a steam mill. The post office was called "Steam Mill" for a while then was "Boonesboro", named for a relative of Daniel Boone who lived there, then Major Earle named it Cane Hill. Mr. Trusdell also had a store and a tailor shop. White and Sarah Jane had nine children. They were all born in Cane Hill and grew up there.

White's sister Elizabeth, who came with her father from Alabama, married Ewing McClure. He was postmaster in Cane Hill in 1845. He and White (his brother-in-law) opened the second store in Cane Hill. He and Elizabeth had a home by the old college spring. They had no children and both died in 1885.

Sarah, another sister, who came with John from Alabama, married Judge Peters first and then married John Wilson. They had no children but Sarah raised a niece, Florence Wilson, and a nephew, Montgomery Wilson (of her husband's brother). Florence was engaged to Professor Buchanan who was killed in the Battle of Prairie Grove. She taught school in Cane Hill schools and then went to Tahlequah, where for 26 years she was the principal of the Cherokee Female Seminary. Later it was Northeastern College and the girls dormitory was named Florence Wilson Hall. The Wilson's farm was in northeast part of Cane Hill. They left the farm to Samuel Getty McClellan, White's son and Sarah's nephew. He farmed it until he died. In 1935 it was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Nick Matthews. They were both Texans but Marion Lee was White's great-granddaughter, her grandmother was Ada, White's daughter. Because of her mother, Victoria (Victoria, daughter of Ada) had had a close relationship with the Cane Hill cousins. Victoria married James Kennedy and lived in Texas. First Port Arthur, where his folks had come in the early days of Texas, later they moved to Beaumont, where he was in business - a couple of summers. Victoria brought her city bred children to Cane Hill. They loved it - a wonderful new experience. The excuse for buying was to keep the farm in the family. They moved there in 1936, built a home, and lived there until 1969 when due to Mr. Matthews' health, they sold it and moved to Prairie Grove, where Marion Lee still lives.

Marion Lee and Nick had a daughter, Carol Lee. She began her education in Cane Hill. Her grandmother had gone to school in Tahlequah and we attended a reunion there every year. We all had a great interest in Tahlequah and Indian history. When a junior in high school Carol Lee entered school there and graduated the next year. She then entered the University of Arkansas, where she met and married Ben Walters. They went to Orlando, Florida where Ben, starting from scratch, built a very successful swimming pool business. They had three daughters. In February 1983 they left with a couple to go sailing. After cruising in the Bahamas, they were to arrive at Puerto Plata Dominican Republic. They didn't arrive and after intensive searching by coast guard and private investigation, the search was given up. Five year have passed. In February 1988, they have been declared dead. A memorial service was held Tuesday, March 29, 1988.

Unique to this family is the birth August 1987 in Knoxville, Tennessee, of Maxie Elizabeth Byrd, daughter of Elizabeth and Barry Byrd and granddaughter of Carol Lee Matthews Walters, eighth generation (1768-1988) from John McClellan the patriarch of the McClellan also born near Knoxville, Tennessee, born 1768.

Matthew, John's oldest son, had stayed in Alabama at first. He was married to Dolly Campbell and had a family. Dolly died in about 1835 so Matthew decided to go to Cane Hill. He was called Colonel Matt. He built a home there and was very active. He was Justice of the Peace and records show he performed many marriages. He died 1872. When his wife, Dolly died, she left a baby girl named Dolly. A sister Laura married Dr. Welch, they moved to Fayetteville taking baby Dolly with them. Later she moved to Cane Hill and lived with a niece, Clem McCollock. Dr. Welch was a prominent physician. He was active at the Battle of Prairie Grove, a member of the Washington County Medical Society and later founded the City Hospital in Fayetteville. He died in 1917.

By 1850 Cane Hill was a leading pioneer village of Washington County. It was also the earliest city of culture since they had the first library and music department in the Female Seminary. Great progress was made although there were warnings of trouble, the people continued with their work until 1861 when Civil War started.

Cane Hill was only six miles from Prairie Grove where one of the fiercest battles of the War was fought. Federal soldiers had an encampment nearby and soon they began burning, killing, stealing, plundering. John, White's oldest son was in college and with Professor Pleasant Buchanan who formed a company of the students and as captain took off to war. Professor Buchanan was killed and many of the boys. The older men were being killed and tortured so were forced to go to Texas. Before White left for Texas he, with the help of a trusted slave, buried money and silver. Sarah Jane went to Major Nelson, who was in charge of the Federal troops and told him that she would furnish him lodging for the duration if he'd move in and protect them from the soldiers. He accepted, moved in and the burning, plundering ceased in her home. When White returned from Texas, his money had not been found by the soldiers and he was able to completely restock. He was also able to build the home that he had been planning - the beautiful colonial home that is still standing. It is now owned by the Talmadge Vann's. They restored it beautifully in the style in which it was built but, of course, with modern conveniences added.

The scene after the War was that of a burned, pillaged community. The school buildings, with the exception of the dormitory were burned (it was used as a hospital for Federal soldiers). The population was decreased and finances exhausted. However, when the dark days of war and the gloom of devastation that hung over the south had ended, the people did not give up. Like the Phoenix rising from the ashes (from an ancient quotation), they began rebuilding and starting again. The College was rebuilt, a large frame building. The Female Seminary was not rebuilt. School opened in 1868, the young ladies were not admitted until 1875. Florence Wilson taught the ladies until 1875. In ten years this building was burned by arsonist. The present brick building was immediately started and continued to offer college courses until 1891.

After the war ended and the slaves were freed, there was concern about them. Some land southeast of Cane Hill was given to them and a little community was established called "Happy Hollow". They even had a school for awhile - a couple, Mark and Maria, former slaves of the White McClellans, lived with them and were buried in the McClellan Cemetery. As the town declined, the Negroes began to leave especially the ones who had children of school age. The depression was the final blow and in short time Happy Hollow was deserted. At that time all black children from Fayetteville were transported by bus to Fort Smith to school every day until segregation ended this practice, in 1955.

John Trusdell McClellan, born 1842, White's oldest son, grew up on the farm and was in Cane Hill College when the Civil War started. He was with Professor Buchanan's company of college boys. John returned from War totally blind (from exposure and neuralgia). After he regained his health but not his eyesight, he went to the University of Virginia and in 1872 he received his law degree. He practiced law for a short time in McKinney, Texas. Then he came home and lived with his parents until their deaths. The farm was divided between him and his brother Getty. John got possession of the home and surrounding land. Getty got the land that was the original farm. John was an expert horseman, a genius in training his horses. There are many interesting stories told, unbelieveable, but those who knew him vouched for them. The horses were trained to respond to signals of touch, movement and commands. He often visited his sister and two brothers in Claremore, Oklahoma. His special horse was Josh. Josh always took him the way he wanted to go. It was a 3-day trip and occasionally if he would decide to stay longer he would send Josh on home with a note tied to the saddle saying "Let Josh pass". Josh always made it to his stable in Cane Hill. There is not space to tell all of the things that John could do, unreasonable for a blind man. John married Mary Buchanan. They had no children. She was a devoted companion but died before he did. In 1919 he fell from a loft, broke several ribs and died of pneumonia. John had been training "Maggie" to replace "Josh". John's brother took Maggie home to Claremore with him. In a short time the people in Cane Hill were surprised to see Maggie coming down the road headed for her stable.

Charles McClure McClellan, White's second son born 1846 also went off to the war though only 15 years-old. He served four years, part time with Stand Waitie's Cherokee Brigade. After the war, he met his father in Texas where he went to school (a year). When 21, he went to Tahlequah and started a mercantile business. He met and fell in love with Jennie Lind Foreman. She was the daughter of Reverend Stephan Foreman, a prominent Cherokee who had led a wagon train of Cherokees over the Trail of Tears from Georgia to Oklahoma. He built a fine house at Park Hill, near Tahlequah. Charles and Jennie Lind were married there in 1869. Rev. Foreman, who had gone to Princeton Seminary, believed strongly in education. He sent his son Taylor to the only college in the area - Cane Hill. Taylor fell in love with Ada, White McClellan's daughter and Charles' sister. In due time they married. Charles had bought land at Oswala, Cooweecoowee District, Cherokee Nation (later Rogers County). Taylor also acquired land in the same area. They both had large families. These double first cousins grew up very close, also close to their neighbor, Will Rogers and his family. They kept a close relationship with their McClellan grandparents and family in Cane Hill. A big event in their lives was attending the annual Confederate Reunion in Prairie Grove. After some years Taylor became ill with TB. After awhile he went to Colorado for his health. In 1890 two of the children became ill. Twelve year old daughter and a five year old son. Taylor came home; both children died within months and within a year Taylor died. Ada was left with four daughters: Lula, Jennie, Ada and Victoria. Two small boys, Taylor and Perry. Ada was a strong, determined woman. She managed well, her children had a good home, were all educated, graduated from Cherokee National Seminary of Tahlequah. Taylor went to Castle Heights and Perry graduated from Oklahoma University. After her children were gone, Ada left the ranch and moved to Claremore. When she was older and not well, she longed to return to her old home and live in the room that she knew as a child. Blind John had left the home to Charles Getty McClellan, great-grandson of White, grand-nephew of John. Charles Getty was only five years old. He moved into the house with his parents Harrison and Henry Irwin McClellan. This was about 1920. In 1935 Ada and a cousin to care for her were welcomed back and Ada lived the last year of her life, though an invalid, happy and contented. She died July 20, 1936. The service was held on the porch of her old home and she was buried next to her parents in the McClellan Cemetery.

Mary Elizabeth McClellan was White's oldest daughter. There are many stories of her activities during the War. She heard that a Yankee uncle of hers was stationed in Van Buren. Conditions were very bad, the soldiers had stolen and destroyed their supplies and they were hungry. Mary hitched a little pony to a wagon and with a slave boy, walked to Van Buren. Her uncle filled the wagon with food and they walked home. Mary led a very active and strenuous life and died, as a result, about the time the war was over. A beautiful marble headstone dedicated to Mary by her brother Blind John, is on Mary's grave in the McClellan Cemetery.

Lou Parker McClellan was one of White's younger daughters. She was born 1858, graduated from Cane Hill College 1876. She was responsible for many records and charts of the family in the early days that were a great help in compiling this history. She married Rev. Isaac Gaither. Their children were: Ada, Mary and Earle who were twins. No issue from these children. Rev. Gaither was pastor of the Cane Hill Church twice. Lou Parker was very active in church work especially with the young people. Ada spent her life with her parents. She never married. After finishing school Earle went into the Merchant Marines where he became captain of his own ship. He served in the Navy during World War II. When he retired, he came to Cane Hill for a while, then returned to his home in New Orleans where he died 1950. Mary finished her education with a business course and was employed in Tulsa by Sunray Oil Company and lived with the Wrights (he was head of company).

After Mary retired, she eventually went to Eureka Springs where she lived with her sister Ada until she died. Mary ended up at Oral Roberts Retirement Center in Tulsa and died in the infirmary. Mary was very generous. Blind John left her the contents of the house. She left the furniture as long as the family was there. Through the years she gave to family and friends mementoes that are valuable antiques.

In 1871, Thomas Campbell, grandson of Colonel John McClellan, son of Olivia, White's sister, came to Cane Hill from Alabama. He had married Sarah Welch whose family had already moved to Cane Hill. They had a young son, Clint. About three months after their arrival, a son William Booth was born in 1872 in the White McClellan home. White was his uncle. Booth grew up in Cane Hill, then lived with his maternal uncle Dr. William Welch in Fayetteville. He met and married Maude Sophia Oates, who was from Memphis, Tennessee. They moved to Cane Hill. Booth built a home on a panorama overlooking the village. They had three children, Wendell, Peggy and Murray. Booth was of fine pioneer stock, intelligent and good breeding. However, he loved the life of the rugged Ozarkian pioneer - picking his banjo, singing his ballads, entertaining his friends, even going to National festivals. His specialty was Ozarkian Folklore and he became widely known in these fields. Some of his records are in the Library of Congress. His children all graduated from the University and were successful in their jobs. Peggy married Bob Vaught, Murray married Dora Belle Taggort and have one daughter, Peggy Susan. After retiring they returned to Cane Hill to live. Wendell was an official in the Electric Company in Boston and only returned to Cane Hill on visits. He married and has one daughter. Booth died in 1956, Peggy, Murray and Dora Belle are great additions to the community.

Samuel Getty McClellan, the youngest son of White and Sarah Jane was born at Cane Hill in 1850. He lived his entire life at Cane Hill. He married Elizabeth (Lizzie) Cowly from Somerville, Alabama. They raised five children in Cane Hill. White's only grandchildren raised in Cane Hill. Getty's father left him part of the farm, he built an attractive home adjacent to the college campus.

Their first child, Madge, died an infant. The next daughter, Bess, born 1879 never married and lived in her parents home her entire life and often visited relatives in Texas and Oklahoma. She died in 1957.

Charles Getty, inherited the White McClellan house When he grew up Charles Getty built a cement block building nearby. He slaughtered hogs and cured the meat. The final step in smoking it was over a fire (coals) in a hole in the ground inside a small building. He did this for ten years. In 1947 he married Juanita Treat from Fayetteville. They had two children, Jeannie Sue and John Harrison. John was killed in an auto accident in 1973. Jeannie Sue married Dean Kisner and has three children, Sharon, Garren and Krystle. They live in a home Dean built close to the McClellan Cemetery. After Charles Getty died in 1971 Juanita built her home, a house in sight of the cemetery on McClellan farm and raised cattle. She's also secretary at the medical clinic in Prairie Grove.

A daughter of Samuel Getty, Sarah Margaret, married Ralph Carrol. They moved to Fort Worth, Texas, where he became a successful contractor. They had one daughter, Myrtle Belle. She never married; she visited Cane Hill relatives often.

Myrtle McClellan, youngest daughter of Samuel Getty married David Leon Moore. They made their home in his family residence - the Joe Moore home - except for two brief periods when he taught school in Walnut Grove and when they lived in Fayetteville when he was County Clerk. They had two children, Martha Elizabeth, who completed her education at the University of Arkansas and taught in Washington County schools. She is now retired and lives in the ancestral Moore home. A son, David Leon, Jr. resides on an adjacent farm and raises cattle. He spent some time in the Army, part time overseas during the Korean War. He married Rhoda Scott.

Samuel Getty's youngest son, born 1891, named Charles Getty but called "Charlie". He married Beulah Brewster, built a home on a portion of the White McClellan farm, and farmed a while then moved to Fayetteville where he served on the police force. They had two children, Susan Louise and Orin Brewster (Bus). Louise took a business course and for several years was employed in the office of J. C. Penney. She married Joseph McArdle in 1945, moved with him to Minnesota, his home state. They had four children, the last one born in Cane Hill where they had returned to live. Charlie and Beulah had moved back to the farm and lived there until he died in 1954. Beulah Louise and Joe have the house and they moved it onto the main street next to the church. The children all grew up there, went to school but Mary Jean is the only one living in Cane Hill now. She married Eddie Marshall, who lived in Prairie Grove. He had a military career and when he retired they came to Cane Hill. He, personally, is building a very special house on part of the McClellan farm. It is solar and has an indoor swimming pool. The first in Cane Hill. Eddie is also an excellent artist. He and Mary Jean have two sons, Wesley and Scott. Eddie is finishing his education at the University preparing to teach.

Orin Brewster McClellan (Bus), Charlie's son, spent his early days in Cane Hill. Then the family moved to Fayetteville while Charlie worked there. Bus married Neita Trammell. They have one son, Gary. Charlie retired and they moved back to the farm. Bus and Neita moved in with them while Bus built a home on a piece of property that belonged to his father. After a while they moved to Fayetteville where Neita worked for Dr. Clack. Bus had odd jobs but never gave up his farm where he raised cattle, chickens and turkeys. During W. W. II Bus was in the service, serving some time in Italy. He died in 1983. Gary lives on the farm with his three sons, Dallas, Shaun and Dusty.

Clark McClinton

One day a young man from Calera, Alabama, arrived in Rogers, Arkansas. R. T. McClinton had come to Benton County in 1901 to visit his cousin, but he stayed to teach school in Mudtown, a small district near Lowell. It was there McClinton met Edna Newkirk, a woman whose family had arrived in Benton County in 1884. He was 21 and she was 25.

seven or eight brothers and sisters in Alabama. R. T.'s father and four uncles had fought in the Civil War according to family history, but R. T. decided to make a new life for himself in Arkansas.

"My father ran the Newkirk farm as long as the family owned it," said Clark McClinton, the youngest of three children born to Edna Newkirk and R. T. McClinton. Clark didn't know that much about his father's family, but he met his grandmother, two aunts and an uncle when he was small, but "they stayed in Alabama and we stayed in Arkansas," he said.

Farming was a McClinton family tradition in both Alabama and Arkansas. "My earliest memories are of the apple orchards on the farm, picking apples and the spraying rigs," Clark said. "I must have been about three at the time." The farm produced barreling apples for shipment throughout the country. According to Clark, northwest Arkansas was the second largest apple-growing region in the nation in 1916. Although Clark's grandfather Benjamin Newkirk had died in 1899—long before Clark was born May 25, 1913—his grandmother, Margaret Newkirk, retained the farm with the help of R. T. Nothing was wasted from the apple orchards. "We took the culls to the vinegar plant," Clark recalled. "Apples were our cash crop then." The farm also had some cattle and the family raised its own feed.

Like his older sister and brother, Lela Mae and Charles, Clark entered school at age five, beginning his education November of 1918 at Bethel School. Clark's early school days were spent at a school built on land donated by his Grandfather Newkirk. Clark's first teacher at Bethel School was Sophia Walker of the Springdale Walker family. "It was a good school," Clark said.

In addition to farming, R. T. McClinton bought, sold or traded property in the area quite frequently. By 1921, R. T. had moved his family to a farm at what is now the intersection of highway 71 and 68 west in Springdale. Lela Mae was to enter the University of Arkansas in the fall of 1922, so R. T. decided to move the family from the farm to a place near Mt. Comfort.

While Lela Mae attended the university to study music under Henry Tovey, head of the music department, Charles and Clark rode horses to attend Washington School in Fayetteville. "We stabled the horses at a livery stable on Mountain Street in Fayetteville," Clark recalled. "It was just off the square. I remember there were two liveries still on Mountain Street up to the late 1920s, 1928 or 1929."

Lela Mae died one spring weekend of her first year in college. She was not quite 16. "She came home on Friday," Clark said, "and by Sunday she was dead of double pneumonia." It was 1923.

R. T. continued to buy, sell and trade property. He also dabbled in local politics, but not as a candidate. He was well-known and well-liked in Washington County. "Dad probably knew more people in Washington County than anyone, with the exception of Henry Walker, a former county sheriff," Clark said. R. T. even made a deal for a place in Oklahoma during the 1920s. He traded for a farm in western Oklahoma and decided to take the family out to see it. Clark remembers piling into a 1920 Buick four-door touring car in August and traveling two and a half days to get there. "The roads weren't much then," he chuckled. "I think the first night we stayed in a little hotel in Locust Grove, Oklahoma."

By 1926 the family had moved to a rented home in Fayetteville so Clark and Charles could attend University High School. Charles graduated in 1929 and Clark would graduate in 1930. But early in 1930, R. T. had an opportunity to buy a farm in Adair County, Oklahoma, just west of the Arkansas line, five miles east of Stilwell. January had been the coldest one on record, so the family waited until February to move. Although the McClintons moved to Oklahoma, Clark stayed in Fayetteville with friends until he could graduate from high school.

"I'd planned on attending the university to become a lawyer or an engineer," Clark said. "But after I graduated, things were so hard because of the Depression, I went to work on the farm." When Charles graduated from high school, he went to work surveying the first gas line in northwest Arkansas from Ozark to Fayetteville. It was the height of the Depression, and things were very difficult for farmers in Arkansas and Oklahoma. The stock market crash and bad weather were doubly hard on them.

"I remember the terrible summertime drouths. Everything was dry and dusty, ready to blow away," Clark said. Corn could be bought for 10 cents a bushel and finished hogs sold for as little as $2.35 for 100 pounds, a total of $5.28, usually.

In the fall of 1933, Clark and Charles drove to Joplin, Missouri, with some fat calves just weaned from the cow. "We sold'em for 3 cents a pound," he said. "Eggs went for 5 cents or 6 cents a dozen." They also sold seed wheat in Fort Smith for $1.00 for 90 pounds.

Even though times were tough, Clark's father worked the farm with modern equipment and methods. They still couldn't make a good living on the farm then, even though they would have a good crop occasionally. But good cash crops depended on the fickle weather. "February of 1932 was real warm," Clark said, "so we planted oats by mid-February. When March came, we had record low temperatures that still stand today. We lost the oats."

The McClintons stayed on the Stilwell farm long enough for Clark to meet his future wife, Marie Hardin. "Marie says Dad bought the farm just so I could meet her and get married," Clark chuckled. Although the McClinton family had moved to Adair County, Oklahoma, in 1930, Marie's family had been there since 1850. Her great-grandfather and great-grandmother Price arrived in Elm Grove, Indian Territory, from northwest Georgia a few years after the Cherokees traveled the Trail of Tears. Marie's great-grandfather was a quarter Cherokee himself. Her marriage to Clark McClinton marked the merging of rich territorial history for both Arkansas and Oklahoma.

In 1935 the McClinton family traded the Lowell farm for the Lottie Stone farm on the White River, 539 acres of the best land in the county, according to Clark. Charles had stayed on the Lowell farm from 1932 to 1935. Besides 340 acres of river-bottom land, the farm boasted one of the several brick houses Judge David Walker had built in the county prior to the Civil War.

1935 marked another change in the McClinton family as well. On December 24, Clark married Marie and took his bride to the Lottie Stone farm. Their son David was born three years later on the farm, delivered by Dr. E. F. Ellis—the same physician who had delivered Clark in Fayetteville.

After Clark married, he helped work the farm. But the economy didn't improve much for farmers and the area's roads didn't help them move their goods to market very well. Clark and Marie often drove to Stilwell from Washington County to see her parents on Sundays. The trip took at least two hours over the mountains. "The road was only paved to Farmington," Clark said. "It was gravel from there on." There weren't any car heaters to speak of during the late 1930s either, so they rode well-bundled up during the winter. They did manage family picnics with relatives during the spring and summer months, though.

By 1937 Charles was working on a highway project from Tontitown to Siloam Springs for Reynolds and Sutton Grading Contractors. He farmed part time, but he continued working on highway projects, including work on Highway 33 at Flint Creek in Oklahoma. In 1939 Charles went to Ogalala Lake in Nebraska to work, but moved into defense work in 1940 when the war in Europe escalated. Charles moved to Oklahoma to work at the Midwest Air Depot in August of 1941. Clark soon followed.

During the 1930s, good farm labor was hired at $1 a day. By 1941 pay scales had changed radically. "I could make $1.25 an hour working at the air depot," Clark said. "Good farm labor could still be hired for $1 a day, even in 1941. So it was just easier to work at the air depot and hire someone to work on the farm in Arkansas."

Clark could live on $12 to $15 a week in Oklahoma City, including room and board, and send money back to Arkansas to help pay farm expenses. He worked at the air depot from September 1941 to June of 1942, when he decided to return to the farm on the White River. Americas's entry into World War II would change the McClinton's way of life, however, from a farming family to a construction one. Clark had run a crawler tractor and grader at the depot. He had to return to the farm because there wasn't any help to run it any longer. The war had taken most of the draft-age men, and those who were left could make more money in defense work than as farm laborers. The McClintons finally sold the farm to Gene Goff in 1943.

Since Charles had no children, he faced the draft, too. He enlisted in the Sea-Bees in 1943, continuing to work in construction. Clark rented another farm after the Lottie Stone farm sold for $23,000. The farm, near what is now Walker Park, had a small dairy and chickens. It was mostly pasture for the herd, and Clark kept machinery to grow hay for the cattle, keeping his hand in mechanical things.

Charles finally left the service in December of 1945, returning to northwest Arkansas and the McClinton family. The war was over for Clark and Charles, but the change was not. In May of 1946 they began McClinton Brothers Construction Company with a $950 war-surplus Caterpillar bulldozer and a truck. They had $5,000 between them to start the business. The firm prospered over the years, despite the recession in the early 1950s. As northwest Arkansas grew and changed, the firms highway contracts expanded to meet the demand. Innovative management and acquisition of equipment was a hallmark of McClinton Brothers Construction. Clarks's son David joined the firm after he graduated from the University of Arkansas, but he had worked with his dad and uncle as a boy.

The firm's prosperity is a reflection of the hard work, determination and flexibility of the McClinton family. R. T. carved a niche for himself and his family when he moved them to Fayetteville in the early 1920s, becoming active in the community's affairs.

Although the area changed from one of family-owned farms to a more urban population by the time Clark and Charles began McClinton Brothers, Clark continued the family tradition of community involvement. He began joining organizations in the mid-1940s, joining the Masons in 1945. By 1948 he had achieved 32nd degree and had also joined the Shriners. But the basic principles of the Rotary Club, which Clark joined in June of 1953, seem to exemplify the McClinton family in both its community and business dealings. Rotary Club has a set of principles known as a four-way test. The test questions are prominently displayed on two different places on Clark's office walls: First, is it the truth? Second, is it fair to all concerned? Third, will it build goodwill and better friendship? Fourth, will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Education as a benefit for all has been an important part of the McClinton family history. R. T. began as a teacher in his adopted state. Clarks's maternal grandfather donated land for a new school. And, during northwest Arkansas' post-World War II expansion, Clark was elected to the school board, serving from 1949 to 1959. During that time, the Fayetteville School District added several schools, including Root Elementary, Woodland Junior High School, Fayetteville High School, Leverett Elementary, and Bates Elementary. In 1960 Clark was appointed by Governor Orval Faubus to the State Board of Education.

The business community has also benefited from the McClinton family's abilities. R. T. was a strong supporter of the Fayetteville business community, and Clark followed in his footsteps. He served as president of the Arkansas Chapter of the Associated General Contractors, an organization he joined in the 1950s. He received the association's distinguished service award in 1974. His concern for building goodwill and friendship in Fayetteville led him to the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce. Clark served as its president in 1969 and was chairman of the planning commission from 1964 to 1970. It was in Rotary Club that he expanded his concern for Fayetteville to include not only his district, but the world. Clark was elected district governor for one of the country's largest districts (73 clubs) for 1987-88. His background in farming and love of education led him to participate in Rotary's International programs, including the graduate student exchange and Third World aid in medicine and agriculture.

Clark's community involvement, as his father's, was not limited to civic organizations. He has been an active member of the Methodist Church since he joined the Central Methodist Church of Fayetteville in 1925. He has been a Sunday school superintendent at Wiggins Methodist Church, appointed in 1945. Clark was also a Sunday school teacher there for 35 years, and is still an associate teacher. He has served on various church committees in almost every capacity on both the district and conference levels, and was a member of the jurisdictional and general conferences for the Methodist Church in 1968.

The McClinton family history in Benton and Washington Counties has always seemed to center on the future and the principles found in the Rotary Club's four-way test. R. T. McClinton came to Benton County from Alabama and, instead of continuing to teach at Mudtown, took over the family farm when he married Edna Newkirk. He moved his family to town to insure his children would have the best possible education. But even though his only daughter died before she could complete what promised to be a brilliant music career at the University of Arkansas, and the Depression ended the hopes for college educations for his sons, R. T. McClinton proved to be flexible in the face of adversity. The trait was passed to his sons.

The Depression and World War II profoundly affected the future of the McClinton family business. The family's focus had to change. Farming, which had been a way of life for them, was something the family could no longer afford. Edna McClinton lived just long enough to see the beginnings of change, dying May 25, 1941. R. T. lived to see the family begin a successful construction business. He watched Charles and Clark redirect the family's business toward construction and expansion of the area's highway system. As he had once helped meet the demands for good apples, produce and other farm products, he was able to see Clark and Charles meet northwest Arkansas' demand for paved roads. R. T. died in 1968.

Although Charles died in 1971, and had left McClinton Brothers Construction several years before that, Clark continues to work at the family business in Fayetteville with his son David. Both he and David are still very active in the community affairs. But, more and more, Clark watches his four grandchildren—Michelle, 24; Kenneth, 22; Amy, 18; and Christopher, 4—and wonders just what the future holds for the McClinton family in Washington County, Arkansas.

Amos Marion Mount

Amos Marion Mount, son of Richard and Polly Martin Mount, was born near Carnesville in Wilson County, Tennessee, November 10, 1813 and died at his home near Fayetteville, Washington County, Arkansas, December 30, 1854. He married Lively Patterson, December 20, 1836 in Tennessee. About 1850 they moved to Washington County, Arkansas where they settled about 12 miles west of Fayetteville. Lively was born October 23, 1814 near Carnesville, Tennessee and died July 11, 1875 in Washington County, Arkansas.

Amos moved his family to Washington County about 1851 or 1852 to avoid the "great drought" that struck middle Tennessee from 1847 to 1855. His younger brother, Richard and wife, Eliza moved to Arkansas with him. Amos died five months before his youngest child, Amos Lively Mount was born in Washington County. His other children were born in Tennessee and included: Christian Mount, born January 5, 1838 and died young; Susan Elizabeth, born December 8, 1839; William Jackson, born August 29, 1841; John Isham, born June 29, 1844; Margaret Amanda, May 3, 1846; Martha, August 1, 1848; Mary Frances, August 28, 1850; Richard, born August 25, 1852 and died young; Amos Lively, born May 4, 1855.

Bonnie Neff

Story written by Bonnie Fay Hazel Petersen Neff. My parents were Forrest F. and Ora Fay Hazel. Both were long time residents of Springdale, Washington County, but neither of them was a native. They had two children, Darline Hazel Crossland and Bonnie Hazel Neff. Darline lives in Monroe, Louisiana. I have lived in Springdale almost all of my life. I lived in Sacramento, California for four years.

Forrest was born in 1891 in Bordley, Kentucky. He died in 1981. His parents were Lucy Jane (Janie) Fryer and Hiram Christopher Hazel. Hiram died and Janie married Richard Henry Hazel (she married two men named Hazel, but they were not related). Janie and R. H. came to Springdale before World War I, probably about 1914. Forrest moved here as a grown man in his 20's about 1916. R. H. was a farmer and a business man. He was in the wholesale produce business. It was first called "Harris, Claypool and Hazel". Later it was "Claypool and Hazel", but the Hazel was Forrest instead of R. H. Later, when Claypool retired, it became "Brogdon and Hazel". Still later, after Paul Brogdon died, it became "Container Supply", and his partner was Don Petersen.

Forrest fought in World War I. He served active duty in France. When the war ended Forrest returned to Springdale and married his sweetheart, Ora, who had waited for him. They were married in 1919.

Ora Fay Davis was born in 1899 to Mary Smith and Zephaniah A. Davis. They came here from eastern Colorado, but were originally from Iowa. They came to Springdale in 1912. They had a farm home on what is now highway 68 west. It was called "Maple Lawn". Ora died in 1988.

Forrest was in the wholesale produce business many years. He retired about 1967 after his third business partner, Don Petersen, died. He was mayor of Springdale in the 1930s, and was active in many civic activities. He was a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Springdale. Forrest and Ora Hazel had two daughters: Darline, who married Conway Crossland of Little Rock, Arkansas; and Bonnie Fay, who married Don Petersen of Sacramento, California.

Darline and Conway Crossland had two daughters, Nancy Crossland Weems, and Mary Beth Crossland Clay. Nancy has two children, Stovall and Conway Weems. They live in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Mary Beth has two children, Caroline and Michael Clay. They live in Canal Fulton, Ohio.

Don Petersen, 1960.

Our first house bought in 1919. Also Darline's birth-place.

Bonnie Fay and Don Petersen had three children: Susan Petersen Wood, born in 1948; David Eugene Petersen, born in 1950; and Jimmie Don Petersen, born in 1954 and died in 1954. Susan lives in Springdale and has one son, Brett Beavers. David lives in Denver, Colorado, and is married to Elly Weltziemer Petersen.

Don was born in Logan, Utah, in 1923. He was active in many civic and business affairs until his early death in 1967, at the age of 43. He was a veteran of World War II. He went to the Philippine Islands with the U. S. Army Signal Corps. On his return in 1945, he married Bonnie Fay Hazel. Don was active in Republican Party politics. He was chairman of the Republican Club of Washington County, and he was a member of the Republican State Committee. He was chairman of the Urban Renewal Committee in Springdale. He was a 32nd degree Mason, and a member of the board of directors of the Springdale Savings and Loan. He was a partner in the business of Container Supply, which dealt in packaging materials.

In 1968 Bonnie Petersen married Wayne Neff of Elm Springs, Arkansas. Wayne was born in Elm Springs in 1923. He was the son of Alta Ford and Dorcie Neff. Wayne was a veteran of World War II. He served in the Air Force. He participated in 40 air raids in the Pacific Islands. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal. Wayne was active in civic and business affairs. He was mayor of Elm Springs for 12 years. He was associated with the poultry industry in this area in many different ways. He was in the florist and nursery business from 1969 to 1983. He and his wife, Bonnie, owned Neff Nurseries. He was on the board of directors of the Springdale Savings and Loan. He retired in 1983 and died in 1987 at the age of 64.

Wayne and his first wife, Irene Watts Neff, had two children, Cyndy Neff Nixon and Karen Neff Treat. Cyndy lives in Fayetteville, and has one child, Jennifer Nixon. Karen lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and has two children, Kevin Kemp Treat and David Treat, Jr..

Thomas J. Parsons

Thomas J. Parsons came from Texas to Arkansas, married Ellen Cannon, bought 9 acres of land near Sonora with a log cabin that had been built by a Mr. Fink. The cabin had only been lived in by the Fink Family.

To this couple was born two boys and two girls: Jody Simeon Parsons, Carlos Parsons, Virtle, and Della. They lived in a small log cabin with an upstairs for sleeping. A ladder was built inside the room, on the wall, to climb to the room upstairs.

After Thomas Parsons died in 1903, Ellen married a man whose name was W. C. Vanzant and known by everyone as "Uncle Billy".

Jody Parsons married Rosa Graham, daughter of Peter Graham. They had nine children: Theodore, Irene, Thurman (Shorty), Hugh, Harlen, Chloe, Imogene, Faye and Dale. He farmed, worked in the timber, and any job he could acquire in order to provide for his family. He died in November, 1953. Rosa had a stroke before he died, but she lived until 1954. She was bedfast most of that period and was unable to talk.

The log house, which was located on 20 acres 3 miles east of Springdale, burned after the two older children were married. Irene married Terrell Youre when she was fifteen years old, and moved to Kansas. Jody and Rosa took the six children and went to Kansas. Thurman married Inez Sisco, stayed on the twenty acre farm in a berry shed that was connected to a liveable house - three rooms. They stayed in Kansas in the winter, came back and built a new house on the twenty acres. Theodore married Ethel Ponder and they had a family of seven children including a set of twin boys. Irene stayed in Kansas. They had three daughters who are all married and kept their families in Kansas. Thurman and Inez had five children. The second baby was stillborn. Glenn, Pat, Harold, and Brenda are all married and living in Springdale. Inez taught school - between having babies. Thurman bought twenty acres close to his dad, farmed a few years, worked in a grocery store for A. L. Clem on the east side of Springdale, and for Scott Watts for a dollar a day. He rode a horse three miles to work. Their home burned in 1939. They rebuilt on the same place in 1941. He moved across the street from Watt's Grocery, put in a grocery store in the Clarkson building, bought a farm at Goshen, moved there for one year, sold the farm, moved to the house he had built in 1941. He sold the grocery store and bought into the sale barn with three other men. He and Harold operated the sale barn. He also owned a feed store with Bob Sharp but when Glenn finished school, he bought Bob's share, built a new building east of the sale barn. The store is still in operation. Thurman bought more land adjoining his acreage; he and Glenn built chicken houses alternating with turkeys. Glenn married Alma Curry and they had a family of two boys and two girls: Rick Parsons, who works at First State Bank, built his home, after marrying Robyn Saubert, on an adjoining acreage from his dad. This couple has three children: Wade, age 4, Luke, age 2, and Emily, age 1. Another child is expected in May. Sue married Lonnie Taylor. They built a home joining Glenn's farm. They have a peach orchard, blueberries, and three turkey houses. They have three daughters whom they teach at home. Rock, married Lisa Hale and they have two children: Jordin and Joel. Rock works at Tyson's where he has worked since he graduated from college. He had a choice of building on his dad's farm or another farm northwest of Springdale. He chose a two acre plot and built there. Gina graduated from nursing school in Denton, Texas married Terry Pritchard and is working at the Baylor Hospital. Terry is a CPA and has his office at his home.

Pat married Joe Hutter in 1955. They have a son who married Carolyn Wood. They have a boy, Jeremy and a daughter, Kimberly. Melinda is Pat and Joe's youngest daughter, a senior. They all live here on the farm. They train barrel horses. Mike works for Chicken Pullman.

Harold is a farmer and cattleman. He oversees the herd. He also owns and operates a landfill: Northwest Arkansas Waste Management. It is located here on the farm. He married Delores Shelley. They have a boy and girl, Dwain and Paige, age 22 and 20. They, along with their mother, help with the landfill operation.

Brenda was the youngest of Thurman's children. She married Sam Lazenby, a native of Helena, Arkansas. They moved to Lancaster, Pennsylvania where he was an engineer for Bechtel Corporation. After a few years they decided to return to Springdale. They own a chicken farm, only 5 minutes from Thurman's home place. They also purchased a turkey operation at Elm Springs. They raise baby calves which involves the whole family: Clint, 15, Nathan, 12, and Daniel, 9.

Hugh Parsons, deceased, married Lillian Kendrick. He was a farmer. They had one boy, Dennis and one grandson, Stewart.

The next child, Harlen, went to California at age 17. He married Gertrude Lisenbee. They had 5 children: Yvonne who married Richard Cook. Their children are Mark and Nancy. Ronald, who married Hazel live in Oregon and have a boy and a girl. Harlen was a fruit farmer at Ripon, California (deceased).

Chloe married Elmer Douglas and lived in Kansas where 3 children were born. They moved to Arkansas where Chloe still lives. Larry is a lawyer in Springdale. Betty an airline reservationist in Tulsa, and Marlene is in business for herself in Houston, Texas.

Imogene resided in Springdale. She married Lee Gibson and they had a boy and girl. Don Gibson who married Carol Lynn Camfield. He is Executive Vice President of First State Bank. They have two boys: Ryan and Dereck. Pam married Jerry Barrett. They reside in Kansas City. Jerry is in sales and Pam teaches school. They have a boy and girl, Bo and Brittany.

Dale married Frances Keck. He is retired from raising poultry and farming. They had one boy, Robert Dale and live east of Springdale.

Faye, the youngest, married Jesse Esteves and they had two boys, Jeffery and Jerry. Jesse is deceased. She is now married to Dave Mueller who is a city manager in Manteca, California. The boys also live there.

Thurman had a kidney failure in 1985. He had to go to Fayetteville three times per week to take kidney dialysis treatment. He had a foot removed January 1987. He had always been so active that this just took away his desire to live because he was confined to a wheel chair. He departed this life February 17, 1988 at Washington Regional Medical Center at Fayetteville, Arkansas.

One of the highlights of his life was the construction of the rodeo arena in Springdale which bears his name: "Parsons' Stadium".

He enjoyed a life of 77 years with thirty-four descendants living close by on the farms he was responsible for. Only one granddaughter and her husband lived out of the area. Also, he had the enjoyment they were all Christians.

"Shorty" Parsons was buried at Friendship Cemetery, east of Springdale, the area in which he had always lived.

Mac Pasley

William Pasley, born February, 1834, in Indian Territory, and Lucinda Jane Diven Edmiston Pasley, widow of Moses Edmiston, and second wife of William, born in Lincoln County, Tennessee, in 1828, were married in Washington County, Arkansas, in the 1860s. Their children were Loretta, Mac Crawford, Martin Luther, and Hattie.

Mac Crawford Pasley, born March 4, 1866, near Rhea's Mill, Arkansas, was my grandfather.

After he finished the Amity School, Mac's family attempted to send him to Cane Hill College, a forerunner of the University of Arkansas. The dormitory for boys was apparently too restrictive for Grandpa. He refused to stay and his folks had to let him move home.

On December 29, 1886, at age 20, he married 19-year-old Mary Bell McCord, daughter of James H. McCord, a school teacher, and Mary Jane Hartley McCord.

After the birth of their first two children, Daisy Dolorita, April 1, 1888, and my father, Albert Vane, April 19, 1890, near Rhea's Mill, Grandpa moved his family by wagon to a farm near Vinita in Indian Territory, (now eastern Oklahoma).

Edna Earle was their first child born after the move on August 3, 1892. Aunt Edna later related to us that it was the custom in those days for pioneer families to provide hospitality for travelers since there were no inns for miles on the prairie. She remembered that one dark, rainy night, when she was about three years old, two horsemen knocked on their door and asked to spend the night. Her father invited them into their two room cabin and her mother fixed supper for the horsemen. But Edna was wary of the strangers. She sat in her little rocker by the fireplace, rocking her cat and watching the visitors. She didn't want to talk, but one of the men started teasing her about the cat's name. He said its name was Saskewatchen. She replied that it was not and refused to talk any more. The Pasley family all slept in one room, even the strangers who slept with their saddles on the floor. After breakfast the next morning, they were on their way.

Grandpa's family prospered on the prairie and more children were born; Gertie Bell, November 25, 1895, followed by Jennie Grace, April 6, 1898. Another boy, Robert H., was born October 10, 1900. On July 21, 1903, the family received a bonus; twins, Jesse Ray and Bessy May.

The little Pasleys attended school with the Cherokee Indian children. Aunt Edna stated that they thought nothing of being the only "white" students in school as they knew their grandfather, William, was part Cherokee.

But times were not always happy for the family. Grief and disappointment were unwelcome visitors. Little Gertie Bell died of membraneous croup March 23, 1897.

One year after a season of dry weather, Christmas neared and there was money only for the barest necessities. My father, Allie, related that he and his brother and sisters were expecting no presents when their papa went to Vinita to buy a few provisions. But, to the children's glee, their beloved papa returned to their cabin with two sacks. One contained groceries and the other had presents. When the young father related his plight to the store keeper, the kindly merchant told him to select a gift for each child. My father, who was fascinated with penmanship, had a life-long memory of the pencil box received that Christmas, as the most cherished present of his childhood.

Grandfather Mac's youngest sister, Hattie and her husband, George Barton, lived a few miles east of Cincinnati, Arkansas. Uncle George was a miller at Moore's Mill near Eureka School and the Bartons' home. Although the Bartons had no children, they knew of the good reputation of the Eureka School. Children attending ranged from the ages of 6 to 20.

In Indian Territory most schools were the subscription type with terms as short as three months. Thus the Mac Pasleys pondered a return to Washington County where the children could get a better education.

My grandfather made a trip from Vinita to Rhea's Mill to visit his parents and brother, Luther, as well as the Bartons near Cincinnati. His main purpose was to scout the area for a farm. He located one for sale near his sister in the Cincinnati area near Eureka School. He hired two drivers with covered wagons to return with him to his home in Indian Territory. His father also accompanied the group to help with the move.

My Aunt Grace remembered that the twins were about six months old at the time they moved in December, 1903. The weather was very cold so Grandfather Mac sent my grandmother with Grace, age 5, Robert, age 3, the twins, and their grandfather, William, on the train from Vinita to Westville, where they were met by Uncle George Barton. He took the traveling Pasleys to his home to await the arrival of the covered wagon caravan from Indian Territory.

Grandpa Pasley and the drivers loaded three covered wagons to make ready for their journey to Cincinnati, Arkansas. Allie and Dolo, ages 13 and 15, rode in the wagon with their papa. When ready to board, one of the hired drivers announced that he had a bottle of whiskey and needed someone to sit beside him to protect his spirits from breakage. Eleven-year-old Edna quickly volunteered for the job. Even though the children were dressed warmly, with quilts to shield them from the cold, Aunt Dolo's toes were frost bitten during the trip. At night, the wagons served as sleeping quarters.

Before planting time in the spring of 1904, the Mac Pasleys were settled in their new home east of Cincinnati, Arkansas, and Dolo, Allie, Edna and Grace were enrolled in Eureka School.

Aunt Dolo helped her mother with the housework, canning, sewing all the children's clothes, caring for the twins and the last baby, Mac Emerson, born October 7, 1906. My father and Aunt Edna helped Grandpa with the farm where he raised a garden, corn, wheat, oats, and some cattle. Grandpa had two teams of horses and a team of mules. By 1905, he and Allie had set out a 40-acre apple orchard.

My Uncle Robert related that Grandpa was Sunday School Superintendent of the Methodist Church at Cincinnati for about six years. He was also a Justice of the Peace. In that capacity, he performed a number of marriage ceremonies for couples in the Cincinnati area. In addition, he belonged to the Masonic Lodge of Cincinnati. His father was a member of the Prairie Grove Lodge.

By the spring of 1906, Aunt Dolo had finished Eureka School. She took a civil service test and was appointed postmistress at Cincinnati at the age of 18! During her tenure as postmistress, she contracted a severe case of measles, and was in bed for several weeks. Prolonged bed rest was the prescribed treatment for severe illnesses in that era. Dolo gave up the job at the post office. Upon her recovery, she took the Washington County Teachers Exam, passed, and was certified to teach. Her first school was at Rennic, near Cincinnati. The next was War Eagle. Dolo's last school was at Colony, north of Cincinnati, on State Highway 59. During a term at Colony, she married Roy May, of Cincinnati, on August 20, 1922. They settled on a nearby farm and she continued to teach one more term. They later operated the Cincinnati telephone switchboard.

After Allie graduated from Eureka he worked on the farm. Later, he attended high school in Siloam Springs for one year. Then he took the civil service test about 1913 for rural mail carrier. He scored well and was assigned a route out of the Rhea's Mill Post Office.

About 1919, Grandpa's apple orchard had a bumper crop. He made enough money to build the large house they had wanted for their large family.

Grandmother Mary Bell subscribed to the Holland's Magazine, where she got the ideas for the dream house. She drew the plans and work was started on the residence about 1/8 mile east of the old house. The new place had a two-story wing containing six bedrooms and a parlor. The one-story west wing had a large dining room, kitchen, large pantry lined with shelves for canned food, and screened porches on the north and south sides of the dining room. There was space off a hallway between the dining room and a back bedroom for the bath. No stairway was visible from the first floor. It was hidden by a door in the dining room. The arrangement also prevented downstairs heat from escaping up the stairway. A small water pump in the kitchen sink produced water with a slight push and pull of the handle. Another special feature was the pass through china cabinet between the kitchen and dining room. The two story section had an outside porch that wrapped around two sides. About the time the house was completed, Grandpa Mac developed Parkinson's disease.

While carrying the mail from Rhea's Mill, my father met a pretty young widow, Rella Mae Henderson Cowan, a teacher at Howe School. The following year she taught in Watts, Oklahoma. After a few months courtship of commuting by train on weekends, Allie persuaded Rella Mae to give up the teaching job and get married. They were married in the Methodist Church in Watts, Oklahoma, February 19, 1917. In 1918, they bought the 160-acre farm, then known as the Jacobs' place, about 1/2 mile west of the Rhea's Mill store and post office. Father carried mail one more year. Then he farmed full time.

By 1912, Edna had also finished Eureka School and secured a teaching certificate. Her first school was Scrougeout, near Wedington. The next was at Goshen (go-shen) located east of Fayetteville. During one of her summers at normal school (a special training school for teachers), Aunt Edna and one of the professors developed a special friendship. His name was Jimmy Lee Harris. Jimmy Lee quit teaching normal school to run for the Legislature from Washington County and was elected. He and Aunt Edna kept up a correspondence and decided to get married during the school term. They met on a train at "some town in Arkansas" for the ceremony. She returned to Goshen to finish the school year, and Jimmy Lee returned to the legislature. At the end of her school term and his legislative session, they moved to Winfield, Kansas, where he attended Southwestern University until he received his B. A. degree. His quest for a higher education was to benefit more of the Pasleys in forthcoming years.

Around 1918, it was Aunt Jennie Grace's turn to try for a life away from the nest. She went to Fayetteville to take a civil service test for a post office job in Texarkana, Arkansas. She was the third of Mac Pasley's children to score well on the government test. So, she got the assignment in Texarkana. While working in the post office, she met a young man who worked with the mail on the trains. He was James Floyd Needham. They were married on January 21, 1924, and both continued working with the mail.

1921 proved to be a tragic year for the Pasleys. Grandpa Mac had Parkinson's disease, Grandmother had cancer, and their youngest son, Mac Emerson, died on February 21, at age 14. Mary Bell Pasley died on December 10, 1921 at age 54, after living in the new house just over one year.

Robert was the last of the Pasley children to be certified to teach school. He got a job at Rock Springs, on the Jackson Highway, but after one year, was convinced that he should be a farmer. He took care of Grandpa and worked the family farm.

In the meantime, Aunt Edna and Uncle Jim Harris moved to Dallas, Texas. Uncle Jim worked for the Y. M. C. A. and enrolled in S. M. U. Divinity School. The Pasley twins moved to Dallas to live with them and go to school. Bessy then graduated from a business college and moved to Texarkana, Arkansas, to live with her sister, Grace. Jesse (J. R.) worked with Uncle Jim at the Y. Later he worked at an ice plant while he finished high school and S. M. U. Aunt Grace remembers that J. R. finished the four-year high school in three years, at the top of his class. He graduated from S. M. U. in 1929.

Uncle Jim Harris received his B. D. degree and was ordained a Methodist minister. He was assigned a church in the Weatherford, Texas, area. He continued attending S. M. U. as he worked toward his Master of Theology degree. By this time, Edna and Jim Harris were the proud parents of James Lawrence Harris, born November 5, 1926.

When the writer was a child, one of the great times was to visit Grandpa and Uncle Robert. The big house was empty except for the two residents. Grandpa had a pump organ, a Victrola, and a new gadget, called a radio. To hear the radio one had to use headsets. There were three or four headsets and the adults were very excited about their new "toy". When they let the child of the family listen on a headset, it was baffling to her to understand why the adults were so delighted with a machine that produced sounds of static and scratchy music. A four to five-year-old of that era couldn't comprehend the significance of the new invention.

Grandpa Mac died on August 28, 1928. His funeral was one of the vivid memories of the writer's childhood. Because of the heat, before the service the relatives were all gathered under the shade trees on the front lawn of the Pasley home. Little James Harris and Virginia Nell were the only grandchildren. James was wearing a navy blue sailor suit with white braid trim and short pants, while his cousin wore a beige silk pongee dress. Uncle Robert was engaged to a recent Apple Blossom Queen, Elsie Snodgrass, of Lincoln, Arkansas, so they captured admiring stares from his six-year-old niece. All the families climbed into Model T's for the ride to the service which was held in a white Methodist Church, high on a hill in Cincinnati.

Thus, Mac and Mary Bell Pasley were departed from their family. They instilled in their children a heritage of Christian values, a love of country, and an unusual desire toward education as we shall see in the following lives.

Aunt Dolo and Uncle Roy May lived on the farm in the Cincinnati area until Uncle Roy's death. Their daughter, Mary Bell, completed the Cincinnati Public Schools; then went to Weatherford, Texas, to live with Aunt Edna while attending Weatherford Junior College. She graduated from North Eastern State University at Tahlequah, Oklahoma. Mary is a third grade teacher in the Hobbs, New Mexico, school system. She married George Mooney who works for a natural gas company. Their daughter, Alicia, is attending college and working on a degree to teach special education. Their son, Bill Mooney, attended North Texas State in Denton, Texas. He is a musician in California. Aunt Dolo lived her last years with Mary and family. She died of a heart attack, at age 75, in Hobbs, New Mexico.

James L. Harris, son of Aunt Edna and Uncle Jim, graduated from Weatherford Junior College; then received B. A. and M. A. degrees from Texas Wesleyan College at Fort Worth, Texas. James has been Medical Education Director for the F. A. A. for the past 25 years. His career started at the agency in Fort Worth. Later he was transferred to Washington, D. C., where he worked until the F. A. A. headquarters were moved to Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. James married Sammie Phillips of Weatherford, Texas. They have one daughter, Lauranne, who earned a B. S. degree from Bethany Nazarene College in Oklahoma City. In June of 1987, Lauranne graduated with honors from the University of Oklahoma Medical School. She is currently doing an internship in a hospital in Oklahoma City. Next she has a three-year residency in obstetrics and gynecology.

Uncle Jim Harris, formerly of Washington County, Arkansas, died in the 1950's. He was a helper and inspiration to Mac Pasley's family. Aunt Edna died July 15, 1987, in Oklahoma City. She had an alert and agile mind to her very last days.

Aunt Grace and Uncle James Floyd Needham had one daughter, Jennie Carol, who attended the University of Arkansas and received a B. S. in Medical Technology. She works for a hospital in Shreveport, Louisiana. Uncle James died many years ago but Aunt Grace is 89, mentally alert, and residing with her daughter, Carol, in Shreveport. Carol married Joe Hays. Their daughter, Holly, is in junior college in Shreveport. Their son, Jim, is a high school student. Two years ago, Aunt Grace flew alone to Oklahoma City to attend her sister Edna's 93rd birthday party.

Uncle Robert married Elsie Snodgrass soon after Grandpa's death. They farmed in the Cincinnati area on part of the original Pasley farm for many years. When they were in their forties, they took time off the farm to work in Fayetteville. Uncle Robert worked as a mail carrier out of the Dickson Street Station. Aunt Elsie worked in a nearby canning factory. They worked those jobs for five years, saving money to buy a larger farm east of Grandpa's place. They retired in Lincoln, before they were disabled. Uncle Robert is now 87 years old. He plants and tends a beautiful garden each year, mows their lawn, cooks some, does the laundry, and cares for Aunt Elsie who had a stroke earlier this year. She is partially disabled. Uncle Robert, an amazing uncle, is mentally and physically agile. He likes to discuss the foods that are good for the body.

Bessy May Pasley continued to live in Texarkana until she married Albert McKinney in 1936. They moved to Beaumont, Texas. Mr. McKinney died after they had been married just a few years. She later married Albert Lasiter who also preceded her in death. Aunt Bessy died of a heart attack in Beaumont, Texas, October 24, 1964. According to Aunt Edna, when the twins were in Eureka grade school, it was Bessy who did their homework after school each day. In the mornings she cornered her brother, Jesse, to help him with his lessons before they left for school. At that time, he disliked school intensely. It was ironic that Jesse was the one child of Mac and Mary Bell's clan to graduate from a major university.

Jesse (J. R.) Pasley married Virginia Wyatt on February 14, 1932. He worked as a supervisor in the auditing department of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company for his lifetime career. He died of cancer on November 23, 1971. J. R. and Virginia had two children; Nell Diane and William Barton Pasley. Diane attended North Texas State at Denton, Texas, before she married. Her oldest son, James McCary Bogan III, received an appointment to West Point and graduated in 1984. Her younger son, Todd Wyatt Bogan, graduated from the Culinary Institute of America in 1986. Diane works in a veterinary clinic in Fort Worth, Texas. William Barton (Bill) graduated from S. M. U. in 1962, from S. M. U. Law School in 1965; and received his Master of Laws from the same university in 1974. He married a teacher, Linda Robbie Lewis. They have one son, Wyatt Lewis Pasley, a Highland Park Junior High student in Dallas. Bill, named for his great-grandfather, William Pasley, heads a law firm in the Bank of Dallas Building. Since Luther Pasley had no grandsons, and Mac's sons, Robert and Albert, had no sons, Wyatt Lewis Pasley is the last male to carry the Pasley name from his great-great-grandparents, William and Lucinda Jane Diven Edmiston Pasley of Rhea's Mill, Arkansas.

Allie and Rella Pasley were my parents. They continued to live most of their lives on the farm west of Rhea's Mill. Allie farmed like his father - including a 40-acre apple orchard. When the good crop with high prices hadn't come through in about ten years after the bearing stage, he had the orchard cut down. Then he concentrated on a stock farm - cattle, hogs, sheep and goats. Many times a goat pushed its horned head through the fence in search of greener grass. Then the animal was stuck until one of us turned its head sideways to get the horns loose from the fence. The fence line had to be walked each day. Periodically, a neighbor would report to my father that a goat was high on a rock on the bluff on the far side of the pasture. My dad always went to investigate but never found an animal on the spot described.

We attended the Rhea Methodist Church. There was a minister one Sunday per month. The other Sundays we just had Sunday School. At Christmas time we always had a big cedar tree in the church. It was decorated with strings of popcorn, and various homemade ornaments. On Christmas Eve there was a program by the children, and Santa Claus passed a bag of candy, an apple and an orange, to each person attending.

Mother belonged to the "Club", or the Rhea Home Demonstration Club. She enjoyed the programs and the visiting.

My father served on the Rhea's Mill school board for two terms when I was in grade school.

The school building was used for community activities such as debates, pie suppers, and spelling bees. My dad enjoyed the debates. Mother and I like the pie suppers and the bees.

Mother raised chickens and sold eggs for her "pin" money. In the late 1930s, my father built a double wall two room rock chicken house. The rocks were sandstones from the farm. On the front wall he placed a fossilized sandstone with an imprint of scales of a large snake or lizard. The imprint looked like a small tire print pressed in mud. The impression was about four inches wide. My father found this rock on the farm.

In the winter time my dad liked to work on his inventions. When he was carrying the mail, he invented and patented some part to improve the performance of a buggy. Around 1915 or 1916, the buggy's manufacturer paid him $100.00 for the rights to the patent. When I was a child, he patented two different toy airplanes. He didn't have the contacts to sell his toys to a producer. Woodworking was another hobby. He built a solid walnut buffet and china cabinet from lumber he had cut from trees on the farm. He also carved a set of birds from pine.

My father paid a high personal price for the rock chicken house. He once continued to work on the rock after removing his goggles for a few minutes. A piece of steel from the chisel shot into his left eye. The injured eye was surgically removed and he was fitted with a glass eye. Twenty years later, he died of cancer which started in his remaining good eye. He died on April 17, 1961, at our home in Del City, Oklahoma.

Mother sold the farm and bought a house in Lincoln. She attended the Lincoln Methodist Church and kept her membership with the Rhea Club. Thanksgiving Day, in 1968, she was riding in a car with neighbors, returning home from a dinner. As the driver crossed Highway 62, the right rear side of the car was hit by a Trailways bus. Mother's seat mate and next-door neighbor, Mrs. Williams, was killed. Mother's skull was fractured; she was in a coma two weeks, and totally disabled for life. She lived in a nursing home in Del City, Oklahoma, and died of pneumonia in Midwest City Memorial Hospital January 1, 1974.

As the writer, I, Virginia Nell Pasley Nolen, attended Rhea Elementary School, Prairie Grove High School, and started to the University of Arkansas while still 16. After two years at the university, I taught elementary school at Viney Grove (northwest of Prairie Grove) for two years. Then I moved to Tulsa to work for Douglas Aircraft Company while attending the University of Tulsa. Flying had always been a secret passion, so I saved enough money to return to the University of Arkansas for two quarter terms. There was a flight school for air cadets at the Fayetteville Airport. Since I had no car, I enrolled in horseback riding lessons west of the campus, and flight lessons at the airport, in addition to the regular college schedule. On flight instruction days, if there was no ride to the airport, I went to the stables, saddled a horse and trotted off to the flight lessons. My flight instructor was Mr. Austin Ellis. The lessons in the plane were the most exciting times of my life up to that point. When the ten hours flying time had elapsed, I had soloed three times. With finances almost gone, I needed to return to work in the payroll department at Douglas. Mr. Ellis let me take my cross country flight to Tulsa, while my friend, Pat Johnston (now Reed), rode the bus with our baggage. There was no room for a third passenger nor luggage in the little Piper Cub plane.

I graduated from the University of Tulsa in 1945, and moved to Oklahoma City where I secured a job with Braniff International Airways. During that time I married Thomas E. Nolen, a teacher and later administrator, in the Midwest City-Del City Schools. We took advantage of Braniff's travel benefits for employees by flying all their South American routes during two summer vacations.

After the birth of our three daughters, Nola, Nancy, and Nikki, I became a substitute teacher. When Nikki was in kindergarten, I was drafted by the principal in the junior high school where my husband was vice-principal, to fill out the year for the counselor-librarian's position. I went to library school at the University of Oklahoma during the summers. During the year 1965—66, I was hired for the position of librarian at Jarman Junior High in Midwest City, Oklahoma, and worked there until retirement in 1986. It was a great honor to have the library facility named "The Virginia Nolen Library." I had to quit the master's degree program just a few hours before completion, when Mother was in the accident. My husband had his B. S., M. S., and all course work completed for his doctorate from the University of Oklahoma.

Our daughter, Nola, graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a degree in ballet pedagogy. She danced professionally with the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for five years. Knee surgery nipped her dancing career. She now teaches at Pittsburgh High School of Performing Arts; is married to Bill Koutsouflakis, and has 7-year-old Kiki, and 4-year-old Grace. Nancy attended Oklahoma City Community College and Pittsburgh Art Institute, married Tom Kirschbaum, and had Shawn, 12, and Cara, 9. Nancy has had an upholstery business, worked for the Dallas post office, Delta Airlines, and is currently a travel agent with N. E. W. S. Travel, Inc., Dallas, Texas. Nikki graduated from Central State University, Edmond, Oklahoma, with a degree in vocal and instrumental music. She was outstanding female music student when she graduated. Nikki married Jim Gardner, and they moved to Los Angeles, California, to try the music business. She is currently head instructor for Barbizon Modeling School in Los Angeles. She does some modeling and sings with a band on weekends. She writes songs and music, and plans to be a professional musician. Jim is working toward a private helicoper license.

It would seem that our grandparents, the Mac Pasleys, who braved a move one cold December in 1903, so their children could have better schools, influenced their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren to strive for the same goal - a better education.

Roger and Mary Alice Pitts - 1985

Roger Morrow Pitts

The Roger Pitts family lives on Sugar Hill Ranch southwest of Lincoln in west Washington County.

Roger Morrow Pitts was born May 26, 1938 in Fayetteville, Arkansas. His parents are Sterling and Mansie Morrow Pitts. They are from old Washington County families. Roger grew up on the farm along with aunts, uncles and five cousins. The farm was originally a fruit farm, so Roger became familiar with that area of farming. Later, they went into the Registered Polled Hereford business along with the fruit. He then became familiar with the cattle business. Now the farm no longer has the orchards, but is a poultry and beef cattle farm. Roger is now a poultry grower. He has done very well in this field. He was named top poutry grower for the state of Arkansas in 1975.

Roger married Mary Alice Mileur June 22, 1958 in Lincoln. Mary Alice is also a native of Washington County. She was born January 9, 1937 in Prairie Grove. She grew up on a farm north of Lincoln for eight years. The family moved to Lincoln and Mary Alice graduated from Lincoln High School in 1953.

Roger attended all twelve years of school in Lincoln, graduating in 1956. He attended Arkansas Polytechnic College in Russellville, receiving an associate degree in Agriculture in 1958. After Roger and Mary Alice married, Roger transferred to the University of Arkansas to continue his education. Mary Alice was employed at the Bank of Lincoln. Roger graduated from the University in May 1961 with a degree in Vocational Agriculture. Roger and Mary Alice then moved to Hot Springs where Roger was Vocational Agriculture Instructor for Lakeside High School. He taught one year and was offered the position of Hempstead County Service Agent for Arkansas Farm Bureau. Roger and Mary Alice moved to Hope in 1962. They remained there until 1964 when Roger was able to become a partner in the Pitts Brothers Farm in Lincoln. This was a dream come true for Roger to be able to move back on the farm he grew up on. The work was hard and the income small. However, the farm began to grow after the construction of poultry houses.

Roger and Mary Alice became active in local and county activities. They are active members of the United Methodist Church in Lincoln where Mary Alice is organist and pianist. They both served on the Administrative Board of the church and Roger is Finance Chairman. Roger was named as the Jaycee's Outstanding Young Man of the county and Mary Alice was named to the Outstanding Young Women of America. Roger has been active in the Cattlemans Association, as well as a board director for the Farm Service Co-operative. He served on the Board of Education for the Lincoln Schools for ten years. He is currently President of the Washington County Farm Bureau of which he has been a board member for many years.

Russell Sterling Pitts was the first child born to this union. Russell was born December 10, 1964 at Fayetteville, Arkansas. Russell attended twelve years of school in Lincoln, graduating from Lincoln High School in 1983. Russell was an outstanding athlete and continued his education and athletics at Arkansas Tech University in Russellville. He played football his freshman year, but decided to transfer to the University of Arkansas to further his education. He is seeking a degree in Business Agriculture. Russell works on the Sugar Hill Ranch during the summers and hopes to become a partner with Roger after graduation.

Shortly after Roger returned to the farm, he purchased the remaining third of the farm, thus making him a partner to his father, Sterling. The farm then became known as Sugar Hill Ranch.

The second child born to Roger and Mary Alice was Sarah Elizabeth, born March 12, 1967 in Fayetteville, Arkansas. Sarah also attended the Lincoln Schools, graduating in 1985 as valedictorian of the class. She was awarded an athletic scholarship in Womens Basketball to the University of Central Arkansas in Conway. She has just completed two years there majoring in Business Marketing.

Alicia Kay Pitts, the youngest of the children was born April 11, 1969 in Fayetteville, Arkansas. Alicia will be graduating from Lincoln High School in May 1987 as valedictorian of the class. She also was a very good athlete and student. She will be attending the University of Central Arkansas in Conway on an Academic Scholarship in the fall of 1987.

Roger is currently in the process of constructing another poultry house, expanding his operation to 80,000 broilers. He has Polled Hereferds and puts up hay for his own use as well as to sell commercially.

Sterling Hardy Pitts

Sterling H. Pitts

Sterling Chambers Pitts came to Washington County Arkansas in 1914. He purchased a summer resort southwest of Lincoln. This was used for wealthy women and children to spend the summers away from the heat and dust of Texas and Oklahoma. At that time, there were thirty-two women and children living in the house. Mr. Pitts moved his family into the large three-story house.

Sterling C. Pitts was born in Eufala, Alabama September 22, 1865. He attended school there and went on to Auburn University where he graduated with a degree in Civil Engineering. He went to Equador to do construction work for several years. He returned to Alabama and married Mary Virginia McAfee. They later moved to Indian Territory. They had three children. Robert Hope, born January 25, 1899 in Alabama. Margaret, born February 20, 1902 in Tahlequah, I. T. Sterling Hardy, born November 11, 1903 in Tahlequah. Mary died shortly after the birth of her third child. She is buried in the Tahlequah Cemetery. Mr. Pitts married a second time to Bessie Shrout. To that union was born Samuel Belt, born April 1, 1909 in Tahlequah. A daughter Sarah, born February 22, 1913 in Tahlequah and Marion, born April 24, 1911 in Tahlequah.

Since the farm they had moved to was used as a resort, another source of income had to be found. The climate and land condition seemed good for fruit, so Mr. Pitts began planting apple trees, and eventually had around four hundred acres in orchards. This became known as the Sugar Hill Fruit Farm. The family produced their own meat and vegetables. They put up hay in the summer months. All equipment was horse-drawn for the first few years. The work day started before daylight and ended after dark.

During this period, the second Mrs. Pitts died December 3, 1918 and is buried in the Lincoln Cemetery. Mr. Pitts married for the third time to Effie Knadle of Lincoln. The children grew up. The three brothers, Robert, Sterling and Belt remained on the farm. Sarah went to school in Oklahoma where she met and married Ed Jameson. She has two daughters, Janelle and Jo Ardarth. Marion married Mary Patterson. He has one son, Pat. Marion has lived in many parts of the country. Margaret married Clark Griscom, a neighbor boy she grew up with. Clark was a postal worker in Lincoln. Margaret taught school in several area schools. They had two children. Shirley Reeves of St. Louis and Bill of Lincoln. Shirley married Dale Reeves of Prairie Grove. They have three daughters, Debbie, Suzanne and Sarah. Margaret died November 26, 1984 and is buried in the Sugar Hill Cemetery.

Robert married Leona Denny of Madison County. They had three children. Robert E. of Shreveport, Paul D. of Alexandria, Virginia and Mary Lou of Ponca City, Oklahoma. Robert married Doris Hannah and they have four children. Brenda Lou, Robert Stuart, Samuel Farrell and Kelvin Lewis. Paul married Shirley Murray of Arkadelphia. They have three sons. Murray, Allan and Jay. Mary Lou married Don Wiswell of Prairie Grove. She has three children. Mark, Paula and Lou Ann. Robert Hope died January 24, 1985 and buried in the Sugar Hill Cemetery.

Belt married Katherine Stinson of Independence, Kansas.

Sugar Hill Ranch, home of Sterling H. and Mansie Pitts of Lincoln, Arkansas - built approximately 1910.

They had two children. Frank Sterling of Roswell, New Mexico and Anne Ramsey of Southlake, Texas. Anne married Bob Ramsey of Prairie Grove, they have three children. Robin, Cary and David. Belt died October 11, 1973. He is buried in the Sugar Hill Cemetery.

Sterling Hardy married Mansie Elizabeth Morrow August 8, 1934. She was from Morrow and from one of the old pioneer families of Washington County. Mansie taught school at Morrow from 1930 to 1934. Sterling taught school for two years at Pleasant Hill School before going into full time farming. They have one son, Roger Morrow Pitts. Roger married Mary Alice Mileur of Lincoln. They have three children. Russell, Sarah and Alicia.

After the Pitts brothers married, they had their own respective homes, therefore there are three dwellings on the farm. During the years of all the children growing up, it was similar to a small community on the farm.

Mr. Pitts died July 14, 1936 and the farm became a partnership among Robert, Sterling and Belt. The drought of 1936 was devastating to fruit growers. The older orchards died out. Most of the orchard was pushed out on the farm. They improved their pasture land and started in the Polled Hereford business. This operation became known as Pitts Brothers Farm.

In October 1948, Pitts Brothers were presented the W. G. Skelly Award for their Superior achievement in agriculture. This was a national award, broadcast over NBC from Lincoln, Arkansas. In December of that year, they were awarded the Green Pasture Award sponsored by KVOO Farm Department of Tulsa, Oklahoma. They were also the 1948 winner in the Washington County Pasture Improvement Contest. They won this award a second time five years later. At this time, only about seventy-five acres of orchard remained on the farm, but the Polled Hereford business was growing.

Sterling H. was very active in local and county affairs. He was President of Washington County Farm Bureau as well as a state board member. He was a director of the Bank of Lincoln. Trustee of the United Methodist Church, Director of the Farm Service Co-Operative. He also served ten years on the Lincoln School Board and fifteen years on the Washington County School Board.

Robert was active in the United Methodist Church, Director of the Bank of Lincoln, Director of Lincoln School Board and director of Washington County Hospital Board.

Belt was interested in machinery and did all the repair work on the farm. He also liked flying and purchased a small plane to pursue his hobby with. He was also an avid fisherman.

In 1963, Belt suffered a severe heart attack and was forced to retire from farming. Sterling's son, Roger, then living in Hope, Arkansas decided to purchase Belt's third of the farm and return to Lincoln. This was a life-long dream for Roger to be able to farm with his dad. In February 1964, Roger and Mary Alice became partners in the farm operation. In 1967, Robert decided to retire and move to Lincoln. Roger and Sterling accquired the remaining third of the partnership and became sole owners of the farm. They finished pushing out the few acres of orchard and constructed three 20,000 capacity broiler houses and are in the process of constructing one more. Now the farm is a broiler and beef cattle operation and the name is Sugar Hill Ranch. Roger, along with his son, Russell do most of the farming. They have hired help to relieve some of the work load.

Mansie Pitts still lives in the large gabled house, which is a tranquilizing reminder of a gracious and relaxed period.

Sterling Pitts passed away December 5, 1988.

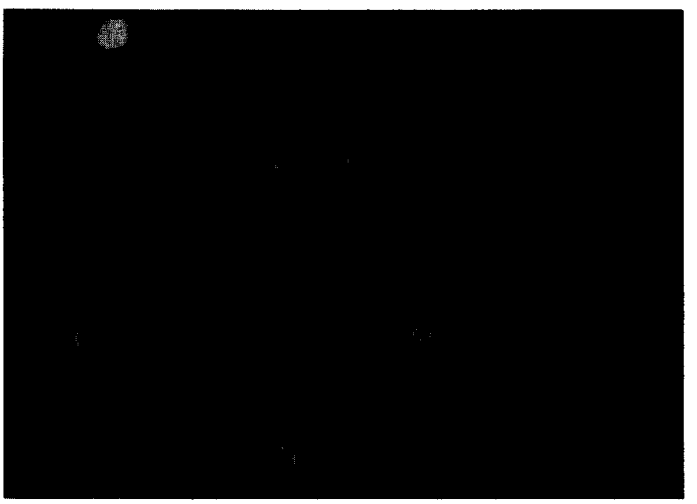
Mary Faubus Pool

J. N. and Mary Pool ca.1912.



Mary Faubus Pool on her 100th birthday, 1988.

About two miles east of Durham on highway 16 lives one of Washington County's oldest residents. The 550 acre farm of Mrs. J. N. Pool is located on the Washington/Madison County line and extends from the White River to a high plateau bordering the Hazel Valley area. The old two story house sits proudly on a slight incline just inside Washington County. At 100 years of age, Mrs. Pool still resides in the home where she was taken as a bride in 1912.

Mary Ellen Faubus was born on a cold and stormy night on

Mary Faubus Pool in the 1950s.

J. K. Pool.

November 29, 1887 on Delaney's Creek in Madison County. She was the daughter of Robert Green and Ava Jane Blevins Faubus and had six sisters and two brothers. Mary was the third child. Her parents came to Arkansas from Kentucky when they were young children. Ava Jane told of riding behind her mother on a "big gray horse". She was the daughter of Dan and Nancy Osburn Blevins. She had five sisters and two brothers. Some of Mary's most cherished memories of her mother is watching her comb and braid her long black hair. She also tells of spending many nights watching Ava Jane make clothing for the family. "Mother was a wonderful hand to sew. She made all our clothes. I can remember seeing her card and spin the wool on her spinning wheel. And she made soap. We had an ash hopper to put the ashes in from the fireplace in the winter. We would begin in spring, watering the hopper and in a few days lye would begin to run through the trough. This lye was transferred to a big iron kettle. She would add the intrals that had been cleaned from the hogs we killed for meat. Us kids had to wash and hang them in the smoke house to dry. That was our job in the soap making process. Nothing was wasted that could be used". Ava Jane lived to be ninety-two years old. Robert Green Faubus was the son of Frank and Lavina Stevens Faubus and had three sisters and two brothers. He was a twin. His mother died when he was very young. In her journal, Mary wrote of her grandfather, "Grandpa Faubus was the one we all loved dearly. He always lived close to us. He would come by every morning to see us kids. We would sit in his lap and comb his hair. He was such a sweet person and loved us so much". Mary's dad used every minute doing something productive, she recalls. "He caught large ground hogs and bobcats, skinned them and dressed the hides. We used them for shoe strings. . .called it "whang". It was also used for mending purposes". Robert Green Faubus lived to be eighty-three.

When Mary was a young girl, she met and fell in love with John Nolen Pool, a businessman in Durham. They had a nine year courtship and were married April 12, 1912. Born December 19, 1867, Noel was the son of John Knox and Mary Hash Pool. He had five sisters and two brothers. J. K. Pool was a wealthy and prominent businessman owning general stores in Durham, Thompson and Delaney. He was also a shareholder and director of the McIlroy Bank in Fayetteville. In addition to the farm Mary lives on today, J. K. owned another farm at Thompson. The two farms joined and the railroad ran through them along White River. There, he raised hogs and cattle and was a supplier of railroad ties and posts. Mary's current home was a wedding present from J. K. She and Noel had two daughters, Alva Marie and Bonnie Jean. In 1925 they moved to Delaney to help manage the General Store. They returned to the farm in 1945 and raised cattle until Noel passed away on April 24, 1947. After his death, Mary took over management and continued to raise cattle. She also raised chickens and every spring she planted a large vegetable garden. She raised a garden each year thereafter until she was ninety-three years old.

Mary and Noel's oldest daughter, Marie was born on July 6, 1914. She married Logan Lafayette Wallis, the sons of Alonzo and Margaret Hall Wallis. Their only son, Bobby Alan, was born March 22, 1937. He married Ramona Nelson and they had three children, Lisa, Tammy and Bobby, Jr.. Marie and Logan were divorced and she later married Louie Leroy Goforth. They lived on the Pool farm in Thompson and raised cattle, chickens and Chihuahua puppies for several years. They sold the farm in the 1960's and moved to Elkins where Marie continued to raise and sell her pups. She finally tired of the dog business and began dealing in antiques. She and Louie owned and operated "Marie's Antiques" in downtown Elkins, and later managed the Oak Grove Flea Market in Springdale. Marie was striken with cancer and passed away on May 3, 1987. She was seventy two years old.

Bonnie Jean was born on May 4, 1922. She married Mark Wallis Lambeth, the son of Robert Sidney. Mark was born on September 30, 1914 in Pea Ridge. Sidney was a pharmacist and owned and operated drug stores throughout Oklahoma, Missouri, and Arkansas at different times. He and Estelle moved to Elkins in the 1950s and remained there for the duration of their lives. After Mark and Bonnie Jean were married in May of 1946, they moved to Marshall, Oklahoma and helped manage Sid's drug store for brief period. They soon returned to Arkansas and lived on the farm with Mary. They had a daughter, Deborah Louise on December 25, 1952. They continued to live with Mary and help work on the farm and Mark went to work for the U. S. Postal Service in Fayetteville. In the mid 1960's they moved to Elkins, but continued to help Mary with the cattle and other farm chores. Mark retired from the post office in 1979, and quit the cattle business a few years later. Afterwards, Mary leased her cattle and a large portion of the farmland to her neighbors.

Mary has entertained her friends and family for years, telling of the many changes she has seen in her lifetime. In the summer you can bet she'll be sitting on her front porch visiting with a neighbor or watching the cattle graze in the field below her house. She always plays a big part in preparing dinner during the holidays. Although she doesn't do as much of the cooking as she used to, she still supervises and can't resist making her famous dumplings. She celebrated her 100th birthday on November 29, 1987 and one from Congressman John Paul Hammerschmidt along with hundreds of greetings from friends and family including her second cousin, Orval E. Faubus. Mary contributes her long and happy life to "hard work and the love of her children and grandchildren". Her story ends with a poem that she learned in school. "It's the first thing I ever memorized as a child", she tells. Every fall (her favorite time of the year) while sitting on her front porch visiting with her many close friends and relatives, she recites it, and she requested that it be included in her story: Come little leaf said the wind one day, come over the meadow with me and play, put on your dress of red and gold; for summer is gone and the days grow gold.

William B. Putman

The first Putmans came to Washington County in 1836, the same year Arkansas became a state. They remained there for well over a century.

The family was English and the first immigrant, Thomas Putman, came to Virginia in 1647. The family remained in Virginia until the middle of the 1700s. By that time the spelling was consistantly Putman as it remains today. Thomas Putman, the fourth of the name, moved to Granville County, North Carolina about 1750 and his children spread into both the Carolinas in the next twenty years. Barnet Putman moved to Union County, South Carolina by 1770 and his eldest son Daniel fought in the Revolution there.

After the war, the Putmans moved inland to the Pendleton District of South Carolina and shortly afterwards went to Warren County, Kentucky in 1806. Daniel Putman was an attorney in that state. In 1811, the family again moved to southern Indiana. Daniel's sons Reding and Hazel Putman fought with Harrison at the Battle of Tippicanoe very shortly after arriving there.

Daniel Putman died in Indiana in 1816. In 1823, the Putmans went to Fulton County, Illinois to acquire bounty lands. Reding and his brothers William and Hazel again were taken up in war shortly after arriving in that state. Reding was seriously wounded in the Black Hawk War. As a result of these wounds, he decided to accept new lands in Arkansas which was being opened up to veterans and other settlers.

Reding and William and their families made the trip to northwestern Arkansas in late 1835 and took up farming near West Fork. William and his family remained in West Fork. Reding settled in Prairie Grove and his son, Dr. Reding Putman, moved to the city of Fayetteville. Reding, Sr. had fought long and hard for his country and when the question of secession arose he stood strongly by the union. These feelings were met with mixed reactions and southern sympathizers burned his house down in 1862. He moved in with his son in Fayetteville and remained there until his death in 1865. He lived just long enough to see his precious Country united once again. Reding and his wife, Phoebe were both buried in Baptist Ford Cemetery.

Reding Putman, Jr., became a much respected physician in Fayetteville until his death in 1914. He and his wife, Elizabeth Reed Putman, are buried in Evergreen Cemetery. Their son, Leigh Reding Putman, was a prominent lumberman and businessman in Fayetteville. L. R. Putman later moved to Evanston, Illinois where he died in 1935. His wife, Nell Byrnes Putman returned to Fayetteville and remained there until her death in 1960.

Reding Putman's descendants are now scattered throughout America, yet none remain in Arkansas today.

There were two other Putman families in northwestern Arkansas in the 1800s and descendants of these families remain at this time. One branch was started by Berry Barton Putman in Crawford County. Berry was a son of Thomas Putman of Hall County, Georgia. This Thomas was a brother of Reding's father, Daniel Putman. The other line descended from Wilson Putman in Carroll County, Arkansas. Wilson's father was Benjamin Putman who was (I believe, but cannot prove) a brother of Daniel Putman's father, Barnet Putman. Barnet and Banjamin Putman both came from Granville County in North Carolina in the mid 1700s.

The Putman's were a part of Arkansas right from the beginning.

Donald W. Reynolds

The son of a door-to-door grocery salesman, Donald W. Reynolds emerged to become a pioneer in the American communications industry.

Reynolds was an architect of the community media concept. While others concentrated on large city media, Reynolds was among the first to recognize the value and growth potential in communications companies in small-to medium-sized markets.

Today, the Donrey Media Group is one of America's largest and most successful media enterprises, serving more than 8,000,000 people each day with news, entertainment and information.

Reynolds' lifelong love affair with the media began when he was a 12-year-old newsboy in Oklahoma City. He bought copies of the Oklahoma (OK) News for half a cent and sold them for a penny.

After he was graduated from Oklahoma City's Central High School, Reynolds enrolled in the University of Missouri's School of Journalism and worked his way through school with part-time jobs and scholarships.

Upon graduation in 1927, Reynolds quickly found work, but keeping it was another matter. "I was fired from my first two jobs," Reynolds said. "I was making a lot of moves, but they were all in the wrong direction."

But Reynolds' persistance and determination paid off. While working at the Austin (TX) American-Statesman, he sold ads, laid out pages and worked on the news desk. Co-owner, Charles Marsh took note of his hard work, and rewarded his efforts by offering him part ownership in a small photo-engraving plant. Reynolds supervised the operation of the plant, and saved his money. He then spent every dime he had, borrowed more, and bought his own newspaper, the Qunicy (MA) Evening News. Reynolds later sold the paper at a profit and returned to the Southwest. He then purchased the Okmulgee (OK) Daily Times and the Fort Smith (AR) Southwest American and Times Record in 1940, and the Donrey Media Group was born.

Reynolds joined the U. S. Army in 1942 and served in the Pacific and European theaters. In 1945, he was honorably discharged as a Major in military intelligence. He returned after the war to build Donrey through the carefully planned aquisitions of small and medium-sized communications companies.

In each company, Reynolds placed a premium on journalistic integrity, local editorial autonomy and an abiding commitment to each community served by Donrey.

It was, and is, Reynolds' judgment that local people have a much clearer perspective on local issues than a corporate editorial board, and that local companies should be entrusted to use their own initiative and judgment in those matters. Today, Donrey Companies continue a tradition of editorial independence and they actively support programs which will bring the most benefit to each local area.

Reynolds has established two nonprofit foundations whose goals are to enrich the quality of life in communities served by Donrey, and to encourage excellence in the field of mass communications.

The Donald W. Reynolds Foundation Inc. provides contributions and grants to local nonprofit civic, charitable, cultural, educational and health organizations. The foundation also supports journalism education through grants to colleges and universities, and gives $100,000 in journalism scholarships each year.

Because of the Reynolds' foundation's support of journalism education in Nevada, the University of Nevada-Reno's School of Journalism has been named the Donald W. Reynolds School of Journalism.

The Donrey Public Foundation, Inc. conducts fund-raising drives for charitable purposes, such as the Send-a-Kid-to-Camp drives, which send underprivileged children in Donrey communities to summer camp. It also provides emergency funds to needy families in communities Donrey serves.

Reynolds has received many honors during his career and he has been selected to serve in many capacities in professional and educational organizations.

Reynolds, a 32nd degree Mason, is a member of press clubs in Oklahoma City, San Francisco and Las Vegas. He is also a member of the American Newspaper Publishers Association; Southern Newspaper Publishers Association; American Society of Newspaper Editors; the National Press Club, Washington D. C.; Sigma Delta Chi, the society of professional journalists; and the American Foreign Service Association.

He is also a member of the Arkansas Press Association and the National Association of Broadcasters, and he has received the Salesman of the Year Award from the Central Oklahoma Chapter of Sales and Marketing Executives International.

Reynolds has served on the Board of Visitors of the University of Oklahoma. Reynolds has received an honorary Doctor of Letters Degree from the University of Nevada-Reno, the Distinguished Service Award from the University of Missouri School of Journalism and the Award of Excellence from Brigham Young University.

Today the Donrey Media Group owns fifty-seven daily newspapers and seventy-one non-daily newspapers, twelve outdoor advertising companies, three radio stations, five cable television companies and one television station, and operates in twenty-one states.

Clint Wade Rieff

Clint Wade Rieff was born March 20, 1879 in a log house on a farm near Strickler, Arkansas, son of Francis Marion Rieff and Lucy Pearson Rieff. He was an accomplished violinist, farmer, carpenter and blacksmith. He made and supplied caskets and coffins to the people of Cove Creek Township, most of the time without cost to the family of the deceased. The coffins and caskets were made of varnished walnut, that had been seasoned for at least four years. Occasionally, the family wanted them to be covered with velvet. Father was also an excellent rock mason. Having built his first fireplace and chimney in 1902 on the Patrick A. McBride farm near the Zinnamon Church and schoolhouse, it is still being used to heat the dwelling in which I grew up from the time I was six-years-old. While doing this masonry work, my father met Eunice McBride, who he married on June 1, 1905. To this union were born five children: Alice Rieff - Born May 15, 1906, Deceased February 19, 1986; Bessie Rieff McKnight - Born June 20, 1907, Present address: 811 North D Street, Arkansas City, Kansas 67005; Delford Earnest Rieff - Born October 2, 1909, Married to Mamie Edmiston June 27, 1935, Present address: 211 Bush Street, Prairie Grove, Arkansas 72753; Arvil Wade Rieff - Born November 24, 1911, Deceased April 4, 1985; Jewell Rieff McNeely - Born November 9, 1913, Present address: Route 6, Box 374, Fayetteville, Arkansas 72701.

In 1900, Patrick A. McBride and his family moved to Washington County from Indian Territory near Muskogee, Oklahoma having moved there some twelve years previously from Illinois. In 1901, my grandfather McBride homesteaded 160 acres in Section 3 and 4, Township 13, Range 31 west in Washington County. In 1902, my father helped Grandfather McBride build this house which was occupied by the McBride or Rieff family until July 29, 1972, when it was sold to Floyd C. and Hazel Cantrell.

On July 24, 1916, he traded eighty acres of this land to Herman and Nancy Stark for a farm on the Oak Grove Road. This land was located in Section 4, Township 17, Range 30 west. On August 11, 1916, my father bought this eighty acres from the Starks for $500.00. This was the same land he had built the fireplace on in 1902. This land is located on State Highway No. 170 north of Devil's Den State Park. This is where he and mother lived until his death on December 23, 1941.

While living there, he served as road overseer for Cove Creek Township for several years. he also served a number of terms as school director for the Zinnamon School District No. 88.

During the early thirties, my father's failing health was such that would not permit him to continue to do manual labor. During the time that he was confined to his house, he spent many hours making violins. In fact, I own the last one he made.

We have one son, James Clinton, born December 26, 1939. He and Susan Moore were married June 11, 1961. They have two daughters, Leslie Lynn, born March 21, 1963. Leslie works in Little Rock Arkansas. Barbara Leigh, who was born June 23, 1967, is a sophomore at Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas. Barbara spent one year in New Zealand after graduation from High School (refer to the Edmiston family story in this book).

Grace Baggett is the only one of the McBride family still living in Washington County. She is 96-years-old and until about two years ago, lived by herself. Uncle Frank lives in Texline, Arvil Rieff and "Queenie", 1935.

Texas and Aunt Ethel lives in Bakersfield, California. Uncle Clarence, the youngest of the McBride family, is 83-years-old and lives in Bolivar, Missouri. Aunt May, Uncle Charlie and Uncle Glen are all deceased and buried in California. My mother, Eunice died October 10, 1978. She and my father and my grandparents McBride are all buried in the Zinnamon Cemetery.

Henry Rieff, my great-great-grandfather, was born August 16, 1770 in Richmond, Virginia. He married Catherine Sick (Caty), who was born September 2, 1774 in Wythe County, Virginia. They were married April 14, 1793 at Wytheville, Virginia. To this

Delford Rieff

I was born October 2, 1909, Route 1, West Fork, Arkansas, near Strickler, in a new house that my father had built in 1904. This house was erected on land across the road from the dwelling where my father was born in 1879. The accompanying picture shows the dwelling where my grandfather and grandmother lived for 40 years and raised their two sons.

Grandmother Rieff died October 8, 1911, and Grandfather sold this land and house in February of 1912. We moved to the farm nearby that father had purchased and my grandfather Rieff built a new cabin in which he lived as long as he was able to take care of himself. He died September 15, 1919. He and Grandmother Rieff are both buried in the Howell Cemetery on County Road 265 near Hogeye, Arkansas. My family lived on this farm for four years. My youngest sister, Jewell McNeeley, was born there and the other four Rieff children were born while we were still living in the new dwelling that my father had built in 1904.

I have many fond memories of living on this farm like picking wild strawberries, wild blackberries, and both red and black raspberries. There were lots of blackhaws, persimmons, muscadine grapes, wild huckleberries and I enjoyed picking and eating all of them in season. One of the memories that is not so pleasant was getting up by daylight and going out to pick up chinquapins before breakfast, before school, and before mother's turkeys got them.

I was seven years old when we moved to the McBride farm. Like the farm we moved from, it had all kinds of wild fruits, plus black walnuts. This farm had 40 acres of producing apple orchard and a few peach trees. The apples were of all varieties that were being produced at that time: Jonathans, Limber Twigs, Ben Davis, Roman Beauties, Arkansas Blacks, and three different kinds of Wine Sap. This apple orchard was set by my grandfather McBride when he was living on this farm. My father later set five acres of peaches and 1-1/2 acres of Concord grapes. Believe me!, that was a lot of grapes to spray with a seven-gallon hand spray which you carried on your back. Each year we planted one to two acres of Blue Ribbon sugar cane. We had our own mill and evaporator to make this cane into sorghum for the Rieff family and ordinarily we had several gallons to sell to the public. While living on this farm, we produced enough corn to feed our hogs for meat and to feed our horses and mules, also to grind for meal. We also produced enough wheat to supply our flour needs. There were several grist mills in the area and one flour mill was located nearby at Strickler, Arkansas. We, like most other farm families in the area, produced about 90 percent of our food needs.

For additonal cash crops, we raised one to two acres of watermelons, one acre of cantaloupe and one to two acres of sweet potatoes and one acre of tobacco. I liked most farm work, but certainly did not like to work the tobacco. I would usually get sick in topping or suckering the tobacco. I was allergic to the tobacco when it was being grown and I am still allergic to smoke. I did not like it then, and I don't like it now.

In 1921, my father became unable to work on account of sciatic rheumatism. My brother and I operated the farm until 1928.

My first business venture came about in 1926 when I noticed an ad in the weekly KANSAS CITY STAR advertising Dr. Hess chicken compound, which was guaranteed to increase egg production by at least 25 percent. I ordered a case of the medication. After several attempts to sell it to some of the neighbors, I discovered I was not a salesman. I persuaded my mother to put some of it in the feed for her Brown Leghorn hens. The hens went off in egg production and we never knew whether it was the feed or the change in the weather that caused the decrease in the egg production. I went to Iowa and shucked corn in the fall of 1927, and was in the Fayetteville Business College most of 1928.

On May 1, 1929, I became an employee of the Farmers and Merchants Bank. When I moved to Prairie Grove, the only people I knew who lived here were Bob McCoy, Nathan Brooks, Walter Lark, Dr. E. G. McCormick, Dr. J. A. Skelton (D. V. A.), D. N. McCormick, and Gilbert Shafer (cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank).

Walter Lark was Frisco agent and I became acquainted with him while shipping red raspberries to Wichita, Kansas; Wichita Falls, Texas; and Tulsa, Oklahoma.

I became acquainted with Dr. McCormick when he came to our farm to doctor my father for pneumonia in the spring of 1916 and the fall of 1917.

I met Nathan Brooks while he was a clerk in the drygoods department at the Southern Mercantile. I bought my first three-piece suit from him in 1926. In the early thirties, I became acquainted with his son, Willard Brooks who was a freshman in the Prairie Grove High School. We became life-long friends and hunted and fished together for many years. I have hunted with many friends, but none to the extent that Willard and I did. In recent years, Paul Cox and I have quail hunted together a lot. Paul is an excellent shot and always has good bird dogs. In the fall of 1956, Dr. Willard Brooks, Jack Feltner, Lloyd Luginbuel and myself went deer and antelope hunting in the Rockies in Central Wyoming. We hunted south of Glenrock. It was unbelievable the number of deer and antelope we saw. Other areas of Wyoming where I have hunted are Gillette, Spotted Horse and Thermopolis. I have also hunted elk near Gunnison, Colorado. In the fall of 1974, Jack Feltner, Lonnie Blakemore and I went to Canada on a vacation and hunting trip. We first went to Red Deer Lake in the Province of Manitoba where we hunted moose. We moved back south to Bozeman where I hunted grouse for four days while Lonnie and Jack hunted for elk and deer. The weather was ideal while we were there. About ten days after we were home, the temperature dropped to 20 to 25 degrees below zero in the area where we had hunted. Quail, grouse, and pheasant hunting are my favorites of all sports.

There were a number of Rieff families who lived in Washington County during the 19th and 20th century, all of whom I believe were related. Many of them I did not know, but some of the ones I knew who were not close relatives were: Frank Rieff of Fayetteville, Arkansas, and his daughter, Thelma. Thelma married a banker in Paragould, Arkansas, by the name of Mitchell. Other Rieffs who were distant relatives were Lafayette Maston Rieff, born June 23, 1850, who lived on a farm located in Section 12, Township 14, Range 31 West near the Friendship Church on State Highway 170. He married Mary Christena Wilhite, born December 13, 1852. Maston Rieff died February 14, 1934. His wife died in the late forties. They are both buried in the Friendship Cemetery. They had six children: Nathan Carlos, born July 5, 1872; Nevada Belle, born June 11, 1877; Lenora, born June 10, 1880; Walker Minter, born December 24, 1884; Susan Ada, born September 12, 1888; Garland Henry, born October 3, 1893.

Of these children, I was much better acquainted with Garland than any of the others. He married Sylvia Ann Woods on March 6, 1915. She was born August 20, 1894. To this union was born nine children: Glen Thomas, born May 31, 1916; Gladys Marie, born August 19, 1917; Evelyn Nancy, born November 18, 1918; Naomi Irene, born May 4, 1920; Opal Faye, born July 5, 1922; Henry Lee, born January 2, 1925; Edith Velma, born April 17, 1927; Mildred Mary, born December 12, 1929; Ruby Inez, born February 29, 1932. Garland died on August 23, 1977. His wife, Sylvia, had passed away on April 4, 1934. They are both buried in the Friendship Cemetery.

Uncle Maston, as he was called, had a good well of water in his front yard. He also had a wood trough hewed out of a large log setting next to his yard fence which he kept full of water in the summer months so people who were passing could stop and water their teams. I first remember seeing him when I went with my father to West Fork in a wagon in 1915. I saw him many times after that until 1929. We stopped to water our team, as most everybody else who lived west of his place did on their way to and from West Fork. We did not cross any creeks and branches between home and West Fork. The Devil's Den Road is the same as State Highway 170 and is located on a ridge. When we went to Prairie Grove, regardless of the way we went, we crossed at least two creeks and the Illinois River and none of them had bridges until many years later. Also, there was Kettle Springs where we could water the teams if the streams were dry. We had one mare mule named "Kate" that had to stop to piss every time she got her feet wet. Where we crossed the Illinois River the water was shallow, but spread out about 250 feet wide. Kate always had to stop at least twice while making this crossing. The mule we worked with Kate was named Pete. He always waited about urinating until after Kate had finished and we were out on dry ground. It was twelve miles from home to either West Fork or Prairie Grove. It took the mules about thirty minutes each way for them to take care of their business. We, of course, learned to drive the mules when we were going to West Fork, and if we were going to Prairie Grove we always had a good span of mares that we drove.

John William Risley

John William Risley, long associated with farming in Washington County, Arkansas was born in Ray County, Missouri on February 19, 1855, the son of David Hamilton Risley. His mother was Sarah (Roberts) Risley.

His Risley ancestors came to the American colonies in 1633 from England and settled in Newtowne, Massachusetts, with the followers of Reverend Thomas Hooker. In the summer of 1636, Richard Risley, Sr. moved to the site of Hartford, Connecticut and became an original proprietor of that colony. The ancestry continued through Richard Risley, Jr. (1648—1728), who was a fenceviewer and man of property in Hartford. He married (about 1676) Rebecca Adams, daughter of John and Abigail (Smith) Adams. Rebecca's paternal grandfather was Jeremy Adams, another original proprietor of Hartford, Connecticut and the innkeeper at that settlement. Rebecca's maternal grandfather was Richard Smith, Sr. of Wethersfield, Connecticut, who on his Smith side descended from the English noble family of Neville of Holt, and on his Seymour side descended from Dorothy, the sister of Queen Jane Seymour, the wife of Henry VIII and mother of Edward VI, who in turn was a direct descendant of Edward III of England, and several of the barons who forced King John to sign the Magna Charta at Runnymede in 1215.

Continuing with John's ancestry, Jonathan Risley (1700—1762) was the school commissioner at Hartford, and his brother, Nathaniel, was the town medical doctor. Jonathan Risley had two sons, Richard Risley (1730—1807) and Moses Risley (1727—1781), both of whom resided in East Hartford, Connecticut, and both of whom gave service in 1776 as members of the local regiment of the Connecticut Militia. Eli Risley, Sr. 1764—1849 first joined the Continental Army at the age of 15, and served several enlistments totaling three years during the Revolutionary War. In 1833, then as a resident of Augusta, New York, he received a veteran's pension of $66.66 per year in recognition of his war service. Eli Risley, Sr. married his first cousin, Mindwell Risley, the daughter of Moses Risley (1727—1781), at East Hartford, Connecticut in 1783. A nephew of Mindwell Risley was Elijah Risley, Jr. (1787—1870) of Fredonia, New York who served as Major General of the New York State Militia, and was elected in 1848 as Representative for the Western District of New York in the United States Congress.

Eli Risley Sr. (Baptized July 1, 1764; died 1849) married Mindwell Risley (baptized November 25, 1764) on April 6, 1783. (Dates in parentheses are baptizmal dates, according to the records of the Congregational Church in East Hartford, Connecticut. These were undoubtedly infant baptisms). Their children were: Thankful (baptized May 4, 1783), Naomi (baptized August 28, 1785), Eli (baptized March 7, 1790), Horace (baptized February 26, 1792), Suzanna (baptized March 30, 1794), Allen (baptized April 10, 1796), Rebecca (baptized June 22, 1798) and Sophia (baptized April 12, 1801). Eli Risley, Sr. was Eli Risley Jr.'s father.

Eli Risley, Jr. (born March 7, 1790; died 1868) married Sally Wilson (born 1790 in Connecticut: died 1830) on February 10, 1816. Eli, Jr. was raised by his uncle in New York, and then went to Dayton, Ohio, where he enlisted in the U. S. Rangers for two years during the War of 1812 and saw service on the Ohio River and in the Western Frontier. Eli, Jr. was a frontiersman and pioneer farmer in Hancock County, Ohio. He homesteaded land and bought land in Indiana on April 24, 1820.

In 1812, Eli Risley, Jr. married his first wife, Margaret Duncan (died 1815). They had two children:

William Risley (born December 8, 1814; died January 4, 1865; married Susan Jane West (born 1822) on January 3, 1841.

Duncan Risley (born 1815) married Sara Wolf, born 1820; died 1870—80) on April 7, 1835.

On February 10, 1816, Eli Risley, Jr. married his second wife, Sally (Wilson) (born 1790 in Connecticut; died 1830) (Margaret presumably having died). The children of Eli and Sally were: Horace Risley (born June 18, 1818; died December 4, 1901) married Lydia Vanmeter (born July 13, 1820; died April 28, 1905) on February 18, 1840. Margaret Risley (born March 1, 1822; died April 20, 1910) married George Washington Williams (born August 1, 1819; died July 29, 1896) on January 15, 1840.

David Hamilton Risley (born 1824 in Indiana; died near Gainesville, Texas about 1868) married Sarah Ann Roberts (born 1827 in Kentucky; died 1863) on July 18, 1849. Robert Risley (died at age 17).

After the death of Sally Wilson Risley in 1830, Eli Risley, Jr. married (3) Rosanna Liverack on July 4, 1831. They had no children.

The children of David Hamilton Risley and his first wife Sarah Ann (Roberts) Risley were:

James (born 1850; died April 28, 1918). James and his wife came to Arkansas when he was around 76 (sic) years old and his wife Lenora Jane was about 64-years-old, and their children stayed in Texas. He came here and wasn't here long until he got sick. He died April 28, 1918 of pneumonia. He got sick and died in two or three days. His wife went back to Gainesville, Texas. His wife was Lenora Jane Risley (born 1854: died June 25, 1918). John William paid for James' casket, which he bought at Prairie Grove. James' grandson, Elmer Risley, came in 1977 to see his grave, and his family. James' grave in Cane Hill does not have a tombstone but a rock at his grave. James Risley (born 1850; died April 28, 1918) and his wife had two children:

George Risley married Emma McCord.

Lillie Mary Risley married a Smith. John William sent apples to George in Cook County every fall.

David Hamilton Risley's second child was: Sarah Risley (born 1851) married Billy Nix. He had high blood pressure and used to fall in the chicken pen and scared the chickens. David Hamilton's third child was: Mariah Risley (born 1855) married a Bush. David Hamilton's fourth child was: John william Risley (born February 19, 1855; died January 16, 1933) married Alice Spear (born November 13, 1863; died May 10, 1955) on August 12, 1883.

David Hamilton Risley's first wife died (1863), and he married (2) Malinda Morris on January 10, 1864. She had children when she married David Hamilton: Martha Morris (born 1847), July Morris (born 1848), Clayton Morris (born 1849) and Clinton Morris (born 1850).

David Hamilton Risley and Malinda (Morris) Risley had two children: Columbus H. (born 1864) and Ada A. (born 1869).

In 1871, at the age of sixteen, John William Risley, Sr, came to Washington County, Arkansas and went to work at the Will Bush farm in Bush Valley. While working there, he met and married Louise Alice Spear (born November 13, 1863 at St. Joseph, Missouri) on August 12, 1883. John William, Sr. and Louise were blessed with a family and prosperity. They owned several farms around Cane Hill and Clyde in Washington County where they employed men to raise apples and tobacco. Alfred Risley has fond memories of times (about 1925) when his Grandfather Risley would take him in the buggy on his rounds to check on the men working in the fields, at which time his grandfather would always buy him candy.

John William Risley, Sr. (born February 19, 1855; died January 16, 1933) married Louise Alice Spear (born November 13, 1863; died May 10, 1955) on August 12, 1883. Their children were: 1. Claud Risley (born May 18, 1884: died July 9, 1961) married Medie Clyde Farmer (born August 12, 1888; died March 4, 1975) on October 4, 1906. They were both buried in California. 2. Silas Adrain Risley (born October 5, 1885; died August 30, 1949) married Pearl Little (born April 3, 1889; died November 18, 1985) on December 23, 1909. Buried in Texas. 3. Chester Amos Risley (born April 27, 1887; died March 7, 1945) married Katherine Burk (born July 4, 1891; died November 8, 1964) in 1923. She is buried in California. 4. Maudie Jane Risley (born April 17, 1889; died August 26, 1890). 5. John Thomas Risley (born May 2, 1891; died February 25, 1975) married Hattie Jane Bridgman (born July 27, 1889; died June 4, 1980) on February 1, 1911. He is buried in Arkansas. 6. Nancy Ellen Risley (born March 31, 1893; died January 28, 1979) married Samuel Pares Colburn (born October 11, 1890; died March 23, 1969) on January 7, 1917. 7. James Hervey Risley (born February Charles Clark Risley (born July 5, 1898; died March 9, 1953) married twice: 1) Cora Kifer (born November 27, 1898; died May 23, 1939) on October 11, 1918; 2) Nancy Alta Minks (born June 1, 1918) on January 30, 1942. 10. Mary Lou Risley (born October 12, 1900; died October 2, 1979) married Birchie Mahaffey (born September 1, 1896; died August 29, 1957) on May 15, 1920. 11. Hansford Hamilton Risley (born November 29, 1902; died May 25, 1970) was married three times: 1) Lucille Sinclair (born February 28, 1908; died February 10, 1944), Gladys Viola Rouse married September 13, 1944; married 2. Cecile Martha Lackey (born October 9, 1909; died November 14, 1975); married 3. Wilidean Francis. 12. Nona Lee Risley (born September 9, 1905; died; May 2, 1981) married James Allen Smith (born March 20, 1900; died January 31, 1979) on November 24, 1923.

Major Ronald D. Risley helped on the history of the Risleys in California. Ramona Price also helped on it; she lives in Springdale, Arkansas. These people worked several years on the history; they sent the information on the Risleys to me. Jerry Risley helped on it, too.

John Thomas Risley, Alfred Risley's father, was the son of John William Risley and Alice (Spear) Risley. John Thomas (born May 2, 1891 at Cane Hill, Washington County, Arkansas; died February 25, 1975, buried Bethesda Cemetery) married Hattie Jane Bridgman (born July 27, 1889; died June 4, 1980) on February 1, 1911. She was born in Cane Hill, Washington County and died in Lincoln, Arkansas. They had four sons: 1. Silas Adrain Risley (born March 6, 1912; died December 14, 1977) married Tina Campbell (born September 30, 1909) on February 23, 1931. 2. Robert Wayne Risley (born February 11, 1914; died March 15, 1922). 3. Alfred Raymond Risley (born May 7, 1919) married Clara B. Snodgrass (born September 19, 1920) on May 26, 1938. She was born at home in Lincoln, Arkansas. 4. Truman J. Risley (born September 26, 1924) married Melba Kunkel (born August 27, 1924) on June 9, 1946.

Alfred Risley's parents moved to Cane Hill, Arkansas when Alfred was a small boy and went to school at Cane Hill. His parents lived on the John William Risley place a few years to help with the farming there; then Alfred's parents moved back to Sugar Hill near Lincoln, where he took up farming and got into the apple drying business, which he continued for many years. He milked cows and raised chickens. Alfred helped his father with the work and went to school at Sugar Hill. Alfred helped his father until his father's death.

Alfred Raymond Risley, son of John Thomas and Hattie Jane (Bridgman) Risley, was born May 7, 1919, at Sugar Hill at home near Lincoln, Arkansas in Washington County. He was married on May 26, 1938 at Stilwell, Oklahoma to Clara B. (Snodgrass) Risley, born September 19, 1920, at home near Lincoln, Arkansas in a two-room house to James William (Bill) Snodgrass and Mary Etta (Little) Snodgrass.

Alfred and Clara married and moved into a two-room house, and to this union were born three sons and one daughter, named (1) Harold, (2) Frances, (3) John, (4) Jerry. Their son Harold Dean was born July 4, 1939, married on June 14, 1958 to Virginia Alice (Winn) Risley, born December 21, 1941. They have three children: Shirley, Randall and Gayla.

Alfred and Clara's granddaughter, Shirley Darlene was born May 6, 1960 in Washington County and was married April 26, 1980 to Robert Eugene Rutherford, born March 5, 1962, and they have two daughters: (1) Kristal Darlene Rutherford, born November 11, 1980; (2) Bethany Lynn Rutherford, born November 6, 1982. Shirley and Robert Rutherford divorced. Shirley married September 29, 1987, Tracy Reiff, born May 27, 1963, presently expecting a child in October 1988.

Randall Keith Risley, grandson of Alfred and Clara, was born October 17, 1962, and was married May 9, 1981 to Karen (Kruse) and divorced in 1984. He then remarried on December 15, 1984 to Charesse (Andra) Reifschneider Risley, born February 6, 1964. They have one child, Miranda Marie born March 12, 1988.

Alfred and Clara's granddaughter, Gayla Risley was born February 28, 1971.

Alfred and Clara's daughter, Frances Louise (Risley) was born August 29, 1940 in Lincoln, Arkansas and was married on April 21, 1965 to Cecil Blackwood, born September 16, 1935. He is a Cherokee Indian. Their children: (1) Craig, (2) Sandra and (3) Daren Blackwood.

Alfred and Clara's grandson, Craig Alan Blackwood was born September 8, 1966 in Claremore, Oklahoma and was married April 17, 1985 to Debbie Elizabeth (Hanache), born August 22, 1966. Alfred and Clara's great-grandson, Dustan Kyle Blackwood was born on October 29, 1985.

Alfred and Clara's granddaughter, Sandra Jean Blackwood was born on February 10, 1969 in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Grandson of Alfred and Clara, Daren Kent Blackwood, was born October 30, 1970 in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

John Raymond Risley, son of Alfred and Clara, was born October 28, 1942 in Lincoln, Arkansas and was married April 24, 1970 to Ruby Charlene (Redfern), born September 25, 1944. Their children by her first marriage include Kenneth William (Billy) Thompson and Kennene Kay Thompson, born December 21, 1962 and died May 9, 1963.

Alfred and Clara's step-grandson, Kenneth William (Billy) Thompson, was born July 9, 1961, married May 16, 1980 to Mary Arleen (Lowe) born June 22, 1962. They have two children: (1) Roxanna Lenette Bilex, born December 7, 1978, and Kenneth Charles Thompson, born February 7, 1983. Another child is expected to be born in July 1988.

Alfred and Clara's youngest son, Jerry Eugene Risley, was born November 21, 1948.

The Risley family has been connected with Arkansas and Washington County since the days of pioneer settlement. The first member of the Connecticut Risley family to become connected with Arkansas was Sergeant Norman Risley of the 2nd United States Infantry, who on October 4, 1817, received a bounty land warrant for his service in the U. S. Army during the War of 1812. This warrant gave him 160 acres of land near what is now Little Rock, Arkansas. Another Risley relative, who came early to Washington County, Arkansas was John Risley (1805—1879), who with his wife, Delilah Putnam, first settled in Washington County about 1837. This branch of the family changed the spelling of the name to "Rizley," and one of their descendants was the Honorable Ross Rizley of Guymon, Oklahoma who served four terms as U. S. Congressman from the Western District of Oklahoma and was appointed by President Eisenhower as a federal judge.

In 1889, at Utica, New York, a Risley Family Association was formed for the purpose of holding an annual reunion of the descendants of this early American family. In 1905, this organization was incorporated in Hartford, Connecticut under the name of the Descendants of Richard Risley, Sr. This organization continues to hold annual national reunions for persons of Risley ancestry, and to collect and preserve the history and genealogy of the greater Risley family of America. Every member of the Risley, Rizley and Wrisley family has a heritage of which they can be justly proud.

The Risleys have a family reunion every year at Risley Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York; the last being in 1987. You can write to the Risley Family Association at P. O. Box 552, Clarkson, New York, 14430. It should be pointed out that Mayor Ronald Risley, age 29, Dana Point, Ventura, California, 93004, did research on the family. This is where I got my information.

James Wesley Ritter

James Wesley Ritter was born in Stevens County, Kansas, on February 23, 1923. At the age of fourteen, James (known to many friends as Jim) moved with his parents, James A. and Lillie Hudson Ritter, brothers, Kenneth, Bill, Lynn and sisters Louise, Wanda, and Jean to Springdale, Arkansas, in 1937.

Lynn and Edith Carr Ritter, Jean Wilmoth, James Wesley Ritter, James A. Ritter and Lillie Hudson Ritter (parents), Kenneth and Elwina Ellis Ritter, Elliott and Lousie Ritter Conner.

The family resided on a farm southeast of Springdale where they farmed as was the practice of many area families at that time. The family raised cattle, poultry and row crops as well as their own vegetables.

James graduated from Springdale High School in 1941. After serving in the U. S. Army from January 1943 until February 1946, he returned to the University of Arkansas and received a degree in Business in 1949.

March 24, 1955, Jim and Kathryn Strickland were married. Kathryn, daughter of Paul Strickland and Bernice Ruddell Strickland, was born January 25, 1930, in Denton, Texas. Paula, Bernadine, and Ruddell are Kathryn's sisters and brother.

James and Kathryn are the parents of David Wesley Ritter born February 19, 1956; Sandra Jean Ritter born March 14, 1958; and Charles Brent Ritter born August 16, 1960.

Bill Ritter started Ritter Insurance Agency of Springdale in 1939 and in Fayetteville in 1946. James started working for the Agency in Fayetteville in 1949 and continued working there and for Preferred Risk Insurance Company until March 1967.

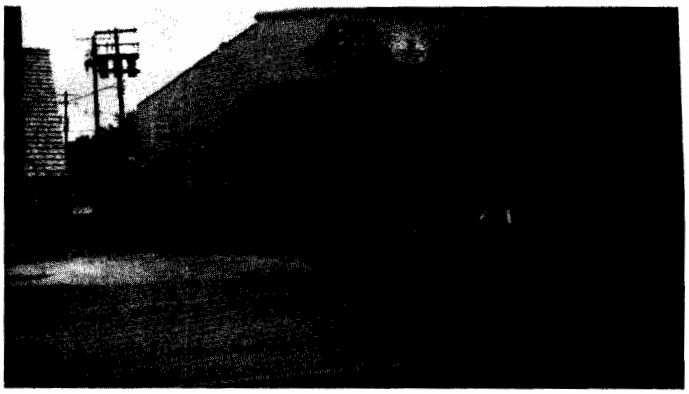
In 1967, James entered parnership with Joe Sanford ("Sandy") Boone to form Boone-Ritter Insurance Agency. The office was located at 135 East Emma Avenue, Springdale, Arkansas. In 1979 a new office building was constructed at 109 North Spring Street.

James was active in management of this business until retirement in 1985. He was one of the original organizers of Springdale Savings and Loan Association in 1960, later named American Savings and Loan Association. James served on the Board of Directors of this firm from 1960 until the Association was sold in the early 1980s.

James and Kathryn are members of the First United Methodist Church in Springdale. James has served as Chairman and Secretary of the Administrative Board, Chairman of Stewardship Commission, member of the Board of Trustees and other offices with the Church.



Boone-Ritter Agency August 22, 1972.

Being an active member of both the Springdale Jaycees and the Arkansas Jaycees, James has served as State Vice President and as a National Director. As a long time member of the Springdale Kiwanis Club, he has served as President and as Secretary.

During the construction of the new Springdale Public Library, James served on the Board of Directors. He was active in securing the new home for the Library when it moved from 118 West Johnson Street to 1205 West Maple Street. At that time, Shiloh Museum moved into the vacated 118 West Johnson Street address into the old Library building. In 1989, James is a member of the Shiloh Museum's Board of Directors holding the position of Vice President and is currently involved in seeing the old Library/Museum facilites torn down to be replaced by a new modern Museum serving six counties in northwest Arkansas.

James has been a member of the Advisory Board for the Salvation Army for a number of years. He also served as Chairman of the Springdale Urban Renewal Commission.

Kathryn is active with church work and the family which has grown over the years to include in-laws and grandchildren. Wesley married Emily Roberts of Mena, and they have a son, Zachary Ritter. Wesley and Emily live in Duncan, Oklahoma, where he is an engineer with Haliburton Oil Company.

Sandra Jean "Sandy" married Phillip Morgan. Sandy and Phillip's children are John C. Morgan and Kelly Morgan. Sandy and Phillip work for Conoco, Inc., in Ponca City, Oklahoma.

Charles Brant married Connie Mobley from Yell County, Arkansas. They reside in Maumelle, near Little Rock, where Charles works for the Controller of the Currency, National Bank Examiner.

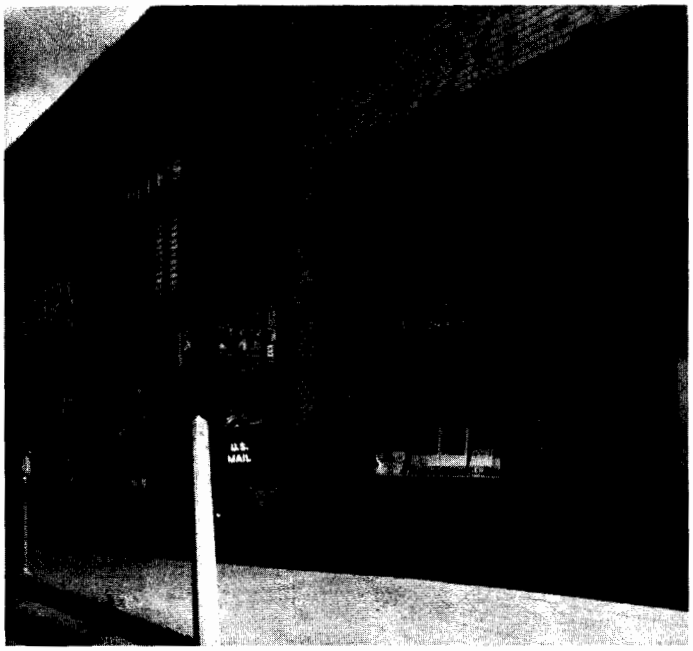
James relaxes by riding horses on trail rides and by raising a vegetable garden every year.

Thursday, April 12, 1970, Farrell Conner wrote in Conner's Corner, a column published by the Springdale News, the following article about James Ritter.

Jim Ritter is contemplating giving up one of his 'do-it-yourself' projects. . .plowing his garden, especially with a horse pulling the plow.

The reason he's taking this attitude resulted from an incident that happened recently.

It seems that his mare, which actually had rather have a rider than to be attached to a plow, was cooperating beautifully as Jim was working his strawberry beds with the plow.



Southside of Emma Avenue, Springdale, during the 1960s, corner of Holcomb and Emma was the site of Ritter Insurance Agency.

However, when he was about mid-way through his project, a friend came by and Jim stopped to chat, letting go of the reins.

Then it happened. The singletree connected to the plow struck the horse's hind legs. This scared the animal. Consequently, she took off, or as they called it back in the 'horse and buggy' days, tried to run away. But she didn't have any place to run as the yard was fenced.

When the horse reached the fence, she made a quick U-turn, dragging the plow behind her.

It wouldn't have been so bad if the horse hadn't run between the Ritter residence and an air conditioning unit on the outside. But her path did put a stop to the runaway, when the plow became entangled with the pipes leading to the air conditioning unit, ripping up both the pipes and overturning the unit.

This set off a 'fireworks display' as the electrical wiring in one of the pipes was short-circuited. And, oh yes, a board on the side of the house also was jerked loose.

Jim very cautiously approached the mare, which really was scared now. Furthermore, he didn't want to take a chance of the animal being 'charged' with electricity. However, a careful check showed the horse was okay.

After some assuring words to the animal, Jim unhooked her from the plow.

In his own words, This horse was made for riding. . .not plowing," Jim says she is back on the farm now. Her plowing days are ended. So are Jim's, with a horse."

He's thinking about filing a claim for the damage with his insurance company.

Jim is an insurance man—just in case you didn't know.

James and Kathryn Ritter have made improving Springdale a part of their lives. They first lived on Michael and presently live on Cartwright Circle. Not being able to cut away the farming ties, James and Kathryn presently own the old Smith farm east of Springdale.

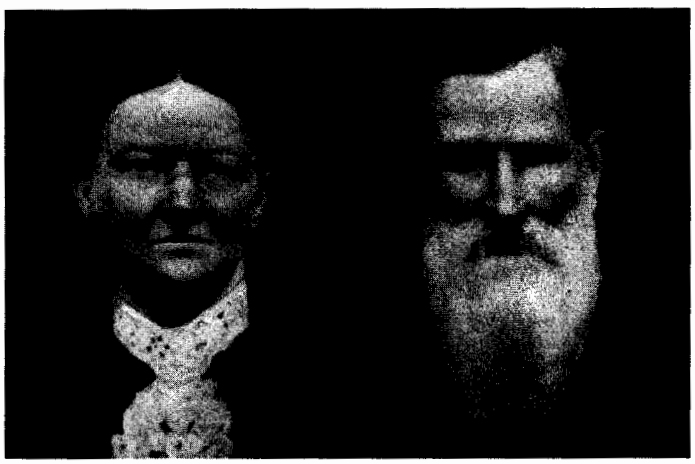
Nancy Jo (Steele) Rubeck

The Family of Art and Nancy Jo (Steele) Rubeck

Nancy Jo Steele, was born in the Steele Community of Washington County on January 16, 1933. She was the first child of Joe M. Steele, and former Nannie Webster. Both parents are descended from Washington County pioneers: Joe's grandfather, Marion Dekalb Steele, came here before the Civil War and settled in Elm Springs, Arkansas, where both Joe, Nannie, and their fathers were born. Nannie's grandfathers were both born in Washington County - Thomas Foute Webster, in 1838 and James Lewis Reed, in 1854. Nancy Jo's family moved to Springdale, Arkansas, when she was three, shortly after the birth of her sister, Marjorie. Her parents divorced when Nancy Jo was five, and both later remarried. Joe married Gretchen Gilliland Broyles, a widow with a young son, Phillip, whom Joe adopted. Phillip and his wife Charlotte are subjects of another article, as are Nancy's sister Marjorie and her husband Jim Brooks. Nannie married Maurice Russell, who also had a son, Bob, now living in Springdale, Arkansas, with his wife Gweenece.



Thomas Fount Webster and Elizabeth Poore Webster.

Nancy Jo and Marjorie grew up living with their mother, but spent a great deal of time with Joe and Gretchen. They attended Springdale public schools, with Nancy Jo graduating from Springdale High School in 1951. She was Homecoming Queen her Senior year. She first attended Stevens College in Columbia, Missouri, but transferred to the University of Arkansas after one year. She graduated from the University in 1955 with a degree in Nancy Rebecca Davis and John Moses Webster.

Business Administration. One week after graduation she married Arthur H. Rubeck, whom she had met in registration line when he, too, was transferring from another college. Art was born in Little Rock, Arkansas, on December 5, 1932, but attended high school in Fort Smith, Arkansas, which he considers to be his home. His parents were Arthur M. Rubeck, and the former Ruth Hilgrad, both born, raised, and educated in Illinois. Art's father worked for the telephone company, who moved them to several different cities in Arkansas, with the family settling in Fort Smith, Arkansas, in 1944. Art's father, also called Art, will be remembered by many in the Washington County area, as he visited often as a part of his work. After Nancy Jo and Art were married, they moved to the Dallas, Texas, area where Art had begun working for Chance Vought Aircraft (later called LTV) after his graduation from Engineering School at the Unversity of Arkansas in 1954. He was drafted into the U. S. Army in 1955 and served two years. Army life was not too bad, as they spend eight months in Los Angeles, California, on temporary duty; the remainder in Huntsville, Alabama. Upon return to Dallas, Texas, they soon bought a MG sports car and became active in car club activities. In 1959 they moved to the suburb of Irving, Texas, where they still live. Their daughter, Janet Lynn Rubeck, was born in 1960, and their son, Thomas Steele Rubeck, arrived two years later. The car club gave way to Garden Club, bridge, PTA, Indian Guides, Girl Scouts, tent camping, and other family activities. Nancy remained a homemaker until 1976, when she filled in at a Dallas bank part-time basis, only to remain for six years. She started as a receptionist, but soon was involved in many other aspects of banking. Her most memorable moment in the bank was being held hostage at gun-point during a daring, daytime robbery. She retired from banking in 1982, and Art took early retirement from his job at LTV in 1988, after 33 years of service. They are now enjoying the freedom to travel and visit their children and grandchildren. Janet married Will Shingleton, in 1982, and moved to Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Their son Robert was born there in 1988. Tom lives in Africa, working in Nairobi, Kenya, for a Dutch TV production studio, where he creates and edits both commercials and Christian-oriented children's programs. The family visited him there in 1986 - he acted as a tour guide on a safari in the lion country and to an Indian Ocean resort area. A hot-air balloon ride over migrating wildebeests and zebra was the highlight of the trip. Nancy and Art continue to visit Springdale regularly to see her relatives. Art has become active with his hobby of genealogy (collecting family history), and finds Washington County to be his prime interest area.

Charles E. Sanders

Charles E. Sanders, the youngest of the Sanders brothers to be associated with The Springdale News, was born September 25, 1919 in Taft, Texas the son of R. J. and Mamie Roberts Sanders.

After graduation from Taft High School, he spent two years working for the Taft Tribune, the hometown weekly paper, following in the footsteps of his older brothers, Bob and T. C. Part of the time, he stayed with the Tribune, he was the only one working in the back shop and his duties were divided between reporting, doing job printing, collecting and whatever else needed attention.

From the hometown paper, Charles went directly into the Navy during World War II. He spent most of the time serving in the Pacific, in the same field he had begun before the war. He was enlisted as a printer third class and discharged as a printer first class, at the close of the War.

After his discharge, Charles returned to Corpus Christi, Texas where his first job was with the Port Printing Company. Here, he started the lithographic plant and served as foreman of the shop until 1953. At this time, the family moved to Tacoma, Washington, where he was associated with Pioneer Business Forms; the Kent News Journal in Kent, Washington, and the North Pacific Bank Note Company in Tacoma before he came to Springdale in 1962.

On July 4, 1962, he joined his brothers Bob and T. C. in The Springdale News and was named general manager of the firm. Bob sold his interest in the company to his brothers, September 1963 and retired. Charles became vice-president and editor of the Publishing Company, a position he held until the paper was sold to Donrey Media in July 1973. After the sale, he stayed on with the paper as General Manager until his retirement in 1982.

On February 2, 1946, Charles was married to Evelyne Stender, a Montana native, in Corpus Christi, Texas. They are the parents of two sons: Jeff, who with his wife, Kathy Lewis Sanders and their two daughters, Laura and Emily, live in Richardson, Texas and Dan Sanders, who is with the Los Angeles Times and lives in Long Beach, California.

Since coming to Springdale, Charles has been active in many community activities and organizations, a high priority for the editor or general manager of a newspaper. He was a member and served as president of the Chamber of Commerce; the Rotary Club, which he also served as president; the United Fund Board; First Presbyterian Church; a member of the Arkansas Press Association, where he served as state president. He was appointed a member of the Springdale Civil Service Commission and was a member of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary fraternity of professional journalists. He is a member of the Springdale Country Club, where he has served as President of the Board of Directors and is a member of the Board of Directors of Southwestern Energy Company.

By: Maudine Sanders

Maudine F. Sanders

Maudine Sanders was born in the Stony Point Community, southwest of Springdale, April 4, 1923, the daughter of Thomas William and Elizabeth M. Hanks Farish. She attended grade school at Stony Point until the sixth grade, when the family moved to Lowell, Benton County. After finishing the eighth grade at Lowell, she was graduated from the Rogers High School.

Starting when she was nine years old, during the summers she worked in her father's canning factories, beginning with rolling cans down a rack to the women who packed the tomatoes in them and progressing to manager of the factories at Lowell and Rogers after her father died suddenly with a heart attack in August 1946.

Maudine received her Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics from the University of Arkansas in June 1946, and managed the factories about a year until the family sold to Steele Canning Company.

After working several months as a clerk for Lichlyter's Department Store in Springdale, she began a career as bookkeeper for The Springdale News in October 1948. In a weekly newspaper, everyone learns to do a little bit of everything, and soon she was taking items over the phone, writing some obituaries, waiting on customers at the counter and reading proof, as well as bookkeeping.

When the newspaper became a daily paper in 1949, Maudine became editor of the women's page and in 1955 she became part owner when Ellis Stafford left the paper and sold his stock to Maudine and Bob Sanders. Another significant change came in 1958, when Mrs. Glaphyra Stafford sold her interest in the Company to Bob Sanders and Maudine Farish, and retired. Maudine continued as women's editor, did a weekly foods column and the "From the Files" Column, which she had taken over after the death of Marty Stafford in 1957. As the newspaper grew, women's editors, church editors, bookkeepers and proof readers were hired for the paper, but she continued to be proof reader for the commercial printing department. At the time of her retirement, Maudine was still doing the obituaries each day and the "Files Column" each week and her title was Office Manager and Secretary-Treasurer of the Corporation.

On May 6, 1960 Maudine was married to T. C. Sanders, Bob Sanders' brother, who had come to Springdale in 1958 as lithographer and printer for The News' commercial printing department. By September 1963 another brother, Charles E. Sanders had joined the paper, and Bob Sanders chose to sell his stock to T. C., Maudine and Charles and retire. So the three continued the Springdale Publishing Company, with T. C. in charge of the commercial printing and Charles as Editor of the newspaper and Maudine headed the business office. This arrangement continued until the company was sold to Donrey Media in July 1973.

In 1949 Maudine joined the Springdale Business and Professional Women's Club and during the next ten years, served in a number of offices in the local club, including president, twice, editor of the state magazine one year, and several local and state committee chairmanships. She became a member of Arkansas Press Women's Association and served as state president for two years. She is now a retired life member of the APW and the National Press Women's Association, and in 1982 was named National Press Women's Woman of Achievement for Arkansas.

She is a member of the First United Methodist Church where she has served several terms on the Administrative Board and Board of Trustees. She is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Springdale Country Club, Arts Center of the Ozarks, the Development Council of the University of Arkansas, Chapter G, P. E. O. Sisterhood, Beta Sigma Phi sorority and the Shiloh Museum, where in 1988 she is serving her second term as president of the Board Trustees.

R. R. (Bob) Sanders

R. R. (Bob) Sanders was born December 15, 1910 at Sinton, Texas the son of R. J. and Mamie Roberts Sanders. He graduated from the Taft High School in 1929, with four letters in football, one in basketball, four in track and one in baseball. He wrote the school news for the Taft Tribune and in the summers began working as a "printer's devil" on the paper. After graduation, Bob went to Hardin-Simmons University for one year. The depression was in full force by this time and Bob returned to Taft and the Taft Tribune.

In 1935, Bob left the Tribune to go to Beeville, Texas as the sports editor for that paper. He became editor of the Advance in Kenedy, Texas in 1937. He remained in Kenedy until he entered the army in 1942. During his 42 months of service, as a classification specialist and personnel man, during World War II, he spent twelve months in the European Theater.

Bob married Bobby Homeyer in August 1937 in Kenedy, Texas. They are the parents of one daughter, Beverly Phillips and have one granddaughter, Brooke Phillips.

At the close of the war, Bob was discharged from Camp Chaffee at Fort Smith; however, he remained there for another year in Civil Service employment. It was during this time, that he chanced to see an advertisement for the Springdale News looking for an ad man. He came to Springdale and applied for the job.

On June 1, 1946, Bob assumed his duties with The News. In 1947, he and Editor E. R. Stafford joined forces in opening an office supply department in conjunction with the paper and job printing shop. Ellis Stafford, brother of Editor Stafford, came to work for the paper in 1948. The three men continued to improve the paper, including changing from a tri-weekly to five days a week in June 1949. When Ellis left the paper in 1955, he sold his stock to Bob and Maudine Farish. Then in March 1957, when Marty Stafford died, Bob was named editor of the paper. In 1958, Mrs. E. R. Stafford sold her interest in the Company to Bob Sanders and Maudine Farish and Bob became Publisher and Editor.

A lifelong dream of Bob's came true when his brothers, T. C. in 1958 and Charles in 1962, joined the firm and they were able to work together in the newspaper business for the first time.

Bob sold his interest in the Company to T. C., Maudine and Charles in September 1963 and retired. He found time to play lots of golf and he thoroughly enjoyed traveling with Bobby to Las Vegas and to PGA Tournaments after his retirement. But he was always on call when he was needed to help in the commercial printing department during vacations or illnesses or when conditions warranted a helping hand. He suffered a heart attack and died at Springdale Memorial Hospital, Tuesday, July 10, 1973.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church, a past president of the Kiwanis Club, a member of the Springdale Country Club, on which he served several years on the board of directors. He had been a member of the Arkansas Press Association for a number of years, the Chamber of Commerce and United Fund Board and each June, he was deeply involved with the Rodeo of Ozarks Board in printing their program and helping with the publicity of the City's biggest annual event.

T. C. Sanders

T. C. Sanders, who was born at Sinton, Texas, May 29, 1913, was the second son of R. J. and Mamie Roberts Sanders. He graduated from Taft High School and like his older brother Bob went to work for the Taft Tribune.

In 1937, T. C. started in lithography work in San Antonio, Texas and just before World War II, he had begun in the offset printing, which he persued the rest of his life. He entered the U. S. Navy and was an aerial photographer, serving in the South Pacific. He was one of those who photographed areas for making invasion maps and they also recorded the devastation left by the atomic bombs detonated in Japan.

Following the war, T. C. returned to lithographic work, filling positions in Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi and Houston, Texas; Tacoma, Washington and Tulsa before coming to join his brother Bob in The Springdale News in 1958 as lithographer and printer.

In September 1963, when his brother Bob Sanders sold his interests in the company to T. C. and Charles, T. C. became publisher, a position he held until his retirement in July 1973 when the company was sold.

May 6, 1960 he married Maudine Farish. They continued with the publishing company until 1973 when the paper was sold. After which they retired and divided their time between their home in Springdale and one in Corpus Christi, Texas. They traveled extensively throughout the United States and the World and continued to be active in local community affairs until his death, October 10, 1983.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Chamber of Commerce, Arkansas Press Association, United Fund Board, National Development Council at the University of Arkansas, the Kiwanis International where he served as club president and Lt. Governor of District 19. He was a member of Springdale Country Club and Sigma Delta Chi, honorary fraternity for professional journalists. He served for a number of years as Springdale's representative on the Ozark Playgrounds Association.

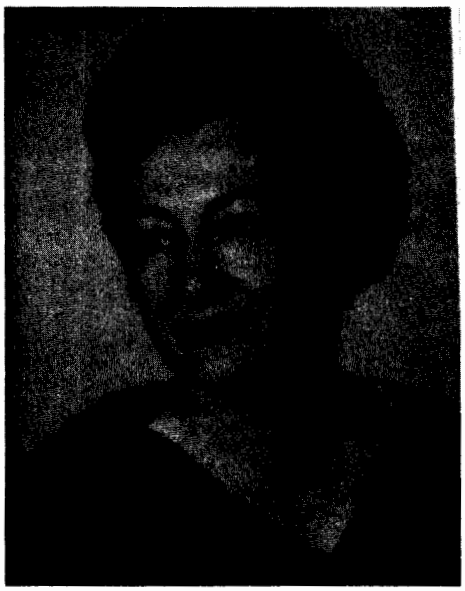
Herbert Ernest Schmieding

The H. E. Schmieding family first saw the beauty and opportunities of Washington County, Arkansas in the 1930s when Herbert, his father August, and his brother Hubert made numerous cattle buying trips into northwest Arkansas.



Polly Ann (Grapes) Schmieding

Doris Schmieding

Beulah (Brown) Schmieding

These early visits to the county set the stage for a long and rewarding relationship between the Schmieding family and Washington County, a relationship that continues today.

The Schmiedings are a proud, hard-working family of German descent who originally settled in Nebraska. August and Margaret (Beckman) established a successful dairy farm in Lincoln and raised a family of five boys, Edward, Herbert, Hubert, Lawrence and Victor. Herbert was born March 12, 1913 in Malcomb, Nebraska.

August, a large man with a heavy German accent, instilled in his sons respect for the family, a strong work ethic and a solid religious belief founded in the Lutheran Church. Herbert carried these values with him throughout his life.

The urge to build something of their own finally overcame Herbert and his identical twin, Hubert. They had developed a produce business as a result of their cattle buying trips, so they decided to leave the family farm in 1936 and move to Springdale. They established the Schmieding Produce Company to buy, sell and transport fruits and vegetables.

In the early 1940s, Herbert's sister-in-law, Beulah (Brown) Schmieding introduced him to a lovely Springdale girl named Polly Ann Grapes (Patti). Polly was the daughter of Ike and Catherine (Wilson) Grapes, a family with a long, rich heritage in Washington County. A year-long courtship and engagement led to their marriage in Springdale, on December 24, 1942.

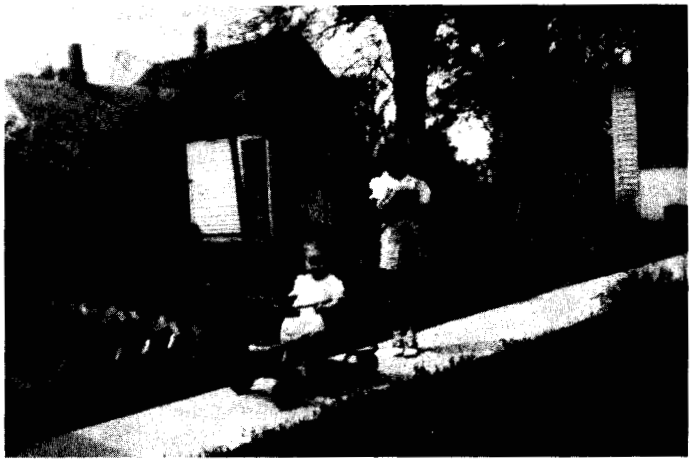
Herbert ("Herb") and his new bride moved in with Hubert and Beulah in a house located at 526 Spring Street in Springdale. Their home also doubled as the office for the Schmieding Produce Company.

On January 8, 1944, Herb and Polly became the proud parents of a daughter, Patricia Ann. "Patti" was delivered at Fayetteville City Hospital. Shortly after Patricia's birth, the brothers decided to return to Lincoln to run the farm dairy after their father retired.

Their stay in Lincoln only lasted about a year. Both families decided to return to the northwest Arkansas area. "We debated between Joplin, Missouri and Springdale, but I really wanted to come back to my home so we settled back in Springdale", Polly said.

Polly, Patti and Herb moved to a home at 803 Johnson. Again, the home served as the office for the produce company. In 1947, Herb's younger brother Lawrence was discharged from the service and joined his brother's produce business. Lawrence lived with Herb and Polly for several years before he married.

Herbert Schmieding



Patti on the right. House at 803 Johnson, Springdale.

Polly and Herbert were blessed with another daughter on August 4, 1948 when Suzanne Kay was born at the City Hospital, Fayetteville.

As Herbert and his two brothers were busy building Schmieding Produce into a thriving business, Herb was just as dedicated in meeting his responsibilities to his young family and the community.

Despite his quiet and unassuming nature, Herbert felt strongly about giving of himself to help make his community a better place to live. In 1951 he was selected to lead the Springdale Chamber of Commerce as president at a critical period when Springdale was just beginning its modern-day expansion and growth.

Herbert's business success and insight into the community's needs were also tapped by the First State Bank of Springdale when it added Herbert to its Board of Directors. Herbert played a key role in starting and guiding the Springdale Savings and Loan in its early days.

Herbert also served on the Board of Directors of the Springdale Country Club, and was an active member, elder and trustee of the Salem Lutheran Church.

Fishing and hunting were Herb's diversion from business. He especially enjoyed deep sea fishing and his annual hunting trip to Colorado.

Springdale and northwest Arkansas suffered a great loss in April of 1971 when Herbert died. He is buried in Springdale's Bluff Cemetery.

Herbert's legacy lives today as his children and grandchildren are still a part of Springdale community and Washington County.

Patti had two children, Darin and Daline Montgomery by a former marriage and is presently married to Lyndell Paul Berry, and resides in Springdale. Her oldest child Daline is married to Steve Harris.

Susie also has two children by a former marriage, Alecia Douthit Sipes and Kendal Douthit and one granddaughter, Kayla Sipes. She is presently married to Leon Lauber and has two children, John Grant and Kristie Denee.

In 1972, after Herb's death, Polly remarried. She and George Helsing make their home in Springdale. Polly stays busy enjoying her grandchildren and her oil painting. (See the H. C. Schmieding Produce Heritage Profile).

Thomas Sisco

Thomas Sisco travelled from Tennessee with his parents as a very young child. His parents moved several times through Carroll County in Arkansas. They settled permanently in the northwest corner of the county at Delmar, Arkansas. Eureka Springs was the county seat at that time. The county seat was changed to Berryville, Arkansas which is now the county seat.

Thomas went to fight in the Civil War at the age of sixteen. His severance pay was a horse and saddle. He married a girl, Fancher, after the war. She had a son named Tommy. After the death of his first wife, Thomas married Cynthia Armer. They lived in a log house at Delmar. He had several acres of land, mostly hilly, where he farmed with a team of mules, a plow and a hoe.

This couples's oldest boy was named William (Willie). The next one was named Lewis, and the next in line was Crandell (C. P.). A girl came along whom they named Lydia. The last one to complete their family was a boy, Bryan. Thomas also had a daughter, Magalene (Maggie), by his first wife. He and Cynthia raised Maggie to adulthood.

Willie married Lavona Sims, settled on his dad's estate and began his career. He and Vona operated a country store, and he had a mill where he ground meal three days per week. He got part of the meal for his pay, and the meal was sold at their store. He also had a building used for canning tomatoes and this gave his neighbors a market for their tomatoes. Vona was appointed as the post mistress of that community. Their house was a three room building attached to their store, with one corner used as the post office. The mail was delivered on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. There were no tests given to select the mail carrier. The man who gave the lowest bid for the job was selected. The carrier rode a horse on Mondays and Wednesdays; Fridays he would take a buggy or wagon in order to deliver packages. In those days, the people ordered articles that Willie's store did not have.

This couple raised ten children to adulthood. They had a boy, Everett, who died as a small child. Their oldest, Eddie, was a farmer for a while. He moved to Clinton, Arkansas and learned to be a mortician by helping the man who owned the funeral home. He never married and died suddenly with a brain tumor. Lee was a barber. He married Belle Dodson, moved to California, raised his family and was killed by a hit-and-run driver while crossing a street. Lucy was a school teacher. She went to high school in Springdale, Arkansas, met Robert Leach, married, moved to Oregon, Illinois where they purchased a drug store since Robert was a pharmacist. After they retired, they moved to Springdale where Robert died from a malignancy after a short illness. Lucy lives in their home. She is 83 years old and very healthy. Her hobby is tatting. Robert and Lucy had one daughter who is married and lives in California.

Raymond was a farmer. He married Eppie Warren. His brothers and sisters gave him their interest in their dad's farm because he and Eppie took care of Vona until her death. He had a dairy herd, but because of health reasons, they sold the farm and moved to Batania, Arkansas, where he died in 1985. Eppie still lives there. Raymond and Eppie raised three girls.

Russell and Gilbert seemed to have the same interests. They went into the service together, returned home and both went to a mortician school. Russell married Verda. They purchased a funeral home at Marshall, Arkansas. They raised two boys. One of the boys is in business with them. They are both active in family affairs. Gilbert married Ted Grimm. He worked for a funeral home in Springdale which he later bought. They raised a boy, Jerry and a girl, Cynthia. Ted died from a malignancy. He married Mildred Crain. They were killed in an automobile accident near Greenland while going to a convention in Hot Springs.

Izelle married George Branscum, a dentist in Little Rock. They had three boys. One was killed in a car wreck when he was a senior at Springdale High School. The second son is a doctor in Pennsylvania. The youngest is in Little Rock. Izelle died about five years ago. George lives in Springfield, Missouri. Aldine married and had one daughter. She and her husband are retired and reside in Florida. Billy became a mortician. He married a woman, Virginia, and had one daughter. She and her husband helped in the funeral home at Pea Ridge. Virginia died from a malignancy in 1987. Billy is now married to Hazel, a native of Berryville. He is retired, and they live in Pea Ridge and Berryville. Their daughter is married to a man named Spivey. They live at the home in Pea Ridge, own and manage the funeral home. They have four children.

Lewis was a farmer and a lumber man. He lived a short distance from Willie. He married Dona Dodson, and they raised two boys and two girls. Lewis was a great man to always own a good team of oxen to haul water from Willie's for household duties. He made a yoke to put over the necks of the oxen instead of a harness. In February of each year he would tap sugar trees on his part of the farm, and as the trees thawed the sugar water would run into buckets. The buckets would be carried to the bottom of the hill, put in a 100 gallon barrel, and pulled with the oxen to his home. Dona boiled the water in a pot outside until it made sugar, then put it in a tea cup. After it set overnight, she slipped it from the cup, and it was maple sugar. She sold it to a travelling salesman for 25 cents per cup. They sold eggs, cream, and maple sugar to buy the staple groceries. No one had any money. They butchered hogs for the winter meat, killed squirrels and rabbits and canned all the fruit they produced on the farm. Alpha Sisco, the oldest child, was a typical farmer and was also a barber. He served in the Korean War. He married Reba Mabry. They had no children. Inez taught school in Washington County for fifteen years. She graduated from the eighth grade at Shady Grove, on highway 71 between Springdale and Fayetteville. Her daughter, Pat, graduated from that school. Inez taught her first school there and her youngest brother, Clifton, attended his first school there with Inez as his teacher. She married Thurman Parsons in 1929. (Look at the history of the Parsons' Family in this book since it has the history of her and Thurman's family.) Opal married Burl Cypert. They operated a grocery store in Springdale, Arkansas until Burl retired. They had a son, Jim Cypert, who is a lawyer and a daughter, Donna, who is a retired school teacher. Their youngest son, David, died at age seven and is buried at Friendship. Jim married Gaye Warren and they have two daughters, Julie and Jamie. Julie married Rick Roblee, a dentist in Dallas. Jamie married in 1988 and is living in Nashville where she works at the Baptist Hospital. Donna married Edward Dyson. They were married nine months before he was killed in an automobile accident at St. Charles, Missouri. Donna is now married to Leon Gaines who is retired from the school system in Rogers.

Clifton was an linotype operator for the Springdale News and Northwest Arkansas newspapers. He married Billie Leslie. They have two boys, Wayne and Terry, and a daughter, Susan. Susan married Johnny Whitson and they reside in Bartlesville and have two sons. Billie and Clifton are deceased. Their youngest daughter was stillborn while they were living in Arizona.

Lydia married Alvin Allred. To this union was born a son and two daughters. Hershel married a Clark girl, but died at an early age with tuberculosis. Dorothy was a teacher in Carroll County. She married Harley Webb. They reside at Dutch Mills where they raised their family. Audrey married an older man and they had four boys. Audrey and her husband are deceased. Lydia and Alvin are also deceased. Crandell married Lucy Sims who was a sister of Vona's (Willie's wife). He wanted to be a doctor. Willie, Lewis and Bryan worked on the farm and helped him with his tuition while he was in school. The boys bought the farm from Lydia and Maggie (the half sister). Thomas died with tuberculosis in the log house. There was no way to fumigate in those days, so they burned the house and contents. Bryan married Frances Bell. They raised two children, Eugene and Katherine. Bryan built a new house where the old one was burned. He and his wife kept Cynthia until her death. Their daughter owns the farm now.

Crandell became a M. D. and practiced in Carroll County at first. He made his sick calls on horseback if the roads were too rough for his buggy. He had a driver and would sleep between the houses where he was called to care for a patient. He had one son, Friedman, who also became a doctor. He married Helen Vierheller. They had two boys, Charles and Kenneth who became doctors also. Dr. Crandell (C. P.) moved to Springdale to practice. He kept Willie's children in his home while they attended high school. He bought forty acres at the underpass between Springdale and Fayetteville, and moved Lewis' family there for his children to attend high school. The forty acres were bought for $4700. That was lots of money in 1925. Dr. C. P., Lucy, Dr. Friedman, and Helen are deceased, but Charles is in the office that his grandfather built. Kenneth is practicing medicine in California.

In 1944 Thurman decided to build a rodeo arena on the land he owned adjoining the sale barn because he had two boys and two girls who liked to compete, riding bulls, roping calves and running barrels. He used portable seats and chutes the first two years. Then he built the arena where it now stands. It did so well money wise that the city wanted it. He sold it to the city and organized the board of directors-12 men who were to oversee the rodeo. Thurman was elected president and held that position until his death on February 18, 1988. It was named for him: "Parsons Arena".

William James Snodgrass

Clara's great-great-great-grandfather was John Snodgrass, whose wife was Mary (?).

Clara's great-great-grandfather, James Snodgrass, was born October 13, 1762 and married Ann Long, born May 23, 1766.

Clara's great-grandfather Thomas Lafayette Snodgrass was born January 8, 1801, in Washington County, Virginia. Married Margaret (Brown) Duff, September 13, 1827. She was born July 28, 1805, in Washington County, Virginia and died June 17, 1858.

Clara's grandfather William James Snodgrass, Sr. was born June 10, 1828 in Sparta, Tennessee (White County) and died May 11, 1882 at Lincoln, Arkansas (Washington County) and was buried in Lincoln. He was married on December 28, 1855 to Wineford (Winnie) Norton (Bradley) Snodgrass who was born January 20, 1836 near Big Springs (White County), Tennessee. She died February 11, 1908, at Lincoln, Arkansas, where she too is buried.

Since Grandfather William Snodgrass was in poor health, he and his wife Winnie decided to move west after the Civil War, about 1870. Winnie had several cousins that lived at Cabin Creek (Johnson County), Arkansas. They sold most of their household furnishings and loaded what was left in two wagons with two good teams of horses and their children:

Sara (Sally) Goodbread, Bradley, she is Grandmother of Wineford (Winnie) Norton Bradley, Snodgrass, and John Phillip Bradley the son of Sara (Sally) Goodbread Bradley

Nancy Johnson Bradley, mother of Wineford Bradley Snodgrass.

John Phillip Bradley is the father of Wineford Bradley Snodgrass.

William James Snodgrass, Sr.

1. Mary Frances Snodgrass (born August 8, 1856 at Sparta, Tennessee; died January 3, 1941) married Allen Sea King II (born March 19, 1848; died May 1, 1917) on October 13, 1887. 2. Margaret Jane Snodgrass (January 8, 1858 at Sparta; died February 29, 1920) married Ben J. Hardy Rich (born January 22, 1854; died April 3, 1946) on January 6, 1881. 3. John Phillip Snodgrass (born November 29, 1861 at Sparta; died March 31, 1938) married Ida Frances Beaty (born February 9, 1873 at Sparta; died April 10, 1932) on September 10, 1891. 4. Thomas Lafayette Snodgrass (born January 4, 1863 in Sparta; died April 21, 1942) married John Dee Nunley (born March 3, 1864 in Texas; died November 10, 1926) on August 27, 1885. 5. Martha Alice Snodgrass (born June 1, 1865 in Sparta; died 1873) at Cabin Creek (Johnson County, Arkansas). 6. William James (Bill) Snodgrass, Jr. (born November 18, 1866 in Sparta, Tennessee; died August 29, 1950) married Mary Etta Little (born March 9, 1888 at Lincoln, Arkansas; died May 2, 1940) on October 13, 1912. 7. George Washington Snodgrass (born March 3, 1868 at Sparta; died February 24, 1933). 8. Florence Amanda Snodgrass (born December 15, 1869; died October 26, 1959) married Ulysses Grant Hargrove (born April 29, 1868; died February 14, 1951) on January 15, 1888. 9. Winnie Lou Snodgrass (born July 29, 1872; died July 19, 1943), married John William Rauch (born August 28, 1858; died March 26, 1930) on August 23, 1891. 10. Elnora (Note) Snodgrass (born August 9, 1875; died April 1, 1963) married Louis Bruner Haws (born October 10, 1872; died 1952) on October 1, 1892. 11. Emma D. Snodgrass (born January 1, 1878 at Lincoln; died November 16, 1961) married Orien A. Davis (born March 17, 1882 at Lincoln; died January 28, 1927) on November 9, 1896. 12. Anna Augusta Snodgrass (born November 20, 1879 at Lincoln; died December 9, 1946) married James Francis Marion Collins (born November 4, 1864; died August 9, 1938) on June 10, 1893.

William and Winnie Snodgrass and their children traveled overland to Chattanooga, Tennessee, from there by flatboat and floated down the Tennessee River to the Ohio River and Paducah, Kentucky and then floated until they came to the Arkansas River, then traveled by steamboat to Cabin Creek where Grandmother Winnie had several cousins living. They farmed there for about two years. There their daughter Martha Alice died and they decided to move again. Grandmother Winnie had two cousins, Becky and Mint Elms, living at Summers, Arkansas. In about 1872 they came to visit the Elms. While there, Grandfather and Grandmother traded one wagon and team of horses for a four room log house, sealed inside with weather board and outside with siding. The farm was about one-hundred acres of good farm land. After my grandfather William died (1882), Grandmother Winnie was having a hard time getting by.

Wineford Norton (Bradley) Snodgrass

Clara's father William James Snodgrass, Jr. (Bill) (born in 1866) came to Lincoln, Arkansas, with his parents. He was a young man when his father died, he then went to Boise, Idaho to work and help his mother Winnie. While in Idaho he got a job taking a string of horses to another town down the river so he took a short cut. He was told there were plenty of places he could stay at night so he took the trail down the river. It was in cold weather, he traveled for two or three days and never came to any place to stay—by that time he was getting cold and hungry. He then put the horses in a fast run, he was almost frozen to death. Finally he came to a farmhouse, when they saw him coming they went to meet him and took him in and took care of his horses. They had him take his shoes off and walk in the snow so he wouldn't get warm too fast, his feet were frozen and when he got warm he stayed for a few days. They had lots of good food and a good bed. He then took the horses on and delivered them.

Clara's father Bill Snodgrass came back to see his mother Winnie. She wanted to sell him forty acres off of her place. He bought the land and built a house and a barn. William James Snodgrass, Jr. (Bill) (born November 18, 1866 in Sparta, Tennessee; died August 29, 1950 in Lincoln, Arkansas) married Mary

Etta Little (March 9, 1888 in Salem Springs, Arkansas; died May 2, 1940) on October 13, 1912. They were buried in Lincoln, Arkansas. They had eleven children all born in Lincoln, Arkansas: William Ambrose Snodgrass (born September 14, 1913); Winnie Geneva Snodgrass (born November 23, 1914) married William Henry (Bill) McCratic (born February 13, 1914 at Lincoln, Arkansas) on July 22, 1939; Delphia T. Snodgrass (born December 22, 1915; died September 29, 1949), married Floyd Lowe (born March 30, 1905) on April 16, 1933; Lizzie Ruth Snodgrass (born February 10, 1917) married Charles Samuel (Sam) Jones (born March 17, 1911; died August 13, 1979) on July 15, 1939; Wilson Lafayette Snodgrass (born October 29, 1918; died January 22, 1981) married (first) Josephine Gardner on September 8, 1838, married second to Pauline Davis (born December 11, 1924) on May 24, 1952; Clara B. Snodgrass (born September 19, 1920) married Alfred Raymond Risley (born May 7, 1919) on May 26, 1938; Leonard Elden Snodgrass (born October 28, 1922; died September 15, 1977); married Thelma (Cindy) Green (born May 18, 1923) in 1950; Annie Janette Snodgrass (born January 5, 1925) married Cyrus Harding Green (born July 3, 1921) on June 18, 1943; Emmette Allen Snodgrass (born October 22, 1926; died July 19, 1948); Dorothy Mae Snodgrass (born April 17, 1929) married (first) Olin (Billy) Franklin Holland (born July 9, 1912); died August 5, 1967 (second) Jess Flanary on November 9, 1968; Mildred Bernice Snodgrass (born February 23, 1932; died January 9, 1954), married Wayne W. Cheatham (born April 3, 1925) on January 5, 1951.

The 40 acres my father Bill bought was in timber. My mother and father worked clearing the land and the children helped as they got old enough. My father Bill was a farmer, had apple orchards, grapes, strawberries and row crops of different things. All the family worked on the farm.

Clara's grandmother Winnie Snodgrass was left alone and sold the 80 acres to Thomas Lafayetteville Snodgrass. He bought the farm from his brothers and sisters in about 1902. He paid $100.00 to each of the children, totaling $1,000.00. Thomas Lafayette Snodgrass then farmed the place and erected a new house and lived there until his death

William James Snodgrass, Sr., whose father was Thomas Lafayette Snodgrass and whose mother was Margaret (Brown) Duff Snodgrass was Clara Snodgrass Risley's great-grandfather Thomas Lafayette Snodgrass. Clara Snodgrass Risley's great-grandfather, was born January 8, 1801 and married on September 13, 1827 to Margaret Brown Duff Snodgrass (born July 28, 1805; died June 17, 1858). Her father and mother were William Duff (born July 25, 1770; died January 20, 1797) and Nellie Duff. Their children were:

1. William James Snodgrass, Sr. (born June 10, 1828 at Sparta, Tennessee; died May 11, 1882) married Wineford Norton Bradley (born January 20,1836 near Big Springs, Tennessee; died February 11, 1908) on December 28, 1855. Both were buried at Lincoln, Arkansas. 2. Samuel Snodgrass (born 1829; died (?)), married Adaliza Graves on September 15, 1853. 3. Thomas Jefferson Snodgrass (born April 30, 1832; died September 20, 1863). 4. Joseph Snodgrass (born August 8, 1834; died (?)) married Mary Jane Horn. 5. David Crockett Snodgrass (born 1836). 6. Lucinda Jane Snodgrass (born January 1, 1838; died (?)) married Daniel Wilhite on March 25, 1861. 7. Lafayette D. Snodgrass (born March 5, 1841) married Eliza Jane Sims on October 15, 1868.

The father and mother of Wineford Norton Bradley, Clara Snodgrass Risley's grandmother, were John Phillip Bradley (born circa 1804 or 1806 in Rutherford County, North Carolina; died circa 1864) married Nancy Johnson (born circa 1811 in White County, Tennessee; died April 30, 1890) on 1830 or 1832 in White County, Tennessee. Their children were:

1. Samuel Johnson Bradley (born January 27, 1833 near Big Spring, White County, Tennessee). 2. Sarah Ann Caroline Bradley (born March 22, 1834; died March 10, 1894) married Jones O. Bradley on February 14, 1855. 3. Wineford Norton Bradley (born January 20, 1836; died February 11, 1908) married William James Snodgrass (born June 10, 1828; died May 11, 1882) on December 28, 1855. 4. Thomas Walton Bradley (born July 28, 1837 near Big Spring). 5. Deina Elizabeth Bradley (born August 14, 1841). 6. Arminta Pickney Bradley (born April 13, 1843) married James W. Cooper. 7. John Phillip Bradley (born December 22, 1844) died January, 1880, Alice Swampshire. 8. George Washington Bradley (born August 18, 1846). 9. Margaret Jane Bradley (born July 22, 1850) married William Robinson. 10. Charles H. Bradley (born January 10, 1852; died before 1860). John Phillip Bradley's father was George Walton Bradley (born 1764 in Warren County, North Carolina, died April 5, 1835 in Rutherford County, North Carolina). His mother was Sara (Sally) Goodbread (born June 7, 1769 in Rutherford County, North Carolina, died December 6, 1850 in White County, Tennessee). They were married January 12, 1791. George Walton Bradley's father was John Bradley (born circa 1718 in North Carolina, died June 24, 1778 in Tyson County, North Carolina). Married his second wife Mary Ledbetter (born circa 1740 in Brunswick County, Virginia; died circa 1825 in Rutherford County, North Carolina) circa 1760. Her father and mother were Richard Ledbetter II and Mary Walton. The father of Sarah Sally Goodbread was Phillip Goodbread (born November 23, 1726 in Nordheim, Germany; died April 24, 1811 in Rutherford County, North Carolina).

Nancy Johnson's parents were Samuel Johnson (born March 4, 1781 in Virginia; died July 11, 1843 in White County, Tennessee), married Wineford Norton (born 1777; died January 13, 1865 in Putman County, Tennessee) circa 1800. Wineford Norton's father was William Norton who died in the Revolutionary War (dates unknown). The brother of Wineford Norton Bradley (wife of William James Snodgrass) was Samuel Johnson Bradley who has several great-grandchildren around Lincoln and West Fork, Arkansas. Some of them married Elms.

Clara Risley wrote a book on the Snodgrass family. It was from 1828 to 1972. It was too much to put in the Washington County History Book. She has more information on the William James Snodgrass family.

Amos Spear

John William Risley

Amos Spear came to Arkansas in 1838, where he homesteaded land on December 30, 1838. He went back and forth to St. Joseph, Missouri. During the Civil War on one of his trips up there he was captured by the North and put in the guardhouse. His son, James Spear was in the army, but Amos did not know where James was at the time — he knew he went to the army.

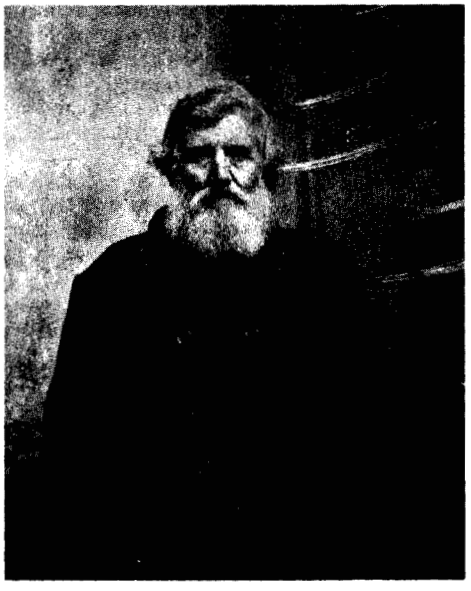
After the Civil War, Amos Spear brought his family down to Arkansas; he homesteaded some more land in Arkansas and bought more land. The land he had was later owned by his great-grandson Alfred Risley. Alfred sold the land to Larry Neff. Mutt Reed owned the homeplace; he sold it to Hubert Gordon.

George Smith bought some of the land. Amos Spear asked George Smith to buy the land; George said he would talk it over with his wife, and he bought the land.

When Amos Spear came to Arkansas, his children were small. They grew up in Arkansas.

Amos Spear was married on September 18, 1842 to Dovey Jane Mancell (Vance) Spear. Amos Spear's father was Joseph C. Spear. His mother, Elizabeth was born in 1788 and died January 1, 1882. Joseph C. and Elizabeth Spear came down here and were buried in Sugar Hill. She had a gravestone, and he just had a rock.

Alice Louise (Spear) Risley - daughter of Amos



Amos Spear

Laura Melvinia (Spear) Powers - daughter of Amos

Dovey Jane (Vance) Spear

The children of Joseph C. and Elizabeth Spear were: 1. Amos (born October 7, 1819; died February 3, 1898) married Dovey Jane Mancell Vance (born February 27, 1825; died May 18, 1892). 2. Bill (Billy). Left Arkansas; don't know where he went. 3. One sister who was blind. She lived with the John William Risleys, and died there. She used to go to bed and cover her head. She may be buried at Sugar Hill.

James Spear went in the service with the South; he went into the Army in Arkansas. Grandpa James made Mother promise he would be buried in the color that he wore in the War for the South. Well, Dad wouldn't take Mother until the next day — well, there he lay in the wrong color. So Mother never got over that. Did you know Grandpa (James) Spear lived in a house alone up the hill at the foot of the hill Grandma lived up. He got married because Grandma was always going back home. So when Grandma died in the night, Uncle Marian didn't tell Grandpa until the next morning; he got so mad at Uncle Marion he wouldn't speak to him anymore.

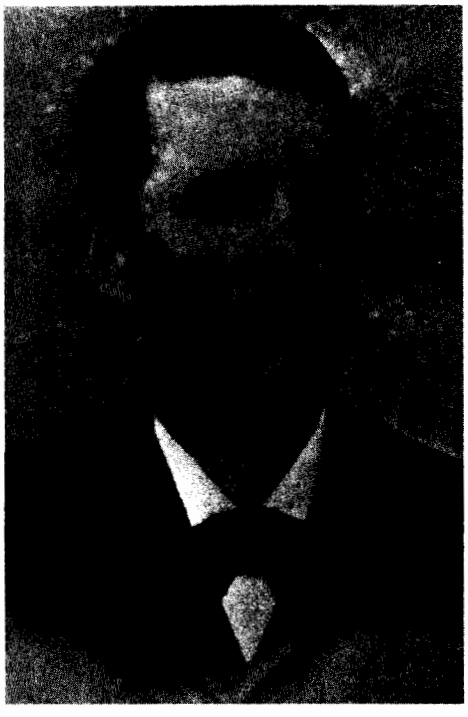
James Marion Spear



A. A. J. Able Spear - son of Amos

Mary Elizabeth and children: Mary Ann Spear and Homer Spear

Spear were: 1. James Marion (born February 21, 1844 - died October 6, 1904) married Mary Elizabeth Nelson (born August 7, 1850; died September 17, 1902) on December 23, 1869. James is buried at Lincoln Cemetery. 2. Nancy J. (born December 23, 1846; died May 4, 1921) married Henry A. Nunley (born November 3, 1847; died March 22, 1915) on April 11, 1869. She is buried at Beatty Cemetery. 3. John Thomas (born April 1, 1848; died?). Buried at Sugar Hill. 4. A. A. J. Able (born January 6, 1851; died? in Oklahoma). He was married. 5. Laura Melvinia (born July 19, 1858; died April 2, 1940) married Marion John Powers (born August 25, 1854; died July 23, 1929) on August 4, 1898. Laura Melvinia was the one who stayed with her parents until they died (Dovey Jane Mancell (Vance) Spear in 1892 and Amos Spear in 1898). When they both were dead — she married the same year.

Dovey Jane Mancell (Vance) Spear was a Cherokee Indian. She could be one-quarter Indian — don't know. Her folks were Indian. 6. Louise Alice (born November 13, 1863; died May 10, 1955) married John William Risley (born February 19, 1855; died January 16, 1933) on August 12, 1883. Louise is buried at Cane Hill, Arkansas.

John Pleasant Stafford

Pleasant Stafford and his wife, Margaret Reed Stafford came to Washington County before 1856. He was born in South Carolina in 1809 and married Margaret Reed in Alabama. She was a native of Tennessee. They were parents of several children - one of them was John N. Stafford, born in Kentucky December 13, 1838. He married Mary Holcombe, a daughter of Rev. John Holcombe, November 5, 1857. Mary had been born in Fulton County, Illinois, April 28, 1835. Pleasant Stafford died in 1865 and Margaret Reed Stafford in 1874.

John N. and Mary Holcombe Stafford were parents of three children, Martha Jane, August 8, 1859, Amanda Mabel, February 8, 1862 and John Pleasant, December 4, 1868. Tragedy struck the young family in 1869. John N. died in the arms of his wife after being attacked by bushwhackers. Mary Holcombe Stafford died October 21, 1901. Martha Jane Stafford married Lafayette Beasley, a lawyer. Parents of two daughters, Mary Mabel and Ruth Ketusah. Martha Jane died January 18, 1946. Amanda Mabel Stafford married Dr. E. F. Ellis and they had two children, a son Earl and a daughter Forrest. Amanda Mabel died June 20, 1896.

During John Pleasant Stafford's boyhood, he worked on the farm of Lee Reed, a relative. In 1884, he went to work on the Fayetteville Democrat. In May 1887, he purchased the paper The Springdale Locomotive. The Springdale News appeared May 7,

Jno. P. Stafford

1887. A year later on November 18, 1888 he married Lena Southwick Claypool, who had been born in Bowling Green, Kentucky December 28, 1861. They were parents of four children: Guy Claypool, September 27, 1889, John Lafayette, September 3, 1891, Edward Raymond, December 14, 1897 and Cessna Marie, September 19, 1900. Lena Stafford died Noember 20, 1902. The young father sent Raymond and Cessna to live with their Aunt Mattie Beasley in Cassville, Missouri.

On January 10, 1904, he married Marion Myrtle Murphy. Three children were born to them: Marion Pleasant, September 15, 1908, Mary Elizabeth, September 13, 1910 and Ellis Murphy, May 13, 1918.

Besides managing and editing the Springdale News, John Stafford was in the fore-front of all things for the good of the community. In 1888, he was secretary of the Springdale Savings and Investment Club; in 1891, he was one of the organizers of the Springdale Baseball Association and was a member of the City Band. He was elected to the State Legislature in 1902 and served two terms. Other activities included serving on the school board and City Council and as Postmaster from 1914 to 1920. He was one of the organizers and charter members of the Springdale Country Club. In 1929, he was President of the Arkansas Press Association. He died September 24, 1933. Each one of his seven children, at one time or another spent time at the news office doing everything from melting type on Saturday morning to running the job press.

Guy Claypool Stafford was elected Mayor of Springdale in 1908. He worked on newspapers in Arkansas and Oklahoma and on February 15, 1913, he married Mary Robertson of Oklahoma City. One child, Lena Hermoine was born in Springdale in 1914. Guy was an officer in the Army in World War I, stationed in France and Germany where he was Editor of the Amaroc News. While in Germany, he married Elizabeth Rice of Chicago. After the war, he worked on newspapers in northwest Arkansas, Santa Barbara, California and was City Editor of the Los Angeles Times. He died September 7, 1944 in a Veterans Hospital in California.

Lena Hermoine Stafford was married to Roy Waldo Loud. She died in 1981 in Garden Grove, California.

John Lafayette Stafford, better known as Fay, worked on the news as a young man. He went to work at the First National Bank before the first World War, and served in the Army during the war and found his job at the bank waiting for him on his return. He was always active in church and civic affairs and served on the school board. He was a charter member of the American Legion Post and the Springdale Country Club. He married Miles Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Pleasant Harper on December 25, 1923. They were the parents of three children, a son, John Miles August 31, 1927, two daughters, Fay Marie June 7, 1929 and Mary Eleanor, June 7, 1933. Fay Stafford died February 13, 1953.

John Miles Stafford married Mary Jackie Mack, September 10, 1951 in New Iberia, Louisiana. A son, John Edward was born October 9, 1953. John Miles Stafford married Dolly Jean Kunz April 25, 1969 in Pekin, Illinois. John Edward Stafford married Charlotte Lancon on October 18, 1973. A daughter, Joy Elizabeth was born December 23, 1974. John Edward Stafford married Marie Therese Subert November 27, 1982.

Fay Marie Stafford married Robert B. Johnson May 16, 1954. They are the parents of three daughters, Lorin Leigh, February 13, 1956, Mary Diane, April 18, 1957 and Robin Kay, February 18, 1961. Diane married David Joe Christie on April 5, 1980. They are the parents of Natalie Elizabeth, born October 29, 1984. Lorin married Michael Justin Cross, July 31, 1982 and Robin married Thomas Reid Joseph April 5, 1986. All three daughters were married in the First United Methodist Church in Springdale.

Mary Eleanor Stafford married Lawrence Earl Truitt, January 5, 1958. Parents of two sons, Larry Stafford, November 2, 1958 and Kelly Harper, March 6, 1963. Larry Truitt and Laura Katherine Morris were married September 22, 1984 in Memphis, Tennessee.

Edward Raymond Stafford, known as Marty, was five-years-old when his mother died and he and his sister, Cessna lived with an aunt and uncle in Cassville, Missouri until their father remarried. His youth was spent in doing chores at the Springdale News and he dreamed of being Editor someday. He loved baseball and got the nickname of Marty when as a young boy, he boasted around town about the talents of a rising star of baseball, Marty O'Toole. After high school, he enrolled in Kansas City School of Dentistry where it seemed more important to help a friend deliver books he had sold during the summer than attend classes. There was always work in the news office, a learning experience. He enlisted in the Navy in 1918 and was stationed in San Diego. After discharge in 1919, he attended Mergenthaler Linotype School in New Orleans. Came home to enter postal service as clerk and later, assistant postmaster. In 1929, he became a partner in the Springdale News and Editor on the death of his father in 1933, a position he held until his death, March 20, 1957.

He took an active part in civic life and supported projects to better the community. Probably his most notable accomplishment was obtaining funds through Hill Burton Act to build Springdale Memorial Hospital. This he did through his editorials and his friendship with Government Officials. He served as a charter member of Hospital Board of Directors, President of Chamber of Commerce, an original member of Springdale Country Club, long time member of Rotary Club, member of Masonic Lodge, American Legion, City Council and Vice President of Arkansas Press Association. Illness prevented his accepting the nomination for President. He was a lifelong Democrat, a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church.

On April 28, 1920, Raymond Stafford married Hazel Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thompson of Fayetteville. Hazel died in 1921. He married Glaphyra Wilkerson of Aurora, Missouri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wilkerson on May 8, 1923. She taught in Springdale High School for six years, then joined her husband at the news. She is a charter member of Springdale Hospital Auxiliary, Business and Professional Women's Club, Arkansas Press Women and Chapter G., P. E. O. She has been active in Red Cross and Tuberculosis Societies, serving on County and State boards, also served on Springdale Library Board. She was a delegate to the first White House Conference on aging in 1961. She is an active member of the Presbyterian Church where she has served as a ruling Elder.

Cessna Marie Stafford attended Central College in Conway after she graduated from high school. She later studied at the Louisville Conservatory of Music. She taught school in Springdale and at Morehead Teachers College in Morehead, Kentucky. While there, she met her future husband, Charles C. Lambert of Cincinnati, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morton Lambert. They were married July 5, 1929 at Fayetteville, Arkansas. A daughter, Cessna Jane was born February 4, in Richmond, Kentucky. Cessna Stafford Lambert died July 6, 1984 in Sacramento, California.

Marion Myrtle Murphy Stafford

Marion Myrtle Murphy, the second wife of John Pleasant Stafford, was born in Dallas County, Texas, November 13, 1882. Father was Marion Murphy, born October 8, 1843 in Davies County, Indiana. Her mother was Joel A. Ketchum, born June 11, 1843 in Leake County, Mississippi. Seven children were born to this couple and five died in infancy. Joel Ketchum Murphy died July 23, 1885 in Dallas County, Texas. After the death of her mother, Myrtle lived with relatives until her father married Mattie J. Parker in 1895. Four children were born to them: Eugene Gilmour, January 18, 1896, Ellen Lucille, July 13, 1898, Clara Christine, November 3, 1900 and Jo Ellis, October 3, 1903. Marion Murphy died January 15, 1917.

Myrtle M. Stafford

The Murphy family moved to Springdale in 1901. Myrtle Murphy taught in Springdale Elementary Schools two years. She resigned in January 1904 and on January 10, was married to John Pleasant Stafford. In the words of the bride, "After the wedding, we were transported in a horse-drawn vehicle to the home of the bridegroom on Holcomb Street, where awaited the bridegroom's three sons, Guy 14, Fay 12 and Raymond 6. A daughter, 3-year-old Cessna was at her Aunt Mattie Beasley's in Cassville, Missouri. It is difficult to determine who was the most frightened 'The new mama or the sons'". John and Myrtle spent their honeymoon at the Worlds Fair in St. Louis accompanied by Guy and Fay.

Three children were born to this union, Marion Pleasant, September 15, 1908, Mary Elizabeth, September 13, 1910 and Ellis Murphy May 13, 1918.

Myrtle Stafford was a devoted member of the Christian Church, was one of the organizers of the first P. T. A. in Springdale in 1926, a long-time member of the Women's Civic Club and American Legion Auxiliary. She wrote for several newspapers, including the Springdale News and after the death of her husband in 1933, she was active in the News until she retired April 1, 1948. She was honored by the Washington County Historical Society as a Distinguished Citizen on November 6, 1955. She died September 1, 1972.

Marion Pleasant Stafford married Edward Mathes Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duane Warner of Jonesboro, Arkansas on December 1, 1928.

In May, 1931, Mary Elizabeth Stafford married William McRee Anderson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William McRee Anderson of Hot Springs. They were the parents of two children, Judith Stafford, born March 19, 1935 and William McRee III, born February 23, 1938. Mary Elizabeth Anderson died July 20, 1978.

Judith Anderson married Walter Gene Wright of Benton, Arkansas, July 23, 1955. Three children were born to them, Walter Gene, Jr., October 18, 1957, Mary Elizabeth, August 20, 1959 and Robin, May 1, 1964.

William McRee Anderson III and Delona Carter of Fayetteville, Arkansas were married August 30, 1958, a daughter, Kimberly was born April 27, 1963. On January 27, 1968, William McRee III married Sally Rager of Hot Springs. They are parents of two sons, William McRee IV, September 16, 1969 and James Roger, March 9, 1973.

Ellis Murphy Stafford graduated from the University of Arkansas in 1941. He married Lowdean Head, daughter of Goldie Cloer Head and Everett Head, on July 30, 1941 in Lakewood, California. Ellis worked on a newspaper in Santa Barbara, California for a short time before entering the Air Force where he served during World War II. After the war, he worked on the Springdale News and wrote the column "Rural Rambler". Later, he was with Douglas Aircraft Company in Tulsa and Lockheed Aircraft in Burbank, California, in the Publicity and Public Relations Department. At the time of his death, December 4, 1976, he was with Lockheed Aircraft in Marietta, Georgia.

Ellis and Lowdean Stafford were the parents of three children, Suzanne Elizabeth, July 11, 1942, Elissa Kay, June 24, 1943 and Jeffrey Ellis, July 13, 1952.

Suzanne Stafford married Fadil Zuwaylif on March 21, 1963 in California. Samara Elizabeth, a daughter was born August 28, 1965. Suzanne died February 16, 1975.

Phillip Wayne Steele

Phillip W. Steele was born July 20, 1934 in Fort Smith, Arkansas. He was the only son of Gretchen Gilliland and Wayne Clayton Broyles. He was adopted by Joe M. Steele at age three after his father died and his mother, Gretchen, married Joe March 1938.

Phillip attended Springdale schools and Kemper Military Academy in Boonville, Missouri. He graduated from Springdale High School in 1952. He attended the University of Arkansas and the University of California at Los Angeles. He graduated from the University of Arkansas with a BSBA degree in 1956 and then attended graduate school in performing arts at that institution. While at the U of A he was actively involved with the theatre there, and performed in some fifteen stage productions. He served as president of the University Theatre Group and was elected a member of the National Collegiate Players honorary dramatic fraternity.

Phillip was a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. While in college he met Charlotte Elizabeth Smith, born October 24, 1934, of Little Rock, Arkansas and they were married September 9, 1956.

Phillip joined the Arkansas National Guard after college and received his military training with the Signal corps at Fort Garden, Georgia.

After his military service he joined his father's Steele Canning Company where he served as vice-president and marketing director until 1972. From 1972 until 1982 he served as president of

Phillip Steele

Forest Park Foods, Inc. In 1975 he formed Good Old Days Foods, Inc. of Springdale and Little Rock, Arkansas and presently serves as vice-president and secretary-treasurer of that company.

Phillip and Charlotte have the following children: Meagan Elizabeth, born March 26, 1964 and Jason Ross, born June 11, 1966. Jason married Christy Newkirk March 21, 1986 and their son, Remington Ross Steele was born October 3, 1986.

Phillip has served his industry as president of the Ozark Food Processor's Association for two terms and as a member of the board of directors of the National Food Processor's Association.

His past service to the community includes serving as director of the Springdale Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Springdale United Fund board of directors, president of the Washington County Development Commission, a director of the Washington County Economic Opportunity Agency, vice-chairman of the Northwest Arkansas Film Commission, and director of the Washington County Salvation Army board. He is a member of and past board of directors member of First United Methodist Church. Phillip helped organize and served as the first president of the Arts Center of the Ozarks. He has served on the board of directors of the Ozarks Arts and Crafts Fair Association for many years. Phillip serves as a member of the board of directors for First State Bank of Springdale.

Other than his frozen food business and community service activities, Phillip is an author of eight books on Ozark folklore, history, and Old West subjects. He has written a column for the Ozarks Mountaineer Magazine for ten years, and his old west stories regularly appear in True West, Tombstone Epitaph, The Westerner, Roundup, and other national publications.

He is a member of the board of directors of Friends of the James Farm and the National Outlaw and Lawmen History Association. He is also a member of Western Writers of America.

His work with the Northwest Arkansas and Arkansas Film Commissions has encouraged several film producers to choose the region for film productions. Phillip assisted with locations for the CBS/Columbia production of "The Blue and the Gray" (a made for television movie) and as an actor, he performed in the film, "Man Outside" produced in the region.

Thomas Miley Sullins

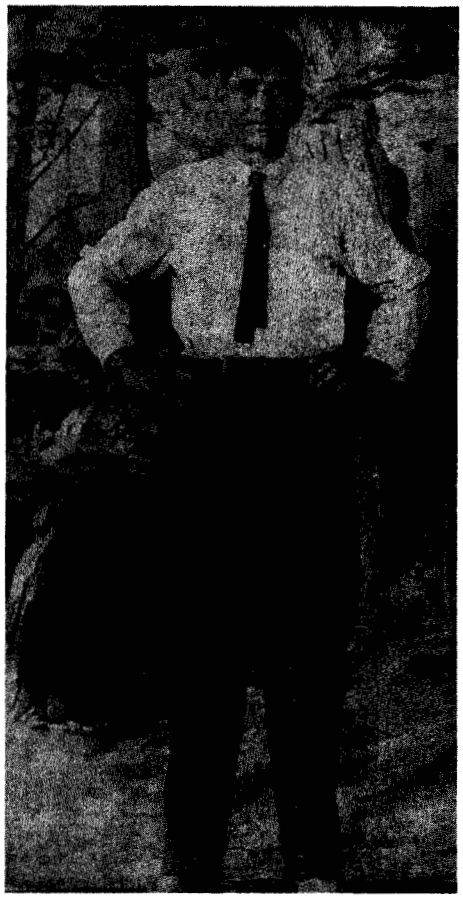
Thomas Miley Sullins, called "Big Tom" within the family, was born January 20, 1866, in Cannon County, Tennessee, the son of James L. Sullins (son of Jesse) born in Cannon County, Tennessee November 4, 1842, and Rebecca L. Spurlock, born March 17, 1843 in Warren County, Tennessee. James and Rebecca were married August 18, 1860 in Warren County, Tennessee. James went to Coal Hill, Arkansas to pick cotton and died there October 25, 1878, as shown in Big Tom's Bible. James is buried in an unknown cemetery and has no marker. Rebecca died September 29, 1892 in Madison County and is buried in Aurora Cemetery.

Sonora School. Back row: left to right, #1 Otto Sullins, #3 Toy Sullins, #4 Grace Sullins, #6 Hattie Sullins, #11 Reece Sullins on end teachers George Thomas Sullins. Probably the 1909-1910 term.

Made at Bonnie's house in 1975? Four granddaughters of T. M. Annis Lea Sullins Lewis, Jo Nell Sullins Fuller, (their mother, Garcie I. Benson Sullins), Bonnie Faye Sullins Baker and Ruth Sullins Kendrick.

Rebecca's parents were Miles Spurlock, successful farmer, born 1803, Tennessee, died 1886 in Madison County, Arkansas and Susanna Sewell, born 1805 in North Carolina, died 1879 in Madison County, Arkansas. Susanna was brought to Tennessee, when a child by her mother.

Miles and Susanna's children were: William, Sarah, James, John, Caroline, Elizabeth, Joseph, Andrew J. and Rebecca L. James and Sarah were deceased before 1889. Andrew J. traveled to Arkansas by wagon in 1859. Excerpt from a letter J. E. (Everett) Spurlock wrote to Ada Anderson in July of 1970: "The Spurlock and Sullins came from Tennessee to Arkansas together, about 1870. Jay's (Sullins) and Tom, Sr's mother was Rebecca Spurlock, a sister to my grandfather, William Spurlock.



James Reuben Sullins son of T. M. and Ella Jane Sullins, born May 28, 1892. Picture made in July, 1916. He was married at this time and had baby six months old.

Probably last picture made of T. M. Sullins. Made in front of Otto's house near Springdale, Arkansas. Four grand children is all he had at the time. Must have been made in 1929, as baby in his arms was born July 29,1929. T. M. died the following May. Left to right: Arla Ruth, born November 9, 1923; T. M. with Annis Lea; In front of T. M., Bonnie Faye, born June 6, 1929; and Ada Mae, born January 1, 1916. T. M. was 63 if it was December, 1929.

There were nine wagons pulled by oxen teams, all came together. Crossed the Mississippi River near Memphis. I thank you very much for the information papers". . . Mr. Spurlock was very ill at the time, in fact, bedfast, but he took time to help with family history. He gave all his history, beginning with his grandfather, William, who had eleven children, all deceased by 1965. In 1965, Mr. Spurlock, Huntsville, wrote to Ada A., excerpt:; "I grew up with the Jay Sullins family. We did a lot of visiting. Young Tom (George Thomas) and I were about the same age and were always pals. Your Grandfather Tom left Madison County when I was young and I do not remember many of his children though I remember him quite well. . . .Thank you for the sketch on Jackson Spurlock. I remember him". 1870 census records of Madison County lists John, Joseph and A. Jackson Spurlock with their young families.

Rebecca L. and James Sullins' children: Andrew Jesse, born May 16, 1861; Thomas Miley, born January 20, 1866; Susan A., born March 11, 1868 all born in Tennessee. Rebecca married James McDougal after James S. died and before 1880. Big Tom's Bible shows McDougal children: Nancy E. born May 2, 1876, (does not agree with record of James S. death in 1878) Anna C. born March 23, 1881; H. M. McDougal born August 28, 1887, all born in Arkansas. One of Big Tom's sisters died of breast cancer. It is not known where any of them are buried. Anna C. (half sister) was living in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma in 1929-1931. She corresponded with brother Tom for a few years before his death in 1930. Her married name at that time was Mestdagh.

Miles (Miley) and Jesse are family names through many generations. Records show Mail Spurlock was a major in Chatham City, North Carolina in 1775, attended Congress in 1776 to form a state constitution. Also sat in House of Commons in North Carolina in 1780 and 1795.

Many histories have been written on both the Sullins (Sullens, Sullans) and the Spurlock families. It is said they came from Scotland, Ireland and England. About the earliest record we have is from memoirs left by Dr. David Sullins, founder of the Sullins College at Bristol, Tennessee. (See Recollections of an Old Man, by Dr. David Sullins at M. H. S.) Dr. Sullins tells us. "My ancestors were Scotch-Irish. Sometime about 1750, three brothers came to America from the "old country". They were unmarried. On reaching America, they separated, one going to North Carolina, married and settled near Guilford Courthouse; one stopped in Pennsylvania, married there; the other, my grandfather (? or his great grandfather) went to Virginia, married Mary Mays in Halifax County and located on Dan River. Here Nathan, my father (? or his grandfather) was born November 10, 1783. When about 12 years old, his father moved to Tennessee, settled on Poplar Creek, at that time in Knox County, now in Roane County, near Oliver Springs". This conforms with other records, that the Sullins people first came to Virginia and Pennsylvania. Then our branch went to Tennessee, some to Missouri and some to Illinois.

Tom and his brother, A. J. (called Jay by Tom) batched for awhile when Tom was quite young. Tom was only 12 when his father died. 1880 census of Madison County, Arkansas shows James McDougle with his wife, Rebecca, daughter, Nancy E., 4 and three stepchildren, Anrew, 18, Thomas, 15 (Tom was 5 years younger than Jay) and Suan, 12, all born in Tennessee.

Tom and Jay went to school and then became farmers. Tom told of being so mean in school that the teacher made him stand in the corner while on crutches because of a broken leg. A few samples of his handwriting have been preserved. In 1916 while driving a horse and buggy, the horse ran away and threw Tom out of the buggy breaking his leg again. It left him crippled, as one leg was shorther than the other and the sore never healed. He used long strips of white cloth to bandage the leg every day. Still, he was able to work and support his family, never asking for any handouts. Tom also said that while at church one time he sat behind a young lady wearing a bustle. He made a slit in the cloth with his knife and when she left the church her bustle fast diminished leaving a trail of sawdust behind her. That was mean.

Tom became "Big Tom" when his brother Jay married and had a son whom he named George Thomas, George for his wife's brother and Thomas for his brother. Thus George Tom became "Little Tom".

Dan Hankins (now deceased) stated that Tom moved near him one time and he didn't know Big Tom at all, but he wanted to buy a cow from Dan on credit and said that he would pay in about 8 months as he needed the cow for his family; Dan let him have a cow and about 8 months later, Big Tom came and paid him.

Big Tom was handsome when he was a young man with very blue eyes, very black hair which turned gray prematurely. He was over 6 feet tall and weighed about 250 pounds. Brother Jay was tall and slender and had black hair and blue eyes. Tom wore size 11 shoes. Both had long noses which seems to be a characteristic of the family. Sullins and Spurlocks are mostly Republicans.

September, 1951 Sterling S. Brown, Atty., Woodbury, Tennessee, wrote to J. E. Spurlock, Huntsville, Arkansas that when a young man he knew a Joe Miley Spurlock who married a Vandergrift in 1859. Said marriage records of Cannon City, Tennessee show James B. Spurlock married Angelina Sullens in 1857.

Big Tom had one white horse and one gray horse (a team), named Jim and Ribbon. He worried about what would happen to them after he was gone. He didn't want them separated. They were sold together. Don't think he ever had a dog, just the black cat. Reuben had two dogs, Chub and Shep, when he died. Shep appointed himself guardian of Reuben's child after he died. Big Tom was a fine natural musician, played the violin quite well. Was offered a job with a radio station at Springfield about 3 years before his death, but he refused to leave home. Tried to teach his oldest granddaughter to play the "fiddle" but she had no talent and neither did her father, Reuben. Tom's other 3 sons had inherited some of their father's musical ability and could play different instruments. Reece got Tom's violin and now Ruth's son, Clarence, has it. For the last 7 years of his life, Tom would sit out on his porch during warm weather and play the violin for hours. It was heard by all the neighbors.

Tom married Ella Jane Patton about 1888 when she was 16. Ella's parents, Reuben Patton, born 1842 in Floyd County, Kentucky, and Elizabeth (Betty) Walker, born 1838 in Perry County, Kentucky. Reuben's father was born in Kentucky and his name is unknown at this time. His mother was Malinda, born Virginia in 1811. 1850 census records of Floyd City, Kentucky show Malinda Patton, 39, a widow, Abby 14, Mary 9, Reuben 7, Riley 6, David 4. Census records of 1860, Breathitt City, Kentucky, P. O. Jackson, where Pattons came from to Arkansas, show Reuben Patton 18, and Riley 17, both born in Floyd City, living with George W. and Polly Patton and their family (page 99), page 107 shows David Patton 14, born in Floyd City, living with W. S. Allen 41, and his big family. David Freeland Patton married Louvia Allen; had 12 children, 3 still living in 1973; youngest, Catherine Burgess, lived in Oklahoma. It is said that David's uncle raised him.

Elizabeth (Betty) Walker's parents were Alexander and Sary or Polly Walker (maiden name unknown). Children: Nancy, Betty, Mary, Martha, Cynthia, James, William D., Catherine, Benjamin and Lewis, census records of Perry Cty, Kentucky 1850; moved to Breathitt Cty. by 1860.

David Patton settled near Red Star or maybe Judea in Newton County, Arkansas. Reuben moved to a farm near Combs, in Madison County, raised hogs and farmed. Reuben and Betty's children: Mary (Polly), (raised by Uncle Lewis Walker) married A. J. Sullins; Ella Jane married Thomas Miley Sullins (brothers married sisters), Elizabeth married Thompson; Cynthia married Morris; Catherine married Patton (no relation); George (only son) married Nancy Jane Creech. Reuben's will was probated in Madison County, Arkansas, May 12, 1913. He left his farm to George because George and wife took care of him in his declining years. Reuben is buried near his farm (where he wanted to be) in the Greasy Creek Cemetery; has a nice marker and a beautiful hardwood maple tree growing nearby. His first wife, Betty, is buried in the Brashears Cemetery with only a field stone marker. (Hope to put up a proper monument soon). His second wife, Nancy Jane Prater, is buried in Patrick Cemetery; has a nice marker. She died October 18, 1909. Reuben died sometime between August 12, 1912 when the will was written and May 12, 1913. Dan Joslen and Dora Patton, witnesses to will, were married by the time it was probated. W. R. Gabbard was the executor.

Betty died when George was 2 years old. Many people stated that Reuben was a kind and good man but preferred to be left alone. He loved to read the Bible.

David and Reuben enlisted in the Confederate Army, David was discharged October 12, 1864, from Reg. 39, Kentucky Volunteers, Infantry. He applied for a pension from Judea, in Newton County, Arkansas, which was rejected August 14, 1897. Reuben also served in the Union Army, it is believed.

Betty's sister, Elizabeth married Captain Hiram Combs and had 8 children. They lived around Combs. Many Pattons moved to Texas, especially David's descendants. The writer has many records on these Pattons.

Tom and Ella lived around Japton and Aurora until sometime after 1900 and then moved to Washington County about 1906 or 1908. Records of Madison County reflect Deed Record R page 472, Patent, U. S. to A. J. Sullins, October 22, 1892. Deed Record S page 19, shows deed from Andrew J. Sullins and wife, Mary, to T. M. Sullins, for $150., W 1/2 of SW 1/4 of NW 1/4 and all of NW 1/4 of NW 1/4 of Section 17, Twp. 15 NR 26 W, October 22, 1892, 60 acres, recorded February 10, 1893. Deed Records of Washington County reflect deed from (Dr.) J. E. Martin and Dora F. Martin (wife), and C. G. Dodson to Thomas M. Sullins, to North 3/4 ths of the SW 1/4 of the NW 1/4 of Sec. 17, Twp. 17, N of Range 29 W, 30 acres, dated March 16, 1914, recorded 4/24/1914. This was the farm T. M. owned when he died. It was divided among his 3 living sons and the sons paid Reuben's child in cash for her part. No Sullins owns any part of it now. Tom and Ella must have lived close to Sonora for awhile as a school picture shows all sons except Reuben in school there and George T. Sullins was the teacher. George's brother, Sherman and 2 sisters, Grace and Hattie were in school at that time. It is believed Reuben went through 8th grade 2 times, perhaps in Madison and Washington Counties.

In the early 20's Tom bought a new Maxwell car. He couldn't drive it, so his sons had to. They didn't have it long.

Tom told of being out with 2 or 3 other men cutting timber one time when several horsemen came by asking directions. They gave informatin and the horsemen rode on. Tom was about 16 at the time. He always thought it was Jesse James and his gang.

It was reported that "Little Tom" bought the violin from Sears, Roebuck, then gave or sold it to Big Tom. Cousin Ruth who has the violin in her possession (1974) gives the inscription in it as follows: Written on the lid: "Mr. Miley Spurlock was born the 8th of May in 1804. purchest of day of his birth". Inside label reads - "Antonius Stradivarius Cremonent is faciebat Anno 1706 (AS)". Miley Spurlock was Ada's and Ruth's great-great-grandfather. Where he got the violin is unknown.

When Big Tom was young he sometimes drank a little and used bad words. After Ella died in 1923, he never took another drink or used vulgar language. He had always played for country dances before but he never played for dances anymore. He began reading the Bible, one or two chapters every night and he wore out 3 Bibles. Sometimes he would read to his oldest granddaughter who stayed with him a lot.

Children of Tom and Ella: 5 sons, Jesse Washington, born near Aurora August 11, 1890. Died January 2, 1892, from a spider bite, they thought. He was probably buried at Aurora. James Reuben (named for his two grandfathers) was born May 28, 1892. Married Eva Francis Gash on July 27, 1914 by J. T. Boyd, minister in Washington County. Eva joined the Methodist Church when a girl and joined again after she was sick.

Reuben was a handsome man, good-sized with dark brown wavy hair and dark brown eyes. He had not been too strong since he'd had a fever as a child. Eva was a small woman (100 pounds) with reddish brown hair and brown eyes. She was born in Trenton, Grundy Cty., Missouri and came to Gravette, Arkansas with her parents, George W. Gash and Laura Jane Johnson, about 1909 when she was 11 years old. Her relatives only stayed about 4 years. Reuben had the flu and pneumonia and died on December 4, 1918. It was during the flu epidemic and every family lost one or more members. Reuben had gone hunting in the rain and stayed out all day. He was a Methodist.

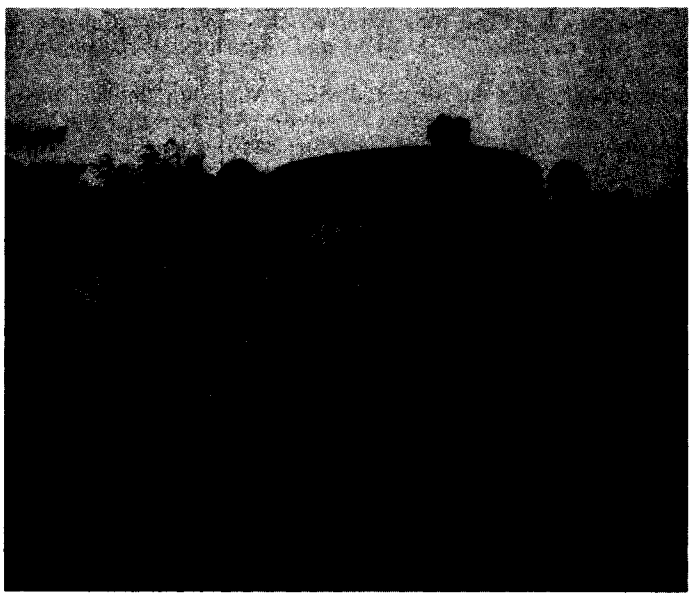
Eva had to go to work after he died. She would leave their only child, Ada Mae, born January 1, 1916 (not quite 3 when her father died), with the Sullins grandparents. Ada was afraid her mother would leave and not come back. Grandad Sullins let her do anything she wanted to, including playing with the black cat, against her mother's wishes.

The next year, on August 26, 1919, Eva married Carl Roy Lenox, Reuben's friend. He was the son of Fannie Riggins and R. Cameron Lenox. Eva had other offers of marriage but Carl was the only one who wanted a child.

Ada Sullins, T. M.'s oldest grandchild, with doll. Made in 1918. Don't know who buggy belonged to.

Ada still spent much time at her granddad's. Tom told her tales, played hull-gull with her for hours at a time; they went green hunting, fishing, caught crawdads (and cooked them). They would look for the first ripe strawberry in the patch and Ada would get to eat it, half-green. Ada was not as close to her grandmother who made her behave. Ada was their first grandchild; they had had all boys and they spoiled her. Ella would sit for hours and let Ada comb her long brown wavy hair. Ella was brown-eyed and short, a little heavy in later years. She died June 29, 1923 when Ada was only seven. She had helped Big Tom in the hay and was sick only 3 days. They said Ella died of cancer of the stomach. Tom was absolutely devasted by the loss so suddenly of his beloved Ella. He would not eat for three days, even at the request of Ada. In July of 1916, Ada's stepfather made a violin. He needed a specific kind of wood to finish it. Tom let him remove a step (made from cherry wood) from his stairway to complete the violin. Ada still has that violin.

Ada was born upstairs at Tom's house, delivered by Dr. J. E. Martin of Springdale. But she was always terrified of that house. When she was about 12 she went to see her granddad and heard strange noises coming from the vicinity of the barn. A storm was coming up, beginning to thunder and lots of lightning. She found Tom lying on the ground with an axe nearby close to a hog wire fence; he was talking incoherently; didn't seem to know her. First, she moved the axe out of his reach and after much effort, got him away from the fence. He tried to help but was so heavy. She yelled for a neighbor who said he'd come as soon as he got his cows up. Everyone had phones in those days. She ran to the house (scared to death) and called another neighbor or called the doctor. It was beginning to rain, so she took a quilt from the house to cover her granddad. Finally he decided to try to help and they slowly made it to the house. Ada got him on the bed before anyone showed up to help. He still didn't know anything. Doctor didn't know if he'd had a stroke or been struck by lightning and said Ada had probably saved his life. His son Otto and wife took him home with them and looked after him awhile but soon he was back in his own home. He lived for 2 years after that. He was ill about 2 weeks before he died, Otto kept him during that time. Tom passed away on May 1, 1930; was placed beside his wife and his son Reuben in Zion Cemetery. Tom always had time for Ada and she missed him very much. These are recorded mostly for other cousins' benefit. Ada is the oldest living descendant of T. M. Sullins.



Made in 1936 or 1937 - car probably belonged to Carl Lenox. Left to right, Eva F. Gash Sullins Lenox, Reuben Sullins was her first husband; Addie & Toy Sullins; Ada Sullins (now Anderson). As of 1987, all deceased except Addie and Ada.

Ada attended school at Fishback and Zion in Washington County; 1925 and 1929 went to Zion without missing a day; 1930 and 1931 went to Fishback and never missed a day. No jobs for country kids then; she picked strawberries to help buy her clothes. She couldn't afford to go to high school in Arkansas. Her mother sent her to her folks (a big family) in Oklahoma for the first two years. She went first semester to Vera High School, the rest of the four years to Ramona. Third year, entered six weeks late; stayed with her Uncle Charley Gash and his wife. Nobody had any money. In the fourth year, a classmate found her a place to work for room and board. She could not cook but learned, was very homesick for four years. Graduated in 1935. Had taken shorthand, bookkeeping and typing the last year. Got a job with Budd Post & Hardwood Co., Fayetteville, as secretary, bookkeeper, types and store clerk. Quit in December 1945. Appointed by Judge John Butt January 1, 1946 as Court Reporter for the 4th Judicial Circuit (Washington, Benton, Carroll and Madison Counties). Worked for Judge Seamster for 18 months; for Judge Tom Butt until retirement on January 6, 1981. Courthouse personnel and attorneys gave her the most fabulous party ever. Ada has dark brown hair and black eyes. They love cats and dogs. Always have pets.

On October 22, 1955 she met T. C. Anderson; they were married on December 16, by Bro. Joe Banks in Fayetteville Church of Christ. Moved to his home in Madison County. They had to care for her mother who had been invalided by a stroke in 1952, when she was only 54 years old. Her stepfather lived seven years after her mother died January 31, 1957. He had a stroke and lived with T. C. and Ada for over a year before he was laid to rest beside her mother in Zion Cemetery. He died March 16, 1964. T. C. graduated in three years from Elkins High School in 1933. He walked 10 miles from home at times. He taught in country schools 8 years; 2 years in Elkins High School; taught veterans on the farm training for 7 years. He roughnecked in the oil fields of Texas and Louisiana for several years. T. C. enlisted in the Navy in 1941, serving six years. Was a Pharmacist Mate 1st Class (DPI) when discharged. Served many places while in Navy: Great Lakes, Norfolk, Virginia, San Diego, California, Miami, Florida, 3 years in Puerto Rico, other islands and places. They live in the house he was born in on their farm near Crosses, Madison County. He graduated from University of Arkansas in January 1956 with a degree in agriculture. Raises cattle and broilers although he is semi-retired and only supervises the operation. T. C. has very blue eyes.

T. C. and Ada spend a lot of time traveling which they could not do while they both worked. Made a trip to Hawaii in June, 1981. They visited New Orleans, Atlanta, San Francisco, Albuquerque, San Antonio, Dallas, Washington, D. C., Houston, Kilgore and Gonzales, Texas, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Shreveport, Hot Springs, Tulsa, Pueblo, Colorado, Phoenix and others. They like to go to horse races. They used to fish. White River runs through their farm. They like basketball and football; bowl three times a week, when at home. Belong to American Legion, University of Arkansas Alumni, Cattlemen's Assn., Poultry Assn., are members of Metropolitan Dinner Club. T. C. is on Madison County School Board, Ozarks Electric Coop. Board; on Madison County Soil Conservation Board for about 29 years before retiring. They take an interest in all civic affairs, and are Democrats. Ada has worked on genealogy on all their families since 1964 and belongs to many historical associations. T. C. has been a member of the Church of Christ for over 40 years. At age 18, Ada joined Methodist Church at Zion; joined Church of Christ at age 48. They attend church at Elkins. They have no children. They will travel as long as they are able to. Parents of T. C. were Bob Anderson and Tennie Mae Faubus. Reece Amon, third son of T. M. and Ella, born September 15, 1895. Married Mona Cooper June 26, 1920. They had no children. Reece worked at Welch Grape Co. for 15 years before he retired. Mona was a housewife. Reece died December 15, 1956. James Reuben and Reece Amon are buried in the Zion Cemetery. Mona may have lived 20 years after Reece passed on. She was in a rest home for about 11 years. She is buried at Zion. Mona was born July 8, 1886. She had blue eyes and medium brown hair. Reece had brown hair and blue eyes and was tall and slender.

Toy Columbus was born September 12, 1897, married Addie Preece, who was born February 22, 1907. Her parents were William Martin Preece and Mary Margaret Wapas, both born in Texas and moved to Arkansas while quite young. William was born August 19, 1870 and died November 25, 1958. Mary was born December 22, 1874 and died December 4, 1960. Both are buried in Friendship, near Springdale, Arkansas. The Preeces lived in California for 7 years, ran a dairy. Toy and Addie made 5 trips there during the period they lived there, sometimes staying as much as a year and Toy helped Mr. Preece with the dairy farm. Toy used to entertain his oldest neice by telling her wild hunting tales and ghost stories. He was a big man with brown hair and brown eyes; Addie has brown hair and brown eyes. Addie keeps a little dog and cat for company.

Toy farmed and later became a custom butcher. They raised large gardens. Toy died September 13, 1954 while at home. He loved to fish and was a musician. They had no children. Addie just celebrated her 80th birthday in February. Her church (Baptist at Friendship) surprised her with a party and gifts for her faithful attendance and helpfulness. She crochets everything from butterflies to afghans. She loves to read and keeps up with current affairs. She lives on the farm, keeps a few cows and raises a garden. Toy is buried in Friendship Cemetery near Springdale.

Otto Miley, fifth son of T. M. and Ella was born January 14, 1899, married Garcie Irene Benson, born March 17, 1902, Madison City, near Goshen. Her parents were Isaac Benson and Annis Tassis Paralea Cravens, both deceased. Otto always helped with the sick, sit up with them, cut wood, cook, whatever needed to be done and he started doing this as a young man. He was tall and slender with brown hair and hazel eyes. He was always smiling and spoiled his daughters. Entertained them with stories. He worked several years for Quality Orchards and then several years for Harvey Jones. Developed lung cancer; had to have a lung removed. He recovered but couldn't do manual labor. He then had to work in a package store. His wife helped him. Neither of them were very well at the time. He later died of a heart attack, March 11, 1963 and is buried in Zion Cemetery. Otto liked to play practical jokes on people. Garcie is still living, past 85 years old. She loves to garden and grow flowers. She enjoys her grandchildren, great-grand-children and great-great-grandchildren. She lives by herself. She loves to go places. She is a member of the Faith Regular Baptist Church.

Their four daughters are: Arla Ruth; Bonnie Faye; Annis Lea; Jo Nell, all born in Arkansas near Springdale. Ruth married Everett Clarence Kendrick who as born September 12, 1914, the son of Osie Arlington Kendrick and Minnie Pearl Lynch. They were married at Bentonville, Arkansas March 18, 1941. They are Democrats. Ruth went to Springdale High School through the 10th grade. Clarence graduated from the 8th grade. He worked 32 years for the Jones Truck Lines as a truck driver; retired December, 1976. Ruth has always been a housewife and she likes to take their boat, go to the lake with her husband and fish and relax. She likes Blue Grass music. Ruth was born November 9, 1923 near Springdale, Arkansas. Clarence and Ruth often come to the lake to meet Clacy and Bonnie and other family members and stay for 2 weeks at a time. Clarence is tall and slender with blue eyes and light hair; Ruth has light brown hair and hazel eyes. They live in Joplin on a small acreage. Their children are: Arletha Darlene, born July 1, 1947, died January 30, and buried February 1, 1948 in Zion Cemetery. Everett C., Jr., born July 30, 1942 on Jones Farm, Elm Springs, Arkansas. He graduated from Springdale High School in 1960, and from College of the Ozarks, Clarksville, Arkansas in 1964. Entered Naval Reserve in 1962, and the regular Navy July or August 1964. He has served on USS Dale, USS Dubuque, USS Bagley and was stationed in San Diego at North Island. He has since retired from the Navy and is working in Saudia Arabia. He has never married. Is big and makes the writer think of her grandfather, T. M., except Clarence's eyes are brown and his hair is light.

Sharon Ann was born March 29, 1951, Springdale, Arkansas married David Wyman Higgins March 19, 1968 at Rogers, Arkansas, Sunnyvale Church by Reverend Kindred. David was born November 28, 1948. They both became teachers and now live in Bowling Green, Kentucky. They have 3 children: Shelley, Shannon, in their 20's, a son, Lance Kendrick, about 5 years old. Have a daughter who is deceased: Tracy Gale Rich, born September 12, 1961, died February 21, 1962, buried in Zion Cemetery. Shelly is married and has one child.

Bonnie Faye, second daughter of Otto and Garcie, born June 26, 1925, married Clacy Baker on October 1, 1941. Clacy's parents were Tom Baker and Lois Stamps. Bonnie and Clacy were married by Reverend Ellis Plumlee. They have two children: Tanya, born September 19, 1945, married Danny March. Both attended Springdale High School. Tanya was born in Fayetteville Hospital. They have children and grandchildren; names unknown to writer at this time. Belong to Faith Regular Baptist Church.

Second child: Clacy Eugene Baker was born April 7, 1948, graduated from Springdale High School. Married twice. Was in the Marines at one time for three years. Children's names unknown. Has now served in Marines for some time.

Third daughter of Otto and Garcie: Annis Lea, born July 29, 1929, married Kenneth Afton Lewis, son of Andrew Lewis (deceased) and Ella Glenn Lewis. Ken was born April 7, 1926 at Drakes Creek in Madison County. He graduated from Huntsville High School. Ann graduated from Springdale High School in 1947. Worked for many years at different places as a bookkeeper. Ken managed AQ Chicken House for years, then had his own restaurants; been in food business since 1965. Ann has helped him in the business for some years. They have Ken's Catering now and serve Northwest Arkansas. They belong to Faith Regular Baptist Church where Ken is a Deacon. They go to Florida for 2 or 3 months in the winter and sometimes their children join them for a vacation. Their children are: Patricia Ann, born November 18, 1947, married Ronnie Mabry who is deceased. She is now married to Phillip Stewart. Patricia's children are: Rhonda Lea, born July 29, 1966; Rodney Harrison, born January 12, 1970; Carroll Denice, born February 4, 1972, all born in Springdale. All belong to to Ronnie Mabry. Patricia is an artist and has taken up sculptoring. Has made some very nice pieces. Second child of Ann and Ken; Jim Dean Lewis, born December 22, 1949, married Gayle Thompson, March, 1969, her parents are George T. and Lavon Thompson, deceased. Gayle was born August 14, 1950. She helps in the catering business. Jim and Gayle have: Jimmi Danealle, born December 23, 1971; Jonathan David, born December 18, 1977. Third child of Ann and Ken: Jeffrey Allen, born December 29, 1951. Married 3 times. Jeff went to work instead of going to school. He married Nancy Clair Matthews. Now he is married to Kris Munson, born April 4, 1960. His and Nancy's children are: Sarah Clair, born July 14, 1975; Timothy Andrew, born February 23, 1977. Patricia and Jim graduated from Springdale High School. Jo Nell, fourth daughter of Otto & Garcie, was born July 23, 1934; married Eugene Debs McKinley at the Baptist Church in Springdale July 26. Jo finished 11th grade and started on 12th at Springdale High. Eugene died April 7, 1963 and is buried in Bluff Cemetery at Springdale. Jo has worked at Springdale Wal-Mart store for 12 years. She has had by-pass surgery. She belongs to First Baptist Church. She likes to crochet and read. After her first husband died, she married Larry Fuller. They are now divorced.

Children: Debra Sue McKinley, 33 years old, University of Arkansas graduate, not married. Debra teaches in Albert Pike School at Fort Smith. One child before Debra, David Eugene, deceased and buried in Bluff Cemetery. Third child is Brenda Lou, 31 years old, works at Willis Shaw. She was married to Jack Carpenter, now divorced. Brenda has 2 children: Jack Carpenter, born August 31, 1975; Kelly Rene, born January 21, 1983. Fourth child of Jo and Eugene: Thomas Otto McKinley, (named for his great-grandfather and grandfather) is 29 years old and was born November 14. Has worked at Willis Shaw for 11 years. Jo had 2 more children: Tina Marie Fuller, deceased, and Justin Wade Fuller, deceased. Justin was born November 21, 1967 and drowned in Beaver Lake on June 2, 1974. He was 6 years old and asked if he could visit a friend.

Note: In a letter dated July 4, 1965, from T. C.'s cousin Gladys Lowe, Muir, Michigan, she states her mother, Aunt Belle Anderson, kept a diary and on January 30,1956, states that Clay Anderson and wife stopped by Gladys says that: "I remember the Sullins family who were our neighbors in Huntsville. Judge G. T. Sullins (Little Tom was madison Cty. Judge at one time) and his father and brother all were our neighbors at various times". (She was writing about "Little Tom", Sherman and Uncle Jay). Gladys is now deceased.

Aunt Addie said Uncle Toy told her they lived near the river after they came to Washington County, and all the boys would gather on the river on Sundays. Not much to do in the way of recreation in those days. Otto, Toy and Carl Lenox and others would go every Sunday. There's nothing known about Reece. Reuben was either sparkin' or married. Anyway, every time when they would come home, T. M. would line them up and whip them. One Sunday after he was through whipping them, Toy who was about 16, said, "Dad, if that did you so much good, just line us up and whip us again". Their dad never did whip them again for going to the river.

This writer forgot to say that Clacy Baker worked for years at Jones Truck Lines as a local driver, and he finally retired. He has a small farm near Sonora and between fishing trips to the lake he enjoys working on the farm.

The only way this writer knew about Reuben being baptised was because Hugh Sherry, (former mayor of Springdale, and he was Washington County Treasurer at the time they were talking) told her that he happened to be near the river when they were having a baptising when he was 7 years old, and he saw Reuben Sullins baptised, among others. Reuben was in his teens at the time. Ada and some of the Sherry children had gone to school together at Fishback.

Henry Sweitzer

Henry Godfrey Sweitzer was born Heinrich Godfrey Schweitzer on March 17, 1836, in Alsace-Lorraine, which had been alternately French and German for centuries. His second daughter, my mother, wanted to preserve some of the tradition and named her only daughter Lorraine and wanted to give me a middle name of Sweitzer, but my father over-ruled and left me without a middle name. I did adopt the middle initial "H" for business matters to avoid signing my full first name.

Henry Sweitzer and Julia Sweitzer at St. Paul, Arkansas, about 1910.

Sweitzer Wagon Company, Fayetteville, ca.1910.

James Gilstrap and Kate Sweitzer Gilstrap.

Will Davis and Maud Sweitzer Davis

According to Mama, her father arrived in the United States at New Orleans, Louisiana, about 1860 and worked as a deck-hand on a Mississippi riverboat. When the Civil War started, he joined the Illinois infantry and had a leg injury in the Battle of Chickamauga, Georgia. Following the war, he made his way to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and worked for a German named Peter Schuttler in building wagons and other carriages. It is not known when or how he got to Fayetteville, Arkansas, in the mid-1870s, but it must have been by stagecoach, because he met and later married a much younger lady named Julia Anne Cox, who was working for Fisher Stage Lines in Fayetteville. They were married by minister T. P. Boone on October 22, 1879, in Fayetteville.

The first real estate transaction located shows that on November 21, 1883, Heinrich Schweitzer bought part of Lot 38 extending from School Street to Locust Street on South Street from George S. Albright and Mary M. Albright for $200.00. He and Julia built their home there and also a shop; they sold this property December 21, 1894, to Anna Burgess.

In 1886, Henry was building wagons and carriages under the name of Henry Sweitzer and Company. In the Arkansas Centennial issue of the Fayetteville Daily Democrat in 1936, there was an article that said "Some of Fayetteville's more progressive merchants who believed in advertising 50 years ago were (among others) Henry Sweitzer and Company, manufacturers of the celebrated Fayetteville wagon, the best on wheels." Some of these wagons were still in use in the area until the 1930s.

In July, 1887, the Frisco Railroad was operating its St. Paul branch, which it had taken over from the Fayetteville-Little Rock Railroad, extending up the White River Valley to the "booming town" of St. Paul, about 35 miles and later another 12 miles to Pettigrew called the "Hardwood Capital of the World." It was reported that McDaniel Bros. in 1886 had shipped about eight million railroad cross-ties on the railroad that Hugh McDaniel had controlled. Log wagons were in great demand and much of Sweitzer Wagon's business was from that area; so in 1890 Henry bought lots in St. Paul and built Sweitzer Wagon Company, on Front Street there, and moved his family to St. Paul in 1891. In 1892, he bought lots from the Fayetteville-Little Rock Railroad of St. Louis and built a new home for his family and commuted to Fayetteville to continue to be involved in Sweitzer Wagon Company operation.

Anticipating the move to St. Paul, Henry caused a new corporation to be formed February 8, 1887, retaining a minority interest, but giving up control to Ellis Duncan, Albert Byrnes, E. B. Harrison, Mac Devin, and Attorney B. R. Davidson, who was elected President.

Henry's wife, Julia, was born in Missouri on September 8, 1858, and died March 17, 1912, at age 53; Henry died only 17 days later on April 3, 1912, at age 75. Both are buried in Brashears Cemetery near St. Paul.

Henry and Julia had three daughters, who are pictured with their husbands at the time of marriages. Eldest was Maud, who was born in Fayetteville, married Will Davis and died in St. Paul, but Madison County records burned making dates uncertain. Next was Maggie Alma, who was born at Fayetteville September 2, 1884, married James Walter Tweedy April 6, 1908, had six children and died in Tulsa, Oklahoma, May 9, 1962. Youngest was Kate Anne, who was born at St. Paul September 14, 1891, married James F. Gilstrap February 5, 1908, had one son and died at Fayetteville on January 5, 1936. Maggie Tweedy is buried alongside her husband at Fairview Cemetery in Fayetteville; Kate Gilstrap is buried at Brashears Cemetery near St. Paul.

All three girls were married at the Sweitzer home in St. Paul, where they had grown up and where Kate and family continued to live until they moved to Kansas in 1930. The house still stands and is occupied.

Michael A. Tatman

In Siloam Springs, Arkansas, 1952, a fella named Michael Arlen Tatman, son of Paul and Johnnie Tatman, asked a girl named Betty Nell Hastings, daughter of W. Robert and Grace Hastings, to walk with him as his Homecoming Football Maid. During that time it was customary for the Senior Football Players to ask the girl of their choice to be their attendant. Little did we realize at that point what the future held for us. As good friends, partly because our parents were such good friends, we always seemed to enjoy each other.

After high school graduation, our paths didn't cross until January 1958. After Air Force service commitment, college graduations, and numerous other factors (probably maturity), we were both struck by a mutual feeling of love for each other. On August 22, 1958, we were married in the First Presbyterian Church of Siloam Springs, by Rev. J. Basil Ramsey. Following, came many decisions. Mike returned to school in Weatherford, Oklahoma, Southwestern State Teachers College, where he graduated from the School of Horology. Meanwhile, decisions were being considered for a place to make our home and raise our hoped for family. Opportunities were open for us in Arizona and western Texas, however, returning to northwest Arkansas was the priority.

We made our much considered move to Springdale, Arkansas in Washington County, on March 18, 1961. Mike was employed by Hastings Jewelry. My parents, Wm. Robert Hastings and Gracie Nell Hastings, moved their jewelry store from Siloam Springs to Springdale, in January 1960. My father offered Mike a position, which was an excellent opportunity for Mike to work with a master jeweler. This was a good working situation for both, eagerness and maturity.

Being a Registered Nurse, graduate of Hillcrest Medical Center, Tulsa, Oklahoma, 1957, I accepted a position at Springdale Memorial Hospital. At that time, the hospital was relatively small, only 3 stations (or wings). The doctors were the best I'd ever had the opportunity to work with. Even though I thoroughly enjoyed my experience in Surgery and Post-operative areas, after 3 years I accepted a position at Springdale Clinic, working with Dr. Stanley Applegate, Dr. John W. Dorman and Dr. John Ralph Power. Combined with working experience and working conditions, this probably was the peak of my career.

With the retirement of my parents on December 31, 1968, a new world of entrepreneurship opened for us. Mike and I purchased the jewelry store and changed the name to Tatman's Jewelry, January 1, 1969. The days that followed were filled with endless energy. Mike worked the store alone (Daddy did do clock and watch repair). I was still nursing at Springdale Clinic, while my lunch hour was spent with Mike at the store. Surely the days must have been longer or at least we accomplished more in a day's time.

We felt our lives were filled with joy on August 17, 1967, when we were supremely blessed. Our daughter, Stephanie Ann Tatman was delivered in Springdale Memorial Hospital by our family physician, Dr. John Ralph Power. From the first time Dr. Power heard her name, he called her "Steph", a name that has followed her to the present time. She'll always consider that "special".

After Stephanie arrived, it wasn't long before we made another major decision concerning our family. We moved the jewelry store from 128 W. Emma Ave. to 131 E. Emma Ave., on November 1, 1972. This being a larger location, and the fact we were a small Mom and Pop business, it became necesary for me to retire from nursing. Many hours of painting, carpentry, and do it ourselves projects kept us with a full time job of promoting Tatman's Jewelry. During this time, we were establishing our reputation as trustworthy, skilled, and dependable.

The Tatman Family: Betty Nell Tatman, Stephanie (seated) and Michael A. Tatman.

Not only were our lives business oriented, we were also teaching Sunday school in First Methodist Church and belonged to numerous community clubs and activities. We enjoyed this busy time of our lives and it also allowed us the opportunity to make life long friends and acquaintances.

Early in our business years, we were approached by Dean E. Walker, director of Miss SHS, about the possibility of donating a crown to Miss SHS. Before that time, 1969, the crown was perpetual, handed down each year to the reigning queen. We decided to annually donate the crown as well as having a "Coke Party and Crown Viewing" in the jewelry store for all contestants. The new tradition allowed the queen to retain her crown as a treasured memory. Now in 1988, the tradition is still in effect and hopefully will continue for many years to come.

Whether or not the above had any significance or not, we'll never know. However, our daughter, Stephanie, became very pageant oriented. She kept busy during her growing up years studying voice, mountain dulcimer, ballet, tap, jazz, piano, organ, as well as five years of Drill Team, and numerous other school activities. In 1985, she graduated from SHS as an Honor Student, as well as being selected to the SHS Sr. Hall of Fame, and receiving the Presidential Academic Fitness Award. She credits the above experience in helping her attain the titles of 1985 Washington County Junior Miss, Miss Dogwood, Miss Arkansas Apple Harvest, and 1985 Miss Sorority Pledge Queen for the University of Arkansas. Then in 1987, she was fortunate to win the title of Miss Northwest Arkansas. Being a native of Springdale, it was a thrilling experience for her to represent this part of the state in the Miss Arkansas Pageant in July 1987. This will always remain as a treasured memory for her as well as for Mike and myself.

Her college career began at the University of Arkansas with a Freshman and Sophomore Academic Scholarship. With a determination to attain a degree in Marketing, she also pursued a busy campus life including: Freshman Involvement Comm., Celebrity Showcase, Zeta Tau Alpha Soroity, Lambda Chi Alpha Little Sister, Academic All-American, Deans List, and Outstanding College Students of America. Even though her days were filled to capacity, she felt all of these activities had given her the ability to communicate more effectively with people.

What fun Mike and I have had watching and encouraging Stephanie attain her goals. In the Spring of 1989, she will graduate with a B. S. B. A. Honor Societies included: Order of Omega, Golden Key, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Gamma Beta Phi. She's planning to further her education and pursue a Masters in Marketing with an emphasis on Management.

As parents, we share in Stephanie's success and wish her the best for many years of continued happiness and joy.

The past few years were not all peaches and cream though. Our lives as a family were deeply effected by a business fire May 12, 1984, causing two subsequent moves. One temporary and one permanent (where we are presently located, 101 West Emma Avenue, Downtown Springdale). This move also kept us busy with "do it ourself" projects as other previous moves. Our present location was the Camps Mens Store, as it had been for 38 years. The early part of those years the store was managed by owner Warren Shelley Camp and the later years by his widow, Frances Louise Underhill.

It was a pleasure for us to move our business into a location that was so highly respected by the community and prospered because of its integrity. We plan a long future of serving the people of Springdale in the same manner.

When pondering the past years, we can't help remembering all the Rodeo of the Ozarks Parades (which Mike has been Chairman of the past 21 years). Mike was elected to the Rodeo Board as a Director in February of 1968, has served as Vice-President, and is currently serving as Treasurer in 1988. During Mike's rodeo experience, I have enjoyed being involved, by helping Pat Hutter, with the Miss Rodeo of the Ozarks contest. In subsequent years, the Directors pursued and received the Miss Rodeo Arkansas contest in Springdale. Both contests are held simultaneously during the first four days of July, annually. Each year has been a new and challenging experience. Stephanie and I have always enjoyed those four days, especially with our friends, Pat and Melinda Hutter. What fun we've had as a family with all our rodeo associated friends.

Then there's no way we could live this close to Beaver Lake and not remember our camping and boating experiences with family and friends. How lucky we are to have such excellent facilities so close to home.

Such an accumulation of things have occurred since we've been in Springdale. Of course, the love of our church, First United Methodist, and the fellowship we share is unsurpassable, whether it's being UMY sponsers, teaching Sunday School, serving on Family Life Commission, or attending Schneider Sunday School Class, so many things have happened to assist our family in Christian love and support. Thanks to the people of First United Methodist Church, from the Tatmans.

Mike is from a family of five. Parents: Paul Allen Tatman and Johnnie Pearl Ford Tatman. At the time of this writing, October, 1988, Paul is deceased (1972) and Johnnie is remarried to L. L. (Buddy) Lovell. One brother, James Wilburn Tatman, a Texas State Trooper, and wife Becky, live in Mt. Pleasant, Texas. They have two children, Wade Allen and Leslie Ann. Another brother, Richard Sherman Tatman, a Coal Fired Power Plant Instrument Specialist, and wife Wynne, live in St. Augustine, Florida. They have one son, John Allen and one daughter, Lara Joelle.

At present, my family consists of, my mother, Gracie Nell Stephenson Hastings, who lives in Springdale at age 85. She still helps some in the jewelry store and graciously prepares great meals for us during our busy times. My father, William Robert Hastings, Sr., deceased July, 1975. One sister, Dorthy June Sample, of Springdale, is married to Max Sample, who is retired from First National Bank of Springdale. They have three children, Pamela Sample Sommers, Jerry Lee and Michael Dean. My brother, Judge William Robert Hastings, Jr., and wife Vivian, live in Searcy, Arkansas. They have two daughters, Linda Sue Hastings Davis and Teryl Ann Hastings Harris.

As time moves forward, things always change, however nothing will ever change the love of a family.

Our family found a "home" in Springdale, Arkansas, Washington County, a place none other can equal. Note: See Tatman's Jewelry in the business section of this book.

Albert Walter Thomas

Albert Thomas came to Fayetteville in 1975 to begin a Master's degree in Piano Performance at the University of Arkansas. He had recently completed his Bachelor's degree at Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama. He taught Class Piano in the Music Department, and worked as a quality control officer at Baldwin Piano and Organ Company during hours away from the University. He worked on several projects with Dr. John Cowell, studied piano, organ, and composition. Among these projects was the performance of the Cowell composition "Promenades" for Cowell as conductor of the North Arkansas Symphony Orchestra. There were also several seasons in which Mr. Thomas performed as assistant organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, with Dr. Cowell conducting choral and orchestral ensembles; Mr. Thomas was also a scholarship bass singer in the choir.

In July, 1978, he married Janie Lee Bartlett. Upon completion of the Master's program, they moved to Compton and started a piano studio and piano tuning business. In 1982 they added a piano sales business, carrying Kohler, Young Chang, and used and rebuilt pianos. In 1985, dissatisfied with the increasing quality problems in the new pianos, Mr. Thomas received a major series of contracts for regulation and repair of University of Arkansas pianos and began phasing out of the new piano sales business. During the years in Harrison, two wonderful daughters were born in spite of dangerous medical problems: Felicia Jannette in 1981, and Gilia Verna in 1983. They are good students at the Montessori School, and great lovers of ballet, reading and trips to the Bartlett farm.

Janie Lee Bartlett was born at the Boone County Hospital on October 24, 1956; her father is Vernie Lee Bartlett, an award-winning rural Presbyterian minister, and her mother is Marjorie Kiddoo Bartlett, office manager for the family farm, and pianist at churches where Mr. Bartlett served as pastor. Janie has a degree in Domestic Animal Biology and Agriculture Business from the University of Arkansas, and additional courses in education. Formerly the Christian Education Director of First Presbyterian Church in Harrison, Arkansas, and the office manager for Thomas Piano Company, there, she began in 1986 to manage the office at the Montessori Children's School of Fayetteville. Continuing to keep accounts for Thomas Enterprises, she also began to work part-time as a psychological counselor at Habberton House, a branch of Ozark Guidance Center specializing in turning-around the lives of mentally and physically abused teenagers, to circumvent the necessity of totally-confining them to the state mental hospital. She is very successful in these endeavors, both from natural talent and from having worked with her father from an early age; as a rural pastor he was also an educator and a masterful psychologist.

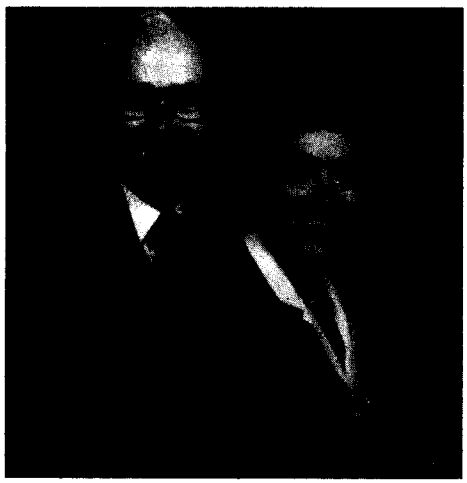
Walter L. Turnbow

Walter Lee Turnbow was born in Russellville, Arkansas May 26, 1924 the son of James Walter and Florence Colburn Turnbow. His Paternal great-grandfather, John Butler Turnbow, Sr. was amomg the earlist settlers in Pope County, Arkansas. His maternal great-grandmother, Murry Margaret Holledger (Colburn), was the first white child born in Russellville, Arkansas.

Walter L. and Clara Hubach Turnbow Wedding - 1951.

Teresa Turnbow Dombrowski and daughter, Kimberly Elizabeth Dombrowski - 1987



Walter L. and Clara Hubach Turnbow - 1983

Turnbow lived in Russellville until the death of his father in 1940 when he moved to Bentonville, Arkansas to attend high school and make his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mace D. and Walcie Turnbow Howell. He was elected president of the student body his senior year and graduated there in 1942. While attending high school, he worked in the Dixie Bell Cafe and the Kroger Grocery Store. Upon graduation, he was employed by Putman Clothing Store and worked there until he entered the Army Air Force in January 1943.

After receiving training to Texas, California and Arizona, Turnbow was transferred to the 391st Bomb Squadron, 34th Bomb Group, 8th Air Force to be stationed at Mendleshom near Ipswich, England. While there, the war in Europe ended and the group was reassigned to serve in Okinawa and shipped back to the United States with a thirty day leave-in-transit before being shipped on to Okinawa. Since his parents were not living and his only brother, James Ward Turnbow, was still in the South Pacific with the Marine Raiders, he called his sister to tell her that he would be in Springdale in a few days to spend his leave. He arrived in Springdale the night of V-J Day in 1945. When he went to his sister's house, he found it unlocked with all of the lights on. There was a note on the kitchen table stating that they had gone to the Methodist Church to give thanks for the end of the war and to pray for the safe return of their brother.

Turnbow's leave was extended, orders for Okinawa cancelled, and he received his honorable discharge at Fort Chaffee in October 1945. He entered the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville the following January where he graduated in 1949 with a BSBA degree. During the summer of 1948, Joe M. Steele, owner of Steele Canning Company, contacted him to work during the summer vacation. Turnbow accepted this employment and at the end of the summer, he was asked to work whatever time he was not in school the following year and then to come to work full-time. This was the beginning of a close business and personal relationship between Steele and Turnbow which continued until Steele's death in 1976.

Clara Elizabeth Hubach accepted a position as business manager with the Springdale School System upon her graduation from Arkansas State Teacher College (now University of Central Arkansas) at age 19 in 1950. Shortly after coming to Springdale, she and Turnbow met, began to date, and were married on November 22, 1951. They chose the First Baptist Church, Judsonia, Arkansas, the home of her parents, George J. and Beulah Walmsley Hubach, as the site of their marriage.

Clara resigned from her position with the school system at the end of the school term in 1952 to devote her time to being a homemaker. Their first daughter, Teresa (Terri), was born

Dr. Karen Turnbow - 1987

Turnbow Home - Christmas 1986. 1514 Circle Drive, Springdale (constructed 1959)

August 12, 1952. Their second daughter, Karen, was born June 30, 1955. During the time her daughters were growing up, Clara was active in the Parent-Teacher Association for fifteen years and devoted nine years to the Girl Scouts as a troop leader and later as City Chairman for the Scouts in Springdale. During this same period of time, she became interested in the American Red Cross Blood Program. For the past thirty-two years, she has worked on this program and is presently on the Board of the Washington County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Teresa and Karen were educated in the Springdale Public Schools. Both were honor graduates of Springdale High School with Karen being valedictorian of her class. Both were honor graduates of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. Teresa graduated with a BA in political science, then received a masters in Spanish, and became a teacher at Springdale. Karen majored in psycholoy and received her doctorate. She interned at the University of Alabama, Birmington and is a clinical psychologist practicing at Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Teresa married Ronald R. Dombrowski on March 17, 1884. They have one daughter, Kimberly Elizabeth, who was born June 19, 1985.

After beginning work at Steele Canning Company in 1948 in traffic, Turnbow worked in sales and production, and in 1958 he was named Vice President and General Manager. In the early sixties, he purchased the rights for Steele Canning Company to use the "Popeye" trademark on spinach which enabled them to gain international distribution on this product. He became president of Steele Canning Company July 1, 1971 when the Steele interest in the company was sold to Pioneer Foods, Inc. He served in this capacity until June 30, 1975 when he resigned in order to again be associated with Joe M. Steele as president of Steele, Inc. This company managed the Steele interests in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Georgia. He continued in this position following Steele's death in 1976 as executor of the estate until final distribution of the estate was made in 1984.

Turnbow became associated with the First State Bank, Springdale in 1972 as a director. In 1976, he was elected Vice Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and in 1983, he was elected Chairman of the Board and is presently serving in that position.

Throughout the time, Turnbow has resided in Springdale, he has worked to improve the quality of life in the community. He served eight years on the Springdale School Board and is presently serving his second nine-year term of the State Board of Education. As chairman of the state board in 1984, he was instrumental in getting approval for new, improved educational standards for the state. As a political independent, he has been active in working on the campaigns for candidates for both parties on a local, state and national level. He was honored in 1981 by the University of Arkansas by induction into the honor society of agriculture, Gamma Sigma Delta. He was honored in 1985 by the Springdale Chamber of Commerce award for outstanding civic service and leadership and in 1986 by the Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce for exceptional accomplishment in the community development program. He has contributed through the years with service to the following organizations: First United Methodist Church: Board Member, Chairman, Finance Committee. Past Treasurer Church Foundation. Past Chairman. Commission on Education and Church School Superintendant. Ozark Food Processors Association: Director Emeritus and Past President. National Food Processors Association: Past Director. State Board of Education: Member and Past Chairman. Springdale School Board: Past President. Springdale Water & Sewer Commission: Chairman. Beaver Water Commission: Vice Chairman. Springdale Memorial Hospital: Member, Board of Trustees. Springdale Industrial Commission: Secretary-Treasurer. State Chamber of Commerce: Past Director. Springdale Chamber of Commerce: Director, Past President. University of Arkansas, Agricultural Development Council: Director. Springdale Rotary Club: Member.

James Walter Tweedy

James Walter Tweedy was born on Baldwin Creek a mile from St. Paul, Arkansas August 1, 1884 on a farm that had been homesteaded by his grandfather, William G. Tweedy and later inherited by his father, William M. Tweedy. From early childhood, he was called by his middle name, Walter and later only as Tweedy. His birthplace is still owned and occupied by a niece and nephew, children of his younger sister, Bertha Tweedy Hooper.

Tweedy attended school in St. Paul, where the three R's were stressed and with special emphasis on penmanship. His father was named Postmaster of St. Paul when Republican McKinley was President and Walter became his assistant, resigning in May 1908 to join his older brother, George in buying Mena Mercantile Company at Mena, Arkansas.

Tweedy had courted Maggie Alma Sweitzer of St. Paul and secretly married her March 18, 1908. Maggie had been compositor (type-setter) for the Mountain Air newspaper for about three years and had also relieved the owner, Mr. Shinn on the hand-press. They were married at her home with only her parents and the J. P., George W. Prater present.

Following wedding announcement, Walter and Maggie moved to Mena, Arkansas, where he and George operated Mena Mercantile until the beginning of the first World War and sold it to a partnership that included the father of Chester Lauck, the "Lum" of the Lum and Abner team. After the sale, Walter worked for Eugene Goff whose son, Norris later became the "Abner" of the team. Maggie was so fond of the Goffs that she named a later son Norris Eugene. The Ralph Goffs later moved to Fayetteville and entered the grocery business.

The Tweedys lived in Mena until 1917 and had three sons and one daughter there and later, two more sons. In May 1917, Tweedy chartered a boxcar from K. C. S. Railroad for the move to Fayetteville. He soon bought a bowling alley business a half-block north of the square on Block Street, tried another venture or two, worked at Brower's Mill and performed some carpenter work at the new Western Methodist Assembly on Mt. Sequoyah. Due to his experience in the mercantile business, he was selected to operate the general store known as Fayetteville Mercantile at Cass, Arkansas.

The Black Mountain and Eastern Railroad was built in 1915 over twenty-nine mountainous miles from the Frisco branch at Combs, in Madison County to Cass in Franklin County. In 1916, the name was changed to Combs, Cass and Eastern; stock was divided among Jay Fulbright (Senator Bill's father) with 132 shares, J. H. Phipps with 82 shares and W. J. Reynolds with 26 shares. Untold millions of dollars worth of virgin hardwood timber was moved over the railroad destined to world markets; Jay Fulbright owned much of the land and timber in the Cass area and also owned Fayetteville Mercantile Company. The move from Fayetteville to Cass was an exciting one via the rarely operated chair car on the railroad, but not nearly as exciting as the return trip about eighteen months later. This time, we had only a flat car with some wooden framework to hold furniture, parents and six kids, one of which was a baby. While only 5-years-old, I still recall the spectacular views of the four or more big, wooden trestles up to one-hundred feet high and one that was a quarter-mile long; the water falls along the sides of the track. Mama barely survived all the excitement that the kids enjoyed.

The experiences in Cass were the cause of vivid memories. Daddy loved to fly-fish and when he had time and in favorable weather, he would wade down Faines Creek to Mulberry River and return with fish for breakfast. Our "company" house was in a log yard next to the general store. One day, while looking out a window, I saw a man ride up on a horse, shoot another man in the leg causing him to fall off the porch. I got to the store in time to see Daddy cleaning and patching the wound. The constant activity of the mules in the log yard was always interesting. The youngest of the family was born in Cass with the aid of a mid-wife, a Mrs. Parker; the doctor from Ozark was riding his horse on another birth mission. Daddy rode horseback to St. Paul to visit his ailing father, who died in 1925 after Walter was back in Fayetteville.

After arriving back in Fayetteville, we took a taxi (two trips) in the rain; the taxi was a Model T Ford touring car with storm curtains and operated by Jeff Amos. Daddy had rented this brand new bi-level house at the east end of Lafayette Street from a Mr. Kennard. While there, the Assembly Road was being built and blasting caused showers of dirt and rock to hit the roof. This was bordered on the east by woods extending to the Assembly Road and Mt. Sequoyah. There was a small creek nearby and we dammed it for a wading pool. One day, we slipped on two half-gallon fruit jars filled with "moonshine" whiskey concealed in our pool. This gave us answers as to why frequent visitors passed our house and went into the woods.

About 1926, we moved to a house a block north that Daddy had arranged to buy and finally got a deed from W. G. Barron in 1929. It was at the junction of Maple Street and Assembly Road and on a short street that was later called Tanglewood Drive. There was enough land for a large garden, a cow and chickens. This was the family home until Mama sold it in 1947 to W. H. Thompson. At the time we moved in, there was no city water, sewer or electricity, and the bathroom was two-hundred feet behind the house. Water was provided by a large cistern at the back door where rain water was filtered through charcoal; it later caved in and had to be filled. In the course of time, Daddy planned and supervised the complete modernization of the house and the construction of a double garage, with the greater portion of the work performed by the boys, mostly by Jim, Jr.; the house still stands and is occupied, although it was remodeled and changed to some extent. Our neighbors on the south side were the E. M. Murphy family, of which Bill the attorney was a member. Across Maple Street was Cecil Brown, later Mrs. Otis Vaughn, who was a long-time school teacher in rural Springdale and at other points in the area. This house holds many memories. Arkansas Western Gas Company brought its first service to Fayetteville down Maple Street alongside this house and built a control station just a block west. We later had natural gas to replace the coal and wood-burning heater and range. Regardless of the type of fuel, Mama would bake a dozen loaves of bread and pans of cinnamon rolls each week; and pies, cakes and biscuits were baked almost daily. The cellar held bushels of potatoes and hundreds of quarts of home-canned fruits, vegetables and preserves, some of which came from our own garden or picked from the hillside or bought from Jack Sweetser and others.

We made frequent trips to St. Paul, our parents home town. After traveling over very rough roads, fording streams and through some farmers' fields, Daddy would finally get us to the destinations safely in the Hupmobile or Packard. We would visit with Aunt Kate Gilstrap, her husband Jim Gilstrap and son Jake, sometimes with Jim's parents across the street, with Grandpa Tweedy and Aunt Bertha Hooper and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tweedy in back of their 3 daughters - Patricia, Anne Kathryn and Helen.

In 1927, Daddy received a call from Washington School that I needed medical attention. I was the catcher in a recess softball game. The pitcher bounced the ball to the plate and as I advanced to retrieve it on the first bounce, the batter, Leonard Keown struck at it and hit me in the right forehead with the bat. School people gave me first aid and a large wad of cotton to catch the blood. When I got home, Mama took one look and sent us to see Dr. Gregg, who took eight stitches and slipped a fifty-cent coin in my shirt pocket.

In other minor emergencies, Lorraine hit Paul in the head with an axe, Jim broke an arm, Norris fell and exposed his kneecap and I cut part of Paul's finger off with the lawn mower.

In 1929, H. L. Leathers, D. D. S. sold Daddy a 1926 Packard at a bargain price. it had enough room between the front and back seats for a bench to carry extra passengers; it was a touring car with storm curtains. Jim let me drive it at age 13, which was quite a thrill. One day, Daddy stopped in front of the garage, passengers exited but someone left the back door open and the door was ripped off as the car was driven into the garage. About that time, Bill had a full-time job and had bought a new Dodge Coupe, which he parked on the slope in front of the garage; unattended, it backed down the hill, struck a small elm tree, which eased it over a four-foot bank without a scratch.

Men's Store on Dickson Street and at Emil Sonneman's Smoke Shop in the Palace Theatre. Jim delivered ice as Waddy Elkins' helper during the summer with mules and wagon for Fayetteville Ice Company; Lorraine was a clerk at F. W. Woolworth; Paul and Gerald delivered the Fayetteville Daily Democrat and Norris had chores at home. Daddy was never without work and for a number of years had paid taxes and helped with expenses on the old home farm at St. Paul. In 1933, he gave up this generous undertaking and gave his part of the farm to his brother, George, who arranged for the other heirs to deed it to their younger sister who was living there.

After returning from Cass in 1922, Daddy continued work for Fayetteville Mercantile in Fayetteville with Jim Keeney and Frank Gray. He kept the books and had use of a Model T Ford Roadster for business. The Fulbrights had combined their Coca-Cola franchise with Crystal Ice Company and Fulbright Ice Cream and constructed a new rock building on West Street for the combined operations. Daddy was moved into the new building as bookkeeper and assistant manager under Earl Page. It was a busy place, making tons and tons of ice, many flavors of soft drinks and delicious ice cream under direction of Raymond Shaffer.

Later, Fulbrights sold the ice and ice cream business, retaining Coca-Cola and beer franchises and moved into a newly-constructed brick building on Dickson Street. Daddy continued to work at this location until his death in 1944 from ulcered colitis in 1944 at the age of 59. He is buried in Fairview Cemetery in Fayetteville, where his widow was also buried in 1962.

James Walter Tweedy was a great influence upon his and Maggie's children, although he worked long hours and a long week. Discipline was so strict from both parents that today it would be called "child abuse" for using limber switches and a razor strap. Since an example is the greatest gift a person can bestow, we can remember and give thanks for his loyalty and dedication to his job, his love and respect for everyone, his generosity, his kind and gentle nature, his sobriety, his ability to use either hand equally well and his disdain for profanity, which he said was used only by those too ignorant to otherwise express themselves.

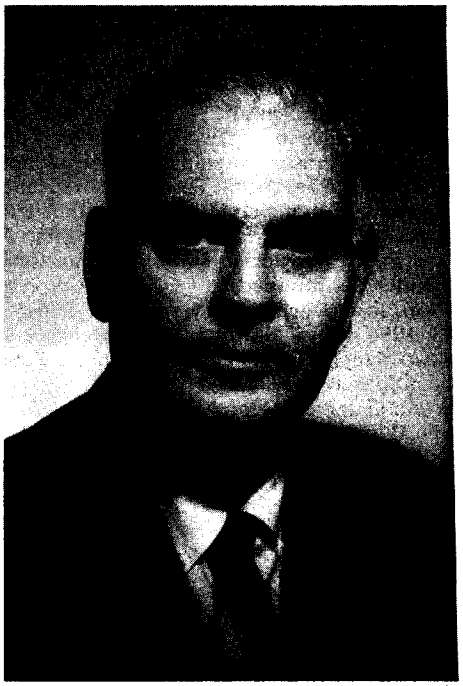
George Clifton Wade

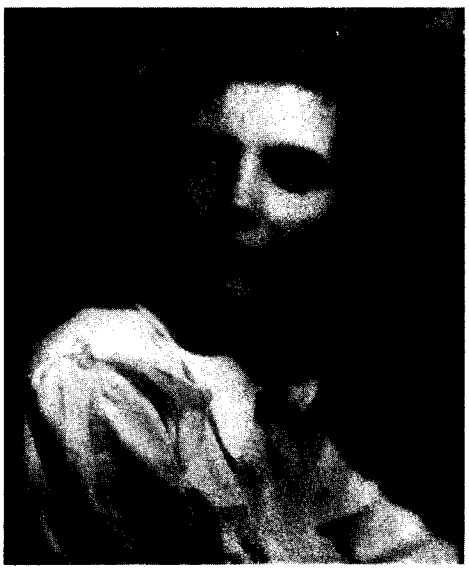
George Clifton Wade, affectionately and widely known as "Deacon" Wade, son of Rev. H. Lynn Wade and Sallie Tyler Clifton Wade, was born in Arkansas City, Arkansas, on January 25, 1910. His father, a well known preacher and leader, served Methodist churches in Arkansas City, Bigelow, Clarksville, Batesville, Cotton Plant, Patterson, McClelland, Fayetteville, and Augusta, Arkansas. A devoted member of the Methodist denomination, " Deacon" served as trustee of the Central United Church Board, the North Arkansas Conference, and the Western Methodist Assembly on Mt. Sequoyah.

Sally Tyler Clifton Wade, wife of Rev. Henry Lynn Wade.

He attended public schools in Arkansas, graduated from Fayetteville High School in 1926 where he was on the Fayetteville High School football team, delivered groceries for



Clifton Wade



Mary Sue Wade Colwell

Winchester's Grocery which was on the corner of School and Dickson Streets, drove the hearse for Moore's Funeral Home and had a rural paper route delivering newspapers around the Prairie Grove area for a daily newspaper "Scotty Taylor" published, and received his Bachelor of Arts and Law degree from the University of Arkansas. While attending the university, his aptitude for leadership matured. Among his extra curricular activities were: Freshman Football Team 1927-28; Business Manager of Arkansas Traveler 1930-31; Who's Who; Lambda Chi Alpha Social Fraternity; Blue Key; and Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity. On June 4, 1961, at the 86th annual spring commencement ceremonies on the Fayetteville campus, the distinguished alumnus citation bestowed upon him reads: ". . .. one of the State's most effective champions of higher education. . .., an enthusiastic supporter of the university. . .., on many occasions he has volunteered his services to interpret the university's needs to the people of Arkansas. This he has done with noteworthy clarity and effectiveness."

He was married on December 28, 1928, to Miss Vera Drake, daughter of Dr. N. F. Drake, State Geologist of Arkansas, educator, author, public benefactor, and a distinguished citizen of Fayetteville, and Mary Eleanor Shockley, a Methodist missionary to China. Two children were born to the marriage of "Deacon" and Vera Wade: Mary Sue Wade Colwell and Lynn Fields Wade.

"Deacon" opened his law office in Fayetteville in 1932, and at the time of his retirement was senior partner of the law firm of Wade, McAllister, Wade & Burke. He was a former member of the Arkansas Board of Law Examiners, a past president of the Washington County Bar Association, and a past member of the Executive Committee of the Arkansas Bar Association. He was a member of the American Bar Association and the American Judicature Society. He served as general counsel for Arkansas Western Gas Company, Ozarks Electric Cooperative Corporation, McIlroy Bank, Fayetteville Broadcasting Company and Trans-Video Corporation of Arkansas. He was United States Commissioner from 1933 to 1955. During World War II he served four and on-half years with the Air Force, was awarded the Legion of Merit and Commendation Medals, and was honorably discharged with the rank of Major.

Though he was an able and distinguished lawyer, his time and talents spanned the entire spectrum of human affairs. He loved to hunt and fish and on occasion found time to play a round of golf. His interest in the welfare of his community, state, and nation inevitably led him into the political arena where he became one of Northwest Arkansas' most respected and influential advocates of his time. He served four terms in the Arkansas House of Representative, and four terms in the State Senate. He served on numerous legislative committees and most notably as a member or alternate of the powerful Legislative Council which also acted as the Joint Budget Committee from its initial formation in 1947. (This committee reviewed all state budgets and made special studies requested by the Legislature.) In 1961 he was named President Pro Tempore of the State Senate making him third in the order to succession to the office of Governor. His hometown newspaper, the Northwest Arkansas Times, editorialized: "The election of Clifton Wade of Fayetteville as President Pro Tem of the Arkansas State Senate is an honor for this part of the state as well as for the Senator. Long influential in state political circles, Mr. Wade has wide knowledge of legislative procedure. He has been, and is, a member of Assembly organizations which play a large part in the presentation of legislation. His selection by fellow senators, over others seeking the office, shows the high esteem in which he is held by members of the legislative body."

The Senator's career in the legislature was accentuated by his unusual charm, grace and wit. He was keen of mind and spirit. His humble yet engaging personality was the hallmark of his success. He was respected by friend and foe alike. He always had time for the warm handshake, the friendly word — whether he had won or lost. He championed the cause of honesty, good morals, and good government, and objectivity for himself as well as for those with whom he communicated. He was loyal to his friends; he was trustworthy and he expected and received trustworthiness. The Arkansas press speculated that he would be Governor Faubus' principal contender for governor. Others urged him to oppose Congressman James W. Trimble, but Senator Wade was not a political opportunist.

Although a lifelong Democrat, and three time (1952, 1956 and 1960) a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, he was more a statesman than a politician, and he earned the respect of both Republicans and Democrats alike. He was appointed by Democratic Governors Sid McMath, Francis Cherry, and Orval Faubus, and by Republican Winthrop Rockefeller to the Southern Regional Education Board and the Legislative Advisory Council of the Southern Governors' Conference, then composed of two members from the legislatures of sixteen southern states.

He served as president of the Southern Regional Education Board and as Chairman of its Legislative Advisory Council. He was a member of the National Legislative Leader's Conference which was composed of legislative leaders from the fifty states.

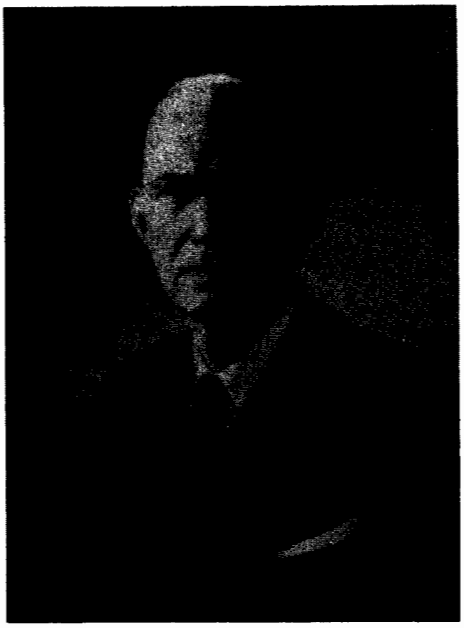
Writing in her newspaper column entitled, "As I See It", in the Fayetteville Daily Democrat, now the Northwest Arkansas Times, Mrs. Roberta Fulbright, mother of former United States Senator, J. William Fulbright, expressed the feelings of the northwest Arkansas community for the legislative efforts of Mr. Wade in these words: "I am constrained to be one of the community to express my great appreciation of the wise and expedient manner in which the university budget bill was put through both the House of Representatives and Senate last week.



We feel that it demonstrated how thoroughly and University has won its place in the state. . .a very prominent financier and citizen said so feelingly that he was glad the recurring efforts of some years back to move the University are over. . .our own Rep. Clifton Wade merits an especially large bouquet from this area. He labored with wisdom and diligence and is highly esteemed. . ."

Senator Wade's efforts in the development of higher education in the south, and particularly at the University of Arkansas, were widely acclaimed. Appreciation for his work in behalf of the university was expressed in the following statement issued by the Board of Trustees of the University: "The Board of Trustee members are highly appreciative of the ability and services of Clifton Wade in behalf of the University and the program as presented to the House of Representatives. We feel the University is the responsibility of each and every member of the House as it is of Mr. Wade's, but it is only natural that someone has to assume the leadership and the responsibility. Mr. Wade has no official connection with the University. He receives no remuneration. He is just an interested citizen and we hope the state as well as this community appreciated the fact that he is carrying a responsibility for all of us."

Senator Wade was a founder and member of the Board of Directors and former Secretary of the Fayetteville Country Club. He was also a member of the Board of Directors of the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce for twelve years, and on three occasions served as its President. Since 1940 he was a member of the Board of Directors of the McIlroy Bank, Fayetteville, Arkansas, and was Chairman Emeritus of the Board at the time of his death. He was a member of the Fayetteville Lions Club, Am-Vets, 40 & 8, Elks Club, and American Legion, having served the Legion both as local and state Judge Advocate and as a member of the State Executive Committee. He maintained a membership in the Washington County Historical Society, Razorback and Wild Hog Clubs, and the American Red Cross, having served the Red Cross as Washington County Chairman. He also served as a member of the Board of Trustees of A. M. & N. College in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

In 1941 the Fayetteville Junior Chamber of Commerce gave him their "Outstanding Young Man Award" for distinguished service to his community. An appreciation award from the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce accurately characterized the recipient as ". . .good citizen, who has done more for his community than most men, and who deserves special citation for his unselfish work."

Senator Wade was among the founders of the Fayetteville

Industrial Foundation organized for the purpose of procuring new industries in the northwest Arkansas area. (He served as a director of the foundation during the period when Fayetteville experienced its most rapid industrial growth.)

He was chosen as a member of the Citizens Committee for the planning of major improvements to the water and sewer systems of the City of Fayetteville; represented the City of Fayetteville, and the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce at appearances before the Civil Aeronautics Administration; assisted in the preparation and presentation of extensive briefs in support of scheduled air service for the City of Fayetteville, aided greatly in securing initial regularly scheduled commercial air service for northwest Arkansas; and was instrumental in helping to obtain from the United State Government the site for the present location of the Washington General Hospital. He maintained continued interest in the Washington General Hospital, served as a member of the Building Commission which planned and promoted the construction of the original hospital building and substantial additions thereto, and served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Washington General Hospital, later to be named Washington Regional Medical Center.

He was among the original sponsors of the Prairie Grove Battlefield Commission commemorating the Civil War Battle of Prairie Grove and participated in the early development of Devil's Den State Park.

During the summer of 1963, he was chosen as one of four diplomatic delegates to represent the Government of the United States at a sixty-three nation international conference in Tokyo, Japan. At the close of the conference, an agreement on the handling of criminal offenses and certain other acts committed onboard aircraft was executed by representatives of forty nations.

More recently, he was a director of the Western Arkansas Development Association, an organization interested in procuring a four lane highway from Kansas City, Missouri, to New Orleans, Louisiana, along the western boundary of the state.

Few men gave more freely of their time and energy, or accomplished more for northwest Arkansas than this man. As a member of the Arkansas General Assembly, he was known among his colleagues for his leadership as a stateman. His integrity, morality and honesty were impeccable. His advice and counsel were highly respected by both lawyer and layman alike. Although always engaged in a heavy schedule, he was never too engrossed to lend a sympathetic ear to the needs of his fellowmen. He was blessed with a rare quality of modesty not too often found in a person of his civic stature. Handsome in appearance, his warm personality, high integrity, love for people, brought him friends whose attachments were lasting and unwavering. He was a charitable man and often gave his time, talent, and money for worth causes. He was a devoted husband, father and grandfather.

On March 9, 1964, he sustained serious injuries in an automobile accident from which he never recovered. Tragically and ironically this unfortunate mishap occurred when he was enroute home from Tulsa, Oklahoma, where he had successfully negotiated with the nationally famous architect, Edward Durell Stone, for the now completed gift to the State of Arkansas of the Stone Homeplace on West Center Street in Fayetteville for historical preservation. In his last public announcement, Senator Wade reluctantly stated that he would not seek reelection to public office, saying: "I only trust that I have at all times served you and our institutions in a manner which has been for the best interest of our fine area." To which we might now add a final: "Well done, our good and faithful servant, friend and colleague at the Bar."

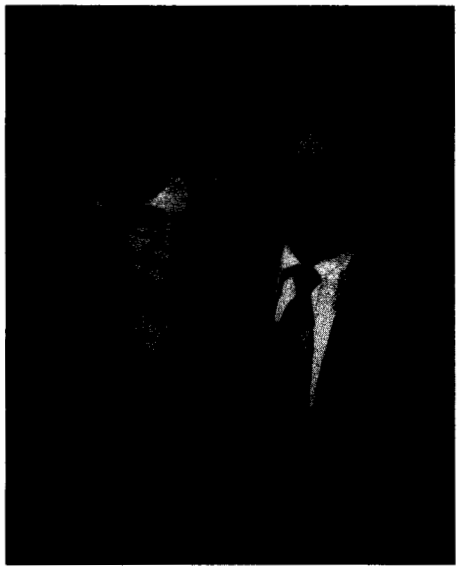
Clark Walker

Clark Walker was born in Seligman, Missouri, October 7, 1911. He was born upstairs over his dad's drug store. The family's living quarters were there. His dad was Harvey Allen Walker. His mother was Sallie McRay Walker. The other children were Haskell, Frieda and Robert. Harvey and Sallie lived in Indian Territory, Oklahoma when Haskell was born. Harvey was a medical doctor there, but when they came to Seligman, Missouri in about 1905, he quit practicing medicine, and was a pharmacist in his drug store for several years. Frieda, Clark, and Robert were born there.



Clark and Era Walker at 50th Wedding Anniversary in 1980.

Janice and Sally Walker in 1942.

In 1919 they moved to Eureka Springs, Arkansas, for a year, then to a farm near Seligman, Missouri for a year, then back to Seligman in 1921. About this time Clark was very bad to take things apart, like clocks, etc., to see how they were made, then he couldn't put them back together.

In 1925 they moved to Fayetteville so Frieda could go to the

In order of height, Haskell, Frieda, Clark and little Robert about 1915.

University of Arkansas. Haskell was married and stayed in Seligman. They bought the Mountain Inn Hotel and ran it. While there, Clark saw every movie at the Ozark, Palace and Royal theaters. He went first year of high school to Fayetteville High.

In 1926 they bought an apple and grape farm near Springdale and moved there. Clark and Robert went to high school in Springdale. In the fall of 1928, Clark started dating Era Watson. They graduated from high school together in 1929, then went to the University of Arkansas together. Clark drove his car and took a load of students as times were getting pretty hard. They paid him $2.50 per week.

In May, 1930, Clark and Era went to Westville, Oklahoma and got married. Two good friends, Opal Roberts and Pauline Graham, went with them. They stayed in school, then the depression came and Era quit and taught school at Langley, east of Fayetteville. Later Clark worked at Springdale Motor Company filling station for $50.00 a month when they had the money to pay him. This was mid-depression period and very few people had any money. Clark and Era rented a five room house on Center Street (Springdale) for $12.50 a month. Era taught school at Peaceful Valley, Spring Creek, Bethel, Hickory Creek, Oak Grove and Springdale. Clark worked at the Veteran's Hospital at Fayetteville for five years, then went to work at the Post Office where he was a clerk for eighteen years, then assistant postmaster for seven years, and postmaster for five years, then retired in 1969.

In 1940 they built a house on Spring Street in Springdale, where they lived twelve years. They had two blonde girls, Janice and Sally. Era spent most of her time now sewing for them and having birthday parties and taking them to parties. One sad time though, as Era was combing Janice's hair, she noticed a little bug of some kind, then another one. She got one and called Dr. C. P. Sisco and described it to him. He laughed and said, "She has lice". Era cried. You can be sure she didn't have them long.

After the girls were older, Clark and Era got a boat and spent a lot of time with them and their friends at Grand Lake. Beaver Lake was not there then. Clark was a handy man at home - always fixing things and building things. At one time he was a Boy Scout leader. Era worked in the P. T. A. - was president of Central School P. T. A. and high school P. T. A. She also worked in the Methodist Church. She taught Sunday School for many years. She was a Brownie and Girl Scout leader. They built a house in 1952 on West End Street, Springdale, where they have lived the past 35 years.

After the girls were grown, Era got her degree at the University of Arkansas and went back to teaching. In all she taught thirty years. After Clark retired from the Post Office in 1969, he became a real estate salesman, and also worked on the Equalization Board of Washington County.

Their younger daughter, Sally died in 1965, leaving three small children - Debbie, Curtis and David. Clark and Era took the children and raised them. They also helped raise some of Janice's four. Their home was always alive with young people.

In 1973 they built a cabin on Beaver Lake. Clark did most of the work with a little help from Era, Debbie, Curtis and David. It was a place they all enjoyed very much. Clark would pull the kids for hours on skis with his boat. As Era and Clark got older and the kids were gone, they got a pontoon for older people and spent many hours on the lake on it.

In 1980 they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at their home. Many, many people came by, including Governor Bill Clinton.

They are still living in the house they built in 1952, but it is much quieter now. No lively young people with loud, blaring radios and televisions. And that's how it should be, because now it would bother the two people who live there. Janice's children are Scott Sanders, Steve Sanders, Suzanne Sanders and Jeffrey Sanders.

(Editorial Note: Clark Walker passed away in 1988 after his story was written but before the book was published.)

Fred David Watson

Fred Watson was born in Gainesville, Georgia, March 25, 1890. His parents, William Marion Watson and Nancy Ann Elizabeth Hanson Watson, brought him and a sister, Minnie Luvesta, three brothers, Garland Van Buren, James Franklin Arthur and Ernest Marion to Arkansas in 1891. As they left Georgia, Fred's black Nanny went to the train with them carrying Fred and crying because the baby was leaving. He was sickly - she was afraid he would die. They left Georgia because they were about to starve trying to make a living on a worn-out red dirt farm.

First Row: Ewell Stanfield, Will Stanfield, Paul Watson, Marion W., Luke, Nancy holding Ree Stanfield, Fred W. and Garland Watson. Second Row: Ernest Watson, Minnie Stanfield, Arthur, Laura and Lydia Watson - about 1900.

They landed at Durham, Arkansas in December 1891, with four children and $80.00. A brother-in-law, John Cobb, met them in a wagon and took them to the rugged hills and forests of Madison County, on Cobb Creek, near Huntsville.

Fred and Allie Watson and their children; Mildred, Era, Carl and Stanley - about 1942.

They were share croppers for a few years, and then bought some land with a creek running through it. They built a cabin beside the creek where they lived for many years. The creek was just what the boys liked, but they got a lot of spankings for getting wet playing in the water. They built a large barn, a granary and an ash hopper. They made lye soap from the drippings of the hopper.

They cleared some fields and had a large garden. They raised most everything they ate, and the food for their animals.

They and their neighbors built a one-room church house which served as a schoolhouse also. "The Gap", it was called because it was a gap in the surveying. The Watsons were Methodists but the Church was non-denominational.

Fred's Grandfather's families, the David Hansons and David Watsons soon came from Georgia to Arkansas. They all lived in a settlement near each other. Both Grandfathers had been in the Civil War and David Hanson was blind and deaf due to the war.

Marion and Nancy had three more children after coming to Arkansas, Paul, Luther and Lee.

Minnie, Garland, Arthur and Ernest married and lived in the same community. Fred married Allie Irene Dyer who was staying with a family in the community.

Allie and Fred lived on nearby rented farms for awhile. They had Era and Carl very soon. Era remembers one day she and Carl awakened from their naps and their mother, Allie, was gone. They looked everywhere, even in a shallow spring. As they were looking in the spring, a woman came by on a horse, she assured them their mother was not lost. She soon came with some quilting frames she had borrowed from a neighbor.

Before Fred and Allie's third child, Mildred, was born in 1916, they bought a farm, "The Sutton Place". They both worked hard trying to make a living but it was slim. Fred taught school to help. He would leave on Monday morning and come back on Friday afternoon. One Monday, he was leaving and Era was crying, Carl, about 4-years-old, said, "Let him go, Sis, it don't seem like we've got much money". It was while they lived here that Era and Carl first heard the tale of "Cyclops" and other Greek Mythology tales. They would sit around the fireplace and shell corn to take to the mill and Fred would tell them the tales.

World War I gave his family a great scare. It looked as if Fred was going to war but he was never called.

He and his family moved to Huntsville in 1918. He and Tom Hargis and George Shepherd got the first Ford Agency there. They built a building on the northeast corner of the square, and had a good business for several years. Their cars came into Springdale from Kansas City, by train, party disassembled. It was no trouble to get drivers to go with them to drive them to Huntsville. The citizens of Huntsville always knew when the new Fords were coming in because the drivers started blowing the horns a mile or two before they got there, and blew them until they stopped at the garage.

In 1919, Fred and Allie's fourth and last child, Stanley, was born. They had a very small house, three rooms and a large back porch, but they had a lot of company. All the country kinfolk came at times, and some stayed and went to school. Finally, Fred had a little room built on to the house. Then Fred's mother moved in with them. His father had died in 1918.

Fred decided he'd like to be in a bank, so they moved to Elkins, Arkansas for one year, and he was in the bank there. Then he moved to Springdale, Arkansas in 1925 and had the City Mercantile for a few months, then he finally got in the Ford business again, where he stayed until 1969. His sons, Carl and Stanley were in business with him.

Allie did much work in the Methodist Church. She was continually doing things for people who needed help. She was the backbone of Fred's family.

Allie and Fred Watson

During the depression of the early thirties, Fred went broke, in fact, two times . . . but he borrowed money and worked hard and long hours and got back on top again.

Fred was chosen Springdale's Pioneer Citizen of 1960. It is an award made annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Since moving here in 1925, he spent over thirty years serving on the City Council or as Mayor and in his quiet, business-like way helped to bring about numerous City Improvements.

Watson was Springdale's Mayor from 1932-1936 and in addition served as Alderman twenty-seven years. He was honored by his fellow council members for over thirty years service to the city in 1960.

During his thirty years on the City Council, he saw most of the city streets paved, he served as Chairman of the Water Committee when the city water supply was increased several times. He served on the Water & Sewer Commission for eighteen to twenty years and while serving on the building commission, Watson aided in the initial work that produced Murphy Park and the City swimming pool. Just before his last term as Alderman ended in 1959, he watched ground broken for a new City Administration Building and Youth Center. Largely due to his efforts, the City Building and Street Codes were improved.

Fred was also active in Civic and Church activities. He was a member of the Rotary Club and on the Official Board of the First Methodist Church for many years. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He served as the chairman of the Chamber's Highway Committee.

Fred was still active until he was 83-years-old when his health failed.

He was a good father to his four children. He wanted them to get good educations and be able to get along well in this world.

His wife, Allie, died in 1943 after two years illness. He married Hortense Miller in 1945.

Fred had a good long life of 85 years. He died in September 1975.

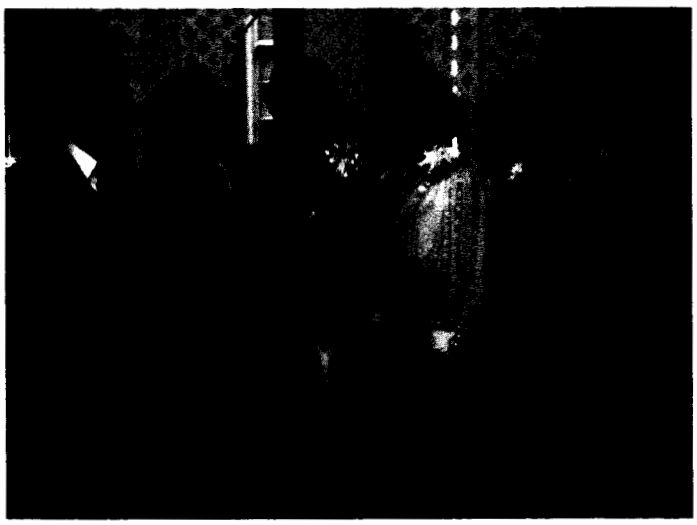
Buell B. Woods

Buell Beverly Woods was born in Huntington, Arkansas, May 27, 1911 to Harry Arthur Woods, Jr. and Josephine Smith Woods. The Woods family were among the early settlers of Arkansas. They came from North Carolina prior to 1856.



The Buell B. Woods and Glen Edward Reed families, made in August 1982 when the Reeds hosted a fiftieth wedding anniversary reception for Buell and Lillian at Central United Methodist Church in Fayetteville. L to R - Buell Woods, Katherine Elizabeth Reed, Lillian Cruse Woods, Glen Edward Reed, Jr., Beverly Woods Reed, Kimberly Carol Reed and Glen Edward Reed.

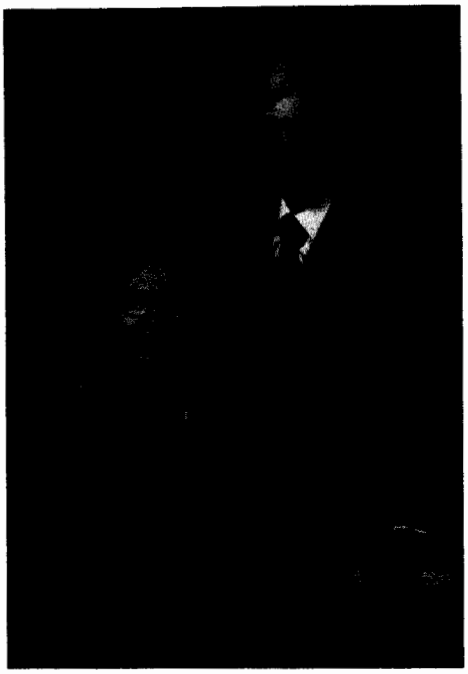
Buell came to Washington County in 1928 to enter the University of Arkansas. He received a BSE degree in the spring of 1932. He married Lillian Elizabeth Cruse in the home of Reverend Ragland. Peggy Rogers Mayes and Lawrence Mayes served as their only attendants.

Buell and Lillian moved to Monroe, Oklahoma where Buell taught Social Studies and coached for two years before returning to Fayetteville where Buell served as principal of the old Leverett Elementary School while completing his Masters Degree. At this same time, Lillian worked at Campbell-Bell Department Store while working toward her degree.

In 1937, Buell accepted a job as Superintendent of Schools at Cove, Arkansas and in 1939, he became Superintendent of Schools at Wilmot, Arkansas. Another promotion in salary came in 1943, when he was hired as County Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Adjustment Agency for Prairie County, Arkansas. Lillian accepted a job working with the Office of Price Administration.

On September 23, 1945, Buell and Lillian received their greatest blessing, the birth of their only child, Beverly. Her birth brought a deeper love to both of them after thirteen childless years.

Buell was one of the first to innovate a Community School Concept in Arkansas and was contacted by the West Fork School Board who pledged their support to the program he recommended. He accepted the position offered him as Superintendent of Schools and remained there for twelve busy, happy years.



Buell and Lillian Woods - August 1982 on their Golden Wedding Anniversary

West Fork years are remembered with fondness because of many good friends and neighbors and many good times in a community that was interested in family and church. Many of the religious pageants were organized and produced by Buell, and he served as state delegate to their church's 16th national assembly in New York City in 1952.

In 1958, Buell became Coordinator of Mathematics for the Fayetteville School System. Buell, as Coordinator of Mathematics and Lillian, as Counselor and Coordinator of Guidance Services perfectly coincided with their daughter, Beverly's continued education at Fayetteville High School and the University.

On August 28, 1964 Beverly became Mrs. Glen Edward Reed at the United Methodist Church in Fayetteville. Their children, Kimberly Carol, born November 29, 1965 and Kathryn Elizabeth, born July 25, 1968 and Glen Edward, Jr. (J. R.), born June 18, 1977 continue to enrich Buell and Lillian's life. Kim is now a senior at Hendrix College and Kathy is a sophomore at Southern Methodist University. J. R. attends school at Siloam Springs where Dr. Beverly Woods Reed is Assistant Superintendent of Schools. Her husband, Glen is a C. P. A. with a business of his own.

Both Buell and Lillian retired in 1976. Retirement, however, did not mean the end of community service and in many ways, their lives became even busier. Buell fished and gardened and maintained an interest in photography and still found time to help the writing committee for the sesqui-centennial project for Arkansas. He helped write "School Days School Days," as long as his health permitted. Lillian served as president of the Washington County Retired Teachers.

Lillian and Buell have been helpmates in every sense of the word in their more than fifty-five years of marriage. In retirement, more than ever, they have enjoyed old and new friends while living at the Butterfield Trail Retirement Facility.

This place of retirement has been particularly rewarding because of Buell's involvement with its planning. They will always be at home to friends at 1923 Joyce Street, Fayetteville, in apartment 176.

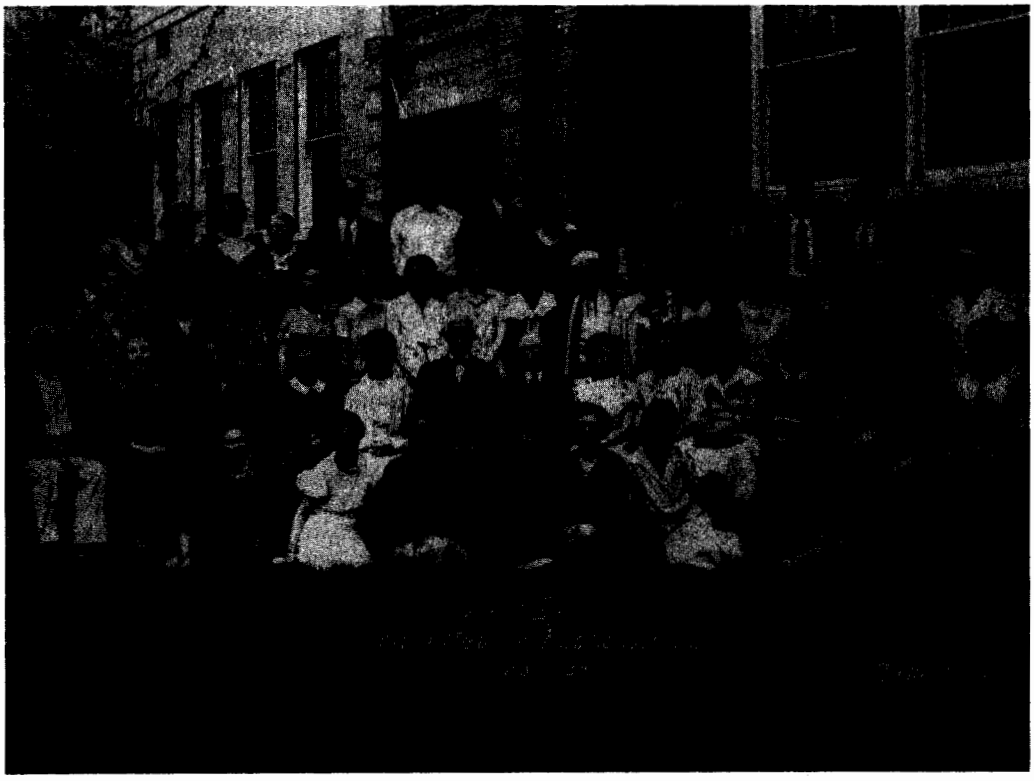
Professional Biographies

Introduction

This section of the book is dedicated to Washington County leaders. Many of the biographies were written by "cornerstone" contributors, who purchased space to honor their ancestors.

The honor conferred here upon these few extends to many other leaders of the past. These men and women stressed the importance of the pursuit of excellence and of dedication to community service. Such leaders serve as role models for the present and the future.



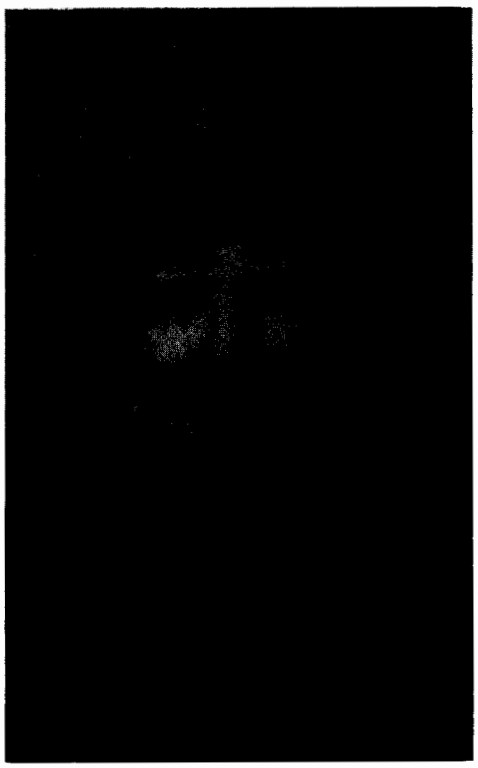
Norma Beasley

Norma Lea Beasley's life is the stuff dreams are made of. Her life could be written in headlines and sold for a movie script: Milkmaid to Millionaire—From Rattle-trap Pickup to Rolls-Royce—Apple Norma Is No Apple Annie—Small Town Girl Takes Dallas for Millions—From Lawyer at 21 to Entrepreneur at 30.

As one of the most written about, most photographed business women of the 80s, Norma Beasley may be all of the above, but she is also a genuinely interested listener, quite approachable and one of the most positive thinkers around.

"I'm living proof that you can do anything you want to do, be whatever you want to be. I don't have time for regrets and even less time for whiners and negative thinkers who can only list reasons why you can't do something. There are no limits to what any one person can achieve except those they impose upon themselves," Norma Beasley said.

Norma Lea Beasley was born on September 6, 1931, the first daughter of Alpha (Alf) and Minnie Parham Beasley, and it has been said of Norma that she could make change in her daddy's fruit and vegetable stand before she started to school.



Norma Beasley

As a child, running a business was as natural to Norma as playing with dolls. In fact, while other little girls played with dolls (including her younger sister, Imogene), Norma was figuring produce weight, planning displays, sorting vegetables and fruit and throwing aside culls to feed the hogs. She was listening and learning when to buy, when to sell, how to cut losses, how and when to expand and, most importantly, never, never to say never or to give up.

As the present owner of a classic Rolls-Royce, Jaguar, Rolls-Royce Corniece, Cadillac, Lincoln Limousine, Chevy Camper and pickup truck, she still has a picture in her mind of herself as a young girl being dropped at school by her dad in a beatup old pickup held together with baling wire.

Six vacation homes do not obliterate the childhood memory of living in a garage-converted two-room house. All the gifts she can afford to lavish on her mother (now in her 80's) don't erase the portrait of her mother at work, seven days a week, in a cotton dress and a worn apron.

"Everyone in the country felt the hard times of the thirties. My parents just didn't allow anything to keep them from doing everything they could to feed and clothe us. I never heard either of them complain about what we didn't have. Hope was about all they had to give us, and I clung to the dream that someday. . .someday," Norma Beasley said.

As one of the youngest graduates of Springdale High School, Norma, at 16, entered the University of Arkansas. Before she received her law degree, there would be many more days of milking cows and writing receipts, but by her senior year she'd made the decision to graduate with honors. She finished first in her law class on oil and gas law and sales law.

"My first day in law school, one professor told us to look around. There were 78 new law students, many were older and attending school on the GI Bill. The professor said, 'Less than one in five of you will make it through law school,'" Norma said.

"There were 17 of the original 78 that made it through. As youngest and the only woman in the class, I don't think I'd have allowed anything or anyone to stop me," she added.

After law school, the dean of law helped her find a job with a Tulsa Oil Company. Norma went right to work in order to save money to move to Texas. She'd been accepted at SMU to do her post-graduate studies.

After obtaining her first job as legal counsel in Tulsa so easily, she wasn't prepared for the resistance she met in Dallas when she went job-hunting.

"The woman with a law degree in the 50s did not find a job easily, particularly, with the oil companies. Times are different now, but I was lucky to find the job I did.

"When I received a job offer from Texas Title Co., for $300 a month, I took it in order to learn the title business. My job included relieving the switchboard receptionist for lunch. I even worked weekends to earn more money," Norma said.

"I worked toward my MBA at night and worked 40 hours a week during the day," Norma said.

The next job offer came from Fidelity Title Co., and allowed her to practice law for a salary of $500 monthly.

She was head of the legal department then and later became Executive Vice-President and general counsel for a wage that most men in positions under her would have turned down.

Teaching is and has always been an important part of Norma's work. For extra income, she taught classes on business law and real estate law two or three nights a week at Dallas College of SMU and invested the "extra" earnings in real estate.

This led to several more teaching jobs for Beasley. She taught at Eastfield Community Colleges and at El Centro, setting up departments to teach real estate courses.

Beasley met Imogene (Jean) Walker, a young accountant, and they formed a partnership (still in effect, today) calling it B & W Investments. It turned out to be the right choice at the right time in Dallas real estate history.

She and Jean would pick up houses in need of some repair for a total cost of $10,000 dollars. They'd hire plumbers and electricians (on weekends Norma could be found with a paint roller in her hand improving her property) and rent the property. Within a few years, when sold, these houses brought six times their original investment.

Then, together, they built title company plants opening the first title and abstract company in Ellis County in 1965. Other counties followed quickly in succession as they expanded. The goal was to have all surrounding Dallas-Metro county companies.

Just being "well off" wasn't enough for Norma. She had been a business woman from age five, and she'd always wanted to own her own business. Being in business for herself (with the law firm of Beasley and Pulliam) wasn't as rewarding as owning corporations.

With the gradual building and adding of companies beginning in 1965, the total had increased to six by 1978. When the opportunity arose (or what she perceived as her "plum" opportunity) to acquire the seventh, she took it. Safeco Title Co., was looking for a firm to represent their Dallas operation. They flew her and her law partner to California.

She flew out not with the thought of representing their Dallas operation but with the intention of purchasing the Dallas operation.

She had done her homework well and had talked with her banker. She made her presentation to the department heads and some of the board of directors, and they all but politely laughed her out of the meeting room.

All the more determined by the resistance the staff showed, she was approached by the chairman of the board during lunch about her intention, and she made an excellent case on her own behalf. He announced his decision to sell the corporation and enjoyed, with her, the open mouths of the other board members and officers. The sale was finalized March 1, 1979.

Beasley managed the Dallas company all the way from its position of last of eleven to among the top three title companies of not only Dallas but in all of Texas. Four of the other seven title companies ranked in the top twenty-five.

Her holdings at present include eight title companies, real estate, a pharmaceutical and chemical company, banks, oil and gas interests along with her original B & W Investments. Norma Beasley had earned her first million by the age of 40 and showed no sign of slowing down.

Beasley has never forgotten her beginnings, and she has made every effort to help other women on their climb out of, if not poverty, positions where they are underpaid. She sponsors scholarships for the needy students as well as the gifted.

She remains as a lecturer and teacher for numerous colleges, for the Dallas Board of Realtors, SMU Business Law and Real Estate Departments.

Nationally acclaimed as a "High Profile" in the Dallas Morning News in 1983 and nationally on the NBC TODAY Show as one of the most outstanding women in America, she was interviewed by Jane Pauley on live national television on August 23, 1984.

She has been recognized for honorariums and awards from schools and organization from The National Women's Economic Alliance Foundation as one of 30 women in America to receive recognition for contributions made to the success of the free enterprise system, to the U of A's "Distinguished Alumni Award" in 1986 and "Distinguished Alumni" from U of A Law School in 1987. She has only recently been made a "Fellow" by the Texas Bar Association.

Listed in such prestigious publications as: Who's Who in Texas, Who's Who of American Women, Who's Who of American Law, Who's Who of Professional and Business, International Directory of Distinguished Leadership and International Biographies, she continues to collect such tributes.

"I love my work. I love being busy. I never plan to retire. My dad taught me well that there's always another challenge, another goal.

When asked if there was anything she would still like to do, Norma replied, "I still haven't bred race horses, and I want to do that. I want a Kentucky Derby winner, and I want to start a new direct sales cosmetic company. I know it's been done, but I can do it better," she concluded.

Norma Beasley is known as a philanthropist who donates scholarship monies to both U of A and SMU. She has also given money for the restoration of U of A's Old Main. Who is this Norma Beasley?

Is Norma Beasley a lecturer, teacher? Or is she the corporate giant who swallows other corporations for lunch? Is Norma Beasley somewhat of an enigma even to herself?

Norma Lea Beasley is not the average woman. Never say never to her. She'll prove you wrong and thank you for the million dollar opportunity.

E. M. Cralley

Dr. Elza Monroe "Monty" Cralley is known best in Arkansas academic circles as an educator, departmental head and administrator at the University of Arkansas for over forty years.

Born in Carmi, Illinois, he earned his bachelor of science degree from McKendree College in Lebanon, Illinois, and obtained his PH. D from the University of Wisconsin.

Before coming to the U of A, Cralley held a position at the University of Wisconsin as assistant in the department of Botany. He began at the U of A as an instructor, moved up to assistant and then associate professor for the plant pathology department. From there he went on to a full professor status and continued until he had become head of the department (1953 to 1959). The years 1959-1972 were spent as director of the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station.

His work is well known throughout the state and the nation. He eventually gained world recognition after his work with rice diseases under the United States military in Korea in 1947 and with the Point 4 program in Panama. He worked, on a consulting basis, as a plant pathologist in Cuba in 1955. His work for the Ford Foundation took him to India in 1959.

Being selected Arkansas Man of the Year by Progressive Farmer in 1970 was one of many ways he was recognized for his contribution to the university, community and to the state of Arkansas.

Throughout his career, he was published in many periodicals and science journals. The demand for expertise in his field kept Cralley's life more than busy and productive. At times, it left him little free time to pursue or develop personal hobbies and outside interests, and it wasn't until after retirement that his writing took a creative turn.

Once he did retire he was able to pursue his interest in creative writing. After years of experience in dealing with life on a scientific basis, he began to incorporate his principles of faith and his own thoughts in a way that soon became characteristic of his particular brand of wisdom.

His inspirational writings are a gift to all that read them. For him there is no conflict between science and religion, simply an abiding faith in God, man and nature.

Many of his deepest ponderings, questions, joys, sorrows and pithy sayings filled his book Distant Horizons"," published in 1983. The book is beautifully illustrated by his wife, Ann. His appreciation for her and her talent and his love of family is evident on every page.

The book's dedication to: "The Little Woman, Ann Cralley, my wife of over fifty happy years," says much about this special man and is a tribute to the special qualities Ann Cralley possesses.

As if writing weren't enough, his wife's work opened him to a new experience and even deeper appreciation of science through nature in landscape painting. Step by step she led him into her field of creativity and helped renew him with a fresh energy that was expressed on canvas and that communicated yet another aspect of his multi-faceted creative talent. Through his painting and philosophical writings, Cralley continues to touch others.

Both Cralley and his wife were profiled in a book entitled, "A Fine Age," with the subtitle Creativity As A Key to Successful Aging. It profiles retirees who still perceive life as being beautiful and convey this message through active lives.

Cralley has been recognized for distinguished service not only to Arkansas' agriculture but also to the food industry. He was included in the American Biographical Institute's volume of American biographies published in 1983 entitled, "Two Thousand Notable Americans." Similary, a 1984-85 volume of Who's Who In The World lists his accomplishments as a scientist and as an artist.

Whether Cralley feels more like the Carmi, Illinois, farm boy he was, or like the U of A professor emeritus he is; whether or not he feels like the artist and writer he has become; the history of Washington County has been enriched by this one man's contribution the fields of education, science and art.

Joyce Rachel Dorman Cunningham

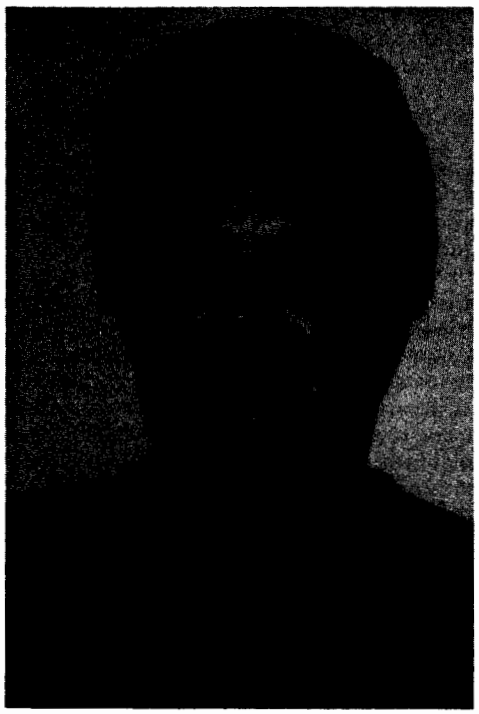
Born into the loving Christian home of Maynard Anthony and Rosalie Euge Dorman, Joyce Rachel joined the family of two older sisters on November 28, 1925. Nurtured in love and faith her earliest memories are of family devotions and comforting worship in the local church. Named for Rev. Fred Hamilton's daughter, Joyce, and for Rachel an exemplary woman of the Bible. She grew up looking forward to attending Sunday School and the morning worship service on Sundays.

Her church life at Prairie Grove United Methodist Church was uninterrupted until she moved to Oregon to be with her husband, Robert Earl Cunningham, Jr., a member of the armed forces, whom she had married in a church ceremony, July 25th, 1942. Her local church life resumed when Corporal Cunningham was sent to the European war theater where he suffered capture during the Battle of the Bulge. Two children were born of this union, Robert Anthony and Charlotte Ann.

Joyce devoted time to the rearing and careful guidance of her family in a deep commitment to daily Christian living. At the time she entered into her professional life, which she continues today, she was assuming a continuing spiritual responsibility to her church, serving as youth leader, pianist, organist, choir director, soloist, President of the Ladies Guild and President of the United Methodist Women.

Never neglecting responsibilities in her home, she and her late husband, entered into school activities as presented by the children's needs. She served as Mother Advisor of the Order of Rainbow and is a Past State Mother Advisor of the Order. In Eastern Star she has served as Worthy Matron, as well as Grand Organist, Deputy Grand Lecturer, Grand Representative and in charge of drills at Grand Chapter.

Joyce and Robert Earl were Tony's and Charlotte's most devoted fans during their athletic endeavors and other numerous school activities. And during Tony's tour of duty in Viet Nam, Joyce was his most ardent prayer petitioner. He returned unscathed. Both children are graduates of the University of Arkansas.



Joyce Rachel Dorman Cunningham

Joyce is executive secretary-manager of Washington County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company and Northwest Arkansas Farmers Mutual Tornado Insurance Company of Fayetteville, Arkansas, having started with the companies under the tutorage of her father in 1947. She serves on the National Board of Mutual Insurance Companies, and has for many years performed in various capacities at the annual conventions.

Joyce lives on her 40-acre farm and until last year, raised cattle. She enjoys attending sports events and concerts at the university and cultural events in the area. She is a charter member of Chapter CQ, of the P. E. O. Sisterhood. Joyce makes time to befriend and counsel those who seek her advice. She touches those with whom she comes in contact with her vibrant, happy personality. Her life has been rich and full, and she meets each day's challenge with humility, spirit and vigor of a sincerely dedicated, Christian lady.

Grant M. Davis

Grant M. Davis currently occupies the Oren Harris Chair of Transportation at the University of Arkansas where he is a distinguished Professor of Business Administration. Professor Davis is also the Director of the Center for Transportation Research within the College of Business Administration. Professor Davis received his PhD and MA degrees from the University of Alabama, and BSBA from Georgia State University.

Professor Davis is married to Susan Bridgers Riden formerly of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, and has two children, Susan Louise Davis, of Jonesboro, Arkansas, and Grant M. Davis, II, of Fayetteville. He has resided in Fayetteville since 1972 when he was named to the Harris Chair of Transportation at the University.

Professor Davis is the author of eleven textbooks and monographs, and he is the former Transportation and Logistics Editor for Praeger Publishers, Inc., of New York. In 1971 Professor Davis was named Delta Nu Alpha Transportation Man of the Year, and he has served as the Chairman of the Education Committee for the Association of Transportation Practitioners, and is currently the President Elect of the Southwestern Marketing Association.

Prior to joining the University of Arkansas in 1972, Professor Davis served on the faculties of Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama; and Arizona State University located in Tempe, Arizona.

Before joining the academic community, Professor Davis was employed by the Ford Motor Company. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of P. A. M. Transportation, Inc., of Tontitown, Arkansas; and ARA Smith's Transfer, in Staunton, Virginia.

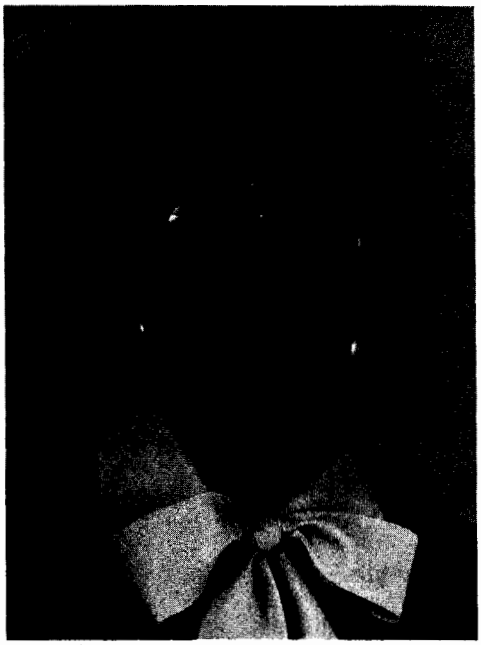
Irma Fitch Giffels

Irma Fitch Giffels was born on a farm in Madison County near Hindsville March 20, 1903, one of the fourteen children of Catlett Franklin Fitch and Effie Lee Clark Fitch. Her father was best known as "Dick" Fitch. He was born on the the same farm as all of his children less than three miles from Washington County. For more than three generations both Madison and Washington Counties served as the education and social center of the Fitch children. Eight of the ten who lived to adulthood received part of their formal education in Washington County. Seven attended the University of Arkansas from two to four years. Irma graduated from Springdale High School and several nieces and nephews are graduates of Springdale and Fayetteville High Schools.

1909-1920: Elementary and secondary school years: One room country schools for a term of six months was all that was available in the rural area near Hindsville when Irma started to school. A wood stove furnished heat, fired by the teacher or a school boy. Water was brought from a nearby spring in a large bucket. A dipper was placed in the bucket and used by all. Irma could read at the fourth grade level when she entered school. Her mother had been a teacher and began teaching her children soon after they could talk and continued teaching them as long as they were at home and in school. There were no libraries. Additional books were ordered from the Sears Roebuck catalog.

The majority of the teachers had never gone to college but had a good foundation in the solid subjects such as English, mathematics, history and geography. Many pupils quit school at age 15 or 16 when they had gone as far as the capability of the teacher. The schoolhouse served as the social and education center of the community. At age 15 the country schools no longer challenged Irma and she was permitted to live in Springdale and attend high school. Commuting from the farm over dirt roads was impossible. Her Uncle Bob and Aunt Martha Clark became substitute parents during this period. She graduated in two years at age 17, the only high school graduate in the area of Madison County where she lived.



Irma Fitch Giffels

1920-1921: Irma's first job: Getting acquainted with students attending the University and visiting the campus increased her determination to enroll there in the fall. This was delayed a year when she was offered sixty dollars per month to teach at Pleasant Valley, better known as "Black Jack," in Washington County only three miles from her home. She had to take an examination for a teacher's certificate before teaching. This was done in Huntsville and a First Grade Teacher's Certificate was issued to her.

1921-1925: University of Arkansas Student: Home Economics was chosen as a major with enough courses in Education to get a licensed instructor certificate for teaching. Professional opportunities for women were very limited at that time. Teaching would provide a source of income and home economics would increase homemaking skills and be used daily.

Some practical experience was gained during the summers at the Valley Canning Company of Hindsville. This company, partially owned by her father, canned tomatoes. Irma was the office manager and the only one in the office, salary four dollars per day. Tomatoes were peeled by hand and paid by the bucket full. The two hundred peelers were paid every Saturday and the growers on Monday, the busiest days for the office. Counting the number of punched holes in the large cardboard tickets (one hole for each bucket full) was the most time consuming tasks on paydays.

Irma refers to college as "One of the best periods of my life." She participated in extracurricular activities, was above average student and was admitted to the honor society, Kappa Delta Pi, her senior year. She was the first woman from Madison County to graduate from the University.

1925-1926: Teaching Home Economics and marriage: The superintendent of the Crossett, Arkansas High School came to the University shortly before Irma graduated in search of teachers. She was selected to be the Home Economics teacher. Marriage to Blanchard S. Tual before the end of the year brought her back to northwest Arkansas and a home in Rogers.

1929-1932: Selden Sterling Tual was born February 7, 1930. The next eighteen months were devoted to homemaking and motherhood. In the fall of 1931, the superintendent found that he occasionally had no one on his faculty who could teach chemistry; therefore turned to the previous science teacher and Irma consented to do this provided she could be a part time teacher.

1932-1933: Full time teacher again. Chemistry and Physics. The depression and financial reverses made it necessary. On July 22, 1933, Selden, her only child, died after surgery for a brain tumor in Saint Louis.

1933-1934: Home Economics teacher, Wetumka, Oklahoma. The death of her child and increased financial problems made it advisable to accept this position where she could live with her brother and family. Her husband was employed in Washington, D. C.

1934-1935: Graduate school, University of Tennessee in Knoxville. The need of a graduate degree was obvious and the College of Home Economics, there, was one of the best. Irma enrolled in September 1934. Nutrition was chosen as a major with Child Development as a minor. She was employed as an assistant in the Child Development Department during the summer term 1935 and graduated with the highest grades in the graduate school.

Jessie Harris, Head of the College of Home Economics, was one of the most influential persons in the life of Irma Fitch Tual Giffels. Knoxville was the headquarters of Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and Irma became interested in the opportunities for Home Economists in the electric manufacturing of home equipment. She applied to Westinghouse with the encouragement of Jessie Harris and was accepted as Regional Home Economist in the eight southeastern states with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia.

1935-1941: Regional Home Economist, Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company. Household appliances were manufactured at the factory in Mansfield, Ohio. Before reporting to the Atlanta district office a training period took place there and she lived in their "Home of Tomorrow," an all electric home with many new and innovative applications of electricity. A few months later she and her husband were divorced.

The primary purpose of the above position was to encourage homemakers to use electric equipment for cooking, refrigeration, laundry and household chores. This was done by giving large cooking school training sessions to train salesmen how to use the equipment, visiting college economics departments and advising them on the use and availability of such. Short courses were occasionally given in some of the colleges to home demonstration agents and home economics teachers. The demand became so great that another home economist was hired and served four of the states and Irma was given an assistant.

1941-1946: World War II. Director of Home Economics, National Association of Food Chains, Washington, D. C.

This organization represented the chain grocery companies, the largest segment of the retail grocery business. Some of the members were Safeway, Kroger, Jewel Tea, Grand Union and Colonial. The president of the association was searching for a home economist with business experience to develop a National Nutrition Program that all members could use and asked Jessie Harris to recommend a candidate. Again she suggested Irma.

After arriving in Washington October 1, 1941, the following three or four months were spent traveling coast to coast to visit and advise with the headquarters staff of member companies before developing the program. War made it necessary for some foods to be rationed and the armed forces supplied with the best; therefore, the program had to be coordinated with the government program and much attention given to the most plentiful and non rationed foods.

A Home Economics bulletin was sent every Friday to the member companies which contained consumer material that they could use as they saw fit such as recipes, advertising copy, nutrition information and use of ration stamps. Store posters were developed for all of the main food groups. Material was furnished for special consumer leaflets, radio programs, special cook booklets and promotions.

In addition to regular duties, she attended national meetings concerned with food and health and served on several national committees. Some of the committees were: Advisory Committee to Office of Price Administration (OPA) Food Committee, National Better Business Bureau (BBB); Consumer Committee, National Consumer Retailer Council Advisory Committee; War Food Administration Legislative Committee, American Dietetic Association, president; Home Economic Women in Business, Washington, D. C. After almost five years with the National Association of food Chains, Irma resigned and married Raymond F. Giffels, May 10, 1947 and moved to Birmingham, Michigan, a Detroit suburb.

1946-1963: The world of architecture and engineering. In 1925 Raymond Giffels founded Giffels and Vallet, a small industrial architectural-engineering company concerned with what was available in Michigan and the vicinity of Detroit. Eventually when Vallet retired, it became Giffels and Rossetti, one of the largest firms in the United States with contacts the world over. The emphasis of Irma's life changed from home economics to industry, travel, entertaining and running a large home. A few years after marriage the Giffels bought a condominium in Florida for occasional use. Also bought and remodeled a log cottage on Kentucky Lake for use during the construction of the atomic plant near Paducah which the Giffels Company designed. Decorating and furnishing these places was made easier by her home economics training.

Time was also found to do volunteer work. Irma served on the Board of the Birmingham Community House for five years. This was the center where public meetings were held, service clubs lunched, youth and senior citizens held meetings and newcomers came for information. Classes in many subjects were held here and Irma taught a class in "Homemaking for Brides to Grandmothers." Along with another home economist she developed a class in homemaking for Pontiac State Hospital and taught it once a week for a year with volunteers observing. It was turned over to them at that time. She was also active in a number of organizations: American Association of University Women; the Village Players; Detroit Symphony Orchestra Guild; United Fund; First Presbyterian Church.

1963-1967: Her husband died. Raymond Francis Giffels died August 26, 1963. Many estate and company problems were now his wife's responsibility; therefore, she became assistant to the president of the company and continued in that position until the company was sold in December 1967. At the time of his death he owned all of the company stock and the Giffels company had offices in several countries outside the United States. Mrs. Giffels spent most of her time learning about the assets and liabilities of the company and advising with lawyers. Fifteen members of the company finally bought it and changed the name of the company to Giffels and Associates.

1967-1975: These were years of being concerned with investments, smaller housing and less responsibility. The large house was sold and a smaller one bought and remodeled. The Florida condominium was sold and another bought and furnished. Winters were spent in Florida. Finally the home in Michigan was sold and an apartment rented for two years before buying property in Springdale and returning to her Fitch family roots.

1975-1988: Retirement years. The Arkansas property, a duplex, was new and some remodeling was done before occupancy. A new garage was added for the tenant and landscaping was done. Winters were spent in Florida until 1977 when the condominium was sold furnished and Arkansas really became home.

Her roots run deep in Washington and Madison Counties. Her great-great grandfather, Samuel Vaughan was one of the early Commissioners of Washington County and participated in the decision to locate the county seat in Fayetteville. He finally moved to Madison County and acquired a large amount of land. The area around Hindsville has long been known as the Vaughan Valley. When his granddaughter, Margaret Louisa Vaughan, married Catlett Fitch, son of Dr. Thomas Lafayette Fitch, two of the early pioneer families were united. Many of the descendants still live in the area.

Irma Giffels has contributed much time to community activities and organizations since returning to Arkansas. Her service includes: Founding member University of Arkansas (U of A) Development Council, member of the board of the Development Council, board member for Foundation for Mental Health, board member Art Center of Ozarks, board member North Arkansas Symphony Society, member Board of Trustees, First United Methodist Church; member of advisory committee, Infant Development Center, U of A; member of advisory committee, College of Engineering (U of A); member of a search committee, U of A.

Local monetary contributions made by Irma Giffels include: North Arkansas Radiation Therapy Institute, Springdale Memorial Hospital, Shiloh Museum, Rogers Museum, Art Center of the Ozarks, U of A College of Engineering, Home Economics Department and Infant Development Center as well as to the restoration of Old Main.

She has also been benefactor to Michigan State University, Berea College in Berea, Kentucky; and University of Tennessee.

Recognition and honors accorded her include: Member Kappa Delta Pi, Honorary Member, Gamma Sigma Delta; president club member of Berea College, Michigan State University and University of Arkansas. Distinguished Alumna, U of A 1977; Honorary Doctor of Laws, U of A 1987.

Irma Fitch Giffels moved to Butterfield Trail Village, a retirement village in November 1986 and was soon invited to be Chairman of the Food Service Committee. She continues to be active in several organizations and believes that everyone should be a contributing member of society so long as they are able.

Jamie L. Jones, Jr.

Jamie L. Jones, Jr. has been Director of the Baptist Student Union (BSU) at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville since June, 1951. He plans to retire May 31, 1989, at the end of his 37th year of service.

He was born January 8, 1923 in Vredenburgh, Alabama, a small sawmill town in the southwest part of the state. He is the oldest of eight children born to Jamie L. Jones and Minnie Inez Edge Jones, and grew up during the great depression.

He attended elementary school in Vredenburgh, and when a sixth grader, he was state spelling champion for elementary schools.

He attended a consolidated high school in Beatrice, a town about ten miles east of his home. He was involved in athletics and earned two letters in football. He graduated from Beatrice High School in 1940.

After graduation, he had temporary jobs with Vredenburgh Sawmill Co., the Alabama State Forestry Department and with a small privately owned packing house. In 1941-42, he worked for Swift Packing Company in Mobile, Alabama.

During World War II, he served three years (1943-1946) with the U. S. Army as a member of the 459th Ordnance Evacuation Co. Two and one half years of this time was served in England, Germany and several other European countries. The primary work of his company was transporting, repairing and maintaining tanks and other heavy military equipment. He was a platoon sergeant and attained the rank of Technical Sergeant.

At the conclusion of his military service he returned home and began his college training in 1946 at Alabama Polytechnic Institute (now Auburn University) in Auburn, Alabama. At Auburn he became involved in the Baptist Student Union. This was a very significant and life-shaping decision for two reasons. First, he met his wife, Beverly Childs, of Cullman, Alabama, in the Baptist Student Union. They were married December 30, 1947. They have five children and ten grandchildren. Secondly, the variety of friendships and experiences within the fellowship of the Baptist Student Union were major factors in determining the career Jones would later choose. He was president of the Baptist Student Union at Auburn and also for the State Baptist Student Union organization.

After receiving his degree in 1949, Jones entered Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Ft. Worth, Texas. When he entered the seminary it was not his plan or intention to enter a full-time church-related career or vocation. He wanted seminary training to better equip him to serve in a lay capacity in a church. This was due to the fact that Jones had grown up in an area where there were many part-time churches, and only a small percentage of the pastors were seminary graduates.

While a seminary student he began receiving invitations and opportunities to consider Baptist Student Union work as a vocation. Several factors influenced his final decision. The dynamic influence of the Baptist Student Union at Auburn on his life and the lives of his fellow students, the influence of his Auburn BSU Director, Charles Roselle, who stressed that no ministry was more strategic than that of the college campus. Roselle also subtly suggested the possibility of this ministry for Jones by asking Beverly if she was sure she wanted to become the wife of a man who might become a BSU Director someday. Over a period of time there was the definite impression that God was calling him to this ministry and, finally, the specific invitation to accept work at the University of Arkansas.

He says that many persons, students, colleagues, pastors, fellow church members, BSU alumni and other friends have influenced his career. But, those who have probably influenced him the most are Charles Roselle, his college BSU Director and later Director of National Student Ministries for the Southern Baptist Convention; Dr. Tom Logue, who served for 32 years as State BSU Director for Arkansas and his wife, Beverly. Jones said, "Beverly is God's greatest earthly blessing to me, and that even includes our five children and ten precious grandchildren."

He received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Agricultural Education from Auburn in 1949, and his Master of Religious Education Degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1951. He has done additional study at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky.

He has been a member of various Baptist groups and served on a number of committees and held different positions of leadership, including the following:

(1) In his church, First Baptist of Fayetteville, he is a deacon, Director of Church Training, choir member and has served on various committees.

(2) In the Washington-Madison Baptist Association Association he has served on various committees and as Vice moderator.

(3) He is a charter member of the Baptist Student Union Directors' Association of Arkansas, and has served as the group's president.

(4) He is a charter member of the Association of Southern Baptist Campus Ministers, a national organization.

(5) He has served as President of the Arkansas Chapter of Southwestern Baptist Seminary Alumni.

(6) He was a member of the National Student Ministries Committee which wrote the "Philosophy and Objectives of Southern Baptist Student Work."

(7) He was Director of the Third Century Campaign for the Arkansas Baptist State Convention in 1977-79, a campaign which raised an endowment of more than $1,000,000 for Baptist Student Union Work in Arkansas.

(8) He has directed an endowment campaign among U of A Baptist Student Union Alumni and friends in which $250,000 in pledges and gifts have been received for the Baptist Student Union at the university.

(9) He was a leader in getting the Arkansas Baptist State Convention to construct the Baptist Student Center and to purchase three houses on Lindell Street, north of and adjacent to the Center. This gives the Baptist Student Union some strategically located property for future expansion.

(10) He is a member of the Council of Religious Organizations, which is composed of workers from various religious groups on the University of Arkansas Campus, and served as President of its predecessor, the Religious Workers' Association.

(11) He has traveled in Europe, the Middle East, Canada, and Mexico as well as in the USA, on Baptist youth mission tours and conferences.

(12) In 1976 Ouachita Baptist University conferred on him the honorary degree, Doctor of Divinity in Religious Education. In making the citation for this degree, Dr. Daniel Grant, President of Ouachita, said, ". . .Jamie Jones is responsible to and supported by the same people as Ouachita, namely the Arkansas Baptist State Convention. He believes in and has committed his life to the same thing we at Ouachita are devoting our life to, namely, a Christian education for college students. This is no easy task at Ouachita, but is even more difficult on a state campus where there can be no requirement of Christian commitment from faculty members, or campus programs designed specifically to promote the Christian faith and life. Persons in positions like his, the director of a Baptist Student Union, are frequently faced with the temptation to move into other positions in and out of denominational life that seem to provide greater rewards in salary, program support, and public recognition.

Jamie Jones has earned the title, 'Dean of Arkansas BSU Directors' by having served for 25 years on the campus of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. During those years he has been counselor, organizer, inspirer, substitute parent and Christian example for literally thousands of students, who, I am sure, join us in spirit in this recognition today. . ."

Jones says, "My professional career has been very meaningful and satisfying because I have been part of a dynamic movement which has touched the lives of thousands of college students at the spiritual level, which is the ultimate dimension of life. And, in the process, my life has been touched and enriched by many students, colleagues, BSU alumni, pastors and other friends. God has truly blessed me through my work and my family."

He says he is looking forward to retirement, even though he will miss the work which has been such a vital part of his life for the last 37 years. He plans to see. . ."If it is possible to experience 'burn out' from playing with grandchildren, fishing, hunting, and photography."

J. O. Kelly

I am a native of the state. I was born at the beginning of this century on a farm near the present town of Oden, in Montgomery County. I lived in this vicinity during the first 20 years of my life. At this time in our state development, 97 percent of our people lived and made their living on the farm. I went to our community school through the eighth grade in one room (three months in the winter and three months in the summer). There was no public high school in the county. Our county seat, Mt. Ida, had a tenth grade, non-accredited, academy. Before moving out of the county, I was privileged to attend this academy one year beyond the eight years in my one room community school. I took a teacher's examination and made a grade high enough to attain a second grade teacher's license. I taught two summer terms of school in this county to begin a very interesting, and to me, a profitable teaching career.

At this time, about my 20th birthday, my parents sold the farm in Montgomery County and moved to Delight, in Pike County, to begin a new vocation in the conducting of mercantile business. At this time I entered college at State Teacher's in Conway. I did my high school work in the prep-department, together with two years of college work, receiving an L. I. degree. While serving as Superintendent of the Delight and Okolona public schools, I was able to complete my A. B. degree at Henderson State Teacher's College.

I served as High School Principal of the Rogers' High School while completing my graduate work at the University of Arkansas. My other work was as Superintendent of the Clarendon schools, then to Springdale for 19 years.

When we came to Springdale in 1944-45, we had only a small town school. The city's population was 3,300 and we had 28 teachers and 900 students, two elementary schools, and one Junior High/Senior High School. Our budget was $48,000. No salary schedule — elementary teachers received $65.00 and high school teachers $70.00. Through consolidation, the school soon moved to the sixth largest in the state. We have a student population this year of 7,500 students and 520 teachers, with a budget of over $16,000,000.

Springdale has a background record in leadership in public education. We were one of the first towns in the state to have a Junior College. As I have watched its growth while I was working and since I have retired, the figures are phenomenal. All the separate schools are accredited by the North Central Accrediting Association of Schools and Colleges. One senior high, two junior highs, and eight elementary schools are all now housed in relatively new buildings.

If I am to evaluate my success in my chosen profession, I would have to base it on the development of each of these schools while I was superintendent. While at Okolona for seven years, we perfected a consolidation that required the construction of a high school and gymnasium and later separate buildings were erected for Agriculture and Home Economics, and a separate cafeteria. At Clarendon, in another seven year program, we were able to add Agriculture and Home Economics. At Springdale, all the above mentioned buildings are new with the exception of a two-story classroom building.

Arkansas should be proud of its public education system. I am proud to have had a small part in the development of the present system. We are used to competing with other states with much more wealth. We are now in the process of recovering from some very unwise legislation that required our teachers with years of successful teaching experience to take an unrelated test in order to continue to teach. But we will recover.

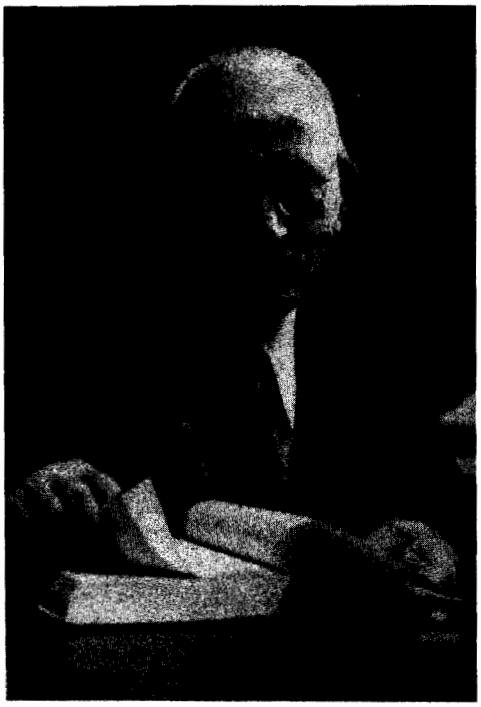
Robert A. Leflar

Robert A. Leflar was born at Siloam Springs, Arkansas, on March 22, 1901, the son of Lewis D. and Viva Pilkington Leflar, the first of their eight children. His father grew up in Fort Smith, Van Buren, and Alma, Arkansas. He was Town Marshal of Alma in 1883-1884, then served as Deputy U. S. Marshal in Judge Parker's court at Fort Smith for a time, then traveled in the West and in the Klondike for some years and settled at Siloam Springs in 1897. He and Viva Pilkington were married in June 1900. He worked as a drayman for 60 years, raising his family on a small farm at the north edge of Siloam Springs. He died in 1956 at age 95.



Dr. Robert Leflar

Robert's mother, Viva Leflar, finished high school in Kansas, then moved with her parents to Siloam Springs about 1895. She was employed at various jobs in town until her marriage, after which she devoted her life to her family, at all times impressing her children with the need to secure an education. She died in 1949.

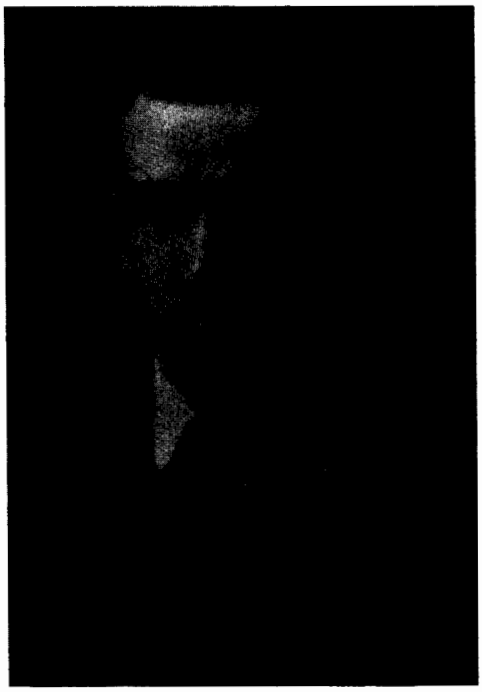
Robert married Doris Drake in 1928. They had no children, but raised a foster-daughter, Helen, now Mrs. LeRoy Mayfield, who lives near Fayetteville. He and Doris (later Mrs. Belden Wigglesworth) were divorced in 1946. Afterwards he married Helen Finger, daughter of the well-known author, Charles J. Finger who raised his family at Gayeta, a home on the Farmington road southwest of Fayetteville.

Robert and Helen have two sons, Robert B., an honor graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School who has joined his father on the faculty of the University of Arkansas Law School, and Charles J. F., a certified public accountant who became a senior account with Price Waterhouse and is currently doing graduate work in the accounting field.

The Leflar family home is a rural abode at 1717 West Center Street in Fayetteville. Robert B. owns the old Finger home southwest of Fayetteville and lives there now.

When Robert A. finished high school at Siloam Springs in 1918 he entered the University of Arkansas where he received his B. A. degree in 1922. During his last two years in college he worked as a local news reporter (stringer) for state newspapers, as well as in the University's News Bureau. After teaching a year (1922-23) in Stuttgart, Arkansas, he taught journalism and public speaking at John

E. Brown College in Siloam springs for the next school year, and there edited various publications including a local weekly newspaper published at the college. The next three years (1924-1927) were spent at the Harvard Law School, where he received his L. L. B. degree cum laude (also S. J. D. later). He joined the faculty of the University of Arkansas Law School, where he completed 60 years in May of 1987.



Robert Leflar

His major field of study in the law is Conflict of Laws. This complex legal topic deals with facts which occur in two or more states or nations, so that when litigation develops it is necessary to decide which state's law governs. Leflar has published articles in this area in the Harvard Law Review and other legal journals, and in books. The first of his books was a local one, the Arkansas Law of Conflict of Laws, in 1938. His major work is titled American Conflicts Law, first published in 1959 and now in its 4th edition (1986). A feature of Leflar's conflicts scholarship was the development of a theory emphasizing "five choice-influencing considerations" as the basic factors controlling choice of governing law. The Leflar theory in this area has been adopted by the courts of several American states, and has been widely discussed in legal journals throughout the world. A book published in Germany in 1974 compared the Leflar theory to other choice-of-law approaches used in Germany, England, the United States, and other countries.

Leflar's major Arkansas law concern has been the somewhat obsolete Arkansas Constitution. In 1967 Governor Winthrop Rockefeller appointed Leflar to a newly created Arkansas Constitutional Revision Study Commission, which when it met elected Leflar chairman. That body recommended that a Constitutional Convention be convened. The legislature then authorized the Convention, and Leflar elected as a delegate from Washington County, was named its president. That convention submitted a proposed new constitution in 1970, but it failed to secure a majority vote in the November election. Leflar was involved in other efforts at constitutional revision under Governors Dale Bumpers and David Pryor in the next few years, and helped to secure a state-wide vote in 1976 authorizing the holding of another constitutional convention in 1979-1980. Again Leflar was elected a delegate from Washington County, then was elected president of the convention. The product of this convention was defeated at a general election in 1980. A kind of success, however, is attending efforts at constitutional revision, since individual changes by amendment of specific sections of the Constitution has resulted in adoption of several of the Convention's proposed reforms.

From 1952 on, Leflar served a part of each year on the New York University School of Law faculty, normally spending a part of the year at each place, as a full-time member of each faculty. In 1959-60 he taught at New York on Mondays and Tuesdays and at Fayetteville the rest of the week, making the round trip each week without being absent or late for class at either place.

It was at New York University in 1956 that he initiated the Appellate Judges Seminars, a summer school for high court judges. His previous experience as a Justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court, making him one of the few law teachers who had served on a supreme court, helped qualify him for this work. He conducted the Seminars for 31 years, through 1986. Over the years the seminars were attended by state supreme court and U. S. Court of Appeals judges from every state and circuit, from Canada, and other countries. There are more than 1,000 alumni of the Seminars, including three who subsequently went on the Unites States Supreme Court (Warren E. Burger, Harry Blackmun, John Paul Stevens), and another who became Chief Justice of Canada. The operation of the Appellate Judges Seminars attracted world-wide attention.

The work of which Leflar is most proud was the admission of black students to the University of Arkansas Law School in 1948 when he was Dean. The first black student was Silas Hunt, a World War II veteran who died from war-time injuries. Other blacks were admitted to the law school from that time on. They were the first blacks admitted to a southern state university since Reconstruction. The fact that this was achieved without litigation is the basis of Leflar's pride.

Leflar reached retirement age (70) in 1971, then was a visiting professor at the University of Oklahoma and Vanderbilt University until 1974, at which time he was authorized to return to full-time teaching, without pay, at Arkansas. This is his present activity.

The following items, merely listed, summarize significant aspects of Leflar's career: Secretary, Arkansas Criminal Law Reform Commission, 1934-36; Attorney and Asst. Solicitor, War Relocation Authority, 1942-1944; Public Member, Seventh Regional War Labor Board, 1944-1946; Director, Arkansas Legislative Institute, 1944-1949; Chairman, Arkansas Statute Revision Commission, 1945-1954; Acting President, University of Arkansas, 1947; President, Soouthwest Athletic Conference, 1948-1949; Associate Justice, Arkansas Supreme Court, 1949-1950; Arbitrator, labor disputes, 1946-1971; Phi Beta Kappa, national lecturer, 1955-1970; Arkansas commissioner on Uniform State Laws, since 1945; Life Member of National conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws since 1966; Director of Appellate Judges Seminars, New York University School of Law 1956-76, Consulting Director since 1976; Director again in 1984; Consulting Director in 1985 and 1986; Adviser, Restatement, Conflict of Laws (Second) 1966-1971; Chairman, Arkansas Constitutional Revision Study Commission, 1967-1968; President, Arkansas State Constitutional Conventions, 1969-1970, 1978-1980; American Bar Assn., Special Committee on Standards of Judicial Conduct, 1969-1973; Consultant on state judicial administration: Washington, 1977; Pennsylvania, 1978; Maine, 1980; Minnesota,1984-1985.

Author of the following books: Arkansas Law of Conflicts of Laws, 1938; American Conflicts Law, (4th edition 1986), The First 100 Years, (Centennial History of the University of Arkansas, 1972), Appellate Judicial Operating Procedures of Appellate Courts (American Bar Foundation 1976), One Life in the Law: A 60-Year Review (1985); Co-Author: Cases and Materials on American Conflicts Law (Michie/Bobbs Merrill, 1982-1983). Articles in many legal periodicals, and chapters in other books.

The Reverend Marius J. Lindloff

Dr. Marius J. Lindloff died in Fayetteville October 14, 1984, but is still remembered. In honor of his memory, Mae B. Nettleship submitted a brief history of a man who served his fellow man as an Episcopal Priest, actively, for 39 years. He, himself, in regard to the priesthood said, "You can't retire as a priest. That is your character. Wherever you go, you remain a priest."

Lindloff held the STD degree from General Theological Seminary in New York. He served as curate at St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church there, was priest at St. John's Church in Norman, Oklahoma and served as chaplain to the University of Oklahoma during the pre-World War II decade between 1930 and 1940.

His wife, Frances Atwater Lindloff was a professor on the fine arts staff at the University of Oklahoma at the time. That is where they met and were married. When they later moved to Fayetteville, she taught at the U of A.

Excepting for the the one year he served as priest to St. Bartholomew's in New York City, Lindloff's religious service was to college and university students. A routine parish with the stationery congregational members didn't seem to be his calling during those early years. After spending many years at the University of Oklahoma, he became chaplain to the University of California at Berkeley and associate director at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, remaining there until he became rector of St. Paul's Church in Fayetteville in 1944.

He was quoted in regard to his Berkely days as saying: "I was in Berkeley for four years. All the trouble that is going on now was incipient. It was going on then. At Sather Gate where they have all the stands now, it was then a place where they (the students) all gathered for grievances and speeches.

"In those days there wasn't as much as there is now and it didn't have the same kind of content, but there was always a place for dissent. It was like the famous Hyde Park in England—a place for free speech."

A devoted and firm advocate of free speech himself, he borrowed his wife's horse on one occasion riding throughout the campus in protest of being denied having a car by his bishop who wouldn't okay the car and the allowance.

At the time of his Berkeley departure, Lindloff had a congregation of over 2100 students and 500 faculty. Many of the students enrolled there had come back from the war and attended school on the G. I. Bill.

Fayetteville service became a totally different life than his former parishes had offered. When he moved to Fayetteville there were no Episcopal churches at all. He was the only Episcopal priest in the entire area. His family settled in, and his daughter, Demaris, was born in Fayetteville and went on to graduate from the University of Arkansas. Like her mother, Demaris was a horsewoman and they became instrumental in forming horse shows. Demaris even became the Arkansas Rodeo Queen in those early days of rodeo.

Dr. Lindloff was honored by his alma mater, General Theological Seminary, with an honorary doctorate degree in recognition for his work with colleges and the church. He credited much of his success from having come from a "stage folk" family from his mother's side. They were performers, actors and musicians from the Bispin side of his family (later changing the name to Bisping for easier pronunciation). Both of his parents came from France.

While serving for 24 years at St. Paul's in Fayetteville, he held offices on both the diocesan level and on the national level as well. He was a member of the Board of Examining Chaplains for the Diocese of Arkansas and served on its Standing Committee and Executive Council of the Diocese in addition to other civic and ecumenical positions he held.

Upon retirement in 1969, Fayetteville lost an active priest but never forgot him or his service to the community. True to his character and self-admittedly, he remained a priest available to all who called upon him until his death.

Prof. E. L. Morris

Prof. E. L. Morris began his teaching career in native North Carolina in 1882. Emmett Lee Morris was born December 10, 1861, near High Point, in the Piedmont region of North Carolina. A child of the Civic War period his father, Joseph Morris, was killed fighting for the Confederacy. His mother, Esther, died soon after, left him orphaned at one year of age. Then his paternal grandmother, Ruth Morris, took him into her home to rear. Turmoil and lawlessness of Civil War years visited many hardships on them. Understandably, the farm home of a woman and child was easy prey for bushwhackers who took everything not hidden, and ransacked the rest. . .leaving them to survive the best they could. In this period, schooling was limited. Emmett was fortunate to have home teaching by his grandmother. He would borrow books to read/study, even during rest-time while doing field work, or cutting cord wood. He wanted to learn and teach.

At age 14, his grandmother died. He was alone in the world, dependent upon himself for his livelihood. Still determined to teach, he worked for wages, until he was financially able to attend the Winston-Salem Academy. After study there, he took the North Carolina Teacher's Examination, was issued a Second Grade Certificate October 12, 1882. Was soon hired to teach his first school. In 1883, after examination, he was issued a First Grade Certificate, November 7, 1883. (These certificates in family possession.) He taught two years in North Carolina. Then responded to his desire to go westward. Made his way by walking through the Cumberland mountains of Virginia and Tennessee selling nursery stock for the Jamestown Nursery of Jamestown, North Carolina. (1885 order books in possession.)

Jamestown Nursery was promoting a new peach — the Robert E. Lee. An "easy walker," he could cover 20 miles in a day. More often it was a leisurely pace, stopping at homes along the way, to offer a selection of nursery stock. He appreciated the friendly hospitality of the mountain people, who were pleased to welcome a traveler to meals or spend the night. He enjoyed his first experience as a nursery salesman.

Late 1885 found him in Kansas. He taught two years near Olathe. Kansas wind and Kansas cold were not to his liking. He had heard Arkansas praised. In the summer of 1887, he came to Hood (Elkins), Arkansas. He was soon hired to teach the Hood School. One of his pupils was Miss Emma Reed, whom he was later to marry. In 1890, he was invited to visit Texas friends living in Commanche County. He accepted their invitation. On arrival, a school near Commanche was offered him. He taught two terms, but his "heart" was in Arkansas. In May of 1892, he returned to Hood, to be married to Miss Emma Reed. The 1892 school term found the couple going to Figure Five in Crawford County, Arkansas. Then it was a term at Pitkin (West Fork area) and back to Hood for good. Settled, he began long years of teaching in, or near, Hood, Sulphur City, Carter's Store, the Whitehouse, Durham, all through the White River valley country. Regular terms and subscription schools. The later usually taught in warm weather. Tuition usually $1.50 for a month, often paid in farm produce. He welcomed any child to attend, whether able to pay or not. Teachers had so little to work with in years prior to World War I. A building, a wood stove, coal oil lamps, sometimes an outhouse for the girls, the bushes for the boys. The teacher usually bought the water bucket, communal dipper, broom and often the chalk.

Water was often carried from a spring or the nearest farmhouse. The "larger" boys were often assigned to carry water, wood, and help with janitor duties. . .considered an appointment of some prestige. School lunches of the day, carried in tin buckets, food sometimes frozen by noontime, homemade wooden benches for sitting, slates for ciphering, all typical of the smaller rural school. Larger schools were more affluent. And there was the happy side to school, too. Pleasant in learning, taking part in Friday afternoon spelling, or ciphering matches, or a debate. Preparing recitation programs. On the playground, simple games, marbles, baseball for boys, two-eyed cat for girls. Fun for all, with teacher joining in.

A teacher was expected to contribute to community lifestyle. The community schoolhouse served as church house, for funerals, etc. As preachers were hard to come by, emphasis was on Sunday School, or singing. Prof. Emmett L. Morris enjoyed contributing to the social life of the community, as well as county-wide affairs.

The June 4-5, 1907, program of the 24th annual convention of the Washington County Sunday School Association Convention, held at Rose Hill School, Fayetteville, names E. L. Morris as president and speaker. He was speaker on the program of a county wide School Ralley, held in Sulphur City.

Active in politics. . .often an officer of the Democratic Central Committee of Washington County. Many times called for county and Federal jury duty. A Cumberland Presbyterian, and a Mason, Prof. Morris was respected and loved by countless pupils and parents. His teaching legacy; encouraging and aiding young men and women to become teachers and continue the chain of educating.

Prof. Morris passed away May 13, 1932, at his home near Lincoln. He was buried with full Masonic honors at Mt. Salem Cemetery, located between Elkins and Sulphur City.

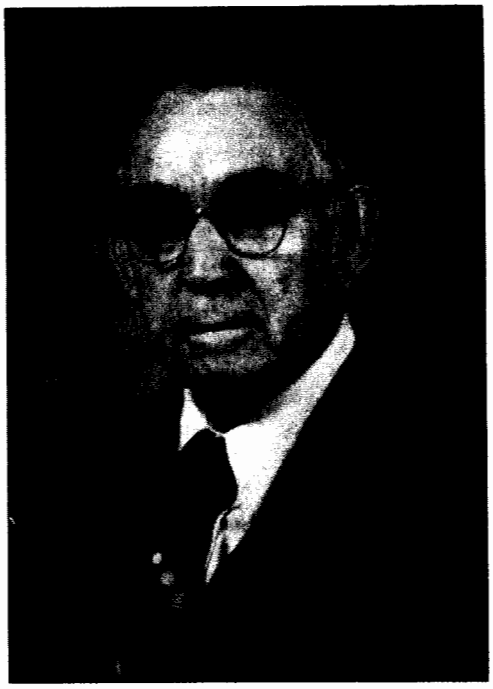
James L. Neal

James L. Neal, religious leader in Washington County for 61 years, was born December 23, 1893, near Bates, Arkansas. He married Montez Upchurch in 1915 and moved to Springdale on February 1, 1925. His wife preceded him in death in 1985. Their daughters are Mrs. E. H. (Janis) Roberson of Nashville, Tennessee, and Mrs. Wyatt (Christine) Sawyer of Forth Worth, Texas.

His religious influence in this community has been most evident in his roles as 1) elder of the Church of Christ, 2) as a Christian educator, 3) as a writer of Christian literature and 4) in his vocation as a rural mail carrier.

As a church leader, he was well-known for his unrelenting efforts to convert people. He also influenced many young men to be preachers and church leaders, lending them support and encouragement both spiritually and financially.

He served as an elder from 1927 to 1985, upholding the concept of the autonomy of the local congregation and the Bible as the inspired Word of God. In 1939, he was involved in a 20-month evangelistic tent-meeting campaign covering northwest Arkansas. This effort resulted in the establishment of nine northwest Arkansas congregations of the Church.



James L. Neal

Through the years he has encouraged daily Bible reading (especially of Romans 12 and I Cor. 13, which he has done daily for the past 40 years.) He urges leaders and members to regularly read the book of Acts to insure that the fundamental truths of the early New Testament church are faithfully upheld. He prays daily for the unity for which the Lord prayed.

As a Christian educator, he gained his early experiences as a public school teacher before moving to Springdale. He later held special church-related workshops, including training in vocal music and in elder and deacon qualifications. He has spoken in many pulpits in the area, and frequently substituted locally as preacher or song leader when needed.

He strongly supported Christian education in schools and colleges and served on the Development Council of Harding University at Searcy for 20 years.

As a writer of Christian literature, he has contributed several gospel songs, countless tracts, pamphlets, sermons and outlines, as well as numerous articles for various religious periodicals. He edited and published The Gospel Age from 1935 to 1953, writing much of the material himself.

As a rural mail carrier from 1918 to 1958, his Christian influence was felt daily. His vocation became another outlet for his intense love for God and man. After his daily route, he would often do helpful things for his patrons as he saw their needs. Endearing himself to them, he converted, married, and buried many of them through the years.

James L. Neal, (in 1987) at the age of 94, continues to be a writer, encourager and teacher of God's Word. He conducts a regular weekly Bible class at the retirement home where he lives, near his daughter in Nashville. He returns when he can, to visit his home and the congregation that he loves so dearly, nestled in the beautiful Ozark mountains of Washington County.

His religious influence will live through the ages in this community, and in the lives of all those he has touched throughout the world.

Buell Beverly Woods

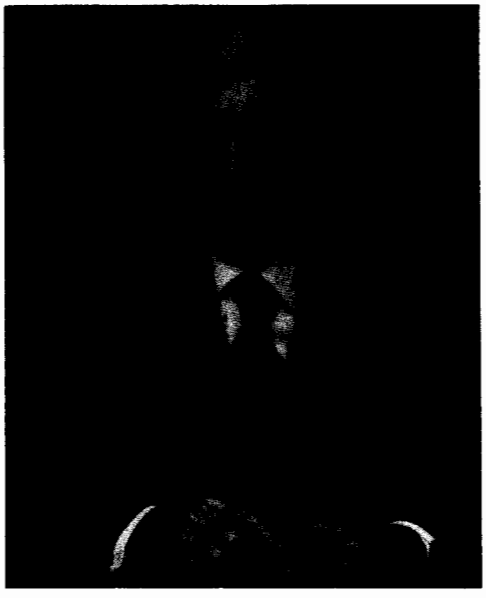
Buell Beverly Woods was born in and is a part of Arkansas. His family was among Arkansas' early settlers. The Woods family moved here from North Carolina before 1856.

Buell was born May 27, 1911, to Harry Arthur Woods, Jr., and Josephine Smith Woods in Huntington, Arkansas.

He graduated, valedictorian, at Hartford High School in 1928. At 17, Buell entered the University of Arkansas (U of A) and went on to receive a BSE degree in the spring of 1932. He later completed his Master of Science degree at the University and 125 hours of post graduate work at the U of A and the University of Illinois.

Buell married Lillian Elizabeth Cruse in the home of the Rev. Ragland, and they moved to Monroe, Oklahoma, where he taught social studies and coached for two years before returning to the Fayetteville area.

Upon his return, he served as principal of the old Leverett Elementary School while working toward his Master's degree.



Buell Beverly Woods

In 1937, he accepted an administrative job as Superintendent of Schools in Cove, Arkansas, and two years later became Superintendent of Schools in Wilmot, Arkansas.

In 1943, he received another promotion and salary raise when he became the County Administrative Officer for the Agricultural Adjustment Agency for Prairie County, Arkansas. He was with that agency until 1946, when he became Superintendent of Schools at West Fork from 1946-1958.

Buell and Lillian Woods have one daughter, Beverly, born in 1945 on September 23.

In 1958, Woods became a mathematics coordinator and teacher for the Fayetteville Public Schools until he retired in 1976.

He had membership with the Arkansas Education Association for 37 years; was a life member of the National Education Association. He was a board member, at large, for Arkansas Education Association and served in committee for A. E. A., Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi as well.

Woods served as an Arkansas Democratic party state delegate; with West Fork Development of Community School; Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce; Exchange Club; Washington County Retired Teachers, treasurer, 1976; American Association of Retired Persons, Fayetteville chapter, vice-president, 1978; Coordinator Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) for northwest Arkansas 1977; Board of Directors Ozark Literacy Association in 1976.

He was co-author of To Kimberly With Love, a family history, and School Days, School Days, a book that brought Washington County school history from 1830 through 1950.

Buell Woods co-authorship also includes Curriculum Guides For Arkansas Public Schools and A Contemporary Mathematics Program For College Capable Twelfth Grade Students.

Woods received, over the years, numerous math scholarships to workshops at the U of A and the University of Illinois and was also recipient of the honor of being selected to appear in "Who's Who in American Education", Volume 17, 1955-1956.

Hobbies that fill much of Buell Woods' time as a retiree include fishing, photography, raising house plants (in his green house), and he served as treasurer of the Northwest Arkansas Metropolitan Dinner Club in 1978.

His daughter, Beverly, married Glen Edward Reed on August 28, 1964, and presented Buell and Lillian with three grandchildren, Kimberly Carol (to whom Kimberly, With Love is dedicated), born November 29, 1965, Kathryn Elizabeth, born July 25, 1968, and Glen Edward, Jr., (J. R.) born June 18, 1977.

He and his wife are retired and living in Fayetteville, Arkansas, where they both enjoy the time they spend with their grandchildren.

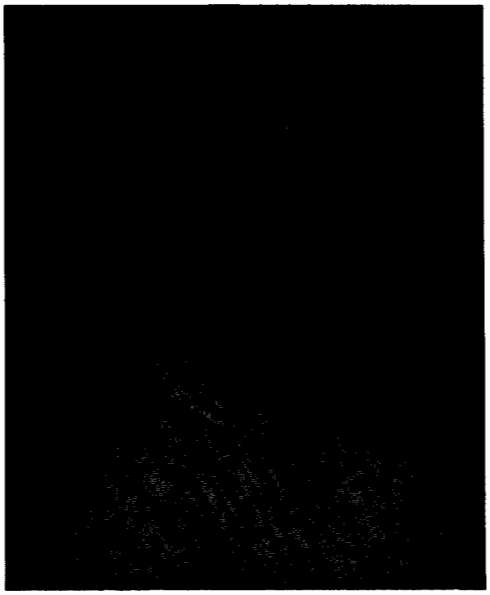
Helen Woods



Helen Woods

Helen Woods was born June 18, 1907, at Pea Ridge, the daughter of Thomas J. and Mattie Walker Woods. She attended Pea Ridge schools and received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. A teacher for a total of 40 years, she always taught the first grade at Washington and Jones Elementary Schools in Springdale School System for 27-1/2 years.

She was a member of the First United Methodist Church, where her name was a "household word." She had served several terms on the Administrative Board; had been a member of the Commission on Education, Christian Social Concerns, and a very active member of the United Methodist Women. Helen had been in charge of the Church School Literature for numbers of years.

One of the highest compliments any adult can receive is to be accepted by not only their own age group, but also by young people, and Helen received this honor several years ago, when she was voted by the youth as the adult in the Church most admired by them.

She was a member of the Arts Center of the Ozarks, Shiloh Museum, Business and Professional Women's Club; Alpha Delta Kappa, International Honorary Teacher's Society and County, State, and National Retired Teacher Associations.

When she was able to find time away from her volunteer church and community work and meetings, she enjoyed reading, sewing, and growing flowers.

Helen died June 6, 1987, from injuries suffered a few weeks earlier, when she was struck by an automobile on West Emma Avenue.

Churches

Introduction

The earliest white settlers in the area began holding church services even before there were church buildings. The need for spiritual comfort and guidance, thanksgiving, and communion was met in private homes, heads of household being in charge of prayers, Bible readings, and sermons.

As settlements grew up, it was sometimes possible to share a circuit-riding preacher. His transportation was by horseback through a dangerous wilderness. These dedicated circuit-riding men of the cloth traveled constantly, many giving up the chance to raise families of their own in order to minister to others. Even when sent by organized denominations, their pay was meager. Many of these traveling preachers rode in that faith "the Lord will provide".

As soon as family shelters had been provided, a church was usually built communally. Very often it also housed the school and thus paved the way for public education. Many academies and colleges in Northwest Arkansas came into existence through the efforts of established religion.

The church building often acted as the town hall, allowed meetings of fraternal orders, and even provided temporary space for traveling doctors and dentists.

The churches made a significant contribution to the history of the community by keeping records of births, marriages, and deaths. Many of these old churches no longer serve congregations, but they are commemorated in this book. Some still stand in various stages of disrepair throughout the county to remind us of the important part that religion played in the growth and development of the county.

The following stories were submitted for publication in this book.

Abundant Life Tabernacle

The Lord was speaking to Pastor and Mrs. Maddox in Missouri and to members in Fayetteville. The last week of October, 1980, arrangements were made to meet for six weeks in Root School. From the school, the church moved to a church building on Mission Blvd.

For the next three and a half years, the church met in the Roy and Beulah Faubus Antiques building at 2515 N 71 Bypass. During this time, Rosemary Port York offered the property of H. O. and Eurice Porter for sale to the pastor. She felt that her parents would want a church on their property. The purchase was made, construction began, and the first building was dedicated on May 19, 1985.

Abundant Life Tabernacle is located at 1855 Porter Road and is looking forward to a great future in Washington County.

Baldwin Church of Christ

Though services of the Church of Christ seem to have been conducted in the Baldwin community as early as the 1860s, the present congregation was organized in the Baldwin community as a result of a Gospel Meeting conducted by Eli Baker in the Holt School House in 1884. Among families associated with the church in that period were the Tom Holt family, the Mark Ferguson family, the Albert Moore family and Louis Roberts family.

Facilities of the Baldwin Church of Christ in the early 1950s.

Present facilities of the Baldwin Church of Christ (1988).

Around 1887, the church quit meeting in the Holt School House (a log building with dirt floor located on the land south of the Baldwin store) and moved to the Baldwin School House which had been built on land donated by Ransom and Tabitha Hester for the joint use of church and school. In 1889 this building burned and another was built on the same foundation. The church continued to meet here until 1949 when it moved into its new building at 4399 East Huntsville. This building had been erected almost entirely by church members over the previous 2 and 1/2 years on a lot donated by William Counts. Even the pews were made by the members. Over the years, this structure has been enlarged and altered many times, most notably in 1980 when a new 350-seat auditorium was added.

The first preacher who can be reliably associated with the Church of Christ at Baldwin was Eli Baker. S. R. Beaman worked with the church in the late 1800s and early 1900s coming by train from Seligman, Missouri. Others who have preached for the congregation include John T. Hinds, Harve Harriman, Will Fritts, Jim Ramey, and Guy Couch.

The first preacher to begin coming on a weekly basis was George L. Dockery who served as minister from 1946—1965. During that period Leland Couch and Tommy Glenn helped with the preaching on Sunday nights. Other ministers include: Tom Dockery (1965—1968), Ed Wolven (1968), Clyde Shrode, (1969—1971), and Robert G. Dockery since 1971. Robb Hadley became Youth Minister in 1985.

Among those who have served as Elders are Joel Ferguson, W. F. Hester, Cicero Cosby, H. E. Couch, Lewis Hester, E. H. Young, Leonard Couch, Malcom Shofner, Leland Couch, Olen Lacy, A. R. Kohler, Elvin Adams, Bruce Neal, Paul Wilcox, Harold Bradley, George L. Dockery, David Tucker and James Lacy.

In its 100-plus years the Baldwin Church of Christ has supported mission and benevolent work on 6 continents. The church is involved in an ambitious printing ministry in which about 3 million tracts have been printed and sent to mission points world-wide. Present membership is about 175.

Bible Teachers Live by Faith

Miss Carol and Miss Jewel do have last names, although if anyone speaks of them as Miss McCormick and Miss Horton to any of the thousands of persons who have been in their Bible classes during the past 35 years, these people might not know to whom you are referring.

Carol McCormick and Jewel Horton displaying a flannelgraph used to teach Bible lessons.

Any regular reader of the church page will recognize Miss Carol and Miss Jewel as teachers each summer of vacation Bible Schools. They direct several of these special activities for children in rural churches around the area in Washington County. Many of the mothers of these children who are now enjoying the Bible stories were themselves Vacation Bible School attendants.

The truths of the Bible are graphically illustrated by their use of a "flannelgraph" board mounted on a tripod stand. The surface of the board is of a flannel-like material to which the pictures adhere and can be rapidly changed as the story progresses.

Both women are graduates of Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, Illinois, founded by Dwight L. Moody in the 19th century. Although they were in the same graduating class, Miss Carol and Miss Jewel were not acquainted until they met in Northwest Arkansas 35 years ago. Miss Carol's work began in October 1949 at a small mission near Lowell. Miss Jewel came to the area about one year later. They met at America Inland Mission near Gentry, an interdenominational summer camp where people from all parts of the nation met for retreats and Bible study.

They were invited to teach Bible classes in some of the rural schools, including Mayfield, Spring Creek, Silent Grove, Stony Point, Burkshed, Zion, Fishback, and Steele Community. This was in 1950, before the Supreme Court ruling was handed down banning religion-oriented activities in schools.

Consolidation of schools was a factor as well in the decline of Bible classes held in schools; however, the families in most of these communities were loath to give up this instruction to their children and arrangements were made for the Bible story sessions to continue. The women were reaching more than 1000 children each week and from these classes came requests to teach adult Bible classes. Each one has her own specialty; Miss Carol prefers to teach adults and Miss Jewel loves working with children.

Some of the Sunday Bible classes begun by Miss McCormick and Miss Horton have grown into churches such as Peaceful Valley Bible Church and Thomas Lakeview Bible Church (formally known as Steele Bible Church).

Currently they are teaching morning and afternoon classes for women in various homes in Springdale and conduct several classes at their own home each week for kindergarten through sixth grade and they have set aside Friday afternoons for a teenage Bible Club.

Miss Carol and Miss Jewel are not sponsored by any church or group; they "live by faith". This means they are not paid a salary by anyone. "We depend entirely on the Lord," said Miss Carol, and Miss Jewel added, "He has amply provided for all our needs."

Billingsley Church of Hog Eye

According to Goodspeed's history of Washington County, Billingsley congregation of Cumberland Presbyterians was organized about 1850 and known as Mount Zion Church for many years and is now known as Billingsley Church of Hog Eye.

Among the first members were G. B. Nolen and wife, Merritt Baker and wife, Nancy Stevenson, John Billingsley and Miriam Dodson. John Billingsley, G. B. Nolen and Merritt Baker were the elders. Until the Civil War, the congregation was under the care of Rev. Ambrose Williams, and later chiefly supplied by B. F. Totten, J. T. Molloy and F. R. Earle.

Previous to May, 1888, services were held in schoolhouses but at that date a neat frame building was completed at a cost of $540.00. In 1887, seventeen members of this congregation withdrew and organized Pleasant Grove congregation with L. Tankersley, S. Dell and L. C. Blakemore.

According to the late Mrs. Anna Dearing Atkins, land on which to build the existing Billingsley church was deeded by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Dearing. Which deed stated that it would forever stand as a Cumberland Presbyterian Church. It was dedicated in 1887 to Anna's great-grandfather, John Billingsley, first settler of the area, Major Retired serviceman and mentioned in much of the early history. Minister F. R. Earle of Cane Hill officiated at this dedication ceremony.

John Billingsley (1801-1883) is buried in the family cemetery which also bears their name in the south part of the Hog Eye community.

This settlement was first part of Mountain Township. Later, there were Billingsley, then Moffitt post offices. Although Hog Eye was never a post office or official name, this nickname is at least 126 years old as found in a Civil War soldier's diary of 1862.

At this time, the building is used for occasional community meetings, Valley Township voting precinct, and community building.

July 1, 1984, the First Annual Hog Eye Homecoming was held at the church and grounds with the Barnes family as hosts. The Carney family was host the following year, then the Phillips family in 1986. This year (1987) on July 5, a cooperative effort was made to observe the centennial of the church building. Each year on the nearest Sunday to July 4 we plan to continue this tradition.

Black Oak Baptist Church

The land where the Black Oak Church now stands was given originally as a site for a school. A log school building was constructed about the year 1875, and was also to be used for religious services. Black Oak was so named for the large black oak trees which grew nearby. Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians all used the building. The log building was torn down in 1905, and the present building was erected at that time.

The Baptist Church at Black Oak was actually founded November 14, 1946, after the community school consolidated with Elkins. Charter members were C. E. Denny, Mrs. C. E. Denny, Lorene Denny, Mace Phillips, Mrs. A. B. McClelland and Nellie Boaz. They adopted the church covenant and the Articles of Faith found in the Pendelton's Church Manual. Brother J. E. Reed was called as pastor with a salary of $7.00 per Sunday.

On October 12, 1947, the church met and called a conference after electing Brother C. E. Wiles (associational missionary) as moderator. The church made petition for membership into Washington-Madison Association. Brother Wiles held a revival October 12-22, and seven members were added to the church. On December 7, 1947, an offering of $8.76 was given to a Church in Fayetteville to help on their building. A training union was organized December 14, 1947, with Mrs. J. E. Reed as director. In 1949 John Abernathy, missionary from China and Josephine Skaggs, a missionary to Africa visited the church. Since then other missionaries have come and presented slides of their work.

Brother Jesse Coleman preached a revival in June of 1949. There were several conversions and rededications followed by a baptismal service. In March of 1950 Brother Tom Richards was called to preach every other Sunday and Sunday night for 3 months. He was followed by Brother Howard Pritchard as a full time pastor who served until 1953.

The following is a list of the pastors which have served the church since 1953: Ray Parker, Lee Terry, Euel Wright, Bob Feese, C. A. Winn, Perry Hollis, Bob Hefner, Phil Jackman, Homer Rich, Terrel Gordon.

Interim pastors were: John Teas and Al Cullum.

Revival Speakers were: Brother Leak, Jesse Coleman, Brother Nelson, Norman Drake, Brother Stucky, Jack Taylor, Dee Fehsenfeld, Joe Laymon, Newell Petitte, Terrel Gordon, Holmes Moore and Jamie Colemen.

The church has ordained 3 ministers: Ray Parker, Lee Terry, and Phil Jackman.

The church has ordained 4 deacons: Roy Hood, Horace Tatum, C. D. Garrison, and Vernon Salsbury.

A kitchen, a pastor's study, library, 5 classrooms and a large fellowship hall have been added. The latest improvement was carpeting the sanctuary. The church helps support the following: Associational Missions, Arkansas Baptist Home for Children, The Cooperative Program, Lottie Moon's Christmas Offering, Annie Armstrong's Easter Offering, Dixie Jacksons, and The Gideons.

Black Oak Church of Christ

The Black Oak Church of Christ was established in 1880, a branch from the White House Church of Christ. The first elder was James J. Dockery, who donated the land for a school building and in 1878 a log hewn building was erected, which also became the church building. He also added a tract of land for a cemetery. The other two elders were Andrew Hobbs and James Mahan. The Deacons were Robert Skelton and Thomas Dockery. Goodspeed's History of 1889 listed one-hundred and five members of this church. The first preacher was Daniel Chick followed by James Mahan, C. H. O'Brien and minister L. A. Hobbs.

The years between 1889 and 1988, there wasn't a continuing church record of the elders, deacons and ministers. We cannot name the following ministers in succession, but they are brothers (?) Stout, Dick Fraley, Robert Reed, Buck Brown, Sherman Gabbard, T. M. Martin, Filmore Pope, H. H. Dunn, Harbert Hooker, Joe Spaulding, Gene Cloer, Robert Odell, Maurice Meredith, Jesse Osburn, David Peeples, Randall Caselman, Dean Parrish and others. Most every summer they had a one or two week Gospel meeting. During this time, there were many visiting ministers who would come the second Sunday of the month for services. When there wasn't a minister, we assembled on Sunday afternoon for Bible Study, directed by John E. Dockery, grandson of James J. Dockerywho was a singing school teacher. The World War I generation of children, mostly relatives, were raised in southern Washington County, approximately thirty plus miles south of Fayetteville, Arkansas in and around the Black Oak Church/School and Sunset School District. We gathered at Black Oak each Saturday evening for a session of gospel singing and Sunday evening at Sunset for the same. At this writing, there are twelve or more of J. J. Dockery's descendants who have preached at Black Oak Church of Christ.

Braden Missionary Baptist Church

The Braden Missionary Baptist Church, located east of Fayetteville on Highway 45 and Crossover Road, was organized July 19, 1936. Members of Shady Grove Baptist Church, Springdale, and Trinity Baptist Church of Fayetteville with their pastors assisted in the organization. Elder A. D. Gray, missionary for the State Association of Missionary Baptist Churches, also assisted in the formation of the church.

The initial membership of the new church was drawn largely from the Oakland Missionary Baptist Church and the Mt. Vernon Missionary Baptist Church, both northeast of Fayetteville. The original church records are lost, but the following is a partial list of charter members and others who joined after the organization of the church: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hunt, Ollie and Anna Plumlee, Poynor and Emma Plumlee, Ellis and Minnie Plumlee, Elliott and Nona Warren, Benjamin H. and Margie Warren, Velda Sweetser, Lymon and Louise Houston, Mark and Grace Hendrickson, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Carnes and children, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Smith, Eugene Smith, Loyd O. Warren, Alice Vaughn, John Warren, Lyman Hill and Homer Briggs.

The church experienced excellent growth for a period of years, but never enjoyed a solid base of support within the community. With the advent of World War II, and the population shifts characteristic of this period, the church waned and dissolved in the 1945-46 associational year.

Only two pastors served the church, Elder C. E. Hunt, followed by Elder Ellis (H. E.) Plumlee, who led the church until its dissolution.

Buckner Baptist Church

In the early 1920s, the Drakes Creek Regular Baptist Church of Madison County established a mission in Fayetteville at the Buckner School House in the Buckner Community. The Buckner Baptist Church was organized formally in 1923 with twenty two charter members: B. A. Drake, M. F. Drake, N. U. Drake, N. B. Drake, B. B. Drake, E. E. Drake, J. J. Drake, Alice Drake, Roy Drake, J. N. Counts, Annie Hall, J. F. Davis, M. M. Davis, Henry Hall, G. W. Mathis, Ophilig West, Dorothea Johnson, E. J. Counts, Pearl Spillars, H. E. Counts, Ethel Paris, and Ben Duncan.

The church continued to meet in the Buckner School House for several years until a church building was constructed adjacent to the school building. In the early 1950s, the Buckner School House was moved and the Buckner Church building was then moved the few feet to the site where the school building had been. The Buckner Church is still at the present time located on that site.

The first pastor of the Buckner Church was Elder Norman D. Drake who served the church for many years. The following men of God have followed Brother Norman Drake as pastor of the Buckner Church: Elders B. F. Taft, E. J. Counts, Jake Drake, Basil Ledford, Homer Ross, Troy Hayes, Lynville Easton, Lester Fletcher, Eddie Davis, and Larry F. Mitchell.

Shortly after its organization, the Buçkner Church became a member of the East Washington Association of Regular Baptists. This association was established around the year 1833 and was originally known as the Washington Association. Buckner's membership in the East Washington Association has continued throughout the church's existence and has been a leader and an example of progress and growth.

One of the unique qualities of the Buckner Church is that while located in the Fayetteville city limits, it has continued to maintain a warm country church atmosphere with spiritual, old time worship, heartfelt singing, and genuine love.

Presently, the church is located at 2780 Wyman Road in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

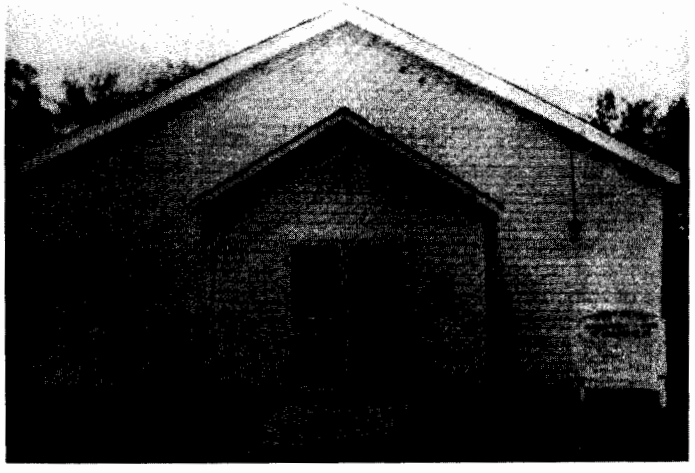
Calvary Assembly of God

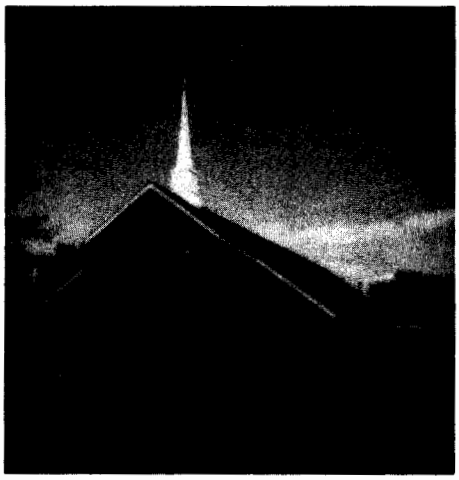
It was early spring, April, in 1939. A young minister, the Rev. S. E. Bruce and his wife, felt the need for a church to be established in the Rose Hill section of Fayetteville.

First site of Calvary Assembly of God, ca.1939.



Second site of Calvary Assembly of God, ca.1940-1965.

This area, north of the University, in the far northwest part of town was in need of the influence of a church in their community. The Bruces were able to locate a small, extremely modest building situated just north of North Street and east of Garland. This is close to where the Dillons Store is currently located.



Present site of Calvary Assembly of God, 2070 North Garland, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

This congregation became known as the Northside Assembly of God. They were soon able to relocate a couple of blocks south and continued there for about 25 years.

In 1965, under the pastoral leadership of the Rev. J. W. Walker, the congregation was able to move into a new sanctuary they had constructed on recently purchased land farther north on Garland. During this transition the name of the church was officially changed to Calvary Assembly of God.

The congregation was able to construct in the early 1970s another sanctuary (remodeling the first building into a fellowship hall), then connect the two buildings with an office complex, and build a lovely manse to the east of the church complex. All of this was accomplished under the capable leadership of several pastors. Because of careful planning less than half of the five acre site is utilized leaving plenty of room for future expansion.

The vision of Rev. Bruce to establish a church for the northwest part of Fayetteville has expanded into a thriving congregatiion with members coming weekly to worship from all over Washington County.

Calvary Baptist Church

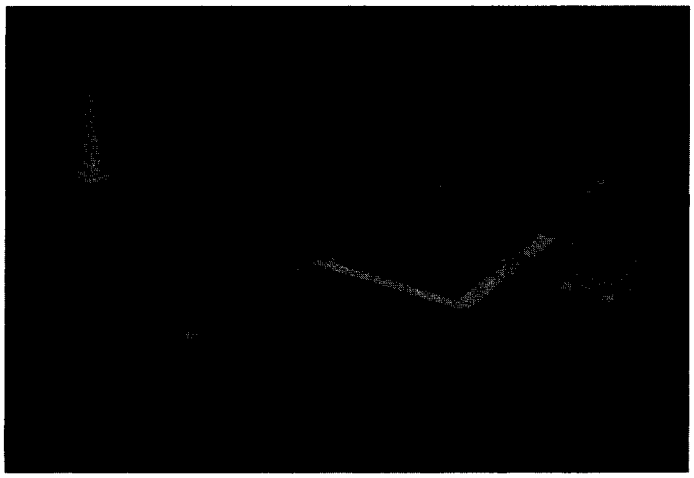
Calvary Baptist Church was organized on November 8, 1931 as the result of a three week revival meeting. Missionary, O. L. Lierly and pastor, D. N. Keck led in the revival and the subsequent organization of the church.

There were eleven people who participated in the original organization. They were: Pastor and Mrs. D. N. Keck, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Keck, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. O'Kelley, Mollie O'Kelley, Lelia Parker and Della Montgomery.

There were eight others who were baptized into the fellowship of the church as the result of the revival meeting. They were: Carl Montgomery, Ted Montgomery, J. L. Montgomery, Mildred Norris, Katy Osborn, Ivan Keck, Ruby Osborn and Velma Brammer. Opportunity was given to others who wanted to be charter members of the church by allowing them thirty days to determine what their decision would be. Others who united during that time were: Mary Taulby, Beatrice Tacket, Marthy Hershy, Ela Welch, Iva McMullen and Sarah Johnson. This resulted in a total of twenty-five charter members.

Pastor D. N. Keck became the first pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, which was first located on North Leverett Street. He served in that capacity for less than a year when O. L. Lierly, who had assisted in the organization, was called as pastor.

Property was purchased at the corner of Maple and West



Calvary Baptist Church, 1410 Porter Road, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Streets. Ground breaking for a new building at that site was held on May 19, 1951. The first service in the new building was on January 13, 1952. An educational building was begun later and occupied in December 1956. Adjoining properties were purchased as they became available, but the church was never able to acquire enough for the city to permit additional building at that location.

On June 9, 1976, the church voted to seek out and purchase other property in order to relocate. Then, on March 9, 1977, the church voted to purchase the property at 1410 Porter Road, the present location. Ground breaking for the new building was held on Sunday, June 25, 1978. The first regular service in the new building was on Wednesday evening, September 12, 1979.

The dedication of the new building was held on Sunday, October 14, 1979. Five of the nine living pastors of Calvary were present for the dedication, and served as the evangelists for a series of revival services which continued until the following Friday evening. Approximately 350 people were present for the dedication of the building.

In addition to the relocation and building of a new building, now valued at $750,000, one of the most important decisions made by the church has been employing a full-time Minister of Music and Youth. David Attebery has served in that capacity since June 1984.

Phil Misenheimer celebrated his eleventh anniversary as pastor of Calvary Baptist Church on March 6, 1988.

During the history of Calvary Baptist Church, Fayetteville, there have been eleven pastors and one interim pastor. They are: D. N. Keck, November 1931 - August 1932; O. L. Lierly, September 1932 - September 1946; J. W. Kesner, Jr., October 1946 - July 1948; Wassell Burgess (Interim Pastor); W. P. Murchison, May 1949 - December 1951; A. D. Stuckey, January 1952 - July 1955; O. L. Howard, August 1955 - August 1958; A. D. Stuckey, August 1958 - October 1966; Jack Bloxom, December 1966 - July 1969; Richard Walters, August 1969 - March 1973; Jerry Burnaman, June 1973 - February 1977 and Phil Misenheimer, March 1977 - Present.

Cane Hill Presbyterian Church

On the west side of the main street (Highway 45) of Cane Hill, Arkansas, stands a stone building now housing a congregation of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. This building was erected in the 1890s by a congregation of the Presbyterian Church in the United States known as Mt. Bethel Presbyterian Church.

The church was organized March 30, 1889, and the building built in 1891 under the leadership of J. H. Moore, James Ross, J. C. Kirby and A. R. Carroll families. Land donated by Mr. and Cane Hill Presbyterian Church, Cane Hill, Arkansas.

Mrs. J. C. Kirby., stone half given and half sold by Mr. Getty McClellan. The labor was donated by members and friends. The stone mason was Mr. Slocum, walnut pulpit and carving by Mr. Hanks. The organ and organist, Dr. T. W. Blackburn. Organizers, Rev. T. B. Lunsford, Washburn Presbytery, and Rev. S. W. Davies of Fayetteville.

In 1889 there were three church organizations in Cane Hill; Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian U. S., and Cumberland Presbyterian (later the Presbyterian U. S. A.).

On March 30, 1919, the Mt. Bethel congregation accepted the Presbyterian Church U. S. A.'s offer to buy their church property, offer approved by Washburn Presbytery, November 12, 1919.

Today we are a Presbyterian U. S. A. congregation, small in membership, meeting regularly, member of Arkansas Presbytery and Synod of the Sun, using the same stone building, modernized as the years have gone by, from 1891 to 1988.

Center Street Church of Christ

In 1886, the First Christian Church in Fayetteville divided when the piano was introduced into worship services. Dr. Redding Putman, leader of those opposed to the piano, began conducting non-instrumental worship services at the First Christian Church's Quicktown Mission Chapel on Government Street. Some of the charter members were Mrs. George Morley, George and Nancy Broyles, and Charles and Emma Johnson. During the autumn of 1891, the Mission Chapel was reorganized as the Second Christian Church with Johnnie Martin as the first minister. John T. Hinds became minister about 1895 and it was during his tenure that the congregation changed its name to the Church of Christ in order to distinguish itself from the Christian Church. Even though the congregation expanded its building several times during the 1920s and '30s; by 1948 they had outgrown it. A new building was constructed on the corner of Center and Locusts Streets and the congregation began worshiping there in 1949. Growing rapidly during the 1950s the Center Street church helped establish the North Street Church of Christ in 1958 and the Combs Street Church of Christ in 1961. A new educational wing, to accommodate a growing Sunday School, was added in 1977. During the hundred years of its existance, A. M. Foster, W. B. Ragsdale, L. E. Pryor, C. C. Houston, Willie Fritts, E. M. Borden, Fred McClung, George Curtis, Allen Harper, Taylor Davis, Glen Parks, Charles Caldwell, Harbert Hooker, Joe Spaulding, Floyd I. Stanley, Jim Caldwell, Albert Gardner, Joe Banks, and Tom Dockery have served as ministers at Center Street. Larry Mitchell has served as minister since 1978. Five elders: Arthur Caselman, Glen Oxford, Wiley Vaughn, Kenneth Crudup, and Lonnie Farrar currently oversee the work of the church which includes supporting a missionary, Dan McVey, in Ghana, West Africa, and the Christian Student Center on the University of Arkansas campus. The congregation, which celebrated its one hundredth anniversary in 1986, is still dedicated to the Restoration Plea, which calls for restoring the simplicity and purity of New Testament worship. Attendance for 1987 has averaged about 300.

Central Baptist Church of Fayetteville

Central Baptist Church was organized August 8, 1937, following an evangelistic meeting conducted by Roy Ward of Marvell Arkansas. Elder Ward served as moderator of the organizational council with Sheridan Johnson, pastor of the Oakland Missionary Church, serving as clerk. The organizational council was composed of representatives from various Baptist churches located in Arkansas. Twenty persons, including 18 from the Oakland Missionary Baptist Church located northeast of Fayetteville, Arkansas, presented themselves as charter members. These were Charlotte Couch, Frank Harrison, Leone Harrison, H. M. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McKamy, James, Elmer, and Charles McKamy, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Duggar, James, Velma Lea, Johnnie, Miriam, Lavelle, Harold, and Julia Duggar, Mrs. Nettie Davidson, and C. D. Davidson. The new church grew slowly during its first few weeks but in November, 1937 the small congregation of the Trinity Baptist Church of Fayetteville dissolved with 13 members being received by Central. These were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom O'Kelley, Hubert Morgan, Zella Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hall, Norma Hall, Mrs. Robie Keck, Ruby Keck, Arthor Keck, Mrs. Jessie Snowder, Christine Mitchell, and Gertrude Miller. In August, 1938, the pastor, D. N. Jackson, conducted a revival meeting which resulted in the addition of 21 new members to the congregation. With these additions the new church was materially strengthened in numbers and resources.

The church first met at 220 North School Street in a rented building that had been used by the Four-Square Gospel Tabernacle congregation. In 1939, it moved to another location called the White Chapel on South College Avenue. This location proved inadequate and in 1941, the church purchased the Tabernacle building in which it had previously met. Many improvements were made to the structure but again the location proved inadequate. In 1961, the church purchased approximately 10 acres of land at the junction of North and Gregg Streets in Fayetteville on which a new sanctuary was completed in June of 1964. A second unit was constructed in 1966. In 1954, the first parsonage was built on east North Street which was used until a new and more modern parsonage was constructed on the church grounds in 1976.

Central Baptist Church has, from a small beginning, grown to a membership of 292. During its almost 50 years of existence, it has received approximately 2000 communicants. Of these, 30 were ordained deacons. The church has ordained 18 more making a total of 48 who have served the church in this capacity. These are: Ron Austin, George Baker, Lester Bale, Darrell Barker, T. N. Barker, Gordon Barnes, W. K. Bridgeman, Walter R. Brown, Jim Bullock, Harold Burch, W. T. Byars, J. D. Chastain, Jim Clements, Angelo Coppola, J. T. Duggar, Harold Flowers, E. D. Fowler, Tom Green, Edgar Hall, F. L. Haney, Jim Henry, Elvis Hillian, Carl Horton, Carl Johns, Wyman Jones, Russell Kelley, John Lamp, J. C. Mantooth, Terry Martin, Wayne Mays, Ray Miller, Ernst McWha, Tom O'Kelley, C. R. Paulk, Clarence Payne, Garland Pelton, Will Peterson, Virgil Ray, Floyd Rogers, Warren Rose, Neil Schmitt, Waymon Selman, Edgar Sharver, A. F. Talkington, Wally Upton, Ben Warren, Lloyd Warren, and Freddie Young.

Fourteen ministers have served as pastor of Central Baptist Church. These are: D. N. Jackson, Roy Sims, Sherron Jackson, Homer Gunn, Jack Dean, Edgar Sharver, J. L. Mitchell, Jack Smith, Charles Ashcraft, Gene Smith, Charles Law, Johnny Almond, Bob Jones and Bennie McWha. Of these, Edgar Sharver was first a lay-member, a licentiate and then the ordained pastor of the church. Charles Law and Johnny Almond joined the U. S. Military Service as commissioned chaplains. Besides Sharver the church has licensed the following men to preach the gospel: Carl Hurt, Johnny Goodman, Larry Pillow, Mark Hollingsworth, Dennis Ammons, Floyd Baker, R. L. Clark, Dale Head, Bobby Ward, Mark Harris, Alvin Garlington, Dean Goodman, John Mooney, Steve Westbrook, Kyle Guimon, and Jon Settlemoir. Several of these latter persons were formally ordained as ministers of Central or another church. Those men ordained to the ministry by Central Baptist Church include John W. Duggar, Johnny Goodman, Richard Sorrells, Larry Pillow and Steve Westbrook. Duggar went to Brazil, South America as a missionary where he established the first Missionary Baptist work in that country.

Central Baptist has, though a small church, been active in the organizing of new churches of like faith. In April, 1944, as the result of a revival meeting held near Lincoln, Arkansas by Central's pastor, T. S. Jackson, the church received 33 members by conversion or statement and sponsored the organization of the Summers Missionary Baptist Church. In 1951, the church initiated a mission effort in the Campbell community west of Greenland. This effort did not lead to the establishment of a church and thus was abandoned after a few years. On October 11, 1954, the church sponsored a mission work that resulted in the establishment of the First Landmark Baptist Church of Springdale. In the spring of 1960, a mission effort was begun in Truman, Arkansas, largely as a result of some former members of Central moving to that area. With the guidance of Eugene Reagan and sponsored by Central Baptist, the mission moved to Jonesboro, and on June 29, 1961, Grace Missionary Baptist Church of Jonesboro was organized. After this church reached a level of self-sufficiency, Elder Reagan, sponsored again by Central Baptist, established a mission point on October, 1964, at Siloam Springs, Arkansas, and in March, 1965, the congregation was formally organized into a mission of Central Baptist Church. This effort culminated in the organization of the Landmark Baptist Church of Siloam Springs. In addition to sponsoring the organization of churches, leaders from Central worked with Missionary Eugene Reagon during the late 1950s in the restoration of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, one of the oldest churches in Benton county located northwest of Lowell. It also gave material support to several other new churches, i. e., Faith Baptist at Rogers, Landmark Baptist at Tahlequah, Oklahoma, Antioch at Bartlesville, Oklahoma, the Missionary Baptist Church, Huntsville, Arkansas, and Grace Baptist at Bowie, Maryland. The church has likewise actively supported mission efforts in Japan, Mexico, Australia, Peru, Hawaii, and India.

Up to 1955, churches of the Missionary Baptist faith had no ministry directed toward college campuses and especially the Missionary Baptist students attending college. Roy Reid, pastor of Pauline Missionary Baptist Church at Monticello, Arkansas, and Edgar A. Sharver, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Fayetteville, developed the concept of a Missionary Baptist Student Fellowship that would be directed toward the spiritual and christian growth of Baptist college students. The first Fellowship ws organized at the Pauline Church of Monticello, with the Central Baptist Church of Fayetteville organizing one soon after for students on the University of Arkansas campus. The Fellowship has grown under the sponsorship of local Baptist churches so that units exist on or near most major college campuses in Arkansas and many campuses in other states.

Central Baptist Church provided leadership in supporting full and part-time missionaries to college campuses with the objective of organizing Fellowships wherever a nucleus of Missionary Baptist students could be identified. In recent years emphasis has been given to having a leader, or director, supported in part by a local church and in part by cooperating churches, work as a minister to the Missionary Baptist students on the respective college campuses. At Central, those who have worked as Missionary Baptist Student Fellowship ministers include William Vanguilder, Johnny Goodman, Richard Sorrells, Larry Pillow, Dubs Byers, Floyd Baker, Joe Jones, Bennie McWha and Dan Keller. This program has contributed to the retention of the talents and loyalty of Missionary Baptist college graduates in Missionary Baptist churches throughout the country.

Many persons have experienced spiritual re-birth and christian development and new churches have been organized as a result of the evangelistic programs of Central Baptist Church. As of this date (January, 1988) none of the charter members belong to Central although about half are still living. Some of the oldest members in terms of continuous affiliation with central are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Warford, Mrs. Mae Hillian, Mrs. Margie Warren and Mrs. Lela Thomas.

Central Baptist Church cooperates with the Fayetteville Missionary Baptist Association, the State Association of Missionary Baptist Churches and the American Baptist Association.

Central Methodist Church, South. Corner of West Dickson Street and Highland Avenue. Erected in 1899, occupied until 1953.

Central United Methodist Church

This look at Methodist history in Fayetteville is concerned with the 150-year history of what is now Central United Methodist Church from its founding in 1832 to the Sesquicentennial year of 1982 with added notes for the following five years. In this span of one and one-half centuries, the church has grown from a little band of some sixteen persons, meeting in a home, to a congregation of more than 2,300; from a small frame building to a complex of connected red brick building—a sanctuary and two educational buildings.

The old brick church on West Center Street. This was the second church building, erected in 1868 and occupied for thirty-one years.

"There are few parishes in the state of Arkansas that are older in continuous service than the Fayetteville Church, and indeed it ranks among the first west of the Mississippi. The beginnings of it were similar to so many other frontier community churches". So states R. E. L. Bearden, in Flashback. Even before the church was established in 1832, there were Methodist preachers in Arkansas Territory and in Washington County.

The Lodowick Brodie home, south of the Fayetteville public square was the meeting place for the newly-organized church. A group of Methodists, some of them related, were invited to meet for the purpose of organizing a church. This group may have met in the home for three or four years. In doing this, the congregation followed the custom of the time.

The site of the first church building was on the north side of West Center Street, about 150 feet west of the square. The lot was donated by Mr. Brodie in 1836. Campbell's History states that the church was built in 1840.

This building has been described as "a modest frame building", and was destroyed in the troubled times of the Civil War, probably by Southern men, to prevent the establishment of a fort by the Federals.

The Washington Circuit first appeared in the Journal of the Conference with the assignment in 1831. The name of the circuit was changed to Fayetteville in 1842. In 1857, with a membership of fifty-eight, the charge became a station - that is to say, the Fayetteville Church supported a full-time minister. Between 1862 and 1865, the church did not have a pastor. In 1866, it was again on circuit, and in 1874 the church was reactivated as a station.

The next building was a small brick church, built on the original site. Some references show the building as 1868, but it probably was not started before 1871 and completed in 1872. The 1907 History, page 13, states that in this second building, the people worshipped for thirty-one years. From the Journal of Bishop Wightman who visited Fayetteville in 1872 "... handsome brick church had just been completed except seats and pulpit. Did not dedicate church". This building was probably completed the same year the University was founded as Arkansas Industrial University. It is known that the building served until the end of the century, when it became a storage building and later a blacksmith shop, before giving way to progress and becoming a parking lot.

The church in Fayetteville was established under the jurisdiction of the Methodist Episcopal Church which was the one principal denomination for sixty years, from 1784 until 1844. Then for almost a century, there were two Methodist churches, one of which had the word "South" in its title. Their backgrounds, origins, disciplines and spiritual convictions were nearly identical. It is an oversimplification to say that the division was due to the question of slavery, but it was a problem relating to slavery that precipitated the break. The first General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was held in 1846.

The Civil War brought the church in the south the same strife, division and hardship that all other societies knew. Brutality and evil, as well as nobility and Christian character, could be found in both armies. An identification of the problems of this time can be found in the materials of William Sherman, long-time minister and native son who wrote: "From 1861 to 1864, the war years, the work was very difficult, and our progress was slow. Many of the men had gone to war. Their families suffered untold hardships. The church burned; preachers were scarce. But the church survived. It was built upon a rock and the ravages of war could not destroy it."—Methodism in Fayetteville survived this critical time through a determination to maintain its identity.

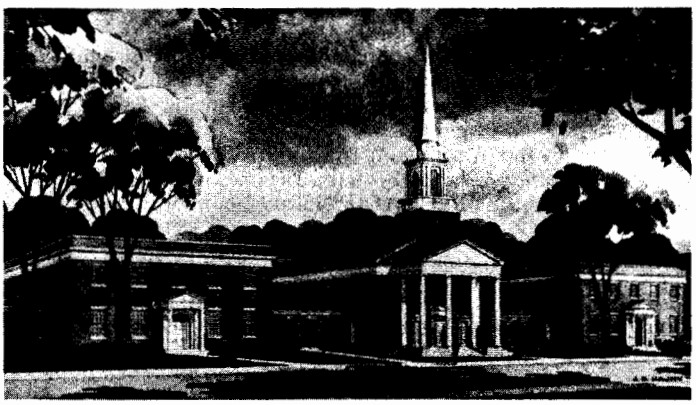
The oldest written record for Central United Methodist Church is the Quarterly Conference Journal of the Fayetteville District dated 1866. It is written in longhand and entries are still legible. The journal begins with the return of the Confederate soldiers in the winter of 1866, and tells a story of extreme privation of the truly genuine and noble men and women who carried the load of rebuilding a stricken society.

"We Girls" was started for younger women of the church in 1885, and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society (formed in 1833) was organized here in 1887. The Women's Home Missionary Society was established here in 1901 and the two were merged in 1915.

A lovely silver communion set consisting of the pitcher and two chalices is still cherished by the church. The date of their purchase is not known (they were a gift to the church by We Girls) but the use of the single chalice in communion was abandoned about 1905 in methodism which means that the set must be much older than that.



The three-building facility now used by Central was built facing Dickson Street with the sanctuary centered at the end of East Street. Sanctuary was constructed in 1953, with total facility completed in 1961.

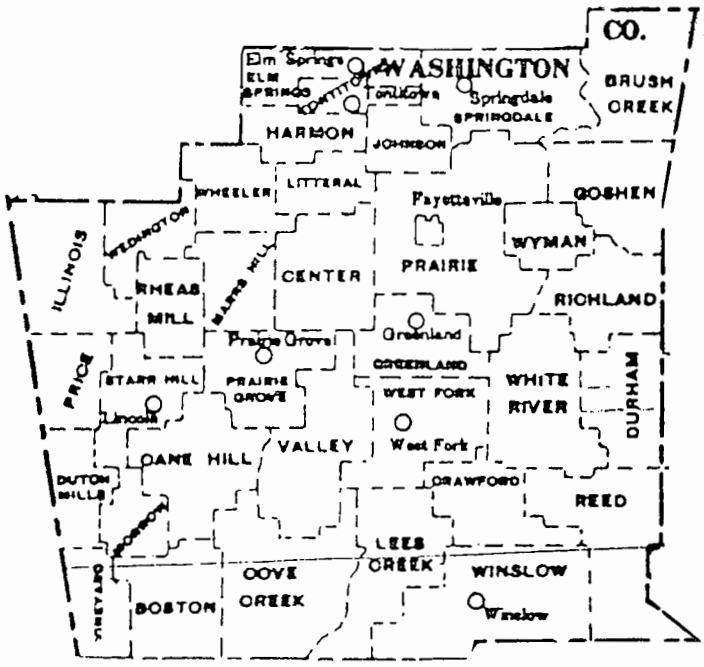
Fayetteville lost its "pioneer" nature and started to take on the characteristics of a county seat town in the closing years of the 19th century. In 1899, a lot was purchased on Dickson Street and a new church constructed. Dr. John Buchanan, a strong, scholarly, well-beloved churchman and educator, along with G. W. Droke and Major Elias Chandler were most active in getting the new church building. Research about the structure records it as being the "Akron Plan" in which the entrance into a vestibule was through the square bell tower then into the sanctuary. There were three sections of pews and a curved altar rail. The building dominated the corner of Dickson and Highland Streets, and was adjacent to the sidewalk. The seating capacity was approximately 600.

The church, responding to the general advancement, observed its 75th anniversary in 1907 with a membership of 660, a building destined to last for almost a half century, and with strong programs for its young people, including University students.

The years from 1907 to 1932 seem to have been relatively peaceful except for World War I, and were years of advancement for Central Methodist Church as it grew in proportion to the Fayetteville community. Membership nearly doubled. The church was deeply interested in, and gave support to, two local projects that were a part of the Conference program: The Western Methodist Assembly on Mt. Sequoyah (established in 1920 and dedicated in 1922) and the Wesley Foundation at the University of Arkansas (established in 1924).

The Woman's Societies developed more rapidly, and took an increasingly active part in the affairs of the church. Wesley Hall was completed in 1925 mainly to accommodate the church school and offices. The Wesley Brotherhood was organized in January 1926, and later became "Methodist Men". In 1924, the Bulletin was established as a regular periodical to list church services, make announcements and chronicle points of interest. Except for certain summer periods, the Bulletin, now designated as the Messenger, has been published continuously.

Central Methodist Church observed its 100th Anniversary on September 9, 10, 11, 1932. A history of the first 100 years was written by Dr. D. Y. Thomas, and a booklet prepared by the pastor, Reverend William Sherman, recounted the history of the church. A pageant: The World is my Parish—John Wesley, was written by Miss Jobelle Holcomb, and was presented at the Greek Theatre on Sunday evening, September 11, 1932.



WASHINGTON COUNTY 1930

The years from 1932 to 1957, the first quarter of its second century, were highly significant years for Central Methodist Church. In 1932, there was an economic depression; in 1941, the Second World War, and then again in 1950 the Korean "conflict". During this time, however, there were years of great prosperity and the church grew in size and activity.

One of the most important and far reaching pieces of legislation in the history of the church was the reuniting of three great divisions of Methodism in 1939 to form The Methodist Church. In 1968, after joining with the Evangelical United Brethren the name became United Methodist Church.

In 1940, memorial chimes were added to the organ. The church nursery was open during worship services beginning in 1941, and a Prayer Chapel was built between the Church and Wesley Hall in 1946.

By the early 1950s, the need for larger facilities was again evident when attendance of nearly 900 on many Sundays crowded into space built to accommodate 660. The building that was opened "for the worship of God and service to man" on Sunday morning, March 22, 1953 was much in contrast to the previous buildings, and was "strict, traditional New England Colonial architecture".

Property adjacent to the old sanctuary and extending west along Dickson Street to the Post Office was purchased to provide the site for the new sanctuary and an education building. The new sanctuary, facing Dickson and centered at the end of East Street, is of red brick with white trim. Four columns across the front support the roof of the portico. Above the portico, the tall, slender spire terminates in a six-foot cross of stainless steel that stands 124 feet from the level of the street.

The sanctuary is built in the form of a cross. The Nave, the main part of the worship area, and the Chancel area form the upright part of the cross, and the transepts the cross arms. The ceiling at the center of the church is thirty-five feet high. The center of worship has a six-foot cross above the communion table, with a rose window sunburst of fired stained glass centered in the arch above. Below the window is a carving of the Descending Dove.

A parsonage was built in 1954. The old Sanctuary and the small Prayer Chapel which had been built between the church and Wesley Hall in 1946 were both demolished to make way for a new structure in 1955 which was called the Wesley Foundation Building. Located to the east, this structure was joined to the sanctuary by a covered walk, and became the second of the three-building facility. A new site on Maple Street was obtained for Wesley Foundation and the University of Arkansas Methodist Student Center was built in 1957.

The 125 years of continuous service was marked by the celebration on July 26-28, 1957. The pastor, Robert E. L. Bearden, introduced the activities with statements that included: "These years, and these men and women who lived them, have laid the foundation upon which we work today. We dare not ignore them, but rather must find inspiration there. . . .We are rightfully proud of our past. May our memory of the past be a challenge to our future that we may speak Christ's Word to the community as our forebearers have so loyally done in the past".

The celebration included the anniversary dinner and historical display, a narrative with music, "The Everlasting Song", presented in the sanctuary on Saturday, July 27, and the Sunday afternoon pilgrimage to Thornsberry Campground and Elm Springs.

In 1961, the Children's and Youth Building, the third unit of the facility, was added to the west of the Sanctuary and joined to it by a covered walk. The two-story building with approximately 18,000 square feet was planned for the educational activities of 500 children and youth from crib nursery through high school age students.

On December 14, 1969, the new Sanctuary was completely destroyed by fire. Services were continued in Wesley Hall while the church was rebuilt. Unfortunately, less than a year after moving back into the structure, another fire, on November 4, 1971 caused extensive interior damages to the sanctuary. Again, the congregation rebuilt using the same floor plan.

During the early 1980s, the addition of over 500 new families to the church rolls has resulted in a significant increase in membership. Physical plant changes included extensive remodeling of Wesley Hall to provide modern offices, classrooms, a new Fellowship Hall with modern kitchen facilities and a Memorial Chapel in the southeast area of the building. A new parsonage was purchased in 1981.

The Sesquicentennial Celebration, marking the 150 years of continuous service, had special emphasis during the month of October, 1982 and ended on Sunday afternoon October 31, with several hundred people joining the festive meal of roast pig and fried chicken with all the trimmings. Church history printed in the Messenger each Sunday for the month, special music and worship services, a display of historical materials, and a video tape of activities were all included in marking the event.

As an active and growing community of faith, Central Church of the 1980s continues to serve the needs of the total membership and the community with involvement in many areas. With a membership of approximately 2500, the programs of the church on Sunday as well as week-day activities are planned for all age groups. From the daycare facilities of Child Care and Mother's Day Out, through an active Youth Fellowship Program, Music Ministry, Scouting, a new focus serving single adults, divorce recovery seminars, United Methodist Women, Methodist Men, and the Golden Age Club, Central has an active part in the life and vitality of its members.

In the more than a century and a half of service, Central United Methodist Church has had eighty-one ministers assigned. Recognition has been given through the listing of the names on the marble tablets located on the east side of the sanctuary, in the collection of framed pictures in the north corridor of the Sanctuary, and the collection of biographies located in the History and Records collection.

The number of staff people has changed over the years, but two groups have become such a vital part of the ministry of the church that special recognition should be given. The first assignment of a second minister, with special responsibility for the University Methodist students, was made in 1924. Although the titles have varied, twenty persons have been assigned to this second position. The music program at the church worship services, as well as week-day activities, has shown rapid growth. Eight persons have served as Director of Music since the time of the 125th Anniversary celebration.

A listing of ministers who have served Central, those who were assigned as the second minister and the persons who have served as Director of Music since the 125th anniversary appear below.

Christian Church of Winslow

The Christian Church of Winslow was organized in 1908 or 1909. It was after a Reverend Lockhart, an evangelist, held a revival meeting in a building upstairs over the Stockburger Miller Mercantile.

This meeting seemed to spur Grace Reese Adkins and her husband, Ary, into the leadership required for establishing a Christian Church in Winslow and starting the building campaign that successfully ended with the construction of the church building in 1910.

Donations came from many sources including a summer guest at Mountain Lodge who generously gave money for the flooring. Another unexpected gift came from a contest held by the Pearson and Bogan General Store to find the "most popular girl in town".

One enterprising contestant, Miss Alice Kelley, promised to donate her prize, a piano, to the church if she was the winner. True to her word, she received the most votes and gave the piano to the church.

Upon completion, the front elevation of the church building was level to the road running in front of it. This road led out of Winslow to the east and south. The back of the building, however, appeared high since it sloped with the hillside. At first the building was supported with four rock pillars but a rock foundation and basement were later added.

Miss Ferrol Adkins, who retired in Edmond, Oklahoma, thought the building was constructed by her father, H. H. Adkins, and her brothers (known as some of the best carpenters of that period).

Services over the years were conducted by a Dr. Sears, of Fort Smith, who served as pastor for several years; and a Rev. Gilmore, of Van Buren; who served for several years, both commuted while serving.

Remembered for the longest pastorate is a Rev. H. Isenhower.

Some recall, as the best years of the Christian Church, as those times when J. J. Osborn and his family attended. He was school superintendent at that time and was called on to fill the pulpit when there was no supply pastor available.

The building served the community, and graduation ceremonies, piano recitals and even school plays were held there. However, it remained, off and on through the years, vacant to church services except for a wedding or funeral now and again.

In 1970, the Bunyard Community Church decided to come to Winslow for church services and received permission to use the vacant building.

Later, when the Friendship Baptist Church withdrew from the Winslow Baptist Church, the church building was used for services until their own church was completed.

Today its vacancy reminds us that life is temporary, even the life of a community church.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

The name "Church of Jesus Christ" should be self-explanatory: we are Christian disciples; the rest of our name—"Latter-day Saints"— is a designation intended to differentiate us from the early members of the church organized by Christ and referred to in the New Testament as "saints" Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

The church today is world-wide, with over six-million members, and is headed by a replica organization of the original church, with a prophet, twelve apostles, and ancillary officers. It does not have a paid ministry; each unit is staffed by people who earn their living in the regular business or professional way, while giving both time and means to serve the membership. Additionally, each year over 30,000 missionaries, mostly young college students and other singles, both male and female, also many retired couples, serve voluntarily and at their own expense to proseltye in a two-by-two format.

The church's start in northwest Arkansas was not auspicious. Yet, "from small beginnings are great things brought to pass". Referring to a lady who has seen the church grow from its early struggles until today, one can see that much has been accomplished. Mrs. Dortha Jo Imler has been a life-long resident of this area, and has prepared the following information.

"I was not a member of this church in its very earliest years in Fayetteville; that honor belongs to the Amos Gregory family. The missionaries were holding a weekly Sunday School in the Gregory home when I began attending in 1947. But, as I recall, I was the only other person at first besides the Gregory family. However, the missionaries began to bring other investigators and our Sunday School grew. There were also some Latter-day Saint students attending the University of Arkansas, so that we were eligible to meet in the old Arkansas Union on Maple Street.

"We were just beginning to see progress when a blow fell—the Gregory family decided to move to California. Thus we were left without sufficient priesthood holders to function as a branch of the church. But the Heavenly Father was aware of our problem and He answered our supplicatin. Before we had to miss a single meeting, two families moved here to join the University of Arkansas faculty. Then others moved here and more local people were baptized into membership. Soon we outgrew our room at the Union and moved to a rent-house on Taylor Street. There in 1952 we were officially organized into the Fayetteville branch. And to our joy the Gregorys returned, adding not only numbers but spiritual strength to our group, they continue to do today.

"It was not long until we had members coming to join with us from several nearby towns—even as far away as Harrison. We needed more space and moved again—this time into a vacant store on College Avenue. In spite of summer heat and winter cold (not to mention the traffic noise) we stayed there eleven years.

"During this time we purchased land in Springdale where we hoped to build a chapel of our own some day. Meanwhile we used the land to grow sweet potatoes for sale and started a building fund. Another move to better temporary accommodations took us into the old Nelson Mortuary near the Fayetteville square. Then the Springdale property was sold and a better piece of real estate was purchased on Zion Road. Finally, on this property in 1970 we built the first phase of our present beautiful and commodious building.

"I look back on the past years" concludes Sister Imler "as a time of both struggle and growth, but also as a time of spiritual preparation. Not having paid leaders, all service has been a labor of love. . .love for one another as well as for our Savior, Jesus Christ, and this had been our uniting and strengthening bond."

The Fayetteville members have progressed from being a tiny dependent Sunday School of the vast Central States Mission (covering at that time most of the central United States) to a full-fledged ward, a unit of a stake. A stake is a demographic and geographic area of at least 2,000 members, representing the stakes which support and strengthen a large and sheltering tent— the church. Since 1978, the Fayetteville Ward has been one of a dozen units of the Fort Smith-Arkansas Stake, with our fine new Stake Center recently completed in Fort Smith. Incidentally, the members in the Fort Smith area have experienced many of the same growing pains as we have, working to achieve ward status in their own area.

In this church, we believe in multiplying by dividing. Our memberships has become sufficiently large that, from the original Fayetteville group, four others have branched off: Springdale, Rogers, Huntsville and Siloam Springs, each strong units with brand new buildings of their own and staffed by local officers: depending upon size of membership, a bishop or branch president with two counselors, and as many auxiliary leaders as the group requires.

As growth continues, we anticipate the formation of new units both north and south of Fayetteville, so that soon we will see the creation of two stakes in our area, one north and one south of the Boston Mountains. When that happens, and with a membership of at least 2,000 in Fayetteville and surrounding towns, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will have come of age in northwest Arkansas.

Cumberland Presbyterian Church

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Prairie Grove was organized in 1831, soon after the founding of Prairie Grove. This was the first church to be organized in that community and was also used as the first school.

The Rev. Andrew (Uncle Buck) Buchanan came by oxcart from Cane Hill to organize the church and was the first pastor. Among the other early pastors were: the Reverends W. M. Reed, John Buchanan, James Carnahan, B. F. Totten, F. R. Earle, G. A. Henderson, J. H. Kelly and E. M. Freyschlag.

The first building erected was used by Union soldiers as a hospital, after the battle of Prairie Grove during the Civil War, and as winter quarters in 1863. After that it was partly torn down and the wood used for making coffins. The remainder was burned.

In later years, the church made application for reimbursement, and in 1905 the Federal government reimbursed it for the destruction of the building. With these monies, the pews in the third and present building were purchased in 1906.

The second building was a frame building, facing east. It stood back of the site of the third building, and it also was used as a school house. The third building, according to the church records, was erected in the late 1800s and dedicated in April of 1890.

The first Missionary Society was organized in 1862 and the first Christian Endeavor in 1897 by the Rev. John Kelly.

At a later time, the front of the church was remodeled, the vestibule being added with a small room on each side. After that the choir loft was added.

In the early 1950s, three Sunday school rooms were built across the back of the church. In 1959, the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Bethel Grove ceased to operate, and its building was given by Porter Presbytery to the Prairie Grove Church. It was annexed to the side of the main church building, and used as Sunday school rooms and as a fellowship hall.

Dowell's Chapel Church

Dowell's Chapel Church, a Presbyterian Church, was constructed of red brick. Some say the brick was made right on the property site. Captain W. F. Dowell was responsible for having the church built out on the road to Cato Springs, south of Fayetteville.

Captain Dowell was born in 1832 and died in 1909. His namesake (Dowell's Chapel Church) was dedicated to the Lord by the Reverends F. R. Earl and T. J. Molloy on November 25, 1887.

The first Sunday in December, Reverend Molloy moderated the organizational meeting and election of ruling elders. W. F. Dowell and F. L. Tankersley were the first ruling elders with S. F. Dowell appointed deacon. F. L. Tankersley was made clerk of session, and Reverend Molloy was called to preach once a month, the first Sunday of each month. This was to continue through the remainder of the Presbyterial year ending August 5, 1888.

On January 21, 1917, Rieff's Chapel Church united in a body with Dowell's Chapel Church. The incoming roll included: J. H. Kelly, Cecil Kelly, Garland Kelly, Fred Kelly, Ada Mae Kelly, Grace Kelly, Beulah Kelly, Alice Ruby Kelly, Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Elizabeth Wozencraft, Earl Cox, Harvey Rogers, Arthur Rogers, Sarah Lewis, and Mrs. M. A. Morelace. At that time, J. W. Stockberger was moderator and S. F. Dowell clerk of session.

The last session meeting of Dowell's Chapel Church was held April 10, 1927. Ed Freyschlag was pastor at the time.

Over the years the church served as a school. When first built, it was innovative with two red brick toilets out back with bricks laid so that there was ventilation.

Some of the Dowells who served were: Mrs. Sam Dowell, taught the first school year. Mr. Sam Dowell taught there and so did F. S. Root.

Three Dowells, Grace, Gladys and Louise Dowell all served as organists for Dowell's Chapel Church.

It is one of many churches that have been torn down over the years leaving only graves and tombstones as reminders that a churchyard once existed.

Elkins Community Church

The Elkins Community church is a multi-denominational fellowship of believers which consists of Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians who worshiped in unity of the Body of Christ since the building was built in 1870. The Presbyterians organized on April 3, 1831. They met in various places from 1831 to 1853. The Baptists organized the same year and the Methodists later.

Elkins Community Church - Elkins, Arkansas

In 1850, two acres of land were deeded to James Shultz near the main fork of the White River in Washington County. The following is a copy of the original deed dated September 27, 1850.

"From Henry Snider and Casander Snider to James Shultz Atles, by James Boone and before Robert McCamey J. P. For the sole use of the vicinage for a school and meeting house which shall be free for all denominations of Christians in good standing in their own church except that if there should be a church or churches established there, they shall have the exclusive rite to one Saturday and Sunday in each month".

A log building was constructed on the land and it was called the Union Meeting House. When it was burned during the Civil War, the church members built a wood frame building with a tall bell tower. In 1924, all denominations employed Reverend W. A. Downum as pastor. The minutes of the Union Sunday School on January 12, 1926 showed sixty-two members and five teachers (three male and two female) in attendance. The collection was $1.85 and the weather was cloudy. The superintendent was Mr. Beddingfield and the secretary was Ethel Stokenbury.

On March 23, 1947, the total enrollment was eighty-two and the offering was $4.96. Following is a list of names of the enrollment in March 1947: Minnie Stokenbury, Mrs. John Stokenbury, Hazel Shofner, Verd Shofner, Mrs. Cora Stokenbury, Elmer Carter, Nell Carter, Willie Stokenbury, Ted O'Neal, Pearl O'Neal, Esther Harris, Gertie Pool, Jack Carter, Rada Mae Carter, John Samuel Carter, James Kennon Carter, Jird Carter, Sherman Robbins, Moselle Robbins, Rex Robbins, Fannie Carrigan, Lydia Stokenbury, Nell Greenquist, Sandra Greenquist, Shirley Reed, Mava Nell Gilley, Mae Neal, Barry Marler, Joel Bunch, Jack Dareing, John Clinton Layton, Josephine Wentz, Mary Louise Cowan, Peggy Jo West, Patsy West, Oscar West, Margeret West, John Alvin Bunch, Edith Bunch, Ernest Bunch, Elsie Hood, Jimmie Toney, Daisy Toney, Roe Stokenbury, Sonya Stokenbury, Lela Barron, Wade Barron, Pat Barron, Mrs. Marler, Pauline Reed, Marcel Shumate, Tena Mae Yates, Panda Jean Shumate, Elizabeth Baker, Laverne London, Doris Henegar, Jean Henegar, Dorothy Smith, Bonnie Jordan, Bernice Gabbard, Doris Elkins and Joyce Elkins.

In 1949, the annex was added to the building. The record book for Sunday, June 28, 1953 shows seventy-one in attendance and the total offering was $6.76. Following is the election of officers; Mrs. Carrigan nominated H. H. Griffith for superintendent. The assistant was Ted O'Neal and teacher for the adult class was Carroll Elkins and substitute was Jim Carter. Other teachers were Wilma Wendt,, Mrs. West, Mrs. Gilliam, and Ellen Atha. The secretary was Pat Banion. The preachers were Dick Holmes, Reverend Langston, Burney Shell, Mr. Leake, Dick Meade and Mr. McCartney.

The Elkins Community Church has served the community by providing a meeting place for the Home Extension Club and the Cub Scouts, and in 1929 and 1930, it was used temporarily by the Elkins School. Miss Helen Woods had such a large group of students that she went to the Community Church for first and second grades. Rada Carter remembers where the church had a "Children's Day" once a year. All the children put on a program. They wore costumes and memorized lines to recite in front of the congregation. Another big event was the annual Christmas tree, when a large cedar tree was cut and brought to the church. Everyone gathered to exchange gifts.

Margeret West remembers when the church was surrounded by thick woods, but today there is a park between the church and the river and a well kept spacious lawn in front with large oak and hickory trees. The bell in the church tower still rings every Sunday morning calling the people of the Elkins Community to come and worship.

Faith Assembly of God

Easter Sunday 1969 was the date of the first church service of Faith Assembly of God Church. The first service was held in a building at 600 West Grove Street in Springdale which was then occupied by a Seven Day Adventist Church who allowed the building to be used for our services on Sundays and Wednesdays. Attendance at the first service was approximately 32 people. The first pastor was Rev. Paul Witten. After a few weeks the church moved to an office complex on Watson Street. There we were able to accommodate our regular church services. However, our Sunday School classes were held across the street in the city park in good weather and in inclement weather were held in homes in various parts of town.

The first five acres of property was purchased on the west side of Springdale on Highway 68, which was at that time not in the city limits. The two lane highway was tree lined and very sparsely populated. A house was on the property which served as Sunday School class rooms and a double wide mobile sanctuary was provided by the Arkansas District of the Assemblies of God denomination. Attendance continued to increase and the house on the property was sold and moved and a building program was begun. The first phase was completed and dedication services were held on October 8, 1972. That building too was quickly filled to capacity and a second building was constructed to house Red Shoe School and to also serve as classrooms which were badly needed. The church was able to purchase an additional 5 acres of adjoining property. The third building constructed was completed and dedicated on May 5, 1972. The seating capacity is approximately 620.

Charter members who formed the church were Harold McCartney family, the Ira Myrick family, and the Lee Taylor family. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have since moved away. However, the Myricks and the McCartneys still attend the church at the present time.

Under the direction of the present pastor, Dr. John Eller, the church is growing and fulfilling it's commission and vision to minister to the needs of a growing community in this northwest Arkansas area.

The following is a list of former pastors: Paul Witten 1969—70, Lindell Ballenger 1970—77, Mike Cheshier 1977—78, Ed Eaton 1978—79, Ed Miller 1979—80, Larry Moore 1980—84, Gary Martin 1984—86, W. R. Morrison 1986—87, and John Eller 1987-until the Eastern sky splits or if you do not find my possum you can go by way of grave.

Family Worship Center

This church was founded in 1948 by a group of people who had been attending Greenland Community Church. They decided to build a church of their own. They purchased a lot of Whillock Street and set forth to build. Reverend Alfred Whitely conducted a tent revival while work was progressing on the church, donating two weeks' labor on it as he was a carpenter. The other men pitched in, and soon the building was completed and was christened Peoples Church and remained by that name until much later when it was changed to Family Worship Center. In 1980, land was purchased on Heather Ridge on Highway 170, two miles south of the bypass; and a larger, new church was built as well as a parsonage.

Family Worship Center Church as it stands today (formerly People's Church) organized forty years ago. Wanda Easterling is a charter member of this church.

Several pastors have come and gone during the forty years this church has been in operation. They are Reverend Alfred Whitely who served as pastor several years. Others were George Bolinger, Gib Clark, Neola Moore, George Clay, Cooper, Dee Smith, Otho Tackett, J. W. Depew, L. J. Earlick, Jim Morris and Lonnie Burks. Reverend Don Thomas began pastoring in May 1974 and remained ten years. Next came Don Hughes who served one year. Reverend Roger Phillips began in 1985 and is still our pastor. We welcome all who would like to attend services.

Farmington Ebenezer Methodist Church

The Farmington Ebenezer Methodist Church was organized in 1833. Five couples: Josiah and Sarah Trent, William and Matilda Woodruff, William and Elizabeth Polson, Samuel and Matilda Woolsey and James and Jane Kinnibrugh met and decided to build a church.

Farmington Methodist Church

A building plot was offered by the Kinnibrughs and a small log building was erected, with one door and a window. Split log benches and one song book Mrs. Kinnibrugh brought from Virginia. The singing was read line by line and led by the song leader. A Circuit Rider came once each month for services or Memorial service for those who died during the month.

In 1850 they moved to a larger building donated by Andrew Allen. In 1891 W. H. and Isabella Kinnibrugh Engles offered the present location on White Street for the church and parsonage building. A white frame building with a bell tower was erected. The building had a large auditorium with local built pews, a twenty-five foot beaded ceiling, ten cathedral type windows and a Memorial window on the front with names of the founders of the church.

In recent years improvements have been added including: Sunday School rooms, kitchen and dining room, bath, church office and library; the pews rebuilt and covered with velvet cushions, velvet drapes, electric organ, central heating system, stained glass windows (designed and made by Don Hill assisted by Joe Leming). Many other improvements have been added throughout the years.

The 150th Anniversary was held June 1983, Bishop Kenneth Hicks, Little Rock, Arkansas, District Superintendent William Connell, Fayetteville, and Reverend Muriel Peters, Pastor Farmington United Methodist Church (first church was called Ebenezer) were in charge of service. A large crowd of former members and friends of local families and "old timers" attended. The United Methodist Women held a reception after the service.

Founders of the Farmington Ebenezer Church have three (3) descendants who are active members in 1987. They are Barbara Brooks Mitchell from the Allen family. Irene Engels, Lewis and Russell Broyles from the Kennibrugh family.

Fellowship Bible Church

Fellowship Bible Church began in 1964, because of the desire of a group of believers in Springdale for emphasis on a deeper knowledge from the Word of God. Under the leadership of Dr. Ed Wheat and Raymond Brushaber a move was started to establish a Bible-teaching church with an emphasis on an in-depth study of the Bible.

Carl R. Chewning, with a Master of Theology from Dallas Theological Seminary, became the first pastor of the Bethany Bible Church with 23 charter members. Meetings were held in a number of different locations, beginning with the old Salem Lutheran Church, the basement of the old library, Dr. Wheat's office building, and the old Sisco Funeral Home.

On May 18, 1969, a new building on three acres of land at the corner of Emma Avenue and Campbell Dr. was dedicated to house those believers coming together to study the Word of God. Dr. J. Vernon McGee, then pastor of the Church of the Open Door in Los Angeles, California, and speaker for "Thru the Bible" broadcast, was the dedication speaker.

Three sound Bible teaching pastors followed—John Broughton, Tom Ellis and Bruce Cushman. Each contributed to the Christian growth in the lives of this group of believers.

In May, 1981, under the leadership of Lowry Foster, Master of Divinity from Western Conservative Baptist Seminary in Portland, Oregon, the church took on a new name, Fellowship Bible Church. "Fellowship" indicating emphasis on forming close personal relationships. "Bible" addresses the affirmation to the truth of the scriptures as the inspired inerrant Word of God, as the only standard of authority. "Church" defines that group of people committed to these concepts.

Fellowship Bible Church stands today as a Bible teaching church where God's Word builds Godly relationships and is looking to a future building program to more adequately serve the believers.

John Glasser became the present pastor on Palm Sunday, March 23, 1986. John received his Master of Divinity from the Grace Theological Seminary in 1976 at Winona Lake, Indiana, taught at Citadel Bible College, and came to Springdale from an ElDorado Church. Under his leadership Fellowship Bible Church is realizing it's ultimate purpose to be "to the praise of His glory (Eph. 1:13)" in reaching out to unbelievers and in building up believers by teaching the Word of God, encouraging fellowship, and by worship of Him, who made it all possible.

First Assembly of God Church

It was the year of 1932 that a very successful revival campaign was held in a tent in Springdale, Arkansas, under the leadership of Mrs. Edith Murrell. As a result of that revival, the First Assembly of God Church was organized in the city of Springdale.

Under the pastorate of Rev. Roy Murrell, the first church home was constructed of stone in 1934 at 700 North Thompson Street. The building was expanded during the pastorate of Rev. Oren Paris, Sr. (1945/1949) to accommodate the growing Sunday School.

Rev. Omer Jarrell served as pastor from 1949-1951 followed by Rev. J. K. Lack from 1951/1953. When he was forced to resign due to ill health, Rev. Lack's son-in-law, Rev. Lonnie Nelson was called to serve as pastor. In 1953, under Nelson's ministry, the church purchased a building site at 814 West Huntsville. A 30' by 80' two-story educational building was constructed with the lower floor serving as the place of worship until the auditorium was completed. After four years of construction, during which time the congregation volunteered most of the labor, the building program was completed. It served as a place of worship for this congregation for the next sixteen years.

Rev. C. L. Dixon came to the church in 1959 and served until 1967. In the fall of 1960 a lot was purchased and a beautiful parsonage was built. It was during this time that the radio program "Family Altar Time" began to be broadcast daily.

Rev. Paul Jech pastored from 1967/1970. During his stay there, remodeling and decoration were done on the church and parsonage.

In 1970, under the ministry of Rev. Kenneth Woods, the congregation purchased a twelve acre tract of land at 1605 Robinson Avenue.

In 1974 the present brick veneer building containing approximately 15,000 square feet was constructed.

Serving as pastors since then were Rev. Blan Stout, 1975/1976; Rev. Cecil Barham, 1976/1980; Rev. Gerald Jordan, 1980/1984; Rev. Kenneth Woods, 1984/1985; and Rev. Gary Stone who is the present pastor.

First Baptist Church

Just five years after the Civil War. . .

On Saturday, February 19, 1870, the First Baptist Church of Springdale (known as the Landmark Liberty Church) was conceived in the hearts of thirteen men and women. It was organized in a home near the present location of AQ Chicken house. It was in 1871 that our church, cooperating with the Regular Baptist, the Methodist, and the Missionary Baptist, built its first worship facility in which each met one Saturday and Sunday of each month. The building still stands on Huntsville Street.

In 1894, a lot on Holcomb Street was purchased and in 1899 a building was dedicated to be used by our church alone. Cost of the building was $3,000.00. In 1886, our church changed its name to Springdale Baptist Church and in 1910 we became known as the First Baptist Church of Springdale.

In 1915, after a tornado took the top of the steeple off, our building was remodeled. In 1918, we were one of the Charter Churches to found the Washington County Baptist Association. In 1930, the First Baptist Church "orchestra was founded which aided the choir and the church in music".

In May 1955, a new worship facility was completed and the old building was remodeled into a chapel. In 1962, another educational unit and the fellowship hall of the church was built.

Growth and need for more space continued as our church relocated to its present 30 acres. On June 4, 1979, we entered two educational wings and a temporary worship center. On February 14, 1988, we entered our new 3,000 seat worship facility as God continues to use First Baptist Church of Springdale to reach the people of northwest Arkansas for Christ.

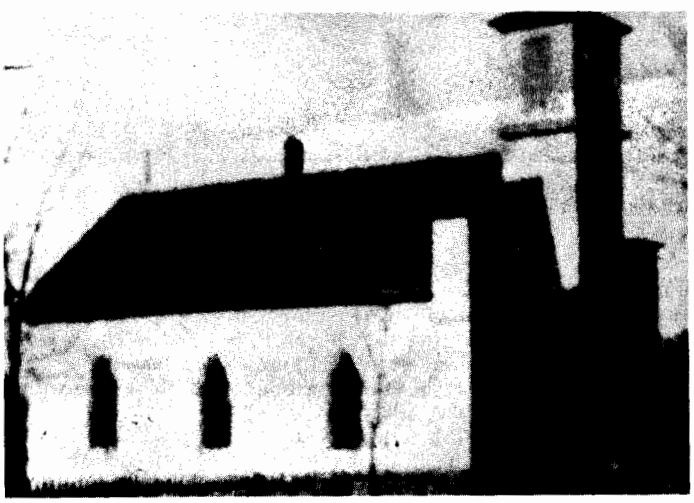
First Baptist Church of Fayetteville

The First Baptist Church of Fayetteville is located on the corner of College and Dickson, centrally located on one of the busiest intersections in Fayetteville. Its location is also a historic site.



First Baptist Church - 1879

Douglas Jones, in his book, Hickory Cured, says: "On that same corner over a hundred years ago, soldiers of the North and South swapped musket balls and clubbed out each other's brains the only time Americans stooped to kill each other over politics." Through the providence and power of God this site has been transformed from a place of war and death to a place where the love and grace of God is proclaimed, and where Christians meet for fellowship and worship and to study and train for lives of Christian ministry and service.

The First Baptist Church of Fayetteville, Arkansas, was organized at the home of Edward Peer about a mile south of Fayetteville, in the valley, in August 1854. The Rev. John Mayes, Mrs. Sarah Mayes, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peer, Miss Martha Mayes, Prof T. B. Van Horne, Mrs. Clara Watson, W. Z. Mayes, and John W. Buie were "Charter Members". There were others, but their names cannot be determined at this late date since in the stress and flux of the Civil War, first records were destroyed.

They worshipped in their homes until the war scattered and decimated their numbers. From 1863 to 1866 no services were held. Because of official position and threats against his life, their pastor, the Rev. John Mayes, was not allowed to cross the valley south of town to his log house to see his family. For two years during the war, in order to see him, they had to come up to the public square.

After peace was restored, when the membership got together, they numbered nine. They had thirty accessions the first month.

As other denominations were doing, they held services in turn at the Masonic Hall (which still stands at the corner of South Block Street and West Rock Street) and in homes until 1879.

Pastor Mayes was a master mechanic and builder, and he did much of the actual work on the first church building belonging outright to Fayetteville Baptists. Through the efforts of "Uncle Johnny", as the pastor was affectionately known, the lot, now number 223 North College, was given for the church site. The structure was 30 x 100 feet, had a bell tower over the vestibule, and served all purposes until 1908. The Rev. James P. Eagle (afterwards governor of Arkansas) dedicated the structure. He was then president of the Arkansas Baptist Convention, and the Convention was meeting with the Fayetteville brethren in their new place of worship in the year 1883.

Pastors serving this church up to 1906 have been John Mayes, T. P. Boone, B. W. N. Sims, C. W. Callahan, M. L. Ball, B. G. Maynard, Jefferson Davis Cook, Francis Boseman, O. Harris, Harvey Beauchamp, and E. W. Denham.

In 1906, Dr. W. A. Whittle was called to this pastorate. In the course of a year or two he began agitation for a new church building. This resulted in the purchase of the home site of Dr. J. P. Hight at the corner of College and Dickson, and in selling the old church building and a lot to J. T. Barlow who converted the old church building into a commodious home.

Contract for the new church was let for $38,000 in 1907. It was dedicated in 1908, by Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, Texas. At this time the membership was about 150. There was an unpaid balance of $30,000 on the contract. W. S. Campbell said that the sum was pledged in twenty minutes after Dr. Truett, noting the heroism and sacrifice which had made the building possible, made an appeal and said "Behold what God hath wrought, who can deny Him now?" Campbell also notes that the pipe organ was a gift from John D. Rockefeller.

Fayetteville's Centennial Year was 1928, and it was the 75th year since the founding of the church. Under the leadership of consecreated membership, and such exemplary pastors as M. L. Shepherd, O. P. Bishop, M. P. Hunt, L. E. Barton, H. H. Burton, B. L. Ayers, C. E. Wilbanks, F. W. Cornett, J. T. Gillespie, Blake Smith, O. L. Gibson, and Walter L. Johnson, this brief factual narrative spans the scourge of two World Wars a cataclysmic depression and two periods of reconstruction.

Dr. Andrew M. Hall served as pastor from August 16, 1953-February 9, 1970. Under his leadership, the present sanctuary was constructed at a cost of $500,000. It was dedicated February 14, 1960. The church also purchased the lot across Dickson Street on the south for $18,000. It is used for a parking lot. Other pastors who have served the church are Dr. Leighton Paige Patterson (July 16, 1970-February 16, 1975), Dr. Nathan Larry Baker (July 1975-November 15, 1978) and Dr. Jere D. Mitchell (November 11, 1979 to present).

First Baptist, Fayetteville has been, and continues to be, a mission minded church. This is expressed through its constant financial support of the ministries of the Washington-Madison Baptist Association, the Arkansas Baptist State Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention.

It has also sponsored missions which have become churches, including the Immanual and Ridgeview Baptist Churches of Fayetteville, and the First Baptist Church of Greenland.

One of its most vital and significant missions has been its ministry to the University of Arkansas. This has been expressed through its direct ministry, and through the Baptist Student Union. Thousands of U of A students, faculty, administration and staff have received the benefits of its ministry.

First Baptist initiated the ministry of the Baptist Student Union on the U of A campus. For years the church provided its leadership through volunteer or part time leaders. Later, it was instrumental in getting the Arkansas Baptist State Convention to provide workers for this ministry, and to purchase the property at the corner of Maple and Lindell Streets where the Baptist Student Center is located. They provided $14,000 toward the construction and furnishing of the present Baptist Student Center. And, they have been the most generous supporter of the operating budget of the U of A Baptist Student Union from its beginning until the present time. Jamie Jones, director of the Baptist Student Union at the University from 1951—1988 says "I know of no church anywhere which has been more generous and supportive of the ministry of Baptist Student Union than the First Baptist Church of Fayetteville. They initiated this ministry, they led the Arkansas Baptist Convention to provide facilities and full-time professional leadership for it, and they have supported its local budget generously for many years. I am deeply grateful to God for this church and its concern for students and for its support of the Baptist Student Union."

In recent years the church has purchased 5 buildings on the east side of Highland Street, initiated new ministries and increased its staff as it plans for a more extensive and comprehensive Christian witness and ministry in the future.

One cannot read the history of First Baptist Church without bowing his head with reverence to those stalwart dedicated preachers who pioneered the Christian path in Fayetteville.

Members of our church have dedicated their lives to Christian service in order that future generations might inherit a Christian organization that "knows Christ and will make him known".

First Baptist Church of Greenland

The First Baptist Church of Greenland was started after much prayer as a mission of the First Baptist Church of Fayetteville. The land was purchased by the State Mission Board. The mother church bought a trailer church with a sanctuary that seated approximately one-hundred people, four classrooms and two bathrooms. Two very precious people, Harry Parker and Edna Campbell were voted by the First Baptist Church to become directors of the new Greeland Mission.

First Baptist Church of Greenland

On June 25, 1967 was our first service. We had forty-one in Sunday School, fifty-two in church service and thirty-seven joining as charter members. Our first pastor, Gilbert Morris came in July 1967. We soon outgrew the church trailer and in the fall of 1967, a new sanctuary was started. The new sanctuary contained eight classrooms and two double bathrooms. We moved into the new sanctuary in February 1968.

Again, we outgrew this sanctuary in the fall of 1971, a larger sanctuary and fellowship hall were started. The completion and dedication took place on Sunday, January 30, 1972. At this time, we became an independent church and had a "burning of the notes." The dedication sermon was preached by Pastor, Gilbert Morris. We will be forever grateful and thankful to our mother church for this accomplishment.

Our church was struck by lightning on August 5, 1985, in which part of it burned and the remainer was badly smoke damaged. While being rebuilt, we held services in the same trailer we had first started our mission in eighteen years previously. This trailer was acquired and set up as such, that a Sunday service was not missed. This same trailer (formerly owned by our mother church) has been responsible for starting other churches in this area. At this time, when our church was rebuilt, a new recreational building was added. To date, we have 82 members.

Presently serving as deacons are: Claude (Jack) Center, Jr., Lance Martin, Deion Martin, R. D. McClelland and Harold Pape.

The following have been full-time pastors of our church: Gilbert Morris, July 1967-May 1969, Chuck Bryant, July 1969-August 1972, Jack Lawson, September 1973-December 1974, John Evans, April 1975-June 1976, Don Warford, June 1976-July 1979, L. C. Roots, December 1979-July 1984 and Buddy Stockton, October 1984 to present.

First Baptist Church of Prairie Grove

The Pleasant Valley Church of Christ was organized in 1871, at Liberty School House, three miles southwest of Prairie Grove, Arkansas. In 1890, the Liberty School Building was torn down and its members met in the home of various members for about one year. At the end of that year, the membership moved their worship services to the public school building in Prairie Grove and then to the College Hall in Prairie Grove, for a brief period of time. In 1893, a church building was constructed in Prairie Grove. In 1894, the name of the church was changed to Prairie Grove Baptist Church.

The Prairie Grove Baptist Church was affiliated with the Fayetteville Baptist Association until 1918, when it joined with three other Baptist Churches to form the Washington County Baptist Association. It continued in the fellowship of the association when the name was changed to the Washington-Madison Baptist Association and has continued in that fellowship until the present date.

The tasks of evangelism, discipleship, and Christian education are effected through the Sunday School, church training and mission organizations.

The present facility consists of a 250 capacity sanctuary, education buildings, ample parking facilities, and a fellowship hall.

First Christian Church of Fayetteville

The First Christian Church from its inception has been a member of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). The foundation of the church in Fayetteville took form on the arrival of Robert Graham, February 2, 1848. Robert was a graduate of Bethany College, a Disciple College, and studied under its President, Alexander Campbell the son of one of our early founders, Thomas Campbell. Robert graduated July 4, 1847, and started a revival trip westward spending some time in Kentucky and Tennessee and at Little Rock and Batesville in Arkansas. Although there was no Christian Church in Fayetteville when Graham arrived, there were seven persons living in Fayetteville who had been members of Disciple churches.

Upon his arrival in Fayetteville Robert Graham was invited to hold a revival in the Methodist Church. By the end of the month of February the church had organized with about 50 members. Graham continued his tour of Arkansas and Louisiana and when he returned to his home in Pennsylvania, he received a call to become the first pastor in the new church in Fayetteville. He arrived during the Christmas holidays in December 1848.

The church first held its meetings in the courthouse. Later they used the lower floor of the Masonic Hall. It was not until 1859 that our first church building was erected on the southwest corner of the public square.

In addition to his duties as a pastor, Robert Graham founded a school. Prior to the establishment of the state university and land grant institution in the late 1860s, Arkansas had no state universities but did provide for chartering colleges by the legislature. The first, and recognized state wide as the best, chartered on December 14, 1852 as Arkansas College, was started in Fayetteville by Robert Graham. He was the president and taught classes in the college.

At the outbreak of the Civil War the student body of the College and church membership was decimated. The Christian church became a hospital after the battle of Prairie Grove on December 7, 1862 and a few weeks later the building was burned. Arkansas College was burned the night of March 4, 1862.

Members of First Christian organized after the war and again met in the Masonic Hall. In 1869 a new church building was started on the lot of the site of Arkansas College. Membership grew and 30 years later exceeded the capacity of the church building. A new building was started in August 1900 and first opened for worship January 6, 1901 with Dr. J. H. Garrison preaching the dedication sermon. Later, in 1912, this building too was destroyed by fire.

The present church building was started soon after the fire and completed in 1914. Difficult times followed with the first world war and the depression of the 1930s but dedicated ministers and lay people helped the congregation to grow. Cooperative programs with other congregations in Fayetteville became a way of life. The congregation is deeply involved in community affairs and has contributed greatly to the present and future development of Fayetteville and Northwest Arkansas.

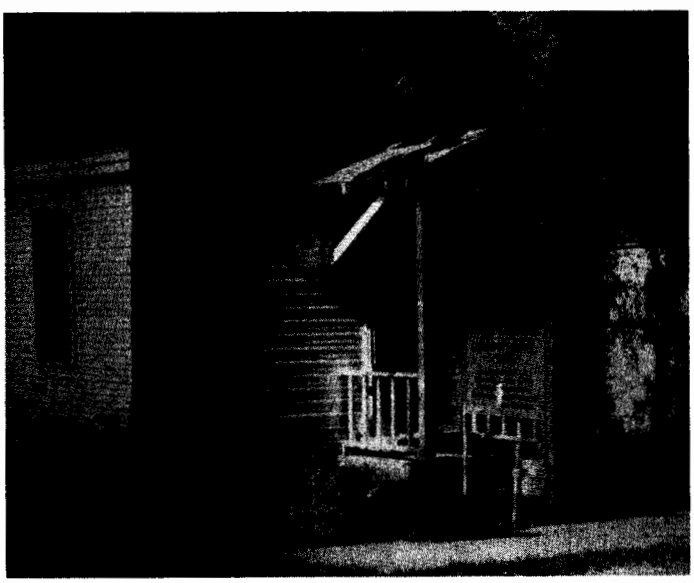
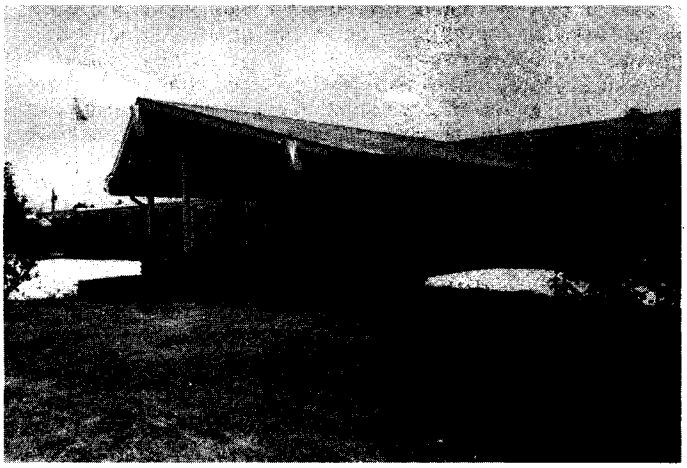
First Church of Christ, Scientist

Standing before First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 1021 North Fraker Street in Springdale, a stranger could scarcely be aware of the historical steps which eventually culminated in the construction of this present edifice.

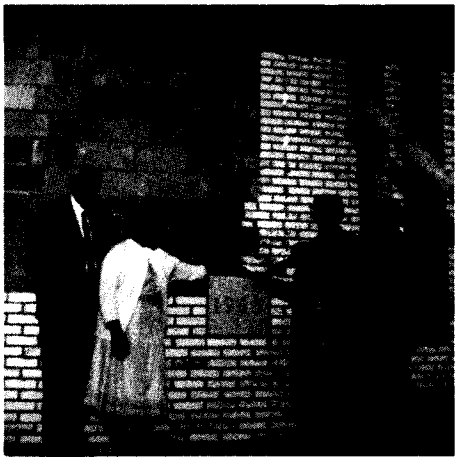


The first building owned by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Springdale, had been originally a grocery story and, later, a post office. It now stands as part of Shiloh Museum and is used for lectures and historical displays.

In 1951, a number of local residents, some native and some newcomers, found they had a common interest in Christian



First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner of Fraker and Bailey Streets in Springdale.



Dedication of the cornerstone for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Springdale was in 1965.

Science, and, there being no Springdale church of this denomination at the time, services were begun at homes in the town. The Horace Smith residence on Grove Street was one so used.

Shortly afterwards, with enlarged attendance, the American Legion Hall was procured, then the basement of the original Springdale Library, now Shiloh Museum.

Interest in acquiring a regular church building resulted in the eventual arrangement in 1956 to purchase property on a Searcy-owned lot on Johnson Street and the small building reputed to have been the town's first grocery store and post office. A considerable amount of renovation was required to make the new "church house" ready. As in the Biblical account of the rebuilding of the wall of Jerusalem, however, "the people had a mind to work" (Neh. 4:6). And so, with willing hands, prayers, and devotion, the building developed into an attractive, serviceable "house of worship." To commemorate its, by then, debt-free status, the church held special dedicatory services in 1960.

As the need grew for larger accommodations, a lot was purchased at Bailey and Fraker Streets, and in 1965 a new church was constructed, with John B. Newell the contractor. Then, in 1972, an addition to the east of this structure was erected, and this was dedicated in 1978.

As with other Christian denominations, not only in this area, but throughout the world, we join in worship of the one God, and our spires, real or figurative, point upward to a trust in and worship of that one universal Deity.

First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church

First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church of Springdale started as a mission effort of the Central Missionary Baptist Church of Fayetteville.

The church was organized on December 4, 1954. Her charter members were Robert and Alma Selley, Kenneth and Lillie Sharver, and T. N. Barker. These five charter members had as their missionary-pastor Bro. Eugene M. Reagan.

The church began right away to look for property. A former church building on Highway 68 east with some property was found. This property was purchased late in August of 1955. The church elected trustees to deal with this purchase. They were Bro. Kenneth Sharver, Bro. W. P. McLane and Bro. T. N. Barker. This property has been the home of First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church for all these years.

From its very beginning, the church has associated with the churches of the Fayetteville Missionary Baptist Association on a local level with the churches of the State Association of Missionary Baptist Churches of Arkansas and the American Baptist Association on the national level.

They met in the buildings purchased on 68E until June of 1957. At that time the church voted to add two rooms onto the building, one on each side of the building.

During the years, the church has licensed several men to preach the gospel all of which have announced their call to preach here at First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church. They are as follows: Lee Mual Storms, March 1959, Elma A. Guinn November 1959, George Goodman January 1960 and Charles Johnston November 1967.

On July 24, 1960, the church adopted a master plan for building including: a new educational building, remodeling of present building, and the future auditorium, as well as landscaping. The church sold $18,000 worth of church bonds to finance the first stage of the plan.

It took some time to sell the bonds and get ready for building. Work began on this stage of the master plan with a ground breaking service June 25, 1961. Bro. Willard Larkin served as contractor for this first state. The new educational building and the remodeled building were dedicated to the Lord on October 21, 1961.

The church ordained their first deacons on September 20, 1964. They had deacons in the church that had come from other churches yet they had not ordained any. These men were Bro. Floyd Lindsey, Bro. Dean Bush, and Bro. Joe Lewis.

In July of 1967 the church had another first: they bought their first church owned parsonage.

The present auditorium was built in 1971—1972 having a dedication service in March of 1972. The church sold bonds again to finance this last stage of the master plan from 1960. Fifty thousand dollars worth of bonds had to be sold this time, which was done without trouble late in 1971. With its completion you have the present structure of First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church.

First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church has had its ups and downs. Its good times and some of the bad but with the grace and blessings of the Lord, still moves forward for the case of Christ.

Over the years the following men have served as the pastor of First Landmark Missionary Baptist Church of Springdale, Arkansas: Eugene M. Reagan December 1954-August 1959; Kenneth Bazar September 1959-March 1962; Elma Guinn April 1962-June 1966; Lee Storms July 1966-January 1970; Herbert Watts February 1971-August 1972; George E. Roach October 1972-November 1974; Dewey Mott March 1975-May 1979; LeRoyce McNeil September 1979-May 1982; E. A. Gunn July 1982-July 1983; and Rodney D. Weeks October 1983-present.

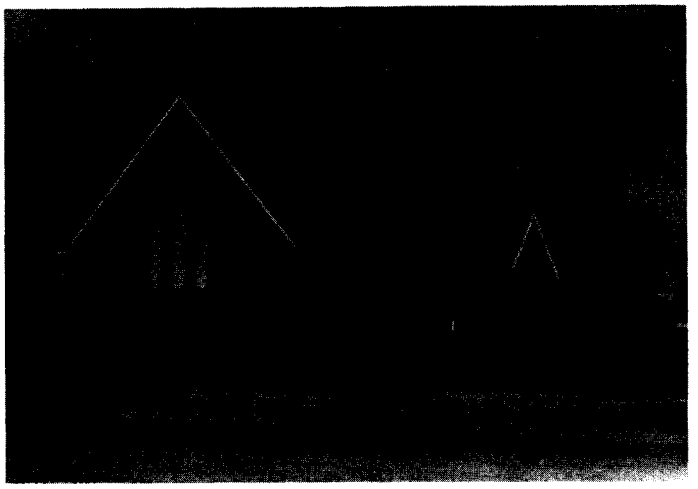
First Presbyterian Church

Presbyterians were among the earliest settlers to Washington County. A church was organized at Cane Hill as early as 1828. Springdale's first Presbyterian Church was a Cumberland Presbyterian Church, organized in 1882.



Dedication services for this church at Quandt and Young Streets (Springdale) took place December 14, 1952. The building now serves as Springdale Memorial Hospital's Education Building.

The Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., came to Springdale in 1914, and an early minister was the Reverend W. G. Brandstetter. Brandstetter organized the first library in Springdale. It was located in the Presbyterian Church basement (now the Shiloh Museum) and was run by the ladies of the church until the present Springdale Library was built.

This church was dissolved on August 4, 1930, and the church building which had been purchased from one of the Baptist churches, was sold to the city for use as a City Hall for Springdale.

In spite of the dissolution of their church a small group of women, composed mainly of the Missionary Society, carried on their work for twenty years and were recognized by both presbytery and synod, until their unfaltering faith gathered a nucleus that would later form yet another congregation.

In the fall of 1949, at the home of Mrs. J. C. McKinney, a guest speaker, Reverend Richard A. Geiger, of Bentonville, encouraged the Missionary Society to poll the area in regard to forming a new church because of the continuing arrival of so many new families to the area.

This canvass of Springdale produced forty additional names of people interested in forming a Presbyterian congregation, and by June 1950, church school classes and worship services were held in the basement of the Library Building on Main and Johnson.

The building committee first picked a site for their church building on West Emma. When it was discovered that the city wanted that land for a school, it was relinquished in favor of the Quandt-Young street location (at that time covered with grape vineyards). Presbyterians (known for their thrift) harvested the grapes and canned enough grape juice to serve the church for many months of communion services.

The first pastor called to serve the new church was the Reverend Charles Douglas Brewer, a recent Dubuque Seminary graduate and native of Texas. During his ministry, twenty-two members were added to the church rolls.

The church building was designed by Reverend S. Guice Stewart, Presbyterian minister at Ozark. The church's beautiful stained glass windows were designed and built by a retired artist who had moved to Arkansas, except for the one large front window donated by the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City.

Its small congregation donated hundreds of hours of labor to help erect the new building, even to finishing its interior trim and floors. The women made choir robes and equipped the kitchen. Shrubbery and landscaping were donated by one member while another paid for the paving of the streets and parking area at the site. Formal dedication services were held on Sunday, December 14, 1952.

In April 1953, Reverend Dean Lewis was installed as pastor, Rev. Brewer having left to become an Army Chaplain. Rev. Lewis and his new bride remained for five years and were very active in youth work. It was during his stay that a manse was purchased on Michael Street.

In August of '58, Reverend David Swartz was called. It was during his pastorate, in the early 60s, that land was purchased directly north of the sanctuary to build our education building. It was completed in 1965. It was also during his stay that the Mariners organization was formed in 1964. He left in July 1965.

Reverend Elvin Crandell was called in November 1965. It was during this time that the manse on Michael was sold and the one on Rogers Circle Drive was purchased. Rev. Crandell was active in community affairs and is credited with starting the Police Chaplaincy Program in Arkansas. He left in February 1974 to organize the state chaplaincy program.

Reverend Jim Durden was installed as minister in August, 1974. During his six years as minister, Steve LaMastus was hired as choir director and a mid-week youth club was organized.

Reverend Lenhard Middents, a retired Presbyterian minister served us well as supply pastor during the interim between Jim Durden's pastorate and that of Reverend William "Bill" Rail.

The continued growth of Springdale during the eighties pushed membership well over 200 making it necessary to find a new location once more. Under the leadership of the newly called pastor, Bill Rail, a building and planning committee headed by Louis Lichlyter, began a study and proposal regarding the needs of a growing future membership.

Many members who had formed the original building and planning committees or had worked on the construction of the Quandt Street sanctuary and church school education building were now taking part in the building project that would serve their grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

With congregational approval, a site was found and purchased on Gutensohn Road. The church building on Quandt and Young was sold to the Springdale Memorial Hospital to serve as an educational building for their expanding needs.

A spacious multi-purpose church school building was built on the Gutensohn site to serve, temporarily, as a place of worship until the completion of a sanctuary. The stained glass windows were carefully removed and brought to the new building to heighten the spiritual feeling and atmosphere for worship. Its formal dedication took place on Sunday, June 1, 1986. A less formal but just as meaningful "burning of the mortgage" took place on September 20, 1987.

First Presbyterian Church of Prairie Grove

The First Presbyterian Church of Prairie Grove was first organized in 1888 by A. W. Milster, D. D., then evangelist for Washburn Presbytery. Officers were Elders T. P. Allison and Samuel Bradley. Dr. E. G. McCormick became an Elder immediately after.

Records of this first organization have been lost, but it continued for a few years using the Methodist Church, South, as a place of worship. The membership moved away, Mr. Allison and Mr. Bradley died, which left only one Elder and his family as the sole representatives of Southern Presbyterianism in both the town of Prairie Grove and surrounding territory. The church became defunct.

This condition continued until April 6, 1905 when H. C. Magruder and Lincoln Maupin with their families and Miss Mary Campbell moved into the community from Shenandoah Valley, Virginia and Dr. C. L. Moore and his family settled in the town, coming from Mt. Bethel Church at Cane

Hill. The church was reorganized by Rev. Samuel W. Davies and Rev. J. F. Lawson; both of Fayetteville.

H. C. Magruder and E. G. McCormick were installed as Elders and Dr. C. L. Moore as Deacon.

On the same day, at a meeting of the newly organized session Miss Myrtle McCormick was received as a member on profession of faith.

Other charter members were: Mrs. Ella Barnett, Miss Mary Elizabeth Campbell, Mrs. Sarah Emeline Maupin, Miss Mary Rebecca Maupin, Dr. E. G. McCormick, Miss Mamie McCormick, Dr. H. C. Magruder, Mrs. Roberta C. Magruder, Miss Annie Rebecca Magruder, Miss Mary Emma Magruder, Dr. C. L. Moore, and Miss Fannie Rogers.

Judge R. O. Hannah and family moved to town in 1907 from the Big Springs Church. This membership had been dissolved and placed in the Prairie Grove Church where he became an Elder.

Lots were purchased for $75.00 from Mr. and Mrs. D. N. McCormick May 6, 1907 and a church was built. The first meeting in the new church was July 26, 1908. A nine room manse was later constructed on the lot north of the church, using materials from the Prairie Grove Public School building which they had purchased.

This history was given to the late Mrs. Joy Webb, long time historian for the church, by Dr. E. G. McCormick and Mrs. Dearing.

First United Methodist Church

The Beginning 1872-1884

Shortly after the Civil War, in the early 1850s, a small group organized the first Methodist Church in Springdale. This first organization shared with the Baptist congregation a small building near the Primitive Baptist Church.

In 1872, Methodist Episcopal Church, South joined with the Regular (Primitive) Baptist Church, the Missionary Baptist Church and the Masonic Lodge to build a two-story church building on a plot near the northeast corner of Huntsville and Main Streets. The building still stands and is used by the IOOF Lodge.

The "South" Methodist Church began its career as a part of the Elm Springs circuit. In 1884, it was made a part of the Rogers-Springdale Charge. Their one-fourth interest in the old church at Huntsville and Main was sold in November 1882 to the Liberty Baptist Church for $200. On July 11, 1883, a building committee composed of Joe Holcomb, B. F. Deaver and C. W. Phillips was authorized to build a new church on the corner of Emma Avenue and Main Street. The church cost $973.43 and was dedicated in July 1884 by Bishop John C. Granberry. A detailed list of donors and expenses presented to the Fourth Quarterly Conference in 1884, revealed that Mr. Joe Holcomb gave $100.00 and the next largest gift was $50.00 from the railroad. Also listed was $200.00 from the sale of interest in the IOOF Hall.

The Methodist Episcopal Church North was organized in 1852 at Liberty, a now defunct village two miles northeast of Springdale. They sold this building in 1870 and later joined with the churches meeting in the building at the corner of Huntsville and Main Streets. In 1884, they built the frame building on Holcomb Street which is now being used by the Church of Christ. Records show there were about one-hundred members when they moved to this location.

The two congregations united in 1929 under the leadership of Reverend H. S. St. Louis of the Methodist Episcopal Church and Reverend A. D. Stewart of the Methodist Episcopal South, using the name The Methodist Episcopal Church South. In 1939, the two branches of the church, South and North, merged and the local congregation became The Methodist Church.

On September 4, 1929, a called session of the Quarterly Conference appointed a building committee composed of E. E. Ginnip, Dr. Nolen Helstern, V. Price, Ira Graham, Glenn Riggs, L. O. Nickerson and F. H. Shelton. This committee with the aid of others, spent much time in selecting and securing a site for the new church and on January 12, 1930, the present site at the corner of Main and Johnson Streets was bought. Tentative plans for a new church building were drawn up, however, due to the depression, it was decided to postpone the building temporarily.

Late in 1935, when negotiations began with the Federal Government for sale of the lots on the Emma Avenue and Main Street location, it became imperative that the church proceed with a building program. The lots were sold to the Government, January 16, 1936 for $8,000.00 with the understanding that all the buildings would be moved.

A called session of the Quarterly Conference on November 22, 1935 appointed a building committee: A. V. Backus, J. K. Fraser, W. E. Linebarger, C. E. Rankin, J. L. Stafford, J. S. Watts and M. W. Walker. After careful planning, a contract was let on March 20, 1936 with plans calling for the moving of the old church building to a new site and conversion of it into a rock-veneered educational building. The new church auditorium, forty-three feet by eighty-seven feet was to be built of cut stone.

The contract was let for the building on June 3, 1936 and on Palm Sunday, March 21, 1937, the first service was held in the new structure with Reverend H. O. Bolin, pastor, leading the service. The church with furnishings was valued at $45,000.00. Payment in full of all outstanding indebtedness against the church was completed and the church dedication service was held February 14, 1943 at the morning hour with Reverend Sam G. Watson, pastor officiating. Dinner was served at the noon hour in the church basement and in the evening hour, in a special service conducted by Reverend H. O. Bolin, the mortgage was burned.

Major building expansions or additions to the church have been the $150,000.00 educational building, built in 1961 and named Ivey Hall, after Dr. George F. Ivey who was the pastor of the church during its construction and the two-story $175,000.00 educational building for children in church school. It was named Kimbrough Building, for the late Dr. Oscar Kimbrough, who had headed the fund drive for the building, and it was consecrated November 4, 1973, during which time Reverend Clinton Atchley was pastor.

On May 22, 1977, the Administrative Board named a building committee to determine the best way to alleviate the crowded sanctuary space. This committee included: Joe Parker, chairperson; Dwain Newman, vice-chairperson; David Evans, Sandy Boone, Judy Shinall, Glenn Clark, Walter LeFevre, Al Sprague and Al Hanby. The committee, with the assistance of an independent consultant firm, concluded that the only practical way was to build a new sanctuary and use the old one for a chapel. The study was presented to the congregation on June 11, 1978. After much study and planning, a contract was signed with the architects on March 1, 1979. Plans went out for bids and on October 1, 1979, Heckathorn Construction Company of Fayetteville, submitted the low bid of $1,112,870.00. Soon afterward, the contract was signed and construction began. On November 30, 1980, the congregation moved to the new sanctuary, and the service of Consecration was held on Sunday, January 4, 1981. Bishop Kenneth W. Hicks, Presiding Bishop of the Arkansas Area of the United Methodist Church, preached the sermon and led the Consecration Ritual. Reverend William P. Connell, District Superintendent of the Fayetteville District and Reverend Joe E. Taylor and Reverend Maurice C. Webb, pastors of the church, lead the worship service.

Among those licensed to preach from the First United Methodist Church are the Reverend Paul Cardwell, who served a number of pastorates in Arkansas and Texas and served as Executive Secretary of the North Texas Conference before his retirement; Reverend Kenneth Shamblin, who also served a number of pastorates in Arkansas and Texas before he was named a Bishop, serving in Texas and Louisiana, and Reverend Harold Eggensperger.

Reverend Arthur Marston was the first pastor, having transferred here from Texas in 1890, when Springdale was made a station. He served until 1892 and was followed by: W. B. Johnson, 1893; W. H. Burns, 1894; Arthur Marston, 1895/96; T. A. Martin, 1897; E. L. Massey, 1898/99; W. M. Freer, 1900; F. M. Tolleson, 1901/02; J. W. House, 1903/04; B. M. Burrows, 1905/06; J. D. Roberts, 1907; H. W. Ledbetter, 1907/08; J. B. McDonald,, 1909; W. V. Womack, 1910/11; A. L. Cline, 1912/15; J. E. Lark, 1916; A. H. Dulaney, 1917/18; E. W. Faulkner, 1919/22; Ira A. Brumley, 1923/26; C. H. Sherman, 1927/28; A. D. Stewart, 1929/32; E. H. Hook, 1933/34; J. T. Wilcoxen, 1935; H. O. Bolin, 1935/39; William W. Allbright, 1939; Sam G. Watson, 1940/42; V. E. Chalfant, 1943/44; Oscar Evanson, 1945/46; E. G. Kaetzell, 1947/50; H. M. Lewis, 1950/52; Andrew J. Christie, 1952/54; George F. Ivey, 1954/62; Ethan W. Dodgen, 1962/67; Howard Williams, 1967/69; C. M. Atchley, 1969/74; Joseph E. Taylor, 1974/84; Charles Ramsey, 1984/87; D. Max Whitfield, 1987.

Appointed associate pastors have included: Garland Lavender, John Flynn, Leon Wilson, Farrell Hatch, Lynn McSpadden, Gerald Rainwater, Raymond Fisher, Tom Atkinson, Verlin Mikesell, Maurice C. Webb, James Harrison, Sam Williams and William C. Hightower.

First United Presbyterian Church

The Fayetteville First United Presbyterian Church is a union of two early pioneer churches. Cumberland Presbyterians organized the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in a blacksmith shop in 1830, two years after the first white settlers moved into the area. This was the first church organization in Fayetteville. In 1873, the Southern Presbyterian Church, the Presbyterian Church in the United States (P. C. U. S.), organized the First Presbyterian Church.

Both churches built buildings. First Presbyterian built a frame structure on the corner of Spring Street and North College. The Cumberlands built on North Block. The Cumberlands' earliest building had been destroyed during the Civil War.

In 1906, when the majority of the Cumberland congregations in Arkansas joined with the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (P. C. U. S. A.), the Fayetteville Cumberland changed their name to Central Presbyterian Church. The same year they built a brick sanctuary at the corner of Dickson and St. Charles Streets.

Also, in 1906, the First Presbyterians built a new brick building at Spring and College. The original small frame structure was moved to South College and was used for inter-domination Sunday School classes. This mission, called White Chapel, was never an organized church but First Presbyterian kept up the property and acted as trustees.

From the turn of the century there were attempts at a union of the two Presbyterian congregations. Each time the overtures failed, but the idea gradually gained in popularity. Finally in 1953, the two organizations federated under the name of First Presbyterian Church keeping membership in both the P. C. U. S. and P. C. U. S. A. denominations. After three years of federation they were organically united and dropped the P. C. U. S. affiliation.

In 1961, the Presbyterians sold both of their properties. They then built a fellowship hall and educational buildings at 695 Calvin Street. In 1970, they completed a sanctuary to complete the complex. The cross which sits high on a hill in northwest Fayetteville is a symbol of the Presbyterian faith to all who are in the Fayetteville community.

Grace Baptist Church (Fayetteville)

On January 24, 1962, a group of twelve Bible believing people, all Baptists by faith in Jesus Christ, met in the home of Humphrey Heasty at 1517 East Ridgeway Drive in Fayetteville to conduct a worship service and begin a new church. In attendance were the families of Rev. Stanley W. Manus, Horace Cobb and Humphrey Heasty. The decision was made to use the name Grace Baptist Church.

The church was formally organized on April 25, 1962 with the signing of the Church Charter to become an independent, New Testament Baptist Church, with Rev. Manus as the pastor. The church soon joined in fellowship with the General Association of Regular Baptists in Chicago, Illinois. Services were held at the Community Adult Center at 108 North West Street in Fayetteville.

Rev. Marvin Eck became the second pastor on October 6, 1963. Under his leadership, the church bought land at the corner of Old Wire Road and Old Missouri Road on the north side of Fayetteville. Work began immediately on a building with the first services held in the new building on January 12, 1964. Pastor Eck resigned in July 1967.

Rev. Lowell Barnard was pastor from 1968 to 1971. Rev. C. A. Wynn was pastor from 1971 to 1973. Rev. Russell Daubert was ordained and served as pastor until 1978. Rev. Robert Pick became pastor in December 1978 until the present time.

The church has always been missions minded. It helps to support many missionary families in all parts of the world. Special 25th Anniversary meetings were held on April 22-26, 1987 with many of the former pastors and members in attendance.

Grace Baptist Church (Springdale)

The Grace Baptist Church, 1719 McRay, Springdale, Arkansas, was duly organized November 29, 1964, under the direction of missionary pastor Stanley Manus with 35 present. The purpose was to establish a New Testament Baptist Church, true to the historic Baptist principles, free from apostasy, and worldliness, and with an earnest desire to win the lost and encourage the Christians. There were 26 who gave their testimonies as to personal salvation and baptism and signed the Charter. The church called Stanley W. Manus, Sr., to be their first Pastor.

Grace Baptist Church, 1719 McRay Street, Springdale, Arkansas.

The church voted January 6, 1965, to fellowship with the National General Association of Regular Baptist Churches, an Association of Bible believing, Christ honoring churches, headquartered in Schaumburg, Illinois, and the Midwest (now Ozark) Association of Regular Baptist Churches.

The First National Bank of Springdale financed the church in 1964 and in 1966, a new loan was obtained from the church building committee of Elyria, Ohio. The church has been debt free since 1980.

The Lord has blessed in sending sacrificing godly pastors willing to augment the churches support, if necessary. They are Daryl Sheeler (1969—1971); Joe Hughes (1971—1974); Robert Evans (1974—1976); Stephen Gerard (1977—1979); Eric Schneider (1980—1984); William Brandt (1985—__). Interim pastors, Douglas Christen and Bernard Bancroft.

The church voted in 1965 to tithe its' income for missions to Janet Roudybush, Brazil; Virginia Boyer, Canada; Mallory Parmerlee (a charter member of the church), Australia; The Ozark Regular Baptist Camp, Mammoth Springs, Arkansas; The Baptist Children's Home, Indiana; Shepherds, Inc., Wisconsin. The church also has an active women's missionary group.

The church has improved its' property through out the years, has bought an extra strip of land, built a walk-way on the east side of building and purchased a church bus.

We praise the Lord for His provision for us these twenty-three years, for keeping our church doors open, for giving us numerous victories, for using our church to reach others, many have been saved (17 this last year, 1987) and baptized, and many are active working members, in this and other churches, three of the younger men are now preachers, two of the women, wives of preachers.

We serve an estimated constituency of 80. I Corinthians 15:58.

Harmon United Methodist Church

Based on church and family records and information from Carl Wright and Arch and Chris Thompson and prepared for Memorial and Heritage Program presented by Rev. David Hanshaw, on May 31, 1981 at Harmon.

Harmon United Methodist Church.

In 1867, early settlers built a log schoolhouse on the present site of the Carl Wright home and called the school, community, and the near-by creek, Wildcat, due to the fact they had killed a large animal of that species near the creek when they first moved to the area.

About 1882 several families, all related, came from Randolph County, Arkansas in 1875 and settled in Springdale, acquired property in the Wildcat community desiring to leave Springdale because trains on the newly-built railroad were injuring and/or killing their livestock. Some either traded with or bought from a group of people calling themselves "Soul Sleepers" who were holding religious services in the log schoolhouse. They believed that on Resurrection Day each person would come back to earth to inhabit his former home. One dear lady who sold her home reserved the right of repossession on that day. The new owner, Adaline Wright, graciously assured her she was welcome to it.

Some of the records are not identical, but it is believed that eleven of these newcomers met 99 years ago and organized the first Methodist Church which took over the log schoolhouse and renamed it Ebenezer with the creek and the community remaining Wildcat. Two others joined the group shortly making a total of 13 who are considered charter members. The first 19 members are listed as coming by certificate and Lucinda Wright McCamey as first by baptism. Charter members included William and Adaline Wright; their son Granville and his wife Nancy; William's daughters, Amanda Orlena who married John Wood Fannie who married Charles Sullivan; Jeff and Talitha Brown; William Sullivan; Heywood and Belle Thompson; and Mr. and Mrs. Greenup. It is noted in the records that the Greenups were "disposed of by certificate in 1883", so it is assumed that they moved away as no descendants of the family are known to be living in the area. Children and/or grandchildren of the other eleven charter members are still active in Harmon Church or other area churches, as well as those in many other states.

Local members bear the names McCamey, Hinshaw, Pearson, Thompson and Wright with the names Mitchell, Mayes, Washburn, Wood, Larkin, Day, Sims, Kinion, Johnson, Daily and Dowell in near-by churches.

During the first ten years, it is noted that Ebenezer Church was served by nine pastors and 53 names were placed on the rolls, however 16 of these were removed by death or transfer.

Much can be said about the faithfulness of the early members. They met in a poorly-lighted, poorly heated building, sat on uncomfortable seats—the first were split logs without even a backrest. They came in all kinds of weather, some walking, others on horse-back or in buggies and wagons. It is told that Aunt Sallie Sullivan was an early riser and was such a stickler for punctuality that if Uncle Billy was not ready for church on time, she climbed into her buggy and drove herself to church. Not at all upset, when ready, Uncle Billy simply struck out across the field and walked to church.

At the end of 20 years in the log schoolhouse, a new frame church and school was built on the hill just north of the Harmon postoffice and store which had been established in 1902 when Ebenezer and Wildcat both became known as Harmon.

The frame building served as both church and school for over thirty years. By this time the membership had increased due mainly to the annual revivals held during the summer, usually in brush arbors to accommodate the large crowds that came to participate in the singing, hear the gospel preached, and visit with friends. Many were converted and now members were received into the church in special services held at the "Baptizing Hole" in Wildcat Creek west of the Thompson home. Following singing, prayer and sometimes tears and shouting, the new converts were immersed and thus became official members of the church. This method of receiving members was discontinued about 1960.

By 1932, money had been raised by giving plays, having picnics, serving dinners, selling pies and hamburgers until with 1200 dollars in the bank, it was decided to begin the present building on land given by Mr. and Mrs. Arve Thompson.

Thirty-seven men volunteered for labor and carpenter work. The women cooked and served dinner to the workers each day. There were no power tools. The basement was excavated with pick and shovel and the use of slips pulled by teams of horses or mules. Gravel was hauled from the creek and mixed with cement by hand to make concrete for the foundation and basement walls. The pastor, Rev. O. M. Campbell was a most faithful worker, not only as a carpenter but in using his Model T touring car to run into town for needed supplies. The only person paid for labor was Ora Locke, a carpenter who agreed to supervise the work on the building for just enough money to buy groceries for his family of seven while he was working. He asked for and was paid $25 for more than thirty days work.

The building was partially completed and first services were held in March 1933. There was no stairway and only a dirt floor in the basement, but the children were happy to go outside, around the house and in the back door to have Sunday School classes there.

As money was available, a stairway was built and concrete floor poured. Other improvements included classrooms, kitchen facilities with tables and chairs, water and electrical systems, panelling on the walls, new pews with cushions, wall to wall carpeting, heating and air conditioning and a P. A. system. Most recently, steel siding has been placed on the outside of the building. Over the years, memorials in the form of a pulpit and chairs, communion table and service, offering plates, candlesticks, cross, record register, electric organ, a painting and hymnals have been presented in the honor of deceased members.

The Union Sunday School which was organized in 1870 had met in Wildcat schoolhouse and later Ebenezer Church became the Methodist Church School in 1903 and was the educational leader in the early days of the church. The Epworth League, which later became the Methodist Youth Fellowship, under many good leaders furnished young people with additional educational and social opportunities. The heritage of our church also includes the influence of the Women's Society of Christian Service which took an active part in community and district programs. While participation in these activities has declined, we still have a strong, caring, working church organization which fully meets all its financial obligations.

As nearly as can be ascertained from the records: In 99 years over 500 names have been entered on the church roll. At present, we have 92 members. Thirty percent of these have belonged more than forty years with Mrs. Arve Thompson holding the record of more than 74 years, followed by Wilbur Rankin with over 71 years and Arch Thompson and Otto Wright each over 65 years. Almost one-third of the members are unable to attend church because of poor health or the fact they have moved out of the area but still wish to maintain their church affiliation here.

These persons have been served by 52 pastors. Many of these remained only a year or less. Rev. Woodrow Woods has the distinction of staying the longest and was characterized as the "visitingest preacher", visiting the most and talking the least when he came to call. He was a good listener!

Early church records indicate that Ebenezer was a member of the Springdale circuit in 1882. In 1902 the church is listed as a member of the Elm Springs circuit being served by the same pastor who provided services on alternate Sundays in the two churches. Present ministers serve both churches each Sunday.

We have loved and given up many wonderful pastors and their families over the years. It has been said that Harmon is a stepping-stone to greater service and accomplishment as many of the pastors who have attained places of prominence and leadership in the Methodist Church started their ministry here.

Hazel Valley Community Church

Land was donated by Mr. and Mrs. James Height, Sr., in 1887. First deeded to the South Methodist Church, the church sold it to the Hazel Valley Dist. with the privilege of using it. When the consolidation was voted in 1948, Edwin Wilson had the deed changed to the Hazel Valley Community Church as it stands of this day. Some of the past ministers are Mr. Andy Nickell, Mr. Dan Blevins, Mr. Thomas J. Wilson, Mr. Basiel Ledford, Mr. Hershel Isenhower, Mr. M. C. Parrish, Mr. Bobbie Bowles, Mr. Mike Smith, Mr. Joe Deaton, Mr. Howard Prichard, Mr. Hugh Shackelford, and Mr. M. A. Laymon along with many others through the years. There was a church here before then but it probably wasn't established on record as a Methodist Church. Many held revivals there and Earnest Wilson led the church choir for 28 years. His son, Edwin, has led the choir for 48 years with others alternating at times. There was once an old log building operated by the Bougan people. When the church was established Mr. Clarin, and Mr. Bougan were on the board with 3 other men in the year 1887. In the 1970s the building was in bad need of major repair both out and inside with the cost well over 27 thousand dollars. At present it has padded pews, central heat and air, carpet throughout and one piano. Electricity was added in 1946. Edwin Wilson and Hugh Shackelford were school directors also at this time. Just west of the church is a well kept cemetery with a chain link fence erected around the cemetery. It is probably 125 years old.

The Hazel Valley community meets one day each year to work at the upkeep of the cemetery. In 1948 donations started being taken for the upkeep of the cemetery so it is all done by one caretaker now and paid by donated money.

There are church services each Sunday morning and evening.

When the school was operating there were many other activities from time to time. At Christmas they would have pie suppers and they would always have school programs. In the fall there was a school rally held with outstanding speakers from Fayetteville and other surrounding districts with a basket lunch at noon. Many preachers would assist in the event. Other events held here were funerals, weddings, debates, spelling bees, cipher-ing matches and special gospel singing with Mrs. Bertha Wilson playing the piano or organ. Mr. Pink Mason held many meetings there.

Glen Shackelford, Joseph Fraley and Edwin Wilson are acting directors for the cemetery and Edwin is on the church board also.

At one time Hazel Valley was one of the liveliest communities anywhere around and had one of the best singing classes available. In 1988, the church crowd is small but I'm happy to report they are carrying on in the way of our forefathers.

Holcomb Street Church of Christ

Taken from April 29, 1937 Springdale Newspaper:

In the fall of 1912, W. G. Tucker held a series of meetings in the old City Auditorium located where the American Legion Hut now stands. It was from this meeting that a congregation of the Holcomb Street Church of Christ was first established in the city of Springdale, Arkansas. As the new congregation had no house in which to worship, services were held in the home of M. M. Lavender. The congregation met at the Lavender residence for a time until the Adventist meeting house was rented and used as a place of worship. Services were held in the Adventist house until February 12, 1917, when the early members purchased a house on Johnson Street, just across the street from the present public library.

Some of the early members who will be remembered by older residents of Springdale and vicinity were H. R. Nygh, E. V. Holifield, Charles Gilespie, R. T. Pray, J. E. Sims, S. L. Boone, A. J. Boone, Wiley Harp, A. Sherry, J. R. Wheeler, and the Brady family.

Two ministers of early days were W. O. Tucker and John T. Hines. Ministers of later years were C. L. Wilkerson of Springfield, Missouri, 1919; a minister named Cooper of Salem, Arkansas, 1922 and 1923; Leland H. Knight, Booneville, Arkansas, 1924 and 1925; Robert M. Reed, 1928 and 1929, Huntsville, Arkansas; and J. D. Hart moved here from Tulsa in 1928, making his home here until 1933.

In December, 1929, the members of the congregation with the aid of Dr. C. P. Sisco were able to purchase the meeting house of the North Methodist Congregation of Holcomb Street.

It is at this location in the city of Springdale that the Church of Christ now meets for worship.

In 1988, the Holcomb Street Church of Christ does not have a full-time minister. The congregation meets on Sunday mornings, Sunday nights, and Wednesday nights for worship.

Leaders are Tommy Jones, Ralph Wohlford and Steve Wohlford.

Johnson Baptist Church

Under the guidance of Fayetteville's First Baptist Church, the Johnson Baptist Church was organized about 1912.

Work was carried on for more than a decade, the Church then became inactive. Records for this period are almost non-existant.

In the early part of 1932, there was established a "Johnson Union Sunday School" which was a bridge between the original Baptist Church and the reorganized Church, years later. Attendance averaged around 50 with the collection about one dollar during depression years.

On July 30, 1944, with the association missionary J. Scott Blystone acting as moderator, the Johnson Baptist Church was reorganized with a membership of 25.

On July 29, 1945, the church voted to build a sanctuary on land donated by Hugh and Emma Lichlyter; but construction did not begin until early the following year. The building committee was comprised of Ollie Crum, Hugh Lichlyter, Ward Graue, Frank Johnson, Mildred Cassat, Bryan Diven, Alvin Luper, and Tom Rothrock, treasurer.

Pastors (with their tenures) through the years have been as follows: Rev. C. B. Glazio, August 12, 1945-December 19, 1945; Rev. Scott Blystone (interim) December 19, 1945-April 5, 1946; Rev. E. M. Logue, April 5, 1946-January 8, 1950; Lawrence Layman (interim), February 8, 1950-April 26, 1950; Rev. Jack Taylor, April 26, 1950-March 18, 1951; Rev. E. M. Logue, April 4, 1951-May 2, 1954; Rev. Oakley Long, June 17, 1954-September 25, 1957; Rev. Lynn Wier, December 4, 1957-January 1, 1961; Rev. T. O. Spicer, January 15, 1961-June 17, 1962; Rev. Jack Brown, July 8, 1962-August 21, 1966; Rev. Dean Sharp, November 1966-December, 1969; (interims) Rev. Burton Miley and Frank Spencer; Rev. James Threet, December 1970-August, 1977; (interim) Rev. Terrel Gordon and Rev. Loyd Hamilton; Kenneth Webb, June 1978-April 1979.

A church member, Raymond Martin, Jr., a licensed preacher, was asked to serve as interim. After a few months he was ordained and is still (1988) the pastor.

This is just a few who have served faithfully over the years: Bob Curtis chairman of deacons; Frank Johnson, for years as song leader, and his wife Edith, served as church clerk. Mildred Cassat has been Sunday School Secretary for 25 years. Only a few have been mentioned as space will not allow mentioning all who have faithfully held the positions as teachers, training union workers, Women's Missionary Society members, Auxiliary Leaders, and several who work in two or more departments; others who, when a job needs doing, are ready, willing and able to do more than their share. To these, the Church owes its very existance.

Many changes have occured in the past decade. Older members have passed away, younger dedicated ones are serving now. Homecoming was held Sunday, September 26, 1971, in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Johnson Baptist Church. After a bounteous meal, the afternoon was spent visiting old friends and making new friends.

In 1975, the Church voted to buy pulpit chairs with the Tom Rothrock Memorial Fund. Earlier a pulpit was purchased in honor of Hugh and Emma Lichlyter. A table was purchased with the Gladys Diven Memorial Fund and a Bible and stand in memory of Flora Luper.

In 1973—74, Bro. Darrel Garner, his wife Judy and children, missionaries, served while on furlough from Malawi, Africa.

Since 1980, the Church has added two bathrooms on the first floor, purchased cushions for pews, and had brick installed over the front of the building, carpeting upstairs and downstairs.

In 1987, four deacons were ordained. They are Mike Martin, Jim Kilpatrick, Kenny Avey and Ronald Yates.

Johnson Church of Christ

The Church of Christ congregation of Johnson, Arkansas started with a meeting held by M. S. Gabbard in the year 1922. John and Pearl Richardson, Albert and Pearl Ball, who were already members of our Lord's church made up the first congregation.

Old Johnson Church of Christ

New Johnson Church of Christ

For a time, services were held in the old Johnson school building in the afternoon as the Baptists met at the morning hour. Brother Frank led singing for Brother Gabbard in that first meeting and also taught a singing class. In addition to Brother Gabbard, the first preachers for the church at Johnson were Brothers H. M. Harriman, Leland Knight and E. V. Cowan.

As the congregation at Johnson grew, plans were made for a larger building and work soon began. In 1939, the congregation had grown large enough to add additional classrooms.

Brother C. M. Mason and Albert Ball were the first elders and John Richardson and Dick Webb were the first deacons. As time passed, Noah Bailey, J. P. Boyles and Monroe Neal were selected as elders and some additional deacons were also selected. In the mid-40's, Clyde Neal, Leo Ball, Clifford Neal and Guy Cosand were appointed as elders; and Charles Stagg and Roy Lee Shumate were appointed deacons.

Bill and Jo Ann Smith came as the first full-time workers with the church in 1949 and remained until 1953, at which time Charles and Helen Hodge came and remained until 1954. After Charles Hodge left, Leerie Ball preached for the church until June 1966. James Dockery came July 1, 1966 and remained until September 1968. Brother O. D. Parrish began work with the church September 1, 1968. In the late 1950s, additional classrooms were added, also a baptistry and central heating and cooling system. In the early 1950s, Wayne Harriman, Floyd Sutton, John Dockery were appointed deacons. In 1965, all three were appointed to the office of elders and Hayes Hill, Earnest Allison, Kenneth Hughes, Herbert Hughes, Lewis Laningham and Bob Williams appointed deacons.

The congregation continued to grow and the elders saw fit to purchase a four-acre tract of land on Elmore Street, (present site of the building) east of Johnson and made plans to construct a new building. The building was finished in the early 1970s along with a new preacher's house on July 1, 1979. Then in the spring of 1980, the elders again decided that the growth of the congregation showed a need for a larger auditorium. The auditorium was started in the fall of 1981 and finished in the summer of 1982.

In 1974, Charles Couch, Bob Williams and Floyd Sutton were appointed as elders; Milton Ball, Richard Hutton and Don Harkins were appointed deacons. In 1980, Les Howell, Virgil Harmon, and Loyd Dockery were appointed as elders. The following year was the number of deacons increased. The men included: Leonard Bailey, Mark Ball, Raymond Boatright, Charles Coward, Alan Fortenberry, Howard Glenn, Joe Harriman, John Hayes, Glen Parker, Dan Prier and Charles Watson. Presently, the Johnson congregation is under the eldership of five men and twelve deacons. The present Minister is John Ballard, Associate Minister, Daniel Dickard.

Additional Preachers who have served the Johnson Church at various periods through the years were Ronnie Morrison, Gary Smith and Richard Fedell.

The church at Johnson has helped support or are helping the following missionaries or mission works: Charles Smith in the Philippines, Ronnie Morrison - New Zealand, Willie Holcomb, Biddeford, Maine, Apparao Gootam, India, Y. K. Yadav, India, Jim Burns, S. Lucia, West Indies, Matt Blake,, Argentina, Karen Hughes, Wales. In 1987, a group of ten from the Johnson Church went to Georgetown, Guyana.

Presently the worship attendance is averaging 350 and Wednesday night attendance, 245.

Liberty Baptist Church at Dutch Mills

The minority of Vineyard Church met December 2, 1883 near Greerburg and organized another church to meet at Dutch Mills and was named Liberty Baptist. Family names of charter members were: Bryant, Douthit, Greer, Grisham, Holman, Hodges, Kimbrough, McCarty and Seay.

J. C. Robertson was the first pastor, 1884-1890. In 1885, the Church was affiliated with the Fayetteville Association. Public school was held here until 1948. The first record of an organized Sunday School was in 1894. In 1910, a deed was made and recorded. In 1911, Reverend Edwards of Prairie Grove and Reverend L. L. Johnson, Associational Missionary, held a revival with ten souls saved. Minutes often read "Church adjourned to meet by the water". Whether it was January or June, the candidates were baptized in the creek.

In 1920, M. R. Holland, D. P. Paulsell and E. W. Luginbuel were ordained as deacons, Leland Little to preach. Once or twice each year, the church had "protracted" meeting with prayer and fellowship.

In 1948, Mrs. Leake, wife of the Washington and Madison County Associational Missionary, came to conduct the first Vacation Bible School. These schools each year have been great blessings for the church. In 1948, Mrs. Daisy Kimbrough Luginbuel presided over a groundbreaking for an addition to the original building. In 1952, Reverend Stanley Jordan led in a dedication of the auditorium and new pews.

Progress has been made each year until now, the old original part of the building is our auditorium. The nursery has two rooms, library; one room, kitchen, two bathrooms, fellowship hall, secretary's office, pastor's study and seven Sunday School classrooms.

Reverend Rich resigned his twelve years as pastor in 1983, the year of our 100th celebration. His was the longest time of pastorate. Several activities were held throughout the year of 1983, also another history was written. Brother Vaughn had compiled the church history in 1968.

The church is continuing in its zest for teaching and participation in all phases of the Southern Baptist Association.

Lincoln United Methodist Church

In the spring of 1902 the first church building to be erected in Lincoln was the Lincoln United Methodist Church. This first building was in use for 21 years.

In 1924 the church now in use, was built. Many improvements over the years have changed the looks, but this church remains a very warm and caring organization.

Early in the 1900s the Circuit Rider played a very important part in church services. One from the Lincoln area was Thomas Hardesty Tennant. He lived to be more than 100 years of age. He is buried at the Bethlehem Cemetery just south of Lincoln.

The Circuit Riders have almost been forgotten, but as one of our ministers wrote, "in looking toward the future it is sometimes wise, to glance for a moment at the past, that we might receive inspiration of the faith of others, whose places we now take".

The Ladies Missionary Society, name later changed to Woman's Society of Christian Service, and the Wesleyan Service Guild played a very important part in all phases of church work. In 1950 this group of ladies were asked to serve the newly organized Lincoln Kiwanis Club. Serving a noon meal each Wednesday has continued over the years.

This church has been used for many local activities: the Presbyterians held their services here before their church was built; the Mother-Daughter Banquet was held in the fellowship hall for many years; and it has been used also for weddings, receptions, funerals, Boy Scout meetings, chili suppers and pancake breakfasts.

The Methodist Church in Lincoln has not always had a large congregation but some very dedicated Christian people have kept this a very friendly place of worship that has room for anyone who would like to visit or is looking for a permanent place to worship.

"You are welcome."

Little Elm Missionary Baptist Church

Little Elm Missionary Baptist Church had its origins in the Ebenezer Baptist Church of Farmington, Arkansas, organized about 1837. According to tradition, a missionary, Rev. Rainfro (Renfro?), was sent to the area by the Brush Run Baptist Association of Virginia (?). The church met in a log building which presumably served as a community center. The records of the small church were lost during the Civil War, thus nothing is known of its activities during the first 35 years of existence. Following the Civil War, former members and possibly new settlers in the area activated what was known as the Farmington Baptist Church. In 1872, the church affiliated with the Fayetteville Baptist Association at its second annual meeting. From 1872 to 1880, John Mays, J. B. Harolson, T. P. Boone, M. Smith and possibly others served as pastor. Besides the pastors named, others who represented the church at associational meetings were: A. Cain, J. H. Martin, Mr. Crawford, Mr. Obenchain, J. A. Shepard, C. T. Clayton, R. Milsap, and R. H. Clayton.

The church reported 14 members in 1872, reaching a high of 40 in 1875, dropping to 24 in 1880. Presumably, for some cause the church was in a weakened condition in 1880 since it did not represent in the annual associational meeting. Also, the associational missionary, C. P. Tupper, had spent a short time in 1880 working in the Farmington area which would indicate a need existed for a revival of church effort.

Apparently, as the result of evangelistic efforts by T. H. Day, a pastor of Baptist churches near the Farmington area, an organizational council was called in late April, 1881, for the purpose of organizing a church at Little Elm Springs near Bethel Grove, about 4 miles southwest of Farmington. Day was chosen as chairman of the organizational council and R. H. Clayton was elected clerk of the council.

Those persons presenting themselves as charter members of the new church were: T. H. Day, D. K. Clevenger, C. T. Clayton, James Jackson, M. W. Marrs, Mary J. Clayton, Anice M. Day, Sallie Beaver, Lucy Slaughter, Bell Gibson and Mary Shelley. Three converts, Lizzie Clayton, John Slaughter, and James Shelley were accepted for baptism and church membership. The family names listed below show the linkage between the Farmington Baptist Church and the Little Elm Church. Also, joint ownership of the church property in Farmington by Little Elm continued to 1893.

The Little Elm Church constructed its first building at Bethel Grove where it met until 1906 when it moved to its present location about 3 miles southwest of Farmington. Church growth required the addition of classrooms in 1950. The old sanctuary was replaced by a new auditorium in 1959. Additional rooms were added in 1965, modification of the church entrance was done in 1968 and in 1976-77 a major rearrangement of the church plant with additional space was accomplished. Additional land was purchased to allow for the expansion of the church plant and to allow for parking needs. A parsonage was constructed on the church grounds in 1957. The old church property at Farmington, which had been jointly owned with the Free Masons, was sold in 1893 to the Free Masons and the proceeds were used for Home Missions and to aid churches at Prairie Grove, Providence and Double Springs communities. The church now has some of the most attractive facilities of any rural church in the area.

As was the custom in earlier days, regular church services were conducted once a month. Shortly before and following World War II services were scheduled twice a month. In 1950 the church called a full-time pastor which resulted in a marked growth in the membership and resources. During its history, the church has been served by 31 pastors, several of whom served more than once. The pastors in order of first service are: T. H. Day, H. B. Borders, G. C. Harris, I. D. Fletcher H. M. Price, H. C. Winstead, J. F. Parker, D. L. Hood, Johnson Crawford, C. S. Farmer, E. H. Conry, Floyd Tillman, W. C. Hamby, J. E. Gardner, A. Newton, O. L. Lierly, J. R. Cecil, E. K. Begley, J. W. Ray, I. S. Whitely, Vernon Lierly, George West, Clarence Williams, Johnny Sloate, Bobby Watson, Jimmy Paxton, Sheppard Mooney, Billy Pearson, W. K. Roach, Jr., Julius Copeland (current pastor), James H. Kesner, and W. M. Smith.

The church has ordained the following ministers: T. J. Browse, W. M. Hawkins, D. Jones, C. R. Collier, Edward Smith, Terry Dees, and Harold Jones. Howard S. Lawrence was licensed to preach. Ordained ministers who were members and worked through the church but did not serve as pastor include W. K. Roach, Sr., Mack Walls, Charles Sellers, Bobby Bear, Jimmy McDougal and Bill Threet.

Ordained deacons who have served the church include M. W. Marrs, D. K. Clevenger, James M. Shepard, F. B. Kilcrease, J. A. Borders, J. C. Marrs, John Beaver, Isaac Borders, Charlie Gibson, W. A. Jack, J. B. McWhorter, Frank Talkington, Bruce Howell, Wyman Jones, Sam Williams, Lester Beaver, Richard Davis, R. H. Potter, Everett Hart, A. C. Williams, Hallie Yancy, Edward Smith, James Nance, Robert (Bob) Salsbury, Harold McGarrah, Richard Belcher and G. C. Watson.

The Little Elm Baptist Church has given active support to mission efforts at all levels. In 1958, the church began supporting a full-time missionary in Old Mexico. In 1960 the church initiated a program of contributing 25 percent of its income to local, state, interstate and foreign missions. In the local area, Little Elm sponsored, in 1974, a mission effort in Bentonville. Mack Walls was called as the evangelist and mission pastor. In December, 1974, Little Elm purchased property in Bentonville for a church building and assisted the mission congregation in building a sanctuary. The Landmark Church of Bentonville was organized with an enrollment of 90 members on May 14, 1977.

With the Bentonville church reaching self-sufficiency, Little Elm embarked on a mission effort in 1976 at Asheville, North Carolina, with Bobby Bear as missionary pastor. A portable church building was bought and placed on rented land. In cooperation with the Landmark Baptist Church of North Little Rock, land was purchased for a permanent home for this mission. In 1986 Little Elm sponsored the establishment of Landmark Missionary Baptist Mission in Joplin, Missouri, Bill Threet as missionary pastor. Besides these out-reach programs the church supports the Missionary Baptist Seminary, Little Rock, Arkansas, and the Oklahoma Baptist Institute at Marlow, Oklahoma.

Starting with 14 members in 1881, Little Elm increased to 75 members in 1885. During the past 106 years approximately 1,009 persons have been received as members. Its January, 1987, membership was 145. The church is affiliated with the Fayetteville Missionary Baptist Association, The State Association of Missionary Baptist Churches and the American Baptist Association.

Mayfield Community Bible Church

Located on the eastern extremity of Washington County, Mayfield Community Bible Church has a long history. It stands on land originally donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1854 by pioneer and homesteader, James Mayfield. His descendants still attend church there.

The community was formerly known as Macedonia, but when a post office was established there early in the century, it was discovered that there was another Macedonia, Arkansas. Finding that a new community name was neccessary, Mayfield was chosen in honor of the donor of school and church land.

The building that houses the church is ninety years old. It was build in 1897, replacing a log structure that had burned a short time before. The residents of the community donated time, material and labor to build the new church and school. Oak lumber from the area was used for framing, though the pine boards were hauled from Huntsville on wagons. There have been a few renovations but all of the original building is still intact. Even the first school benches exist, though they are now in various homes as community heirlooms.

The log church that burned was built before the Civil War. It served dually as church and school. The school had been a subscription school with a term of three months and offered all twelve grades. However, after the new building was erected, only eight grades were taught thereafter. It continued as a school until April of 1972, being one of the last in the state to consolidate. Its last teacher was Virginia Guthrie.

After the Methodist Church quit holding services in the mid nineteen forties, the church became a nondenominational community church, with believers of various faiths meeting there. It was not pastored regularly by one pastor until 1977. Sometimes as many as four preachers served the church. One preacher would hold forth every first Sunday of the month and another one every second Sunday and so on.

In 1983, the believers drew up a constitution and formed the Mayfield Community Bible Church, an independant, self-governing organization. Of those who attend, some represent the seventh generation attending church there and worshiping the Lord Jesus Christ.

Methodist District History

Methodism came to Arkansas in the early 1800s when the circuit-riders covered this territory out of the Missouri Conference.

The first visit of a Methodist minister to Arkansas Territory was made in 1809. The first actual charge in Arkansas was in 1815, made through the Missouri District of the Tennessee Conference and included all of northwest Arkansas. At the close of his first year, the minister reported twenty-two members in all churches in the circuit.

The circuit-rider has taken a firm place in history, but he is not the exclusive historic property of any one faith and order. In most recorded information, these men were truly some of God's most noble creatures.

The Methodist Circuit rider in the early days was usually a single man. No parsonages were provided and the constant travel and hardship made it almost impossible for him to maintain a family. He was out of touch with his home base for months at a time and his "circuit" was of staggering proportions; often equal in area to an entire state. In the Methodist Church the salaries of all conference members (ordained ministers) were equalized. Until 1800 the annual salary was $64.00 and by 1861 it had increased to $100.00 per year "if they had it". It was in this manner and by the toil and devotion of these men that Methodism came to Arkansas.

The history of the Methodist church in Fayetteville is typical of the whole movement of the church from the Atlantic to the developing lands to the west. The church came because of the Methodist concept of taking the gospel to the people; the plan that sent rough, rugged and devoted men into the new country to preach to the people where they lived; and to use the talents of local leaders and local preachers to organize and hold pioneer groups together between visits from itinerant preachers assigned to cover vast circuits.

A Methodist church was founded in "this wild and remote country" in 1832, less than five years after the land was opened for permanent settlement; only 29 years after the Louisiana Purchase; before Arkansas Territory became a state; and the Civil War was almost 30 years ahead.

The history of a church cannot be separated from the history of the community of which it is a part. Methodist churches in Fayetteville have grown in harmony with the social, industrial and educational development of the area and with the increase in population.

The founding date of the first Methodist church was only four years after the town itself had been established, given the name of Fayetteville and designated as the county seat. It was not until 1836 that Arkansas became a state. Fayetteville townsite was surveyed and laid off into lots in 1835 all within the area bounded by Dickson Street, College Avenue, South Street, and Gregg Avenue. The courthouse, Methodist church, Presbyterian church, business houses and residences were clustered in the area on or near the public square.

Arkansas District was formed in 1818, and the Arkansas Annual Conference was organized in 1836. Washington County became prominent in Arkansas church history at a very early date and it seems apparent that Washington County Circuit was one of the strongest charged in the state.

What is now Central United Methodist Church, located on Dickson Street at Highland, was the first Methodist church in Fayetteville. Founded in 1832, the church celebrated their Sesquicentennial year in 1982. The more than one hundred and fifty years of continuous service reflects the growth of Methodism in this area.

Four other churches have been established separately from Central Methodist to serve the growing community. St. James Methodist was erected in 1907 at the corner of East Center and North Willow Streets, and at first was under the control of the Southwest Conference. In 1941 the "South Fayetteville Methodist Church" was organized, and in 1946 designated as Wiggins Memorial Methodist Church located on West 6th Street. In 1959 Trinity Methodist Church was established in the northwest area of the city, located at Sycamore and Garland. The newest Methodist congregation is Sequoyah United Methodist with their first worship service in May 1965. They are also in the north part of the city, located on Old Wire Road. Each of the churches has a common heritage of Fayetteville Methodism.

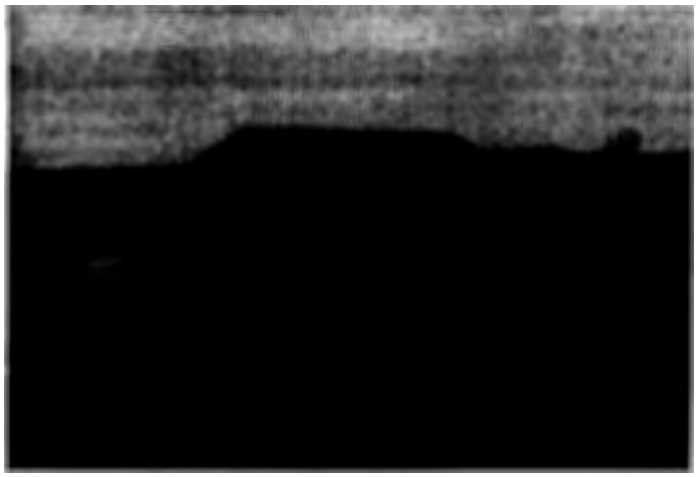
Mission Boulevard Baptist Church

The Mission Boulevard Baptist Church had its earliest beginnings in 1970 when the Holy Spirit moved upon an ordained preacher named Brian Disney in Dallas, Texas and sent him to northwest Arkansas as a missionary to the academic community. Brian was sent out as a missionary of the Rodgers Baptist Church in Garland, Texas on August 25, 1970 and moved to a small farm in Farmington, Arkansas. He received an NDEA teaching fellowship at the University of Arkansas. From this position, he began teaching conceptual Bible studies to faculty, students and all other interested people. These studies soon came to be known as "Reality Sessions" because of their in-depth look at what the Bible teaches.



Mission Boulevard Church.

In 1971, a house located at 627 Oakland Street, just off the University of Arkansas campus, was purchased. The facility was called the "Reality Session House" or "Session House". It served as the campus center for the increasing number of people interested in learning more about the Bible.

On September 7, 1972, under the burden of the Lord, a mission was established on this group of people named the "Rodgers Baptist Mission". Under the authority of the Rodgers Baptist Church, it began with three charter members, meeting in the downstairs of the "Session House". The mission grew quickly, and the upstairs was then used as the meeting place. Eventually, a larger facility was needed to accommodate the growing mission.

The Lord provided a piece of property located at 600 Mission Boulevard, and it was purchased on December 1, 1973. The existing old house was remodeled and soon served as the assembly area for the mission.

The "Session House" was later sold and a three-story house located at 820 West Maple, across the street from the Plant Science Building was purchased. It is used as a dormitory for male students and for activities sponsored by the ministry.

The Lord continued to bless the mission and it experienced rapid growth. By 1975, it was again time to move to a larger facility. The members decided to use their own resources and labor to build a new auditorium on the large lot just next to the house. The building was finished on October 27, 1975, just in time to hold the organizational service during which the Rodgers Baptist Mission would become the Mission Boulevard Baptist Church. It was established under the authority of Rodgers Baptist Church in Garland, Texas and had sixty-five charter members.

By 1979, the new facility was becoming overcrowded and a search was underway for a new location. After considering many possibilities, the church chose a six-acre tract located at 2006 Mission Boulevard. Construction of an 8,000 square foot assembly building began in August 1980. The project was built with the labor and resources of the members, and in December 1980, the first services were held at the new facility. The building was then dedicated on February 27, 1981. An Education Building was built in 1982, and a second building was built in 1984 for the growing Christian School.

Mission Boulevard Baptist Church continues to obey the Great Commission of evangelism, discipleship, baptizing and teaching the Word of God. Two missions have been established at Pine Bluff and Pettigrew, Arkansas. The Pettigrew mission has since organized into the White River Baptist Church in November 1984.

Morrow United Methodist Church

What is now the Morrow United Methodist Church was formerly the Crozier Presbyterian Church. The building stood one and a half miles west of the present location on what was and still is the "English" farm. It was built in the late eighteen hundreds and was moved to the present location in 1920 or 1921. A small Presbyterian Church located at the head of Fly Creek was consolidated with The Crozier Presbyterian at the time it was moved. Richard Reed had charge of the consolidation plans. Rev. Sam Marrs was the first pastor and served more than twenty years. He was followed by Rev. Jo Skinner who came in the nineteen thirties. Rev. Marrs and Rev. Skinner were the only pastors to have served for this period of approximately thirty years, at which time the grounds and building were sold to the Morrow Methodist Church.

This Methodist Church was established in 1875 near the Bethleham Cemetery. The people met in a large shed until a building could be built. In 1909 this building was moved to Morrow and was used there until 1952. It was then sold and the funds used to purchase the building and grounds of the Presbyterian Church. The members of the two churches united to form the church that is now called Morrow Methodist Church.

Mt. Comfort Presbyterian Church

According to the history of the Presbytery, compiled by the late Reverend G. W. Thompson and deposited in the University of Arkansas Library, "On August 30, 1830, the Presbytery met at Mount Comfort Camp Grounds and approved the Reverend Robert Buchanan to attend Synod with the Reverend Andrew Buchanan as his elder".

About two years before this time, the Tuttle and Cunningham families settled in the area. William D. Cunningham staked off a seven-acre tract of his land to be used for a church. They named it Mount Comfort after the Mount Comfort Church they had left in Tennessee.

Jane Cunningham, the daughter of Solomon Tuttle, and his other children, Nathan and John Milton Tuttle, took up land grants in the area as did the Nolen family. Among other early settlers in the community were the Carnahans, McCurdys, Sheltons, Applebys, Deanes, McCormacks, Rainwaters, Kantzs, Taylors, Caldwells, Swaggertys, Henbests, Weirs, Dowells, Cooks, Bonhams, Mounts, Jacks, Browns, Winters and Pittmans.

The first church was built of logs and had split logs for benches. Some of the settlers built cabins in a square around the church and they came and camped there for camp meetings. These meetings would sometimes last for weeks at a time.

In 1840, a new brick church was built with bricks made and fired in the kiln on the Cunningham farm. The Cunninghams also built their brick house (now owned by Ellis Wilson) in 1840 and it is still in good repair.

Even before the new church was erected, the settlers were trying to attract educators for schools. They got Robert Meeklin and the Reverend Cephas Washburn to come and start the Far West Seminary for Young Men. These two men influenced Miss Ann James to leave Sophia Sawyer's Female Academy in Fayetteville and establish her own school in the Mount Comfort Church. A large studio room was added to the building. Miss James brought her two pianos and taught music as well as the regular course of studies.

Washburn brought many Indian students from Oklahoma (then Indian Territory). The Indians camped in tents and the cabins around the church. The girls went to Miss James School and the boys attended Far West Seminary.

Then came the Civil War. The Mount Comfort Church was burned to the ground and the bricks were hauled to Fayetteville. They were used to build fortifications near the railroad depot.

When the war was over, there were many bleak months ahead. Church services were held in Ozark Institute and in the homes of members until 1874. At this time, a new frame church was built. This is the building now in use. It has been renovated several times since that date.

In 1908, the congregation voted to join the Presbyterians, U. S. A. and some of the Cumberland Presbyterians left the church in protest.

All through the years, the church and schools have worked side by side. The church has been the center of neighborhood life, often being the only source of social interaction of many isolated rural families. It continues to be a focal point in the area to this day.

New Sulphur Freewill Baptist Church

The New Sulphur Freewill Baptist Church was organized in 1958 with Dave Casteel and Cecil Garrison from the Old Mt. Zion organization assisting. Glen Jones was the first pastor serving 1958—1978. The Brading, Cross, King, Redfern, Rice and Yell families were represented by fifteen charter members. Ira Cross and Buster Yell were the first deacons with the latter having held this office until the present time.

Original members were: Ira and Opal Cross, Ann and David Cross, "Buster", Lillie and Jimmy Yell, Retta, Maxine, Charlene, and "Butch" Redfern, Mary and Jerry Rice, Eleanor Brading, and Fannie King.

The first church organization's services were held in the last New Sulphur school building which was a community building for many years. The new church was build next to it in 1962. There have been three new additions in 1964, 1972 and 1984.

There have been three other pastors following Glen Jones' twenty year tenure; Johnny Allen for a short while in 1979; Glen Faulkner 1979—1985; Arthur Lee Galloway 1985—1987; and Glen Faulkner 1987 to present.

The congregation now numbers about 200 representing many families from surrounding areas as well as the home community of New Sulphur. It is located about four miles south of Prairie Grove.

North Street Church of Christ

The North Street Church of Christ began in 1958 as an expansion of the Center Street Church of Christ. The first Sunday meeting was on July 20, 1958 with 272 in attendance. Joe Banks was the first minister; he was followed in 1959 by David Howell. The auditorium was expanded in 1965 to accommodate the rapid growth the church experienced. A. W. Chism became minister in 1967 and remained for ten years. During Chism's tenure, the congregation enjoyed its greatest period of growth, reaching an attendance of 600. A new educational wing was added to house a growing Sunday School and a large fellowship room was another addition. In 1975 the North Street Church of Christ took on the oversight of the Christian Student Center on the University of Arkansas campus. Paul D. Haynie, a graduate of Harding Graduate School in Memphis, Tennessee, was hired to direct the student center. Haynie left in 1984 and Dal Narramore, also a graduate of Harding Graduate School, was hired. Nearly one hundred college students attend North Street. Following Chism as ministers were Richard Hostetler and Max Safley, both serving for two years. John W. Gay, from Pampa, Texas, arrived in 1981 to fill the pulpit and continues today. Gay is a graduate of Abiline Christian University and George Pepperdine University and has been in the ministry for thirty-four years. Elders Bill Walsh, Ira Mathews, Bud Tomlinson, and Jerome Yates direct the church's work which includes support of missionaries in Mexico and Minnesota as well as aiding the Southern Christian Children's Home in Morrilton, Arkansas. The church has purchased 12 1/2 acres between Porter Road and Highway 71 bypass and future expansion to that site is planned. In 1987, Steve DeLoach was hired as the congregation's youth minister. Current attendance averages about 400. The motto of the North Street Church of Christ is the motto of the Restoration Movement: "Speak where the Bible speaks and be silent where the Bible is silent." Restoration of the purity and simplicity of New Testament worship is their goal.

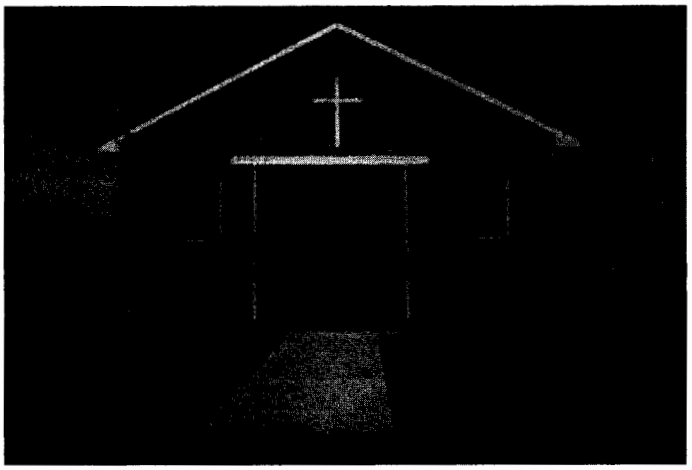
Oak Grove Full Gospel Church

In 1979, Brother Calvin Bilderback felt led to start a church in the Springdale area. Shady Grove School house was rented. We started out on borrowed money. Cleaning supplies were donated by friends and members of the church. We had a clean church but no furniture. Again, the Lord came to our rescue. Members and friends donated chairs, altar, piano, organ, curtains, rug, offering plates made out of chrome hub caps.



Oak Grove Church

First service was October 10, 1979 with 35 people present.

We needed some extra money. A weeping willow bush was sprayed gold using colored clothes pins to hold the money on. People gave the price of one meal a week and it was pinned on each Sunday. We needed land for a church. People started praying on October 27, 1979. We had a couple visit our church and they gave one acre of land. We had the land but no church. Again, the people started praying for the Lord to lead and guide for a church. A lady had a dream and the Lord showed her the church we were supposed to have. She told the church. In 2 weeks an ad came out in a newspaper, a church in Prairie Grove, Arkansas, for sale. It was checked into and purchased and moved on February 25, 1980. On March 29, 1980, we moved into Oak Grove Full Gospel Church.

The Lord showed the same lady in her dream how the church was to be decorated inside. Red velvet curtains over the baptistry with gold fringe. With the name on top "Jesus Saves". Red velvet curtains on back of organ and piano and velvet padded pew cushions. This is what our church looks like today. Our present pews were bought from a church in Baldwin, Arkansas. Communion table and pulpit were donated by this church in Baldwin.

In 1985 an extra acre and trailer were purchased joining the other church property. Camp Meeting is held in June each year. Church property is paid for. Mortgage burning was in 1987. Welcome to Oak Grove Full Gospel Church, Calvin Bilderback, pastor. Services Sunday 9:45 a. m.; evening 6:00 p. m.; Wednesday 7:00 p. m.

Oakland Missionary Baptist Church

During the first decade of this century persons of the Baptist faith living in or near the Zion Community about seven miles northeast of Fayetteville had to travel over rough roads to organized churches several miles distant for the satisfaction of spiritual needs. Since there was a good nucleus of Baptists living in the Zion area, by mutual agreement an organizational meeting for a new Baptist church was held at the Zion Schoolhouse on January 1, 1910. L. S. Ballard and L. L. Johnson with other pastors of the Fayetteville Baptist Association assisted in the organizational effort. L. L. Johnson preached the introductory sermon. The minutes of the organizational meeting show that the following persons from Shady Grove Baptist Church, located south of Springdale, presented themselves as charter members of the new church: Clifford Routh, Belle Routh, Mary Cate, Henry Cawthon, Garland Ivey, Will Reygans, Will Cullinder, Mollie Cullinder, Ras Ivey, Josie Ivey, Jack Mahan, Mary Mahan, Ben Warren, Elliott Warren, Steve Warren, James H. Warren, Lee Warren, John Warren, Mary E. Warren, and J. J. Warren. How long the charter was held open is not known but during the first two years the membership increase by 52. W. S. Luper was the first pastor and under his leadership the Oakland Missionary Baptist Church moved quickly to acquire land and construct a meeting house. Lee Cate and J. H. Warren provided the land for the church grounds and John Ivey the land for the Oakland Cemetery.

Other pastors who served the church to its dissolution in 1976 were: D. H. Hood, L. L. Johnson, J. E. King, C. S. Farmer, O. L. Lierly, I. S. Whitely, J. T. Moore, C. E. Hunt, H. L. Hunnicut, Sheridan Johnson, Vernon Lierly, Virgil Johnson, J. B. King, and Kenneth Sanders. Ordained deacons who served the church include: F. A. Graue, J. J. Warren, Ben Warren, Lloyd Warren, Raymond Gulley, Elza Hultz, Loren Stubblefield, Ollie Plumlee, J. T. Duggar, Bill Hulsizer, Clarence Lower, George Maye, E. C. Conley, E. R. Childs, Earl Donaldson, Polk Bookout, Hubert Danner, Virgil Ray and Guy Terry.

The 1920s and 1930s represented the greatest growth period of the church. During its first 25 years approximately 450 persons were received into the church and church membership during the 1930s exceeded 350. In 1937, twenty members were dismissed to organize the Central Baptist Church of Fayetteville. A division in the late 1930s resulted in the organization of the Braden Missionary Baptist Church east of Fayetteville. This church disbanded during World War II. Following World War II the Oakland Church experienced a revival of growth and influence partly as a result of having a full-time pastorate. However, further divisions plus demographic and social changes in the 1950s weakened the church membership so that by the mid-1970s the old congregation dissolved and disposed of its assets. The church building was eventually acquired by a Baptist mission effort and is now known as the Oak Chapel Baptist Church.

Pleasant Street Church of Christ

The Pleasant Street Church of Christ, which meets at 1020 South Pleasant Street in Springdale, came into existence in January, 1967, with about seventy people present at the first worship assembly. The congregation first met in a small frame building, formerly used as a family dwelling, in which partitions had been removed to provide adequate seating for worship. Even in this environment spirits were high and the atmosphere was that of joy and enthusiasm. From the beginning, plans were being made for the construction of a new brick building on the newly acquired two-acre tract owned by the congregation.

Early in 1968 plans were completed, a contractor hired, and construction started. When the new building was complete the total cost of all the property at that time was $46,000. Since that time another building has been erected to serve as a family center or fellowship hall. In addition to that, through the generosity and love of one of the members, the church obtained an adjoining two and one-half acres together with a large "parsonage" and a rent-house.

Since its beginning Pleasant Street has been under the oversight of elders and served by deacons. Ministers who have served the congregation on a full-time basis have been N. E. Rhodes, Jr., Kenneth Castello, and the present minister, Larry Branum. The Christians meeting at Pleasant Street feel they have been blessed abundantly by the Lord. They sincerely desire the prayers of all who follow Jesus, that his hand may guide them through the coming years. Members believe that in order to be true followers of Jesus, and acceptable to God, they must serve people. They want to be known as people who care. And they lay no claim to being the only Christians; they simply desire to be Christians only.

Prairie Grove Church of Christ

In April 1936, the Springdale Church of Christ sponsored a meeting with Willie Williams doing the preaching. The meeting was held in a tent erected on South Neal Street. That same year the Government Avenue congregation, now Center Street Church of Christ, in Fayetteville, sponsored a tent meeting held in Mock Park with Harbert Hooker preaching.

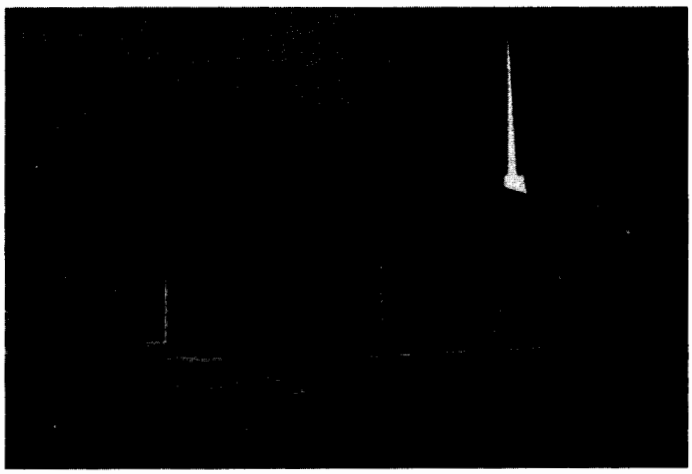
At the close of the meeting three families began meeting and conducting services in the American Legion building. Those three families were, the Edward and Mildred Broyles family, John and Ollie Reinold family and a Brother Estes and his wife. Mildred Broyles is still a faithful member of this church, and Edward Broyles served the church faithfully through the years until his death February 6, 1986, at the age of 79.

The first elders were, Edward Broyles and Jack McClelland. The deacons were, Virgil Bradley, Robert McKnight and Orville Sisemore. Virgil Bradley and Jack McClelland are still faithful members here.

In 1948, a lot was purchased at 309 East Parks Street and a building was erected in 1952 with donated labor from among the members and supervised by George Broyles who also did a lot of the work. Later additional lots were purchased including the adjoining house and lot for a preacher's home. In 1976, an additional lot and house was purchased and the house torn down to provide additional parking and for future building plans.

In 1979, a new building was erected on the property and the old building was sold and moved to provide parking space. The church began meeting in the new building on November 25, 1979.

The present elders are, Clyde Thomas and John Dockery. The deacons are, Travis Horne and Kenneth Thomas. John Dockery has been preaching for the church here since March 9, 1975.



Prairie Grove Church of Christ.

Those who have preached part time here through the years include, George Broyles, D. B. Hebbard, Eugene Henderson, C. E. Johnson, Roe Meador, Guy Couch, Ray King, Jack Cole, Lynn Turner, Ed Spurlock, Dean Parrish, Oris Salyer.

This history prepared by John R. Dockery with the assistance of Mildred Broyles, July 1987. Present minister is Leon Glenn.

Prairie Grove Methodist Church

Methodism in Prairie Grove had its beginning in the early 1820s when families gathered in the homes of the early settlers to worship and study. Preachers were circuit riders, under the jurisdiction of the Missouri Conference, who made it into the area only a few times each year.

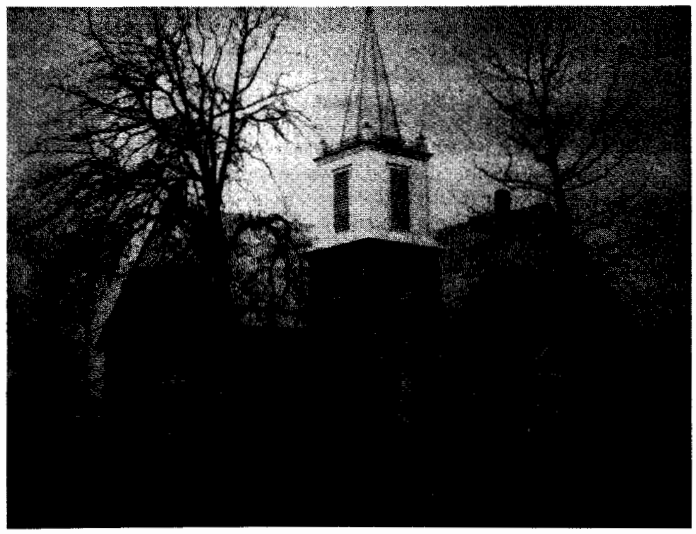
The First Methodist Church in Prairie Grove was organized in 1856 and was a part of the Viney Grove Circuit until 1904 at which time it became a Charge. The church secured its present site in 1879 when James and Lucile Neal and his mother, Signail Buchanan deeded the property to the trustees of the church. The original frame building was constructed on this property in 1880 at a cost of $1500.00.

In 1903, the original building was torn down and the present brick structure was erected. The building remained in that form until 1932 when an Educational Building was constructed on the south side. The church structure was further enlarged in 1953 when the Mock Annex was added on the north. The Chapel and Sunday School rooms were added to the south of the Educational Building in 1965.

Of historical interest to Prairie Grove Community is the old brass bell that hangs in the newly renovated belltower over the north entrance to the church and still calls the community to worship each Sunday morning. The bell, cast in 1883, weighs seven-hundred pounds and is believed to have been made in England. The tone of the bell is of such fine quality that it can be heard for a radius of two to three miles. For a time, the bell was loaned to the City of Prairie Grove and used as a Fire Alarm Bell.

The Methodist Parsonage and lots directly across Neal Street from the Church were willed to the church in 1908 by H. B. Harrison in memory of his wife who was a member of the Methodist Church. The original appearance of the home has changed very little, although the interior has been remodeled many times during the years.

In 1982, sound equipment was purchased to tape Sunday morning worship services and tapes were distributed weekly to shut-ins. In 1983, televising of the services was begun and in 1985, equipment was purchased for this purpose and this ministry of the church has continued since, with tapes of the previous Sunday's service being available on Prairie Grove Cable Service.



Prairie Grove Methodist Church

Some of the early Circuit preachers serving the Prairie Grove area included: James Bankston, 1827; John Henry, 1828; Pleasant Tackett, 1829; John Kelley, 1831 and John Harrell, 1835. The Fayetteville Circuit was formed in 1841 and early pastors included: S. Carlisle, 1841; H. Hubbard, 1842; Henry C. Broyles, 1843; Alexander Avery, 1845 and Thomas Stafford, 1846.

A Methodist Academy, the first high school in Prairie Grove, was built in 1863 and was located on the corner of Bush and Neal Streets. The two-story brick building provided space for twelve grades and not only offered the basic reading, writing and arithmetic, but also Latin, Geometry and Algebra. Among early teachers were Miss Alice Patton, Miss Annie Wagner and Professor W. P. King.

The Viney Grove Methodist Church became a part of the Prairie Grove Charge in 1981 and is served by the local pastor with Morning Worship at 9:40, followed by Sunday School.

Throughout the history of Methodism, local churches have been referred to by several names. Prairie Grove has had only one Methodist Church and it is common practice to refer to it as "The Methodist Church". Actually, from 1802 until 1844, the Methodist Churches in Arkansas and the nation, were named the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1844, when the church divided, the southern churches took the name of Methodist Episcopal Church South. In 1939, it became The Methodist Church, and in 1968 became the First United Methodist Church.

Providence Baptist Church

On October 23, 1891, H. B. Borders, a retired minister, and Rev. J. D. Fletcher, pastor of First Baptist Church of Fayetteville, Arkansas, met in the home of J. M. Robinson near Double-Springs with three families (7 adult members) and organized a church.

The next Sunday a building committee was appointed and the name Providence Baptist Church was selected. The total membership of this newly organized group was nine.

Immediately following the church organization and appointment of the building committee the church purchased one acre of ground from J. J. Son for $10.00.

Construction of the church building began immediately. J. M. Robinson donated 59 days on the building and all labor was by donation. The total cost of the material was $300.00. The building was completed and the first service was held in March 1892. The first service was conducted by H. B. Borders.

Andy Stone, the first pastor, was called in June 1892. The church was dedicated on July 2, 1892 by J. D. Fletcher, pastor of First Baptist Church of Fayetteville.

Andy Stone served as pastor until 1895 and was followed by G. D. Moore (1895—1897). Pastors following were: J. Crawford (1897—1902), D. L. Hood (1902—1908), Bro. Parker (1908—1910), Bro. Edwards (1911), Bro. Banks (1912 for 6 months), and Bro. Luper (1912 for 3 months). Following Bro. Luper's resignation, the church didn't have a pastor until Floyd Fillmore was called on April 4, 1914. He pastored until 1916 and was followed by J. F. Parker (1916—1922).

The church helped to organize the Sycamore Church at Wheeler in 1917. Bro. Alder was called in August 1922 and pastored until 1924. At that time D. L. Hood was called again (1924—1928) and J. F. Parker (1928—1930).

On September 30, 1930, the church decided to discontinue services and there was no program until 1935. In 1935, Charles Painter was called as pastor then was followed by O. L. Lierly (1936—1937), Bro. Ray (1938—1939), W. R. Sharp (1939—1941), Sheridan Johnson (1941—1944). The church didn't have a pastor in 1945 and then O. L. Lierly was once again called in October 1946 and pastored until 1948. Walter Jesser was called as pastor in 1948. The same year the First Baptist Church of Farmington, Arkansas was organized by A. L. Leak and since most of the members of Providence lived in or near Farmington, all but 4 active members moved their membership to Farmington. The remaining members were Mr. & Mrs. C. S. Tipton and Mr. & Mrs. Fred Mayes. Kent Schmitt was called to be associate pastor to Walter Jesser in 1948. Kent stayed one year and Walter Jesser until 1962.

In 1951, Hugh E. Martin donated one acre of ground for the new church on Highway 16 west, where the church now stands. The congregation moved into the new building on April 5, 1953 even though the building was not completed. In October of 1956 the church purchased 1-1/2 more acres just north of the present building from Bro. Martin for $300.00. Bro. Martin was Sunday School Superintendent from 1952 until his death on August 4, 1959.

The Educational Building was started in 1957 and completed with all volunteer labor. It was dedicated May 8, 1962. The church also started a mission at Low Gap in 1962.

Don Sebastion was called as pastor November 4, 1962, and pastored until September 1965. The parsonage was built in 1963. The following have pastored since 1965: Ray Hart (1965—1966), Arthur Page (1967—1968), Hoyt Carroll (1968—1972), Don Seigler (1972—1973), Preston Baumgardner (1974—1976), L. Lowell Ponder (1976—1977), James Zachary (1977—1979), Bill Massey (July 1979-Feb 1980), Ray Rickett (interim) (March 1980-April 1980), and Larry L. Smith (1980 until the present time June 1, 1986).

Other physical additions were: Another 1-3/4 acres of land just north of the present property from Chester Holland making a total of 4-1/4 acres. The baptistry was built in 1969.

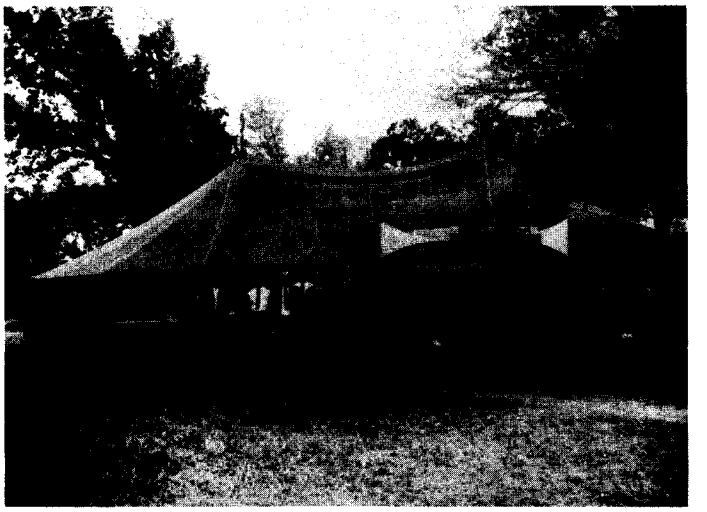
Robinson Avenue Church of Christ

The Robinson Avenue congregation had its beginning on April 10, 1927 when eighteen Christians met in the home of E. F. Bassham for singing, Bible study and communion. The contribution was $6.25, plus $2,36 for the orphan's home. Immediately, a small church building on Berry Street was rented and the group began meeting there. Beginning April 17, 1927, worship services and classes were held at this location until the fall of 1930. James L. Neal and C. E. Powell were installed as the first elders by evangelist C. R. Nichol on April 24, 1927. Preaching appointments were kept by such preachers as John T. Hinds and Will Fritts and Gospel meetings were held regularly by various evangelists, including Joe S. Warlick and C. R. Nichol.

A small church building was purchased on the corner of Grove and South Thompson Street, (Highway 71), and worship was begun there September 1, 1930. This one-room frame building was 28' x 40', and at a later date, two classrooms were added to the east end of the building. During the following years, different preachers continued to fill Sunday preaching appointments and were paid about $3.00 per Sunday. Among those were Rolfe Wagner and B. U. Baldwin. James L. Neal did the pulpit teaching when any appointment was not filled (years 1930—36).



The above picture shows one of the earliest evangelistic efforts of the Springdale Church of Christ. The equipment pictured was used in a 20-month campaign covering northwest Arkansas beginning October 1, 1939. Nine additional area congregations were established as a result of this effort. Pictured left to right are: F. W. Foshee, elder; Roy E. Lowe, deacon; Bob O'Dell, elder; Will Trimble, deacon; Glenn R. Steward, elder; Horace W. Cloer, deacon; James L. Neal, elder; Camie Stroud, deacon; J. W. Mincher, elder. Kneeling in front is Harbert D. Hooker, noted evangelist for the campaign.

The first full-time minister was Foy L. Smith (1937—39), a young graduate of Freed Hardeman College. He received a salary of $60.00 a month. In 1939, the church launched a "Twenty-Month Campaign", employed Harbert D. Hooker as the evangelist and purchased the following equipment for the meetings: a new panel truck, new tent and new song books. Brother Hooker made the folding seats himself. The campaign began with a one-month tent meeting in Springdale beginning October 1, 1939. Congregations established as a result of this campaign were: Gravette, Lowell, Tuttle, Evergreen, Mayfield, (which emerged with Evergreen after about a year), Winslow, St. Paul, Siloam Springs and Washburn (east of Fort Smith).

Following Hooker, (1939—41), Jady Copeland was the minister (1944—45 and he was followed by Carroll Trent (1948—50). During this time, the congregation purchased additional property across Grove Street, the frame building was moved there, and an addition built onto it. For over twenty years, the congregation met in and made periodic expansions to the building on the northeast corner of Grove and South Thompson Street. Following Trent was Leerie Ball (1950—51) who filled the pulpit until John Stevens (1951—52) arrived from Abilene, Texas. Stevens later became president of Abilene Christian University.

In 1952, a radio program was started over KBRS, and it was continued for over twenty-five years. After Stevens received his Ph. D. in history at the University of Arkansas, Leerie Ball (1953—56) returned to preach. During this time, the congregation undertook the first all-family nightime Vacation Bible School. All material was written, illustrated and printed by local members.

Other preachers for the congregation were Mac Layton (1956—62) and Lloyd Wheeler (1962—66). Otis Gatewood laid groundwork for a gigantic eight-day "Meeting in the Ozarks" at Parsons' Stadium with Jimmy Allen in 1964. Attendance was approximately 5,000 each night. Mid McKnight helped launch another similar meeting with Jimmy Allen that was held in 1965. About this time, area members of the church purchased Green Valley Bible Camp near Rogers, Arkansas and Paul Cantrell was supported as a missionary to the northeast U. S.

In 1966, a three-year building expansion was completed and twenty-two members went to Pittman, New Jersey for a campaign with Lloyd Wheeler preaching. Bryan Teagle was the next minister, (1966—69) and the first supported foreign missionary was Coy Roper, to Australia in 1969. That year, Bobby Coker (1969—70), became the minister and Jim Rix the assistant Minister (1969—71). In 1971, a bus program was begun, with Carl Carpenter donating the first bus. Jack Gray was the preacher, (1970—76) and in 1973 a new building with thirty-three classrooms and seating capacity for 1,100 was built at 1506 West Robinson Avenue. Eddie Cloer held the first meeting there. The old property on Thompson Street (Highway 471) was sold to the Ozark Guidance Center. Ed Qualmann became the first bus evangelist (1974—75).

The congregation began sponsoring Mike Mason as a missionary to France in 1982. The first annual area-wide Green Valley Ladies Retreat, sponsored by the Robinson Avenue congregation, was held in 1983.

Other preachers serving the congregation since 1976 were: J. B. Meyers, (1976—77); J. R. Chism, (1977—81); Rick Bright, Assistant and Youth, (1978—83); Joe Ed Furr, (1981—83); Jim Caldwell (part-time, 1983); Larry Walker (intern and youth), (1984—85); Ron Parnell, (part-time Youth, 1985—86); Marshall Henson, (1983—87); J. R. Chism, (1987-Present); W. E. "Dub" Deloach, Minister of Education, (1987-present) and Steven Frye, part-time Youth, (1987-Present).

Present elders (1987) are: Tom Gillmore, Roy Howard, Haskell Jackson, Marvin Johnson, Deryl Oxford, Gerald Porter and Charles Shumate. In 1986, the average attendance was 526 and the average weekly contribution was $5,529.00.

Rolling Hills Baptist Church

Rolling Hills Baptist Church is the outgrowth of missionary concerns of the Fayetteville Immanuel Baptist Church, the Washington-Madison Baptist Association, and the Arkansas Baptist State Convention. Under the sponsorship of Immanuel Church, forty-seven members formed a Mission Church and met in a newly constructed building at 1400 Rolling Hills Drive on November 13, 1966 for their first formal worship service.

Perry O. Hollis, Larry O'Kelly, Don Seigler, and Al Cullum served as pastors during the time the congregation remained a mission. On March 19. 1972, the group became a constituted church and Al Cullum remained as pastor for approximately one year. He was followed by William Brock Watson who began his ministry on June 1, 1973 and continued until August 29, 1982. William Flynt served as interim pastor until May 16, 1983, when Layne E. Smith, the present pastor began his ministry.

Throughout the history of the church the corporate worship services have been a primary part of the church's witnessing activities. The use of Scripture, music, quiet times, and prayer has focused on the presentation of the Christian Gospel as Good News. Preaching has been central in these services with the end objective being to graciously evangelize, nurture, and educate those who attend.

The church has maintained a strong program of Bible study with Sunday School classes for all ages being held regularly. A Vacation Bible School has been held each summer with both children from the church family and the community participating. Adults have enjoyed annual special Bible studies with a recognized Bible scholar as teacher.

Members of the church seek ways to be of service to the community individually and to share the church buildings and grounds with other groups. Members have encouraged and supported their pastors to counsel or serve any person who may be in need. The church has contributed to the lives of a surprisingly large number of persons now living on other parts of the world. Many of these persons were connected with the University of Arkansas, and upon moving to their permanent homes, have become leaders in their new churches.

Recently the church engaged in a long-range planning process which resulted in setting goals for the coming years. An important element of these plans is the expansion of the physical facilities to meet the needs of a growing congregation.

Saint Gabriel's Episcopal Church

Saint Gabriel's Episcopal Church was founded on February 15, 1987 as a mission, wholly independent of Saint Michael's Episcopal Church, Broken Arrow, Oklahoma, a Tulsa suburb, by an Arkansas group of communicants of the Oklahoma parish. This group, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winkelman, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowman, traveled many miles to the Oklahoma parish of Saint Michael's in order to worship in the traditional forms of the Episcopal Church and to hold to the Apostolic Faith in its Anglican expression. It was the founders' belief that there were a number of people no longer participating in any parish because of changes in the expressed faith, order and morality in other parishes of the establishment church. The church began its worship services February 22, 1987 with Father John C. Pasco of Saint Michael's celebrating Holy Communion at Sisco Chapel, 705 West Meadow, Springdale, Arkansas. The group, in its beginning, numbering 35, looks towards its own building and resident clergy for the future. Services are offered at 10:00 a. m. each Sunday for Morning Prayer for those Sundays when clergy from traditional parishes are not present. All services, however, use the 1928 Book of Common Prayer. Saint Gabriel's maintains its link with the Anglican Communion, as a mission of Saint Michael's Parish which receives its episcopal ministry from The Right Reverend Graham Leonard, Bishop of London, England.

Saint James Baptist Church

History: a small word with a great meaning. It is an ancient word yet, a modern word. A word which brings to mind the years, events, and people who existed in our past.

The following is a collection of historical facts concerning St. James Missionary Baptist Church.

Most of the history from 1865 to 1920 was passed from older persons, who have now since passed. Other information comes from Mr. W. S. Campbell, who authored a book about Fayetteville, entitled One Hundred Years of Fayetteville (1828—1928). I knew Mr. Campbell and thought him to be very loyal and devoted to this city and this community. I am truly thankful he included St. James in his book; especially, the early years, the 1860s, the closing era of the Civil War.

An excerpt from Mr. Campbell's book reads: "There was a man named Matthew Leeper who had owned more than 300 slaves. After FREEDOM, Squire Jehagen, one of Mr. Leeper's personal servants, became a Baptist preacher. Because there was no Baptist organization for Negroes at that time, Squire Jehagen established one of his own. With no actual place of worship, this new Negro Baptist organization met for many years in the homes of the members. Finally, Squire Jehagen did oversee the erection of a plain frame building, in which he served as pastor until his death."

There were several pastors of this organization after the death of Squire Jehagen, but I am unable to relate their accomplishments. The names of these men, however were told to me: Reverend Mahan, The Reverend Wilson, Reverend Tuggle, and the Reverend C. L. Netherland.

The name "Saint James" was acquired in honor of the man who gave the land on which St. James Baptist and St. James Methodist Churches are built. A man named, St. James.

It was in the 1920s that Reverend J. W. Webb became pastor of St. James. At this time, the membership was recorded to be approximately 40 (forty). At this time also, the Church had become involved in a mortgage incident. Mrs. Mary Walker and a Mrs. Polk secured the mortgage in order to keep the building from being sold. With this opportunity to redeem the church, Rev. Webb began a mission to have a new church built. The old frame structure was disassembled, and the remnants cleared from the property. With donations from the members, The First National Bank, The McIlroy Bank, and several other city businesses ($75.00 each), the mission was underway. Rev. Webb dug the basement, made the mortar, and assisted the masons in laying the new foundation. The members also donated worktime. The mission became reality with the completion of the building in 1921 or '22.

St. James Baptist Church. A new beginning since October 11, 1987. St. James Missionary Baptist Church, 115 South Willow, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

In 1944, the new church building which had been a mission, realized by Rev. Webb and its members, in the early 1920s, along with all records, was utterly destroyed by fire. The members would then assemble in the parsonage, or in the Masonic Lodge to worship. We were also invited to worship in the St. James Methodist Church.

It was after a two and one-half year struggle, the good citizens and several white churches donated finances to erect our present place of worship. This building has a 250 seating capacity, and was donated by the Reverend Walton Johnson, pastor of Fayetteville's First Baptist Church. Rev. Webb, served several more years as pastor of St. James then resigned.

About six months after the resignation of Rev. Webb, the church called a young minister named, Rev. Thomas, from Fort Smith. It was he who gathered the small flock and encouraged us to tithe. During his leadership, the church was wonderfully blessed. He soon left us, however, to accept a government position in Washington.

Again, we struggled to stay together.

Though he was feeble, Reverend Webb again accepted the role as pastor. He served faithfully until his health began to fail badly. Rev. Webb was pastor of St. James for a total of 33 years.

In 1945, the Reverend G. E. Wright was called to pastor St. James. Our membership, at this time, had increased to approximately eighty-six, with three of our members being church deacons. These three were: Brother B. H. Utley, Brother Osiah Smith, and Brother Jack Barker. Later Brothers John Funkhouser and Nathaniel Polk were ordained. It was under the leadership of Rev. Wright, that St. James purchased a new parsonage on East Center Street. We, however, were unable to retain it. There were many problems and much disjunction at this time. After serving two and a half years, Reverend Wright resigned early in 1947. Again, we struggled without a leader.

The LORD saw fit in HIS infinite mercy to send to us a faithful minister, The Reverend M. G. Edmondson from Joplin, Missouri. It was under the leadership of Rev. Edmondson that Brother Oscar Williams was ordained as a Deacon. Also, at this time, more souls were won, and new pews were purchased. The church obtained rugs for its floors, and the J. W. Webb and Wife Memorial Window was installed. Rev. Edmondson (now deceased) served St. James for eight years.

The Reverend W. M. Murry of Fort Smith, was our next minister. He immediately organized church auxilaries such as The Usher Board and a Board Education. He encouraged members to attend a study course, which he held each year. We gained several new members, purchased the parsonage on East 6th Street, installed the B. H. Utley Memorial Window, and added paneling to the sanctuary. Rev. Murry served as St. James' pastor five years before being called to Coffeyville, Kansas. With saddened hearts, and many prayers, St. James sought another pastor. By the grace of GOD, we found Reverend C. A. Woods of Fort Smith. During his service (1968—1973), we completed the basement, gained complete ownership of the parsonage, grew in membership, and ordained Brother Billy Williams as a Deacon. Under the leadership of Rev. Woods, we never failed to participate in the District, State or National meetings. After health difficulties, Rev. Woods resigned to become pastor at his hometown church, First Baptist, in Fort Smith. His departure caused us once again to seek pastoral leadership.

GOD was still working through one of our former pastors, Rev. Edmondson, for it was he who recommended Reverend J. L. Thompson to us. We called Rev. Thompson in 1973. During his first year here, Rev. Thompson studied the people and the community, then he began preaching dynamic messages which blasted sin.

Under the service of Reverend Thompson, St. James gained new members, and began a church-run bus route to encourage the attendance of the University of Arkansas students. We have licensed three young ministers; Reverend Ronnie Tucker, Reverend Robert Thompson, and Reverend Sylvester 'Pat' Jennings, and Reverend Bruce Caldwell. St. James also ordained Brother John L. Colbert as a Deacon. Also during Rev. Thompson's service, we were successful in laying our long delayed cornerstone. We purchased a lot, south of the Church, on which we are now building a new house of worship. Rev. Thompson resigned as pastor in 1985, leaving Saint James again, in search of a new pastor. This led us to the person of Rev. T. J. Moton, our present pastor, who was ordained such in April of 1986.

We have been blessed spiritually and financially. For this, Saint James, I say, 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow'. We have pitched our tents near turbulent waters, but the leaders who have waited in the camp have caught the gleam of a new day. And have each, in turn, brought us into a greater and more secure avenue of triumph. So let us give thanks to GOD for those old patriarchs who made it possible for us to be Saint James Missionary Baptist Church, today (122 years in May of 1987).

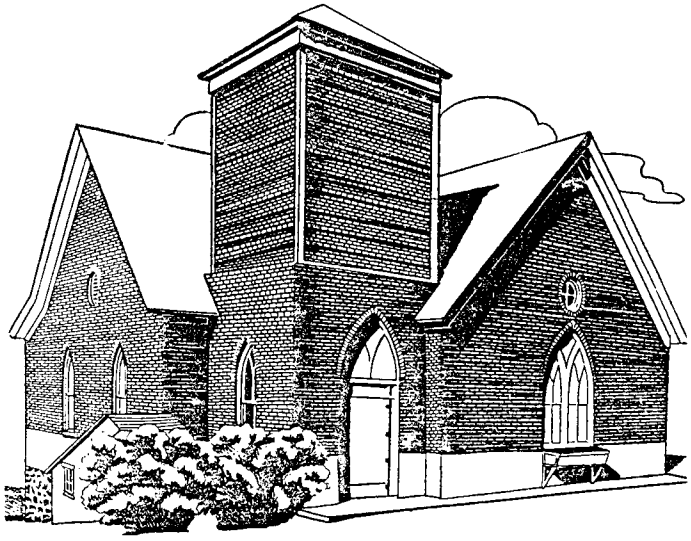
Saint James United Methodist Church

St. James United Methodist Church has its' roots in pre-Civil War Fayetteville and is the oldest black community in the area. Having settled in the southeast section of the city, black Methodists met in these early years in the homes of its members. According to oral history, the congregation erected a frame building on East Rock Street before moving to the present site of East Center and North Willow. The initial structure was frame, but under the leadership of the St. James Community, the existing church was completed in 1907. The Reverend G. N. Johnson received his appointment to St. James this same year.

The present building has survived severe tornado damage to its' southwest corner and lightning damage to its' steeple. Time and nature have necessitated several renovations, including the current one, but the basic structure and dignity of the church have been preserved since 1907.

The church's interior has an equally interesting history. At least one light fixture has been preserved from the original frame church and is located above the pews in the worship area. Memorial windows honor several of the most beloved members of our community. Dedicated in 1955, the east window honors the memory of Mr. James C. Hoover, while the north window, dedicated on October 7, 1959, pays tribute to Reverend



St. James Methodist Church.

A. L. Buchanan, pastor from 1946 to 1961. Reverend Buchanan while still a minister of St. James, made the "Who's Who" of the Methodist Historical Society published in 1952. The west windows memorialize the Joiners, Carlos Carr and Alvin L. Rich, while the south windows of the entrance way commemorate the work of Anna and Otis Parker. Upon close examination, the pews may be divided into two groups according to the carvings at the end of each. One group came from the Presbyterian Church formerly located at Spring and College Streets. Like its' congregation, the church's furnishings are rich in history and draw strength from diverse origins.

The history of our community is preserved in oral traditions and written documents. These sources of our collective memory are evidence of a past rich in faith and vision. At its best, this vision encourages diversity and reaches out to that larger community beyond our own borders.

Saint Joseph Catholic Church

When we research the establishment of the Catholic Church in Tontitown, we must first tell of the arrival of the Italian immigrants and their leader. According to old documents this was in 1897—1898.

Saint Joseph Catholic Church, Tontitown, Arkansas.

St. Josephs, Tontitown, Arkansas.

Rev. Pietro Bandini was born in Forti, Italy, 1853. He studied for the priesthood, and after his ordination, he began teaching. His essay on the problems of the Italian emigrants, led the government to send him to New York to further his studies. Here he learned of the dismal plight of the Italians at Sunnyside, Arkansas. He went to their aid and told them he was going to find them a new land. He asked them to try to bear the terrible conditions of life until his return. He located a large farm west of Springdale that was on the point of being abandoned. He purchased approximately 700 acres. Between 35 and 40 families followed him there. The settlers named the town, Tontitown, after Henri de Tonti, the lieutenant who served under LaSalle, and founded the first settlement in Arkansas at Arkansas Post in 1684.

The first church in Tontitown (possibly an old school) was a wood frame building which also housed the school.

Much suffering, through hate, contempt, and ridicule was endured by the early settlers. Religion and nationality were foreign and unwanted here. Father Bandini was their pastor, teacher, leader, advisor, and the first mayor of the town. He taught them their rights as Americans, the importance of faith in God, honesty, learning the American laws and obeying them.

The church was the center of worship and social activities. Some of the social activities consisted of music, singing, dancing, games, visiting, and laughter. In August, 1898, a year after their arrival, the people gathered to celebrate and give "thanks to God" for their recovery from the fate at Sunnyside, for their new location, and for the harvests they received during the year. This celebration has been observed yearly and is now known at Tontitown Grape Festival.

The church was burned in 1898. Legend has it that a gang from Indian Territory set fire to it. Father Bandini put out the fire. Part of the rear wall was burned, but a picture of St. Joseph hanging on the wall was not damaged. Hence they named the church St. Joseph. It was later re-opened and served as a school.

A new church was built and dedicated on November 18, 1900. In 1934, this church was destroyed by a tornado. Construction of a new church was started by men of the parish. Meanwhile, religious services were held in the school basement until the completion and opening of the present church in 1942. Rev. Lawrence H. Schaefer was pastor from 10/5/42 to 6/26/51.

The Catholic Church not only survived but grew to the extent that an assistant priest was necessary to help serve the surrounding areas of Springdale and Siloam Springs. Now both Springdale and Siloam Springs are parishes of their own, with churches and resident priests to serve the needs of the many Catholics.

At this writing (January 1988) plans are being made to build a new and larger church in Tontitown. The present pastor is Rev. Francis J. Janesko.

The 90th Tontitown Grape Festival will be celebrated this August (1988). The one day celebration has grown to three days. "Thanks to God".

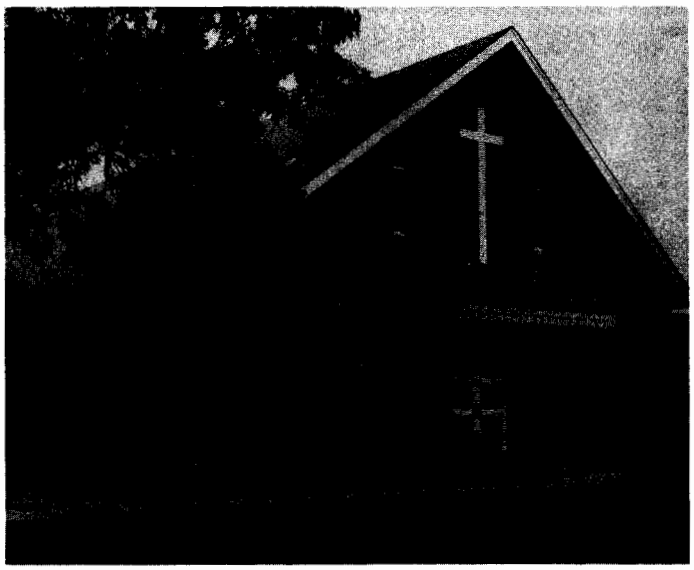
Saint Raphael's Catholic Church

In the fall of 1949, Reverend L. H. Schaefer, pastor of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Tontitown, presided over a preliminary organizational meeting of Catholics to plan formation of a Catholic parish in Springdale. Father Schaefer celebrated the first mass in springdale at 9:00 a. m., Sunday, December 4, 1949 in the Chapel of Callison-Sisco Funeral Home.



St. Raphael's Catholic Church, Springdale, Arkansas.

The lot at the corner of West Huntsville and North Shiloh Street was loaned to the mission by Mrs. Josephine Braun. The small house on the property was redecorated and made into a chapel. In February 1950, the Springdale Mission was named St. Raphael's Cenacle. The name was chosen in memory of Mrs. Braun's son, Raphael, who was killed in World War II.

The first mass at the four-room Cenacle was celebrated on June 20, 1952. The celebrant was Reverend Thomas Kennedy of St. Joseph's Parish. In March 1955, St. Raphael's Mission was dedicated by Archbishop William O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension Society. The mission membership has grown from forty-five to seventy-eight.

Three and a half years later, the dreams of the mission membership were fulfilled when Bishop Albert L. Fletcher, Bishop of Little Rock, dedicated the new St. Raphael's Catholic Church on November 25, 1958. The site of the new church was a thirty-acre tract of land on Highway 68 west.

On September 3, 1965, St. Raphael's became a parish and Reverend Francis J. Janesko became its first resident pastor. The membership had grown to one-hundred.

Another St. Raphael milestone was reached in February 1967 when a new rectory and parish hall were completed. St. Raphael's continued to grow and an educational wing to the parish hall was completed in 1982. The present membership stands at approximately eight-hundred and fifty. The pastors that served St. Raphael's as a mission were Reverend Schaefer, Reverend Kennedy, Reverend Jesse C. Chaney and Reverend Joseph S. Quinn. Resident pastors who served St. Raphael's were Reverend Janesko, Reverend Edward J. McCormick, Reverend Amos Enderlin and the present pastor, Reverend Milton R. Lange.

Saint Stephens Episcopal Church

A tiny mission outpost was established in Winslow in the 1880s, and until the Methodist Church was built in 1905, (having been organized in 1903) served as the only building used exclusively for worship services.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church sat on a slight slope of the hill across the street north of the Sharp property and South View Inn. It was directly across the street west of the family most responsible for its organization, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Dunlap.

Many of its earlier members are buried in the cemetery on the hillside west of the church on the land donated by that same Dunlap family. Care for both the church and land surrounding it has been neglected with the cessation of the church.

As membership to this early church dwindled and members either changed their denomination, left the area or died, it struggled to stay alive.

For a time the Reverend Carleton D. Lathrop, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Fort Smith, held services some Sunday afternoons. Finally, even this service was discontinued, and the church was deconsecrated.

When the doors closed, there were few members to remember the past glories or its bell pealing to call worshipers to its services. With windows now boarded and the front door crumbling and overrun with weeds, there is hardly a Winslow resident that can tell you about the St. Stephens Episcopal, a once vital, living church.

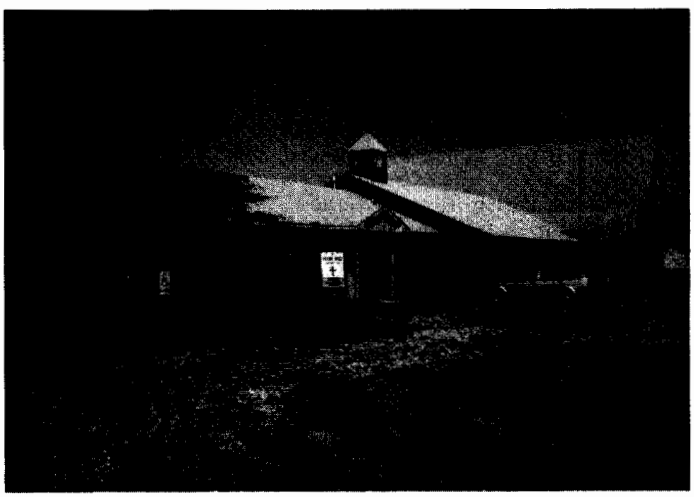
Saint Thomas Episcopal Church

1952 - There was limited activity by Episcopalians until Roy J. and Maxine Bowman moved to Springdale and affiliated with St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Fayetteville. With the help of the Episcopal Church Women (ECW) of St. Paul's, a search of Springdale revealed a few interested families and the foundation was laid for what became St. Thomas.



Saint Thomas Episcopal Church, 1800 Sisco Avenue, Springdale, Arkansas. Building to the left, dedicated December 15, 1960, was used as both sanctuary and parish hall. Sanctuary, dedicated September 20, 1968, was connected to the parish hall by covered walk. The enlarged parish hall (center) was dedicated August 19, 1987.

1952—1956 - In July 1952, a mission, which became St.

Andrews at Rogers, was organized with Rev. Robert Hall as Vicar. At the recommendation of Bishop R. Bland Mitchell most Springdale Episcopalians attended St. Paul's; or St. Andrews where Rev. Dr. George C. Weiser replaced Rev. Hall in 1956. In the fall of 1956, Rev. Weiser and the Springdale laymen convinced (then Bishop) Robert R. Brown to permit services in Springdale.

October 7, 1956 - First services were held in the basement of the Public Library, then located at 118 West Johnson Avenue with Rev. Weiser presiding- 15 adults and 11 children attended.

January 1957 - Having chosen the name St. Thomas, Senior Warden Roy Bowman and the other charter members (1) petitioned and were granted mission status by the Arkansas Diocesan Convention held at St. John's, Fort Smith.

In 1958 - Bishop Brown, aware of the growth and potential of St. Thomas, approved the purchase of 5 acres at 1800 Sisco Avenue for the building of a church and vicarage. The budget for the year was $5,500 with a membership of 36.

August 30, 1959 - Rev. Dr. Weiser was called to Catlett, Virginia, and for several months Rev. George Small, Chaplain at the University of Arkansas conducted communion services.

June 1960 - Rev. Edward L. Salmon was assigned as deacon in charge of Springdale, Rogers and Eureka Springs missions. St. Thomas had 57 members by 1961 and flourished under his leadership. The parish house was dedicated December 15, 1960. He became rector of St. Paul's when Rev. Dr. Lindloff retired in 1969.

June 17, 1962-September 6, 1964 - The Rev. Edgar E. Shippy served as Vicar until named assistant to the Dean of Trinity Cath. in Little Rock.

June 20, 1965-June 15, 1969 - Rev. Lawson M. Anderson was assigned as Vicar of St. Thomas. During his tenure, the vicarage and the sanctuary were built, the latter being dedicated by Bishop Brown September 20, 1968. When Rev. Anderson accepted a call to St. Paul's in Newport, Arkansas, St. Thomas had grown from 110 to 171 members with a budget of $13,700. Ministers from Fayettville, Rogers and Little Rock served St. Thomas as supply priests.

January 1, 1970-June, 1973 - Rev. Paul Gray Curate of St. Marks, Little Rock, was the Vicar, serving possibly a congregation of 200.

June 1973-June 1976 - Rev. John Ross Wellwood was assigned as Vicar by Bishop Christopher Keller but was forced to retire by ill health. During this period the membership list was reduced to 120 active communicants because of business conditions and removal of names of inactives, accumulated over the years.

October 1976-January 1982 - Rev. Aristide "Steed" Joyce, Jr. held his first service as Vicar on All Saints Day 1976. He rallied the membership, which set Parish status as a goal. In 1980, independence from Diocesan financial help was reached. On February 27, 1981, after 25 years as a mission, St. Thomas was dedicated as a Parish. Bishop Herbert A. Donovan, Jr. who succeeded Bishop Brown, presided at an impressive ceremony attended by a large group from Springdale, at Trinity Cathedral in Little Rock.

October 1982-October 1986 - Rev. Steed Joyce was reassigned and replaced as Rector by Rev. David Jeffery in 1982. The latter was reassigned in March 1986. The lack of church school facilities was corrected during Fr. Jeffrey's tenure and under the supervision of Senior Warden Col. Maurice Murphy, by the building of a multipurpose room adjoining the sanctuary and the Parish Hall. It was dedicated August 19, 1987. However, a continued lack of membership support, and the use of available borrowed priests, forced St. Thomas to return to mission status in May, 1987.

May 1987 - On January 9, 1988, Rev. Kevin Robinson was installed as Vicar serving both St. Thomas, Springdale and Grace Church, Siloam Springs. The shock of returning to mission status, the intense search required to find just the right priest, and the influx of new members from the growing community sparked a rededication of interest in St. Thomas that bodes well for the future.

Early members were the Roy Bowmans, Imogene and Louis Heerwagen, Mrs. Kathrine Heagler, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence LeFever, Mr. and Mrs. George Casavan, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Chase, Rob and Myrtle Hughes. Peggy and Bob Cooper and Mary John and Lewis Jones.

Salem Lutheran Church

In the late 1860s and early 1870s Lutheran people migrated from North Carolina and Tennessee to northwest Arkansas. During the later years attempts were made to get a pastor and organize a Lutheran Church. In 1874 Rev. Polycarp C. Henkel organized a congregation at Hindsville called St. Paul Lutheran Church.

In 1875, Mr. Isaac D. Rader, of Springdale, attended the English Lutheran Conference of Missouri at Milford, Missouri. With the number of Lutherans increasing in the Springdale area, Mr. Rader persisted in the appeal at this conference for a pastor. Arrangements were made to send Rev. Andrew Rader, nephew to Isaac, to inspect the area. In the summer of 1876 he arrived in Hindsville and reactivated the St. Paul congregation. That same summer he also gathered the Lutherans together in the Springdale area to begin the Salem Lutheran Church. A few months later St. Paul and Salem received a new pastor, Rev. Iraneus E. Rader. He also served Lutheran people in the surrounding areas.

From its very beginning Salem sought to operate a parochial school. It experienced its greatest success in the late 1880s when it purchased Shiloh Institute, commonly called Springdale College, using it as the school and church between the years 1884-1895. At one time the school had 82 students in grades 1 through 6. The school eventually closed.

In May of 1895 the congregation bought two lots on the corner of Johnson and Thompson Streets in order to construct a new church building. That building remained, with several renovations, as the house of worship for Salem until 1964. When Highway 71 widened in 1963 and the church became too small, the congregation decided to build a new church on a 10 acre site on the west side of Springdale. This land was purchased from Walter and Carl Bird and is the present location of Salem.

In 1949 Salem provided Springdale with its first church-sponsored kindergarten. With the exception of the years 1957 through 1963 the kindergarten has operated since it first began. It has continued to expand to its present form as an Educational Child Care Center licensed for 90 children ages 2-1/2 through kindergarten.

During its history, Salem has been instrumental in starting St. John's Lutheran Church, Fayetteville; in 1944. Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Rogers; was started in 1962 and Siloam Lutheran Church, Siloam Springs; in 1964.

With the population of the Springdale area continuing to increase and the renewed dedication of its members, Salem looks forward, with the blessings of God, to continual growth and progress for the Lord and His kingdom.

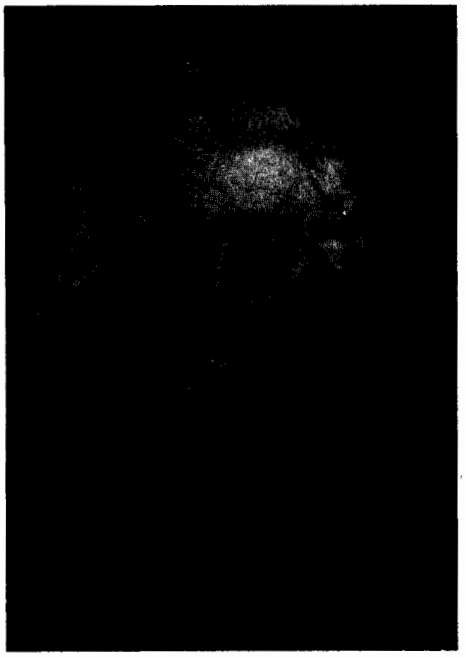
Shiloh Church and Cemetery

The historic Shiloh Church in Springdale is synonymous with the name of one of its revered ministers, Reverend John Holcomb. John and Dorothea (Wilbanks) Holcomb settled in West Fork, Arkansas circa 1839. They bought the Springdale property of Quinton and Spencer Forby Fine in 1843; building their home and wagon-blacksmith shop near the banks of Spring Creek. Reverend John shared the ministry of the Shiloh Church with others until his death. On December 10, 1876 the church dismissed services for his funeral; according to the minutes, he was the only man given this honor.

Rev. John and Dorothea (Wilbanks) Holcomb.



John Howard Holcomb, son of Rev. John and Dorothea (Wilbanks) Holcomb.

Shiloh in Biblical terminology means a meeting place and was a village the east slope of Mt. Ephraim in Palestine. There is not a known phonetic sounding in the various Indian languages resembling Shiloh; therefore, we assume Shiloh (Springdale) received its original name from the early Primitive Baptist Settlers.

Our ancestors brought their religion and established their churches as they migrated to the west. The Shiloh church members established their church three miles east of the present church site on August 22, 1840. Elders Samuel Wheat of War Eagle Church, William Poston of Union Church (Cincinnati, Arkansas area), John Holcomb of West Fork Church and Deacons John Wood and Berry D. Graham of West Fork composed the Presbytery which certified the first log church.

The little church was moved shorly after William Davidson and Sarah (Adams) Quinton donated three-fourths of an acre to the church on Christmas day in 1841. Its home became the southeast corner of present day Main and Huntsville Streets. Huntsville Street originally North Street dead ended at Main Street until the late 1890s. The early Shiloh Cemetery was immediately to the north of the present church and extended to the center of present day Huntsville Street and the east line was Spring Creek (today's unsightly urban renewal's drainage canal). Later it emcompassed a strip running east and west from Main Street to the creek on the north side of the present Huntsville Street.

During the Civil War, the log church was burned as were other area homes and businesses. In 1868, the church was rebuilt for school and church purposes on the same site. This church was of the same size and architecture as today's church and served as the first public school until 1885 when the Allen Street brick School was built. In 1871, the present and third Shiloh Regular Baptist Church was built. Occupancy and a portion of the costs were shared by the Missionary Baptists (First Baptist), South Episopal Methodists and the Masons. The land on which the third church was built was donated by Reverend John and Dorothea Holcomb in 1872.

During the Civil War, Reverend John and most of his family went to Texas. His tenth child and fifth born son, John Howard, born 1841 married Rhoda Biass in October 1865 in Kulli Tuklo, Choctaw Nation, Red River County, Texas (ref. county mar. record). Born in Springdale on July 16, 1850, Rhoda was one of two children of Washington Armstrong and his first wife, Mahala (Guinn) Biass. Rhoda's sister, Mahala married Asa Graham, the great-grandson of William and Leah (Bloyd) Graham. Some of Asa's great-grandchildren in the area today are Anna Lea Petty, Sam and W. C. Rogers, Jr. and Charlotte (Dorsett) Harp. John H. and Rhoda Holcomb had five children: Cener May wife of Owen Allen Seeds, Belle Dora, wife of James Franklin Lynch, Hiram Stephen who married a girl named Dollie, Matilda "Tildy" Bertha married J. K. Reeser and William Thomas married Cora Bell Ladd. John and Rhoda were divorced September 26, 1890 and Rhoda married John S. Seeds, the father of her son-in-law Owen. Belle Dora and James F. Lynch are my husband's grandparents. John Howard Holcomb died shortly after 1919 in Oklahoma, possibly at the home of his daughter, Tildy in Apache, Oklahoma.

Reverend John's home burned in 1863 (ref. Atwood Dairy) during the Civil War and upon returning from Texas, he rebuilt a partial two-story, slate roofed, ten-room home overlooking Spring Creek. The site, today is the location of the Legion Hut. Reverend John buried his wife, Dorothea on a February day in 1874. He died in December of 1876. They were originally buried on the north side of present Huntsville Street near the slope of the hill, overlooking Spring Creek in Shiloh Cemetery. However, they were reburied at Bluff when the Springdale City Council in 1894 condemned the cemetery as a nuisance, their present grave sites remain within view of Spring Creek.

The Shiloh Cemetery burial site of many of our original settlers was moved by the City to Bluff in circa 1895—6. Records indicate it was perhaps a small family cemetery in 1877. Many graves of those originally buried at Shiloh are to the right upon entering Bluff. Interspersed in the first acreage the City bought at Bluff are those who were reburied by their descendants in the newly created family plots. These stones will have death dates previous to 1877—83 and 1895. After the removal of the bodies from Shiloh Cemetery, the City opened Huntsville Street from Main Street to the east. (See Flashback May issue page 25, page 31 line one should read Huntsville and Main).

The Shiloh Regular Baptist members disbanded in circa 1928. The Oddfellow Lodge in 1935 became the owners of the old church and a portion of the former Shiloh Cemetery site. As a Washington County Historical Society board member, I and Dianna Kirk of the Arkansas Historical Preservation Office prepared forms to list the Shiloh Church and the Shiloh Historic District on the National Register of Historic Places. By cross-researching, I furnished most of the documented historical data for both listings.

As a child, my home was on the site of the first Shiloh Church, therefore, the grounds of both church sites was my play area. The two-story, eight-room section of Reverend John's old home was moved in 1903—4 to Meadow Street. I lived in the upstairs apartment of this house when I married his great-great-grandson, Richard on April 1, 1946. The revered old church and Reverend John's home have been a meaningful segment of my youth, as well as my adult life and will continue to be a part of my children's heritage.

Sonora Baptist Church

The Sonora Missionary Baptist Church was organized in 1920 in the old Sonora schoolhouse with 26 members and Floyd Tillman as pastor. In 1933, a stone building was constructed, using native stone-a community cooperative project with many church members donating labor, money and hauling materials. They hand built a pulpit and slat-type benches. Out of debt, dedication services were held November 30, 1941.

In Feb 1952, it changed to Southern Baptist. A dissenting group departed forming Temple Baptist. The few who were left decided to keep the church going during 1952—1970. Vivian Perry played the piano and could play any song she knew by ear. She would ask every church visitor if they could play the piano.

In 1970, used pews and a pulpit were purchased and are still in use.

In 1971, Jack Bettis was ordained as minister.

In 1973, a new piano was bought and Buddy Stockman was ordained as minister.

In 1975, an educational wing was added and the church purchased a vacant lot next to the existing property with expansion in view. Vivian (Mrs. Ivan) Perry donated an organ in memory of Will and Lillie Cannon, her parents and charter members.

In 1976, a kitchen was installed with refreshments every Sunday night and potluck dinner the first Sunday of each month.

In 1977, the church sponsored Sang Avenue Mission, of Fayetteville.

In 1979, the church sponsored the Northeast Southern Baptist Mission, of Fayetteville. A foyer was added across the front of the sanctuary and a library was established.

In 1986, a March note burning for the fellowship hall and kitchen took place and a 12 passenger 1969 Ford church bus was purchased.

In 1987, work began on a new 40 x 77 (3080 sq. feet) $70,000.00 sanctuary. It was finished February 1, 1988.

Vivian Cannon Perry only charter member here.

Monthly events are: Family night refreshments, 3rd Sunday potluck dinner and birthday services at Holland Nursing Home north.

Annual events are: Easter Sunrise services with church men cooking breakfast. Mother's Day with the men preparing breakfast for the mothers and the August Fish Fry at Jack and Janet Perry's on Beaver Lake, ending with preaching and baptising.

Today there is an average Sunday School attendance of 86. The pastor is John W. Smedley; Music Director, David W. Alexander; Pianist, Christine Glines; Organist, Sue Mayes and substitute Nona Wyche.

To God be the glory. Great things he has done.

Springdale First Christian Church

As told by Lon Thomas, who was 11 years old at the time, in 1880, a group of the Disciples of Christ faith met in the Shiloh Primitive Baptist Church-located on Spring Creek at the corner of North Main at Huntsville. It is now known as the IOOF Hall. They soon moved to a log schoolhouse just west of the church and applied for a charter to become the First Christian Church. Members included: Rev. Sam R. and Mrs. Beaman, daughter, Hannah and son, Mel; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Thomas, Mrs. Edith Thomas Banks, Mrs. S. N. Haxton, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson of Elm Springs; and later, Ed Hale.

Second minister was Rev. Evan Thompson, date unknown; who held services in the Presbyterian Church on the 1st Sunday of the month at 11:00 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Later they were able to erect their own church on NE corner of South Main at Meadow in late 1887 or 1888 before Rev. Thompson died in November of 1888.

Dates unknown but next five ministers were: Rev. B. Rose, Rev. Buckley, Rev. N. M. Ragland and Rev. H. S. Mobley. In 1914, Rev. Isaac H. Burgess served for 3 or 4 years followed by Rev. Chas. Riggs until 1923. Rev. Burgess returned for about 4 years, then Rev. William Sessions served while attending University of Arkansas. Rev. John Umphries and wife came until 1931 but he traveled some as an evangelist. His wife was qualified to preach in his absence. Rev. Clifton Bell came for a year and chose one of the members, Mabel Goree, as his wife, to leave with him.

Rev. Frank Holmes served until 1933-then Rev. Emmett Davison, who later went to the Rogers Christian Church. Rev. George N. Villines came in September 1936 until July 1937. Rev. H. J. Kennedy came in July until June 1938. Rev. R. F. Allen came in November until April 1939. Rev. Burgess returned until August 1942. Rev. Edwin York came in October until 1944. That spring Rev. John M. Asbell was called from retirement from Fayetteville Christian Church and a lot was accomplished before he left in September 1950. Needing more room the church was sold to Watson's and their furniture and tire company was built there. By 1946, a larger church was built on the NE corner of South Blair and Grove. In the meantime, the congregation met in the basement of the library, now the Shiloh Museum, as well as part time in the Seventh Day Adventist Church. The first organ was donated in 1948 by Steve Miller's family in his mother's memory. The first communion table was added and dedicated to all mothers who had passed on.

Rev. I. J. Kerrick served 1950 to 1953, followed by Rev. Ivan Hansen. A growing congregation required adding an educational building including 8 classrooms, nursery and kitchen-basement before he left in August 1956. In 1952, an electric organ was donated in memory of Claud D. Kelley by family, and is still in use. Rev. Ben Cleaver was the interim minister until Rev. Wm. J. Cloud came in January 1957 until middle of 1958. In July Rev. O. B. Davis moved his family into the newly built parsonage at 1005 Shipley, fully paid for. Members had done a lot of the work under the able leadership of Al Thompson. He left in 1965 and Rev. Barton Williams came until 1973. All indebtedness of church paid by 1967 and in 1969, 10 and one-half acres was bought on Emma at Gutensohn. When the new church was built, the Art Center of the Ozarks bought the old church and the first service was held June 6, 1971. Part of the grounds have been used by members as garden plots. City church leagues of soccer and baseball use other parts. Fellowship Hall has been used 4 times a year by Red Cross Bloodmobile as well as many other community organizations.

Interim minister was Rev. Burton Miley until Rev. Charles Kinkaid came in July 1973. The mortgage was burned at January 8, 1978 services. When he left in 1979, a retired minister living in Rogers, Dr. Leroy Hay filled in until Rev. Joel Sweat came in June 1979. An associate minister, Randy Kuss, was added in August 1980. The parking lot was blacktopped and paid for in 1978. A larger Fellowship Hall was built and moved into by February 1982, which included classrooms, well equipped kitchen and larger offices for both ministers and secretary. Its mortgage was burned at June 24, 1984 service. Both ministers left in August 1981, and Dr. Roy Kay another retired minister living on Beaver Lake, served until Rev. Kenneth Forshee and wife, Sarah, came in June 1985. Her beautiful voice and his fine leadership have added a great deal to the church. A new parsonage has been built at 1700 Ridgecrest and was moved into the fall of 1986. It was donated to the church by Willard and Pat Walker. A talented member, Betty Edwards, was named to the office of Director of Education in September 1986, and one of her many accomplishments was getting the elementary age youth involved with the Presbyterian Christian Youth Club. The CYF helps as counselors in the Inter-city Youth Camp for underprivileged children as well as with Special Olympics.

Springdale Seventh-Day Adventist Church

The earliest history of Seventh-Day Adventists in Washington County, Arkansas is in November of 1877 at Fayetteville. Edler J. H. Cook from Kansas visited the several Adventist families here and organized the first Seventh-Day Adventist Church in the state of Arkansas. About a month later Cook held a series of meetings at Smith's Chapel which was about two miles south of Elm Springs. He then moved his services to Wild Cat Schoolhouse where he preached to a group of "Age to Come" believers.

As a result, five members joined the Adventist Church along with their minister Elder G. Bidwell.

In 1882, J. H. Cook returned to Washington County to visit a group of members at Springdale namely the Swearingen family whom he had known in Kansas.

In 1884, F. D. Star of Michigan donated eighty-five dollars for the purchase of a large tent to be used for meetings at Springdale by D. A. Wellman. By July of 1884, Wellman reported to church headquarters in Washington D. C. that forty-five people had joined the church and by August of the same year the membership numbered ninety seven. Shortly afterwards tragedy struck the congregation. D. A. Wellman contracted typhoid fever and died September 4, 1884. He is buried in Bluff Cemetery.

J. W. Scoles became the pastor of the Springdale congregation and in January of 1885 a church building was started and was completed by April of the same year. During this year, Scoles also held meetings in Wedington, Cincinnati and Robinson and Logan in neighboring Benton County. Much hardship fell on the believers in 1885-1886 due to the "Sunday Law" passed by the State Legislature. J. W. Scoles as well as other members in Washington and throughout the state found themselves the target of legal proceedings due to their religious beliefs.

In October of 1888, the members in Arkansas petitioned to be admitted into the General Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists and thus the Arkansas Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists came about with Elder J. R. Henderson as president. At this time the Arkansas Conference office was in Springdale, later moved to Fayetteville, and then to Little Rock until the Conference was joined with Louisiana in 1932 and the Conference office moved to Shreveport.

Some time after the original church was built it was moved to present day Grove Street. The original building still stands today (1987) as Peter Pan Day Care Center. Some time after the move, a church supported school was started. As the church and school grew, land was purchased on Hwy 68E and a new school building was built. Shortly afterward the Grove Street church was sold and church services were held in the school building until 1976 when a new church building was started on the same property and dedicated in 1983.

Over the years many dedicated men have served as pastor of the Springdale Congregation. They include Elder Isaac Baker, Elder J. Wilson, Elder Lyle Freemyer, Elder Joe Carner, Elder George Green, Stephens, Elder Orlin R. McLean, Elder Curtis Mortan, Elder A. C. Woods, Elder Beason, Elder Merlin Chambers, Elder William Neptune and Elder Peter Bragg. In 1987 Elder Richard Hall is pastor.

The Springdale Seventh-Day Adventist Church has 152 members. It supports an eight grade school with 30 students. Robert Willis is principal and teacher of grades 5-8. Patricia Hall teaches grades 1-4. This Church has been through the years and continues to be a Bible believing church and looks forward to the return of our Lord Jesus Christ.

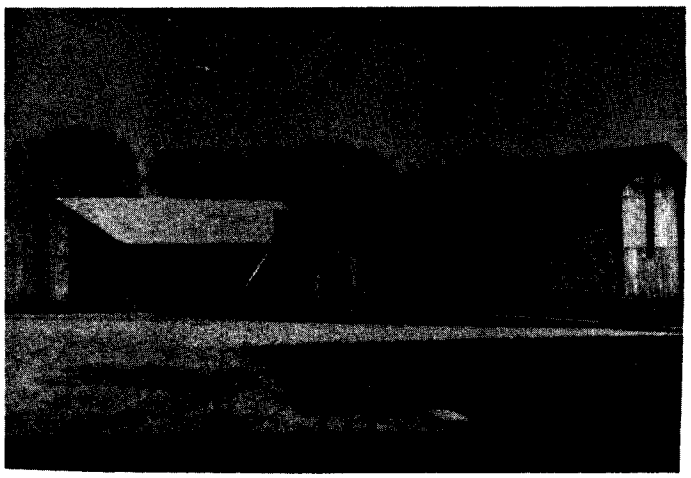
Sycamore Baptist Church, located in Wheeler, Arkansas in 1957 before last addition was completed.



Sycamore Baptist Church, 1976, at new location two miles southwest of Wheeler. The old building is to the left of the main entrance.

Sycamore Baptist Church

Sycamore Missionary Baptist Church was organized April 29, 1917 by missionary O. L. Lierly. The Providence Baptist Church extended an arm of the church to aid in the organization. The seven charter members were: E. F. and Nettie Page, J. W. and Emily Hulse, W. C., Clara, and Sara Hamby. The church took its name from the Sycamore School in which it was organized and which was its home for thirty years. During the first year the young church depended upon visiting pastors to conduct the services.

In 1918 H. E. Plumlee was elected the first pastor. He also served as pastor in 1928, 1930—33, and 1942. Other pastors were: C. S. Farmer 1919—22, 1934; O. L. Lierly 1922—25; W. E. Robinson 1926: Dick Dearing 1929; Roy Owens 1935—37, 1949; Lonnie Brown 1937—42; Will Sharp 1944/48; Clark Wilson 1948; E. M. Teeter 8/50—6/52; Edward Smith 6/52—12/65; Don Atkins 3/66—9/67; George Garner 9/67—5/70; H. L. Abercrombie 6/70—12/73; Jerry Wallace 4/74—2/77; David Licklider 6/77—3/79; and Russell Kelly 5/79 to present.

Services were held once each month, Saturday evening, Sunday morning and evening, until December 1938 when services were changed to twice monthly, Sunday services only. In August 1950 the church began full time services. During the years of once-a-month services, the church depended upon faithful lay persons to conduct the Sunday School each Sunday. J. N. Thomas served as the Sunday School superintendent and his wife, Elva, was secretary-treasurer. During the winter months the family came early to build the fire and open the doors. At the same time Clyde Pearson would light and maintain the Coleman lamps and serve as song leader. His wife, Ollie, played the foot-pumped organ and taught the young adult class.

In 1945 the church made plans to build their own building and elected as building committee of G. L. Lierly, Clyde Pearson, John Thomas, and Millard Ratliff. The committee began to solicit money and materials for the proposed building. In 1946 one-fourth acre was purchased in Wheeler and the building was started in the fall of that year. The building was truly a community effort with members and non-members contributing money and labor to complete the building. The building was built of native oak, the logs given by families in the community and sawed at a local sawmill. The 28x40 feet building was completed in January 1947 and the first services were conducted January 25, 1947. In 1952 a 28x40 kitchen was added and in 1959 a 28x40 addition was made to the sanctuary.

In 1966 the church selected John Knight, Basil Dunn, and V. O. Selby to act as trustees to purchase the present parsonage located at 1443 Porter Road, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Slowly the church outgrew the building and in September 1971 the church elected a Vision Committee to make long-range plans for the growth and development of the church and the church plant. Members of this committee were: V. O. Selby, Odell McKnight, Tom Rollins, Kenny Selby, Robert Blackman and Carmen Lierly. This committee recommended that the church purchase at least five acres, within two miles of the present site, and move the church plant to the new location.

This plan was approved and early in 1972 the church purchased the present six and one-half acre site. Construction began at once on the present auditorium. The members of the church and friends in the community provided 90 percent of the labor and the auditorium was completed in August 1972. At this time all church activities were moved to the new site and plans were made to move the old building to join the new auditorium.

During the winter 1972—73 the members removed the rock veneer from the old building, cut the "L" shaped building into two parts and began the difficult task of moving the building. The first section, consisting of the original building and the 1953 addition, was moved in the fall of 1972 and the remaining section was moved in spring of the following year. During the next year the members, working at nights and on Saturday, converted the old church plant into Sunday School rooms. One of the most faithful workers, Rance Gayer, was not a member of the church at that time. The building was completed early in May and dedication services were held May 26, 1974.

During the history of the church the following have served as deacons, name followed by date of ordination: John Thomas, Harve Guest and Henry Hulse (January 30, 1927); Millard Ratliff (?); V. O. Selby, and Carmen Lierly (January 31, 1954); Jerry Goodson and Ivan Faulkner (August 12, 1979); and Jerry Norton and Robert Windham (June 12, 1983).

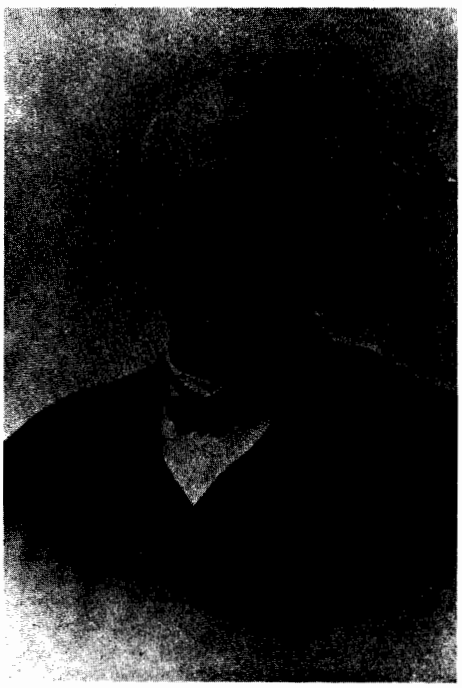
The Fayetteville Baptist Association

Following the close of the Civil War, many Baptist churches in northwest Arkansas associated with the Bentonville Baptist Association, which was organized in 1863. This association recorded forty-six churches at the 1871 session. The number of churches and the geographical area covered by the association stimulated discussions on the need for a different organizational format involving a smaller geographical area. Accordingly, at the Eighth Annual Session of the Bentonville Baptist Association, held at New Prospect Church on Rolers' Ridge, September 1-4, 1871, a committee was established to consider the division of the association and to develop a plan for accomplishing the same (see Flashback 35(3):26-32). This committee was composed of O. D. Slaugther Mt. Vernon, R. R. Lane of First Brush Creek, J. L. Vaughn of Round Prairie, J. M. McCraw of Maysville and J. Dunagin of Bentonville.

Accordingly, a call went out to interested churches to send delegates to a convention at Valley Grove Baptist Church, November 10, 1871 for the purpose of organizing a new association. The churches and messengers that responded to the called convention were: Brush Creek - B. T. Easton, Henry Farmer, J. D. Bradley; Center Point - W. H. Vaughn, L. Roberts; Fayetteville - John Mayes; Huntsville - S. M. Phillips, J. Williams; Mt. Vernon - J. C. Caudle, O. D. Slaughter, A. Cain; Mt. Zion - J. C. Renfro, Moses Lang; New Hope - D. Malicaah, T. H. Jones, J. C. Black, J. F. Black; Pleasant Valley - H. P. Greene; St. Paul - C. J. Lester; Sugar Hill - J. F. Dabbs; Valley Grove - J. H. Webb, E. Hood: Viney Grove - W. L. Goss and White River - A. J. Sizemon.

The convention was formally organized and named the Fayetteville Baptist Association. John Mayes, a charter member of Mt. Zion Church and later of the Fayetteville (First Baptist) Church, was elected moderator, a post he was to hold for many years. The major business after the organizational procedures was the adoption of a constitution, articles of faith and rules of decorum. These documents were patterned after those of the Bentonville Baptist Association from which the churches had withdrawn to form the new group.



Owen David Slaughter, a doctor, community leader and Baptist minister, was born April 14, 1828 in Mississippi and moved to Arkansas with his family prior to the Civil War. According to historical accounts, he married Lucinda Ann Williams about 1850. O. D., as he was known, was ordained as minister by East Union Baptist Church, Pulaski County, Arkansas December 21, 1862. He appeared in Washington County about 1866, settling in the Habberton Community eight miles east of Fayetteville. In 1868, he attended the Fifth Annual Session of the Bentonville Baptist Association. In this association, he became acquainted with John Mayes and other Baptist ministers of the Fayetteville area. With them, he assisted in the organization of the Fayetteville Baptist Association. He was a leader in associational affairs until his death in the early 1900s. He served as pastor of Eureka, Friendship, Mt. Vernon and Shady Grove Churches. A son, Mack Slaughter, was ordained to the ministry and pastored churches in the Washington County area before moving to California in the 1890s and serving the Baptist faith at Porterfield, Woodland, Chico and Oakland (see Flashback 15(3):25-26, 1965 for additional information).

At the next annual session of the association held at the Walnut Grove Church near Viney Grove, twenty-three churches, an increase of ten, were represented. During the next 115 years, approximately 131 churches have been represented in the association at one time or another. These churches are identified by name and general location, if not evident in the name (in some cases a church may have represented only once).

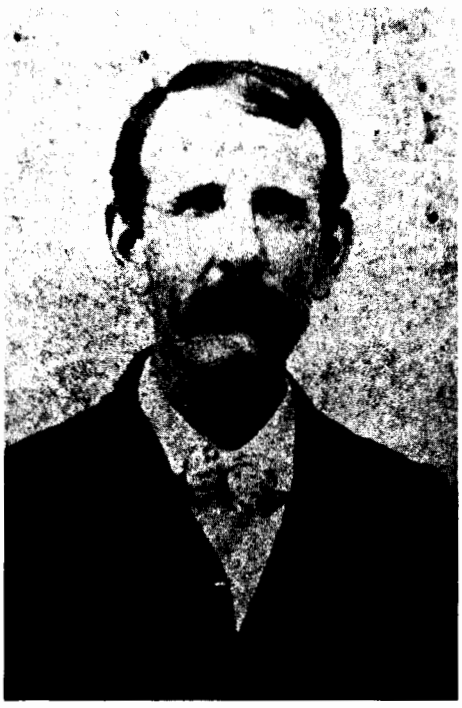
H. C. Winstead was born near Knoxville, Tennessee October 17, 1846, died in Washington County, Arkansas December 11, 1924. He was converted in early life and ordained a minister at the age of 26. He came to Arkansas in 1885, settling in the southwestern sector of Washington County where he lived until his death. He was active in the affairs of the Fayetteville Baptist Association until ill health incapacitated him. He was highly regarded by his peers and associates, serving as moderator of the Association for eight years and as missionary several years. Churches he pastored included Island Chapel, Liberty, Mt. Pisgah, Pleasant Home, Prairie Grove, Rock Springs, Union Hill, Vineyard, Wedington and Wheeler.



J. A. Stone appeared as a licensed minister in the minutes of the Association for 1887 and was living at Farmington. Stone was never married. He was active in the Association, serving on many committees. He pastored churches at Bethlehem, Center Point, Fall Creek, Island Chapel, Mt. Vernon, Pleasant Valley, Prairie Grove, Providence, Sulphur City (New Prospect) and Valley Grove. He lived and worked in Oklahoma for a while before returning to Arkansas in the 1930s. He died in 1940 at Fayetteville.

In 1876, an effort was made to re-unite the Fayetteville Baptist Association with the Bentonville Baptist Association. The proposal was not accepted at the Sixth Annual Session held at the Valley Grove Church.

As can be noted from the list above, the association has enrolled churches from Crawford, Washington, Benton, Carroll, Madison and Franklin Counties, Arkansas; from Adair, Cherokee and Delaware Counties in Oklahoma and Jasper County, Missouri. Over time, the majority of churches listed passed out of existence. Some had a short span of activity, others existed, perhaps for several decades before succumbing to social, economic and demographic changes. In the early history of the association, Northwest Arkansas was still in the throes of reconstruction following the Civil War. Roadways were, by current standards, primitive and rough to travel. Thus in the communities scattered over the area, a dozen or more, sometimes fewer, dedicated Baptists might organize a church where a local minister, or "riding

A. C. Dees was born August 18, 1856, living in the Wedington area most of his life. He died August 31, 1935. He preached his first sermon at Wedington Baptist Church and was ordained there July 23, 1899. His ministerial career was spent entirely in the western part of Washington County where he pastored the following churches: Illinois Chapel, Mt. Pisgah, Mt. View, Prairie View, Rock Springs, Summers and Wedington.

L. L. Johnson was born October 16, 1863 at Hannon, Missouri. He married Lizzie Boster, April 15, 1883. They were the parents of nine children. Johnson was converted and joined a Baptist church when he was about 30-years-old. Soon after, he was ordained to the ministry by Hog Creek Baptist Church in Texas County, Missouri. A few years later, he moved with his family to Washington County, Arkansas where he lived until he died on November 24, 1934. He served effectively both as a missionary and moderator for the Fayetteville Baptist Association. He also was missionary for the Benton County Missionary Baptist Association for the years 1928-1929. As a missionary in the 1906-1912 period, he reported 649 professions of faith and 503 baptisms as a result of his evangelistic labors. Churches of the Fayetteville Baptist Association he pastored included Apostolic, Center Point, Friendship, Goshen, Liberty, Mt. Pisgah, Mt. Vernon, New Hope, Oakland, Prairie View, Spring Creek, Springdale and Spring Valley.

minister" might hold services once a month, often in a private home, until a building could be constructed. In the developing population and trade centers, churches experienced growth in membership and developed the resources for a full-time pastor and for the development of outreach programs. For the most part, none of the churches in the more rural areas were able to establish full-time programs, including a full-time pastor, until after World War II. Improved road systems and better means of transportation resulted in people drifting toward the larger churches in the population centers for the satisfaction of spiritual and social needs. The rural community centers of a schoolhouse and a church or two have almost disappeared - much to the detriment of the quality of life that was once enjoyed in a close-knit community.

In the later part of the 1800s, dissension arose in the Baptist ranks concerning "Landmarkism" and procedural policies dealing with missions and representation in associations, which led to a division of the State Convention and the organization of a new state association in 1901. Echoes of the philosophic differences reached down into the local associations. In 1902, the Fayetteville Baptist Association refrained from an endorsement of the Arkansas Baptist Convention or of the General Association of Missionary Baptist Churches. Churches of the Fayetteville Baptist Association continued to cooperate in all phases of activity until 1918, when the local church divided the issues in question.

In 1918, twenty-five churches were represented in the 48th Annual meeting held at Oakland Baptist Church. Soon after this meeting, the churches at Fayetteville, Prairie Grove, Springdale and West Fork withdrew to organize the Washington County Baptist Association, now the Washington-Madison County Association. In succeeding years, other churches chose to join the new association, but the enrollment in the Fayetteville Baptist Association remained stable, ranging from sixteen to twenty-three or more churches until 1950 when another division occurred. At the Eightieth Annual Session at Oakland Church, an issue of affiliation of churches at the national level caused a division of fellowship in which Central, Little Elm and Sycamore Baptist Churches chose to retain their identity with the American Baptist Association of Missionary Baptist Churches. The majority of the churches chose to affiliate with a new association called the North American Baptist Association. Each local faction chose to retain the identity of the local "Fayetteville Baptist Association", but identifying the relationship to the national association. The three remaining churches of the parent "Fayetteville Baptist Association" applied themselves to mission endeavors, and in 1986 the association numbered fifteen churches and three missions underway. The churches now affiliated with the association are: Carthage Missionary Baptist Church, Carthage, Missouri; Central, Fayetteville; East Park, Stilwell, Oklahoma; Faith, Rogers; Landmark, Bentonville; Landmark, Siloam Springs; Landmark, Springdale; Landmark, Tahlequah; Landmark, Westville; Little Elm, Farmington; Midway, Grove, Oklahoma; Pleasant Grove, Lowell; Sycamore, Wheeler; Unity, Farmington and First Missionary Baptist, Huntsville. The mission efforts are located near Monte Ne, Joplin, Missouri and Swannanoa, North Carolina.

W. C. Hamby was ordained to the ministry by the Zion Baptist Church, Benton County May 5, 1902. In 1904, while he was pastor of Elm Springs Baptist Church, this church affiliated with the Fayetteville Baptist Association. He was active in both Benton and Washington Counties during his ministerial career. Churches he pastored in the Fayetteville Baptist Association included Elm Springs, Goshen, Shady Grove, Silent Grove and Summers. He served as missionary for both the Fayetteville and the Benton County Baptist Associations. He died in 1927.

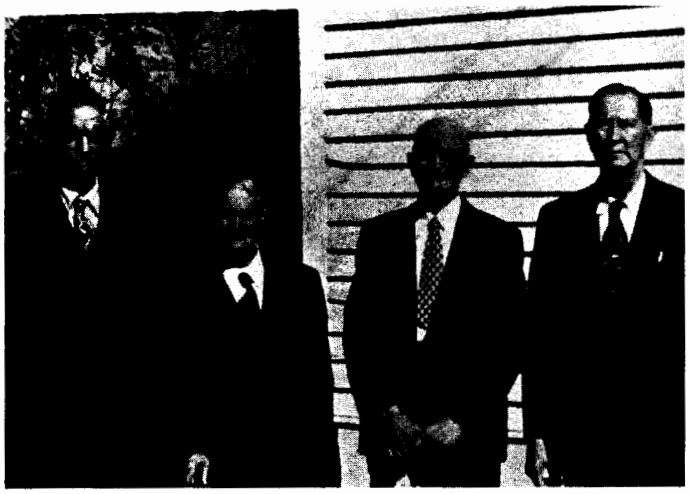
The Fayetteville Baptist Association has long carried out benevolent programs with major support going to an orphan's home at Monticello, and later to the Baptist Children's Home and Orphanage at Texarkana. Individual churches have many times responded to the basic human needs of persons suffering catastrophic events such as hunger and the need for clothing and shelter in such places (besides local and state events) as Mexico, the Solomon Islands and others.

In the early years, few churches had Sabbath or Sunday Schools. One of the major programs of the association was the establishment of such schools at all churches. One of the vehicles for the promotion of Sunday Schools was the establishment of "Sunday School Conventions" where discussions were held on the goals, objectives, organization and management of Sunday Schools. The Association, at its Second Annual Session, held at Walnut Grove Church, adopted a resolution calling for a "Sabbath School Convention" to meet at the Fayetteville Baptist Church in December 1872. The next year (1873), the "Sabbath School Convention" was held at the Centerpoint Baptist Church. Thereafter, the Sunday School Convention rotated among various churches in northwest Arkansas for a number of years. All churches now have "Sunday Schools".

Secular education also received attention from the Association. During the existence of the Shiloh Institute at Springdale, the churches were encouraged to contribute to its programs. The Ouachita Baptist College at Arkadelphia was given support from the local association, and some entering the ministry from northwest Arkansas received training at that institution. Likewise, the Ouachita-Bentonville Academy at Bentonville was



D. L. Hood was ordained to the ministery by the Valley Grove Baptist Church November 13, 1898. He was active in the affairs of the Fayetteville Baptist Association for many years, serving at various times as moderator, clerk, treasurer and missionary. Churches he pastored during his ministerial career included Antioch, Apostolic, Black Oak, Center Point, Friendship, Little Elm, Mt. Vernon, Mt. Zion, Oakland, Pleasant Valley, Providence, Shady Grove, Spring Valley, Sulphur City, Summers and Valley Grove.

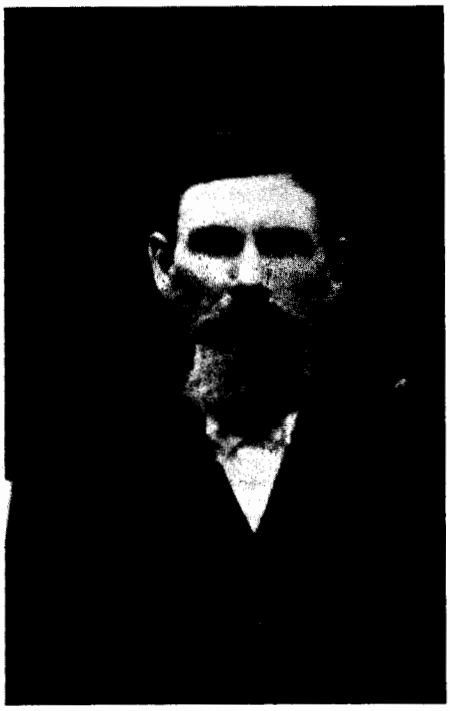
Henry W. Miller born in Indiana, February 14, 1868 came with his parents to Fayetteville from Kansas about 1880. The family settled in the Round Mountain Community where Henry was to spend the rest of his life. In 1892, he married Rosa Brown. To this union two daughters and a son, Ray were born. Henry was ordained to the ministry by Apostolic Baptist Church, April 18, 1909. He was active in the Fayetteville Baptist Association throughout his ministerial career serving as missionary and pastoring at various times the church at Center Point, Friendship, Goshen, Mt. Vernon and Valley Grove. He died February 5, 1950. His son, Ray was ordained a deacon and served the Fayetteville Baptist Association as clerk for several years.

Charles S. Farmer (or C. S.) was born April 15, 1879 at Fall Creek, southwestern Washington County. He attended Cane Hill College for a time. He was ordained as minister by the Pleasant Home Baptist Church, Alma, July 21, 1907. He married Ida McWhorter August 29, 1912. They were the parents of four children. He spent most of his ministerial career in the northwest Arkansas area, pastoring churches in Washington and Crawford Counties. He was elected moderator, clerk, treasurer and missionary of the Fayetteville Baptist Association at various times. In 1935, he moved to Alma, later to Van Buren, where he led in the organization of Calvary Baptist Church in 1949. He served as pastor until his death August 14, 1951. During the forty-four years, he served in the ministry, he pastored the following churches: Apostolic, Bethlehem, Calvary, Center Point, Dean Springs, Fall Creek, Graphic, Hiwasse (Benton County), Liberty, Little Elm, Mt. Gap, Mt. Grove, Mt. View, Mt. Vernon, Oakland, Peaceful Home, Pleasant Grove, Pleasant Home, Pleasant Valley, Prairie View, Roland (Oklahoma), Shady Grove, Silent Grove, Spring Creek, Sycamore and Westville (Oklahoma).

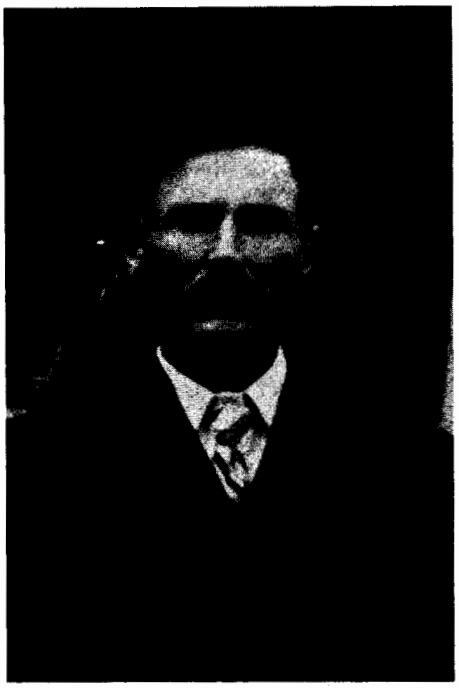
O. L. Lierly was born April 17, 1881 in Kansas and came to Washington County at an early age where he spent the remainder of his life. He entered the ministry in 1913, and was ordained by Pleasant Valley Baptist Church February 7, 1915. During his ministerial career, he served twenty-five years as missionary for the Fayetteville Baptist Association. Churches he pastored included Apostolic, Bethlehem, Calvary, Goshen, Liberty, Little Elm, Mt. Pisgah, Mt. Vernon, Oakland, Pleasant Valley, Prairie View, Providence, Spring Creek, Sycamore and Zion. He was elected moderator of the Association many times. He witnessed approximately 2,000 conversions, performed 500 weddings and officiated at 1500 funerals. He died after a full and rewarding life September 5, 1960.

endorsed for support from the various churches of the Association. The institutes in northwest Arkansas were never adequately supported; thus, they lasted only a few years.

A pervasive philosophy of the churches composing the Fayetteville Baptist Association was the need to do mission work, to preach the gospel to the spiritually destitute, and to organize churches. Soon after its organization, the association, at its Third Annual Session at Mt. Zion in September 1873, established an executive committee and authorized it to employ a missionary.



H. E. Plumlee was born in 1880 near Jasper, Arkansas. The family later moved to the Springdale area where he met and married Minnie Cooper in 1904. He was ordained to the ministry September 25, 1915 at Shady Grove Baptist Church. He and his wife lived on a farm for forty-two years southeast of Springdale where they reared their seven children. Churches he pastored included Apostolic, Braden, Elm Springs, Goshen, Little Elm, Mt. Vernon, New Hope, Prairie View, Shady Grove, Southern Grove and Sycamore where he was the first pastor. He also served as missionary of the Fayetteville Baptist Association. Brother Plumlee died during worship services at the Oakland Baptist Church in April 1961.



Eugene M. Reagan, Sr. was born in Moffatt, Texas, February 9, 1911. He joined the U. S. Army Reserve in 1932 and was called to active duty September 3, 1942. He was a commissioned officer in the 7th Army Division, serving in four campaigns in the Marshall Islands and the Philippines during World War II. Receiving a medical discharge in 1948, he entered the ministry October 18, 1948. He attended the Missionary Baptist Seminary in Little Rock and served as the pastor of the First Baptist Church, Roland, Oklahoma until 1952. Following his marriage to Sue Ellen Tate, July 21, 1952, Reagan went as foreign missionary to Japan where he established a Missionary Baptist work. He returned to the States and became a State missionary for Arkansas in 1955, a capacity he served into 1977. He was responsible for establishing churches at several locations including Springdale, Siloam Springs, Rogers and Jonesboro. In his final report as a State Missionary in 1977, he wrote "It was twenty-two years ago that I went on the State Mission field. Now with another son added to my family and fifteen churches added to the Missionary Baptist effort, I come to make my final report as missionary on salary. I am deeply grateful to our Lord for you and for your support and prayers through the years. You have provided for my every need and made it possible to educate my children. You have been patient with me in my failures and rejoiced with me in my successes". Elder Reagan died May 14, 1981 leaving a legacy that will long remain in northwest Arkansas.

The board, composed of H. P. Greene, Pleasant Valley Church; J. M. Cope, Fayetteville Baptist; C. F. Clayton, Farmington; J. F. Hood, Valley Grove: Head, Mt. Zion and J. Jackson, Center Point were not successful in obtaining a missionary for the 1873 year, but were successful in obtaining the services of W. G. Slinker, pastor of Valley Grove Church, on a part-time basis for the 1874 year. He reported working fifty-three days, preaching forty-eight sermons, witnessing nineteen conversions and baptizing nine for which he was paid $53.00. Following Slinker, it was several years before the second missionary, C. P. Tupper, was employed for the 1879—1882 period. T. H. Day, 1883—84, W. F. Greene and Tupper, 1884—1886, Mack Slaughter, 1887, J. A. Smith, 1888, R. A. Tuell, 1889, J. D. Fletcher, 1891—1892, T. W. Adams, 1894—1896 and M. C. Harris, 1896, served the association successively for the years indicated.

For the remainder of the century, the association seldom fielded a missionary, whether due to a lack of funds or availability of preachers, is not known. The deplorable condition led the associational committee at the Twenty-Seventh Annual Session, meeting at Mt. Pisgah Baptist Church, to make the following report: "With sad heart and weeping eyes, your committee has nothing to report in regard to mission work. Rather there is an anti-mission spirit invading this body. The churches have refused to contribute to the support of missions and yet claim to be missionary. . . We recommend (the employment of an efficient man) and that the churches raise by contributions twenty-five cents per member from each church". The matter of assessment had been tried previously, but without much success. Evidently, there was a general consensus of the need for support of missions, for in 1901, H. C. Winstead, J. R. Peters, E. Moss, D. L. Hood, J. W. Albright and J. H. Burnett worked on a part-time basis as missionaries.

The mission program picked up momentum with the start of the century, and one or more have been on the field for most of the associational years since then. Other ministers who have served as missionaries include: E. K. Begley (who later went to Hawaii and established a Missionary Baptist work there prior to World War II), Charles Branson, V. L. Chrestman, Sam

Claypool, J. Crawford, Dick Dearing, C. S. Farmer, W. C. Hamby, L. L. Johnson, Guy Lamb, O. L. Lierly, Vernon Lierly, H. W. Miller, Roy Owens, J. F. Parker, Isaac Phillips, H. E. Plumlee, J. W. Ray, A. N. Sanders, Kenneth Sanders, Charles Sellers, W. R. Sharp and Hubert Watts. In recent years, mission points were established in northwest Arkansas sponsored by individual churches and/or the Arkansas State Missionary Baptist Association. The missionaries who worked under this arrangement include Eugene Reagan, Harold Jones, Dewey Mott, Mack Walls and Bill Threet. It is not possible to list the names of all the pastors who dedicated their lives to serve the churches of the area for they are many. There are some whose tenure of service was long and faithful - the following lists only a few not named elsewhere: E. F. Rice, L. S. Ballard, Gomer Tillman, Floyd Tillman, H. M. Spyres, W. S. Luper, J. T. Boyd, E. L. Conry, W. R. Sharp, T. B. Van Horn, G. Bryant, Edward Smith, W. F. Greene, G. P. Hanks, and others who struggled to deliver the gospel to the people. While pastoral leadership is essential for a church to be successful, lay leaders must contribute to the affairs of the churches as well as to associational matters to ensure community of programs and doctrine. The Fayetteville Baptist Association has had many lay leaders of whom only a few are named as follows: E. C. Conley, F. A. Graue, J. J. Warren, L. S. Bolen, Marion Stobaugh, J. T. Duggar, W. P. Ferguson, Ray Miller, W. P. McLane, Frank Talkington, J. R. Harris and W. T. Blake.

The following includes photographs and biographical data for a number of ministers whose total period of service spans the history of the association from the organizational meeting in 1871 to 1980. The record shows they wrought well!

Fayetteville Baptist Association, Minutes of Annual Session, 1871—1986, filed in University of Arkansas Library, Special Collections. Copies of the Minutes of the 1871—1884 Sessions are in the custody of the author.

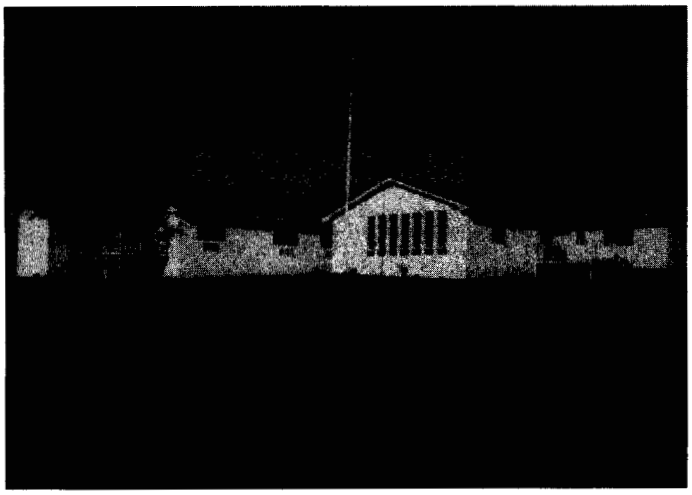
The Village, Inc.

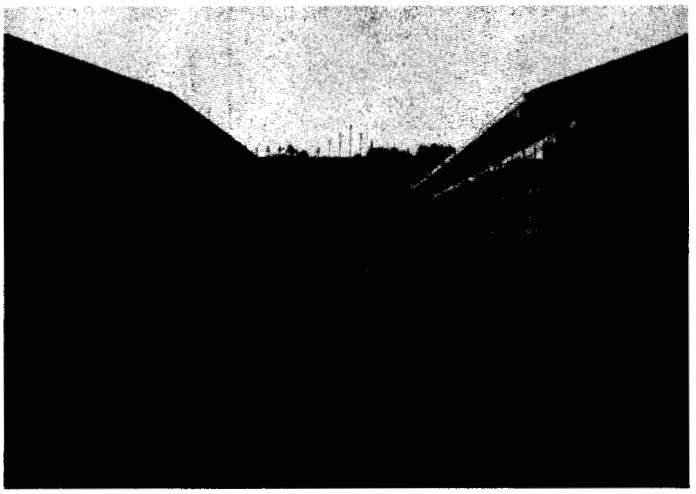
"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Psalms 133:1



Sheltered Care Unit of "The Village, Inc."

The Village, Inc. is a residential community located southeast of Sonora, Arkansas. It was conceived in 1971, seventeen years ago, and its beginning and organization was an individual effort, to bring to fruition the concept of a community for Christian Scientists, which in the years to come would satisfy their many and varied needs. The help and support of many willing workers has nurtured The Village to its present state, and has fulfilled its purpose of furnishing an environment in which Christian Scientists could live and demonstrate, and also to satisfy, their individual needs in accord with their religious beliefs.

A two-bedroom apartment unit in "The Village, Inc."



Houston Court one-bedroom apartments in "The Village, Inc."

In October, 1972, the first unit of this residential community, planned to serve its residents, was opened for occupancy. A small white frame farm house on top of a rolling hill, with a magnificent view of more hills and trees and sky, was its beginning. Today this community covers a good part of the beautiful rolling hill and consists of several parts.

The Sheltered Living facility houses residents who make this their home and they are provided with whatever type of care each needs. There is 24-hour duty-three shifts by a loving capable staff of aides, a fine kitchen staff, housekeeping department, and maintenance crew which comprise a compassionate caring team, with all working together to keep the "plant" running day to day in top form.

The residential area houses residents in two-bedroom duplexes, single houses, and one-bedroom apartments. Transportation is furnished for those without cars. They are transported for shopping, banking and other needs. Over the seventeen plus years, the residents have come from many different states, and have blended into the community, adding their own individual expressions. As a friend of The Village commented recently, "My, what a group of people!"

Truevine Missionary Baptist Church

On April 9th, 1986, the Truevine Missionary Baptist Church opened it's doors to all those seeking and in need of spiritual growth. This action, being believed directed by the Holy Spirit, has met with much skepticism. But, with the task being to satisfy a spiritual need, and with holy guidance, Truevine's doors remain open.

Through prayer and believing that God would hear and answer, our name came about. We started under the name Truevine Baptist Mission because we know there is a mission for us all. Being adopted into the Antioch District, we took on our present name.

The congregation was founded by a faithful few. They are Sis. Verna Thompson, Bro. Michael Thompson, and Bro. Meldon Thompson.

Even though satan tries to hamper our progress, others have been added to the church role. With Jesus as our example, and the holy spirit as our guide, we press on.

Our pastor is the Rev. J. L. Thompson, of Fayetteville, former pastor of the St. James Baptist Church. We are primarily an Afro-American congregation, but if any desire the truth, you won't be turned away. Truevine is located at 1024 West Hughes Street, Fayetteville. Services are held as follows; Sunday School: 9:30-10:45, then Worship Service. Bible Study: 5:30 that afternoon. Wednesday: 7:00, Prayer Service and Bible Study.

Unitarian Universalist Fellowship

One might say that in its thirty-six years of existence, the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Fayetteville has grown tenfold from the handful of local residents who organized it in 1950.

Among those early members were Mary and Ralph Barnhart, Sylvia Swartz, Dorothy and Guerdon Nichols, E. B. Meriwether, Maude Blondeau and William Pryor.

From the start the Fellowship has been affiliated with the Unitarian Association of Boston, Massachusetts, established in 1825, and merged with the Universalist Association in 1961. During the last century and a half, some of the outstanding members of this national denomination have been John Adams, Clara Barton, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Louisa May Alcott, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Susan B. Anthony.

Although historically enriched by the Judeo-Christian tradition and drawing from the humanists and all world religions, Unitarians make no effort to limit their religious convictions to stated creeds or dogmatic pronouncements. They seek a religious faith that is compatible with modern science and based on spiritual freedom, enlightened reason, the democratic process, and broad and tolerant sympathy, with respect for the interdependent web of all existence of which we are a part.

After meeting for some years in various rental facilities in Fayetteville, the Unitarian Fellowship had just fifty members when it began construction of its own building in 1964. Designed by architect Warren Seagraves the structure has six Sunday school classrooms at the lower floor level. On the upper level, it has a meeting hall accommodating one hundred persons, a small classroom, an office-library, and kitchen facilities. It is located at the corner of Cleveland and Oakland in Fayetteville.

The Fellowship now has a membership of one hundred and ten and a mailing list twice that number. It provides a Sunday School and a nursery.

Operating under lay leadership, practically all the work of the Fellowship has been contributed on a volunteer basis.

The congregation called its first minister, the Rev. Janet Newman, in August 1983; she served until Spring of 1985 when she left to become a minister with the Tulsa All Souls Unitarian Church, the largest Unitarian church in the United States. The fellowship is now conducting a search for a new minister.

Current Board members are: President, Louise Russert-Kraemer; Vice President, Mary Musgrave; Secretary, Nancy Seiff; Treasurer, Walter Miller; Bob Wyckoff, Trudy Scott, Carl Koffler, Marki Thompson, Hank Kaminsky, and Emily Burr. Merrilee Hall is Religious Education Co-ordinator.

Unity Missionary Baptist Church

Tradition indicates that the first Baptist Church in Farmington was organized about 1837, and was known as Ebenezer Baptist Church. No records exist of this church and presumably all records were lost during the Civil War. Immediately following the Civil War, former members of Ebenezer and other interested citizens organized the Farmington Baptist Church which faded out of existence in late 1880 or early 1881 when the Little Elm Missionary Baptist Church was established southwest of Farmington.

Unity Missionary Baptist Church, Farmington Arkansas

In late 1965, 85 years later, pastors of churches in the Fayetteville Baptist Association sponsored an assembly of interested persons to determine the feasibility of organizing a new Missionary Baptist Church at Farmington. This meeting was held December 2, 1965, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Williams. Edward Smith, then pastor of the Sycamore Baptist Church at Wheeler, was selected as leader of the mission effort with Agnes Blew serving as clerk. Sycamore Baptist Church accepted the resignation of Edward Smith as pastor and endorsed him as missionary to work with the Farmington Mission. The group moved quickly to establish regular Sunday school and church services, also to locate a meeting site and land for a sanctuary. Eugene Reagan, a State Missionary, provided guidance on organizational procedures.

On January 6, 1966, approximately 160 people gathered to participate in the formal organization of Unity Missionary Baptist Church. Twenty-one pastors and deacons from 8 Missionary Baptist Churches and a mission formed a council to assist in the organization. Eugene Reagan served as council president, Johnny Goodman, State Missionary for the Missionary Baptist Student Fellowship, served as clerk.

A. J. Johnson of Midway Church, Grove, Oklahoma; Charles Ashcraft of Central Baptist Church, Fayetteville; and Sheppard Mooney of Little Elm Missionary Baptist Church, Farmington; presented the Articles of Faith, the Church Covenant and the Organizational Prayer, respectively. Coyle Kelley, President of the Arkansas State Association of Baptist Churches, delivered the organizational sermon. Twenty-one members from four area Missionary Baptist Churches presented themselves as charter members of the new church. These were: Edward and Leah Smith, Paul and Lula Talkington, Frank Talkington, Ruby Williams, Donald and Maribelle Williams, Sam and Della Mae Williams, Morgan Williams, Floyd and Agnes Blew, Rondoll and Mildred Nease, James and Verna Yancey, Ronald Yancey, Charles Yancey, Jean Yancey and Brenda Yancey. Ada Olsen joined on profession of faith and following baptism was added to the charter membership. During its first 5 years, 89 additions were made to the church. Since organizing, 209 persons have been members. The membership in January of 1987 is approximately 75.

Pastors who have served the church from 1966 to 1987 include Edward Smith, the first pastor, Jeff Edwards, Troy Rogers, E. A. Guinn, Steve Wood, Freddie McCann, Johnnie Sloate, Steve Westbrook, Ramsom Storms and James H. Kesner, the current pastor. Ordained deacons who have held membership are Adolph King, Seth Davis, Sam Williams, Richard Belcher. Paul Talkington, Frank Talkington, G. C. Watson, and Robert Salsburg, Paul Talkington and G. C. Watson were ordained as deacons by Unity Missionary Baptist Church.

The first few meetings of the church were held in private homes. A vacant commercial building was rented to serve as a sanctuary until a church building could be erected on land donated by Paul Talkington. Construction of the new building was rapid and the first services were held in it on May 1, 1966. The dedication ceremony was held July 24, 1966, with Clarence Williams, Interstate Missionary to Oregon, delivering the dedicatory address.

The church supports mission efforts at all levels, i. e., local, state, interstate and foreign, as well as the Missionary Baptist Seminary in Little Rock. From the early 1970s to 1986, the church sponsored a mission effort in India. Unity Church purchased land for a sanctuary and a cemetery and provided funds for the construction of the sanctuary. Sponsorship of this mission was transferred in 1986 to Antioch Baptist Church of Little Rock. The church is affiliated with the Fayetteville Baptist Association, the Association of Missionary Baptist Churches of Arkansas and the American Baptist Association.

University Baptist Church

The history of University Baptist Church is the story of a people intoxicated with new life in Jesus Christ and committed to serving and loving one another and the community at large. University Baptist was organized March 15, 1953 by some 200 people with Dr. Walter L. Johnson, pastor. The following Thanksgiving Day, they moved into the church's first building, the present Heritage Center.

Groundbreaking for the present Worship Center was held on December 7, 1961, with Dr. Johnson continuing to serve as pastor until 1965. Our present pastor, Dr. H. D. McCarty, and his wife Shirley, began their ministry in May of 1965. During these ensuing 23 years, God has done "exceedingly abundantly above all that we asked or thought." (Ephesians 3:20)

Under Pastor McCarty's leadership, UBC has demonstrated a supra-cultural Christianity, building on principles solidly rooted in the New Testament. As a result, we have been privileged to have people from 23 different denominations become a part of our fellowship, largely through the Watchcare Membership. Members of para-church groups such as Campus Crusade, Navigators, Intervarsity, etc. have found opportunities to serve Christ in and through UBC ministries.

UBC has also attempted to reach out socioculturally. We were privileged to house and support a Vietnamese "boat family" in 1979; a Christian family fleeing Angola were with us for five years; a Cuban "refugee" sponsored was led to Christ and baptized; a Christian family who fled Sri Lanka was here two years; and we helped sponsor a student from Kenya for two years.

Another major sociocultural endeavor is our "Second Mile Ministry." The SMM has over 50 volunteers ministering through food distribution, witnessing, counseling, visiting and Bible Studies with the elderly, the shut-ins and the needy. This is a daily, year-round labor of love. During one winter month we were able to help over 1087 families. The Gospel was shared with most and 25 people came to know Christ personally. In addition, volunteers visited and helped meet the needs of dozens of elderly and handicapped.

UBC has developed a unique and aggressive outreach to the University campus. Scores of students have been led to Christ. Hundreds have been challenged to a deeper commitment to purity and obedience. The cause of Christ has been significantly strengthened by the 225-plus who are now in vocational Christian ministries. Pastor McCarty was honored in 1968 by being named "Chaplain of the Razorbacks" and has been actively involved in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He writes a weekly column under this by-line entitled "Live It Up" which appears in 25 Arkansas newspapers. With the purchase of UBC Hall (formerly Sigma Chi House) in 1978, a Christian Dorm Ministry was initiated. The Hall was converted to use by our Youth Ministry in 1986.

Our 75-voice collegiate choir, "The New Creations" is in their 20th year. These dedicated students use their spring break each year to go on mission tours. Tours have included Arkansas, Utah, New York, Mexico, England and Europe.

The Youth Ministry, considered one of the best in the nation, is led by a pastor, interns, a Collegiate Youth Staff and a great number of caring parents targeting the "total youth". . .spiritual, intellectual, physical and social.

Chism Hall was built in 1971 for our expanding children's ministry. Randall Hall was completed in 1986 and a Pastor to Children was added to the staff in 1987. Under his direction, AWANA (Approved Workmen Are Not Ashamed) was added to the Wednesday night curriculum of graded choirs and missions training. Some 176 children and AWANA leaders are now enthusiastically involved in Scripture memory on a weekly basis. "Kid's Day Out" is licensed to care for 55 preschoolers and Wee Care Christian School has provided quality teaching for Preschool and Kindergarten since 1977.

Adding a Singles Director to the staff in 1976 resulted in a rapid growth of the Singles Ministry of men and women of all ages. . . including many single parents. Our present Minister to Singles hopes to help guide them into personal ministry and attaining fulfillment in every area of life.

A Missionary-in-Residence program was initiated in 1975 whereby foreign missionaries spend their furlough in a residence provided by the church. A beautiful, $80,000 Mission House was constructed in 1987 debt free. Over the years 14 missionary families, who have served in 16 different countries, have been with us. This ministry has had a profound impact on the Mission consciousness of our people. Our World Mission Center was dedicated in 1984.

The former Calvary Baptist Church was purchased in 1979 to house the J. Sidlow Baxter Library, the Arkansas Institute of Theology (begun in 1976) and the Christian Counseling Center (established in 1978).

The TV ministry went statewide in 1983. "Venture For Life" (formerly "UBC Presents") hosted by Pastor McCarty, is now presented each Sunday morning from Fayetteville, Fort Smith, Little Rock and Atlanta, Georgia and also on KBCV-Radio.

Budget, missions and ministry funds for all caused now approximate two million dollars annually. The church staff has increased to over 30 including eight pastors. Membership has grown to nearly 2000. The church campus has grown to 12 acres with seven major buildings. Another 40 acres of UBC property is located near the White River. Tentative plans call for "UBC Riverside" to be developed into a family recreational area, retreat center and missionary retirement homes.

UBC's charter members selected Revelation 3:8 as their theme verse, "I have set before you an open door which none will shut." We have tried to assure that the "open door" of UBC will be broad enough for all who seek and narrow enough for all who find.

Washington Association of Regular Baptists

In the early 1800s, between the years of 1833 and 1837, a group of Regular Baptist Churches located in Northwest Arkansas formed what is now called the East Washington Association of Regular Baptists. Originally, the name of the association was The Washington Association.

The people who made up the churches of the Washington Association came mainly from Kentucky and Tennessee. As they settled in Washington County, which at that time included what is now Madison County, they brought with them a very strong faith. As a result, Regular Baptist Churches were established throughout the Northwest Arkansas area.

The New Hope Regular Baptist Church of Kingston, Arkansas was established in February of 1832. The Richland Regular Baptist Church of Elkins, Arkansas was established in September of 1832. Drakes Creek Regular Baptist Church was organized a few years later.

The first church to exist in Springdale was the Shiloh Regular Baptist Church and this church was a member of the Washington Association and later the East Washington Association. The Shiloh Church ceased meeting in the early to mid 1900s and was later reestablished as the Faith Regular Baptist Church which is now located on Elm Springs Road in Springdale.

Other churches which are presently members of the East Washington Association are: the Buckeye Church near Hindsville, the Buckner Baptist Church of Fayetteville, the Harmony Baptist Church of Huntsville, the New Hope Baptist Church near Mountainburg, the Fairview Baptist Church of Mulberry and the New Bethel Church of Jenks, Oklahoma.

Tradition and the few records that are available link this Baptist association to Baptist churches in England. While there were two large groups of Baptists in England, General and Particular Baptist, which represented two extremes of Biblical thought, there were Baptist churches that were part of neither but walked a middle road of Bible interpretation between the two extreme teachings. The Regular Baptists trace their heritage to these churches. It was when people from these churches came to the New World that the name "Regular" was used.

The churches of the East Washington Association are small and old fashioned. Whether located in the city or in rural areas, they maintain a simple style of worship with hard preaching and heartfelt gospel singing. They are very fundamental in the belief and practice of the Bible. By many, they would be classed as moderately Calvinistic. Family and tradition play an important role in the lives of these Regular Baptists.

Washington-Madison Baptist Association

Baptists are members of local autonomous Baptist Churches. Some Baptist Churches feel they can more effectively carry out their missionary obligation to preach the Gospel to the world by cooperating with other Baptist Churches of like Faith and Order. Each local Baptist Church chooses and requests fellowship in some area Association, State Convention, and/or National Convention of their choice for the purpose of carrying out this mission obligation, however, these organizations have no ecclesiastical authority over the churches.

The Washington-Madison Baptist Association was organized in 1941 by a merger of the Washington County Baptist Association and the Madison County Baptist Association. The Madison County Baptist Association was organized in 1888. The Washington County Baptist Association was organized in 1918, by churches of the Fayetteville Baptist Association who elected to continue supporting work through the Arkansas Baptist State Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention. The Fayetteville Baptist Association, which had been organized in 1871, continued as an association after 1918 with churches which elected to do mission work independently of the Convention mission programs.

The Washington Association of Regular Baptists was organized in 1837 with twelve churches, the fifth association to be organized in the State of Arkansas. This predates the organization of the Southern Baptist Convention in 1845. This Association reported ten churches in 1843, at which time it began to express an anti-missionary doctrine. None of the current churches in the Washington-Madison Baptist Association seem to have their roots in this early association.

Some individual church records of churches organized prior to 1885, which are now in the Washington-Madison Baptist Association were associated with the Bentonville Baptist Association organized in 1865 or with the Fayetteville United Baptist Association, organized in 1852. Two of the churches indicate attending a meeting of the Northwest Missionary Baptist Association in 1866.

It has been customary for associations and conventions to meet annually except for interruptions during the Civil War. Each body has its own Constitution and By-Laws and is composed of messengers elected by the participating churches. These annual meetings are for the purpose of promoting Christian fellowship, sharing reports of work done in the individual churches, and planning and supporting the missionary work of the body. An association normally secures the services of an Associational Missionary, now titled Director of Missions, to lead in local mission work.

At the beginning of the Washington-Madison Association in 1941, the Rev. E. V. Brownlow was the Associational Missionary, reporting thirteen churches with 2,609 members, 134 baptisms, and total mission gifts of $5,211.00. In 1945, there were fifteen churches in the association when the Rev. J. Scott Blystone was serving as Missionary. He served in this capacity until January 1, 1948, when the Rev. A. L. Leake was called to serve. Mrs. Leake was also an outstanding speaker at Women's Missionary Meetings in the surrounding states and through their combined efforts they ministered to many needy people, especially in the rural areas of the association. They held many tent revivals in areas where churches needed to be organized and at the close of their ministry, December 31, 1956, there were 27 churches in the association. The Rev. Tommie Hinson served from 1957-1958. Under his direction the New Work Foundation was organized to help establish new churches.

Dr. Alexander Best was then called, serving until his retirement on April 30, 1971, with the longest tenure of service, and at which time there were 35 churches and four missions in the association. The Rev. Peter L. Petty began his work on July 1, 1971 and served until January 15, 1978, at which time there were 35 churches and one mission listed in the annual report. The Rev. Donald A. Seigler began his work June 22, 1978, and served until May 31, 1982, at which time there were 38 churches in the Association. The Rev. Harold G. Gately was called to serve on September 30, 1982, and to this date has completed five years of service. He formerly served as a missionary to Korea and has organized a Korean speaking congregation for the Koreans in this area. There are now 37 churches and one mission, with plans under way to reorganize the New Work Foundation to assist in establishing more new churches and missions.

Early associational missionaries often pastored churches along with their associational ministry working out of their homes. In 1958, the First Baptist Church of Fayetteville donated office space and phone service to the Associational Missionary. In 1972, the Association adopted the recommendation of the Associational Missions Committee to develop a part of the property given to the Association by the Bethel Heights Baptist Church located at 1211 James Street in Fayetteville, for an associational office with the Arkansas Baptist Family and Child Care Services sharing the remainder of the building space.

The 1986 report from the churches to the Washington-Madison Baptist Association indicates a total membership of 20,005. Individual church memberships range from 15 to 4,085. Total gifts to mission work; county, state and world, exclusive of local expenditures was $996,136.00.

Many of the smaller churches have bi-vocational pastors, while some of the larger churches have multiple pastors with diverse ministeries to youth, singles, college students, music, counseling, and senior adults, besides the major pastoral ministeries. Educational opportunities vary from church to church, but range from day care to college credit courses in Bible and a large Christian school; Kindergarten through 12th grade. There is also a Second Mile ministry, providing food, clothing, and money for emergencies such as medicine and transportation. There is still great potential for growth and additional ministries.

Wesley Methodist Church

Wesley Methodist Church, Springdale, came into existence as the result of the interest of several members of the First Methodist Church, Springdale. A church building was erected on the northeast corner of West Huntsville and West End Street.

Old pews from First Methodist were refinished and installed, and one class gave a piano and 100 hymnals.

The first worship service in the new building was conducted on October 22, 1950, by Reverend Ed Kaetzell, pastor of First Methodist Church, Springdale. Services were held each evening for the remainder of the week by pastors from neighboring Methodist Churches. The second week of services were conducted by Reverend Eric Reeves. On Tuesday evening, November 7, 1950, the church was organized under the supervision of Reverend William F. Cooley, district superintendent. Twenty-seven persons took the church vows at this time.

Roy Parks, assistant pastor of First Methodist, Springdale, served as pastor about six months until Annual Conference. Walter Edward Rogers served as church school superintendent until his death February 21, 1953, age 65. Clyde and Agnes Rankin, members of First Methodist, Springdale, served faithfully for many years at Wesley in various areas. In June 1951, Reverend James Workman, Jr., was appointed pastor. When Reverend Workman and his family arrived they found a new, completely furnished parsonage awaiting them, as well as an eager congregation ready to follow their leadership.

On January 14, 1954, construction was started on an educational annex on the back of the church building and a new entrance with a bell tower and steeple on the front.

After serving three years, Reverend Workman transferred to the Oregon Conference. He was succeeded in June 1954, by Reverend Samuel Auslam. During Reverend Auslam's stay the parsonage became debt free, an altar rail from Reverend Elmer Hook was added and a new organ installed. Reverend Roy Meyers was appointed pastor in 1957. In June 1961, Reverend Britt Cordell was appointed pastor. That fall the parsonage was moved east, an addition added and the entire structure bricked.

On May 24, 1964, the church members voted to undertake a long range building program. Plans called for a new sanctuary to be built between the existing church building and parsonage, the parsonage moved, and a new educational building erected, after which the original church building was to be torn down. Reverend Cordell conducted the first services in the new sanctuary December 20, 1964.

West Fork Church of Christ

Sometime in 1944, Roy Robinson began holding Sunday worship services in the West Fork home of Ellen Dearing. Robinson was an outstanding Restoration preacher who had preached for small congregations at Union Star, Campbell School, Woolsey and elsewhere. His simple tombstone in the West Fork Cemetery reads: "God's Servant". Church attendance at the Dearing home was composed of seven adults and four children. In 1946, Rolfe Wagner and family, missionaries from Texas who had labored in the West Fork area in 1936, returned to help the struggling church. The church met in their home until arrangements were made to use the lower room of the West Fork Masonic Lodge. The Wagner family left in the autumn of 1947, soon after construction had begun on a house of worship.

The Herman Chapman family donated land for the building in memory of their son who had been killed during World War II. Before the building could be finished, the congregation found itself shut out of the lodge one Sunday morning and thereafter met in the home of Dorothy Hope until the meeting house was completed in 1948. George Broyles came to preach for a salary of $2.00 a week. Other preachers who have served the congregation are Leonard Preston, Ward Adams, Harold Austin, Terry Seaman and Leon Glenn. Paul Haynie has been minister for the church since October of 1986.

Clarence Wiles and Milton Jones are the congregation's Elders and Wendell Beall and Sonny Marshall serve as deacons.

A new auditorium was complete in 1977 and the old building was turned into classrooms. The congregation currently supports Charles Parrish, a missionary in Minnesota. Attendance in 1987 averaged about 95 for Sunday morning worship.

The West Fork Church of Christ is committed to the Restoration Plea that church leaders like Barton W. Stone and Alexander Campbell set forth in 1832. This plea is for all Christians to return to the purity and simplicity of the worship set forth in the New Testament. The congregation meets regularly on Sunday mornings and evenings and Wednesday evenings.

West Fork Methodist Church

Many local residents may be unaware that there ever was a Methodist Church in their town. West Fork undoubtedly held religious services in homes of the first settlers. But the Methodists were the first group of Christians to erect a church.

In 1884, three prominent citizens were chosen as trustees vested with the power to purchase land, negotiate a loan and build a house of worship in West Fork.

Messrs. James Granger,, Samuel Robinson and Thomas Walker purchased a plot of ground on the corner of Main and McKnight Streets (where the Presbyterian Church now stands).

The Bronson Abstract Company records show that the lot was purchased from Jacob and Mary Yoes for the sum of fifty dollars. The deed was dated January 1, 1885, recorded January 8, 1885 (Book n-2, P. 242).

A $200.00 loan was obtained from the Home Missions Church Extension Board (headquartered in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania). It was to be repaid at the rate of $50.00 a month.

The lot purchased was large enough to build a church and parsonage. After the Presbyterians assumed legal ownership of the property (1928) the parsonage was sold.

Many Circuit Riders preached in the early church. "Aunt Haley" Hammett, before her death, recalled that her husband had been one of the Circuit Riders to have preached at the West Fork Methodist Church. Early ministers remembered were: Rev. O. H. Tucker, W. E. Reid, a Rev. Huddleston, Rev. DuBoise and a Dr. R. A. N. Wilson.

Until the Christian Church was built, the two congregations worked together in harmony. Neither could afford a full-time minister and shared services, one having the first and third Sundays and the other having the second and fourth.

As the Presbyterians gained more and more in numbers under the leadership of Rev. Jacob (Uncle Jake) Stockburger, whose own family members increased the membership rolls, and after a revival held in 1920 by a Tennessee Presbyterian preacher, a Rev. Lewis, more Presbyterian converts were added to the rolls.

From 1914 to 1928, negotiations for the legal transfer of the Methodist property continued, and property use was not limited to either Methodist or Presbyterian congregations. They shared Church facilities just as the Christian Church had.

The Presbyterians became official owners of the Methodist Church property upon transfer of the deed on April 10, 1928.

Westville Landmark Missionary Baptist Church

As an outreach program sponsored by churches of the Fayetteville Baptist Association and other churches in eastern Oklahoma, an organizational service was held in the Westville High School Auditorium November 13, 1959, during which the Westville Landmark Missionary Baptist Church was organized. The organizational council consisted of Eugene M. Reagan, Arkansas State Missionary, as moderator; W. G. Matthews, Lakeview Baptist Church, Spiro, as clerk; Charles Ashcraft, Central Baptist Church of Fayetteville, presented the Articles of Faith; the Church Covenant was described by Edward Smith, Sycamore Baptist Church, Wheeler; and the Covenant Prayer was given by Albert Hess, Keota, Oklahoma. Eugene Reagan presented the charge to the new church in the organizational sermon. Elsie Willis was elected the first clerk of the church. Eleven churches in northwestern Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma assisted in the organizational ceremony.

Thirteen persons, all but one from the Old Baptist Mission north of Westville, presented themselves as charter members. These were: Thomas Bright, A. C. and Lena Johnson, Clarence Johnson, J. J., and Maudie McRee, Oliver and Laura Self, Tommy Self, Treva Self, Everett and Elsie Willis, and Bobby Willis. Its membership in January, 1987, was about 75.

The congregation met in the home of A. C. Johnson, later moving to the Oak Hill Community House. A permanent building site was located near the Arkansas-Oklahoma line where the sanctuary and parsonage was located. Trustees elected for the new church were A. C. Johnson, Oliver Self, and Thomas Bright.

Elder J. J. McRee was called as the first pastor. Other ministers who have served the church include: George Goodman, J. N. Spears, Paul Brown, Hugh Robinson, Earl Jones, Harold Jones, Johnny Standley, Bill Cook, and W. M. Smith.

The church actively supports all phases of mission programs. It is affiliated with the Fayetteville Baptist Association and the American Baptist Association.

Wiggins Memorial United Methodist Church

In the summer of 1941, Harry Denman, lay evangelist, led a tent revival at the corner of Church and South Streets in Fayetteville. As a result, the South Fayetteville Methodist Church was organized with 21 charter members. Land was purchased at South Church and Third (now Sixth) Streets.

In December, 1941, the congregation moved into the incompleted building. An active church program was carried on while work of completing and equipping the building continued. The first church building was completed in 1945; an educational annex in October, 1946; the first parsonage in 1947. An addition to the educational annex was completed in October, 1952; the sanctuary remodeled in 1953; a new parsonage completed in September, 1964. On June 5, 1966, just twenty-five years after its beginning, the people of Wiggins held the first service or worship and Consecration Service in a new sanctuary. The old sanctuary was remodeled for classrooms and were ready for use on July 24, 1966.

Extensive remodeling began in 1980 on the educational annex. New office facilities were completed in October, 1980. This structure was bricked, a new enclosed walkway joining the original and new sanctuary building completed and a Memorial Bell Tower built. These were dedicated and consecrated on Sunday, May 16, 1982.

During all these years, a full church program has been carried on and the members have reached out to serve others-some near and some far. It is our fervent prayer that the people of this church will continue to go forth into the community and the world telling the "Good News" of Jesus Christ.

Church names have changed: South Fayetteville Methodist Church; Bethel Methodist Church; Wiggins Memorial Methodist Church and Wiggins Memorial United Methodist Church.

Ministers have been: Ralph Hillis, E. D. Lewis, Paul Bumpers, Arnold Simpson, Raymond Dorman, Earl Hughes, Aaron Barling, Allan Hilliard, Maurice Lanier, Pryor Cruce, Charles Watt, Muriel Peters, and James Barton.

Organizing lay evangelist was Harry Denman and Organizing district superintendent, Sam B. Wiggins.

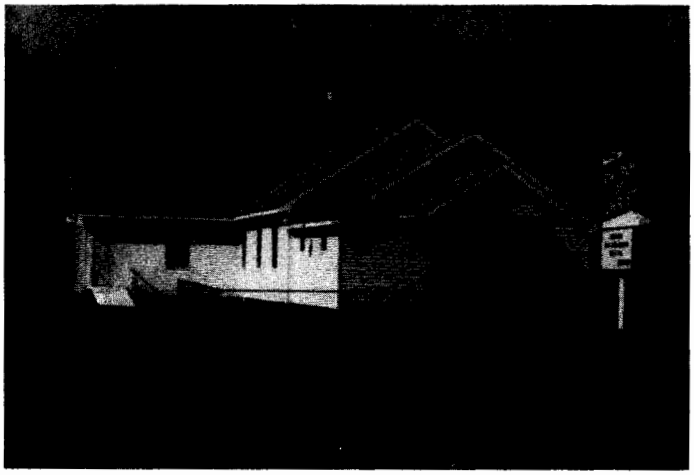
Winslow Church of Christ

The Winslow Church of Christ, located on Highway 71 in Winslow, Arkansas, began with a two week meeting in October 1940 with Herbert Hooker preaching. The meeting was sponsored by the South Thompson Street Church of Christ (now Robinson Avenue Church of Christ) in Springdale.

For a time the church met in various store buildings. Their first building located on Highway 71 was of concrete block construction and erected in 1946. Widening of the highway made it necessary to relocate the meeting place. Land was bought and the present building was constructed in 1958 and the first service was held there on September 7, 1958. Dean Parrish was the preacher when the new building was built. He preached from 1955-1959. The next preachers were Jim Holliman and Don England. Dean Parrish returned and preached from 1962-1965. A south wing was added during this time for additional classrooms. John R. Dockery preached for them the next 9 years, January 1966-December 1974. During these years a north wing was added for more classrooms, with a sheltered drive-through for bad weather. Central heating/air conditioning was installed, a nursery room built, and the baptistry installed. The church grew to average over 100 in attendance.



Winslow Church of Christ.

Tommy Glenn was the minister from March 1975-February 1977. Dee Hobbs preached from March 1977-July 1981. Norman Gann worked with the church August 1981-December 1981, then Larry Couch preached from April 1982-November 1983. Dean Parrish returned December 1983-December 1987. J. R. Dockery returned in January 1988 as pulpit minister and Larry Bynum was hired as youth minister.

Those who preached for the church for shorter periods of time or on a rotation basis in the beginning years were; Leonard Preston, George Parrish, Harold Bradley, Loyd Dockery, George Dockery, Guy Cosand, James Ramey, Glenn Steward, James Neal, Jack Reynolds, H. D. Hebbard, Max Harness, Charles Smith, and Taylor Davis.

Three of the charter members who have been faithful through the years and still living and active members are, Hancel and Jessie Preston and Fay Reed.

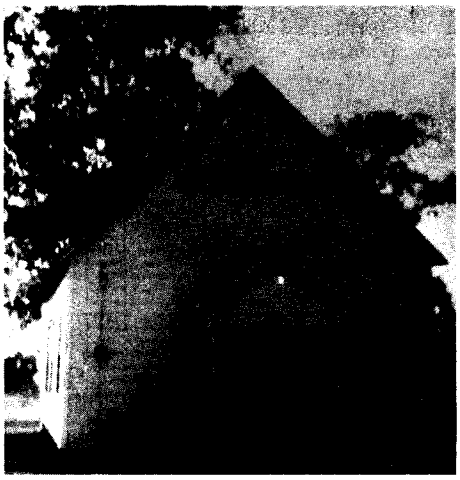
Zion Church and Cemetery

The very first church was an old log building on what is now known as the Lemons place, which was located one mile east of the Zion site. The log building was erected in 1848. A one room log cabin with a dirt floor, it housed the first Zion Methodist Church. The congregation sat on log seats, which also doubled as desks for young students, for the church building also served as the first school house in the Zion community.

The Zion Methodist Church was organized about 1850 under the leadership of Rev. John S. McCarven as pastor. The charter members were: Richard W. Cardwell and wife, William H. Eidson and wife, Wilson Cage and wife, David Willeford and wife, James Ford and wife, Mary J. Routh and Jake Fox.

In 1857, land for the new building was donated by James Blakemore (some of the early records give his name as Lee Blakemore). Rock for the structure was quarried there on the grounds, and from the great oaks growing there the sills and heavy timbers were hewn. Pine and other lumber was hauled by wagon from the Van Winkle Mills on War Eagle.

Susan Eidson and William H. Eidson gave the land for the Zion Church and Cemetery.



Zion Methodist Church

The Church title being granted to William Cardwell, Johnson N. Roberts, Richard W. Cardwell, James Ford and William H. Eidson as trustees of the property.

Rev. William Sherman preached his first sermon in the Zion Church in 1886 and preached there intermittently for 71 years. Rev. William Sherman was born on December 2, 1869, and died August 23, 1959.

School was held in the building from 1867 till 1890. In 1897, a portion of the church land was transferred to the school district and a substantial one room building was erected. As conditions demanded, this was remodeled until an up-to-date two room structure housed the school. In the year 1898, William H. Eidson deeded land to the church property for a cemetery. His wife, Susan, was the first person to be buried there. She died February 15, 1898.

Some years ago, the Zion Methodist Church became inactive. In 1948, an effort was made to re-organize the church, but eight years later, it again became inactive. The Rev. Sam Auslam of Springdale was the last pastor. About 1955, the church once more discontinued its regular services. At that time it was only two years until time for the 100th anniversary of the church.

It was decided at the 100th anniversary on November 17, 1957, that although the church was not active, there should be a preaching hour and reunion on the third Sunday of each October thereafter to observe the anniversary of the historic old church.

On March 3, 1976, Otis Cardwell bought the church and land from Methodist Church Association. He then deeded it to the Zion Cemetery.

On the fourth Sunday of each September the members of the Zion Church still hold their all day gatherings where special services and singing are provided honoring the establishment of this old church.

The present structure formerly bore bullet holes in its doors reminiscent of the Civil War days. These have been replaced in more recent years.

This information came from old newspaper clippings.

Schools

Introduction

The importance of schools in the development of the county is without question. The University of Arkansas, of course, played a very special role, but secondary and elementary schools were the centers of education for a majority of people. Individual histories of all institutions give an overview and understanding of the extent and development of educational facilities.

The Washington County history book office mailed questionnaires to all Washington County school districts, so all basic information could be included in this book. A letter asked that pertinent information also be supplied for schools no longer in existence, if that was possible. The history book office expected to be flooded with replies, but this failed to happen. The reason for this perceived "lack of interest" was that the school districts had just provided such information for a definitive history of the county's schools, to be published by Washington County Retired Teachers Association.

Working with the cooperation of Washington County educators, the Association published School Days, School Days: The History of Education in Washington County, 1830-1950 in 1986. It required over two years of work and is illustrated with many photographs. The book, now in its second printing, has a useful index.

Although School Days, School Days. . . is a more comprehensive history of education in the county, yet there are 25 schools listed in this section. The two publications complement each other.

Accident School

Accident School was built around the early 1860s about five miles northeast of Springdale, across the Washington county line into Benton county. This was in the present Springdale school district.

Benton county was needing a new school but it could not be decided where to build it. All the people in this community wanted it to be built here, of course, but thinking it wouldn't, said it would be an accident if it was built in this neighborhood. Thus, when it was decided where it was to be built it was called "Accident". It was a one room school house.

In 1916 before they had a lunch room, the teacher, Mrs. Stone, made a big pot of soup on the old wood heating stove every day for several years.

The first school burned in the summer of 1932. They rebuilt the school house right away and had school that fall of the same year. This one was a one room school house and later was divided into two rooms with a partition separating the rooms. Part of this consisted of a long black board which could be raised by ropes and pulleys to reveal both rooms. When there was an event like a Christmas program or pie supper for the missionaries, Miss Carol and Miss Jewel came (about once a month), the black board was raised. These rooms were called the "little room" and the "big room".

The lunch room was built in 1933 of logs. This was a two room building consisting of a large dining area and kitchen and was built by the W. P. A. (Works Progress Administration).

There was also a two room wood shed in the back of the school and a well pump outside the lunch room with a water bucket and dipper inside. Everybody drank from the same dipper and the washpan was used by everyone. The kids at the end of the line found the water a "little" dirty as it was not changed too often.

Lots of pie suppers were held at the school and it was a time for visiting neighbors and good fellowship. We had a girl's outside toilet on one side of the school with the boy's on the other. Both were two seaters.

In earlier years some rode horses and mules. Later, several got bicycles to ride but most walked; some as much as three or four miles since there was no transportation provided.

Durham School

Durham School District No.106 was established in 1883 in the southeast corner of Washington County. The school was first held upstairs in the Oddfellows Hall on the north side of the old county road. The land is now part of the Highway 16 right-of-way except for a small portion on the south side which was donated to the Durham Community Building for parking.

When a dispute arose with Mr. J. K. Pool about the use of the I. O. O. F. Hall, the school was moved across the road to a barn on the P. B. White farm. School was held there for part of two terms. In 1885, the school was moved to the old Durham Community Building which had just been built. It was across the road from the I. O. O. F. Hall near Snake Branch.

On July 6, 1896, District No.156 Osborn was dissolved and the land was added to the Durham District. In 1923, Crossroads District 105 was added. On June 21, 1944, Union Point, to the southwest was dissolved and divided between Hazel Valley and Durham. School was held 3 to 5 months a year and the teacher's salary was $25.00 to $40.00 per term.

The school moved to a new building just northeast of Durham between the railroad tracks and White River. The school had four rooms. Three were used for school and one was occupied by the teacher. First through twelfth grades were taught during an eight-month term.

Some of the teachers were: Miss Esther Harris, C. L. Burchett, Jimmy Hunt, Sara (Harris) Carrigan, Annie Ray, J. M. Ballard, Sara Mae Cress, Willie (Wilson) Stokenbury, Bonnie (Nickel) Paschal, Bonnie Pace, Senor Robbins, Shelly and H. Ray Cornett, and Alice (Nickel) Springston.

Bonnie Paschal remembers teaching her second year at Durham. The pay was $40.00 per month. After teaching two years, she decided to quit and go back to the University. One afternoon as she was sitting barefoot on the front steps of her home. A car drove up and the Durham School board members all got out. After a short conversation they offered her $5.00 a month raise if she would teach one more year. This she did.

Durham had a basketball team and the court was in the schoolyard. Mr. Orval Faubus brought his team down from Pinnacle Mountain and when there was a shortage of players, he would fill in. Mr. Faubus was later Governor of Arkansas for a number of years. The people of the community all joined in and helped with school functions. We had three-act plays and between acts, music was played by people in the community. A small admission was charged and we bought many things we needed for our school. Snow and cold weather did not disrupt school as we all walked or rode horses. One extra-cold winter, White River froze over and for two or three weeks, we skated after school and at noon. We even built bon-fires on the ice to keep warm. Very few people had ice skates, but I remember Jean Wise fell and cut her chin while skating. We had a wonderful time until our principal, Mr. H. Ray Cornett fell through the ice.

In 1948 the school was consolidated with Elkins and a bus route was established to carry the children to and from school. A lunch program was also available.

The Durham School property and the building was returned to the George Watts estate which was agreed upon when the land was given for use as a school.

Harmon School

The first Harmon School was built in 1867 on what was known as the Ed Wright Farm by volunteer labor. It served the community as a church also.

In 1903 a new building was built closer to the community center. This building was on top of a very high hill, very drafty and cold in the winter. When you could no longer stand the cold you were allowed to sit by the pop-bellied stove long enough to get warm. This was a two teacher school so a curtain divided the room. A carpenter along with volunteer labor built this school. The present structure was built in 1926.

Teachers salaries were $35.00 to $40.00 per month and the school term was four or five months. Any schooling beyond that was paid for by private subscriptions.

The curriculum included such texts as McGuffeys Readers, Blue Back Speller and Ray's Arithmetic.

Some of the teachers were Jeff Banks, Kinley Johnson, Rose Aaron, Hattie Aaron, Eula Smith, Rhoda Vernon, Gladys Lively, Margaret Rankin, Addie Lynch, Marie Thomanson, Eula Thomanson, Ethel Wright, Delphine Moore, Beulah Wright, Elizabeth Dunnegan, Jeanette Turner, Lela Cox, Flossie Walker, Elane Draper, Fannie Harris, and Linda Bates.

Some of the School Board Directors were: A. A. Hinshaw, A. A. Thompson, R. H. Craig, D. E. McCamey, E. F. Wright, J. H. Farley, Roy Craig, Otto Wright, Clyde McCamey, Earl

Wood, Arch Thompson, Nolan McCamey, Oscar Wood, Jeff Brown, George Bement, E. B. Crain, and Reed Delozier.

Harmon was consolidated with the Springdale School District on June 6, 1949.

Mt. Comfort Female Academy

This school at old Mt. Comfort was more commonly known as "Miss James School". It was planned as a companion school to Ozark Institute, a school for boys. Both were located in the Mt. Comfort community. The girls' school was probably held in the Mt. Comfort church, while the boys' school was a mile east, on the Solomon Tuttle farm. Miss James separated her school for only a year or two. She was married June 12, 1849 to the Rev. Louis S. Marshall, a Methodist minister, and left Washington County when her husband was transfered to the southern part of the state. Miss James was Episcopalian and Mt. Comfort land records show that the Episcopal Church owned the site of Ozark Institute at one time.

A Digest of Act to Incorporate Far West Seminary; Approved November 30, 1844.

Preamble: Whereas 1) The Bible shall be the standard of morals and religion. 2) The institution shall never possess a sectarian character in religion, or a party character in politics. 3) No person shall hold the office of president or tutor who does not maintain a good moral and Christian character. 4) Perfect equality of rights shall be granted to all the students of this institution. 5) In addition to the ordinary degrees of academical attainments, an honorary premium shall be conferred upon those. . .who have acquired a practical skill in agriculture or some one branch of mechanics. 6) The great distinctive principles of human rights and of civil and religious liberty on which our republic is founded. . .shall be carefully inculcated in the institution.

Mt. Comfort School

The first school was known as Far West Seminary and was built about 1842. It was destroyed by fire February 27, 1845 before it was finished. The ruins of this building were bought by a Robert Mecklin and rebuilt and called Ozark Institute. This school was in existence from 1845 to 1857. This was the second school chartered in Washington County and the 12th to be chartered by the Arkansas General Assembly. The school had 60 students.

Mt. Comfort School

The contractor, W. D. Cunningham, agreed to construct the brick building for $625.00. Cunningham was the son-in-law of Solomon Tuttle on whose farm the school was built.

The Ozark Institute and Mt. Comfort Church both served as hospitals during the Civil War.

The present Mt. Comfort School building, now being used as a community building, was built about 1916.

1934 Mt. Comfort School

Mt. Comfort was fortunate to have a 9 months school term. This was a one teacher school and all eight grades were taught. They also had a library which most rural schools did not have.

Some of the teachers were: Anna Wozencroft, Esther Harris, Iva Stockburger, Hazel Stockburger, Frances Rankin, Mr. Anderson, and Lucy Moore. Some of the directors were: Hugh Mount, Arthur Ruppel, and Earnest Dowell.

Mt. Pleasant School

Mt. Pleasant was an early Winslow School, coming after Mt. Wooster. Classes were held in a log building on land that was later to become the farm of P. E. McClendon. Long after the log building was abandoned as a school, it was used by McClendon as a barn, the only barn in the area to boast a blackboard along one wall.

During the early years attendance frequently topped 70 and hit the 80 mark some years. All of these children shared one large room, regardless of age or grade placement until 1905 when a room, "the little room" was added to the south side of the building to hold the students in the lower grades.

The school was again enlarged in 1912 with the addition of another small wing to be used as a high school.

This school survived until the Thanksgiving holiday weekend in 1918 when it was destroyed by fire. That Sunday fire went unnoticed, because most residents were inside their homes avoiding the cold weather. By the time it was discovered and everyone had rallied around, it was beyond saving. The old school bell had fallen to the ground along with the collapsed roof.

A partial list of teachers and principals is all that remains available. They are listed in order of their service: Principals- Mr. T. H. McClinton; Miss Annie Stockburger (1897-1898); Miss Margaret Young; Mr. C. G. Vie; Miss Isah Lively (1905-1906); Mr. F. U. Duncan (1906-1907); Miss Ida Cannon (1907-1908); Mr. C. A. Brown (1908-1909); Miss Iona Wilson (1909-1910); Miss Mary Craig (1909-1912); Mr. F. U. Duncan (1912); Mr. C. S. Johnson (1913-1916); Mr. James L. Harris (1916-1917); Mr. Oscar Curtis (1917-1919); Assistants: Miss Emma McClendon; Miss Pearl Guinn; Miss Sophia Wyatt; Miss Bertha Guinn; Miss Witty; Miss Erma Deatherage; Miss Alice McClendon; Mrs. Jewell Karnes. Intermediate teachers: Mr. Kenneth Russell; Miss Stella Winn; Miss Margaret Carter; Miss Elsie Center. High School assistants: Mrs. Louise Duncan and a Miss Johnson.

Following the fire, classes didn't resume until after the Christmas Holidays. They were held in the Methodist Church, and Oscar Curtis was principal for the upper grades with Miss Elsie Center assisting him. Primary grades were under the leadership of Mrs. Jewell Karnes and were held in the I. O. O. F. Hall on the hill above the present Baptist Church.

Plans were immediately begun to build a two story brick school building that still stands and serves the community.

Mt. Wooster School

The earliest Winslow school, for which information is available, was a log building located about half way between what is now know as Winslow and the town of Schaberg (neither town existed at that time).

This school, called Mt. Wooster, was located on a hillside near a road running along the mountain west of Mt. Gaylor, down the hill into the railroad hollow. It was probably started in the early 1870s and on through the 1880s.

Named for the real estate promoter who donated the land for the building, it was located in an area where land could be sold for real estate development and close to the apple orchards which were beginning to dot the mountainside.

Oak Grove School

Oak Grove is located about three miles west of Springdale. In 1877 Thomas Fowler, Sr. was paid $5.00 by School District 13 for one acre of land on the east side of Oak Grove Road. On this acre was a one-room log building where school was held with the children sitting on split-log benches.

When the present school building was built on the west side of the road about 1882, the pupils were lined up and marched across the road to the new building. This was told to Mrs. Bascom White (Irene) by her daddy, Neil Phillips. Neil was in his first year of school when the move took place.

The land on the west side of the road where the present school building stands was purchased August 21, 1877 from Robert Norman and wife, Saythea Norman, by School District 13. A warranty deed was exchanged and $2.50 paid in full. School was held three to five months a year for grades one through eight. Later it was held for six months and increased to nine.

In the 1930s Oak Grove had a rhythm band composed of school children. Oak Grove had a PTA which remained active as long as school was held. The PTA sponsored a school lunch program which began during the school year 1944-45. A large cloak-room was converted into a kitchen and the children ate at their desks. Later the front porch was extended and enclosed to house a dining area.

The Springdale school system consolidated the Oak Grove school and the children moved to Westwood Elementary in Springdale, at mid-term of the school year 1959-60.

Some of the teachers were: Prof. Hopkins, Lola Umbaugh, Alice Keicher, Mrs. George Aaron (Rosa), Phoebe (Smith) Phillips, Cora Delozier, Willis Clark, Walter Coffman, Ava Delozier, Bernice (Young) Jones, Oma Spyres, Lottie Ritter, Lillian Cravens, Myra Deweese, Mrs. Earnest (Ethel) Holcomb, Verna (Baggett) Cooper, Georgia (Baggett) Dickerson, June (Odle) Weathers, Juanita (Taggart) Honomichael, Mildred (Gillette) Moneyhun, Esther Harris, Helen Clements, Rosa E. Aaron, Cecil Vaughn and Era Walker.

Ozark Institute

Ozark Institute, Mt. Comfort's most famous school, was in existence from 1845 to 1857, closed during the war, but resumed operations in 1868 and continued until the new state university at Fayetteville put it permanently out of business in 1872. Ozark Institute furnished President Robert Graham and 20 students as a nucleus for Arkansas College when that school was founded in Fayetteville in 1850.

Goodspeed's history says "After the unfinished building of Far West Seminary was destroyed by fire, the school was rebuilt under the direction of Robert W. Mecklin as Ozark Institute." In 1849, according to the Van Buren Intelligencer, it had 60 students. Another writer says it had 100 students "in its most flourishing days." The Van Buren Paper also listed a "fine academy for young ladies, conducted by Miss James, and located about a mile from Ozark Institute."

Ozark Institute had a two-story brick building, with four rooms, each 20X40, and a wide hall running the length of the building. Later, a frame dormitory was built and a residence for the president. Funds were solicited in the eastern states by Wm. T. Larremore. Lands were donated to the school by Solomon Tuttle, James Pollard, Allen Moore and others. Among the early teachers were Isaac Murphy, P. P. Van Hoose, David McMannus and Charles H. Leverett, afterwards a member of the University faculty at Fayetteville.

Recollections of J. H. VanHoose from the Arkansas Sentinel, September 9, 1890. On the 28th of August, 1850, "I passed through the little village of Fayetteville on foot, on my way to Ozark Institute, 3 miles northwest of Fayetteville, at which place Robert W. Mecklin and Robert Graham had advertised to open the fall term of their excellent school for young men, on the first Monday of the following October. I was anxious to go to school but had no money with which to pay either tuition or board and had engaged to work during the vacation for Mr. Mecklin at the then very liberal wages of $15.00 per month, which was to be credited in part payment on my future account for tuition and board. I walked that day from the Middle Fork of White River, some thirteen miles, carrying all my worldly goods tied up in a two-bit cotton handkerchief, and the day following, August 29, I went to the Clear Creek hills and in company with William Harris and John Henry and a negro man called Nelson McKissick, commenced getting out post-oak sills, sleepers and studding for a new dining room to be added to the boarding house kept by Mr. Mecklin."

Twelve students of Ozark Institute at Mt. Comfort are known to have lost their lives in the Civil War. William Brown, Henry Fulbright and one of the Hawkins boys were killed at Oak Hills (Wilson's Creek). James Skelton and a student named Pelfry were killed at Pea Ridge. William Kifer and Wm. L. Skelton died at Corinth, Mississippi. B. F. Boone and James Pollard were killed at Prairie Grove. Thomas Jefferson died at Fayetteville, Wythe Walker at Jenkens Ferry, and H. McConnell in a skirmish on Boston Mountain.

Prairie Grove High School

The Prairie Grove High School building was built in 1911 and torn down in 1958. For many years, it housed one through twelve grades. This school building and school campus was located west side of Block 11, Rogers Addition, City of Prairie Grove, adjacent to Neal Street on the west and Bush Street on the south. The brick that this school building was constructed with was manufactured by the Terpening Brick and Tile Factory which was located about three miles east of Prairie Grove on the east side of the Illinois River in Section 9, Township 15, Range 31 West. The Prairie Grove Methodist Church was built in 1903 with bricks from this same kiln. Also, a number of the business buildings here in Prairie Grove were constructed with brick from the same Terpening Factory. Some of the business buildings that were constructed with bricks from the Terpening Factory were the Southern Mercantile Building and the B. H. Harrison Estate Building, whose first floor houses the Enterprise, the Masonic Lodge and the Order of the Eastern Star occupy the second floor. These, along with other buildings and the Methodist Church are being used at the present time.

The first high school in Prairie Grove was the Methodist

Academy, built in 1863, and was located on the same land described above on which the three-story school was built in 1911. Prairie Grove School District No. 23 was formed in 1874. The first school building constructed by the district was a frame building and was located east of Pittman Street (now Highway 62) adjacent to Graham Street on the north and McCormick Street on the south. Only those who paid tuition attended the academy which was turned over to School District No.23 in 1901. The academy building was torn down in 1911 at the time the new three-story building was constructed. In 1930, the Prairie Grove District built a new one-story brick building. The construction was done by WPA labor. It was located in the northwest corner of Block 8, original plat of Prairie Grove, adjacent to Bush Street on the north and Neal Street on the west. It was immediately south of where the three-story school was located. The building housed grade one through six and was used for school until the new school complex was completed in the north part of town during the mid Fifties. This building in now owned by the First Assembly of God Church where they hold their services.

Mamie Edmiston was born at Rhea, Arkansas. She attended first, second and third grades in school at Rhea or Renic as it was sometimes called. In the summer of 1916, her family moved to Prairie Grove and she entered school there in the fourth grade. She graduated from the Prairie Grove High School in the spring of 1925. She attended Northeastern State Teachers College in Tahlequah, Oklahoma from the fall of 1925 to the spring of 1927. She started her teaching career in Locust Grove, Oklahoma in 1927 and taught there two years before coming back to Prairie Grove to teach in the high school. Starting in the fall of 1929, she taught high school English for ten years. The Class of 1933 were freshmen in the fall term of 1929-30. She taught them until they graduated in 1933. The Class of 1933 had their 40th class reunion in 1973, their 45th in 1978 and their 50th in 1983. They are planning their 55th reunion in May of this year. Richardson Center

The Richardson Center, formerly the Washington County School for Trainable Children, began serving the Developmentally Disabled in 1963 and has continued quality services for the last twenty-four years. We have been licensed by Developmental Disability Services in conjunction with the Department of Human Services for the past seventeen years. We are also licensed by the U. S. Department of Labor for our Work Activity Center. Originally we served the mild to moderately handicapped population but in recent years our clients have become more moderate to severely handicapped with the reason for this being: (1) Public Schools are now placing mildly handicapped students in their own school system. (2) The severe population, which was previously hidden away, has become visible and demands for educational and habilitative services are being made. (3) Medical advances are preventing the deaths of severe high-risk patients.

In our development of a total program for all ages the following programs have evolved over the last ten years. (A) EARLY INTERVENTION To provide a program for newborn infants thru two years of age. The instructor visits the child's home weekly and works with the infant and his/her family to help the family cope and carry on remediation activities. The infants and parents come to the Center weekly for therapy sessions which include occupational therapy, physical therapy, and speech therapy. (B) PRESCHOOL The preschool component includes children from three years to five years of age. These children receive extensive physical and speech therapies during these formative years. They are taught self-help skills, safety skills, social, motor, communicative skills, and pre-academic skills. (C) SCHOOL AGE The public schools in the area contract with the center to provide services to their school-aged students. They are taught self-help skills, academics, safety skills, social interaction skills, and all areas of educational skills. (D) ADULT WORK ACTIVITY The adult component has young adults from 18 years of age. They are taught basic living skills, work-activity and community living skills, and job training contract work.

The Work Activity Center began in 1975 with the purpose of training developmentally disabled adults in the areas of habilitative training, adult development, basic living skills, functional academics, i. e. money, time, time clock operation, survival skills, etc., contractual employment for job training and job placement.

These programs are modified for each individual client based on their personal needs and abilities. This component has grown over the last decade from serving ten adults to twenty at present (1988).

The community of Round Mountain is east of Fayetteville and north of Elkins, between White River and Richland Creek. A school in that area was established April 8, 1887, when the Washington County Court approved a petition of George F. Trammell and L. P. Trammell. This was school district no. 64, commonly known as Round Mountain. Adjoining districts were 24 (Baldwin), 101 (Wyman), 111 (Maguire Town), 125 (White House) and 126 (Pleasant View). County court records show that a school existed here in 1871. The school started out as a one room single teacher facility and never had more than eight grades. In the beginning, the standard salary for a woman teacher was $25.00 per month, while a man teacher received $30.00.

The school was financed by a property tax of seven to ten mills. The length of the term depended on the money available. A new school building was constructed in the winter of 1918-1919. Lawrence Ferguson was the builder with the help of A. E. Smith. The old school building was moved to the area where the present day Round Mountain Fire Department is located and, for a while, was used as a family residence. Some years later the building was destroyed by fire.

An extra room was added to the new school around 1927 but reverted back to the one room one teacher concept some time in the early 1930s. The records indicate that some of the teachers prior to 1900 were: J. R. Belt, Jean Bently, Liza Mays, L. Orr, P. Stanley, and W. E. Williams. School directors were: P. A. Biggs, Sam Nieman, N. C. Smith, P. M. Tresner, W. E. Williams, and B. N. Wood.

The names of those teachers who taught at the school after 1900 have been supplied by Mrs. Pauline Danner and Mrs.

The first recorded action toward the establishment of a community center now known as Son's Chapel was in 1852. Michael Son and his wife Nancy gave a tract of land for the use of the Protestant Methodist Church. It was located on top of a knoll with a splendid view in all directions. According to early accounts a log house was situated near the northwest corner of this tract which was presumably used for church purposes and probably for school use although at this time school sessions were held mostly on a "subscription" basis. The donees did not live long in the community but because of their generosity the church and the school became known as Son's Chapel.

Just when a school program was established at Son's Chapel is not known. Early court records indicate that tax funds were allocated to the district in 1869 and for subsequent years thereafter. In January, 1884, the Washington County Court prescribed the boundaries and identities of 129 school districts most, if not all, were already operational. Son's Chapel was among this number.

Up to 1885, the school district owned no property and presumably used the Methodist Church building as a classroom. In 1885, H. H. Alexander and wife Martha Jane, who now owned the farm previously held by Michael Son, deeded a strip of land 30 x 300 feet lying along the north side of the original grant "to the directors of school district 4." The Alexanders specified that the house on this property shall be used on weekends by the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Primitive Baptist, the Christian Church and Protestant Methodist Church in a rotating order. If any group became inactive, then the facility would be made available to other faiths.

The building constructed on this property faced the old Huntsville Road. When the road was widened in the 1930s, the school building was moved backward a short distance to an additional grant of land from Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Porter, who now owned the original Son property. About this time the Rural Builders' Club constructed what now serves as the Community Church Center. Thus the old school building was used solely for educational purposes until its dissolution in 1949. The building was then sold and moved to a field nearby and converted to residential use.

The first teacher for which we have record was Sally Skillern who taught the 1888 term. She recorded 18 students. From 1890 to 1949, 36 persons taught school terms which ranged from three to eight months in length. The teacher with the longest tenure was Georgia Guilliams, who taught seven terms. It is estimated that through its existence, Son's Chapel had a total enrollment in the range of 1600 to 1800 students. Prior to the 1920s not many of its students had the opportunity to continue their formal educational career through high school and college. During the last three decades of the school's history many of its graduates were able to attend high school and college. Regardless of their educational achievement, graduates from Son's Chapel have made their contribution to the social and economic fabric of the state and nation. Some graduates became farmers, others artisans such as plumbers, carpenters and electricians. Some became teachers and one became director of the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station. One became a chemist for the International Paper Company, another for a major petroleum company and so the list could continue.

Even though the school bell had ceased pealing out the call to assembly and there is a stillness on the hill-top, the Chapel on the hill will always be a cherished memory for those who passed through it's portals on their way to horizons beyond.

Springdale Schools

The Springdale public school system has been traced back to its beginning as classes held in a log-cabin schoolhouse. The ensuing succession of teachers and various sites for classroom facilities evolved into an educational partnership which was formally organized as "Springdale School District No. 50" on January 7, 1884. Since that time the school district has enjoyed continued growth in both enrollment and instructional scope.

The district's most significant expansion came as a consequence of a 1947 law which required that each public school be aligned with a high school. Over the next two years, many small schools in the area which had been separately operated requested association with the Springdale School District because of its high school curriculum. By 1949 a total of twenty-two of those "wing schools" had been consolidated into Springdale's system, which offered both elementary and secondary instruction. As their students were able to be accommodated by one of the school district's main facilities, the wing schools were closed. Tontitown Elementary School, scheduled to be closed at the end of the 1986-87 school year, was the last such "wing school" operated by the district.

By 1987 the Springdale public schools constituted the sixth-largest school district in the state of Arkansas. The system had eight elementary schools, two junior high schools, including one with the largest enrollment of any junior high school in the state, and one high school having the third-largest enrollment of any high school in the state. The total student population enrolled in the district's schools for the year 1986-87 school year was more than 7,000 students.

In addition to physical growth, the district has compiled a record of many outstanding student and teacher accomplishments. Springdale students are respected and formidable competitors in academics, activities and athletics, having won regional, state and national honors in various endeavors.

The instructional spectrum at Springdale includes special education classes for students with learning disabilities, gifted/talented education on both elementary and secondary levels, art classes, vocational instruction, and newsmaking innovative programs such as the "School Within a School" at Springdale High School and the "Write to Read" program for kindergarten students. Springdale as a model physical education program for elementary students, and offers at the secondary level such sports as football, basketball, track, tennis, golf and gymnastics. Included in the many other activities available at the secondary level are marching bands and choral groups.

The following list details the expansion of the district's system of educational facilities showing those in operation as of the fall of 1987: Springdale High School 1961, Central Junior High School 1975, Southwest Junior High School 1967, Elmdale Elementary School 1965, Jones Elementary School 1959, Lee Elementary School 1951, Parson Hills Elementary School 1982, Smith Elementary School 1982, Tyson Elementary School 1973, Walker Elementary School 1987, and Westwood Elementary School 1969.

The superintendents of the Springdale School District are as listed, along with the years of their respective terms in such position: W. D. Gray 1910-1911, W. H. Banta 1911-1916, F. G. Robb 1916-1917, W. A. Erdman 1917-1918, Rev. W. A. Piper 1918-1919, T. P. Woods 1919-1927, G. Stubblefield 1927-1932, J. A. Trice 1933- 1942, W. R. Yeubanks 1942-1944, J. O. Kelley 1944-1963, T. G. Smith 1963-1982, J. D. Rollins 1982-.

The motto of the Springdale School District is, "Dedicated to excellence." The exceptional achievements throughout the years of students, teachers and administrators illustrate that this spirit of ambition and accomplishment continues to prevail.

Summers School

The first schools of Summers community were subscription schools. Many were held in homes of various citizens, but some were more formal and were taught in buildings used also for church purposes. Three of the latter were Forest Hill (on the Dr. Jacobson Funkhouser farm), Gibson Chapel, (on Capt. George Gibson's farm) and New Church (on the James Shannon farm). Goosewalk (Gibson Chapel) and Ganderville (New Church) were nicknames for the last two.

School District No. 19 (Summers School) was established by a County Court Order on 8 April 1884 issued in response to the petition of "George Gibson and fifty other resident citizens of Washington County Arkansas." The boundaries were defined by a second Court Order date 12 July 1884.

The district's first school house was Gibson Chapel, which was moved from its location at the Hardin Ford on Ballard Creek, upstream 1-1/2 miles to the confluence of Ballard Creek and Coon Creek (now Funkhouser Branch). It was renamed Island Chapel.

Island Chapel was demolished by a tornado in 1898, and a new house was erected 1/4 mile east of the site. This building was named Coon Creek, which was the current name for Summers Community. Coon Creek was later moved to the Summers town site and located on the grounds of the present-day Summers Community Buildings (old Summers Schools). It was demolished about 1920, and replaced by a two-room brick building. This building was increased in size twice, one room being added in 1925-26 and two more about 1934. Maximum enrollment including all grades was probably about 200.

In 1912 the School Directors were W. R. Little, J. W. Parker, and J. A. Tennant (the earliest list found). They bought town lots from the Ozark & Cherokee Central Railroad for school use.

Summers maintained a small school for blacks for many years. It was called Douglas or Mountainberg School. Family names of the students were Barker, Miller, Funkhouser and Flowers.

The first High School graduation at Summers was in 1933. The graduates were Sam Gibson, Maxine Parks and Dorothy Elms.

The school was "consolidated" with District No. 48 (Lincoln) about 1950 and closed about 1955, when the Lincoln School Board deeded the property to the Summers Trustees. The buildings are still maintained as a Community Facility.

University of Arkansas

In the summer of 1862, while Union and Confederate forces were deadlocked in eastern and western campaigns of the Civil War, the United States Congress passed an act that would have a far-reaching impact on higher education in Arkansas as well as other states. The Morrill Act granted public land to each state to be used to establish and maintain a college devoted to teaching agriculture and mechanic arts in addition to other scientific and classical studies. Unable to take advantage of the measure because of the war, Arkansas and other southern states were granted an extension to comply with its provisions through amendment to the Morrill Act. Arkansas' new Reconstruction government had until February, 1872 to organize the state's land-grant college.

Arkansas narrowly met the deadline. Although the 1869 General Assembly moved quickly to pass an act creating an "industrial university", Governor Powell Clayton delayed almost two years his appointment of a Board of Trustees (which in fact never served) to implement the law. In 1871 the legislature passed another act empowering itself to appoint a board and authorizing towns, cities and counties to bid through local elections for the location of the university. A campaign to secure the university for Washington County was led by Lafayette Gregg and David Walker, both state Supreme Court Justices from Fayetteville, who through speeches and letters urged voters to approve Fayetteville and Washington County bond issues. Their efforts were successful and both Fayetteville and Washington County joined with Batesville in making the only three bids in the state for the location of the university.

After inspection visits to Batesville and Fayetteville, and becoming convinced that completion of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad would make the latter more accessible, the Board of Trustees voted in October, 1871 to establish the industrial university in Washington County. A committee of the Board made another trip to Washington County the following month and selected as the specific site for the university William McIlroy's 160-acre farm located about a mile north and west of the center of Fayetteville. During the next two months the McIlroy farmhouse was converted to classroom use, a small frame building was constructed, public school teacher Noah Putnam Gates was selected as acting president and head of the Normal Department, and three other teachers were hired. On January 22, 1872, Arkansas Industrial University opened its doors to eight students just three weeks before the deadline established in the amended Morrill Land Grant Act.

The next priority was to construct a substantial academic building for the rural campus. The Board of Trustees used the bonds approved by Washington County and Fayetteville voters to finance the construction. A committee of the Board had visited the University of Illinois in 1871 and had been impressed by that university's stately Main Building. For a fee of $1,000.00 the Board secured plans and specifications from the Chicago architect who designed the original building (which was subsequently destroyed by fire in the 1930s) and advertised for construction bids. The Fayetteville firm of Mays and Oliver won the contract and construction of University Hall was begun in the summer of 1873. Judge Gregg, who had been instrumental in securing the University for Washington County, personally oversaw the construction. Due largely to his attentiveness, the building was completed in time for graduation exercises to be held in its auditorium in June, 1875. The imposing brick building not only provided classroom space but also furnished living quarters for faculty, and eventually housed the museum, library, chapel and gymnasium. The center of University life, the structure soon became fondly known as "Old Main" and has since been the symbol for higher education in Arkansas. A campaign to raise funds to restore Old Main was begun in 1985 and restoration is scheduled to begin in the fall of 1988.

Before the end of the University's first semester, ninety-three students joined the eight who entered on opening day and enrollment stablized at about 100 to 200 students for the remainder of the century. Few Arkansas students had the educational background for college-level studies in those years and were required to complete one or more years in the Preparatory department before entering freshman classes. Although Arkansas Industrial University, under the terms of the Morrill Act, was intended to emphasize agricultural courses, most students preferred a general classics and literature curriculum or teacher education. In response to demands from state legislators, the administration employed various tactics to encourage agricultural study, including the 1880s experiment of paying agriculture students three times the wages of those in the liberal arts to work on the University grounds in the afternoons. It was not until early in the twentieth century, with increased funding and the implementation of agricultural research work that the College of Agriculture began to attract significant enrollment.

As there were no dormitories until Buchanan and Hill Halls were built at the turn of the century, most out-of-town students lived with Fayetteville families and walked to campus. They were closely regulated by the University administration. Male and female students were segregated in classes and prohibited from seeing each other socially outside of class. Students were subject to a detailed "scale of demerits" for offenses on or off campus such as the use of tobacco or profane language, and absence from Sunday School or study hall. The faculty and the University president, General Daniel Harvey Hill, divided over the issue of student discipline early in the 1880s, with the faculty accusing Hill of too rigorous an enforcement of the rules. The Fayetteville Democrat, as well as most students, favored the faculty position, but the Board of Trustees remained firm in its support of the president. When Hill retired under the strain of the dispute in 1884, the Board replaced him with an even more stringent disciplinarian and, the following year, fired the entire faculty.

Another controversy over discipline arose in 1919 when students, many of them mature World War I veterans, protested some of the University's rules and regulations. This time the president, John C. Futrall, had the support of nearly all the faculty as well as many students and the Board of Trustees. After weeks of student meetings and the circulation of anti-administration petitions, the chairman of the Board of Trustees, Governor Charles H. Brough, announced the expulsion of several of the student protest leaders and declared that "the University would be run by the board and the faculty, and not by the students. . ." So it remained until the nationwide "student revolt" of the 1960s and the 1970s when the University dropped most rules governing student social life, such as curfews, and many regulations governing academic life, such as compulsory class attendance.

While disciplinary regulations limited the scope of amusements available to students, they did engage in numerous extracurricular activities. Most popular of these at the turn of the century was participation in literary societies where students recited poetry, read from original essays, and honed their oratorical skills. During the first quarter of the twentieth century intercollegiate debating generated almost as much interest and school spirit as football. Student publications such as the school annual and campus newspaper provided experience for those students with journalistic ambitions. The relaxation in the 1920s of rules prohibiting students from patronizing theaters and other public places opened new entertainment opportunities. Especially popular were the musical comedies performed at the Ozark Theater on College Avenue.

University students organized their first government structure, the Associated Students, in the 1920s. While many of the older faculty members at the time view student government as revolutionary, it did little more than allow students to campaign and vote in elections and functioned only to control freshmen and limit the severity of freshman hazing. Student government leaders in the decades of the twenties and thirties devoted hours to assuring that freshmen wore their green hats and kept from stepping on the Senior Walk. Student government grew steadily more sophisticated and by the 1970s, elected officers were making policy and budget decisions that affected most student organizations.

The 1899 act that changed the name of Arkansas Industrial University to the University of Arkansas presaged the move of the institution toward true university status in the twentieth century. In the first twenty years of the century the preparatory department was dropped, three colleges were organized and the Graduate School and School of Law were established. Enrollment increased steadily during the first decade of the twentieth century and then nearly doubled in the 1920s. The administration responded to this growth by hiring more faculty with higher qualifications and by expanding the curriculum with the addition of new courses and departments. After applications for accreditation had been repeatedly turned down by the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities, President John C. Futrall solicited membership in the more prestigious North Central Association. An investigating committee of the organization determined that the University met the association's high standard and the University of Arkansas received full accreditation in 1924.

The depression of the 1930s arrested the expansion in programs and personnel of the previous decade. Faculty members received yearly reductions in salary through 1934 and positions vacated by resignations and retirements went unfilled. Maintenance was nearly eliminated, book purchases for the library was negligible, and much of the support staff was laid off. At the same time, the New Deal program begun in response to the nation's economic crisis provided the opportunity for the University to undertake a series of construction projects to ease the crowding caused by earlier enrollment growth.

Grants from the Public Works Administration and other federal agencies provided funding for the Chemistry, Home Economics and Business Administration buildings, as well as Vol Walker library, a student union and the football stadium and field house. The University did not experience such a concentrated expansion in facilities again until the building boom of the 1960s which produced the skyline of highrise dormitories in addition to modern science buildings, a new library and student union, the administration building and much more.

World War II further impeded the growth of academic programs as the University of Arkansas, like most institutions of higher learning, became virtually a branch of the armed services and a training center for military and civilian industrial employment. After the war, the administration was able to concentrate again on planning and adding programs that would transform the institution into a comprehensive, modern state university with quality offerings at all levels of instruction. Doctoral programs were begun in the early 1950s and both basic and applied research activities expanded with the new graduate offerings. Service to the state grew through the engineering and agricultural experiment stations and the Division of Continuing Education's correspondence courses and conferences for various professional and business groups. A series of mergers beginning in 1969 resulted in the creation of a multi-campus system in the early 1970s under a central administration responsible for developing university-wide policies and coordinating programs.

In the late 1960s the University began placing increased emphasis on seeking foundation, corporate and private donations to augment public funding and achieve the excellence of a nationally eminent university. To attract outstanding faculty, an endowed chair program was begun when the Alumni Association raised over $100,000.00 in 1970 for a chair in history and alumna Mrs. Irma Fitch Giffels donated a similiar amount to establish a chair in engineering. Between 1970 and 1985 twenty-five chairs and distinguished professorships were added. The 1983 Campaign for Books increased the library's holdings from 750,000 volumes to 1,250,000 and brought it up to standard for many graduate programs. Other recent contributions, such as the Sturgis Endowment, have financed fellowships and scholarships for superior students. The Old Main Campaign, with a challenge grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, not only has generated funds to begin restoration of the symbolic building, but will also provide the additional library acquisitions, distinguished professorships and the development of interdisciplinary humanities programs. These efforts to improve and strengthen the University of Arkansas are made in recognition of the fact that a sound program of higher education at Arkansas' flagship campus is the key to the state's economic and cultural destiny.

U of A College of Agri and Home Ec

The origin of the the College of Agriculture and Home Economics is traced to the stipulation in the 1862 Morrill Act that land grant colleges teach "such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and mechanic arts." When Arkansas Industrial University was founded in 1871, its first catalog detailed a four year agricultural program combining purely agricultural courses such as horticulture, soils, and stock breeding with the study of basic sciences and liberal arts. The object was to educate rural youth for a prominent place in their community.

Despite the catalog description and the appeal of an agricultural program to the Legislature and citizens of a rural, farm state, students did not enroll in agricultural courses. Most came from towns and were not interested in agriculture, and those from farms entered the University precisely to escape farm life. They preferred a liberal arts curriculum. The faculty were generalists drawn from the sciences who knew little about agriculture. The resultant B. S. A. program was very rigorous and not very revelant to the problems of farmers. To address the oft-repeated charge that the agricultural mission of the University was not being fulfilled, the Legislature granted free tuition for agricultural courses while charging for the classics and, in 1887, required all male students to work on the farm or in a workshop. The results were modest: the first B. S. A. was not awarded until 1904, and only 10 had been granted in 1912.

Agriculture's image improved with changes made in 1905. The Director of the Agriculture Experiment Station, William G. Vincenheller, became the first Dean of the newly organized College of Agriculture, whose faculty was now composed primarily of Experiment Station people. This integration of research with teaching brought needed financial support and agricultural expertise to the College. The benefits of this Experiment Station-College relationship continue today and are especially seen in the strong graduate research program.

John Futrall's support of agriculture made his long presidency from 1913-1939 a period of growth and expanded influence for the College. In 1913, domestic science became Home Economics with a four year degree program housed in the College of Agriculture; the first B. S. H. E. was awarded in 1917, and in 1953, the College offically became Agriculture and Home Economics. Student interest in the College's programs increased with the passage of the 1914 Smith-Lever Act, which created the Agricultural Extension Service. The prospect now of good jobs as county agents as well as high school teachers, researchers and managers pushed enrollment up from 29 students in 1910 to 240 by 1924 and to 630 by 1939.

Futrall's strong stand against an attempt by the Profitable Farming Bureau, composed of bankers and businessmen, to control the Extension Service and the College in 1918-19 insured that a sound, reliable research program under University auspices rather than a promotional, private approach would prevail. In 1926 the current Agricultural Building was completed; in 1940, the Home Economics Building. The addition of an Animal Sciences facility, a Plant Sciences complex and vast expansion in the University farms and the Agricultural Experiment Station with its branches around the state reflect the growth and prominence of the Division of Agriculture today. It comprises one of the University's largest and most elaborate operating facilities.

The big white footprints on the Fayetteville Square and around campus made by the country boy coming to the University to learn improved agricultural methods were a reminder of the impact of the College on Washington County. Appearing on the eve of Agri Day each spring, the footprints called the community to the Agri parade and to the many displays prepared by students for store windows downtown. The 4-H Days and the Farmer's Weeks brought thousands of Arkansans to Fayetteville and raised the posture of the whole University within the state much like Razorback athletics do now.

Washington County, Arkansas' leading revenue producing agricultural county, has directly profited from the College's research. The Entomology Department's tick and chigger eradication program has improved the quality of life as have the interior design and ornamental horticultural programs; the economy has benefited from small fruit breeding and the resultant "pick-your-own" enterprises. Animal Sciences' bull performance testing program has greatly improved the quality of beef production in Arkansas. In 1951 the College sponsored the "National Chicken of Tomorrow" contest finals, which spurred the growth of the local poultry industry, and continued research by poultry scientists has helped this industry flourish. The Food Science Department maintains close ties with the food processing industry by providing trained personnel and undertaking cooperative research. From modest beginnings, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the College of Agriculture and Home Economics has become a vital entity of the University, the County and the State.

U of A College of Arts and Sciences

It is often said that a university can be no more distinguished than its college of arts and sciences. The college of arts and sciences is at the same time the least homogenous and the most influential of the schools that make up a university. Encompassing the natural and social sciences and the arts and humanities, the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Arkansas from the beginning has attracted the largest enrollment of any division on the Fayetteville campus. Its influence derives not merely from its size or its responsibility for teaching diverse courses required by other colleges, but from its dual mission to provide quality liberal education and to encourage research and other creative activity in each of its departments.

During the University's first forty years the arts and sciences departments were part of a large division, often called simply "the college", that at times included the preparatory department and military science as well as engineering and teacher training. In 1912 separate colleges of engineering and arts and sciences were created, with teacher training remaining a function of the arts and sciences faculty until the College of Education was established in 1917.

Development of curricula to provide general education not only for its own students but also those of the other, more specialized colleges has been an essential function of the College of Arts and Sciences. The core of the curriculum in the last quarter of the nineteenth century consisted of classical languages and literature with additional requirements in English, history, mathematics and elementary sciences. As the popularity of classical studies waned throughout the country at the turn of the century, the college experimented with curriculum changes, added more departments and offered a wider variety of courses to its offerings. By the time it was established as a separate college in the academic year 1912-1913, Arts and Sciences had a curriculum and graduation requirements that remained essentially unchanged until the early 1950s. Courses were divided into four and later five groupings, with few restrictions on students in selecting their coursework.

The next major revision of the college curriculum began in the late 1940s in response to a nationwide general education movement. Dean Guerdon Nichols (1946-1964) appointed a curriculum committee to study general education programs at other institutions and to analyze the college's own programs. The committee's investigation resulted in a wholesale revision of the curriculum, adopted in 1952, that provided introductory courses such as world literature and western civilization for freshmen, as well as a distribution of required course work among the arts, humanities and sciences during the student's first two years. The revised program, essentially still in place today, was designed to introduce students to a broad interdisciplinary education in the freshman and sophomore years and to provide opportunities for specialization beginning in the junior year.

Another major function of the College of Arts and Sciences has been the promotion of research and productive scholarship among its faculty. In the early years research was limited to projects undertaken by individual faculty members who could overcome the constraints of heavy teaching loads and the scarcity of research funds. Research activity increased campus-wide during the 1920s as more funds became available during the "prosperity decade", but it was World War II that opened opportunities for large- scale, organized research, primarily in the sciences. The United States Army and Navy awarded numerous contracts to Arkansas scientists and, after the war, the Institute of Science and Technology was established to coordinate and supervise contract research in addition to supporting numerous graduate assistants. In 1955 the institute was discontinued and the responsibility for coordinating and facilitating research was delegated to the dean of the Graduate School. Contract research in the college's science departments has grown steadily with funds from outside sources increasing from approximately $400,000 per year in the early 1950s to between $2-$4 million in the early 1980s.

While fewer sources for outside funding exist for the humanities, research in these disciplines has grown as well. In addition to funding from organizations such as the American Philosophical Society and the National and Arkansas Endowments for the Humanities, humanists have received increasing support and incentives from the College of Arts and Sciences. In recent years teaching loads for both humanities and sciences faculty have been temporarily reduced for research through off-campus duty assignments and, beginning in 1980, through full-time research assignments on a semester basis. The College also provides financial support through Research Incentive Grants, instituted in 1980 and funds for travel to present the results of research and other creative activity at professional meetings.

The College of Arts and Sciences has endeavored to achieve excellence in its mission. Such achievement was recognized in the 1930-1931 school year with the installation of a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1954, at the recommendation of Phi Beta Kappa, the College of Arts and Sciences created an honors program intended to challenge the best of students. Those who gain admission to the interdisciplinary program are offered the opportunity to study with other superior students in small honors sections where subject matter is pursued in greater depth than regular classes. Honors students also take part in special colloquia and are granted opportunities for independent study.

To attract outstanding students from throughout the country to its honors program, the College in 1985 established Sturgis Fellowships for exceptionally talented students. Funded by the Roy and Christine Sturgis Charitable and Educational Trust, the Sturgis Endowment provides fellowships of $40,000 each over four years to cover such expenses as specialized education equipment and educational travel. The program promises to furnish a stimulating and exciting intellectual experience for Sturgis fellows.

Recently the College of Arts and Sciences has made other major strides toward excellence. Under the leadership of Dean John C. Guilds, the college attempted to become "a worldwide center for liberal learning in general and for the study of international relations in particular". In 1981 Guilds began an endowment drive to attract the private contributions necesssary to attain this goal and received a pledge of $1 million from Mr. and Mrs. Jackson T. Stephens of Little Rock. The following year the college was dedicated as the J. William Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences in honor of one of its most distinguished alumni and a man widely known for his commitment to liberal learning and international understanding. Since then the College has established the Center for Arkansas and Regional Studies to promote the study of Arkansas history and culture and the Fulbright Institute of International Relations to advance international understanding and cooperation. These achievements, coupled with increased support for teaching innovations and research and the presence of nationally-eminent scholars on the faculty, have enabled Fulbright College to move substantially closer to realization of its goal of becoming an outstanding center for liberal learning in the United States.

U of A College of Business Administration

The College of Business Administration was founded in 1926 in response to a growing demand for commercial education. Initially designated as a "School" and headed by Charles C. Fichtner the College consisted of four professors, and offered thirty-six courses in business administration, economics and sociology. Curricula were available in accounting, banking and finance, general business, industrial management and marketing.

The objectives of the College were stated in a prologue to the 1926 University catalog: The School of Business Administration at the University of Arkansas. . .in no way pretends to provide an easy road to a successful business career. Rather it aims to give the essential training needed for an adequate grasp of the purpose and procedure of business and economic life. . .Instruction is based on experience of many business concerns brought into systematic form designed to enable the individual to profit by the experience of others.

The College's first four degrees were awarded in 1927. The Master of Science in Business Administration (MSBA) program was established in 1930; and a year later, American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business Administration (AACSB) accreditation was awarded to the undergraduate degree program. Also in 1931, the first female student was graduated.

Academic programs have undergone continuous expansion. In 1950, the Doctor of Philosophy degree in economics was established; and the MSBA degree was redesignated Master of Business Administration (MBA). In 1959, the Doctor of Philosophy degree in business administration was established; and, the MBA degree was accredited in 1963.

Undergraduate fields of specialization have been expanded to include accounting, accounting / data processing, computer information systems / quantitative analysis, finance and insurance, finance and banking, finance and real estate, marketing, transportation, general business, personnel management, business economics and office systems management.

Separate bachelor's degrees are offered in industrial management and public administration, and a two year associate's degree is available in office systems management. Also, an honors program has been implemented. Instructional resources were improved in 1984 with the installation of a computer laboratory with forty-eight state-of-the-art personal computers and a "super mini" computer augmenting the existing faculty's main-frame terminals. In 1986, the College created another laboratory with thirty IBM XT's with networking capabilities.

Since 1926, the College has added several specialized units to its structure in the areas of public service, research and outreach. They are: (1) the Bureau of Business and Economic Research (1931) to engage in grants and contracts for federal, state and local government research and to provide support for faculty research; (2) the Bessie Moore Center for Economic Education (1978) to provide economic education and understanding to elementary and secondary school teachers; (3) the Small Business Development Center (1979) to counsel and train small business owners and managers on sound business practices, and new business techniques; (4) the Center for Management and Executive Development (1984) to provide continuing education for middle and upper level managers; (5) the County Management Information System (1982) to supply standardized software, technical support and user services for computerized county systems; and (6) the Entrepreneurial Service Center (1986) to provide guidance to those interested in starting their own businesses.

In 1978, the College moved to its present location on Ozark Street. Students now have the advantage of classrooms and facilities in a building which the AACSB accrediting team designated as prototypical for collegiate schools of business.

The College's student body, including graduate students, reached an enrollment of approximately 3,500 for the spring 1987 semester. Since 1926, the College has awarded approximately 15,000 degrees in its undergraduate, masters and doctoral programs.

Similarly, the faculty of the College has expanded from the initial four in 1926 to ninety-four with permanent, full-time faculty holding the doctoral degree. The College's academic program has been enhanced with the establishment of eight endowed professional chairs in accounting, banking, business administration, economics, finance, and management.

The leadership for the College's record of achievement has been provided by the following: Dean Charles C. Fichtner (1926-1940), Dean Karl M. Scott (1941-1943), Dean Paul W. Milan (1944-1966), Acting Dean Merwyn G. Bridenstine (1966-1967), Dean John P. Owen (1967-1983), and Dean Lloyd Seaton (1983-present).

U of A College of Education

Arkansas Industrial University's first president, Noah P. Gates, was the former superintendent of public schools in Little Rock and an educator who believed the training of public school teachers to be the most important undertaking of the new institution. At the time the University opened in 1872 the few public schools operating in the state were usually staffed by teachers who, at best, held high school diplomas. Acutely aware of the symbiotic relationship between public and higher education, Gates was committed to providing competent teachers who would in turn prepare future generations of Arkansas students for college-level studies. The university's Normal Department grew steadily in its first four decades, but not enough to meet the needs of the state.

In 1913 James R. Jewell came to the University as Professor of Education and head of the Normal Department. With his guidance, the department became first a "school" and then in 1917 was designated the College of Education with Jewell as dean. His fourteen-year tenure witnessed an increase in enrollment from 72 to 380, the establishment of a placement service for Education students, an expansion and strengthening of summer school offerings and the construction of Peabody Hall. In recognition of these accomplishments the University awarded Jewell an LL. D. Degree and his students presented him with a new automobile when he departed in 1927.

In 1934 Henry G. Hotz, secondary education professor at the University since 1919, became dean of the College of Education. Hotz endeavored to improve scholarship and raise professional standards in the College. He developed a strong program of vocational education and reorganized the college's curriculum, providing for such specializations as music education and health and physical education in addition to the general categories of elementary and secondary education. Enrollment increased steadily during the ten years Hotz served as dean and 487 Bachelor of Science degrees and nine Master of Science degrees were granted during this period.

Upon Hotz's retirement in 1945, Henry H. Kronenberg, who had been on the Education faculty eleven years, was appointed dean. Under Kronenberg's leadership the College of Education became one of the major divisions on the Fayetteville Campus. As enrollment continued to increase, the number of faculty grew from 17 to 46 by 1961. The College instituted a doctoral program in 1949 and the first four Ed. D. degrees were awarded in 1953. Under Kronenberg, the College expanded its offerings to include programs in library, music and special education, instituted a program of practice teaching in actual classrooms, and placed greater emphasis on subject-matter study and post-graduate professional education. The growth and progress of the College was marked in 1965 by the completion of the Graduate Education building located just east of the outgrown facility of Peabody Hall.

The College continued to expand under Dean Fred J. Vescolani, who came to the University of Arkansas in 1970 from Michigan State University. Speech pathology-audiology and rehabilitation education programs were added to the curriculum and graduate courses were offered in Saudi Arabia, Greece, and Bolivia. Vescolani was instrumental in the planning and completion of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation (HPER) building, a state of the art facility enjoyed by the entire university community.

One year after Vescolani's retirement in 1984, John Pulliam, came to the College as dean from a similar position at the University of Montana. He has encouraged research and scholarly activities and instituted a major reform program in teacher education. On the national level the College has joined with other research institutions in the Holmes Group to improve teacher education and with the National Educational Renewal Consortium to work with public schools in fourteen states to improve curricula and teacher training. These efforts continue the College's commitment to excellence in education.

U of A College of Engineering

The College of Engineering was organized as a College of the University of Arkansas in 1913. However, Civil Engineering courses were taught at the University as early as 1873, with the first Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering degrees awarded in 1888. A curriculum in Mining Engineering was offered in 1880 but was dropped in 1886. A Mining Engineering degree was awarded in 1907. Degrees were first awarded in Mechanical Engineering in 1892 and Electrical Engineering in 1893. A Chemical Engineering curriculum was established in the Department of Chemistry in 1903 but the first degree was not granted until 1918. Chemical Engineering became a part of the College of Engineering in 1945. Agricultural and Industrial Engineering departments were established in 1948, with the first degrees awarded in 1950. In 1966 the currriculum in Engineering Science was begun. It was merged with the Mechanical Engineering curriculum in 1980 and the Engineering Science degree program discontinued. The Computer Science Engineering program was initiated in 1976, with a separate department formed in 1985.

A master's degree in engineering was approved in 1927, with the first degrees being awarded in 1928, and in 1959 a Doctor of Philosophy program was approved with the first degree awarded in 1963. The college of Engineering offers curricula leading to seven Bachelor of Science degrees, eleven Master of Science degrees and a Doctor of Philosophy degree. Courses offered have grown to over 400, of which 187 are graduate level.

The College has been under the leadership of the following deans: William N. Gladson 1913-1936, George P. Stocker 1936-1948, George F. Branigan 1948-1971, Loren R. Heiple 1971-1979, James E. Halligan 1979-1982, E. Walter LeFevre (Interim) 1982-1983 and Neil M. Schmitt 1983.

The Engineering Experiment Station was established by an act of the Board of Trustees of the University of Arkansas on November 6, 1920. The purpose of the station is to investigate and study engineering problems of general interest to Arkansas, and to use this research data to assist in the development of the State's natural resources and to increase the efficiency, safety and economy of Arkansas industry. The station is located at Engineering South, a 153,000 square foot facility located on 21 acres of land two miles from the campus. Research, an essential, integral part of an engineering program, is conducted at this facility.

Through the Arkansas Center for Technology Transfer the College is actively involved with the state's efforts to develop new high technology industry and assist existing industries evaluate new technologies.

The College of Engineering has some of the finest engineering education facilities in the nation. Engineering Hall served as the center of engineering activities for sixty years, until The Bell Engineering Center of Arkansas became the focal point for the University's engineering complex. It was an extraordinary complement to the rest of the College complex which includes the Mechanical Engineering Building, Engineering Experiment Station, Science Engineering Building and Engineering Hall. The Bell Engineering Center of Arkansas had its formal dedication on April 3, 1987.

U of A Graduate School

Over one hundred years ago, the University of Arkansas outlined a plan for graduate study leading to the M. A., M. S., and Ph. D. degrees. The 1886 faculty, "following the example of all first-class universities," set as minimum requirements for the master's degree a year's program of "four daily studies appointed by the faculty" and for the doctorate two years of study, a thesis, an examination, and reading knowledge of French and German.

Sixty years ago, the University Board of Trustees established a Graduate School on the Fayetteville campus at the urging of University President John Clinton Futrall. The purpose of formally organizing what had been intermitten practice for forty years was, according to Futrall, a response to a rapidly increasing demand on the part of people of the state for work leading to the degrees of master of arts and master of science. Futrall's words proved prophetic. Today, (1987) there are over two thousand graduate students enrolled on the Fayetteville campus in 71 master's and 20 doctoral programs. In addition, 540 students are enrolled in off-campus classes. Graduate programs offered at the Graduate Institute of Technology and the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (both located in Little Rock) are under the governance of the Graduate Council on the Fayetteville campus.

The history of graduate study at the University of Arkansas prior to the 1927 formation of the Graduate School is a story of desire tempered by lack of funds. The number of graduate students at the University between 1872 and 1927 was certainly not large because the University could not afford an extensive program. Priorities such as fire escapes and adequate heat had to take precedence.

Nonetheless, University faculty with degrees from prominent schools such as Cornell, Chicago, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, and Yale had understandable desires to emulate their respective alma maters by establishing graduate programs at Arkansas. Additionally, many students who lived in the Fayetteville area wanted more education than a four-year baccalaureate could offer. These students, termed "post-" or "past-graduates" were allowed to pursue special studies free of charge beginning in 1877.

Because these post-graduate students were few in number (only two candidates for graduate degrees in 1888-89, for example), individual departments handled their own regulations for graduate work. Akin to the European structure of graduate education, each area offering graduate work appointed one professor as graduate professor. In addition to this practical working model, University faculty wished to broaden the concept of graduate education beyond departmental course offerings; their efforts eventually resulted in a University-wide graduate committee which guided graduate study until the number of graduate students was large enough to warrant a different organization. In 1927, President Futrall recommended to the Board of Trustees that a separate Graduate School be formed. On May 5, 1927, the Board approved the Graduate School as the ninth division of the University of Arkansas and appointed John Clark Jordan, Professor of English, the first dean.

During his twenty-two years as Graduate Dean, Jordan saw graduate enrollment increase from 12 in the first official "class" (1928) to 491 and the number of graduate degrees awarded annually increase to 121. As he guided the School through a depression and major world war, Jordan found lack of funds, staff, and courses to be his constant challenge. In 1937, therefore, he urged President Futrall to establish graduate assistantships at the University to help address these problems. Jordan repeated this request in every annual report for ten years; his persistence was rewarded in 1948 when the Board of Trustees approved the use of graduate assistants on the Fayetteville campus, thus helping to pave the way for doctoral studies to be established two years later.

In 1949, Virgil Adkisson, Professor and Chairman of Mathematics, succeeded Jordan as Graduate Dean. It was during his twenty-year tenure that twenty-three of the twenty-seven doctoral programs were begun. This broadening of graduate studies had the strong support of University President Lewis Webster Jones, who told Adkisson that it was time for the University to "come of age".

After careful study and discussion, the University chose "basic studies" as the philosophical thrust for its doctoral programs and in 1950 began Ph. D. programs in chemistry, history, English, philosophy, and economics; a doctoral program in education; and a Ph. D. in biochemistry at the Medical Sciences campus in Little Rock. Between 1951 and 1964 Ph. D. programs in pharmacology (UAMS), physiology (UAMS), animal sciences, botany, bacteriology, comparative literature, physics, psychology, zoology, business administration, engineering, agronomy, anatomy (UAMS), mathematics, microbiology (UAMS), and instrumental science (Graduate Institute of Technology, Little Rock) were added. More recently, doctoral programs in entomology and plant pathology (later replaced by plant sciences), interdisciplinary toxicology (UAMS), and food sciences have been instituted. The first doctoral degrees (one Ph. D., four Ed. D's) were awarded in January, 1953.

U of A School of Architecture

The University of Arkansas program in architecture, which was, in time, to grow into the present School of Architecture, began as two courses in architectural subjects - Elements of Architecture and Shades, Shadows and Perspective - offered in the College of Engineering in the academic year 1946-47. The instructor was John G. Williams, a native of Van Buren, who had taught architectural subjects at Arkansas Tech and at Oklahoma A&M College. During that first year, the engineering dean asked Professor Williams to develop a curriculum for a major in architectural engineering. The five-year program he developed was the basis for the degree program adopted by the university that same year.

In January 1947, Dr. Lewis Webster Jones became the President of the University of Arkansas, and one of his first acts was to plan the construction of a fine arts center for the campus. Early in this planning Dr. Jones decided to include architecture as one of the four departments to be housed in the new center. As the other three - art, music and drama - were departments in the College of Arts and Sciences architecture was moved to that college the same year. Irving Guralnik joined the department as its second full time faculty member.

The new department was first housed on the second floor of an army barracks located on what is now the plaza between Mullins Library and the Arkansas Union. Professor Guralnik left at the end of the 1948-49 academic year and was replaced by Mike Stousland. A third faculty member, Bill Curry, joined the department in the fall of 1949. Work on the development of the architectural program for the proposed Fine Arts Center had been completed and Edward Durell Stone, in association with the Fort Smith firm of Haralson and Mott, was selected as the architect. Mr. Stone was a Fayetteville native who had established a flourishing New York office with an inter-national practice. Construction on the center began in the summer of 1949. During this time Mr. Stone took an active interest in the development of the new program in architecture, often functioning as an unpaid critic. This interest persisted throughout Mr. Stone's lifetime and at his death his papers were willed to the university.

The first graduating class finished in the spring of 1950. It consisted of five graduates, two of whom - Ernest E. Jacks and E. Fay Jones - later returned to the department as faculty. Two years later the fourth faculty member, Herbert Fowler was hired. The faculty continued to grow during the late 50's and early sixties and it was during this period that many of the school's present senior faculty joined the department. These include Professors Jacks and Jones and Professor Cyrus Sutherland. It was also during this period that the school received accreditation from the National Architectural Accrediting Board.

The program grew much more rapidly than had been expected when the Fine Arts Center was constructed. The center could no longer accommodate the program and the first and second year design studios were moved off-campus to a factory building on West Avenue. Other changes also took place. In 1966 John Williams relinquished the chairmanship to Fay Jones and five new faculty joined the staff. This group included Palmer Boggs, now professor emeritus, and two other faculty that remain at Arkansas - Mort Karp, now University Professor of Architecture, and Murray Smart, Jr., now dean of the school.

In 1970 when the university's new library was complete, the architecture department moved into the old library facility, Vol Walker Hall.

In 1975, as one of the last acts of his presidency, David Mullins recommended that the architecture department be given school status. His recommendation was accepted by the Board of Trustees and Fay Jones became the school's first dean. The following year, the university approved the initiation of a new degree program in Landscape Architecture. The new B. L. A. program was created utilizing a five year curriculum model very similiar to the curriculum of the B. Arch program. It graduated its first class in 1981.

Over the years the program, now school, of architecture established a national reputation for quality. Its graduates, which now number approximately 1100, occupy positions of responsibility in firms from Boston to Los Angeles. Over eighty percent of the architects practicing in Arkansas received their educations here. It was the first undergraduate program at the university to initiate a selective admissions policy. Its faculty is widely recognized for excellence in the various disciplines included as part of its two professional programs. Its graduates have consistently scored well above the norm on national licensing examinations.

U of A School of Law

The first effort to establish a law school at the University of Arkansas was made in 1890. In March of that year the Board of Trustees created a law department on the Fayetteville campus with a faculty of four practicing Fayetteville attorneys and headed by F. M. Goar. After two years of low enrollment and irregularly held classes, the experiment was deemed a failure and abandoned. Dean Goar moved to Little Rock, reorganized an earlier study group known as the Little Rock Law Class, and was quickly invited to conduct this class as the law department of the University. The Little Rock department operated smoothly as a branch of the University until Goar's death in 1898, after which there was increasing conflict over the degree of autonomy the law department would have within the University. In 1915 the Board of Trustees gave up its efforts to control the appointments and curriculum of the recalcitrant law department and severed the Little Rock operation from the University. With full autonomy, it offered night classes as the Arkansas Law School until 1965 when, at the urging of Little Rock attorneys, the University of Arkansas Law School again took it over for a decade before turning it back to the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

The Fayetteville campus went without a law school for nine years until 1923 when University President John C. Futrall enlisted the services of Julian S. Waterman, an economics teacher completing his Juris Doctor degree at the University of Chicago, in reestablishing a law department. After thorough investigation, Waterman presented a plan for reinstituting a law school with a budget, curriculum and library sufficient to meet the standards of the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association. The University accepted Waterman's proposal, secured the required funding, and again offered law classes in the fall of 1924. President Futrall designated Waterman head of the new school and hired a young Harvard Law School graduate who later became U. S. Senator from Florida, Claude D. Pepper, as the other faculty member. By the time the first law class was graduated in 1927, the school had received accreditation from both the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association.

Two components of a quality law school, the moot court and law review, were promptly established. Professor Pepper began an elective moot court program during the law school's first year. The system, with jury trials added in 1932, eventually became a prerequisite for graduation and provided students with courtroom experience based on actual cases. Dean Waterman's efforts to establish a publication that would furnish editorial work for high ranking law students as well as serve the Arkansas bar by providing commentaries on recent legal decisions came to fruition in 1929 with the publication of the Law School Bulletin. Except for temporary suspensions during the depth of the Depression and World War II, it was issued three times a year until it was replaced by the Law Review in 1947. From its inception the Review has maintained a state focus and provided the Arkansas legal community with high-quality, scholarly articles.

Steadily increasing enrollment in the law school, while a welcome sign of success, created recurring space problems for its administrators. The school outgrew its cramped quarters in the basement of University Hall (Old Main) well before moving into the Chemistry Department's vacated brick building on the north side of campus in 1936. With the postwar enrollment boom, not only classes but the law library had overflowed into other buildings by 1950. In order to consolidate under one roof and accommodate future growth, the law school constructed a new building designed for expedient additions. Dedicated in November, 1953, as Waterman Hall, the law school building has been expanded twice, with completions in 1975 and 1986, in response to continued growth in library materials and student enrollment. In an effort to limit enrollment the law school began a reduced admissions program in 1980. Stabilizing total enrollment to approximately 400 students by 1983, the school solved its space problems and at the same time continued to attract high quality students during a period of a nationwide decline in law school enrollment.

The University of Arkansas Law School has attracted a distinguished faculty. Edward B. Meriwether, who joined the faculty in 1930, specialized in property law and helped draft the Arkansas Probate Code enacted in 1949. J. William Fulbright lectured in constitutional law and equity before going on to the University presidency in 1939 and an illustrious career as U. S. Senator and statesman soon thereafter. Robert R. Wright published two widely-used textbooks on airspace law and on land use before leaving Arkansas to become dean of the University of Oklahoma law school in 1970. The most prominent and longest-tenured faculty member has been Robert A. Leflar. Joining the faculty in 1927, he established a national reputation for scholarship with his works on conflict of laws and has faithfully served both the University and the state. In addition to serving on numerous University committees, as law school dean, and acting university president, he was largely responsible for the creation of the Arkansas General Assembly's Legislative Council in 1947, worked on the 1961 Arkansas Uniform Commercial Code, and was a delegate to two state constitutional conventions. As a tribute to his long service and achievements, the University of Arkansas in the fall of 1986 renamed the expanded law school complex, consisting of Waterman Hall, the Barrett Hamilton Law Library Mezzanine and the Robert A. and Vivian Young Law Library, the Robert A. Leflar Law Center.

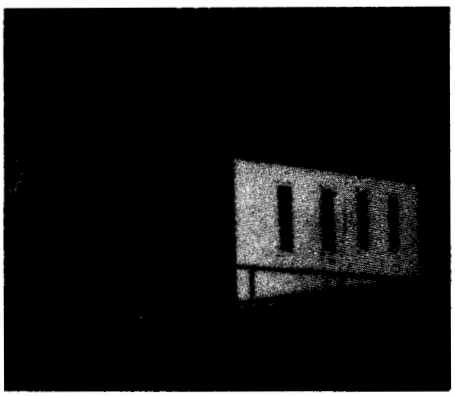
Zinnamon School



Zinnamon School building

Zinnamon School District No.88 was founded in 1883 and the first term of school was taught there in the year of 1884. They had from three to five months of school each fall until the district consolidated with West Fork School District in July, 1947. This building is still standing and in fair condition as shown by the recent snapshots. While this building was being used for school purposes, it was also used for church worship and a place for community meetings. After Zinnamon District No.88 was consolidated with the West Fork School District, the building continued to be used for church and community meetings. About two years ago, the people of the Zinnamon community built a new church which they have recently finished.

Some of the teachers who taught at Zinnamon were: Lona Strickler, Frank Thrasher, G. C. Hale, Joe Copeland, Glenn Karnes, Louella Alexander, Earl White, Gertrude Flynn, Everett Richardson, Lemuel Brunner, Jess Pritchard, Paul C. Davis, George Wright, Alice Rieff and Eva Miller.

Of the above listed teachers, the ones that I attended school to were: G. C. Hale in the first grade, Earl White in the second, Joe Copeland in the third and fourth, Lemuel Brunner in the fifth and sixth and Louella Alexander in the seventh and eighth. That concluded my formal education in the Zinnamon School.

Clubs and Organizations

Introduction

The need for fellowship with friends and acquaintances in some organized way was felt by early residents of Washington County. Such groups contributed greatly to the development and well-being of the area, and many of these continue their activities today.

Often clubs and organizations were organized to give financial and other support to schools and churches. Other groups devoted hours of time and assistance to hospitals, libraries, and museums. Special interest groups support one another through personal crises or enable fellow members to grow and learn in a friendly environment.

Whether the reason for meeting together was as simple as talking about a common interest and planning activities or as noble as raising funds for medical research, there has been an organization in Washington County to welcome its citizens to membership.

AARP Fayetteville Chapter 731

On June 11, 1970, one hundred retired persons organized Fayetteville Chapter 731 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). They elected Jerry Marshall, a retired engineer, president; and Evangeline Foldvary, secretary.

Purposes of the organization are: "to serve, not to be served", to promote dignity, independence for older persons, to enhance the quality of life for older persons, and to improve the images of aging.

The charter was presented October 1, 1971 by State Director Arthur Bouton. Speaker for the occasion was State Representative David Pryor. Prominent citizens have been elected to leadership positions through the years, for instance presidents have included: Wes Gee, Fred Hansen, Bill Gause, Faye Meade, Dr. R. K. Bent, Elizabeth Carter, Tom Lavender, Sanford Berg, Bill Dougan and Mack McLendon.

Dr. Mary Burton was chosen as spokesperson for a pilot program, Women's Initiative; a project directed toward financial education for middle-aged and older women. Arkansas is the first state to execute this emphasis toward women's preparation for financial obligations, if left with this responsibiity.

AARP members have served in numerous capacities in local, state and national legislation; in Federal Income Tax advisory work; as teachers in the "55 Alive" Mature Driving Program; in Washington County Juvenile Court; in the County Elderly Nutrition "Meals on Wheels"; as tutors in the public school system; and in hospital assistance at the Veteran's Administration Hospital and other areawide hospitals.

AAUW - Fayetteville Branch

Organized in 1922, with 15 charter members, the Fayetteville Branch of American Association of University Women now has 117 members. Meeting at first in homes and club rooms of the University of Arkansas, the Branch now holds monthly meetings at the Fayetteville Public Library. In addition, there are Cultural Interest Groups which meet in members' homes. Such groups were formed when the Branch was organized, and have always been a vital part of Branch activities.

The Branch has helped to carry out the purpose of AAUW, as given in the Mission Statement: "AAUW promotes equity for women, educational development over the life span, and positive societal change".

Branch programs have covered a variety of issues relating to the four main areas of interest: education, community, cultural interests, and international relations.

A surge of interest in world peace and foreign affairs followed World War II. Some of the later issues pertained to mental health and different phases of education such as support for the public school, educational T. V., and education of the gifted child. The Branch helped to raise school taxes, and to organize a child care center for working mothers.

A later focus was on equal opportunities for women and minorities, with women being encouraged to continue their education and to enter professional fields. Ecology, urban crisis, consumer problems, and technology became important issues.

Currently, main issues concern pay equity for women and the promotion of individual liberties.

In addition to giving local scholarships, the Branch has always participated in the Association's fellowship program. Contributing annually, particularly to funds for women students from other nations, the Branch has in recent years honored local women by giving to the AAUW Educational Foundation in units of $500.00 or more. Of the 19 members who have been so honored, 13 are past presidents of the Branch. They are Mary Joyce McGoodwin, Sylvia Swartz, Helen Graham, Frances Vaile, Doris Milton, Helen Sohl, Elsie Hassel, Ella Blackshire, Lillian Woods, Marguerite Bent, Wanda Stephens, Mary Burton, and Othelia Paul. Other honorees are Wilma Sacks, Hester Brown, Mazell Fetter, Betty Askew, Emma Rutledge, Virginia Ferguson, and Georgia Clark.

The Branch name appears on a bronze plaque at NASA headquarters in Houston, Texas, as being one of many branches which contributed to a special fellowship fund honoring the late Dr. Judith Resnik, astronaut, a recipient of a fellowship for graduate study.

Fund raising events for the fellowship program often involve community education and service.

The Branch has participated in Association, Regional, and Division meetings; also it has hosted Division meetings.

Mrs. H. G. Hotz was the first Branch president, elected biennially. The others, besides those already mentioned, are Mrs. John Buckholtz, Miss Jewel Hughes, Mrs. John Markham, Mrs. L. C. Price, Mrs. R. G. Paddock, Mrs. Roy Roberts, Mrs. Robert A. Caldwell, Mrs. Dwight Isely, Miss Beverly Stone, Miss Mary Droke, Mrs. Mary Henbest, Mrs. Harold Hantz, Mrs. Fred Voget, Mrs. R. E. Westmeter, Mrs. R. C. Wray, Mrs. Jane Bailey, and Mrs. Mary F. Gladney.

Arkansas Division Presidents from the Branch include Mrs. H. G. Hotz, Mrs. Dwight Isley, Mrs. A. W. Jamison, Mrs. L. M. McGoodwin, and Dr. Margaret Clark.

Current members who have served on Association committees are Mary Joyce McGoodwin and Mary Burton.

The Fayetteville Branch has established a tradition for which the community can be proud. The Branch looks forward to a future of continuing service to women and society.

Adopt-A-Pet, Inc.

On October 19, 1981 a group of citizens from Springdale and the outlying areas of the city met to discuss the possibility of operating an animal shelter. The organizational meeting was under the direction of Sunny Hinshaw, DVM, and legal services were donated by Jill Jacoway. On November 10, 1981, Adopt-A-Pet, Inc., officially became a corporation.

The primary aim of Adopt-A-Pet, Inc., is to alleviate the suffering of animals and to find homes for as many as possible. By providing a shelter for unwanted animals, the number of cases of homeless and abandoned animals has decreased by a good percentage. Every effort is made to find homes for animals left at the shelter.

Through an agreement with the city, Adopt-A-Pet operates in the city-owned facility formerly used as the dog pound. All animals handled by the animal control officer are housed and fed in the shelter, and at the end of the required holding time are released to Adopt-A-Pet for adoption or euthanasia. At the inception of Adopt-A-Pet the gas chamber was permanently removed from the facility, and euthanasia is by injection.

A considerable amount of floor space and cages have been added, and numerous other improvements have been made. During spring and summer months cages are constantly full. At present, the primary goal of Adopt-a-Pet is expansion of facilities. Adopt-A-Pet, Inc. is located at 203 Randall Road in Springdale.

Altrusa Club of Fayetteville

Altrusa Club, a classified service organization for executive and professional women in managerial positions, had its beginning in Fayetteville in 1939.

A group of twelve women, who had a particular interest in the Fine Arts, solicited other community leaders and organizations to help them secure a place for a permanent Community Playhouse. In 1940, the old Henderson School was acquired and refurbished.

Charter members of this club were: Sue Keller, a dance and drama teacher who became the club's first president; Roberta Fulbright, a newspaper publisher; Lessie Stringfellow Reed, a newspaper editor; Ruth Riley, the nursing director of City Hospital; Ruth Gilbert, a florist; Betty Lighton, a social worker; Mrs. Hattie B. Moore, Elizabeth Moore, Mrs. Dwight Moore, Mrs. Wythe Walker, Jewell Pond, Mable Asbury, Ethel Sure and Mable January, co-owner of a flooring company.

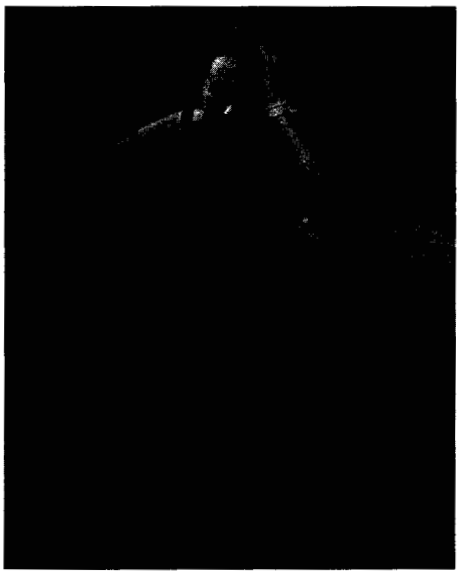
In 1948, the Altrusa Fayetteville Club of Fayetteville was chartered under international status. Four major committees are: Altrusa Information, International Relations, Vocational Services, and Community Services. These have remained the focal point for program and project development.

A major on-going project for which plans were begun in 1958, was the Fayetteville Youth Dental Program. The superintendent of schools appointed a committee which included the assistant superintendent, the school nurse, the school social worker and the school counselor, to work with an Altrusa committee to develop a way to help school children in need of immediate dental care.

These appointees worked together with Dr. Kenneth Dorland, president of the Fayetteville Dental Association, and four other dentists: Dr. E. M. Eidson, Dr. Ernest Stanberry, Dr. Jacob Agee, and Dr. Phil Deal, to launch the Youth Dental Program. Twenty-two other dentists have participated and 330 dental assistants have been trained. This program received national recognition in 1968 with the Mamie L. Bass Award it received.



Sue Keller, first president of Altrusa Club

Other service projects of the club include: the Literacy Program started by Barbara Broyles in 1960, at Fayetteville High School to help students with learning problems; and a service and leadership club, Astra, formed in 1968 for high school girls. Marian Fry, Janet Hilbold, Sarah White, Pat Bailey and Geraldine Stephens served as officers with Margaret Thurman and Pat Kelley as sponsors.

Other Altrusan service projects include: Salvation Army Medical Service Ministry, sponsorship of Girls State, Career Days at Fayetteville High School, Youth Center Girls Softball and Careprints.

Significant fund raising projects have included: a 1960 Fall Fashion Revue, with a mink stole raffle, in which over 600 participated; rummage sales, bridge-canasta parties, book reviews, sale of Christmas greenery, deluxe fruit cake and pecan sales, contract for decorating at Christmas time for the Holiday Inn and Park Inn.

In 1983, the Fayetteville Altrusans completed the formation of the Fort Smith Altrusa Club.

Meeting places over the years have changed from meeting in the homes of members. Altrusans have met at the old Washington Hotel, Aunt Jane's Tea Room, The Chicken Shack, U of A Fine Arts Dept., Arkansas Gas Reception Room, Arkansas Power and Light, Farmer's Daughter, Mountain Inn Hotel Flame Room, Downtown Motor Lodge, Holiday Inn and Park Inn.

In July of 1987, the delegates pictured with this story, went to International Altrusa Convention held at the Desert Springs Resort and Spa in California to receive the prestigious OMNI Award presented. This award was won by our group, in competition with 560 Altrusa Clubs both national and international (17 countries participated in the competition).

The award was given for four areas of service: Organization, membership growth, net gain of members and involvement in community service.

Our Fayetteville organization has grown from 12 in 1939 to a membership of 114, representing 52 major classifications, by 1988.

Past presidents having served Altrusa are: Sue Keller,1939-1940, 1944-1945; Elizabeth Moore,1940-1941; Lessie Reed, 1941-1942; Marian Wilkerson, 1942-1943; Hattie Moore, 1943-1944; Mrs. Dwight Moore,1945-1946; Mable January,1946, 1947, 1953, 1955, 1961; 1962; Ruth Gilbert,1947-1948; Mary Parker, 1948-1949; Mrs. Paul Barrett, 1949, 1951, 1956, 1957; Margaret Brownfield, 1951-1953; Hazel Deal, 1955-1956; Ethel Sure,1957-1958; Mattie Maxted, 1958-1959; Ruby Appell,

Marguerite Cowan and Rita Glover are keeping an ongoing history of the Altrusa Club of Fayetteville.

Apple Blossom Club

The Apple Blossom Club was organized in November, 1923. It was one of the first members of the Washington County Federation of Rural Women's Clubs. Mrs. Webster was its first president. The club met at the home of Sadie Croft for its first demonstration. There were nine charter members: Sadie Croft, Mrs. Ernest King, Mary Cooper, Hazel Rundquist, Mrs. E. A. Early, Ethel Wallis, Annie Ensminger, Mrs. Webster and Mrs. Koscheski.

Demonstrations of the best methods of canning, preserving, sewing and gardening were a feature of the club meetings which were held in the homes of various members. In 1937 the membership was 45.

In 1936, one of the features of the club was a Tour of Homes conducted during Better Homes Week to celebrate the Arkansas Centennial. The club assembled at the home of Mrs. Clinkscales where they were shown a complete suite of furniture built by Mrs. Clinkscales' father. They later inspected a modern brooder house on the Clinkscales' farm.

The next step was at the home of Mrs. Effie Goree where an old spinning wheel was a featured attraction. Mrs. Mattie Murphy demonstrated methods of carding and spinning for the benefit of the club members. A china and glass exhibit and homespun coverlets were also displayed. A visit was made to the O'Guinn home and the Lee Minor home where refreshments at the Minor home closed the afternoon entertainment.

The Apple Blossom Club contributed much to the community. The bridal and baby showers were many. Canned fruits and vegetables were sent to the Arkansas Children's home, and many won prizes on their booths at the county fair. Individual members as well as the club, itself, exhibited.

The club's motto was, "Better homes; Better citizens; Better State and Better Nation", and the club lived up to its motto.

Over the years around a hundred ladies have belonged to the club. Times change and the ladies grew older. After over 50 years of service to the community, the Apple Blossom Club faded away.

Arkansas D Chapter of T. T. T. Society

The National T. T. T. Society was founded by six women in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, on June 30, 1911. The Society is a non-profit philantropic organization of women who, through unified effort, endeavor to enrich the lives of others. The Society's national project is to provide a camping experience for deserving ten and eleven year old girls.

Arkansas D Chapter of National T. T. T. Society was organized on February 27, 1970. National Organizer, Camille Eggleston, installed the new chapter in ceremonies at the Springdale Public Library. The iniatory ritual for new members was conducted by members of Arkansas A from Ozark. The first president was Nan McLaughlin. Nan and Carol McCain were former members of Ozark A Chapter and helped to organize the new Arkansas D Chapter.

Arkansas D's charitable projects have included working with Mrs. Duane Cline's handicapped children class at Jones School, performing vision testing at Springdale kindergartens and preschools, assisting in Mrs. Jaynelle Holmesley's special education class at Lee School, and donating time and money to many other individuals and charitable organizations.

Arkansas D participated in the National Society's camping project through cash donations until 1985. In that year, Arkansas D began direct involvement in camping. Deserving girls were chosen from the fourth grade at T. G. Smith Elementary School by the T. G. Smith staff. Arkansas D provided clothing, physicals, and transportation for the campers. National T. T. T. Society paid camp fees. The Campers attended Camp Waluhili in Oklahoma. Through 1987, Arkansas D has sent six girls to camp. They were Roxanne Corbin, Nicole Gonzales, Tammy Sue Beck, Crystal Sulffridge, Misty Ames, and Leshea Selby.

As of October 1,1987, Arkansas D has twenty-nine members. Our president is Mary Lee Hill. Members on the current roll who have been active for the longest period include Ruth Haley, Ruth Pellham, and Kay Wiggins, all of whom were initated in 1971.

Arts Center of the Ozarks

Everyone has an artistic side, whether it's drawing, singing, acting or simply appreciating and enjoying someone else's talents.

The Arts Center of the Ozarks is dedicated to that part of each northwest Arkansan. It's a non-profit organization that provides an outlet for artists, actors, and musicians to display their talents, which in turn provides entertainment for others to enjoy.

The inspiration for the development of the Arts Center came from the success of the Festival of the Arts, held in 1965 and 1966 by the Springdale Music Club. An organization known as the Springdale Fine Arts Center was formed to further promote the arts in the northwest Arkansas area.

The Springdale Fine Arts Center expanded it's horizons in 1973 by merging with the Council of Ozark Artists and Craftsmen. It's new name - The Arts Center of the Ozarks - reflected the organization's growth and diversification into new areas of the arts.

Since that time the Arts Center of the Ozarks has been dedicated to excellence. As northwest Arkansas' oldest Arts institution, it's reputation has grown statewide. Year-round programming in theatre, visual arts, music and dance brings wonderful opportunities for northwest Arkansans of all ages.

The theatre division produces a seven-play season which includes 2 dinner theatres, a summer Broadway musical, comedies, dramas and mysteries, and experimental studio productions, plus 3 children's workshops which produce plays. Classes for adults and children are also offered. The actors and crews for all productions are volunteers under professional direction and they work to produce top quality entertainment.

The visual arts programming keeps the ACO Gallery busy all 12 months with exhibitions of area, state, and national artists and various competitions including the Northwest Arkansas Student Art Competition for high school art students. The visual arts division sponsors the Prairie Grove Clothesline Fair, which attracts 50,000 visitors annually, and the ACO Quilt Fair. Classes are offered in many mediums for both children and adults.

The music division sponsors concerts and recitals by area, state and national musicians both instrumental and vocal. The ACO assists the Springdale Music Club with the Annual Piano Ensemble Concert, musicals and clinics throughout the year.

The dance division of the ACO began in 1986. Classes are offered through the Marti Taldo Dance Studio, on a yearly basis in jazz, tap, and ballet. Clogging is also offered regularly. Concerts and recitals are also scheduled.

The Arts Center consists of a theatre, an outdoor stage, a recital hall, an art exhibition gallery and several offices and classrooms. These facilities are used year round for theatrical productions, concerts, recitals and art classes. Many community art organizations use our facilities free of charge, for their meetings.

Since it's beginning in 1967, the Arts Center of the Ozarks has operated as a non-profit corporation with a board of directors and general manager. Duane Cline was first to serve from 1967 to 1973. Geneva Powers served from 1973 to 1977. Since 1974, Harry and Kathi Blundell have been with the ACO, taking over the directorship in 1977. The ACO had grown under their leadership to excellence in arts, entertainment and education.

Current staffing in 1988, includes: Kathi Blundell, Administrative Director; Harry Blundell, Director of Theatre; Goldie Banks, Visual Arts Director; Susie Durham, Office Manager; Kay Berry, Assistant Office Manager; Tim Hollis, Technical Director. Hundreds of northwest Arkansans volunteer their time and efforts on the ACO's behalf, assisting with all divisions and the general running and upkeep of the program and facility. "Friends of the ACO", a support organization coordinates volunteer activities.

Baldwin K. T.

In April, 1871, a petition was sent to the most Eminent Grand Master, Sir William S. Gardner, asking for dispensation to establish a Commandery at Fayetteville, Arkansas. The nine Sir Knights signing the petition were: Sirs Henry Simpson, James H. VanHoose, John F. Wheeler, A. B. Thibant, Henry G. Smith, A. J. Dililand, Abe Allen, W. O. Lattimore, and Jas H. Hamilton. The petition received the recommendation of Hugh De Payens Commandery No. 1 and Jacques De Molay Commandery No. 3. The dispensation was issued April 28, 1871 to Baldwin Commandery and designated Sir Walter O. Lattimore as Eminent Commander, Sir James H. VanHoose as Generalissimo, and Sir Abe Allen as Captain General. At the triennial meeting of the grand encampment on September 22, 1871, Baldwin Commandery No.4 received its charter.

While Baldwin Commandery No. 4 was included in those petitioning the grand encampment for authority to organize the grand commandery of Arkansas, it was not represented at the convention in 1872, nor at the regular conclave in the fall of 1872, since the grand commandery did not meet in 1873 and 1874, probably due to the yellow fever epidemic and the depressed financial condition of the state. In 1875 Baldwin Commandery No. 4 was represented by Sir Knight James H. VanHoose who attended the conclave as proxy for the Eminent Commander. He was active at the meeting and was elected to the office of Grand Generalissimo of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Arkansas.

Baldwin Commandery No. 4 has had periods of difficulty, but has managed to carry on and is still one of the good commanderies in the state. The membership in 1872 was twenty four and in 1946 was one hundred and sixty.

Commandery members elected right Eminent Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of Arkansas and the years in which they served: Sir Knight James H. VanHoose (1878), Frank Hill (1902), Charles E. Pierce (1939) and Charles H. Cross (1954).

Butterfield Extension Homemakers Club

In May 1962, eleven ladies met at the home of Bertha Hutchison for the purpose of organizing a new Home Demonstration Club. Margaret Brownfield, Home Demonstration Agent of Washington County directed the meeting.

The eleven who became members were: Sue Bender, B. Graue, Floy Gulley, Genevieve Dennett, Betty Harris, Bertha Hutchison, Hattie Ivey, Yvonne Hutchison, Martha Reif, Ruth Mahan, and Garnett Seizert.

Officers elected were: President-Bertha Hutchison, Vice President- Genevieve Dennett, Secretary-Treasurer-Betty Harris. New members that year were Joyce Bickford, Miriam Hopp, Lucy Hugon, and Janet Leroy.

The name chosen for the club was Butterfield Extension Homemakers Club because most of the ladies lived along the Old Butterfield Stagecoach Line; now known Old Wire Road North. The first Monday night of each month was chosen as the meeting date.

Helping others and providing continuous improvement in all levels of living is one of the many goals of the club. Through the years the club members have helped the following, Boysland, V. A. Hospital, City Hospital Geriatric wing, Arkansas Children's Hospital, Children's house, 4-H Clubs of Washington County, prepared food baskets for the needy, battered Women's Shelter and many others.

In the early seventies the name was changed to Extension Homemakers Club. Butterfield EHC has continued to grow and at present has 21 active members, which include three of the charter members. The present officers are: President-Alice Talbert, Vice President-Dolores Cook, Secretary-Treasurer-Lenis Ledbetter, Reporter-Mildred Malone.

The members "believe that through working together in a group, we can enlarge the opportunities, enrich the lives of our people, and create a more contented family and community life."

Chaplain Service of the VA Medical Center

While the VA Medical Center was begun in Fayetteville in 1932, it was not until March 13, 1946, that a fulltime Protestant Chaplain, Gilbert F. Hyde, was appointed. Chaplain Hyde, a former Army Chaplain, came to Fayetteville from Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, where he had served as post Chaplain for 42 months. Also in 1946, Father Francis J. McKee was appointed as the first part-time Catholic Chaplain.

Prior to the coming of Chaplain Hyde, area pastors had served as chaplains to the patients on a voluntary basis. Dr. James W. Butler, Jr., of the First Presbyterian Church and Reverend Father Charles A. McCauley, of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, served the patients for a number of years before Chaplain Service was established for the Veterans Administration.

Chaplains that have served at the Medical Center are: Gilbert Hyde (1946-1950); James A. Burris(1950-1953); Benjamin D. Willets, T. D. Whitehorn, and Terrell Gordon (1976-1984). Maurice E. Roberts is currently the Chief, Chaplain Service. He is assisted by local clergy persons: Father Rudolph Maus(Roman Catholic); Travis Fullwood (Southern Baptist); Lee Cate(Methodist); Paul Westburg(Presbyterian); Larry Heimsoth (Lutheran); and Gordon Hatcher(Southern Baptist).

A recently refurbished Ecumenical Prayer Chapel provides a place of spiritual renewal for patients and families. Religious services are held in the Medical Center Auditorium and the possibility of establishing a permanent chapel is being studied. Through the years, gifts have been received as memorials for use in the Center's religious program. They include memorial hymn boards which were given by the late Senator John L. McClellan in memory of his son, John L. McClellan, Jr., who died in the Medical Center following an automobile accident.

A Religion and Health Conference is sponsored by the Medical Center every year. Clergy and health care professionals from the four state area of Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Kansas attend the one day event which features prominent national speakers who have expertise in medical ethics, religion and pastoral counseling.

Chapter G, P. E. O. Sisterhood

The P. E. O. Sisterhood was organized by seven girls in Iowa Wesleyan College at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, January 21, 1869, only 28 years after the first college degree had been awarded to a woman. Headquarters for the Sisterhood, which now has 236,000 members in 5,415 chapters over the 50 states and six Provinces in Canada, are in Des Moines, Iowa.

Educational and philanthropic projects are the purpose of the Sisterhood. Cottey Junior College at Nevada, Missouri, the International Peace Scholarship, the Educational Fund and Continuing Educational Fund are sponsored by the Sisterhood.

Chapter G was organized March 21, 1929 in Springdale by Mrs. Hallie Newell of St. Louis, Missouri, organizer of Supreme Chapter. Mrs. Bertha L. Sanders was elected first president of the new chapter which was the seventh chapter formed in Arkansas. Charter members were: Bertha L. Sanders, Vera Cummings, Caroline Clark, Mildred Sims Moore, Eunice Lovell, Josephine Braun, Leda Graves Polk, Glaphyra Stafford, Maggie Applegate, and Emily Morrow. Helen Macnab was the first initiate of the Chapter.

The Springdale Library was their first project. They established the first "Memorial Shelf." Chapter G sponsored the first chapter in Rogers, Chapter U, and sister Chapter BI in Springdale. They have sponsored seven Educational Loan Fund women and helped one woman continue her education through the Continuing Education Program.

The vivacious young Chapter G was responsible for the Arkansas State Chapter, which was organized February 17, 1933 at Fort Smith, the 27th State Chapter to be organized. Mrs. Bertha Sanders of Chapter G was the first state president, and Glaphyra Stafford served as state president in 1951-1952. There were 11 chapters when the State Chapter was organized, and in March 1988 there were 90 chapters.

Chapter G presently has four active fifty-year members including Glaphyra Stafford, Marie Crouch, Mary Irene Lichlyter, and Dorothy McNally. Chapter presidents have included Bertha Sanders, Emily Morrow, Caroline Clark, Glaphyra Stafford, Helen Macnab, Maggie Applegate, Dorothy McNally, Bertha Fraser, Mary Irene Lichlyter, Josephine Braun, Vera Cummings, Florine Smith, Lela Brogdon, Maye Hawk, Annabel Searcy, Annabel Applegate, Margaret Jean Danforth, Gertrude Kelly, Nancy Henry, Marie Crouch, Doris Ivey, Jean Gardner, Alice West, Lillian Moore, Lena Norwood, Dorothy Lautzenheiser, Mary Sellers, Pat Reed, Betty Watson, Mary Braun, Joyce Pruett, Marjorie Tweedy, Gaye Cypert, Bonnie Fay Neff, Charlotte Steele, Kirsten Calhoun, Bette Williams, Faye Crowell, Jackie Holiman and Helen Heathman.

Cincinnati Extension Homemakers Club

Cincinnati Home Demonstration Club was organized in the early 1930s. In the beginning the club was held in different individuals homes. The club had 47 members in 1936. Mrs. Bond, Mrs. Tom Biby, Ruth Barnes, Dean Cantrell, Mrs. Robert Curtis, Mrs. Homer Dodson, Mrs. Clyde Dyer, Mrs. Ernest Frazier, Mrs. H. T. Grimsley, Mrs. Clyde Johnson, Mrs. Everette May, Mrs. Tom May, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Edna Murrie, Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. Tom Smith, Mrs. Pearl Smith, Ellen Smith, Mrs. Kate Smith, Mrs. Ralph Smith, Mrs. Melvin Smith, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. Roy Spears, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. J. W. Thurman, Mrs. J. S. Tunnell, Dean Tunnell, Mrs. J. E. Tunnell, Mrs. T. H. Thomason, Eula Thomason, Marie Thomason, Mrs. Reed Thomason, Mrs. Ola Wortham, Mrs. E. F. Wilson, Louise Pool, Mrs. Hayden Dees, Nellie Smith, Phyllis Curtis, Mrs. Ruth Dees, Mrs. Weeks, Mrs. Paul Russell, Mrs. Joe Lamons, Fannie Hill, Mrs. Clifford Jones, Mrs. Russell Smith, Mrs. Joe Langley, and Mrs. O. B. Holligan.

Many unique methods were used to earn money for the club. We often served meals for political meetings, charging a fee for each plate served. We served food at public sales and the women brought food from home and gave of their time to serve it. Many quilts were quilted for a fee of 1/2 cent per yard of quilting thread used. Sometimes a quilt was quilted for about $3.00. Today one is lucky to get one quilted for $35.00. In 1946 some changes occurred. In April of that year the women voted to rent the downstairs of the Masonic Lodge; rent to be paid until the lodge was paid for, then we were to share the upkeep of the building. It was June 12, 1947, before we had our first meeting in the club room. We had worked at various money making projects to furnish the room. We bought our piano in November 1947 for $15.00. In this year our name changed to Extension Homemakers Club.

In 1946 members were: Nell Baer, Bonnie Brown, Winnie Brown, Evelyn Baker, Dean Biby, Mae Cluck, Lillie Dodson, Clarice Fusselman, Vilene Gilbreath, Roberta Gilbreath, Della Grimsley, Dorothy Glenn, Rhoda Jackson, Edna Jackson, Louise May, Sylvia May, Helen May, Dolo Mat, Doris McConnell, Elva McConnell, Laura Marquess, Lucille Pearson, Juanita Randolph, Susie Robinson, Auda Parks, Faye Riley, Mabel Smith, Ellen Smith, Ruth Spears, Edna Spears, Elizabeth Thurman, Irene Thomason, Grace Thomason, Marie Thomason, Dean Tunnell, Lucille Tunnell, Ola Wortham, Pearl Smith, Joy Davis, Fannie Stewart, Lottie Buckley, Cleo Burrough, Beulah Feurer, Bertha Randolph, Mary Clark, and Lydia Johnson. Membership in our club has declined, until today we have 20 members. Past presidents of our club were: beginning 1930, Irene Thomason Elsie McCormick, Stella Curtis, Nannie Biby, Dorothy Glenn, Elva McConnell Mae Cluck, Cleo Burrough, Irene Thomason, Grace Thomason, Joye Davis, Mrs. Cotton, Fate Riley, Lucille Pearson, Mary Clark, Amanda Shoulders, Lola Talla, Irene Thomason, Edna Spears, Dean Biby, Martha Shewmaker, Clara Hoover, Laverna Lee, Mae Cluck, Irene Thomason. Then we started two year terms in 1965; Mamie Stevenson, Martha Shewmaker, Alice

Van Gilier, Faye Ham, Mary Parris, Juanita Wilson, Ruth Davis (served four years), Jo Gilbreath (served six years) and Omah Spangler is our present president.

We have participated in the Washington County Fair down through the years. We have many members that won ribbons. Our club booth has won many ribbons. For many years we have sent gifts and money to the Arkansas Childrens Hospital. In our own community we are alert to the need there, having a pie supper for those in need. We have sponsored a 4-H Club in our community. We had a booth at the Lincoln Apple Festival for 8 years, earning money for our club. We sold quilts that we had made. We had a sesquicentennial celebration June 15, 1986. We made a quilt and gave to the state of Arkansas. It is in the archives at the Shiloh Museum, Springdale, Arkansas. We published a book, History of Cincinnati Arkansas, compiled by Juanita Wilson, a member of our club.

We are proud of our community and our state. We do our best to help them.

DAR, Marion Chapter, 1910-1987

Marion Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was organized on December 9, 1910, by the following Charter members: Mrs. Mary Jasper Willis, Mrs. Fannie Watson Woody, Mrs. Edith Black Phillips, Mrs. Elizabeth Martha Ware Williams, Mrs. Jennie Chandler Parsons, Mrs. Mary Stone Albright, Mrs. Jean Tappan de Roulhac, Miss Georgia Norman, Miss Olivia Norman, Miss Rowena McCord Gallaway, and Miss Amanda Stone. The first list of required twelve petitioners having been lost, it is considered possible that Mrs. Adele Stearns Cole, whose national number closely approximates that of other Charter members, was the necessary twelfth member.

Marion Chapter had the usual difficulties of all growing groups. The earliest records were lost; however, continuous records exist from September 25, 1915. One of the activities of the early group was the giving of historical programs such as "Reminiscences of Early Fayetteville" given in 1915 by Mrs. Clementine Watson Boles, a relative of two of our present day members, Mrs. Grace Watson Keith and Mrs. Joethel Bryan Hucke. Another activity was the locating and marking of graves of Revolutionary patriot. Although the grave of James Leeper, early settler of this area, was found in 1923, it was not marked until 1927. The grave is now encompassed by Fayetteville's Industrial Park. The last grave marked by Marion Chapter to this date, 1987, was on May 8, 1980, and was located in the Old Vineyard Cemetery; it was that of Micajah Reeder of Virginia, the great-great grandfather of Mrs. Christine Chandler Gamble of Marion Chapter. Since 1903 education has been an objective of the National Society and, therefore, of the local chapter. In 1915 Marion Chapter became actively interested in supporting the so-called "mountain schools" of this area such as the Helen Dunlap Memorial School in Winslow and the Mountain Crest School near Combs.

The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution and all the chapters have supported Tamassee, a school for mountain students, located at Tamassee, South Carolina, and founded by South Carolina Daughters, and Kate Duncan Smith, a D. A. R. school at Grant, Alabama, which was established in 1924 by Alabama Daughters.

Perhaps the most important achievement of the early chapter was the organization and support in 1916 of a City Library under the auspices of Miss Julia Vaulx during her term as Regent. It was developed from a tiny corner in the Mayor's office in the basement of the courthouse to the present day City Library on East Dickson Street. Marion continues annually to support the library and many of its members are volunteers there.

World War I was the patriotic cause for many activities for the chapter-from rolling bandages to sending a barrel of canned fruit and jelly to Camp Pike for convalescing soldiers. When the war ended the Daughters set about erecting a suitable memorial for 53 Washington County men who had given their "last full measure of devotion" to their country. With Miss Georgia Norman chairman of this project, money was raised and a young New York artist, William Steen, was commissioned to paint a 36-foot by 8-foot mural which was unveiled on June 5, 1920, and which still hangs in the hall of the Washington County Courthouse. After World War II and after 56 years of gathering dust and public inspection, the mural once again became the concern of Marion Chapter. A local artist, Miss Gertrude Gump, who as a student in Missouri had once received a scholarship from D. A. R. was commissioned to restore our once proud mural. This was beautifully completed in 1976.

Today, 1987, Marion Chapter, with 99 members, continues to "promote enlightened public opinion and to foster true patriotism and love of country" by observing Memorial Day at the National Cemetery, Fayetteville, by supporting activities at the Veterans' Hospital, by awarding recognition to the outstanding R. O. T. C. cadet at the U. of A., by giving Good Citizenship awards to the outstanding high school students in Fayetteville and surrounding towns, and history awards to the grade school students, and not forgetting to support the City Library, the mountain schools, and the American Indians.

Devil's Den C. C. C. Camp

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an effort to provide jobs for unemployed young men, sent a plan to Congress for a Civilian Conservation Corp. The measure passed and many who took part remember the place, time and opportunity they were given amid the worst depression this nation has ever endured. Nearly three-million men took part nationwide in the C. C. C. during its 9-year-life. Signing up for six-month intervals, enrollees were usually men whose families were in need of financial help.

This picture was made at the 50th reunion of the opening of the CCC camp at Devil's Den in 1933. The picture was made in June of 1983. Left to right: Col. Victor V. Callan, Bennie Ross (rank unknown), Col. Collins R. Perry, Col. J. F. Daugherty. All of these men are former commanding officers of Devil's Den.

Before the C. C. C., Arkansas had no state forests, Forestry Department, or State Parks. The men in Company 3795 at Devils

Den developed 2,000 acres of rough mountain land into bridal and foot trails, roads, a dam, cabins, picnic areas and other facilities which are still in use today. Under the command of Collins R. Perry, now of Springdale, Company 3795 was subject to the rigors of military discipline, including roll call and revelle. Early each morning, company enrollees would be turned over to the forest supervisors to work. At night, they returned to their barracks.

The Army fed, housed, trained, clothed, attended to medical needs, and in some instances educated the camp members. The young men between the ages of 18 and 25 were paid $30.00 per month for labor, but they were required to send $25.00 home for support of their families. Five dollars was kept by the young men for their personal needs during the month.

The original camp barracks were built by a company from South Dakota. They lived in tents on the hill just above where the camp was being built. The young men could not have automobiles, motorcycles, or bicycles. On the weekend, the camp truck would take some of the young men to play ball in the nearby towns of West Fork and Winslow. Some of the young men pooled their money and bought cars, which they drove off the road above the camp sight and hid them in the underbrush. I'm sure that the Commander was aware of this, but as long as we caused no problems, our cars were never impounded. Most young men walked four or five miles to school and church functions. These young men were nick-named "ridge runners" by their buddies. Many of the men married girls from the area, raised their families and come to the reunions.

In 1983, a 50-year reunion was held at the regular reunion meeting. It was attended by many former members and camp officers. Collins R. Perry was honored along with other officers and dignitaries. Reunions are held on odd years, the weekend preceding the 4th of July. The meetings are well attended. On Saturday night, a dinner is served at the rock pavillion which was built by the men of Company 3795. On Sunday, a pot-luck dinner is held at the park shelter followed by a business meeting and visiting. The rock work along the roads and the dam was done by hand by the young men. Especially noticeable are the sharp switch backs along the two highways leading into the park.

Lonnie Center, a former member of Company 3795, remembers: "You didn't goof off on the job. Nobody was driving you. It was a tremendous opportunity to have a job at that time."

Addie Lee Lister, wife of Roy Lister, a former member of Company 3795 writes a monthly new letter for the Washington County Observer. All news sent in is included and enjoyed by all.

Presently, there is a Devil's Den Reunion Association, which was organized in 1961. It meets every other year, in odd numbered years the Sunday before the 4th of July. There are 160 names on our roll book.

Durham Community Center

The land for the Durham Community Center was obtained on September 16, 1885. The deed in the Washington County Court House reads: William A. McKinzie in consideration of the sum of $50.00 does hereby grant, bargain and sell unto J. K. Pool, A. J. Ballard and W. A. Foster as trustees and to their successors in office for church and school purposes the following described land. . . A building was built and school was moved from the P. B. White barn to the new building. John H. Robertson organized a Christian church in 1888. The church was re-organized April 11, 1927 by Reverend Isenhower, Christian Evangelist. Elders were Bros. Will Clark, Mart Collins and Andy Ritter. Deacons were John Clark, Paul Watts, Arthur Ritter and clerk, Maud Hanna.

Public school in Durham, November 18, 1898.

In 1939 and 1940, the old building was torn down and a new building was built by the people of the community with lumber from the old building and new lumber which was purchased from the Durham sawmill. After a number of years, the building began to show signs of age. The roof leaked and the northwest corner of the floor had fallen through. Window panes were broken and the door needed repairs. In 1976, the White River 4-H Club decided to take the building as their community project and started the repairs. They held dinners, served lunch at farm sales and cattle auctions to raise the money.

The citizens of the community organized and elected a board consisting of: Dodge Brink, Barbara Gabbard and L. J. "Buster" Stewart. A tin roof was added and the 4-H Club bought storm windows and under the direction of 4-H leaders, Barbara and Norman Gabbard, they were installed. A community Grant was applied for and Washington County and the State of Arkansas matched 4-H Club money to total 1200.00 for repairs. Lumber was bought for reinforcing the floor and a new plywood floor was put down. With money raised by the community and the 4-H club, a second grant was obtained. Two restrooms and a kitchen were built. The tin roof was removed and new shingles were put in place. Later, the outside was covered with vinyl siding. The Navy SeaBees Reserve Unit spent two days helping with the repairs. A monthly rummage sale was held to help. Water service was added and a new electrical wiring service installed.

The building is used as a voting precinct and for fund-raising dinners and musicals for those in need. The third Saturday night of each month, the people hold a community dinner. Things of interest and concern are discussed. An election is held each March to elect board members. Each Tuesday night is reserved for adult card games and recreation.

In September 1985, the 100th Anniversary of our Community Center, a day-long celebration was held by the citizens of the community. Dinner was served to all who attended at 1885 prices of twenty-five cents per plate. Brown beans, cornbread, lemonade, apple pie and home-made ice cream were served. Quilting, spinning and other old crafts were demonstrated. Horse-shoe pitching and wagon rides were enjoyed as were log sawing and country music. Much history and many pictures were brought and enjoyed by all. Old time costumes were worn.

In 1983, the directors of the Community Building decided to incorporate and elect a board of five persons. The new directors of the association are: Edward Brooks, Susan Murray, Sandra McCoy, Allen Shumate and Mike Stewart. Mary Ellen Stewart was appointed secretary.

Exchange Club of Fayetteville

Exchange Club of Fayetteville was chartered December 13, 1947 at the Uark Bowl. Officers were Alvis Smith-President; Cy Carney, Jr.-Vice President; James E. McDonald-Secretary; Ross Ames-Treasurer; and Reverend Marcus Lang-Minister of the Lutheran Church, Chaplain. There were 43 charter members and meetings were held at night at the Blue Moon Cafeteria on Center Street, which later changed hands and became Fergusons Cafeteria. Other meetings have been held at Central Presbyterian Church (corner Dickson and St. Charles), Christian Church, Chicken Shack (north 71 Highway), Holiday Inn, Coys Place and Ramada Inn.

Membership is an honor and a privilege of business and professional men who help promote programs of education for the community such as: agriculture, American Citizenship, Aviation, Book of Golden Deeds, youth achievement, crime prevention, fire prevention, Freedom Shrine, exchangette clubs, model aviation, one Nation under God, national defense, sunshine special and traffic safety.

Freedom Shrines have been installed in several public schools, Fayetteville airport, U. S. Veterans Hospital and Washington County Court House. Our shoe program for public school children, which is supervised by school nurse, teacher and principal, is financed by Exchange Club.

The Exchange Club has honored the following citizens with the book of Golden Deeds Award who have made contributions to the life of the community through their leadership and interest in the community: Virgil T. Blossom, Frank B. Lewis, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Moore, W. J. Lemke, Miss Dora Dean, Miss Ruth Riley, Dr. P. L. Hathcock, Louise and Bunn Bell, Mrs. G. C. Ellis, Charles C. Baum, Mrs. Grover Couch, Mrs. Fount Richardson, Ray Adams, Edward B. Meriwether, Clark McClinton, Frank Brown, Doyle E. Morrison, Dr. Coy Kaylor, Curtis Shipley, Paul D. Lewis, Carmen Lierly, George Tharel, Mrs. Sylvia Swartz, Harry Vandergriff, Jack Burge, Dr. William Fink, Mrs. Lillian Woods, and Benny Winborn.

The Exchange Club covenant of service is: Accepting the devine privilege of single and collective responsibility as life's noblest gift, I covenant with my fellow Exchangites:

To consecrate my best energies to the uplifting of social, religious, political and business ideals;

To discharge the debt I owe to those of high and low estate who have served and sacrificed that the heritage of American Citizenship might be mine;

To honor and respect law, to serve my fellowmen, and to uphold the ideals and institutions of my country;

To implant the life-giving, society-building spirit of service and comradeship in my social and business relationships;

To serve in unity with those seeking better conditions, better understandings, and greater opportunities for all.

Club members as of November 1986 were Hubert Agee, Jerry Allred, Howard Bass, Dr. Robert W. Bell, Hiram Brooks, Glyndon Bunton, Jack Burge, Floyd Carl, Buster Carson, Charles Clinehens, Jr., Sidney Cox, Berry Fink, Dr. William Fink, Leon Fowler, Gene R. Farmington Extension Homemakers Club

We do not have a record of the original date of the organization of the Farmington Extension Homemakers Club, but we do believe it to be sometime before 1926. The Washington County Council was organized on December 4, 1926 and the first vice-president was Mrs. C. L. Richie of the Farmington Club.

We have a copy of a year book used by the club in 1932. The following is a list of the officers and members: President-Mrs. Clint Jones, vice-president-Mrs. Al (Winnie) Bentley, secretary-Mrs. Troy (Myrtle) Toney, reporter-Mrs. Julia Reed, Mrs. D. H. (Mabel) Beaver, Mrs. V. S. (Nell) Brooks, Mrs. Hunter (Bonnie) Broyles, Mrs. W. R. (Ben) Carlisle, Mrs. E. J. (Edith) Dill, Mrs. G. K. (Artie) Engels, Mrs. W. E. (Ola) Gulliams, Mrs. Garrott, Mrs. Robert (Minnie) Gaskill, Mrs. J. H. (Minnie) Gore, Mrs. Wiley (Lucy) Hembree, Mrs. W. M. (Bess) Kritz, Mrs. W. B. (Mabel) King, Mrs. Nolia Lowman, Mrs. M. G. (Ora Belle) Lewis, Mrs. C. B. (Sue) McNeal, Mrs. Claude (Ethel) Mitchell, Mrs. James (Lucy) Phillips, Mrs. Garland (Julia) Reed, Mrs. Ralph (Janette) Shreve, Mrs. Frank Shreve, Lucy Allen, Jane Buchanan, Hattie Thompson, and Dolly Rouse.

In those days each club prepared their own yearbooks, planning their program and activities for the year. Some of the programs were given by the first County Home Demonstration agent, Miss Harriett B. King, serving from 1916 to 1946.

There were a few years that the club did not meet during World War II, but reorganized in April 1947. Mrs. Margaret Brownfield, Extension Agent who served from 1946 to 1972, led the reorganization meeting. Of the 22 members only two were of the 1932 membership.

For many years the club kept a branch of the Washington County Library and were active in other community services, such as serving at the veterans' hospital.

The club has been encouraged through the years to take an active part in the county fair and 4-H work through our extension agents, Mrs. Mary Gilbert, who served from 1972 to 1985 and Mrs. Romona Gordon, our present agent.

For some years our club consisted mainly of older ladies, but in the last year we have had several younger women join our group. Our 1987 membership of 20 consisted of Mrs. Wanda Curtis, Pearl Freeman, Izetta Gibson, Myrtle Harper, Martha Lundquist, Martha Massie, Jo McChristian, Ruth Odom, Cheryl Peck, Jennie Rutherford, Leah Smith, Nadine Spears, Willie Dee Williams, Valarie O'Connor, Martha Granger, Linda Pearson, and Jewel Clark.

Fayetteville Community Club

In December 1933, there was a group known as the Negro Association of America. The purpose of this Association was the promotion of brotherly feeling among the workers and to discuss and plan ways in order that the workers may be improved and their services desired.

This association shall have the power to appoint a committee to work with the businesses and employers for the City of Fayetteville.

One of the Articles, #IV, Principles, stated "Any person becoming a member of this organization shall have the following oath or pledge": I hereby declare that I will work for an honest wage, and if recommended by this Association, I will give the employer a fair day, week or month, as the case may be, I further declare that I will not drink or steal on the job, or do anything to bring disrepute upon the Negro Workers Association.

The joining fees were ten (10) cents per month. The Association met once a month the third (3rd) Friday night, on the ground floor of the Lincoln School.

One of their bylaws states that "If ever this group would dissolve, the funds are to be given to the two (2) churches and the other third to the school."

The following were board members: Reverend J. W. Webb, Chairman; Labe Joiner/Andrew Ollinson, Trustees; J. C. Hoover, Treasurer; and C. C. Manuel, Secretary.

On March 19, 1942, the Community club planned a banquet for good Friday. Rev. H. D. Bright was toastmaster and they also had a program of classical music. The first and third weeks were business meetings. The second and fourth week was recreational, usually the men mostly entertained the women.

1944 Project: Provided playground equipment for Lincoln School. March 30, 1944, Ruby Claypool and Francis Hoover solicited $61. 51 for the Red Cross Drive. 1946: Spelling match between the men and the women. Twenty Thanksgiving baskets were given to the older people. 1947: The park on Rock Street was started, where the low-rent housing project now stands. 1948: Grave plots were raised from $3.00 to $5.00. December 1949: Games were bought for the Boy Scouts. 1950-1951: Discontinued paying light bill at the park site. Donated $150.00 to the U of A law school. Records were not found for the years from 1953-1969. The club managed to survive during this period. Peter Kunkle, a university professor, was interviewing and compiling data to write a book.

From 1970-1973, gave monthly to the after school project held at Wiggins Methodist Church for the children that went to Jefferson School. This project was known as the White Block House.

Two hundred fifty dollars ($250) was received as an advance on the royalties from the book Spout Spring - A Black Community in the Ozarks, written by Pete Kunkle.

There is no record of when the club name was changed from the Negro Association to the Fayetteville Community Club.

A fence was purchased from United Fence at a cost of $1,114.00 and provided for Oak Cemetery. We sponsored a Christmas Home Decorations project and gave prizes to the best two home decorations. In April of 1971, used E. O. A. trucks to remove brush from the cemetery. Mr. Cole cut the grass and weeds at the cemetery for $12.00 each cutting. Lodene Deffebaugh was Chairman of the Citizens Committee. Clean-up drive each spring usually led by persons living in the neighborhoods who were able to enlist the cooperation of others in their own area. 1970-1973: Placed a representative to serve on EOA Board of Directors. We worked with the Elderly Feeding Program as volunteers. The driveway at Oak Cemetery was rechatted by McClinton Brothers for $87.81. 1974: Mr. Russell Blye replaced the walk bridge. 1975: Jessie Bryant organized a community choir and this group gave concerts. The Community Club was their sponsor.

The first united effort of the Community Club was when the women of St. James Baptist, St. James Methodist and Combs Street Church of Christ gave twenty-five (25) Thanksgiving baskets to the elderly. Sent fifty (50) letters to out-of-town persons for cash donations. Donated $10.00 to the Dial-A-Ride Program, one of the EOA's new programs.

On April 22, 1947 a new plot of ground was given to the Community Club by Mr. Raye Dunn for a burial ground for the colored community. A deed was given on the same day.

Under the leadership of the present president, Mr. Bill McPherson, and Mrs. Minerva Morgan (as a willing community worker), the community is thriving and our main concern is the upkeep of the "Oak Cemetery." The spring cleanups and the mowing of the grass continues.

Every citizen of the southeast community is invited to join the club and work to make the community a better place to live. The history of those who have gone before us and their contributions are still being honored as we carry on as members of the Fayetteville Community Club.

Fayetteville Evening Lions Club

Chartered by and organized under the jurisdiction of the International Association of Lions Clubs, the Fayetteville Evening Lions Club was installed on July 9, 1962, during a banquet ceremony at the Mountain Inn. The Fayetteville Noon Club was the sponsoring club, and Bob Cheyne, District Governor, acted as installing officer. The charter membership included 20 members as follows: Albert Bivens, Luke Brewer, Paul Clayton, Garrett Deboer, Doug Dickey, Joe Farrell, Donald G. Foley, Luther Freeman, Mickey Geisler, Jack Goode, Joe P. Harwood, John P. Jones, John Lavallard, Richard Lindsey, C. B. Murphy, Lee Skelton, David Steele, Harold Stevens, J. K. Williams, Billy Whitfield.

Of this list, in 1987, John Lavallard was the sole charter member of the club. He was honored by election to life membership in 1983.

The first officers elected by the new club were: J. K. Williams, president; Jack Goode, David Steele and Harold Stevens, vice presidents; Luther Freeman, secretary-treasurer; Lee Skelton, lion tamer; Joe Farrell, tail twister; Albert Bivens and John Lavallard, directors.

Club membership grew slowly the first year but during the second year membership reached 48, and in recent years has ranged from 65-80 members. During the past 25 years approximately 280 men have belonged to the club at one time or another.

To support benevolent and community service projects the club initiated various fund raising activities. The first was the sale of Halloween candy in 1962. The next two years the club made and sold wren houses followed by the sale of light bulbs and white canes. For a number of years golf tournaments were sponsored. Starting in 1964, the club began an annual sale of Christmas trees. This activity has provided a major source of income for the club. The first sale netted over $250.00 while in 1986 approximately $6,000.00 was realized. Other fund-raising activities included Gaslight Varieties shows for several years and a country western music show. Since 1978 the club has provided "stadium services," taking tickets and/or ushering at athletic events and concerts in Razorback Stadium and Barnhill Fieldhouse. This activity became the major source of revenue for the club.

In its second year the club began providing eyeglasses for needy school-age children. Starting in 1964 the first pre-school eyesight and amblyopia clinic was held at the Washington County Fair, the first such event in the state of Arkansas. Through 1987, approximately 10,000 children have been screened for amblyopia with 250 referred for further examination. From 1975 opthalmologists of the area began screening senior citizens for glaucoma at the Washington County Fair in conjunction with the Lions eyesight conservation program. Through 1987, 3,641 senior citizens have been examined in this program.

As it developed sources of income, the club was enabled to make commitments for community service projects. In 1963 the club began support for Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind and annually has been one of the state's outstanding clubs in support of AEB. Later the club began making annual contributions to the Eye and Kidney Bank of Arkansas. The club was instrumental in the development of the organ donor program and with the assistance of the Lady Lions, 700 or more donors have registered. In addition to these major ongoing programs, the club has provided support to many other community activities including the Youth Center of Fayetteville, Boyland of Arkansas, Little league, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Boys State and Girls State, Washington Regional and Fayetteville City Hospitals, Harmon Playfield, Fayetteville parks system, tornado and disaster relief in several localities and many other worthy activities of community interest. The club, for several years, has sponsored International Student exchanges involving students from several foreign countries. In addition, the club, in 1985, established a memorial scholarship trust fund to support worthy students in vocational or professional studies.

During its 25 years the following members have served the club as president: J. K. Williams, Jack Goode, Clarence Wilson, A. T. McDaniel, Buford Gardner, John P. Jones, Bill Parette, Charles Wuest, Paul Long, Donald Dearing, Jack Walters, Don Gilbrech, Clare Venema, John Fox, Chester House, Curtis Yates, Bob Johnson, Erle VanMeter, Bill Martin, Don Downey, Porter Stone, W. S. Watson, Lloyd O. Warren, Richard Ourand, Robert Hughey, and Don Dunn. Buford Gardner, Bill Parette, Jack Walters, A. T. McDaniel, and R. W. Johnson have served as District Governors. Meritorious Service Awards have been earned by Kipp Sullivan, R. L. Thurman, Don Gilbrech, W. S. Watson, A. T. McDaniel, Don Downey, Curtis Yates, Harry Sutton, John Fox, James Setter, Oliver Wilder, Frank Coker, Bill Parette, Fay Meade, Howard Liles, Clyde Jones, Al Bivens, Ing-Chang Jong, B. L. Lewis, Porter Stone, Mitchell Singleton and John Lavallard.

In 1974, a Lions Lady Auxiliary was organized with Lina Long as president. Others who have served as president of the auxiliary are: Marge McDaniel, Shirley Combs, Linda Austin, Cleo Liles, Marleen Venema, Ruth Johnson, Ruby Warren, Margaret Hughey, Charlotte Setter and Jean Watson. The Lady Lions have actively supported the Evening Lions in Christmas tree sales and stadium services.

The club has often ranked first among clubs of similar size in the district and is competitive on a state-wide basis. It has regularly sent delegates to Lions International conventions as well as district and state conventions. During its first 25 years the Fayetteville Evening Lions Club has developed a record of distinguished service to the community, district, state and international Lionism. In compliance with the goals of Lionism, the club is dedicated to a continued role in service to mankind.

Fayetteville Garden Club

The Fayetteville Garden Club was organized in April 1932, and became the second garden club formed in the city. By the following September monthly meetings were being held regularly by the fourteen charter members: Mrs. Joy Pratt Markham, president; Mrs. Thomas Rogers, vice president; Mrs. W. A. Fowler, secretary; Miss Lillian Blackburn; Mrs. O. W. Dritt; Mrs. C. J. Finger; Mrs. F. N. Gray; Mrs. Paul Heerwagen; Mrs. A. W. Jamison; Mrs. Herbert Sprague; Mrs. D. Y. Thomas; Mrs. Louise Turner; Mrs. J. S. Waterman; and Mrs. R. H. Waters. One charter member, Mrs. A. W. Fowler, is still a member of the club.

Membership is by invitation and meetings are held on the second Wednesday of each month; usually in member's homes. No meeting is held in January. Programs cover subjects that include home gardening, landscaping, horticulture, conservation, flower arranging, community beautification, etc. The custom of having a spring picnic in the woods was instituted the first year and continues to be a very popular outing to enjoy viewing the spring wild flowers of the Ozarks. Another popular annual event is the garden plant exchange. Each year, the group also plans a trip to a nearby area of interest to the members. Projects that this club has sponsored include planting of shade trees in the city, flower shows and various city beautification award programs. The group also organized three additional garden clubs in the city. With the support of three other clubs, they organized the Fayetteville Council of Garden Clubs in 1949.

The garden club is affiliated with the Fayetteville Council of Garden Clubs, the Arkansas Federation of Garden clubs, Inc., and the National Council of State Garden Clubs.

Officers for 1985-86 were Mrs. John L. Imhoff, president; Mrs. Troy Hendricks, vice president; Mrs. Blanton Strong, secretary; and Mrs. Palmer Pilcher treasurer. The current membership also includes Mrs. Robbin Anderson, Mrs. Hampson Andrew, Mrs. Ralph Barnhart, Mrs. William Bonner, Mrs. Clarence Cotterman, Ms. Araminta Gipson, Mrs. Fred Kerr, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Mrs. Bernie Madison, Mrs. Faye Meade, Mrs. Samuel Siegel, Mrs. Darrell Spriggs, Mrs. Delbert Swartz, Mrs. George Templeton, Mrs. Edmond Watson, Mrs. John Webb, Mrs. E. F. Whitchurch, Mrs. Maxwell Worthley, Mrs. Bob Wright, and Mrs. Robert Wyckoff. Inactive members are Mrs. Joe M. Clark, Mrs. W. A. Fowler, Mrs. A. H. Gerard, Mrs. Violet Knowles, Mrs. A. E. Lussky, and Ms. Sara Terrell.

Fayetteville Humane Society

The stray animal problem had long been ignored in Fayetteville. As recently as the 1940s the city police collected strays and confined them to pens behind the police station, located at Block and Rock streets. Animals were placed there indiscriminately-old, young, injured, diseased, aggressive-a pitiful assortment. When space ran out, the animals were clubbed to death. Angry citizens protested this brutal treatment, and finally the police shot the animals. This, too, was protested because the police were not crack shots.

A group of citizens persuaded a local veterinarian to euthanize stray animals at the group's expense. In the late 1940s the group organized into the Fayetteville Humane Society to promote more humane care of stray animals. Charter or early members were Mrs. Bob Stout, Cornelia McIlroy Stuart, Fannie Dowell, Marjorie Budd, Mrs. Louise Budd, Mrs. Frank Lewis, Rev. and Mrs. Spainhower.

The society worked tirelessly to alert the city to animal welfare concerns and finally persuaded the city to join in the building of a shelter on Happy Hollow Road, off the 15th street bypass. A large educational effort began which continues today. During the 1960s and 1970s, Eleanor Johnson, Jo Guinn, Morris Collier, Jr., Luise DeMarco, Dr. Earl Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. "Wig" Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood, and Herb and Judy Fowler were active in continuing the work of the society.

In recent years, as the membership of the society has waxed and waned, there have been repeated efforts to inform Fayetteville citizens of the enormous problems of an inadequate shelter, unenforced city ordinances to control animals, problems of stray and abandoned animals, and especially the burgeoning pet population. Through the leadership of Dr. Jan Hale and Lester Howick the society has generated new interest and concern within the community and in 1987 a new contract between the city and the society gave the running of a refurbished shelter to the society. The society has increased its publicity, outreach, informational services, and education programs. Next year a new modern shelter facility, a joint city-society project, will open.

Fayetteville Lions Club

The Fayetteville Lions Club, now in its 65th year, was chartered in May 1923 with 25 Charter Members, and has been continuously active since that time. The last charter member passed away in 1960. A fire, in the office of the club secretary in 1963, destroyed the club's records, and information from 1923 to 1963 is fragmentary. Only 18 of the clubs current members were active at the time of the fire.

The Fort Smith Lions Club sponsored the Fayetteville Lions Club when it was chartered. We have sponsored the chartering of the Huntsville Lions Club in 1927, the Rogers, Springdale and Prairie Grove Lions Clubs in 1946, the Greenland and Elkins clubs in 1960, the Fayetteville Evening Lions and the Upper White River Lions in 1962, and the Bentonville, Decatur and Farmington clubs in 1970.

The writer happens to be the oldest member of our club, in years of service, with 52 years continuous active service. Lion Hugh Kincaid, received his "50-year Old Monarch" status in 1986, and Lion, Paul Young, Jr., should receive his in 1988. We remember the "good ole" days of the Lions Club minstrel shows, the light bulb and broom sales, the distribution of free milk to needy school children (4,200 gallons over a 4-year period), and the distribution of Christmas baskets of food, clothing, and even wood, to needy families (410 families over a 13 year period).

A condensed copy of briefs of our club reports from Lions International gives some information of our activities prior to 1963. A list of all our past club presidents is shown each year in our annual club directory, with Lion, Tom Hart, as first president and Lion, Ralph Treat, as our 1987 president. A framed picture of all our presidents is displayed at our weekly luncheon meeting place.

The Fayetteville Lions Club has perhaps been the most active Lions Club in our district. It has furnished many District Governors, namely Lion, Roy Adams, in 1930-31, Lion, Sam Schweiger, in 1942-43, Lion, Thad Rowden, in 1948-49, Lion, Bob Cheyne, in 1961-62, Lion, Dick Worthington, in 1965-66, Lion, Art Spooner, in 1966-67, and Lion, Al Hughes, Jr., in 1970-71.

One of the most ambitious projects this Lions Club has ever undertaken was in 1931 when the club started a long range project of construction and improvement of the city's Harmon Playfield. The Lions Club built the original fieldhouse and sodded the football field. Money was borrowed from local banks, with notes signed by the club's presidents and secretaries, and repaid over a period of years with monies from the club's fund raising projects. In 1947 the Lions Club spent 39 hundred dollars to enlarge the fieldhouse which exists today as a remodeled portion of the Youth Center and the coaches' offices. Cornerstones can be found today on this building, one at the southeast corner stating "Lions Club Fieldhouse-1931," and one at the northeast corner stating "Lions Club Fieldhouse-1947," as ample evidence of the club's long time involvement in youth and educational programs.

Records are not available to show the amount of monies the club raised on some early projects. However, excerpts do indicate that the club ran a water line to the Girl Scout cottage on the east slope of Mt. Sequoyah, spent $125 for picnic tables in the city park in 1948, another $3,007 for Harmon Playfield improvements in 1951, $1,100 for foreign exchange students in 1954, and $1,000 for erection of bleachers at Harmon Playfield in 1958. In 1965, the club contributed $1,500 to the Boys Club swimming pool project, $400 for an eye testing machine in 1967, $1,250 to the Boy Scout Camp Orr Fund and $600 to a hydrotherapy pool fund. In 1968, $600 was spent toward a station wagon for the Boys Club and another $600 in 1969. Little Rock Medical Center received $1,500 in 1969, and $600 went to the Youth Center in 1972. Yearly contributions to the Youth Center since 1969 totals $14,400. Our first contribution to Richardson Center was in 1977 with $3,750 to them since then. Salvation Army Summer Camps has received $5,050 since 1968, $4,145 to Boys and Girls Scouts, and $5,522 to send local boys and girls to Boys and Girls State. We have contributed $6,230 toward Fayetteville High School students' scholarships, $3,080 to Sherman Lollar baseball, and $1,380 to girls' softball.

From 1963 to 1987 the income from our fund raising activities total of $129,394 net, and the club has contributed a total of $158,406 to worthy causes. The $29,394 difference was contributed by Lions Club members from dues paid into our contingent fund. Contributions are about equally divided between our State and International projects ($78,525) and our local projects ($58,691 for local youth and education and $29,210 for local sight conservation, eyeglasses and exams, etc.) The largest amounts went to our two major state sponsored projects, $53,000 to Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind which is owned and operated by Arkansas Lions, and $18,000 to Arkansas Eye and Kidney Bank operated by the Lions.

Fayetteville Lions Club members can be justifiably proud of their club's 65 years as one of the leading civic/service clubs. The successful accomplishment of these numerous projects could not have been accomplished without the generous cooperation of our many friends, merchants and individuals. Our annual auction of the Air and White Cane Days are only two of these worthy projects.

Friendly Neighbors Club

The "Friendly Neighbors" Club was organized by Miss Harriet B. King, January 9, 1940, at the home of Velma Robinson. Miss King was the Home Demonstration agent then. There were eleven members. Velma was elected president, Peggy Haggard vice president and Ruth Robinson secretary-treasurer. Other officers and members were Pearl Holden, Ruth Allison Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Woolsey, Mrs. Ben Smith, Mrs. Halden, Fay Downum, Ruth Downum and her mother. We continue to grow and prosper, even now in 1987. Then in 1942, several members from the "Happy Circle" Club merged with the "Friendly Neighbors". They were Marie Ross, Inez Parsons, Emma Eichelburger, Lillian Johnson, Opal Cypert, Donna Sisco, Elta Boswell, Elsie Singbush, Leta Howard, Dolly Counts, Katherine Morton, and Riola Miller. Many are still very active and productive after 45 years. We enjoy our club and each other as individual friends.

Our club, from its origin, has been a bee hive of activities, with participation in all County Club activities, cooperating with the County Council and other county clubs while participating in booth activities and many exhibits at the county fair each year. We enjoy the fellowship of other Demonstration Clubs in the county. Also, once or twice a year, usually Christmas and Thanksgiving, we entertain our husbands and children with a large Christmas tree and a turkey Thanksgiving feast. Games, singing, recitations, etc., are enjoyed. We continue to have our get togethers with our families. We have "Secret Sisters", not forgetting our sick, bereaved, birthdays, anniversaries and wedding showers. We are still very strong and an active group after 47 years of togetherness. At present, we have 25 or so active members. We had 16 members, with one visitor, present at our May 1987 meeting. We meet the first Thursday of each month. Our president, Alice Shultz, is presently vacationing in Canada and our vice president, Esther Goheen, is presiding officer. Sylvia Merrill is our secretary-treasurer. Inez Parsons is, and has been, our devotional leader for many years. She is an inspiration to us all. Besides in name, we have a strong bond of friendship amongst us. Many of us have lost companions since we became "Friendly Neighbors". We care and we share.

GFWC of Prairie Grove

The General Federation of Women's Club (GFWC) celebrates its Centennial in 1990. This organization, which meets the personal needs of women in local communities, is united under the umbrella of an international volunteer service organization with a distinguished record of accomplishments. "GFWC is the largest, and oldest nondenominational, nonpartisan, international service organization of volunteers."

"Unity in Diversity" - our motto - affords a wide range of opportunities, however, the main objective is community improvement through programs in the arts, conservation, education, home life, international affairs, and public affairs. In 1984 - 1986 years, GFWC members donated more than 54.5 million volunteer hours and 108 million dollars to thousands of projects.

GFWC Woman's Club of Prairie Grove, although organized in 1932 as the "Better Homes and Gardens Club" with Mrs. Anna Holmes, president; officially federated with the GFWC in June of 1939 with Mrs. Jack Harlan as president. Affiliation with GFWC means our club enjoys membership along with 18 clubs in the Fort Smith District, 82 clubs in the GFWC of Arkansas and GFWC South Central Region (Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Texas).

Local accomplishments include School Civic and American History Awards, scholarships and Hoby sponsor. Established and supervised the Historical Resource Library at the Joy Webb Clubhouse, contributed to the Booneville Sanitorium, Arkansas Children's Hospital, Arkansas Sheriff's Ranches, Battlefield Park, Teacher Appreciation Day, City Beautification and City Centennial projects.

Two of our members served as state president: Mrs. W. E. Phillips, 1952-1954; Mrs. R. D. Manning, 1978-1980; who also served as president of the South Central Region Conference 1984-1986 and held a national office 1980-1982.

Growing 59'ers EH Club

In 1959 three young women whose husbands were involved in Extension work in Fayetteville, decided to organize a Home Demonstration Club. These three, Jane Wright, Sally Gibson, and Mary Smith were soon joined by Rachel Hepler, Sue Harmon, Mada Knight, Pat Brown, and Ora Foley.

The name Growing 59'ers was chosen because the majority were expecting additions to their families. By 1963 they had grown to 22 members. They meet in the Hospitality Room of the First State Bank in Springdale. Most of them live in the Springdale area.

In 1965 the name was changed from Growing 59'ers Home Demonstration Club to Growing 59'ers Extension Homemakers Club, an educational organization with most of their programs based on information from the U of A through the Cooperative Extension Service. Program of Work includes Cultural Arts, Clothing and Textiles, Health and Safety, Family Life, Citizenship, International Relations and Housing, Energy and Environment.

Some of their community service projects through the years include Boys Land, Springdale Day Care, Head Start, Arkansas Childrens Hospital, 4-H Foundation, 4-H Scholarship, VA Hospital and Springdale Memorial Hospital.

Four County Extension Homemaker presidents have come from the Growing 59'ers, Kathryn Skelton, Ann Webb, Minerva Houser, and Onetta Clark. Four members have served on the state board, Kathern Skelton as district director and state treasurer, Minerva Houser as district director and state program of work in Health, Food and Nutrition, Ann Webb as state Cultural Arts chairman and Patsy James as district program of work chairman in Cultural Arts.

The club has had an educational booth at the Washington County Fair every year, winning mostly blue ribbons. In 1970 they won sweepstakes, Mary Littrell was fair booth chairman. In 1980, 1982, and 1983 the booth won sweepstakes again with Tomi Beiermann serving as chairman.

A list of presidents are: 1959 Mrs. Brad Wright, 1960 Rachel Hepler, 1961 unknown, 1962 Mrs. H. D. Knight, 1963 Mrs. Jessi Jones, 1964 Mrs. Harold Harmon, 1965 Mrs. Charles Brown, 1966 Mrs. Jerry Reeves, 1967 Mrs. Bob Harrison, 1968 Mrs. Charles Brown, 1969 Mrs. Mack Unger, 1970-71 Mrs. Lawrence Skelton, 1972-73 Mrs. Carl Holt, 1974-75 Mrs. C. W. Webb, 1976-77 Mrs. Alfred Houser, 1978-79 Mrs. Darrel James, 1980-81 Mrs. Harry Lewandowski, 1982-83 Mrs. R. J. Covey, 1984-85 Mrs. Irvin Haas, and 1986-87 Mrs. S. J. Beiermann.

Habberton Extension Homemaker Club

The remaining charter members of the Habberton Extension Homemaker Club are: Virginia Tisdale, Leota Dillard, Loraine Huey, Edna Wilson, Betty Tisdale, and Linda Gayer.

The Happy Habberton Extension Homemaker Club organized in February 1974. A group of Habberton Community ladies met with Mrs. Marion Housman in the home of Mrs. Emilee Cleek and was supervised in the organization by the Washington County Home Economist, Mary Gilbert. Officers elected were: Betty Tisdale, president; Emilee Cleek, vice-president; Linda Gayer, secretary; and Virginia Tisdale, treasurer. Meeting dates were set for the fourth Wednesday of each month to be held in hostess members' homes, and Happy Habberton Homemakers was the name selected for the group. In 1975 there were eleven members on the roll.

Habberton Community is located about seven miles east of Fayetteville on Highway 45, nestled at the foot of Slaughter Mountain. A portion of the area is currently annexed in the Goshen city limits.

Habberton was a thriving farm community and supported two churches, the Mount Vernon Baptist Church and the Habberton Church of Christ; the Habberton School, District 26; the post office and store combination and a grain mill.

The Habberton Post Office was established April 4, 1899 and was discontinued in 1951. John Morriss became postmaster in 1930, succeeding John Shaver, a position he held until the post office closed and he retired in 1951.

Residing in the adjoining residence and the parents of three children; Jeanette, Wilma Jean and Phillip; John and Edith Morriss were the owners and operators of the store and mill for an extended number of years.

The mill ceased operation and the property was sold in the early 1950s to Emilee Cleek and former, late husband James Courtney who continued operation of the store for a period of time before discontinuing service.

The Happy Habberton Homemakers were soon recognized for their interest in crafts. Meeting dates and times were changed to the first Tuesday of each month with morning meetings, a cooperative luncheon, followed by craft workshops in the afternoon under the instruction of Betty and Virginia Tisdale. During the summer months there were morning meetings with treats and refreshments served by the hostess.

Fund raisers have been craft sales, yard sales and more recently catering lunches for auction sales. Quilts to be sold were made and quilted in the home of Loraine Huey. Special craft workshops were held in preparation for the club's craft booth during Mall Days at the Northwest Arkansas Mall of Fayetteville, sponsored by the University Extension Service and the Washington County Extension Homemaker Council. Assistance has been given in recent years with Mall Days Educational Booths.

The club is supportive of its community and friends as well as members and their families—with cards, flowers or food when the need arises.

Annual contributions have been given to the 4-H Foundation and the VA Hospital Valentine Shower. Participation with assistance has been given to the Valentine Shower and the VA Hospital Christmas activities. Money or stuffed toys, games, books, educational dolls, chemotherapy caps, orthopedic briefs and other needed items are contributed, annually, to the Arkansas Childrens Hospital in Little Rock.

Used eyeglasses are collected for the voluntary Optometric Service to Humanity (VOSH) program, endorsed by the County Extension Homemakers Council. Lap robes have been made and presented to the Apple Tree Inn Nursing Home of Fayetteville.

In the immediate succeeding years of the club's organization there were occasional regular meetings which included members families and friends for evenings social and fellowship. Thanksgiving and Christmas meetings and dinners were special occasions. In 1974, Thanksgiving held at Mrs. Marian (Woodrow) Wilkins and Christmas was with Mrs. Betty (Tom) Tisdale. In 1975, Thanksgiving was with Marian and Woodrow Wilkins and Christmas was in the home of Mrs. Leota (John) Dillard. In 1976, the Thanksgiving meeting and dinner was with Mrs. Nadine (Virgil) Salsbury and Christmas was at the Mrs. Virginia (Oran) Tisdale residence. In 1977, Thanksgiving was at the First National Bank of Springdale Hospitality Room with Mrs. Lillian (Howell) Johnson as hostess and the Christmas dinner in the home of Mrs. Edna (Noid) Wilson. In 1978, Thanksgiving was in the home of Lillian and Howell Johnson and Christmas was with Leota and John Dillard. In 1979, Thanksgiving was at Edna Wilson's with Mrs. Clara (James) Ramey as hostess and the Christmas meeting was at Wyatt's Cafeteria, Fayetteville. In 1980, Thanksgiving dinners were discontinued, and the Christmas meeting and party was at Wyatt's.

Through the years the membership increased with new members coming from Fayetteville, Springdale and Elkins while the club experienced the loss of other members.

Emilee and Austin Cleek moved to Aurora, Missouri in 1974, after selling the store building and residence to Arthur and Lula Oxford Whillock, a pioneer couple, who returned to the community where they had previously lived when rearing five children: Jewell, Irene, Everett, Dean, and Fay.

Arthur used the store building for his wood-working shop. Arthur Whillock and Lula Oxford were married in 1915 and for a time thereafter, he was owner and operator of a blacksmith shop located on Habberton Store property. In 1982, following Arthur and Lula's death, their possessions were disposed of and the Habberton Store renovated into a dwelling that is well preserved.

Mrs. Marion (Harold) Housman moved to Fairfield Bay, Arkansas, their property was purchased by C. E. and Wilma Nelms, in 1984. Mrs. Bernelle Whillock resigned due to health reasons. Bernelle and Everett were frequent exhibitors at craft fairs with their art of tole painting and woodcraft.

Four members are deceased: Mrs. Marian Wilkins, Mrs. Nadine Salsbury, Mrs. Polly Yingst, and Mrs. Nadine Turrentine.

The club has participated in the county clean-up campaign and the club exchange program by entertaining and being entertained by extension club each year. Representatives regularly attend county leader training meetings and cultural arts workshops, then later present educational programs and teach craft to other members. Representation is made at county council meetings, board meetings and the Holiday Treats program.

The club is supportive of the Washington County Fair with booth exhibit, individual exhibits, also contributions and assistance to the Scholarship Fund Bazaar Booth, sponsored by the Washington County Homemaker's Council.

Those who served as past presidents are: Betty Tisdale, Bernelle Whillock, Leota Dillard, Marie Harp and Mary Thompson.

Clara Ramey, Mary Thompson and Marie Harp have served as judges in the Land-O-Goshen 4-H Club members Breads Bake-Off Contest, sponsored by the Washington County Extension Service and Martha White Flour.

Mary Thompson is the former Extension Homemaker Council Treasurer and the present County Council Membership Chairman; also the Canning Department Chairman of the Washington County Fair and co-chairman of the Scholarship Fund Program.

Bylaws were written and adopted by the club in June, 1987. The club's name was changed to Habberton Extension Homemakers Club and two-year terms were decided upon for its officers.

In December 1987, the Habberton EH Club voted and agreed to sponsor the newly organized "Busy Bees Extension Homemakers Club" of eastern Fayetteville.

The December meetings are special, when secret pals are revealed and names are drawn for the coming year. Birthdays and wedding anniversaries are recognized each month.

The highlight of the year-end activity is the annual Christmas dinner and party for the members, their spouses or invited guests. The entertainment is a yuletide program of Christmas carols, devotionals, readings and games with Linda Gayer as emcee and rendering her talent at the piano, accompanying the group singing. The holiday events were held in 1981 and 1982, at Bowen's Restaurant; in 1983, at Wyatt's Cafeteria; 1984-1985, at Bowen's; 1986 and 1987, at Park Inn Restaurant, all of Fayetteville.

Each member is special and possesses admirable qualities and talents with their intense desire and dedication. The club has proven to be a worthy asset to the community and the Extension Homemaker Council Organization.

The current 1987-1988 officers are: President, Mrs. Shirley Nielson; vice-president, Virginia Tisdale; secretary, Marie Harp; treasurer, Mrs. Wilma Nelms; devotional chairman, Irene Howard; and song leader, Mrs. Lillian Johnson.

Present membership: Lexie Brasel, Mrs. Leota Dillard, Mrs. Linda Gayer, Mrs. Loraine Huey, Mrs. Hilda Pannell, Mrs. Clara Ramey, Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Macy Tisdale and Mrs. Edna Wilson.

Inactive members are: Kathy Hinkle, Sherry Hunt, Katherine

Ledford, Betty Tisdale, Kim Tisdale, Romona Wilson and Brenda Edens.

In February 1988, there were fifteen active members and seven inactive members on the secretary roll.

Johnson 4-H Club

June 22, 1967, an organizational meeting was held in the old Johnson School lunchroom (turned community center) for the Johnson 4-H Club. Carolyn Scaramuzza, Assistant Extension Home Economist for Washington County and Dale Newberry, President of the Arkansas 4-H, assisted Mary Ellen and Leroy Johnson to form this club.

Mary Ellen and Leroy Johnson served as Adult leaders. Billy Johnson, president; Bob Johnson, vice president; Betty Casey, secretary-treasurer; Christine Casey, reporter; Dennis Wohlford, song leader; Ben Johnson, recreation leader; were the elected officers.

Anyone in the Johnson Community between the ages of 10 and 21 were encouraged to join. The meetings were held each Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. throughout the summer in the community building near the Johnson Baptist Church.

Preparations were made to enter the Fourth of July Rodeo Parade in Springdale by decorating the leaders' 1967 Ambassador convertible.

A "clean-up-our-community" campaign was very successful as the members picked up trash out of creeks, ditches and off private and public property giving many volunteer hours to the project.

On August 4, 1967, 4-H visiting day at the University of Arkansas was attended by Billy Johnson, Bob Johnson, Ben Johnson, James Wohlford, Dennis Wohlford, Donna Johnson, Sharon Lehman, Sharon Clark, Richard Ferguson, Kenneth Ferguson, Sherrie Johnson and their leaders, Mary Ellen and Leroy Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wohlford assisted in chaperoning the group.

A booth was displayed at the Washington County Fair Labor Day weekend.

February 1968, the Johnson 4-H'ers planted numerous pine seedlings that in 1988 stand tall and proud around Johnson. A tribute to fine young men and women that have enjoyed comradeship for a couple of years in the Johnson 4-H Club.

Land-O-Goshen 4-H

Goshen had a 4-H club for many years before 1979 and had taken many county trophies, but as the original members got older and before younger children in the area were old enough to join, the club was inactive for a short while.

Toney and Kay Yates wanted their three sons to belong to a club where they would learn to be of service to their community. After calling the County Extension Service to find the nearest organization, they were told the 4-H Club in their area needed to be reorganized. The Yates family agreed to reorganize it.

In March 1979 Land-O-Goshen 4-H met with 30 young people and 15 parents in attendance. David and Kathy Tankersley were designated as main leaders with Kay and Toney Yates as project leaders. The group chose the present club name and began planning the activities in which the club would enter into county and state activities.

Many of its members have won State competitions and represented Washington County well. Among the winners are: Jimmy Keith, Stacy Tankersley, and Bobby Joe Yates.

Adult leaders have also been recognized. Kay Yates was honored as 1985 Leader of the Year, Toney Yates and Rick McCoy as 1986 Leaders of the Week, and Kathy Tankersley as Leader of the Week in both 1986 and 1987.

Membership rolls show ten active members at this time: Melody McCoy, Stacy Tankersley, Michelle Tankersley, Shay Mayes, Melissa Poye, Kendall Wilson, Malyndia Wilson, Tammy Kaufman, Mike Bidwell and Bobby Joe Yates.

Main leaders at the present time are: Rick and DeLand McCoy

Toney and Kay Yates were given a plaque in honor and recognition of the unselfish gift of their time and the dedication to the Washington County 4-H Club Food Booth in 1985.

Membership is open to all who are devoted to the old-fashioned values and principles that 4-H clubs are known for and those interested in preserving such values within the community are welcome.

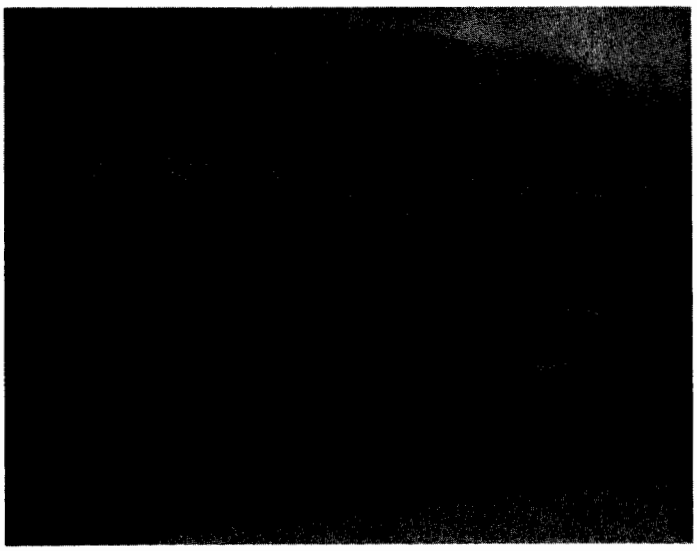
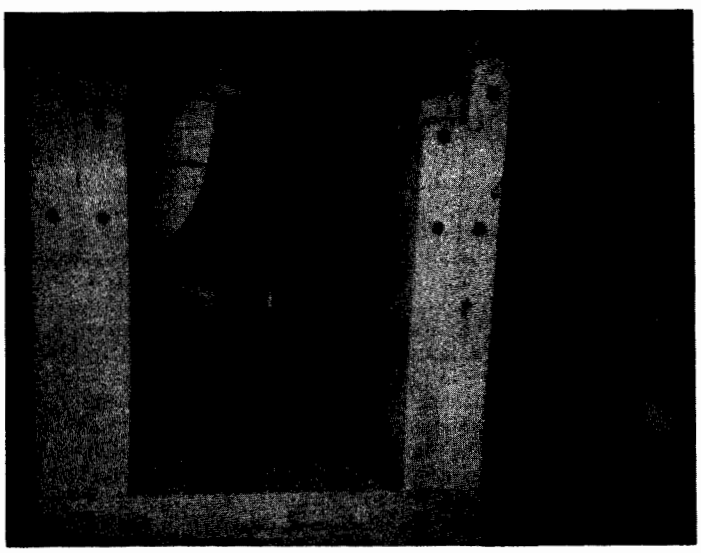
Lincoln VFW Post 4675

On May 30, 1968, the first Post organizational meeting was held at the Beaty Bibbs American Legion Post 171 in the city of Lincoln, Arkansas. Comrade Jesse Wright, acting Chairman and one of the key organizers of the new Post, introduced the visiting dignitaries: Post Department Commander, E. W. Donaldson; National Aide de Camp and District Commander 14, Albert D. Hall; and Department Commander, J. P. Cockrill.





Chairman Wright opened the Post's first organizational meeting for the purpose of electing and installing the officers who would serve the 1968-69 term of office. The first slate of officers were: Edward Buckle, Commander; Vernon Gullick, Senior Vice Commander; Buddy West, Junior Vice Commander; Roy Williams, Quartermaster/Adjutant; Marvin Ramthun, Judge Advocate; Lester Smith, Chaplain; Hallie Brown, Surgeon; B. Rodgers, Three-Year Trustee, J. D. Kirk, Two-Year Trustee; and Jesse Wright, One-Year Trustee.

Past Department Commander E. W. Donaldson installed the newly-elected officers with the assistance of Albert D. Hall, District Commander District 14. Of the 45 new members, 31 were present at the meeting. The new Post would be called Lincoln Post 4675.

Department Commander J. P. Cockrill thanked Beaty Bibbs American Legion Post 171 for sharing their Post home for a temporary meeting place for the new VFW Post.

Comrade Bill Rodgers drafted a copy of the Articles of Incorporation. The Post gave Comrade Rodgers authority to engage James R. Hall, Attorney, to finalize this first requirement. On August 5, 1968, Bill Rodgers, chairman of the building committee, presented the Post a copy of the Articles of Incorporation explaining in detail all articles necessary to make the Post a corporation. Attorney James R. Hall was engaged to proceed with the documents. Finally, after studying our National Bylaws and amending the articles to the satisfaction of our National Headquarters, approval was issued to the Post on May 5, 1969.

Incorporation enabled the Post to apply for a building loan. Commander Edward Buckle donated a parcel of land along Morris Creek on Highway 62, east of Lincoln, for the purpose of building a Post home.

Commander Buckle appointed Jesse Wright, Walter Hobbs, Vernon Gullick, Buddy West, Lester Smith and Roy Williams to assist the building committee chairman, Bill Rodgers. Estimates to build a single-story building were 40 to 50 thousand dollars, which were both discouraging and impossible to consider.

The building committee was able to relax their efforts somewhat due to the acquisition on September 1, 1969, of the Bellview School property on Wedington Road.

The membership of the Post, by a motion vote, authorized the Trustees to sell the Morris Creek property. The Post consulted with people in the construction and remodeling business for suggestions regarding renovation of the school building.

Bill Rodgers reported the results of his inquiry to the Home Loan Administration. Their reply was in no way encouraging and they informed the group that no money was available for this type of program.

Meanwhile, after having surveyed their real estate, it was the opinion of all involved that for five thousand dollars from the Bank of Lincoln, the building could be remodeled, adding two additional rooms on the east side, two restrooms, and plastering interior walls. It was agreed that the Post would borrow the money and proceed with the building renovation.

Everything started to fall into place, progress was very good, and what everyone worked for and hoped for was soon accomplished—the completed renovation of their new Post home.

After completion, occupancy was immediate and plans were made for future programs. Programming consisted of Saturday night dances, bingo and a concession stand. The months and years progressed and the Post with them, realizing many accomplishments. Good times were experienced and enjoyed and bad times between 1968 and 1978, but the worst came on June 14, 1978, when the Post, the community and nearby northwest Arkansas area towns were saddened to learn the Post had been totally destroyed by fire.

Three months passed as a new home was sought. Then a meeting of the Post building committee was agreed upon and a meeting was set for October 14, 1978 at 7 p. m. at the Nutritional Center located in Lincoln to meet with Mr. Arlon Forbes, owner of a parcel of real estate located on Park Street in downtown Lincoln. Commander James Kley and his building committee were given a tour of the property after which they returned to the Nutritional Center and negotiated with Mr. Forbes on selling price (18 thousand dollars), down payment, (one thousand dollars) monthly payments (150 dollars) interest charges, (9%) and date of the first payment and the agreement to carry a sufficient amount of insurance to cover the unpaid balance of the contract for the life of the real estate contract.

The report of the meeting and contract as mentioned above was then presented to the membership on November 6, 1978. After a lengthy report, the real estate package was agreed upon by a motion of the body from the floor. After finalization of the contract, the first payment date was set for December 15, 1978.

Occupancy of the property was immediate, and organization of continuing Post activities and community work began. This brings the history up to the present time.

March 7, 1988 was the rewarding and cherished day Post 4675 had long awaited. The Post Quartermaster reported that the day had finally arrived when the Post could have the satisfaction of knowing that Post 4675 was paid for and the sole property of its membership.

Fayetteville's Modern Literature club is one of the oldest women's clubs in the city. Members have gathered twice a month since 1926. The first minutes tell us the women met originally as a book study group within the Fayetteville chapter of the American Association of University Women. Ten of the group decided to break away to allow a membership open "to all women who were interested in the enjoyment of modern/recent literature." The question still comes up, "What is modern literature?" An answer shaped by experience seems to be, any work of fiction, drama, prose, or poetry that was written in the five years preceding the current year. Details of the club's organization were worked out in a constitution adopted in 1931.

Consistent in the history of the club is a level of review and discussion that is both scholarly and lively. Members choose their own books which are purchased by the club, circulated, read by the members, and sold at auction at the end of the year. The record of books reviewed is a history of twentieth century "modern" literature itself, beginning with Eugene O'Neill.

Authors read in the 1930s include Thomas Mann and William Faulkner. In The 1940s members were reading T. S. Eliot, and E. M. Forster. Books chosen from the 1950s through the 1980s continue to feature authors that are critically important; John Updike, Flannery O'Conner, Toni Morrison, John Williams. Biography and books on social and political issues have also been popular choices reflecting the members' interests and the times.

Along with serious reading, the Modern Literature Club is known for its conviviality. A dinner for guests is held each year and might feature a play, a poetry reading, an informative talk or a prose reading. The club has freely drawn on writers living in Fayetteville for many memorable evenings. Pot-luck luncheons grace the first and last meetings of each year.

Current members of more than thirty years standing are: Portia Kernodle, Georgia Clark, Katie Hantz, Eloise Baerg-King, Jessie O'Kelly, Frances Vaile, Doris Wigglesworth, Eunice Hamilton, Dorothy Nichols, Sylvia Swartz, Mary Margaret Durst, Louise Kraemer, Louise Lane, Helen Leflar, Marjorie Rudolph, and Elaine McNeil. The love of books has been a powerful bond.

The club's records and taped interviews with members can be found in the Special Collections Department, University Library, Fayetteville.

Maple Hills Garden Club

On February 4, 1960, sixteen women met in the home of Mrs. Ray Trammel to organize a garden club named Maple Hills — a tribute to Fayetteville's hillsides and colorful maple trees.

Meetings have been held at 9:30 a. m. on the second Thursday of each nine months of each succeeding year.

Programs through the years have been balanced, covering a wide range of garden-related subjects. Guest speakers have augmented programs presented by club members whose participation has always been encouraged.

Members have actively participated in flower shows, workshops, and for many years worked with other garden clubs in conducting an annual Christmas tour of homes.

Many civic projects have been undertaken, such as plantings at Wilson Park, City Hospital Geriatrics Center, Hillcrest Towers, and Boys' Club, and extensive landscaping at Ramay Junior High School and Butterfield Elememtery School.

Maple Hills Garden Club is a member of the Fayetteville Garden Club Council, the Arkansas Federation of Garden Clubs, and the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc.

NARFE Chapter 463

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) is composed of a half-million former Federal employees who retired under the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Act, as well as their spouses and survivors, and current Federal employees eligible for such retirement. NARFE was organized in 1921 soon after the enactment of this Retirement System. It has 1,700 chapters throughout the United States. Its main objective is to sponsor and support legislation that safeguards the earned benefits and general welfare of its members.

Arkansas currently has 46 chapters of NARFE. Chapter 463 was organized in 1954 at Fayetteville with 17 charter members, and it now serves all of Washington County. Under the energetic leadership of its first president, Elgin H. Blalock, a State Federation of Chapters in Arkansas was set up in 1955, and Mr. Blalock was elected its president. Fayetteville's invitation to hold the first Federation Convention was accepted and the meeting took place at the Washington Hotel in October 1955.

In 1956 Chapter 463 helped to organize the AMKO Council, consisting of the states of Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. They met in a 4-state convention in September 1956 with 193 in attendance. That organization was of great help in stimulating and coordinating NARFE work in those states. In later years that Council was replaced by Region VI which includes Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas.

Chapter 463 has 140 members and meets monthly except for July and August. In 1981 this Chapter hosted the State Federation Convention at Mt. Sequoyah. In 1986 it celebrated the 65th Anniversary of NARFE along with the Arkansas Sesquicentennial at a joint meeting with the Rogers Chapter. The Chapter sends delegates to each national convention, and in September 1988 it will help to host the NARFE National Convention at Little Rock — the first such convention in this state.

In the carrying on of these activities, the contributions of certain members have been formally recognized by the State Federation, from year to year, as especially noteworthy. Those so honored in the past six years have been: Eldridge Burton, Mary Condon, Russell LeBarron, Mack McLendon, Alfhild Maedl, and Jack Allen Logan.

NWAROG

The Northwest Arkansas Retired Officers Group began at Fayetteville, Arkansas, in the summer of 1955, with 17 officers and wives from Fayetteville, Eureka Springs, Siloam Springs, and the Fayetteville area of Arkansas and from Tahlequah, Oklahoma, at the organizational meeting, Rear Admiral Powell M. Rhea, USN (Ret.) was elected President and Lt. General Tom Ayers was elected Secretary-Treasurer. The area of membership was Washington, Benton, Madison and Carroll Counties and the north one-half of Crawford County.

In January, 1956, the group petitioned the national organization of THE RETIRED OFFICERS ASSOCIATION for affiliation with 39 retired officers from the Army, Navy and Air Force signing the petition. On accepting NWAROG membership, the National headquarters noted that NWAROG was the only "Group" in the Association's total membership. (All other units affiliated with the National TROA are designated "chapters" or "associations".

At one time NWAROG membership contained: 5 Generals, 3 Admirals, many Army, Air Force and Marine Corps Colonels, Lt. Colonels, Majors, Navy Captains, Commanders and Lt. Commanders, 1 Army Captain, 2 Lieutenants, and one impostor (a sergeant).

Membership has also included retired officers of the National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration and Public Health Service.

Northwest Arkansas Retired Officers Group was the first TROA affiliate in Arkansas. The Group became a leader for the development of The Arkansas Council of TROA Chapters. Captain Fred O'Baugh USA (Ret), long time Secretary of NWAROG, was elected first Secretary-Treasurer of the Arkansas Council of TROA Chapters in the early 1970s. In 1985, NWAROG Past President Lt. Colonel Wm. G. Myers, USA (Ret) was elected fourth President, of the State Council of Chapters.

In the mid-1970s the NWAROG commenced a program of presentation of TROA ROTC medals at the Army and Air Force ROTC's at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. In 1979, the Group commenced awarding TROA ROTC medals to High School Junior ROTC units in Northwest Arkansas. Criteria for awarding TROA Senior and Junior ROTC medals developed by the Group were adopted by all members of the Arkansas Council of TROA Chapters and later became the Department of Defense criteria of all military ROTC units. The Group has also initiated a program of awarding a Certificate of Appreciation for "Exemplification of Americanism" to High Schools in Northwest Arkansas.

Northwest Arkansas Retired Officers Group has regular dinner meetings on the third Friday each month rotating its locations between restaurants in Rogers, Fayetteville and Springdale. All retired officers and spouses are invited.

National League of American Pen Women

The Northwest Arkansas Branch of the National League of American Pen Women began on April 21, 1952, in Fayetteville at the home of Rosa Zagnoni Marinoni, who was designated by the state NLAPW president, Mrs. Virgil Barnwell, to organize a branch here.

First officers were Marie Morris Rushing of Fayetteville, president; Lucy M. Hail, Springdale, first vice president; Veda Carter, Ozark, second vice president; Ruth Wilson Scholl, Springdale, third vice president; Gladys L. Hamilton, Summers, secretary; Virginia D. Sturm, Sulphur Springs, treasurer; and Bonnie Lela Crump, Eureka Springs, corresponding secretary and historian.

In early scrapbooks of the Branch there is much evidence of the talents and efforts of those and other members who have followed. For instance, Rosa Marinoni had 510 poems published in the Chicago Tribune. Her University City Poetry Club began in 1925, and she later was chosen Arkansas Poet Laureate. An energetic and compassionate woman, she helped many young poets, including Edsel Ford.

The National League originated in 1897 after an experience in New York when only men were admitted to a lecture by Oliver Wendell Holmes. The women who were turned away decided to take a stand for freedom of expression and strength of conviction. They took their wounded spirits to Washington, D. C., and banded together, "One for all and all for one."

Each Pen Woman is a professional in her field—in writing, art, or music.

In 1987 the 18 members of the Northwest Arkansas Branch came from Fayetteville, Rogers, Bentonville, Bella Vista, Springdale, Lincoln, and Springtown.

A bequest of Jessie Stewart Gilstrap, longtime Pen Woman of Bentonville who died in 1980, has enabled the Branch to award annually to a high school senior girl in this area a scholarship for advanced study in her choice of writing, art, or music.

Current Branch officers are the following: Helen Moeller, Rogers, president; Alta Watson, Rogers, vice president; Madeline Lee, Rogers, recording secretary; Ruth Jorgensen, Rogers, corresponding secretary; and Mary Coffin, Fayetteville, treasurer.

The Branch meets monthly, except in January and during the summer, for a morning business meeting, luncheon, and afternoon program, with members taking turn as hostess.

National headquarters is the Pen Arts Building in Washington, a former home of Robert Todd Lincoln.

National Organization For Women (NOW)

The National Organization for Women (NOW) was founded in 1966, to "bring women into full participation in the mainstream of American society now." NOW is concerned with all issues that can be classified as women's rights. These include: stopping violence against women, pay equity, eliminating discrimination based on gender, age, race, sexual preference, or challenge to physical ability, as well as reproductive rights, education, lesbian/gay rights, health, spirituality, and child care/development.

Candlelight Vigil, Washington County Courthouse, January 1986.

One of the primary goals of NOW is the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the U. S. Constitution. Without the strength of a Constitutional foundation, the progress made by women in gaining social and political equality remains precarious.

The first NOW chapter was started in Washington County in 1981 by Cecelia Ryker Seay after a debate on the University of Arkansas campus by anti-ERA spokesperson Phyllis Schlafly and NOW representative Karen DeCrow.

Locally, NOW has worked to build coalitions among such diverse women's groups as business professionals, lesbian separatists, homemakers, etc. Early members of NOW were also involved in the establishment of the local Rape Crisis and the Battered Women's Shelter.

Presidents of NOW have included Seay, Julie Yantis, Sally Carter, and Wanda Stephens. Beginning in 1986, the local NOW chapter abandoned the system of electing officers and changed to a volunteer steering committee in an effort to implement a more feminist style of leadership. Current committee members are Nancy Vaughn, Wanda Stephens, Lynna Snider, Donna Schwartz, Patricia Schram, Denele Campbell, and Teresa Blagg.

The women of NOW are still hoping for the passage of the ERA, but in the interim, we continue to work on local issues of importance to women, such as our annual food collection for the Battered Women's Shelter, and our continuing attempts to focus the public's attention on women's need for equality in all aspects of society. Despite any minor setbacks, we are confident that we are laying the groundwork for the success of future feminists, just as our ancestresses made possible the rights and privileges that we now enjoy.

National Society of the Daughters Of the American Colonists

Major Brian Pendleton Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Colonists was organized on 2 April 1927 in Fayetteville and was the first chapter in Arkansas. The charter members included Ruth Thompson Bird, Julia Dawson Blair, Lillian Palmer Gregson, Ione Clegg Leaming, Julia Gould McAdams, Miss Florence Blair Patterson, Marian Gladson Ratliff, Margaret Dunaway Thompson, Georgene Goss, Eugenis Rhodes, Fay Phelps, and Mrs. Jeffers. In 1988, Mrs. Paul (Eugenia) Rhodes is the only charter member still living and active in Major Brian Pendleton Chapter.

The object of the Society is patriotic, historical and educational; to make research as to history and deeds of the American Colonists and to record and publish same; to commemorate deeds of Colonial interest; to inculcate and foster love of America and its institutions by all its residents; to obey its laws and venerate its flag - the emblem of its power and civic righteousness.

Membership is by invitation and prospective members must be able to trace and document their lineage to actual residents of America when it was under foreign government as colonies.

The chapter has luncheon meetings the 2nd Tuesday of each month October through May. Preceding the business meeting a speaker is invited to talk to the group on patriotic, judicial, conservational, or historical subjects.

Several members volunteer their time and expertise in genealogy to both the Fayetteville Public Library and to the Washington County Historical Society.

With the Oak Leaf as its emblem, the chapter's motto is - Past - Present - Future.

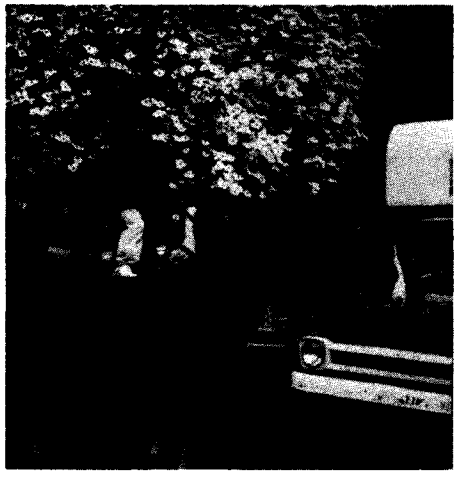
Northwest Arkansas Cavalcade

The spring of 1951, Shorty Parsons and Sandy Boone were at Harve Noblin's ranch in Elm Springs roping goats in Harve's lighted arena when Sandy threw a challenge to Shorty. He dared Parsons to ride a horse to the state fair in Little Rock. Shorty accepted Boone's challenge and they involved Don Hoyt (director of Rogers' Chamber of Commerce at that time and later head of Springdale's Chamber) in its promotion.



L. J. Stewart riding Jo - Dogwood ride Devil's Den - 1980.

Hoyt was a good promoter, and he organized an entire group of riders to make the horseback ride to Little Rock. He involved both Missouri and Oklahoma in the trail ride, and more than 100 (possibly 150) riders took part in the historic ride.

The riders left from Brashears Switch, a mile out of St. Paul, Arkansas. Veterinarian, Dr. C. L. Reed, went along to take care of the horses; Chub Tabor shod them. Riders needing first aid, aspirin or liniment were tended by a Dr. Clark.

Wayne Hyden, an Arkansas State Policeman, had broken his leg but accompanied the riders in his state patrol car. Lewis Pianalto rode a white horse and was "trail boss" or leader of the group.

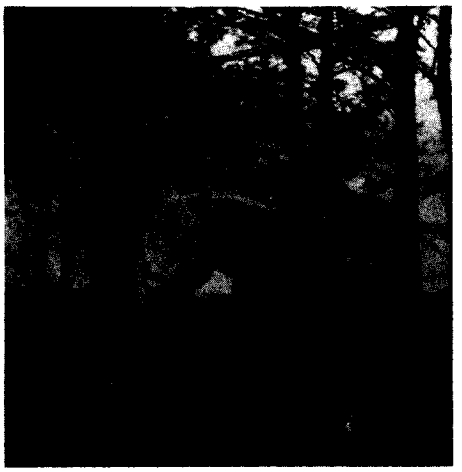
Herman Deatherage took on the role of "clown", rode a mule and clowned all the way to Little Rock. His sidekick was Slim Keck from Rogers, Arkansas. Herman was "jailed" in Morrillton for not having a tail light—all in good fun.

"Cactus" Clark catered the lunches, and the small towns usually fed the riders each night. Omolene Feed, by Purina, was supplied to feed the horses.



Gloria Stewart and Grey Boy - Dogwood ride - 1980.

Few people had horse trailers, and most riders traveled light with a sleeping bag and one suitcase to be thrown on a truck. At each stop along the way it was a festival atmosphere, and most riders partied and danced each night with the "locals".

That first trip took five days of "iffy" weather and primitive camping sites. One brave soul, Paul Marinoni walked the entire trail to Little Rock and had blisters to show the Minnesota photographer, named McRoberts, who recorded this and other events for posterity.

Few such trail-riding clubs existed in the 50's. Some of those first supporters and organizers from the Little Rock ride met at Hal Brogdon's "Chicken Little" Restaurant, Springdale; and elected Raymond Ash, president and Ray Henry secretary of NWA Cavalcade.

Early rides made by the Cavalcade include: Revillo Ranch (?) Bella Vista, Arkansas; Pineville, Missouri, Fiddlers Bend, Oklahoma; Sallisaw, Oklahoma; Hanging Rock, Oklahoma; Roaring River, Missouri; Dogpatch, Arkansas; Inspiration Point, (Mt. Gaylor) Arkansas; Lake Wedington, Arkansas; Lake Francis, Arkansas; Holiday Island, Arkansas; Tulsa, Oklahoma; Muskogee, Oklahoma; and Springfield, Missouri.

At present, three trail rides a year are planned for Devil's Den—the Dogwood ride in late April, the spring ride in early June and the fall ride in October when the leaves have turned.

Well-known public figures having belonged to the Cavalcade include former governor, Orval Faubus. One member and former trail boss for the group cut a trail through Devil's Den Park and it was named for him (Gorley King Trail). Members continue to promote preservation of natural trails and wildlife. King, over 80 now is still one of the more than 370 members of the NWA Cavalcade. Other charter members still living include: Mary Bell, Sandy Boone, Viola Deatherage, Mona Lewis and Tom Earl Smith. The information for this organization history was provided by Deatherage, Boone and secretaries, Gloria Stewart and Betty Dietz.

Northwest Arkansas Handweavers' Guild

The Northwest Arkansas Handweavers' Guild has its roots in the Benton County Rug Weavers Association which was formed in the 1920s as part of the County Extension program. However, the Association did not function as a group for several years.

In 1946, Jan and Jane, a couple seeking a warmer climate for retirement, moved to West Fork in Washington County from Michigan. They opened a weaving studio and furnished the spark for the Northwest Arkansas Handweavers' Guild. The first duly elected officers were named in August 1949 and, for the next decade, this group made an indelible impact on the art and craft revival which seemed to be sweeping the nation.

In the spring of 1954, the Guild sponsored a short weaving course for the study of weaving techniques and enrolled beginners as well as advanced weavers for a one-week period. This was held at War Eagle Mills Farm, home of Lester and Blanche H. Elliott, who had moved from near Fayetteville to War Eagle in 1953. The course closed with an exhibit of old and new weaving open to the public.

Flushed by the success of this first weaving school and exhibit at War Eagle, another idea was born. War Eagle had the natural setting and atmosphere for an arts and crafts fair. The Guild chose October, 1954 for the time to present the first Ozarks Arts and Crafts Fair. Since that time, the little weaving exhibit has grown into one of the largest arts and crafts fairs of its kind in the Ozarks.

As the Ozark Arts and Crafts Fair Association took over the administration of the Fair, the weaving guild became less active. But in the late 1970's the group began meeting regularly again. Today the Guild is enjoying new vigor with 40 members from northwest Arkansas and northeast Oklahoma.

The object of the Guild is to promote interest and greater skill in the fiber arts, primarily weaving. To further that goal, monthly programs are presented on a variety of subjects related to weaving and fiber art including workshops sometimes presented by a well-known weaver and lecturer.

The Guild maintains a small library and owns two table looms that may be rented.

Meetings are held the second Saturday of the month September through June at the Arts Center of the Ozarks in Springdale at 10:00 AM unless otherwise announced.

Northwest Arkansas Kennel Club, Inc.

The Northwest Arkansas Kennel Club was established and incorporated in 1969 to further the advancement of all breeds of purebred dogs; to do all in its power to protect and advance the interests of purebred dogs and to encourage sportsmanlike competition at dog shows and obedience trials; also to conduct AKC sanctioned matches, dog shows and obedience trials under the rules of the American Kennel Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northwest Arkansas Kennel Club, Inc., is held on the second Tuesday of each month. Contact a member for time and location. We welcome newcomers and visitors.

The Northwest Arkansas Kennel Club offers conformation classes during the year and can also offer advice on obedience classes. Annually, the club offers an American Kennel Club sanctioned match and obedience trial in addition to two AKC licensed all-breed point shows. One of these shows is held in Northwest Arkansas and the other is currently being held in conjunction with other AKC licensed shows in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Officers and Directors of the Northwest Arkansas Kennel Club, Inc., include: David Cochrane, president; Arch Little, vice-president; Vivian Little, recording secretary; Christine Kumbera, corresponding secretary; and Beth Hollandsworth, treasurer. The board of directors are: Claudia Cochrane, Johnnie Gentry, Jerry O'Dell, and Mark Quinn.

Northwest Arkansas Rape Crisis, Inc.

Northwest Arkansas Rape Crisis, Inc. is a private, non-profit organization concerned with the problem of rape in our community. The goals of the program include: 1) to provide crisis intervention and emotional support to rape victims and their families and friends; 2) to increase community awareness and understanding of the problem of rape; and 3) to serve as a catalyst for effecting changes in the health care, law enforcement and criminal justice systems. NWA Rape Crisis Board Members, staff and volunteers are concerned that rape victims don't remain "victims" and that the community develop a more realistic and compassionate understanding of the problems of rape in our community.

NWA Rape Crisis operated as a University of Arkansas sponsored program through the University Women's Center with support for a crisis line from Ozark Guidance Center from the years 1976 through 1981. In 1982 NWA Rape Crisis incorporated into an independent private, non-profit organization with an eleven member volunteer board of directors, a quarter-time director, and a quarter-time volunteer coordinator. From 1983 to 1985 NWA Rape Crisis added a community education coordinator to its staff, published a quarterly newsletter, held an annual Rape Awareness Week, and initiated a rape survivors support group. Funding sources consisted of Ozark Guidance Center, Arkansas Health Department, Fayetteville and Springdale United Funds, Washington County Quorum Court, and membership donations. In 1986 NWA Rape Crisis secured additional funding through the Victims of Crime Act of 1984. Permanent office space was acquired in the Washington County Economic Opportunity Agency building. As of January 1988, NWA Rape Crisis has three permanent part-time employees, an eleven member volunteer board of directors, ten volunteer crisis advocates, and four community education volunteers. The business office is still located in the Economic Opportunity Agency building. Current funding sources consist of Ozark Guidance Center, Fayetteville and Springdale United Ways, and the Victims of Crime Act.

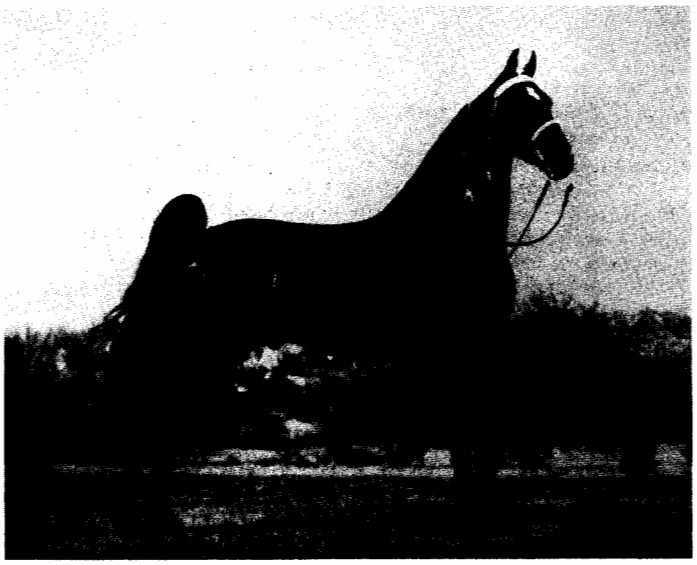
Northwest Arkansas Riding Club

Frances Lindloff & Lorraine Williams

The Northwest Arkansas Riding Club was founded on January 30, 1945 in Fayetteville under the leadership of Gene Goff. The object of the club was to "create, stimulate and maintain interest in saddle horses and horseback riding in northwest Arkansas, to obtain the best possible facilities there for, to foster social relations and good fellowship and to work together for the common advantages of all those interested in horses." The name Northwest Arkansas was suggested by Herbert Thomas, a prominent businessman and banker who foresaw the future growth of this area and who became the club's first treasurer. A quarterly newsletter "Horse Tales" was named by Corin McIlroy and is edited by Frances Lindloff.



Tennessee Walking Horse Stallion "Old Glory"

The first nationally advertised Horse Show sponsored by the new club was held on June 18-19, 1945 at the old Washington County Fairgrounds then located on Razorback Road. Since Gene Goff was a well known breeder of Tennessee Walking Horses, owner of Verna Lea Farms, and of the Grand Champion Old Glory, Walkers were prominent in the shows which introduced Stock Horses, Harness, Three and Five-Gaited Saddle Horses and Ponies which came from 14 states. $7500 was given in prize money and an informative program of more than 80 pages was provided.

In 1946, Jake Davis, Roy Williams and Gene Goff recommended that the club purchase 14 acres of land 1 mile south of Fayetteville on old Highway. 71 for $4500, that amount being underwritten by members of the club, which was then incorporated by state law as a non-profit association. In spite of the difficulty of securing materials at that time, the grounds soon boasted fences, roads, lights, water, rodeo chutes and a fine show arena which measured 150 x 300 feet.

In 1968 the land was sold to the Industrial Development Association and the club then purchased 16 acres east of the new Washington County Fairgrounds adjoining the University of Arkansas Farm. The grandstand and arena fences were moved, trees were planted and a clubhouse built. Regional and local shows are presented annually.

Presidents 1945-1987 Raymond Ash, M. O. Doolittle, Emil Sonneman, Frances Lindloff, Bruce Crider, Ray Alford, Thad Rowden Sr., John R. G. Parker, John D. Askew, J. B. Biles, A. R. OTHSA, Inc.

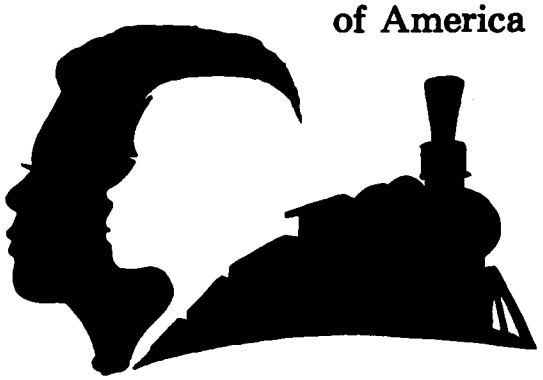
December 21, 1987, Arkansas Secretary of State, W. J. "Bill" McCuen, signed a Certificate of Incorporation of Domestic Non-Profit Corporation, officially placing the Orphan Train Heritage Society of America, Inc. (OTHSA) into being.

Phil Sutton and Mary Ellen Johnson are the official incorporators. Iva Flo Jackson Hill, Kay B. Hall, and Charlotte Woodward joined Phil Sutton and Mary Ellen Johnson as the first Board of Directors.

The purpose of this organization is to collect and preserve the history of an era in America known as the "placing-out" program, 1854 to 1929.

During this 75 year span, over 150,000 orphaned, abandoned and homeless children were taken out of institutions, placed aboard trains, traveling to towns along the railroad lines where new homes would be found for them. Thus, the name "Orphan Trains" came to indicate this was happening and it was called a "Placing-out" method. Children were chosen by basically two ways; pre-selection of children requested and by lining a group up for inspection by local citizens.

Orphan Train Heritage Society of America

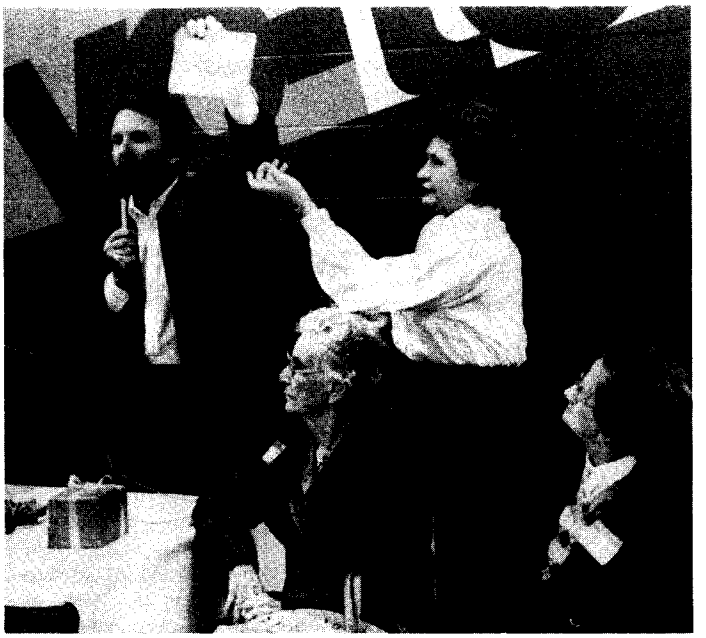


Some of the children were indentured and with others taken by a contract signed between the institution in charge acting as legal guardian for these children, and the adults agreeing to take the children into their homes and to care for them.

Brothers and sisters often became separated never to find each other again. OTHSA lists the surnames of Orphan Train riders found in the data gathered by the organization.

The major institutions participating in the early years were the New York Children's Aid Society, New York Foundling Hospital and the New England Home for Little Wanderers (Boston, Massachusetts).

Mary Ellen Johnson of Springdale and Phil Sutton of Tulsa, Oklahoma, became aware of the Orphan Trains while gathering data for the new Washington County History Book in 1986.



First Annual OTHSA Reunion, Phil Sutton and Mary Ellen Johnson with photograph of children arriving in Louisiana.

Charlotte Woodward, Tulsa, Oklahoma submitted her grandmother's story, Carrie Salverson, who rode an Orphan Train, to be printed in this book.

Further research revealed the large number of children and descendants involved and the scarcity of available historical materials. A central clearinghouse has now been established making available to the membership information on the era, institutions involved and the families unable to care for the children and those taking the children.

For more information write to: OTHSA, 4453 South 48th Street, Springdale, Arkansas, 72764, Tel. (501) 751-7830.

The first annual meeting for members and interested persons was held October 7, 8, 9th, 1988, and called a "Reunion". Over 175 persons attended including newspaper reporters from the Dallas Morning News and New York Newsday. Nineteen Orphan Train Riders were present for a group photograph.

The 1989 Reunion is scheduled for Fayetteville, Arkansas, October 7th. Annual Reunions will be held the first full weekend of each October.

On January 25, 1989, a segment on an NBC-TV program, UNSOLVED MYSTERIES brought nationwide recognition to OTHSA. Membership June 1, 1989 numbered 525.

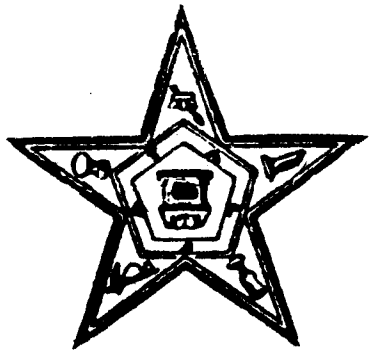
Order of the Eastern Star

The members of the Order of the Eastern Star in Fayetteville are grateful for a group of Masons from Fayetteville who succeeded in establishing Washington Lodge #1, F. & A. M. and the persons initiated thereto. The Order is privileged to enjoy the association and fellowship with this group of Masons and with each other.

The Order of the Eastern Star was first organized in Arkansas on October 2, 1876. The following month, on November 16, 1876, General Grand Chapter was organized and Arkansas became a charter member of General Grand Chapter based on a letter of request dated October 8, 1876. While the members of the Eastern Star are related by high esteem to the members of the Masonic Fraternity, the Order is no part of that ancient institution.

The first Eastern Star Chapter was instituted in Fayetteville on April 1, 1908, at which time Fayetteville Chapter #313 was formed. The first officers were: Amanda Braley, Worthy Matron;



Emblem-Order of the Eastern Star

H. M. Haley, Worthy Patron; and Mrs. Moses Baum, Associate Matron. The chapter continued until September 25, 1926, at which time 35 members surrendered the charter.

On July 20, 1926, fifteen women and seven Masons met in the Masonic Hall provided by Washington Lodge #1, F. & A. M., located on the third floor over the City Administration Building, for the purpose of instituting an Eastern Star Chapter. Mae Fentress of Fort Smith, District Deputy Grand Lecturer, presided. Charter members of the new chapter were: Sue Pinkerton, Iva Duggan, Alice Sowder, Jewel Jones, Nancy Miller, Elsie Dellinger, Angie B. Reed, Ruth Lano, Georgia Backstrom, Gertrude Cook, Sue Hathcock, Pansy Jackson, Eva Sowder, Mounce Starnes, Jessie Backstrom, R. E. Sharp, W. F. Starnes, E. H. Jones, S. C. Dellinger, O. L. Champion, W. B. Starnes and H. E. Richardson.

On December 7, 1926, the first meeting under the new charter for University City Chapter #495 was held. Meetings were held each first and third Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. The first officers were: Nancy Miller, Worthy Matron and S. C. Dellinger, Worthy Patron. The first initiation was held February 15, 1927, at which time Virginia Palmer and Jess Walters were initiated. On September 4, 1929, General Grand Chapter voted to create an office of Associate Patron. The first Associate Patron for University City Chapter was C. E. Pierce.

The floral offering was started in 1934. A Past Matrons' and Past Patrons' Club was organized February 19, 1933. A Past Matrons' Club was organized May 5, 1945 with Zetta Dever McGaugh as the first elected President. Fourteen members participated in forming this club. This has been a very active club and yearly honors the Arkansas Grand Officers with a luncheon. A Social Club was organized June 16, 1936 with nine members. This club is also very active. Mrs. Geneva Cherry was its first President. A Study Club was organized February 10, 1960.

Members of University City Chapter assisted Washington Lodge #1 in moving into the new Masonic Temple at 1106 Masonic Drive on June 2, 1970. The cornerstone was laid March 6, 1969 and the new temple building was dedicated October 7, 1978. University City Chapter has been very active in helping furnish the Temple. Fund raising projects have included rummage and bake sales, auctions, temple banks, garage sales, birthday and anniversary donations and many personal donations.

The Chapter was in District One until Grand Chapter of Arkansas divided the districts. Fayetteville is now in District 6 with chapters located at Huntsville, West Fork, Clyde, Lincoln, Springdale, Prairie Grove and Goshen.

University City Chapter #495 has had 22 members who have been members of the Order more than fifty years. Twelve deceased members were Sue Hathcock, Hope Marshall, Anna Mashburn, Berta McGehee, Geneva Cherry, Ida Lano, Zanna Lansford, Ann Corrigan, Mabel Maddox, Bob Maddox, Vivian Canfield and Clara White. The ten members living today are Lula Barber, Mayme Johnson, Hazel Kelly, Ola Mae Liles, Lucille Mace, Eliene Morrison, Jane Roberts, Mabel Stanford, Zetta Dever McGaugh and Amy Wells.

Effective 1968, a change in the Grand Chapter eligibility requirements made it possible for members to join through their grandfathers' Masonic affiliation. Yearly proficiency test questions were introduced by Grand Chapter as a part of the work in 1927 and a proficiency card was issued to members qualifying. In 1938 the Masonic Lodge and Eastern Star sponsored the Order of Rainbow for Girls, at which time Fayetteville Assembly #14 was instituted. The Masonic Lodge later withdrew as sponsors. The Assembly recently became inactive and the charter returned.

Eastern Star contributes to the following funds: cancer, heart, benevolent, educational loan, and ESTARL (Eastern Star Training Award for Religious Leadership). Arkansas Grand Chapter voted to grant dual memberships in 1985 for members wishing to belong to two chapters. The carpet in the Hall was donated by Mabel Stanford. It was designed by Judge Ed Meriwether and Billie Head from a picture of the floor in King Solomon's Temple.

Helen (Mrs. Paul) Baxter has devoted many hours summarizing a written history of University City Chapter. As University City Chapter #495 celebrated its 50th anniversary, members of the chapter celebrated in the election and installation of the first Worthy Grand Patron in chapter history. Howard H. Griffith was elected Grand Sentinel for 1975, Associate Grand Patron for 1976 and Worthy Grand Patron for 1977. Rosalie Batchelder of Bull Shoals was elected Worthy Grand Matron for 1977. These two leaders brought a lot of social enjoyment to the Chapter, together with some special appointments to Grand Chapter for its members. All worked together in a labor of love. Billie Lee Griffith was appointed Grand Electa to serve during 1977, spreading the love of the chapter while her husband represented Arkansas and his Chapter in his travels as Worthy Grand Patron.

University City Chapter members who have been elected or appointed by Arkansas Grand Chapter are as follows: Grand Officers: 1928-Grand Organist, Hazel Foust; 1934-Grand Warder, Helen Barron; 1937-Assoc. Grand Conductress, Faye Stanfill; 1942-Grand Electa, Geneva Cherry; 1946-Grand Esther, Blonnie Rose Henbest; 1953-Grand Adah, Zetta Dever McGaugh; 1966-Grand Ruth, Juanita Harness; 1975-Grand Sentinel, Howard H. Griffith; 1976-Associate Grand Patron, Howard H. Griffith; 1977-Worthy Grand Patron, Howard H. Griffith; 1977-Grand Electa, Billie Lee Griffith. Deputy Grand Lecturers: 1927 LaRena Kirkpatrick, 1958-1959 Jerrye Smith, 1971-1972 Billie Lee Griffith, 1978-1979 Gertrude Cupps, 1982-1983 Helen Blackwell. Grand Representatives to Other Jurisdictions Near Arkansas: 1936 Wisconsin, Helen Barron;1942 New Mexico, Edith Smith; 1953-1955 Vermont, Pearl Spyres; 1956-1957 Oklahoma, Virginia Prickett; 1962-1964 Nova Scotia, Josephine Wood; 1962-1964 New Mexico, Gertrude Cupps; 1968 Saskatchewan, Canada, Jerrye Smith; 1974-1975 Alberta, Canada, Jane Roberts; 1977-1978 Oklahoma, Helen Blackwell; 1977-1979 Mississippi, Marie Murray; 1977-1978 Louisiana, Billie Head;1983-1984 Ohio, Lee Stewart.

Order of the Purple Heart

The Military Order of the Purple Heart of the U. S. A. goes back to George Washington's time when the Purple Heart was first awarded. It is the oldest military decoration in the U. S. and second oldest in the world, being revived by General Douglas MacArthur on War Department General Order #3 on February 22, 1932, and inserted in the Congressional Record and duly charted October 18, 1972.

The Fayetteville Chapter #460 Military Order of the Purple Heart was granted a charter on June 25, 1982. It was organized just prior to that date by Paul E. O'Neal, then of Winslow, Arkansas. After learning of a chapter in Fort Smith, he joined that and as a member of that chapter began recruiting eligible Veterans in the northwest Arkansas area to form a new chapter. These new members became members of the Fort Smith Chapter until the required number of twelve or more was attained. These members were then sworn in as members of Chapter #460 M. O. P. H. of Fayetteville, Arkansas. Thus, the new chapter was formed.

The men becoming charter members are: George F. Blackwell, Edgal Holt, Lester M. Holt, George S. Jester, Paul E. O'Neal, Carl F. Parson, Joe Mason, Raymond A. Parson, Charles Dodson, Charles C. Rogers, L. C. Swofford, Clifford Van Sickle, Clifford S. Ward, Bobby G. Welch, James L. Wright and Charles Givens.

The executive branch of the Chapter consists of six elected officers and seven appointed officers. The principles underlying all-patrotic allegiance to the United States of America, fidelity to its Constitution and laws, the security of civil liberty and the permanence of free institutions. The objects are educational, fraternal, historical and patriotic.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, Unit #460, was formed shortly after the charter was granted to Chapter #460. This unit was formed by Hassie O'Neal, then of Winslow, and their charter was granted September 30, 1982. The charter members of this unit are: Hassie O'Neal, Anita June Parson, Edith June Rogers, Mary M. Holt, Carrie L. Wright, Helen Nadine Jester, Evelyn Holt, Helen A. Blackwell, Ruby Anderson, Stella Allen, Carol Holloway and Norma Lea Dodson.

Ozark Dulcimer Society

The Appalachian Mountain (lap) dulcimer had its origin in early nineteenth century America, though forerunners were found in Europe. The mountain dulcimer was almost forgotten through the years, but is now regaining popularity in the music world. Interest in this dulcet-toned instrument began locally when the Continuing Education Department of the University of Arkansas offered, in 1977, its first of several courses in dulcimer construction, with Regan Cole as the initial instructor. On January 27, 1980, as an outgrowth of the construction classes, an enthusiastic group met to form the Ozark Dulcimer Society of Fayetteville, Arkansas, for the purpose of "reviving and perpetuating" the art of dulcimer playing. Many of our Society members still make their own instruments and some, for sale.

Dulcimer

October 18, 1986, "Autumnfest", McIlroy Plaza, Fayetteville

The charter officers of the Ozark Dulcimer Society were:

Darene Bingham, President; Nancy Vaughn, Secretary-Treasurer; Martha Polk, Public Relations Coordinator. Other charter members were Ed Eidson, Rusty McClung, Roberta Carter, Chara Windsong, Shane Miller and the two later construction teachers, Sidney Cox and Stanley Potts. Meetings were held in the old Continuing Education Building on West Street. In these early months meetings were devoted to "jamming" and learning the "basics" from the two construction teachers Cox and Potts, and John Astarb, music teacher from Springdale.

Workshops held locally and in Mountain View, Arkansas, and Winfield, Kansas, helped the Society grow rapidly. Importantly, we learned to play singly and as a "group". By July, 1980, the Sequoyah United Methodist Church had graciously afforded the Society a place to meet. It soon became evident that the organization needed leadership to coordinate the learning, music collection and adaptation, and scheduling of performances—the best incentive there is for "practice"! In 1981, Mary Schaller was chosen as Music Director and we began to accept playing engagments.

As of February, 1988, the Dulcimer Society still meets at Sequoyah United Methodist Church, second and fourth Monday evenings, year round. Performances are presented for small gatherings, clubs, schools, churches, nursing homes, hospitals, area celebrations, civic and professional organizations. And some times, just for fun! We have gradually acquired our own sound system for program use when needed.

In 1985, the Ozark Dulcimer Society sponsored the organization of the Bella Vista Dulcimer Society, Bella Vista, Arkansas, with one of our members, Virginia Houghton, as Music Director. Through these organizations it is hoped that we can bring to area residents, as well as ourselves, the enjoyment from hearing folk music—historic and current—played and sung with the dulcimer. Occasionally, we branch out into other fields of music. Variety is added to programs with the use of recorder, guitar, autoharp, psaltery, jews harp and the wooden spoons and dancing doll—all from within the Society membership.

The current membership includes Virginia May, Librarian; Rita Miller, Refreshment Chairman; Irma Boyer, Treasurer; C. C. (Pete) Schaller and Jim Sadler, Sound Coodinators; Mary Schaller, President/Director; Barbara Griscom, Virginia Houghton, Charlotte Rotramel, Sid Cox, Ruth Greenwood, Frances Cole, Bonnie Burnette-Smith, and Bonnie Ferguson, new members are welcomed at any time and given basic instruction. Yearly dues are minimal.

Ozark Highlanders Bagpipe Band

The Ozark Highlanders Bagpipe Band was the first Scottish group formed in Washington County and began in 1983. It was remarkable that it took so long for such an organization to form, considering that about half the population of the Ozarks can claim Scottish ancestry. But then the Scots are not like the Germans, where any time you have five Germans, they will form seven clubs!

The Ozark Highlanders were begun by Ramon Hendricks and Dr. Steven Wilson to encourage the development and preservation of Scottish Heritage. Since so much of the mountain way of life is a direct descendant of the Scots in Appalachia, we felt that this would simultaneously promote the preservation of Ozark Mountain heritage. Customs, culture and music are almost indistinguishable between the Ozark Mountains and the Scottish Highlands.

Ramon Hendricks, living at Goshen, Arkansas, was originally a well-known pipe major in the second battalion, Black Watch, was soloist for the U. S. Naval Academy Band for 22 years, had played solo pipes for Princess Margaret of Great Britain and is internationally known as a piper and percussionist.

The Ozark Highlanders immediately on formation began to compete against other pipers and pipe bands and have always done well. They have finished in the top three in every band competition they have entered, and many have won awards in individual piping competition and drumming competition. In Ozark Highlanders Band in full dress.

1986, the band was selected to play at the cake cutting ceremony for the Arkansas Sesquicentennial Celebration in Fayetteville. In the same year, they won Best of Parade honors at Fort Scott, Kansas before 35 thousand people. In 1987, the band won first place honors at regional band competition held at Batesville, Arkansas defeating bands from eastern Arkansas and Missouri. They are currently the top bagpipe band in this region of the United States.

The Ozark Highlanders perform for an average of 35 events locally each year, and in 1987 assisted in the formation of another organization, the Scottish Society of Northwest Arkansas, a non-musical group of persons of Scottish descent, whose purpose is to further enhance the preservation of Scottish culture.

Ozark Literacy Council, Inc.

Washington County residents have had the opportunity to hear about the Laubach literacy service since late 1963. However, due to the many name changes, it may have been confusing as to what organization it was. Many county residents have been and still are a part of this effort. They have either reaped the benefits as new and improved readers or as literacy volunteers reaping the thrill and appreciation from students succeeding in reading skills.

Ozark Literacy Council, Inc. efforts of Laubach literacy service in Washington County, had its beginning as the result of Mrs. Lela Tisdale's trip to the Holy Land in 1963. While in Beruit, an educational speaker from the United Nations suggested that someone might volunteer to provide room and board for a young man to attend school in the United States. Jamil Shami son of Jordan's Laubach Program Director, then came to live at the Tisdale home while attending the University of Arkansas.

Jamil was invited to speak to an adult class at Central Methodist Church about his father's work in teaching illiterates by using the Laubach method. This spearheaded the Fayetteville Company of Compassion to be organized on March 2, 1964. Founders, besides Mrs. Tisdale, were Charles Adams, Betty Boston, Freda Bridenstein, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Gibson, Mary Howell, Sylvia McRoy, Mae Weir and Holly Woolcock.

In May of 1964, this group hosted the awe-inspiring educator, author, lecturer and spiritual leader, Dr. Frank C. Laubach. Publicity before and after his visit gave impetus to the local efforts of his Laubach method with his chosen "Each One Teach One" motto. Several area churches, organizations and individuals contributed time and money to the Fayetteville Company of Compassion's literacy service.

As a result of their talk with Jerrell Terrell of Adult Education at Fayetteville High School, Jamil Shami conducted the first tutor training. He certified sixteen as Laubach tutors on June 11, 1964.

The Company of Compassion's immediate objective was to teach adults. Their long range goals were to provide tutors for slow readers in the local schools and to teach English as a second language to foreign people. This extension of literacy service began as a slow process. People had to see results to be convinced. However, successes and dedication of leadership kept the movement going. The area media support was excellent and soon various area groups began to assist. These consisted of Adult Basic Education, the public schools, the University, EOA and welfare organizations. Recruitment was for both volunteers and students. The first Fayetteville Company of Compassion newsletter on file is dated as September 1968.

The Laubach-developed Streamlined English series was being used, although Dr. Frank was continuing to develop his series more to his own satisfaction and to the approval of the National Education Association. Soon his New Streamlined English series was published. He sent out the request for all individuals and groups to now use the NSE series, instead of his original series. He soon began to see the need to develop more qualified and systematic control of his methods and use of materials by Laubach tutor trainers across the nation.

Mrs. Tisdale of Fayetteville and by now an Arkansas leader of this developing service, was invited to attend a week-long, history-making conference in St. Louis during April 1969. The already two-year old National Affiliation for Literacy Advance (NALA) thereby became the first national organization geared to eradicating illiteracy. A constitution was written, officers elected, programs developed, certification and training standards were set. Although this literacy service has a Christian heritage, it was to be a non-sectarian, non-profit organization available to all races and creeds. Laubach's compassion for his fellowman and love of sharing the skills of reading is carried into his methodology and use of his literacy materials, as well as into the affiliated groups. All of this was put into force quickly upon Tisdale's return to our local area.

The organization changed its name to Laubach Literacy of Fayetteville and in July 1969, the McIlroy Bank donated the use of a suite of offices upstairs. Mildred Higgins served as the first part-time executive secretary. Student newsletters were being developed and mailed.

Church Women United of Fayetteville and Springdale assisted by embarking on a survey of those needing tutoring and potential volunteers to be trained as tutors and literacy leaders.

"Dr. Frank" passed away on June 11, 1970, at the age of 85. Laubach Literacy of Fayetteville resolved anew to assume their responsibility of the ongoing work of world literacy, which he had developed over forty years before.

Tisdale was elected to serve as the first NALA South Central regional chairman, therefore also serving on the national executive committee. As a result of her suggesting Fayetteville as a possible location for the 1972 national conference, Mt. Sequoyah Assembly was chosen. The local group would host the event.

1970 also brought Mrs. Paul Galloway, Mrs. Ethan Dodgen and Tisdale together to work on plans of reactivating this Laubach literacy service throughout Arkansas. Local efforts were spreading, with training set for Prairie Grove and Springdale volunteers. Betty Boston began conducting the Laubach Writing for New Readers workshops, so that a bi-monthly student's newsletter would be started.

Although again working only from the Tisdale home, the organization chose to broaden the servicae to meet the interest of Fayetteville, Springdale and all outlying areas of the county. Better coordination of the Laubach efforts was needed. The new name of Ozark Literacy Council was chosen at a dinner meeting held in May 1971 at the Coachman Inn. Officers and board members were Rev. Brian Vanciel, Holly Woolcock, Tisdale, Helen Brown,, David Hamilton, Glenn Reed, Ann Brown, Mayme Ferguson, Mary Howell, Marie Poindexter, Judge Richard Wells, Barbara Broyles, Bud Allen, Hal Douglas, Dr. Larry Greathouse, Bob C. Houston, Dr. Ben Israel, Joe Slaven, John Lachowski, C. Erle VanMeter, Rev. Barton Williams, Mrs. John Askew, Mrs. Loren Gibson, Mrs. Jerry Hinshaw, Mrs. G. E. Kisor, Mrs. Steve Lawrence, and Miss Matilda Ptak. The Fayetteville Jaycees agreed to do recruitment efforts.

The year 1971, became a flurry of efforts. The OLC constitution was written, the student newsletter was now a reality, plans and efforts were developing to host the national conference. The Tisdale home was besieged with activities, materials, tutoring, telephone calls and all the coordination of volunteer efforts for this OLC literacy service.

Over 200 persons representing forty-six states and two foreign countries attended their second biennial NALA conference, held at the Mt. Sequoyah Assembly Grounds in Fayetteville from April 17-22, 1972. Professional teachers and laypersons from across the United States, attending together to absorb, share, train and be trained in this Laubach service. . ."that all may read." Again, the media aided tremendously in inspiring the public to awaken and become a part of the local efforts.

Ozark Literacy Council (OLC) and their newly developed offspring, Lela's Literacy Council of Prairie Grove joined efforts for celebrating the United Nation's set date of September 8 as World Literacy Day. Newly certified Tutor Trainer of Literacy, Joy Reid of Springdale, and Tisdale were becoming swamped with training and organization efforts in both Benton and Washington Counties by the end of 1972.

Once again OLC was donated an office. By the Fall of 1973, volunteers huffed their way up four flights of stairs to the second floor of the EOA Building on the VA Hospital grounds. OLC also hosted the NALA South Central Laubach training conference, again at Mt. Sequoyah Assembly, with some assistance from the new Beaver Lake Literacy Council in Benton County. Charlie Adams' seminar of his Learning Bridge proved to be a highlight for conferees. Tisdale was re-elected regional chairman. Due to health, by fall she had to resign. Reid was elected to fill the vice-chairman's vacancy.

Our first local Junior High peer tutors became active in Springdale, after training in January of 1974. OLC was accepted as a member agency of United Fund, and RSVP began assisting with recruitment. They requested our training of volunteers throughout the county. Prairie Grove had lost their leadership, so members again came under the OLC umbrella. Training and organizational assistance helped Arkoma Literacy Council become a reality for Siloam Springs by March 1974.

Along with other full-time employment, OLC volunteer tutor trainers, tutors and administrative volunteers were kept extremely busy during 1975. Reid, as SC Vice-Chairman, also co-chaired the regional conference held at Lake Windemere in Missouri. EOA asked the council to move up one more floor. Six flights of steps to attend meetings proved too much for our older members and trainers could hardly lug the materials, when doing workshops throughout the county. Therefore, in May, Broyles and Reid celebrated a common birthday by assisting in moving OLC to the Circle C Motel #6 at 3073 North College Avenue, Fayetteville. Mabel Aston, as the OLC secretary, reported that 40 volunteers contributed 2,914 hours; 97 students learning with volunteer tutors in one-to-one lessons and 130 students in group approach from eleven Laubach certified teachers in area public schools. Also in 1975, it was good to have Springdale Jaycettes honor our OLC volunteers with a tea. Ozark Literacy Council has thrived on the Laubach compassion and dedication of its volunteers and Washington County has been blessed by more productive and better reading citizens.

Afternoon council meetings were tried a few years. Mazelle Fetter became the chairman for 1976-77. Word was received that Circle C was to be demolished for Power Lanes, so OLC temporarily moved into the College Avenue Motel #9. This allowed a two-room suite, but storage shelving was again built into the shower stall.

OLC was fortunate that responsibilities for the 1977 conference were shared throughout the six-state region by councils and individuals. The gavel was turned over to Reid for the next two-year term and being on the NALA executive committee seemed both awesome and an exciting responsibility. Local activities continued strong, with organizational assistance and training requested and given to form the Lincoln Literacy Council in July and Madison County Literacy Council by September. OLC completed 1977 by moving again. This time Betha Barrett as secretary, had us settled into two tiny rooms (with another two to be shared) in the Sonneman Building at 632 West Dickson near the University. We also hosted a quick area visit of Dr. Robert S. Laubach, son of Dr. Frank and co-author of the New Streamlined English series. Dr. Bob also established the New Readers Press, the Laubach Literacy publishing division.

The 1978 report shows that 53 volunteers were certified in five workshops and Matta Jean McDonald completed her Laubach tutor trainer certification. Thirty-one members donated over 2,852 hours tutoring 73 native speaking and 10 foreign born, totaling 83 students. Tisdale had moved out of the area and Reid was thankful that several others became tutor trainers to assist, some also from Benton County.

Shirley June Gibson became chairman of OLC. Lincoln Literacy Council lost the placement support of a new school counselor by the fall of 1979, plus leadership was having family health problems. Their council folded. Madison County work was continued, mostly within McDonald's school situation. They needed volunteers but then later also discontinued, as did Arkoma in Siloam Springs. OLC relocated by December 1980 to the rear of old Ash home, 1774 North College Avenue. Tisdale returned to area and re-activated her literacy efforts. Gibson began as apprentice tutor trainer when Deanna Daugherty took the OLC gavel. Tisdale became the Arkansas Literacy Councils state chairman. The NSE series were being revised, now called the Laubach Way to Reading series.

In 1982, the Reids were accompanied by another tutor trainer from Berryville to the national NALA conference in North Carolina. Highlights of the week included the name change and division of NALA into Laubach Literacy of Canada and now for the United States, Laubach Literacy Action. Barbara Bush attended as one of the main guest speakers. Our state organization, Arkansas Literacy Councils, Inc., and the Adult Education Section of Arkansas Department of Education did a cooperaative project of "Coordination of Literacy and ABE Efforts in Arkansas" to survey the literacy services available and areas needing such services. Broyles accepted the state gavel as Mrs. Max Reid accepted her 1982 treasurer's responsibilities. The many traveling tutor trainers also found time to attend and assist with the 1983 regional conference.

The parent organization, LLA, assisted in the national Coalition for Literacy and in 1984, the Ad Council began a 3-year cooperative effort in the behalf of literacy. This created a blitz of articles in the media and on TV with the father trying to read to his child. This and the 800 telephone number of CONTACT increased literacy efforts for all volunteer literacy service groups. Requests were from students and volunteers.

An ACTION proposal was approved for the state organization to place seven VISTA volunteers in literacy councils. OLC was fortunate to have Gibson accept our position. She then wrote and coordinated the Project ALIVE (Arkansas Literacy Innovative Volunteer Efforts), as a cooperative endeavor by Arkansas Literacy Councils, Inc. coordinating and training; American Legion Auxiliary hosting and recruiting for workshops, and funding through the Department of Education. This tremendous endeavor lead into the added responsibilities for the 1985 regional conference. More students were becoming involved each year in the council activities. Once again, OLC receives word the building to be demolished, this time for Taco Bell expansion. We move to 4171 Crossover Road, which is known as the Human Services Building, and had supposed we would not move again for several years. The 624 square feet seemed spacious! OLC open house and hosts for Dr. Bob and Fran Laubach on tour through South Central region.

In 1986, the American Broadcasting Company and the Public Broadcasting System picked up the cause of literacy and formed Project Literacy: U. S. (PLUS). Documentaries were developed from literacy activities and willing students across the nation. This TV coverage hit the new approach from students and thereby touched the hearts of the public, both volunteers and giving courage to those needing help. The illiteracy crisis came out of the closet and all literacy efforts increased.

Gibson completed her term as OLC's VISTA Volunteer and Reid accepted full time duty as of September 1986. The final six months figures showed 3,796 volunteer hours by OLC members, 147 one-to-one lessons held at our tutoring center, incorporation papers were completed with legal work donated by Jim Cypert. Media coverage increased and a cooperative Educational Fair was held. RSVP efforts of recruitment was increasing for our training and placement, as well as for other teacher's aides at public schools, due to an ACTION literacy grant chosen by LLA headquarters. This funding went to EOA/RSVP, however any Senior Citizen taking our Laubach training could have their tutoring material cost covered by signing up with RSVP.

Barbara Broyles, our OLC vice-chairman and ALC state chairman, was appointed to serve on the Governor's Commission for Adult Literacy. Gibson elected as South Central Literacy Action secretary.

PLUS caused literacy service to nearly explode in effort across the nation during 1987. Ozark Literacy Council increased efforts, plus meeting requests to assist with training and organizational efforts for re-activating Madison County Literacy Council in March, and in May for West Washingotn County Literacy Council. WWCLC also requested a training in Lincoln in July. Final OLC reports for 1987 show 4,384 volunteer hours, twelve 12-hour tutor training workshops conducted, 177 volunteers received LLA certification, 103 new students placed with tutors and 663 individual lessons held in OLC tutoring center. This does not account for the many Laubach tutors and students meeting in public schools, libraries, Lifestyles, Salvation Army, tutor's homes, churches, at Adult Ed and Vo-Tech. Three students graduated the full LWR series and two were intending to go to Northwest Vo-Tech to continue. Records from 1973 through 1987 show 619 volunteers have received Laubach certification by OLC's tutor trainers.

Ozark Literacy Council, Inc., completed 1987 in great need of expansion of space and financial support to meet the demand of requests for Laubach help, preference of lessons at tutoring center and for tutor's to have materials cost covered. James L. Hill, chairman, has stressed that Ozark Literacy Council, Inc. will continue to uphold the Frank C. Laubach intended quality of training and compassion in our literacy service for Washington County. It is that quality of leadership with the quality of material that has made Ozark Literacy Council, Inc., the continuing Laubach source for our community. Reading is a blessing to share.

Ozarks Gem and Mineral Club

The Ozarks Gem and Mineral Club was formally organized June 11th, 1974 at Fayetteville, Arkansas. Approval of our application for exemption from income taxes as a non-profit organization was received July 12th, 1974. There were 40 adult charter members, 4 junior members, and 3 members under 12 years of age. The first officers were: Rodney Hinson (the prime motivator), president; James L. Hudler, vice president; Vivian Medart, secretary; Elvie P. Heiney, treasurer; Erwin B. Medart, Alice J. Heiney, and Cheryl Skillern as directors. The Fayetteville Public Library assisted in the formation of this club by permitting Rodney Hinson to display his collection of gems, minerals, and fossils along with a questionnaire requesting signatures of persons interested in forming a club.

The purposes and objectives of this club are to unite those individuals interested in any or all of the following hobbies: The collection and identification of gems, fossils, minerals, metals, rock, etc. The art of cutting, faceting, and polishing gems, metals, minerals, rock, etc. The art of metal working, including design and execution of finished decorative or utility pieces embodying the use of polished gems and minerals when appropriate. To arrange meetings, lectures, displays and field trips. To arrange demonstrations and exhibits in schools, libraries, museums, etc. This will encourage the members to further their education in the arts and/or sciences enumerated herein. To cooperate with other similiar organizations in accomplishing these objectives. To promote interest and fellowship among people of this community and other parts of northwest Arkansas that are interested in the foregoing subjects.

The club has donated books and equipment to the Fayetteville Public Library and members have displayed their collections on several occasions. In cooperation with the Northwest Arkansas Gem and Mineral Society of Siloam Springs a large collection of different specimens was presented to the West Fork Public School in 1979. Earlier, an individual member gave a smaller collection to Butterfield Trail Elementary School of Fayetteville. Items of importance have been donated to the University of Arkansas Museum by individuals. The club meets once a month at the Fayetteville Public Library.

PSI Northwest Arkansas Chapter

The objectives of our organization are to elevate the standards of the secretarial profession and to promote its working relationship with management through continuing education, authorized programs, and publications. Our chapter supports the Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) Program, sponsors local seminars, and gives scholarships to deserving secretarial students. Since our chapter covers such a large area, members provide community service on an individual basis in their own towns. We define a secretary as an executive assistant who possesses a mastery of office skills, demonstrates the ability to assume responsibility without direct supervision, exercises initiative and judgment, and makes decisions within the scope of assigned authority.

Northwest Arkansas Chapter of National Secretaries Association (International) had its start in 1976, encompassing Fayetteville, Springdale, Rogers, Siloam Springs, Bentonville, Elkins, Farmington, Pea Ridge, Prairie Grove, Summers, West Fork and Winslow. Will Rogers Chapter, Tulsa, Oklahoma, chartered our chapter June 26, 1976, in the Student Union Theater at the University of Arkansas. Jo Kreie, CPS; Standard Register Company, Alice McQuay, CPS; John Brown University, and Frances Lee, Assistant Professor and Coordinator of Office Administration, University of Arkansas; were instrumental in the formation of our chapter, which started with 41 members. In December 1976, our chapter, then only six months old, chartered a sister chapter in Fort Smith.

In February 1981, our organization's name was changed to Professional Secretaries International. Our chapter hosted the Arkansas-Oklahoma Division Annual Meeting in May 1981 at the Ramada Inn. Lee Zachary, Springdale Chamber of Commerce, contributed to the success of our meeting.

In August 1986, Standard Register Company sponsored our 10th anniversary reception at the Fayetteville Holiday Inn. Installing officers from Oklahoma, Irma Elliott, CPS; and June Dudley, were on hand to celebrate with us, as well as Kent McVey, Ron Newell, Paul Baughman, and Bill Bequette of Standard Register; and other friends of our members.

Presidents of Northwest Arkansas Chapter have been: Jo Kreie, CPS; (charter president) Sally Washausen, CPS; Joyce Walker, Glenda Buffington, Adelene Austin, Jeanne Goode, Sue Mobley, Cleta Selman, CPS; Janet DeVore, Becky Zajicek, June Ball, Sharon Harvey-Gooding, and Janet Moulden. Our current membership has four charter members: Adelene Austin, Joan Pharr, CPS; Phyllis Rand, CPS; and Sally Washausen, CPS.

Poets and Writers of Northwest Arkansas

Poets and writers of Northwest Arkansas began under the name "Springdale Poets and Writers." It was formed as a group interested in perfecting their work through the association and encouragement of other writers.

Yvonne Wilson, author of Sifted Gold"", and Gloria Okes Perkins, co-author of Love Life for Every Married Couple"", written with Dr. Ed. Wheat (check index for his story), founded this organization October 21, 1980.

Clara Gehron Willis, poet and author from the Siloam Springs Writers was on hand to give technical advice and council. Charter members at that meeting include: Sandy Hunt, Renee Oelschlaeger, Jan Trout, Louise Ulmer and Richie Wadsworth.

From this small membership the group expanded to an open meeting forum with scheduled professional speakers covering writing of essays, short stories, novels, play writing, television writing, inspirational and religious writing, poetry, marketing and how and when to find an agent.

As membership grew, meetings were moved to the Arts Center of the Ozarks and, at present, meetings are held at the First Methodist Church, Springdale, on the second Tuesday of each month.

Officers who have served in the past are: Gloria Okes Perkins, Yvonne Wilson, Renee Oelschlaeger, Kay Hall, Charlie Pierson, Louise Ulmer, Judy Ballard, Dusty Richards, and Richie Wadsworth.

Officers elected for 1988 were: Kay Hall, president; Colleen Koerner, vice-president; Ruth Wells Snyder, secretary; Judy Ballard, treasurer and membership secretary.

In 1984, SPAW sponsored their first of three annual conferences. A thousand dollars in prize money was awarded, and by the third year, prize monies had increased to 1800 dollars.

During the 1985 conference on Mt. Sequoyah, Tom Whiteside, well-known Arkansas poet from Siloam Springs was honored as poet laureate of northwest Arkansas and was presented with an enscribed plaque.

The success of these conferences was overwhelming and could not have been accomplished without the help of Gloria Okes Perkins as director and Marie Denzinger, Deanna Grogan Greer, Vaunda Johnson, Charlie Pierson and Edna Browne as committee chairmen. Kay Hall and Dusty Richards served as emcees, and Richard Greer added so much with his annual sing-along at the Friday night "mixer".

Entertainment included a dramatic presentation under the direction of Lucy Babcock and piano recital music was furnished by Marlene Westberg and Ruth Wells Snyder.

One of SPAW's conference awards was the Peggy McCormack Memorial Award which was given in honor of Peggy's contribution to the writers' group. In spite of her confinement to an iron lung, she called the membership each month to tell them of the meeting time and scheduled speaker. Peggy was well-known, locally, as a writer and as an oral artist.

Speakers and workshop leaders for conferences included such notables as Dr. John Wink, Esther Leiper, Dr. Pat Carr, Dr. Suzette Elgin, Doug Jones, Bob Caudle, Kitt Bakker and Verna Lee Hinegardner, among others. The group's own Dolores Cannon gave a brief talk on how to research more effectively.

In the fall of 1985, SPAW published a book of poetry and essays to commemorate Arkansas's Sesquincentennial celebration. The book, Berries from the Thorny Hill"," was edited, formated, and typeset by Mary Alice Kline and Gloria Okes Perkins. Many of the illustrations were done by writers within the group.

Poets and Writers of Northwest Arkansas is a young and growing organization with an overall membership of 45 members.

In July of 1988, the writers met and changed the organization's name from Springdale Poets and Writers to Poets and Writers of Northwest Arkansas, planned a writers conference for 1989 and elected new officers for a two-year term: Kay B. Hall, president; Linda Rigsbee and Bridget England vice-presidents; Alma "Richie" Wadsworth, secretary; and Judy Ballard, treasurer.

Professional Woman's Group

In the fall of 1977, a Professional Woman's Group was formed in Fayetteville. There were many different women's groups throughout the country at this time, the purposes of which were to provide a forum for honest communication about the status of women and the effects of women's roles on their senses of well-being. There was an awareness of possibilities for life styles previously rejected or simply not considered because of society's rejection of them. Such groups allowed many women their first opportunities for interpersonal consideration of such matters.

Catherine Totten had just moved to northwest Arkansas from Ardmore, Pennsylvania where she had been a member of such a group. She and Andrea Cromwell, a co-worker at a local mental health center, discussed forming a group with others they thought might be interested. Thirty women met the first night. When those thirty participants broke into smaller groups, six professional women decided to meet together regularly.

The initial members included: Cheryl Peiper Carden, a Family Planning Educator; Andrea Thompson Cromwell and Catherine Totten, therapists at a local mental health center; Kate Patt, a legal secretary; Leslie Parr Sutton, a photographer for the local newspaper; and Barbara Grace Taylor, an administrator at the University of Arkansas. The women met weekly for five years, then twice monthly for another year. Around 1983, the group was meeting less regularly. Kate Patt had moved to Houston; Leslie Parr Sutten had moved to New Orleans. Cheryl Hemmings, who joined the group for a while, later moved to Ridgecrest, California. Barbara Taylor, Andrea Cromwell, Cheri Carden and Catherine Totten continued to meet, with the inclusion of the other members on their return visits to Fayetteville. The group had met its purpose of challenging critical thinking in each participant regarding their choices. It had also allowed for the development of deep friendship among the women which lasted through the years.

R. A. M. Far West Chapter #1

Far West Chapter No. 1 was not only the first chapter of Royal Arch Masons to be established in Arkansas, but it has had the longest continuous existence of any Royal Arch chapter in the state. A petition dated December 5, 1839, signed by Onesimus Evans, Archibald Yell, Thomas J. Pollard, William Stirman, Joel H. Haden, Samuel Harris, Joseph Hawkins, Alfred A. Stirman and Richard Pulliam was sent to the General Royal Arch Chapter of the United States of America for a dispensation or authority to open a regular constituted chapter.

Dispensation was granted February 1, 1840 and recommended for 1st High Priest, Companion Onesimus Evans; for 1st King, Archibald Yell; and for 1st Scribe, Thomas J. Pollard. On September 17, 1841, a charter was granted to Far West Chapter No. 1, Royal Arch Masons.

Republican Women's Club

The Washington County Republican Women's Club was organized in 1952. Mrs. Jackie Brooks Patterson was one of the chief organizers and first club president. Charter members were Jackie Brooks, Marcia Arpin, Zelda Nyberg, Florence Wray, Olive King, Polly Foster, Lois Dean and Dwade Hudson.

The women's club objectives are to promote a viable two party system in Arkansas with an informed electorate, to increase the effectiveness of women in the cause of good government and work for the election of republican nominees to local, state and national office. Fund raising is a large necessary part of the volunteer work involved.

By September 1952 the club set up the first political party booth ever seen at the Washington County Fair and sponsored the first Republican party headquarters for Eisenhower-Nixon. Marcia Arpin was instrumental for much of the staffing and decorating for the fair and headquarters for much of the next twenty five years.

In 1962 the club had a rally for "Win" Rockefeller, with a circus tent, three live elephants and two thousand interested people. "Win" was elected to be governor in 1966 and 1968. Evelyn Thomas' Sundowner Ranch in Prairie Grove, August 1970, held an unusual and entertaining buffalo Bar-B-Que rally for Governor Rockefeller which served two thousand people, though Rockefeller was not reelected.

A number of club members have run for local and state so it was a great satisfaction to help elect Linda Priest as the first woman coroner in the state, twice, in 1978 and 1980. She greatly improved the efficiency of that office.

Since 1984 when the county chairman and the republican county committee members worked hard to get a permanent republican headquarters started and installed a computer, the women's club members have done a great deal of the necessary volunteer work.

Besides club activities, the women have been active in campaigns for local, state and national republican candidates. They have co-operated with the republican committee on such efforts as the antique show, fall rallies and annual Lincoln Day dinners. Many members of the club are also on the county committee and have a direct impact on the decision making of local issues. The club has been generous in its financial support to the college republicans, young republicans, and scholarships for young people. It hopes to have a greater impact on the community as the club grows.

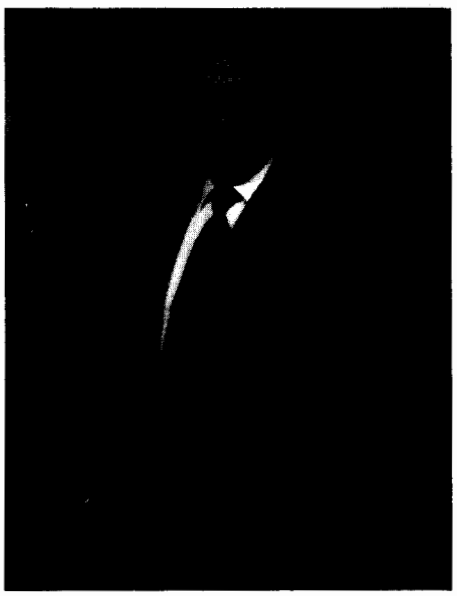
Retired Teachers Association

Under the leadership of Kara Jordan, the retired teachers of Washington County organized in 1973 at the Roberta Fulbright Library in Fayetteville. From the conception of the organization there has been cooperation, understanding and appreciation of retired teachers from many school systems. Emma Rutledge, retired principal from Tennessee, was elected President in 1984.



Mr. J. O. Kelly, Washington County Retired Teachers first President 1973-1975. Mr. Kelly is retired from the position Supt. of Springdale Schools and lives in Springdale.

Members have shared a variety of interests and activities in both personal and community betterment. J. O. Kelly, the first president, served on the Arkansas State Legislative Committee with six retired teachers and six members of AARP to work with the state legislature to promote measures to improve lives of elderly citizens in Arkansas. Joe J. Slaven followed Mr. Kelly in this capacity. Several retired teachers have been trained by Buell Woods and Mr. Hodnett of the Internal Revenue Service to become Income Tax Aides. These Aides have helped many low-income and elderly citizens save money when preparing their income tax forms. John Fox is now helping in this capacity.

Retired teachers have assisted with the County Nutrition Meals Service by boxing meals, delivering meals to those elderly who are unable to eat at the center and serving each fourth Friday at Sang Community Center.

The "Vial of Life" project proved to be an interesting effort that has continued to gain interest in other parts of the state. Every member was urged to fill a page of medical information including his or her name, physician's name, hospital preference, any medication being taken, any allergies to medications and other pertinent information that ambulance personnel or other helpers would need should one be found fallen or very ill. The information is stored in an airtight plastic container and sticker on refrigerator door with label "Vial of Life". Some place sticker on an outside door or window. This vial is taken with the patient.

Under the leadership of Marian Crum, luncheon meetings were set up. Each high school in Washington County chose a hardbound book of interest to young persons about the elderly population. These were paid for by WCRTA.

Oakley Long's leadership brought about the first yearbook and a revision of the constitution. Doris Milton supervised printing of that yearbook.

Music and fun have been a part of every monthly meeting. In addition, special events such as "Friday Afternoon at the Country School" with a spelling match, cakewalk, and an auction for extra desserts were reminders of earlier days in one-room schools where many have taught during their earlier professional career. Summer picnics in Conrow Miller's big yard beside the branch were favorite summer outings, as were bus tours to Wilhemina Lodge near Mena, Arkansas, and to Harber Village of early American antiques near Grove, Oklahoma.

"School Days, School Days," the history of Washington County Schools from 1840 to 1950 is the most recent project. With the leadership of Lillian Woods, President, the members researched every community in the county and wrote reports of earliest public schools.

Irma Boyer and Dr. Conrow Miller, co-editors for the history writing committee are grateful for services of all cooperating persons who helped in the special events, fashion show, publicity activities and the marketing of this historic document. Proceeds from the sale of this splendid document will be used to establish a scholarship fund.

WCRTA meets each third Monday for luncheon during months September through May.

Rotary Club of Fayetteville

The Rotary Club of Fayetteville is one of over 23 thousand Rotary clubs in over 160 countries that make up Rotary International. In 1918 Henry D. Tovey was contacted by Rotary International to survey the situation in Fayetteville concerning the feasibility of forming a local club. There was little development at that time because of the disruptive nature of World War I. However, activity was resumed and the Rotary Club of Fayetteville was granted a charter on March 1, 1921, and became a part of the 16th district. Changes were made from time to time in District assignments and the club has been, for a number of years, in District 611 embracing portions of Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas.

Membership in a Rotary Club is based upon a business classification system. Usually the top administrator of a recognized business is chosen to become a Rotarian. The charter members of the Rotary Club of Fayetteville an their business classification were: Henry Tovey, piano; Jerome Reynolds, wholesale lumber; Lape Nettleship, merchandise broker; Jay Fulbright, men's furnishings; Julian Simmons, men's furnishings; Roy Wood, department stores; C. C. Yarrington, men's clothing; Charles Appleby, fruit grower; Bill Hamilton, dried fruit; Leland Bryant, automobiles; John Futrall, University; Ern Fugitt, garage; Otey Miller, surgeon; Gus Bridenthal, drugs; Cameron Robertson, movies; Hayden McIlroy, cold storage; W. N. Gladson, electrical engineer, and Bert Lewis retail hardware.

Within the structure of Rotary International, the Rotary Club of Fayetteville is a part of District 611. This district has the largest number of clubs in the U. S. Five men from the Fayetteville club have served as District Governor of 611. The names of the men are Will Gregson, Charles Cross, Ray Adams, Al Donaubauer, and Clark McClinton Fayetteville is the second largest club in the district.

The noon luncheon meeting place for the club has been at several locations. For many years the club met in the Washington Hotel. Later locations have included the U-Ark Bowl, Downtown Motor Lodge, Holiday Inn and now the Hilton Hotel.

Over the years membership has grown to about 180. Because of the large number of members involved, the Rotary Club of Fayetteville was asked to sponsor the organization and chartering of the Fayetteville Northside Rotary Club.

The object of Rotary is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprises and, in particular, to encourage and foster; first, the development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service; second, high ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations, and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity for service; second, high ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations, and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society; third, the application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business, and community life; fourth, the advancement of international understanding, goodwill, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

The Rotary Club of Fayetteville has contributed to many local community projects. In addition, thousands of dollars have been given for local scholarships, five are given each year to students of Washington County, and to the Rotary Foundation, for the 3H (Health, Hunger, and Humanity) programs. In 1981 the 3H Committee chair by Dr. J. E. McDonald received a grant from Rotary International for 220 thousand dollars U. S. to train, and supply eye surgeons in India in cataract implant surgery. The project continues and to date over 200 Indian opthalmologists are curing blindness through modern cataract surgery.

None of the projects have caught the imagination or the attention of the world like "Polioplus". Rotarians are striving to achieve the goal of a polio-free world, and to better the chances of the world's children to grow up free from vaccine-preventable diseases of childhood. What distinguishes Rotary from others is its unique ability to mobilize private sector resources in support of the immunization programs. Rotarians hope to accomplish this immunization goal long before the year of their Centennial, 2005.

In Rotary year 1987-1988 for the first time women have become members of Rotary Clubs in the U. S. Dr. Mae Nettleship is the first woman member of the Rotary Club of Fayetteville.

Past presidents of the Rotary club of Fayetteville include: Henry Tovey, 1921-23; Bill Batjer, 1924; B. D. Crane, 1925-1926; Homer Pearson, 1927; Lape Nettleship, 1928; John Asbell, 1929; Casey Yarrington, 1930; Arthur Harding, 1931; Tom Asbury, 1932; Charles Pierce, 1932; Van Howell, 1933; Emmett Ratliff, 1934; Leland Bryant, 1935; Vic Russum, 1936; Frank Gordon, 1937; Harrison Hale, 1938; Jim Phillips, 1939; Charles Cross, 1940; Ray Adams, 1941; Bunn Bell, 1942; W. S. Gregson, 1943; Joe Bates, 1944; Fenner Stice, 1945; Willis Noll, 1946; Ray Ellis, 1947; Maupin Cummings, 1948; Lonnie Hall, 1949; Ray O'Day, 1950; Herbert Lewis, 1951; Dorsey Jones, 1952; Russell Howard, 1953; John Shoemaker, 1954; George Branigan, 1955; Buster Dunlap, 1956; George Faucette, 1957; Marvin Murphy, 1958; George Tharel, 1959; Ken Ballenger, 1960; Morris Collier, 1961; Clint Walden, 1962; Kenneth Dorland, 1963; Roy Allen, 1964; Paul Lewis, 1965; Jim Green, 1966; Andrew Hall, 1967; Maurice Ray, 1968; Ray Alford, 1969; Ep McClelland, 1970; Bill Brandon, 1971; Henry Meenen, 1972; Carl Rose, 1973; George McLaughlin, 1974; Al Donaubauer, 1975; Carl Yates, 1976; Carl Collier, 1977; Wylie Davis, 1978; James Stewart, 1979; Clark McClinton, 1980; Fred Vorsanger, 1981; Charles Hubbard, 1982; Hugh Brewer, 1983; Kim Smith, 1984; George Faucette, 1985; Johnny Quinn, 1986; and Jay McDonald in 1987.

This resume of the Rotary Club of Fayetteville has been prepared by Henry Meenen, chairman, Rotary Information Committee, 1987-1988, and Ray Ellis, board member.

Rural Builders Club of Son's Chapel

On the 19th of October 1922, twenty women met at the home of Mrs. Malcom Henson to organize and plan the ways and means by which they could face the challenge coming their way. The community needed a church and a meeting place for social activities. The new building was to be located on a tract of land originally the property of the Son family. This property had been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Porter and donated to the community for a building site.

Mrs. Curtis Crouch, Mrs. George Gulley, Mrs. Thayer Shelton, Mrs. Hugh Shelton, Mrs. Roy Tucker, Mrs. Mary Robinson, Mrs. Malcom Henson, Mrs. Roy Breazeale, Mrs. Elmer Newell, Mrs. Joe Johnston, Mrs. Elda Miles and Mrs. Ivey were among the early Rural Builders Club of Son's Chapel.

Mrs. Hugh Shelton was elected the first president but because of illness could only serve one year. Mrs. Longino took her place as president for a few months before moving to California. Mrs. Mamie Stewart Hartley was the third president and served continuously in that office for ten years.

Among the several names suggested for the club, "Rural Builders" was chosen as the most appropriate. No time was lost after the first meeting in starting a building fund. As Mrs. Henson so aptly expressed it, "With the Lord's help and our husbands we can and will do it."

One of the first money-earning projects attempted was to serve at rural auction sales. This proved to be successful, and as more money was collected by sales, serving dinners, pie and box suppers, and by careful management and much work four hundred dollars was earned. This money was put in a local bank to draw interest. Dollar by dollar the fund grew and within ten years it reached fourteen hundred dollars. Now, actual work on the building could begin.

The club's next step was to elect three trustees: Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Shelton and Mrs. Hartley. Mrs. Henson and Mrs. Ted Horton were added to form a building committee with the trustees.

Through the unending efforts of the club women and the continual laboring of the workmen, the church was completed in 1939. The next problem to be solved was the furnishings. To accomplish part of this, Mrs. Porter organized a dramatic club. Large crowds came to enjoy the plays and other entertainment. Freewill offerings were taken at each performance and the donations received were enough to pay for the comfortable benches that were made by the workmen.

Work on many and various projects never stopped through the years and new things were added for the convenience and comfort of the church. The latest and very successful project now being accomplished (1977-1987) is quilting. The "quilters'" specialty is hand-embroidered baby quilts that are welcomed by the public buyers. Beautiful quilts of different sizes and designs are meticulously made. Another important project is a bazaar usually held in October or November. Many beautiful and useful gift items made by the members, or church friends, are sold.

For sixty-five years the Rural Builders' work has continued. Membership in the club has grown and includes both active and associate members. Because of her devotion and longevity, Mrs. Rema Carson is now an honorary member of the club.

The beautiful native-stone memorial church on Highway 45, east of Fayetteville, Arkansas stands as a living monument to the club women past and present. The challenge to build was accepted in 1922, and in 1987, dedicated and loyal women are still the busy Rural Builders of Son's Chapel.

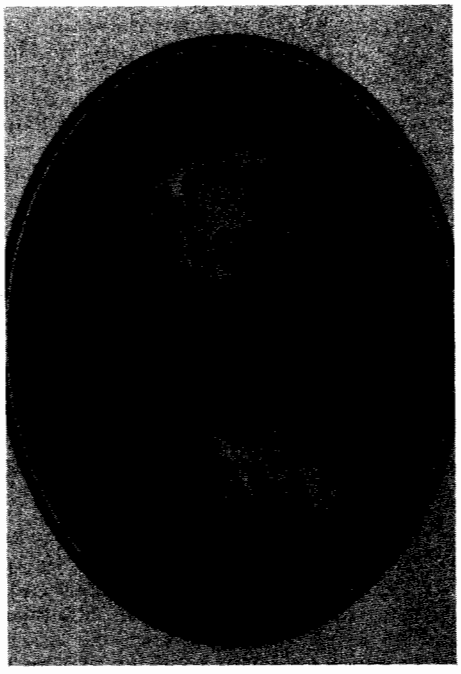
SAR - General Lafayette Chapter

At the start of 1986, Fayetteville members in good standing with the Sons of the American Revolution numbered ten, most of whom found it impractical to take part in S. A. R. activities because the nearest chapter was 37 miles away. All of these, and other interested men, responded to the state society President's call for an organizational meeting on January 4, looking toward the formation of a new chapter.



Marquis de LaFayette.

Twenty-eight men signed the application for a charter which was granted at the annual meeting of the Arkansas Society on February 22 and presented to Robert Prichard, Organizing President, and Milo Cumpston, Organizing Secretary, who are pictured below with Clovis Brakebill, President General of the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution in 1986. Robert Prichard was past president of the Capt. Daniel McKissick Chapter at Bella Vista which officially sponsored the new chapter and transferred to it eight members from its own roster.

Members are attracted from varied motives of family heritage, historic preservation, military interest, civic service and genealogical scholarship, but central to all other aims is a passion to preserve and sharpen the national memory of the Revolution—which was the greatest unifying experience in our history. Any man who can trace his ancestry directly to a participant in the struggle for Independence is eligible for membership in this Society.

Milo Cumpston, Clovis Brakebill and Robert Prichard.

Since this chapter's hometown is named for the revolutionary hero of two nations, it was almost automatic that the chapter likewise should be named for the Marquis de LaFayette. However, there being other S. A. R. chapters similarly named, this one adopted a form of the name calling attention to LaFayette's rank of Major General in the Continental Army, hence: the General LaFayette Chapter. The illustrations heading this article, of the great Frenchman with a Minuteman, typify the Alliance which produced American independence.

After three organizing meetings, the chapter elected as its first regular officers: Milo Cumpston, President; Mack McLendon, Vice-President; and John Mehrholz, Secretary-Treasurer (Clem McClelland assumed the office of Secretary for the second year) who quickly put in place the full agenda of activities expected of a S. A. R. chapter. It then adopted comprehensive chapter by-laws drafted by Ralph Treat, which are believed to be the only such governing document in the Arkansas Society.

"Start me with ten / Who are stout-hearted men / And I'll soon give you ten thousand More!" — so sang a great American troubadour. And aptly, the General LaFayette Chapter, from a nucleus of ten has in two years grown steadily to 36 members, and the performance of these stout-hearted men won for this chapter in only its second year the President's Award for the outstanding chapter in Arkansas. In its third year, three of its members moved up to major offices in the Arkansas Society: Robert Prichard as President, Milo Cumpston as Regional Vice-President for Northwest Arkansas, and Clem McClelland as Editor of the state society's quarterly newsletter, The Arkansas Patriot.

Some of the ways by which the chapter built this record are: (1) frequent television exposure, especially on Fayetteville Open Channel which re-brodcasts some of our programs; (2) raising nearly $10,000 toward funds needed to enlarge the National Cemetery at Fayetteville; (3) donating substantially toward the establishment in Fayetteville Public Library of a "Bicentennial Bookshelf" of reference works on the U. S. Constitution (a matching-grant project of the National Endowment for the Humanities); (4) participating in civic observances of the Arkansas Sesquicentennial in 1986 and the Constitution Bicentennial in 1987, as well as the annual remembrances of Memorial Day, Flag Day, and the like; (5) public recognition of youth achievements in R. O. T. C., Eagle Scouts and high school oration contests; and (6) public recognition of outstanding law enforcement officials.

As the Sons of the American Revolution enter their centennial year, William Bailey assumes the President's office for a chapter that presently serves Washington and Madison counties. He is supported by Clem McClelland, Vice-President; Elvie Heiney, Secretary; and George Faucette, Sr., Treasurer.

Scottish Society of Northwest Arkansas

On June 25, 1987, the Scottish Society of the Ozark Region, representative Jeannie Anderson, Local Chairperson, sent a letter to persons in the northwest Arkansas area who were known to be interested in things Scottish. The letter announced the date of an organizational meeting (July 7, at the SWEPCO hospitality room) to form a local chapter of the Society.

This meeting was held, with Mr. Harry Smith, of Fort Smith, presenting a slide show on Scottish events in our area. Subsequent meetings were held in August and September 1987, with September being the Charter Meeting, and members, as of September 8, 1987, being Charter Members.

Officers of the Society are Dr. Steven C. Wilson, President, Jeannie Anderson, Vice President, Nellie B. Wildman, Secretary, and Terry Hunt, Treasurer.

The Society publishes a newsletter, entitled "Hoot Mon", which contains announcements of Scottish events, news of other chapters, new members, items on Scottish Clans, Scottish history, etc.

The Society is concerned with the preservation of the Scottish Heritage and Culture, which is the foundation of our Ozark Heritage. The Society will also promote Scottish music, entertainment, culture and dress in the area.

The Society cooperates fully with the Ozark Highlanders Bagpipe Band, Dr. Steven C. Wilson, Pipe Major, in the presentation of a Robert Burns Day Dinner, and other functions of a like nature.

The Society wishes to gratefully acknowledge the staunch support and assistance rendered our Society by Dr. Steven C. Wilson, Pipe Major, Ozark Highlanders Bagpipe Band, and members of the band, without which it may never have been.

Charter and other members include: J. D. and Lola May McFarland, J. E. and Mary Ellen Gibson, Mrs. Donald R. Willis, Jackie and Norton Brown, Charles King, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hanna, Mr. Don Miller, Terry, Kay and Renee Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Remmel, Ms. Jessie Campbell, Ms. Jeannie Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. James Luffman, Rev. Alan Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. John Astarb, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Steven C. Wilson, Dr. C. Sheffield Mooty, Bobbie, Teresa and Marcia Wells, Dr. Catherine Carroll, Ms. Elizabeth Monroe, Mr. Waldo E. McIntosh, Dr. William Martin, Judge Maupin Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Finch, Ms. Nellie B. Wildman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prichard, Mr. and Mrs. Vandiver, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Forsythe.

We are honored to count among our members Mr. Waldo E. McIntosh, Chief, Creek Indian Nation, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Sequoyah Kiwanis Club

The Fayetteville Sequoyah Kiwanis Breakfast Club was sponsored by the Fayetteville Kiwanis noon club. The date of organization was August 3, 1964. The articles of incorporation were approved by the State of Arkansas, June 19, 1972. As of March, 1988, the club has had three Lt. Governors: Austin Brockway, Bob Wilhite, and Whit Hensman.

Club officers are elected by the club membership for a one-year term. Club presidents to date are: Jim Couch, Otis Stobaugh, Neil Danner, Tom Townsend, Pat Brooks, Paul Martin, Carl Huenefeld, Don Williams, Bob Wilhite, Barker Adair, John Huddleston, Hugh Scarbrough, Whit Hensman, Dale Clark, Duffy Carter,, Charles Pudlas, Kenneth Stewart, Fred Laney, Jim Davis, Dennis Wohlford, Mike Horn, Bill DeVault, and Don Stanton president elect. Club secretaries to date are: Charles Couch, Jerry Webb, Dennis Wohlford, and Whit Hensman. Club treasurers to date are: Winston Sloan, Jewell Reddell, and Charles Pudlas.

The club has had several fund raising projects. Some of the more successful projects to date are: operating a concession stand at the Washingotn County Fair, sponsoring a golf and softball tournament, and operating a fireworks stand during 4th of July week.

Funds made from the projects have been used for donations to youth groups such as Little League baseball, girls softball, Boy's and Girl's State, Future Farmers of America trophies, Decca, Youth Center, and Children's Hospital. The club bags and gives out over two hundred fruit baskets to the elderly at Christmas time each year. They donate to SCAN, learning disabilities, the single-parent scholarship fund and make numerous other donations.

The club members help with several community projects. They have been active in city and county clean-up, helped with ticket sales at the Washington County Fair, rang Salvation Army bells at Christmas time, helped serve meals at nutrition center, and many other projects.

The Sequoyah Kiwanis Club membership strives to help make the community a better place to live by setting good examples as citizens and helping others that are in need.

Shiloh Museum

The Shiloh Museum, established by the City of Springdale, has as its purpose the preservation of the heritage of Northwest Arkansas through the collection, exhibition, and interpretation of objects which illustrate the story of man in this area.

The museum began with the purchase in 1965 of a significant collection of Indian artifacts from Judge Guy W. Howard, an important civic leader and an avid collector of prehistoric and historic Indian items of this area. The collection contained over 10,000 artifacts and some 260 books, pamphlets, bulletins, etc. on archaeology and anthropology.

A Museum Committee was appointed by Mayor Park Phillips on July 25, 1967, with Charles McKinney as chairman and Espen Walters, E. A. Chandler, and Joe Robinson as members. The first bylaws were approved on May 9, 1968, and the museum was opened to the public on September 7, 1968, at Johnson and Main Streets, in a building which had been used as the public library.

The first board of directors included Charles Davis, chairman; Leon Allen, vice-president; John Cagle, secretary; Annabel Searcy, treasurer; D. Dupree Deaver, Betty Hornor, Charles McKinney, Joe Robinson, and Larry Swaim.

The name chosen for the new museum was the Shiloh Museum of Springdale. Shiloh was the name of the settlement and church established in the 1840s on the site of present-day Springdale.

Presidents of the Shiloh Museum board of trustees have been Charles Davis (1968-1969), D. Dupree Deaver (1970), Albert Hough (1971-77), Martha Brogdon (1977-79, 1983), Bobbie Lynch (1980-81), Dr. F. E. McEvoy (1981-82), Lawrence Layman (1984), Dr. Dwight Heathman (1985-1986), Maudine Sanders (1987-1988), and Stephen Taylor (1989-). In addition, more than 30 persons have served on the board as officers and members.

Directors of the museum have been Linda Allen Hild (1968-75, 1976-80), Marlene Hartzler (1975), Betty Hornor (1976), and Bob Besom (1980-).

From the very beginning, volunteers have played an important role in the development of the museum. Volunteers have been involved in every phase of the museum operation. In 1988, 47 volunteers worked over 1,500 hours. The Friends of the Shiloh Museum volunteer association was formed in 1985 to support museum activities. Its presidents have included Bettye Mohney, Ann Webb, Maxine Graham, Ed Preddy, and Carol Coffey.

During the past twenty years the museum has grown steadily and at times very rapidly. Through several revisions of its bylaws the board of trustees has carefully defined the museum's purpose and expanded its field of interest to include the six counties of Northwest Arkansas: Benton, Boone, Carroll, Newton, Madison, and Washington. The museum property was extended to cover a city block through a bequest of the residence and property of Lockwood and Annabel Searcy and the purchase of the Gregg-Bowman property. Membership in the Museum Association has grown from 47 members in 1972 to more than 800. Visitors to the museum amounted to 2,018 in 1971; in 1988, more than 12,000 visited the museum and/or participated in its programs. The city budget has grown from $2,500 to $145,000 during the same period. The number of artifacts in the collection has increased from the original 10,000 to more than 100,000.

Besides the Howard Collection of Indian artifacts, important collections include the Vaughn-Applegate Collection of antique photographic equipment, the Jeanne Hoffer-Tucker Collection of Essie Ward paintings, the Mooney-Barker Drugstore Collection, and the historic photograph collection (more than 40,000 images).

The museum exhibits usually relate to Northwest Arkansas. Some are prepared by the museum staff, others are on loan from other institutions and individuals. Educational programs and workshops are developed and presented to school children, young people, and adults. In 1988, 342 programs were presented to 8,300 individuals. In one month of 1988 (May) 3,510 children and adults participated in museum programs while another 1,250 kids used museum "discovery boxes" in their school rooms.

The City of Springdale remains the museum's main source of financial support, although approximately two-thirds of its members, visitors, and participants live outside Springdale. Other sources of support are memberships, bequests and donations, grants from the Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism museum services division and the U. S. Department of Education's Institute of Museum Services (over $125,000 in the past eight years), and fund-raising projects, such as Bird Seed Savings Day and the publication of the Washington County History Book.

By the early 1980s the needs of the Shiloh Museum far exceeded the space available in the old library building. Storage areas were completely full; exhibit space was inadequate; the meeting room was filled to overflowing during programs; offices were so crowded that concentration was difficult.

The board of trustees, having found that the old building was unsuitable for rehabilitation and expansion, realized that a new building was essential for the museum's ever-increasing activities and services. The board became actively involved in fund-raising, and by 1989 had secured more than $500,000. The city council of Springdale supported the project with additional funds. Mott, Mobley, McGowan, and Griffin, architects, developed plans for the present site to accommodate an 18,000 square foot complex which includes exhibit galleries, auditorium, library and archives, offices, and storage areas.

Plans were approved by the board of trustees and by the Shiloh Historic District Commission. The relocation of some buildings on the property was completed in the spring of 1989, and construction of the new building is expected to be completed in 1990. As planned, the Shiloh Museum will serve Northwest Arkansas even more adequately than in the past and will become a showplace for the history of the region.

Sons of Confederate Veterans

The Maj. Fontaine R. Earle Camp No. 1453 Sons of Confederate Veterans held its final organizational meeting in mid-1986 at the Fayetteville Public Library. This first meeting was organized by the members of The Mildred Lee Chapter # 98, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. Louise Reagan, president, and was attended by Mrs. Reagan and chapter members Mrs. Stanley Saunders and Mrs. Fred Kolb.

Prospective members of the Camp attending were Doyle Barnes, Gary Barnes, Fred Kolb, Brian Umberson, Russell Pennington, William Goff, and James E. Gibson.

At the next meeting officers were selected: James E. Gibson, commander; Russell B. Pennington, adjutant; and Fred H. Kolb, treasurer. The required 10 members were soon found, and on September 16, 1986, an application for camp charter was forwarded to Larry Rhodes, commander, Division of Arkansas, at El Dorado.

Our application was approved in January 1987 and the charter members were: James E. Gibson, Summers; Russell B. Pennington, Springdale; Fred H. Kolb, Fayetteville; Gary Lee Barnes, Gentry; Stanley M. Saunders, Fayetteville; William E. Goff, Kingston; Gary Ewell Tunnell, Summers; Warren K. Scott, Summers; William L. Bush, Sr., Lincoln; Charles Dorman Kolb, Harrison; Herbert Dorman Kolb, Harrison; Fontaine R. Earle, Peoria, Illinois; Doyle Barnes, Siloam Springs; and William Odle Beaty, Summers.

Other members have come to the Camp by transfer and the payment of dues and membership now stands at 19.

Maj. Earle, for whom our Camp was named, was first a Cumberland Presbyterian Minister. Born in 1831 in Kentucky, he was schooled in Hopkins County, and Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tennessee, graduating in 1858. After graduation, he was ordained a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, and became pastor of Old Liberty Church, Muhlenberg County, Kentucky. From this post, he came to Cane Hill, as President of Cane Hill College, in 1859. It was he who granted the first degrees from Cane Hill College to Samuel H. and John T. Buchanan in the spring of 1859. Later, when the outbreak of the War Between the States forced the suspension of classes, President Earle enlisted in the Confederate Army where he served four years. He soon became Captain, commanding "B" Company, 34th Arkansas Infantry. Later he was promoted to Major and commanded two regiments. He saw action in the battles at Oak Hill, Prairie Grove, Helena, Jenkins Ferry, and others. After the war, he returned to the presidency of Cane Hill College, where he served until its close. He later was president of its successor, Arkansas Cumberland College at Clarksville. He is buried at Cane Hill. We are honored to have his grandson, also Fontiane R. Earle, as a charter member.

Current members of Camp No. 1453, in addition to charter members are: Commander William Bell, Jr., Siloam Springs; Frank Burke, Springdale; David Couch, Fayetteville; Dr. Daryl M. Quimby, Prairie Grove; and William A. Myers, Fayetteville.

The camp is committed to assisting the Southern Memorial Association with maintenance of the Confederate Cemetery at Fayetteville.

Another project of Camp No. 1453, is the location and marking, with Confederate Army markers, the graves of all Confederate soldiers buried in Washington Country, Arkansas.

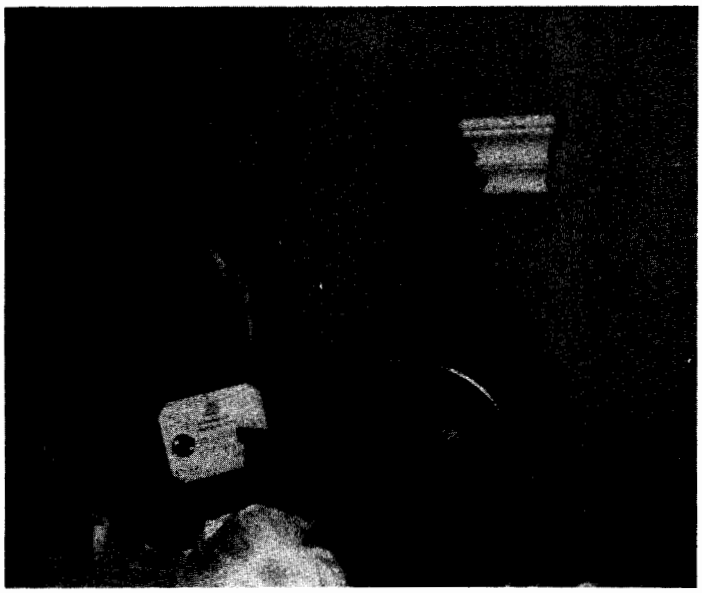
Springdale AARP

March, 1986, eighteen people met at the First State Bank Hospitality Room, Springdale, Arkansas, for the purpose of forming a local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).



Dr. Mary Burton of AARP is shown presenting to Keno Gunter, President of the Chapter, the Springdale Area Chapter No. 4015 of AARP Inc. its Charter. Seated is John Hazelbaker, Chapter Vice-President

The charter members present were: Kenneth and Louise Snell, Leota and Earl Nagey, Lois Goss, Aileen Hinderliter, Wilma Collins, Evelyn and Keno Gunter, Virginia Shockley, Clifford Donahue, Cecilia Shaffer, Jane and John Hazelbaker, Garvin Martini, Floy Harp, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. McFadden. An organizational meeting was held April 16, 1986. At this time eighty-three people had joined. The officers elected were: Kenneth Snell, President; Keno Gunter, Vice President; Cecelia Shaffer, Secretary; and George McFadden, Treasurer. Anyone fifty years or older was eligible to join the local chapter as well as the National AARP.

The first regular luncheon meeting was held at Wyatt's Cafeteria on May 23, 1986. The program, a slide presentation, entitled "AARP Story" was presented by K. C. Johnson, State Director of AARP. Approximately 100 people attended.

The purpose of the association, a membership corporation shall be (a) to enhance the quality of life for older persons (b) to promote independence, dignity and purpose for older persons (c) to lead in determining the role and place of older persons in society and (d) to improve the image of aging. On April 6, 1987, a charter was granted, recognizing AARP Chapter, Springdale Area, Chapter #4015 of the American Association of Retired Persons, Incorporated.

By the end of the year 1987, the chapter had grown to 230 members. During the year the Community Service Activities of the Chapter included Tax Aide program for the elderly; 55 Alive Driving Program; support for the elderly nutrition program, and other volunteer programs that are helpful to the community. The membership and interest continued to grow, and in February 1988, there were 254 members enrolled in the local AARP Chapter of Springdale.

Springdale BPWC

A pre-organization meeting of the Springdale Business and Professional Women's Club was held at the Springdale Public Library on Johnson Street (now the Shiloh Museum) to discuss plans on February 7, 1941. Mrs. Claudia Gosnell presided over the meeting. Miss Ethel Smith was elected Temporary Chairman.

On February 17, 1941, the organization was completed with 26 members with the roll open for charter membership until the next meeting on March 7, 1941, with 32 members. Miss Smith served as the first president for two years, 1941-1942 and 1942-1943.

The Fayetteville B. & P. W. Club was the organizer and mother club. Mrs. Gosnell and Mrs. Millie Eicher were the founding mothers and Mr. E. R. (Marty) Stafford was the founding father.

On March 17, 1941 the club received its charter from the National Federation, which was presented by Mrs. Effie Rogers of Morrilton, General District Director and a Past President of the State Federation. There are no charter members on the club roll. Thelma Webb Harris has had a continuing membership since September of 1942 and Bonnie Hanks, Marcella Head Sharum, and Drucilla Head Morris have had their membership since March of 1944. Mrs. Harris, Sharum and Miss Hanks are past presidents.

The club is not a service club, but has a civic project every year, such as furnishing rooms and equipment for the hospital, furnishing the teacher's lounge, planting trees and landscaping at city buildings, tables in Murphy Park, funds to the library, museum, arts center, and ballparks for youth, which are only a few.

Each year a Young Career Girl is elected to represent the club at the State Convention and the club also gives a scholarship to a high school senior, a woman enrolled at the Vo-Tech or to a woman who is continuing in higher education.

One National President has come from the State organization-Fannie Hardy from Little Rock in 1960-61. Springdale Club has a past state president, Nora Bee Lingelbach 1956-57 who is still a member of the club.

The club has had 35 presidents, with some serving two years. There are twelve past presidents who are still members. In 1986-87 the club had 45 members with the highest membership in 1953-54 of 63. In 1974-75 there were 58 members.

Only persons, women or men, actively engaged in business or in a profession can be members. Retired individuals who became members while actively engaged in business and pay their dues can remain or, individuals enrolled full-time in college or a university can be members.

Springdale Country Club

On August 19, 1927, the Springdale News reported the following: "A movement has been started to form an organization to provide a recreation center for people of Springdale and vicinity, to include a golf course, possibly tennis courts and a clubhouse, and other features. Thirty-seven people have already signed up for membership. Such an enterprise will be a distinct asset to the community—a town without a golf course these days is looked upon as a back number and certainly Springdale must keep pace with neighboring towns." And from the Springdale News of August 26, "Prospects continue favorable for an organization to establish a Country Club in Springdale, 56 having already signed up for membership—."

With this propitious start the Springdale Country Club was born. The 75 acre Van Peerson farm on Highway 71 south of Springdale was purchased for $7000. A stockholders meeting of October 7 completed the club organization and ratified the purchase of the property. Officers elected were J. H. Myers, President; J. L. Fitzgerald, Vice President; and Harold Henson, Secretary-Treasurer. Boards of eleven directors and three trustees were elected, and an executive committee consisting of J. H. Myers, Howard R. Clark and J. Frank Deaver was appointed with power to improve the property and direct the affairs of the club. J. H. Myers remained as President until 1938. Charter membership of $100 and monthly dues of $2 were adopted. Membership was limited to 100 after which a membership cost $125.

H. C. Hackbarth, an "expert" of Little Rock, was hired to lay out on the east side of the highway a course of nine holes with 40 foot diameter elevated oiled-sand greens and 40 yard wide fairways. The course was 2815 yards-par 34. The Peerson farm house was remodeled to provide a snack bar and office in the front section, and living quarters for Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boswell, the caretakers, in the rear.

This photograph taken in 1935 shows the first clubhouse of the Springdale Country Club. It was originally the home of the Van Peerson family who owned and farmed the 75 acres bought by the club in 1927. The first caretakers lived in the rear of the house behind the clubroom and refreshment counter.

The work of blasting 400 stumps, leveling the fairways and constructing greens was started in early fall 1927. Limited play was permitted before the final green was completed in August 1928. The first tournament, a four day Club Championship, was played with the finals on Labor Day, September 3. The following winners were declared: E. R. Stafford (93), Championship Flight; Burl Graves, Second Flight; J. L. (Fay) Stafford, Third Flight; and E. S. Thompson, Fourth Flight. Enthusiasm was very high that first season, the last tournament being held in mid-November.

Both men's and women's groups were organized and the club was very popular and well patronized until the Great Depression. The years 1930-1939 were most difficult for all clubs because of loss of members and the financial pinch felt by everyone. The club had barely recovered from the Depression when World War II again brought very difficult times and tested the club's capacity to continue. Membership dropped to 29 members, and 15 acres of club property on the west side of Highway 71 had to be sold to survive. But the club survived, thanks to the foresight and loyalty of several members who saw that the bills were paid and that the most important maintenance was done.

The first Springdale Invitational Tournament, which later became the famous Chick-a-Tee Tournament, was held in 1938 and was won by Ewell Fitzgerald. In 1952 a Razorback football player by the name of Ed Spencer, trying to get into better physical shape, set a course record for greatest number of holes played in one day. He walked and carried his clubs for 108 holes, jogging the last two holes. His average score was 41 for nine holes. A youngster by the name of R. H. Sikes caddied for J. U. Phipps, a partner of Spencer's. Young Sikes later was a touring PGA pro and won the Cleveland Open in the 1960s. Ed Spencer, although residing in Missouri, has been a frequent player in the Chick-a-Tee and won the championship flight in 1987.

The return of many members after WW II sparked renewed interest in the club and $10,000 was borrowed to install grass greens. The club remained semi-private while some other clubs in the area went strictly private. Greens fees, and the great increase in interest in golf provided new members and much needed income. A new clubhouse was planned and built in the years 1953 to 1957 with a loan of $40,000 and supervision by the Boards and Presidents Dr. E. L. McNally, Jack Carter, and Harold Henson. Dues were raised to $7.50 per month.

The manager's house was built in 1966. A member of the board at the time related later that through oversight and mismanagement few of the construction bills were paid until the house was completed, at which time $17,000 was due with little money available. The swimming pool was built in 1968. Extra property was purchased along South Turner Street in 1969-1970 with money received from the State for club property used in the widening of Highway 71. In 1970-1971 the golf course was redesigned and property fronting on Highway 71 was sold and the money applied to the golf course rebuilding project.

In the administrations of David Howell, Dick Lester, and James Whitmore (1974-77) remodeling and enlarging the clubhouse and adding two tennis courts were planned and completed at a cost of $236,000. The parking lot was also enlarged and paved. Also in this period the grass on several greens was killed by improper chemicals. Insurance covered most of the replacement and at the same time the sod was replaced on all greens with Cohecy #7, a better grass than the original. A cart shed was also built. Property along South Turner Street and south of fairway #8 was sold in the period 1983-1986, and the proceeds used to enlarge and rebuild the swimming pool and retire most of the mortgage.

Springdale Kiwanis Club

The Springdale Kiwanis Club was chartered on January 7, 1946 for the purpose of promoting the principles of good citizenship and human values and to generally improve the quality of life in the Springdale area. The new club was sponsored by the Fayetteville Kiwanis Club with J. Austin Parish serving as president of the sponsoring club. Charter Night Presentation Banquet was held on Thursday, February 21, 1946. The first president of the Springdale Kiwanis Club was Tom Bain, who is still a member of the Club.

Early meetings of the Club were held in the First Methodist Church where the meals were prepared by ladies of the Church. The Club later met at the First Christian Church, the A. Q. Chicken House, the Trade Winds Motel, and now its present location at the Holiday Inn.

During the past 40 years, the Springdale Kiwanis Club has become known for its community involvement. Some of the major projects and activities down through the years are: Construction of a public group picnic pavilion in Murphy Park; Construction of public tennis courts in Murphy Park; Participation in the construction of the track field at Southwest Junior High; Kids Day football for grade school boys and girls held each year in late summer; Kiwanis Little Olympics held each spring for grade school children; Ad and program sales for Rodeo of the Ozarks annual event July 1-4; Sponsorship of the Key Club at Springdale High School; Sponsorship of the Professional Travel Film Series with proceeds being donated to cultural activities in the city; Spring Meadows Housing for senior citizens; Scholarship for deserving Springdale student. In addition to these major projects, the Springdale Kiwanis Club annually donates money to many worthy civic activities such as scouting, little league and Babe Ruth baseball, Boys State and Girls State, and a long list of others.

Today, the Springdale Kiwanis Club is made up of 150 men in a wide variety of occupations representing the active forces of the community. Membership in Kiwanis is open to men of good character and community standing who reside in or have other interests in the Community of Springdale.

The Legion of Honor Program was established in 1944 a dramatic way to recognize members with 25 years or more of membership in Kiwanis. The following members of the Springdale Kiwanis Club make up our Legion of Honor: Tom Bain, 41 years; Mace Howell, 41 years; Lawrence Layman, 41 years; Max Sample, 41 years; Clifford Samuel, 41 years; Sandy Boone, 40 years; Austin Cravens, 40 years; Pat Henry, 37 years; Don Harp, 34 years; Stacy Looney, 34 years; Bob Walters, 34 years; Curtis Hornor, 33 years; Lynn Ritter, 33 years; Bill Stamper, 30 years; Bill Walker, 30 years; James Irwin, 29 years; Arthur Luther, 29 years; Bromo Wilson, 29 years; Foy Coker, 28 years; James Ritter, 28 years; Max Reid, 27 years; Jim Phillips, 25 years; Larry Woods, 25 years; Joe Reed, 25 years.

Springdale Memorial Hospital Auxiliary

Organized on May 12, 1952 when 100 women met and pledged their support and interest morally and financially to the new hospital that would open later that summer in Springdale. President Eva Atwood, under the guidance of Letta Bracken, administrator, and Harvey Jones, President of the Board of Trustees, set about the task of landscaping the grounds, furnishing hostesses for the waiting rooms, assisting at the information desk, delivering telephone messages and running errands for patients. From this beginning the auxiliary flourished, and by July 15th reported 253 women had paid dues of $1.00 each and were actively involved in purchasing a portable respirator (iron lung). The funds were raised by dues, the annual Thanksgiving bazaar, and food sale and raffling of a handmade knitted bedspread made by Eva Atwood.

After volunteers were asked to furnish old sheets, pillow cases, feed sacks or clean rags that might be used in the operating room, the decision was made to hold a linen shower and tea to meet some of the need for towels and sheets, admittance to the tea would be a piece of linen. The Annual Linen Shower and Tea was to become a yearly tradition that lasted many years until like the Thanksgiving Bazaar and Bake Sale the Health Department introduced many new guidelines that prohibited the use of outside products in the hospital.

At the end of one year the auxiliary was proud to announce that it had spent $2,000.00 for the hospital and had donated 4,000 hours of service. Projects for the first year included the iron lung, linens and landscaping of the grounds.

March of 1954 brought about plans for a permanent building and location for the Auxiliary Thrift Shop, which had been operating on Eva Atwood's front porch. The shop would open on Saturday, March 13, 1954 at 121 West Johnson Street and would carry clothes, costume jewelry, and household goods for sale at a nominal price. After just 14 weeks the Thrift Shop reported sales of $508.00. Today the Thrift Shop is the primary source of auxiliary funds. Located on Park Street, it is open daily and provides the community with a wide array of items from books to television sets and has a staff that serves faithfully 6 days a week.

In May of 1954 the auxiliary was informed of a new anti-polio vaccine and was anxious to bring the news to the polio classes sponsored and staffed by the auxiliary. All the new advancements in medicine has brought about a change of image for hospitals. Formerly patients were treated at home and brought to the hospital when death was near, now people are brought to the hospital to get well. The greater demand for hospital services also means more auxiliary help is needed, so members work in the sterilization supply room where they make, pack and sterilize all dressings, fold towels and sheets needed in surgery along with the regular duties as hostesses, medical library aides, taking care of plants, landscaping, entertaining patients and planning seasonal activities.

June of 1957 the auxiliary purchased 3 hospital beds which can be rented by the public and in 1958 added 2 wheelchairs for rental to their list of community help projects. These beds and wheelchairs would be paid for by the rental fees and by the auxiliary funds.

The hospital continued to grow and with its expansion the auxiliary recognized a need for a fund to sponsor nurses in Arkansas Nursing Schools. The Eva Atwood Nursing Scholarship was created in honor of Miss Atwood who served as president of the auxiliary for 8 years while also serving as interim hospital administrator. Today this scholarship fund has reached a donation of $10,000.00 annually and is one of the auxiliary's most active projects.

Through the years the auxiliary continued to support the hospital and serve the community, and in 1962 a refreshment cart, four ice carts and a book cart were purchased and manned by members to serve the patients and make their hospital stay more pleasant. The Vera S. Cummings Memorial Gift Cart was purchased in 1964 and became another service of the auxiliary until a permanent gift shop was established in 1968. Today Phyllis Cordt, the original chairman, still serves in this capacity with over 25 years of active membership to her credit. The Gift Shop located in the main lobby of the hospital sells everything from toothpaste to fresh flowers, serving not only patients but all who visit the hospital. Providing a large portion of the auxiliary funds the Gift Shop is well planned and the workers are friendly and dedicated to making the customer happy.

Members were rewarded with pins and certificates for the first time in 1967 and today are given 50 hour patches, 100 hour pins and guards for accumulated hours and years. A yearly awards luncheon is held where members are honored for their hours of service.

The Candy Striper or Teen Volunteer Program began serving in May 1968, when Mrs. Charles Hovey and Virginia Clevenger, Director of Hospital Inservice Education, organized a program for community teens to volunteer during summer vacations.

The growth and expanded services of the auxiliary brought the need for members to be kept aware of on-going activities so a newsletter was developed around 1970. Through the years the newsletter has been an important link between members and a true cause for pride since it has won several state awards for its excellence beginning in 1971 through the present in which it is mailed to over 400 readers on a monthly basis.

One service that brings much pleasure and pride to the auxiliary is the baby bonnet project. Made of linen handkerchiefs, these bonnets are given to all newborns. First given in 1972, the bonnets continue to be a favorite of new parents and are accompanied by a poem written by the late Emily Voss while she served in the auxiliary. One poem is for girl babies and one for boy babies born at Springdale Memorial.

In 1972 the auxiliary decided to provide a "Play Hospital" to introduce kindergarten age children to the hospital atmosphere. This community service along with the "Lazy Eye Clinic" are continuing projects and today serve over 600 children in the Springdale School District.

The auxiliary in an effort to continually provide quality service tried to add a new program or project each year. To the many other services offered during the 1950-1970s were added dietary aides, pharmacy helpers, ICU, Information and CCU Hostesses, Escort personnel and Lifeline workers to install and repair the units that would bring security and peace to the many people who live alone. The Red Cross Bloodmobile visits became another of the many activities that the auxiliary helped to organize for the community, serving as workers and guides to make sure the draws were always a success. Projects added included many activities during National Hospital Week, participating and co-hosting state conventions, Christmas Tree lighting for the entire community and Medic Alert Program that was introduced to the auxiliary and the state by Dee Kennedy.

Today the auxiliary continues to serve the hospital and community and state. As an active member of the Northwest District of the Arkansas Hospital Auxiliaries and the Arkansas Hospital Auxiliary Association, several members have served on both district and state levels of office. Continually seeking to grow with the hospital the auxiliary now has over 350 members serving in the hospital, gift shop, thrift shop and outside in their homes, sewing, telephoning or other worthwhile projects. Donations of volunteers hours in 1987 were over 34,000 hours and monetary contributions of 300 thousand dollars since 1985 have helped to provide special services and equipment to the hospital that would otherwise not be available to the community. Through the continued support of the Administration, Staff, Board of Trustees and members, the Springdale Memorial Hospital Auxiliary continues to grow and prosper and the idea of dedication and service still survives after 36 years.

Springdale Noon Lions Club

The Springdale Noon Lions Club was organized September 10th, 1946, with 27 charter and 2 transfer members. The first president was Thomas L. Spaulding and first secretary was Reverend W. H. Ludwig. The installing officer was J. Barnett Napier. The club met the first and third Thursday evenings at the Rush Guise Restaurant, which was located on the corner of West Emma Avenue and Shiloh Street. The club later moved its meeting place to the basement of the Springdale Library at the corner of Main Street and Johnson Street. Still later it moved to the basement of the Salem Lutheran Church, where it met at noon every Wednesday. The club has also met at the A. Q. Chicken House and the Trade Winds Motel. At the present time it meets at noon every Wednesday at the Holiday Inn Restaurant. In carrying out the object of Lionism, the club has participated in numerous projects and activities. One principle project is sponsorship of the Springdale Little League Baseball Program. The club voted on August 17th, 1955 to sponsor the local Little League program and to build a Little League baseball field. The constitution and by-laws for the Little League were approved March 2nd, 1956. The Lions Club serves as the Board of Directors of the Little League and Little League officers are elected by the Board each year. In 1986 the league had grown to 16 major league teams and another 8 minor league teams serving nearly 400 youngsters with an organized summer sport.

The club contributes annually to the operational expenses of Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind, which is located in Little Rock. Annual contributions are also made to the Eye and Kidney Bank also located in Little Rock. Locally, the club carries on sight conservation work through a Sight Conservation Committee within the club. School children and others who need glasses, but who are not able to pay for them or the eye examination may apply to the Sight Conservation Chairman for financial assistance. In 1954 the club worked jointly with other civic organizations to raise $15,000.00 to equip a Boy Scout Camp for western Arkansas. Each year the club sponsors a boy and a girl to Boys and Girls State. The club sponsored the organization in 1953 of the Jr. Police in Springdale.

To support these activities the club has employed numerous fundraisers in it's over forty year history. These include the sale of light bulbs, raffle tickets for various prizes, hams and turkeys for Christmas gifts, and Lions Club White Canes. During the years 1980-85 the club sponsored the Miss NW Arkansas Pageant as a fundraiser. Our 1983 winner Miss Regina Hopper went on to become Miss Arkansas of 1983 and represented Arkansas in the Miss America Pageant that year. Another fundraiser was started in 1987 with the sponsorship of a 10k marathon run called the Annual Lions Long Run, a sanctioned Grand Prix Event in the state.

To spread Lionism the club has organized a second Lions Club called the Springdale Centennial Lions Club. A women's club was also organized by them called the Springdale Lioness Club. Work still continues today to expand the club's ability to help the young people and those less fortunate in our community as well as provide the environment for fellowship among its' members.

Springdale Rotary Club

Rotary International was only twenty years old when the Springdale Rotary Club held its first meeting on March 27, 1925. Early that same year, A. D. (Cal) Callison, a member of the Rogers Rotary Club, surveyed Springdale, under the direction of E. G. Sharp, District Governor of Rotary International District 15. Callison attended the initial meeting of the Springdale Rotary Club and met with 18 charter members in the basement of First Presbyterian Church on Spring Street. Reverend W. G. Brandstetter, the Presbyterian minister was elected as the Club's first president. Charter members of Springdale Rotary were: W. G. Brandstetter (Presbyterian Ministry); E. E. Guinnup, (Grape Juice Processing); R. C. Clark, (Hardware);

R. A. Morrow, (Theater Management); W. L. Bunch, (Banking); Dr. L. A. Smith, (Dentist); T. J. Fountain, (Confectioner); Col. W. G. Ownbey, (Pharmacy); Bob Hannah, (Haberdasher); Joe Ewalt, Jr., (Automobiles); Walter Jones, (Trucks); Dr. R. T. Henry, (Physician); J. Frank Deaver, (Lumber); U. A. Lovell, (Insurance); Jim Phillips, (Batteries); H. G. Ward, (Meats); J. S. Nix, (Mortician); and A. W. McDaniel, (Electric Utilities).

In the years to come the meeting place of the Springdale club was changed to the Southern Hotel, Holcomb Street; where the club met until 1936, when it moved its meeting place to city hall. Shortly thereafter, the club moved its meeting place to the basement of the First Methodist Church where the Women's Society of Christian Service provided meals. Other meeting places have included the Fireside Inn, Springdale Country Club, and Springdale Holiday Inn, the current meeting place.

Springdale Rotary Club has a long history of participation in community service projects. Over the years that community has included Springdale, Arkansas, the United States, and the entire world. Its members have assisted each year in fund-raising efforts of the United Fund, Red Cross, the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, the Rodeo of the Ozarks, and numerous organizations. Rotary in Springdale has provided its support for the local schools any number of ways including scholarships for outstanding seniors, uniforms for the high school band, and donations to the athletic department of Springdale High School. As early as 1934, Springdale Rotary Club sponsored a boy scout troop in Springdale.

At present, the Springdale Rotary Club is involved in two special projects in addition to all its other activities. These projects will touch the lives of many thousands of people both here and abroad. In one project the Springdale Rotary is participating in the planning and construction of a new city park. In addition to providing plans for the entire project as a whole, the club has taken responsibility for planning, financing and constructing a 12-acre section of the park. This area will be devoted to a fitness trail, exercise stations, a discovery playground and other facilities for family enjoyment. Participation in Rotary International's PolioPlus program, Springdale Rotary is helping people around the world. The PolioPlus program was designed to eradicate polio throughout the entire world by the year 1990. In three years Rotary International plans to immunize millions of children throughout the world against polio and other infectious diseases.

The Goldenrod Club

The Goldenrod Club was organized April 12th, 1909, by 12 women who lived in Braden Community. These women were: Mrs. John George, Miss Annis Routh Moureaux, Mrs. Dorcas Routh, Mrs. Nancy Jenkins, Mrs. Alice Huddleston, Mrs. Lena Huddleston Skillern, Miss Kate Hennesy, Mrs. Ethel Jenkins Walker, Miss Alice Jackson, Mrs. Martha Jackson Rieff, Mrs. Virginia Jackson Kirksey, and Mrs. Nell George Brown.

It was organized as a serving club, but later became a Home Demonstration Club. The colors of this club are yellow and green, the flower is goldenrod, and the motto is "Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself." This club has been interested from its beginning in better homes, better schools, better communities and better government. In 1921, the club became a member of the A. F. W. C.

It would be interesting to know about some of the early money making projects which were curb markets and Farm Women markets where each member could take her canned goods and home baked goods and sell to the city folk. At one time the club had a kitchen band and gave programs in the different communities, providing lunching of farm sales and pie suppers. With this money a room was furnished at City Hospital, a contribution was made to help restore the Arkansas Building in Little Rock. Contributions were made from time to time to the girls 4-H House at the University of Arkansas. A day nursery for children of World War II Veterans in Terry Village, the first in the state, was established. Another outstanding accomplishment was furnishing a room at the City Hospital at the cost of $300.00. This money was raised by collecting and selling a car load of paper. Our club won sweepstakes at the Washington County Fair every year for ten consecutive years.

We were instrumental in founding the school of nursing at the University of Arkansas under the able leadership of Mrs. Bess Romans. We also sponsored the organization of the Junior Civic League, which now consists of more than fifty women.

The most outstanding accomplishments for the past ten years are contributions to: Childrens Hospital in Little Rock, Childrens Colony in Conway, VA Hospital, Boy Land, Penny Art, Teacher Scholarships, Child's Day Care Center, and Hydrotherapy Pool at the City Hospital. The money for these contributions has been made by rummage sales and the sale of the Bright's Cards. In later years, we have contributed to the 4-H Club Scholarship Fund, and to other Community Projects. We are a member of the Washington County Cooperative Extension Service.

The Washington County Legal Auxiliary

The Washington County Legal Auxiliary was organized in August, 1974. The initial officers of the group were: Chairman: Mrs. Bill Bassett; Vice Chairman: Mrs. Bill Storey; Secretary: Mrs. F. H. Martin; Co-Treasurers: Mrs. Tilden Wright and Mrs. Thomas Jacoway; Program Chairmen: Mrs. E. J. Ball and Mrs. Courtney Crouch.

The objects of the Auxiliary are: To encourage friendship and fellowship among members; To assist the Bar Association in its functions and endeavors; To provide civic and social services to those related to the legal profession; To further the dignity of the legal profession.

To be eligible for membership in the Auxiliary, a person must be the spouse of an attorney living in the Washington County District. A minimum of five meetings a year are held. The current dues are $10.00 per year. The money making project is an auction held each fall.

Some of the service activities are: (1) Legal education for fifth grade school children. Local attorneys discuss the legal system, and slides are shown to the children. They are conducted on a tour of the courthouse, judges' chambers, police station and jail by members of the Legal Auxiliary. (2) Assistance to the University of Arkansas School of Law for social functions. (3) The current project is to establish a scholarship to the University of Arkansas Law School.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club, founded in May 1912, first met on September 20, 1912. Originally a study group of twelve members, the club is now a book review club and all reviews are given by members. From the onset, the limited membership has met in members' homes. Esse Quam Videri "To be or not seem to be", is the club's motto and its purposes are literary study and altruistic work.

Initially, regulations for members' attendance were strict with fines imposed: twenty-five cents for an unexcused absence, five cents for tardiness and one dollar for failure to perform assigned duties. Subsequently, the fines were relaxed.

Mrs. R. B. Willis, a founder, was the first president. Other charter members were Mrs. Charles Appleby, Mrs. Homer Pearson, Mrs. Lessie Stringfellow Read and Miss Florida Read.

The early members were instrumental in the organization of the Fayetteville Public Library. As books and monies came from the community, Miss Florida Read, librarian three afternoons a week at a salary of fifteen dollars a month, led a paper drive to raise funds; members of the club worked to fill a box car with old newspapers and earned twenty-five dollars for the library. First housed in a private home, the library was moved into the Washington County Courthouse in 1916.

Main interests of the Twentieth Century Club have always been books, the city library and the intellectual growth of its members.

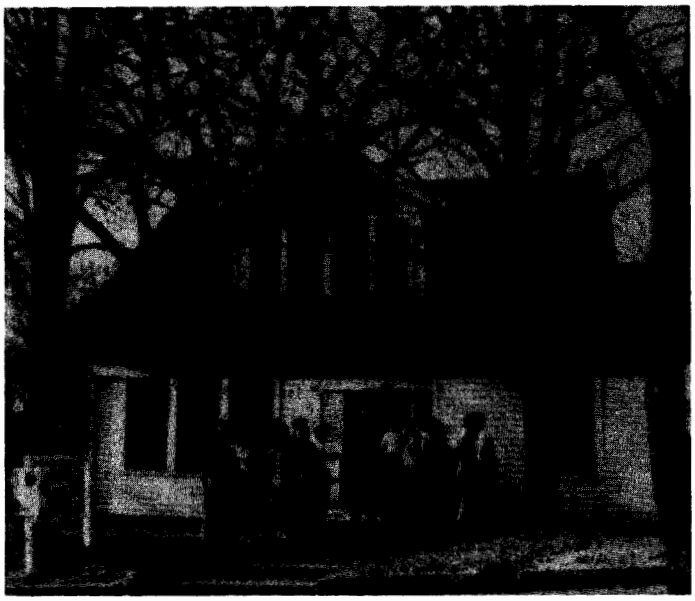
U of A Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union is a campus ministry of Southern Baptist Convention churches. It emphasizes the two dimensions of the Christian faith—Christian growth and Christian outreach. It is an open fellowship, and students of various church and religious backgrounds participate in its ministry.



Baptist Student Center 1947-1956

Baptist Student Center 1957-to present time

The Baptist Student Union at the University of Arkansas is a cooperative ministry of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, and churches and Associations in the northwest Arkansas area.

Unfortunately, complete historical records have not been kept. It is known that from the time the work was begun sometime in the 1920s, until the 1940s, it was under the direction of the First Baptist Church of Fayetteville. Many of its early leaders were volunteer or part-time workers. And, most of its meetings were in First Baptist facilities. Since the late 1940s the Arkansas Baptist State Convention has had the primary responsibility for directing this ministry, with area churches and Baptist Associations giving strong support.

Persons serving as either part-time or full-time Baptist Student Directors, or BSU secretaries, as they were known in earlier years, include E. N. Strother, Josephine Scaggs, Mary Jane Redwine, Mary Jane Angus Haley, Vernon Bellue, Dan Bates, Riley Allan Brickey, (1950-1951) and Jamie Jones (1951-1988). Associate Directors include Ken Watkins (1972-1980), Raye Nell Dyer (1981-1984), and Lynn Loyd (1984-present). In addition to full-time staff members, a number of short-term assistants have served, some as part-time and some as full-time workers. Included in this group are Rex Enoch, Atherton Hiett, Jr., Dan McCauley, Martha McDonald, Allen Rankin, Karen Allred, Jan Kaupp, Donna Wright, Ann Cross, Betsy Adkins, David Blackmon, and Curtis Sergeant. Persons who have served as music assistants are Don Wright, Elaine Short, Mike Rush and Garth Rotramel. Full time secretaries who have served are Kay McCartney, Jan Berryhill and Mrs. Velma Best, who has served since March 1975.

First Baptist Church of Fayetteville and its pastor, Dr. O. L. Gibson, led the Arkansas Baptist Convention to purchase a lot and dwelling at the corner of Maple and Lindell Streets on May 28, 1947 for use as a Baptist Student Center. The purchase price was $14,000. The committee members appointed by the Convention to select and purchase the property were Dr. Ben L. Bridges, Dr. O. L. Gibson, Dr. T. K. Rucker, Dr. Edgar Williamson and Dr. T. H. Jordan.

This dwelling served a dual purpose from 1947-1956. The upstairs apartment was home for the BSU Director's family. The first floor was used as headquarters for the Baptist Student Union. The most descriptive word for it was "small." All rooms were small-including the office, lounge, kitchenette, prayer room, rest rooms and the largest room, which served as a meeting room for all BSU activities and a recreation area. The major meeting was a student-led Vesper service Monday-Friday from 5:00-5:20 p. m. When not in use for BSU meetings the chairs were removed and a ping pong table was set up.

Jamie Jones became BSU Director in 1951. He began to enlist the aid and support of area and State Convention Baptist leaders to construct an adequate Baptist Student Center. Those giving strong support to the project were Dr. Andrew Hall, pastor of First Baptist, Fayetteville; Dr. Tom Logue, State BSU Director; Rev. Burton Miley, pastor of First Baptist, Springdale; Dr. T. K. Rucker, president of the executive board of the Arkansas State Convention; Dr. Rel Gray, president of the convention; and Dr. Ben L. Bridges, the convention's executive secretary.

In 1956 the Jones family, which included three children, moved out of the upstairs apartment and the building was razed so that construction of the new building could begin.

The new Center was dedicated in August of 1957. The building, not including the lot and furnishings, cost $68,000. Sharing the cost of the project were the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, $41,000; First Baptist, Fayetteville, $14,000; Northwest Arkansas Churches, $9,000; and BSU Alumni, $4,000. The facility included 2 offices, a large conference room, living quarters for 2 residents/custodians, an assembly/lounge area with a seating capacity of approximately 200, a library, 2 prayer rooms, a guest bedroom and bath, a lounge/recreation area with a seating capacity of 150 at banquet tables, a kitchen, rest rooms, a darkroom, 2 large storage rooms, 2 smaller storage areas and an equipment room. Some areas have been converted to other uses in recent years as the staff has increased and because of the acquisition of equipment-computer, copier, etc. BSU Director, Jones, says: "Overall, the building has been very functional and quite adequate for the needs of our BSU."

In recent years the 3 houses on Lindell Street, adjacent to the Baptist Student Center property on the north, have been purchased. One of the houses has been used to house furloughing foreign missionary families on several occasions. But its primary use is to house students. Students living in the houses commit themselves to specific responsibilities and disciplines designed to promote Christian growth and discipleship. Jones said: "The U of A Baptist Student Union has been blessed by having facilities in such a strategic location. I know of no other property in such close proximity to the heart of the U of A campus which could have been available to us."

Jones has been involved with the Baptist Student Union since 1946. He and his wife, Beverly, met in the Baptist Student Union at Auburn University in Alabama. "The Baptist Student Union has touched the lives of thousands of the U of A students in significant ways. A large number have entered special Christian ministries as missionaries, pastors and other church-related vocations. And, a host of others are Christian lay leaders in their various vocations and in their churches and communities," Jones said.

U of A BSU alumni have responded generously to Jones' suggestion that an endowment be established for future support of BSU's ministry. Pledges and gifts now total approximately 250 thousand dollars. "This is tangible evidence that the Baptist Student Union has had a significant influence upon their lives," Jones added.

Jones plans to retire May 31, 1988. He believes that the future of Baptist Student Union on the U of A campus is bright because, "We work with some of the finest young people you can find anywhere, we have the strong support of our Arkansas Baptist people and our BSU alumni, and we are concerned with the most important, the ultimate, dimension of life—the spiritual dimension, the students' relationship to God, and His will and purpose for their lives."

U of A Foundation for IES

When the University of Arkansas faculty members incorporated the non-profit "University of Arkansas Foundation for International Exchange of Students" in 1950 they may not have realized how long it would continue and how many lives it would affect. In 1987 it is still active, and by now 250 students from 45 countries have studied at the University under scholarships granted by the Foundation, and 30 young people from the United States have studied in Japan and Finland under its auspices.

Among the most active in the early years were Dr. John E. Shoemaker, Bunn Bell, Dean Ralph Barnhart, Mrs. Jessie O'Kelly, Dr. R. J. Hostetter, Dr. W. C. Noyce, Dr. Wesley Thomas, Dr. Z. Harvalik, Dean Jeanette Scudder, Mrs. Maude Blondeau, and the Misses Helen Y. Hughes, Mary Droke, Helen Graham, and Cecelia Russell.

The articles of incorporation gave as purposed of the Foundation ". . .to promote international friendship and world peace by stimulating and supporting cultural activities and projects among students from this country and abroad, . . .provide scholarships; . . .stimulate interest among American students in study abroad; . . .work for exchange professorships. . ."

Funds to finance the work of the Foundation have been raised in a variety of ways: Bookends made from railings from staircases in Old Main were made and sold, as well as a cookbook of international recipes. For several years, starting in 1960, a Winter Choral Festival was co-sponsored with the various University choruses. Starting in 1979 an annual Used Book Sale has been held for 3 days each spring at the Northwest Arkansas Mall. Other support has come from campus living groups, service clubs in the area, churches, and individuals, including foreign students sponsored by the Foundation in its early years who wish to see the program continued. The University provides a limited number of scholarships covering out-of-state tuition.

At present exchanges are carried on with Kansai-Gaidai University in Japan and the Agricultural College of the University of Helsinki, Finland, and there is an agreement with the Escuela Agricola Panamerica in Central America.

The Foundation's work is conducted by a governing board made up of faculty members of the University and representatives of groups providing substantial support for a student.

UCS of Northwest Arkansas

United Community Services was established in 1969. UCS is a nonprofit corporation responsible for planning programs to improve recreational, health and social services in Northwest Arkansas.

Since 1972 UCS has held monthly meetings open to anyone who is interested; programs of various community agencies and organizations, and the best ways of referring people in need of services are discussed.

In 1969, the first Directory of Services of Washington County was printed. In January 1988, the 17th edition of the Washington County Directory of Services and the 2nd edition of the Benton County Directory of Services were compiled and printed. The directories list social services available in Benton and Washington Counties.

On July 1, 1970, the Ozark Guidance Center opened. The opening of this agency was a result of a UCS study of needs in the community. Members of the UCS Board were incorporators of the Center and operated the agency until its own Board was established.

In 1973, UCS organized a committee and assisted the community in locating a neuro-surgeon and helped to get him established in Fayetteville. Also in 1973, UCS was instrumental in establishing Youth Attention Home, and later assisted in creating Youth Bridge, Inc., the organization which incorporated YAH, Boyland, and Indian Trail House.

In 1981, UCS was instrumental in establishing an Emergency Relief, Referral Service, and Clearinghouse Services; and assisted the Salvation Army in securing funds for the Clearinghouse.

In 1982, UCS conducted 3 public forums to determine needs of the community and to establish priorities for the development of programs to meet these needs.

In 1984, UCS established a County-Wide Youth Project to work with junior and senior high schools to develop positive leadership among students.

In 1985, UCS began a series of Community Renewal Conferences to identify and begin work on solving pressing needs in the community.

UCS continues to review existing services to determine whether gaps or duplications exist; conducts studies of existing services, upon request; and makes long range plans for development of services.

United Community Services is a member of the Fayetteville and Springdale United Ways.

United Daughters of the Confederacy

The United Daughters of the Confederacy is a group of ladies with a common bond. We all had relatives who fought for the Confederacy during the War Between the States. Today as before, "we consider it a great privilege to honor the living and remember the dead of our beloved Southland".

The Mildred Lee Chapter No. 98, of Fayetteville, Arkansas was organized on Oct. 16, 1897, by Miss Fannie Scott, of Van Buren, at the residence of Mrs. A. E. Menke. There were 20 charter members and it was the third chapter to be organized in Arkansas.

During the years the chapter has placed or aided in placing a number of markers on historic sites. Pictures and books have been given to schools and libraries, and many monuments built in the U. S. with the aid of our chapter. At the Fayetteville Centennial in 1928, a marker was erected at College and Dickson to commemorate the Battle of Fayetteville. In 1927, they presented to the city a bronze tablet on the Yarrington Bldg. to mark the spot where in May 1861, a Confederate flag was given to the first Confederate Co. in Washington County, organized by Capt. T. J. Kelly. Other markers have also been erected, including a stone seat at Cato Springs in memorial to Co. "K" 34th Arkansas Infantry, C. S. A.

Veterans of all wars as well as Confederate veterans have always been the object of devoted attention: Donations have been made to needy individuals and families, and to the VA hospital.

At one time the membership of the local U. D. C. chapter rose to the peak of 100. We now have over 40 members. Two of our members are "real daughters", daughters of Confederate soldiers. They are Lottie Crouch and Nan Moore. Other local members are Mary Kate Bradford, Kay Browne, Nell Clarke Cooke, Merilee Curtis, Mona Elliott, Gladys Guinn, Penny Hendrickson, Nancy Huddleston, Bobby Johnson, Mary Beth Jones, Tenna Kolb, Mildred Lavender, Margaret Lee, Ouida Logan, Evelyn Milam, Carolyn Moulton, Avenelle Poehler, Shirley Overton Quick, Joyce Quimby, Margaret Rauch, Lorene Raymond, Louise Reagan, Lucille Rogers, Fay Saunders, Winifred Sharp, Mary Carolyn Thomas, Virginia Tidball, Lina Watson, Rebecca Williams, Elizabeth Wilson, Ruth Ann Wilson, and Bernice Yeater. Out of town members are: Patricia Browner, Mary Lou Fletcher, Amy Suzette Glenn, Ollie Griffin, Margaret Huntley, Louisa Kinsworthy, Isabel Lewis, Mrs. Winston Lindsey, Marilyn Crouch Noland, and Lee Constance Wilkinson.

United Way of Fayetteville, Inc.

For more than half a century, Fayetteville has subscribed to the concept of one single appeal to support voluntary health, welfare and recreation agencies. Although the name for these fund drives has changed over the years, the purpose has remained the same.

The formation of the local Community Chest, forerunner of the United Way, was co-ordinated by the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce. Marion Wasson, chamber president, called a meeting to determine if the city wanted to join with the National Community Chest. By a vote of 30 to 2, the Community Chest concept was adopted and the first annual fund drive was begun. James K. Gregory was named drive chairman and G. C. Melton was selected as vice-chairman for Fayetteville's first Community Chest fund drive in 1931. The first Board of Directors included Tom Asbury, Ralph Lewis, Irby Abshier, Marc Stice, C. C. Yarrington, James K. Gregory and G. C. Melton. A goal of $16,080 was established and the community mobilized to conduct the drive to raise funds to assist nine agencies. These charter agencies were: Associated Relief of Fayetteville, Red Cross, Tuberculosis Seal Sales, Fayetteville Public Library, Harmon Playfield, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Crippled Children's Association and the Chamber of Commerce Emergency fund. The initial fund drive did not meet its quota but in a two-week period raised $13,427.91. Nevertheless, the Community Chest was continued.

Through the years, the Community Chest underwent many changes. The name was changed to Fayetteville United Fund in the 1970s and again changed in 1987 to United Way of Fayetteville, Inc. One thing that has remained constant over the years is that most of the work carried out by the United Way is done by volunteers. A full-time Executive Director was hired in the 1980s, Paul Seman; Jo Ann Sandlin currently fills that position. In addition to the Executive Director, the United Way also employs an office staff consisting of a full-time and part-time worker.

The most dramatic period of growth in the United Way of Fayetteville has taken place in the 1980s. This decade has seen the most consistent margin of success since the beginning of the Community Chest in 1931. Building upon successful fund drives, the 1987 campaign goal was exceeded by over $50,000 to reach an all-time high of over one-half million dollars.

Not only does the United Way seek to raise funds to help meet the needs of the community, it also seeks to recognize those who unselfishly volunteer their time and resources to aid the less fortunate. The Betty Lighton Volunteer Service Award was established in 1984 to annually give honor to such a volunteer.

VFW Jack Tidball Auxiliary 2722

Institution of the Ladies Auxiliary to Jack Tidball Post 2722, Veterans of Foreign Wars was held Sunday, March 3, 1940 at the home of Mrs. L. L. (Eula) Harness in Fayetteville. Mrs. Mae Rosenbaum, El Dorado, Department president conducted the installation and was assisted by Mrs. Warren Hoover of Eureka Springs, District Deputy. Mrs. H. L. Hunnicutt was elected president of the auxiliary; Mrs. S. W. (Lyla Jane) Jackson, senior vice president; Mrs. Ira (Ruth) Hammond, junior vice president; Mrs. Otis (Martha Ann) Hampson, chaplain; Mrs. Marvin (Arvella) Jaggers, conductress; Mrs. E. H. (Leda) Hodges, guard. The first meeting was set for Thursday, March 14 at Brewer's Electric Shop. Alex Williams of Muskogee, Legislative Chairman for the V. F. W. Department of Oklahoma, spoke on the legislative program. James C. Putnam, Founder and First Commander-in-Chief of the V. F. W. was guest speaker. Charter members of the Auxiliary were: Bertha Davis, Berniece Brewer, Berthania Davis, Dove Furlow, Ruth Hammond, Martha Ann Hampson, Eula Harness, Leda Hodges, Addie L. Hunnicutt, Arvella Jaggers, Lyla Jane Jackson, Addie Lee Lister, Fannie Robinsen, Pearle Rush, and Nora May Ward. Of the charter members, Dove Furlow, Ruth Hammond and Eula Harness are still living and paid up members.

The Auxiliary has over the years been active in community, state and nationally sponsored projects. Perhaps more time has been devoted to volunteer activities at the Fayetteville Veterans Administration Medical Center for patient care than any one program. Many auxiliary members have donated time for hospitalized veterans care; however, Berthania T. Davis, Nora B. Ward, Eva A. Putnam, Ruth Morris and Flora Bailey have donated thousands of hours. Eva A. Putnam and Flora Bailey were recognized for over 3,000 hours volunteer service through the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Joe (Ruby) Anderson has been a faithful Auxiliary member, having served over 21 years as Secretary-Treasurer and two years as District Secretary. Berthania T. Davis, Eva A. Putnam, Ruth Morris and Helen A. Blackwell have served as District Presidents.

Eva A. Putnam, wife of James C. Putnam, served three years as Department Chaplain. Helen A. (Putnam) Blackwell served as Department Assistant Conductress and at Department Convention in June 1987 was elected Department Guard, a position in line to be elected Department President five years in the future. Helen's eligibility to the VFW Auxiliary is based on the military service of her father, James C. Putnam who was the recognized founder and first Commander-in-Chief of the National organization.

Auxiliary members have participated in patriotic holidays and assisted the Post in community projects. Meetings are currently held the second Monday at the Post Home and the Post and Auxiliary enjoy a fellowship dinner before meetings.

VFW Jack Tidball Post 2722

An organizational meeting was held September 23, 1932 to establish the first Veterans of Foreign Wars post in the city of Fayetteville. At this meeting, Brant R. Dever of Fayetteville was elected temporary commander and W. J. Frost temporary quartermaster-adjutant. The organization was scheduled for completion on Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., at Woodman Hall. The charter was held open to permit additional veterans to be charter members. All veterans who served on foreign soil in time of war were eligible. Sixteen members signed up at this meeting. Mike Sokell and Dewey J. Willis, deputy chief of staff, were present from Little Rock for this organizational meeting with other out of town guests as follows: Vivian Bell of Jefferson City, Missouri and Commander R. J. Johnson, Marvin Jaggers, Charles A. Martin, Otis German, Todd Godart, A. E. Pate and D. F. Frank, all of Rogers.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States Emblem is the Cross of Malta.

This VFW post lost no time establishing their identity in the community. They were represented November 11, 1932 at the Rogers Armistice Day ceremonies and at their next meeting voted to ask Congress to increase capacity of the Veterans Hospital under construction here from 250 to 500 beds, as recommended recently by George McGilton. They also planned Christmas baskets for the needy.

Jack Tidball Post 2722, Veterans of Foreign Wars was chartered October 16, 1938. Charter members were: James Walter Allison, Waldo Gary Austin, Roy Blevins, Berta Albert Boatright, Vernon L. Boyd, John Bailey, Raymond B. Bradley, Harvey Lee Carlisle, Lewis Henry Cummin, Robert B. Cox, Jake B. Cruse, John W. Diggs, William Fred Earls, Boyd L. Fredrick, Grover Fancher, John W. Fallen, C. B. Furlow, Squire Grose, Jack H. Howard, Ira L. Hammond, Ernest H. Hodges, Hiram Lee Hunnicutt, John A. Henbest, Lloyd L. Harness, Otis Orville Hampson, Wheeler V. Henderson, Oscar J. Horine, Leba William Jackson, Marvin Jaggers, Shelby William Kennard, Warren Lee Lamar, Albert Raymond McManigal, William G. Montgomery, Terry W. Moody, Alfred Mayes, Oscar E. Nordyhe, Ben Raymond Porter, Leonard Rogers, Robert Romeyn Richtmyer, Robert L. Robinson, Benjamin W. Reynolds, Alva J. Rush, James L. Shearer, Joseph Floyd Stanberry, Homer Treat, Jarvey Ward, Ernest Weyer, Robert Emmett White, and Peter Wood.

This newly organized post first met at the court house and at Woodman Hall, and after a short time found they had outgrown this for a meeting place. During World War II, the post flourished with more than a thousand members. Patriotism was high and Joe Anderson, quartermaster for many years, was kept busy with post activities. He also served as national V. F. W. Service Officer with an office at the Veterans Administration Hospital until his death in 1967. Joe also served as District Commander.

During the war, Fayetteville hosted the Department of Arkansas Convention which was headquartered at the Washington Hotel. It was a gala affair, and the town was filled with veterans and auxiliary members.

Jack Tidball Post 2722 has yearly participated in Memorial Day observances at the National Cemetery. Veterans Day activities and other patriotic events. It was traditional that the overseas veterans march in parades with colors to honor the overseas veterans. The members later moved to the Odd Fellows Hall, then the Auxiliary purchased the furnishings of the Women's Civic Club and met in their location on the second floor of the City Administration Building.

This post was among many whose heritage stems through the National Veterans of Foreign Wars office at Kansas City, Missouri. On November 1, 1940, James C. Putnam transferred his membership to Post 2722 from West Plains, Missouri. It was Putnam, who was called "Put" by those who knew him, who originated the idea of an overseas organization, one that would be evergreen in nature and last as long as America was engaged in war or conflict against another nation. Living at Columbus, Ohio at the time, Putnam rode an old Columbia bicycle to locate eligible veterans and on September 29, 1899 thirteen overseas veterans met at the clothing shop of Francis DuBiel at 286 E. Main Street, Columbus and organized what is today called the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. (VFW). Putnam was elected the first president and wasted no time in filing Articles of Incorporation with the state of Ohio, county of Franklin under their selected name "American Veterans of Foreign Service." As eligible veterans from subsequent wars and veterans groups joined or merged, the name was finally changed in 1913 to that of VFW. Putnam has been recognized and introduced at national conventions as the "Founder and First Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

This major veterans organization at its 88th National Convention in 1987 recorded the 32nd consecutive year of membership growth and for the fourth consecutive year topped the two million member mark and celebrated a membership total of 2,052,521 veterans.

Post 2722 purchased their first post home under the leadership of Commander Paul O'Neal during the year 1977. The Post VFW Building is located at 1605 West 6 Street (Highway 62 W) in Fayetteville. Lawrence Evans,, Commander at the time of this writing, has been a faithful commander for several years and was recently awarded a life membership by the post. Ed Osburn and E. L. Rush both worked faithfully for the post and sponsored programs. William T. Putnam joined after his first tour of duty in the European Theatre and is a life member. H. O. Bailey, another life member contributed thousands of hours volunteer service at the Veterans Administration Medical Center to help hospitalized veterans, along with many other post volunteers. During 1942, under the leadership of National Commander-in-Chief Max Singer, and assisted by the Ladies Auxiliary, the post donated money to help buy war planes.

Objectives of the VFW are: to insure the national security through maximum military strength; to speed the rehabilitation of the nation's disabled and needy veterans; to assist the widows and orphans and dependents of disabled and needy veterans; and to promote Americanism through education in patriotism and constructive service to the communities in which we live.

This non-partisan, non-sectarian organization is open to all honorably discharged American citizen veterans who have overseas service entitling them to a campaign or service medal.

VFW Raymond Alstott Post 2952

Raymond Alstott Post 2952 of Springdale has made history several times since it was chartered on March 5, 1944. This Post has received a lot of recognition as a community non-profit organization, and as such, the City of Springdale has received a lot of recognition from its sponsored programs, even though some of the events were sponsored by the VFW. The post was named for Raymond Alstott, the first service man from Springdale killed in action. He was raised east of Springdale and attended school at Monitor. He died in the Bataan death march.

Military Drill Team of VFW Raymond Alstott Post 2952

A military drill team, composed of sixty uniformed members of the Springdale Post, was organized. More than 100 military funerals were conducted by these trained servicemen for families throughout northwest Arkansas. The uniform used was a VFW cap, khaki dress, black tie, black belt and shoes. The VFW emblem was worn on the tie.

The Springdale Veterans of Foreign Wars Post also sponsored a Springdale Auxiliary Police force from its membership. This force was first named "Springdale Civil Defense" and membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars was a requirement. These veterans were on call when the Springdale Police Department needed assistance. A membership of 120 VFW members were on call to assist the Police Department. Uniforms used were dark blue pants, light blue shirts, and a dark cap with light cover.

Marion Mays was elected the first Commander of Raymond Alstott Post 2952, which was chartered in March 1944. Post 2952 began with the following charter members: Noel L. Anderson, George A. Balling, Oscar B. Bedell, George Alford Davis, Everett W. Donaldson, Jack E. Donaldson, Morris W. Donaldson, John L. Downum, Charles F. Elmer, William Fink, Erton E. Fredrick, Bradley L. Fulfer, Charles G. Giles, William H. Harp, Claud Harris, Baxter W. Hensley, Linn W. Henson, Ed Holzenhamp, Oscar J. Florine, Herschel Horner, Henry C. Jarvis, Wallace H. Johnson, Llewellyn Maddan, Roy E. Maddiex, William C. Matheny, Alfred Mays, Marion Mays, Frank E. Mulkey, James N. Noland, Jessie H. Parsons, Ahsel M. Peterson, A. F. Saulsberry, Charlie C. Seals, James L. Sigmon, Pleasant J. Sigmon, Bruon Smith, Reed A. Smith, Jonnie W. Stockton, Dixon R. Stokes, Byron D. Tansey, Walter E. Walgreen.

Springdale Post history reflects two Department Commanders—Keith Wentz during 1955-1956 and Everett Donaldson during 1960-1961. Keith Wentz, during his term as Department Commander and years following, was presented a unique award, and to date no one has earned one like it from the V. F. W. National Headquarters. This Certificate of Merit was presented to Commander Keith Wentz, Commander of Raymond A. Alstott Post 2952, Springdale, Arkansas, "In recognition of him as the only Veteran of Foreign Wars member ever to attain highest credit in three All-American categories: All-American Department Commander 1955-1956; All-American District Commander 1957-1958; All-American Post Commander 1959-1960. His achievement exemplifies the best leadership in all phases of the V. F. W. program. In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and the official seal of the V. F. W. of the U. S., this 2nd day of August, 1960." This certificate was signed by Louis Leo Freeman, Commander-in-Chief and Julian Dickenson, Adjutant General. Commander Wentz was Post Commander two times.

Everett Donaldson was also an outstanding Commander. He served Springdale Post as Commander several times, was First District Commander then Department Commander in 1960-1961. Tommy Kirkland of Springdale was the youngest District Commander in Arkansas, at age 32. Tom Kirkland, his father, was named All-State Post Commander for 1980-1981 and 1981-1982. This is the first time this award has been won back to back, two years in a row by a commander in Springdale.

Walnut Grove Cherry Belle Extension Club

The Walnut Grove Cherry Belles are celebrating their 50th anniversary as an Extension Club at Walnut Grove from June 1987 to June 1988. It's work is historic, benevolent, and social with at least one of it's projects within a radius of ten miles from the Walnut Grove Community Presbyterian Church. It's other projects may be anywhere the club members wish to work.

The club was organized by Miss Harriet King with the following members; Mrs. Elsie Giles (Bob), Mrs. Jim Couch (Claud), Mrs. Helen Bogart (Robert), Mrs. Helen Wilson (Griff), Mrs. Juel Hamblen (Albert), Mrs. Marie Griffen (wife of the pastor Rev. Marion Griffen,, at whose home the club was organized. Mrs. Hamblen (Giles) is the only local living member and Mrs. Griffin is now in a nursing home in Van Buren. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Vera (Clifton) Wade and Mrs. Doris Leflar Wigglesworth. Both "girls" are still living. The club has had many projects: assisting the church in holding Bible School, made white robes for the young people in the choir, putting in water and gas and papering the four large school rooms, building a kitchenette with a refrigerator and two burner hot plate.

The 4-H Club won first place two or three times with their booth at the fair, and bought the big furnaces that are still used in the Community building (formerly the school house before consolidating with Prairie Grove and Farmington). The club started a school lunch room and two of the club members, Lela Terpening and Lydia Shumate did the cooking. They also sponsored a library from the regional library in Fayetteville, exchanging books each month. Rev. Griffen had organized a "Westminster Fellowship" (the young people in Sunday School and Christian Endeavor), and a 4-H club. When he moved away, he turned the youth work over to Albert and Juel Hamblen, who took the young people on trips which also included the picture show once a week in Prairie Grove and to the Armory in Fayetteville where they played basketball games with Fayetteville and other area groups. They took them to hear Mrs. Eleanor Rossevelt talk at the U. of A. and to church and 4-H camps, at Devils Den and youth camp at Lake Wedington. The club women made lovely basketball suits of light tan colored percale with a large WG, for Walnut Grove, on the back. Mrs. Giles cooked for the annual 4-H camp for 13 years, 75 to 90 kids, three meals each day. She was assisted by the older children and later by Lucy Allen, Flora King, Izetta Gibson and Viola Shipley.

One of the recent projects outside the community was getting the Bob Kidd Lake, west of Prairie Grove, name corrected. For some reason the name "Bob Kidd" had been incorrectly named "Budd Kidd".

The club's current projects are decorating the little Cemetery Hill Memorial Park and sponsoring a little park of their own, the "Walnut Grove Memorial Park" on Walnut Grove Road, where they restored a log cabin and small museum. They plan to paint a mural representing community life from 1800 to 1900.

The club's motto is "be cheerful, smile and pass it on", their flower is cherry blossoms, their bird is the mockingbird, and their tree is the walnut tree (for Walnut Grove). Their theme song is "Mockingbird Hill" and their colors are green, red and gold. Their closing motto is "Life is a bowl of cherries only if we make it so".

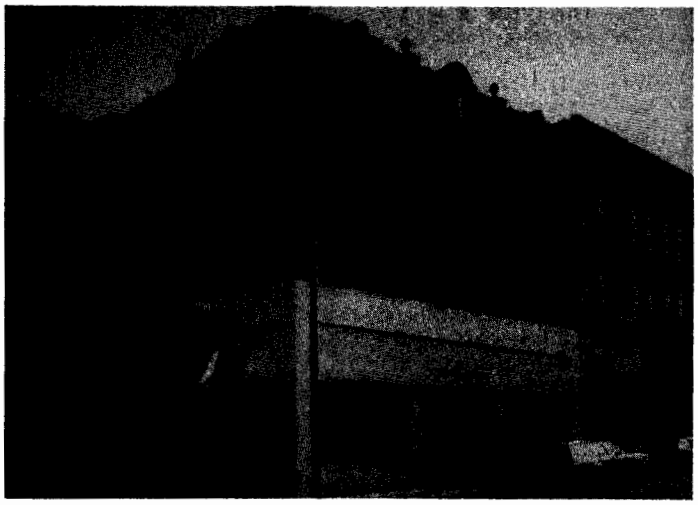
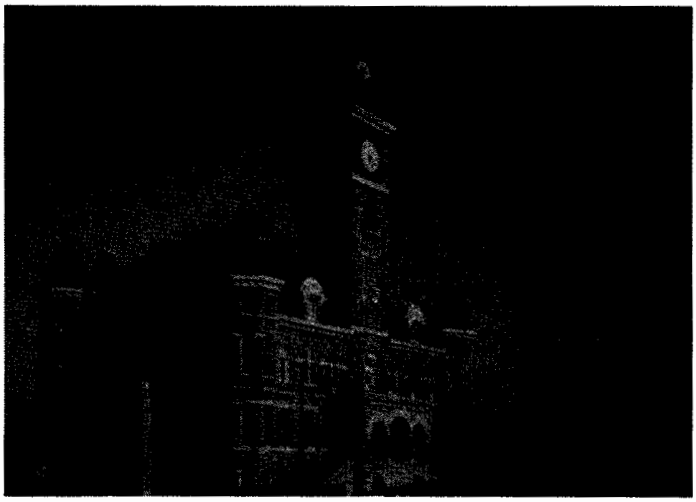
Washington County Bar Association

Though not officially called the Washington County Bar Association until 1935, when a group of about 40 lawyers formed an unincorporated organization by that name, members of the "Bench and Bar" have, since the early 1900s always been a loosely associated group who were both framers and interpreters of the laws to protect our rights and privileges.



Washington County Courts Building



Washington County Courthouse

Numbering well over 200 today, Washington County attorneys meet monthly to hear guest lecturers speak on social, political, economic, and other topics of current interest to members of the legal profession.

In the early 1800s many legal practitioners were zealots determined to tame the lawlessness they saw in this area.

The brilliant orator Alfred W. Arrington became so famous for his successful court practice in Washington County during the 1830s that he was eventually hired away from this region by a Chicago law firm.

Another prominent barrister of that era was William McK. Ball. He was so popular in the State that the saying arose "as goes McK. Ball, and as goes Washington County, so goes Arkansas".

J. "Vol" Walker, for whom the University of Arkansas library is named, stalled efforts in the early 1920s to relocate the University in a stirring speech before the Arkansas Legislature. "You can't move the University to Little Rock," shouted Mr. Walker, "You can't get Old Main through the (train) tunnel at Winslow!"

Through the years there have been many memorable members of the Washington County Bar. Some who held public office were David Walker, Lafayette Gregg, Archibald Yell, Jim Trimble, Lee Seamster, and Clifton "Deacon" Wade, to name but a few.

There are many stories handed down about these and other lawyers - perhaps because of the very nature of the practice of law. There are many attorneys living today who will no doubt be remembered by future generations: J. William Fulbright, as President of the University of Arkansas and U. S. Senator; Maupin Cummings, as a tenacious army general and judge; Tom Butt, as an articulate communicator and judge, (as was his brother, John); Rex Perkins, as a colorful trial attorney; and the list goes on and on.

Ted Coxsey, former prosecuting attorney and judge, tells this story, which, by the way, took place in the 1960s: A client, upon losing his case, (as one must always do!), struck his lawyer, sending him sprawling on the ground. The judge immediately ordered the man to apologize publically and before his Court, to his lawyer for his poor behavior. Said the irrate fellow to his attorney, "Sir, I hope I don't have to do this to you again!"

Washington County Historical Society

Founded in 1951, The Washington County Historical Society celebrated its 36th anniversary at the same time Arkansas hailed its 150th year of statehood.

In its early history, Walter Lemke, founder and guiding light, issued "Flashback" and many bulletins intermittently. In recent years, "Flashback" is published as a 48 page quarterly mailed in February, May, August and November. Currently, the Society is emphasizing historical and genealogical publications and the restoration of the Headquarters House Grounds.

Headquarters House, also known as the Jonas Tebbetts Home, built in 1853, was acquired by the Society in 1965 and is now a house museum with offices for the society. Volunteers act as tour guides and the house is open to the public Monday through Friday, 1:00 to 4:00 p. m.

The Society has completed restoration of the Sarah Ridge House, which marks the culmination of 14 years of effort to purchase and restore this, Fayetteville's oldest home.

With over 900 members, the Society has supporters in all of the contiguous states and Alaska and Hawaii, with about 500 members in the immediate vicinity.

The annual budget is approximately 25 thousand dollars, coming from membership fees, donations, and publication revenue. Fund raising includes the Gay 90s Ice Cream Social, sponsored by the Society since 1972. In past years, special features of the Social have included an original play about Sophia Sawyer's Fayetteville Female Seminary, a silent auction, a costume contest, and an old book sale.

Volunteers continue to be its mainstay. The Society genealogical research service for members and some six to eight queries are answered weekly. A part time executive secretary is employed.

WCHS spearheaded development of the Washington-Willow Historic District and has actively opposed efforts to alter that district through the years.

A photographic collection, numbering more than 4,000 items, is maintained. Files on other historical items are also kept, and the Tom Feathers Memorial Library provides books on Arkansas and the Southwest for research.

A non-profit organization, the Society is governed by a Board of Directors, who hold monthly meetings.

Washington County LWV

The League of Women Voters of Washington County has been organized three times. The first time occurred on March 17, 1920, the same year as the passage of the Nineteenth Amendment and the founding of the National League of Women Voters of the United States. The second formation of the local League took place in 1939, and during this period the first state League of Women Voters in Arkansas convention was held at Fayetteville in May, 1941.

The third local organization occurred on February 9, 1952 (when a state League had not yet been re-established), and has continued to this day (1987). A second state League charter was subsequently granted to Arkansas on May 26, 1955. Since the fifties, the League of Women Voters of Washington County, an integral part of both state and national Leagues, has been in the forefront of all significant changes in the processes of government on all levels.

Examples of these processes include: abolition of the poll tax; support of humanitarian United Nations policies; use of voting machines; change to city manager form of municipal government in Fayetteville; activation of county quorum courts; support of District of Columbia suffrage; continuing informed and updated support of civil rights, women's legal equality (Equal Rights Amendment), child welfare, public education policies, freedom of information, merit system in all branches of government, environmental protection and preservation, and international relations.

From the third time frame in the local League's history, certain members have made important contributions to the organization as a whole by their work at local, state, and national levels. These members include Esther Clark, Sylvia Swartz, Wilma Sacks, Peg Anderson, and Lois Imhoff.

Posse

Mounted Posse.

Washington County Sheriff's Posse

Sheriff Bud Dennis with 1987 Posse members.

The Springdale Mounted Patrol, organized under the guidance of Springdale Chief of Police Wayne Hyden to promote the Rodeo of the Ozarks, was the founding organization for what is known in 1988 as the Washington County Sheriff's Posse.

The original members came from all walks of life; farmers, doctors, attorneys, businessmen. The original men participating were Wayne Hyden, Ted Coxsey, Dr. Roger Edmondson, Judge Maupin Cummings, Shorty Parsons, Johnny Gladden, Dr. Ralph Powers and his brother, Wendell, Dr. Nickum, Elza Houghon, Raymond Ash, Roscoe Quhn, Charles Gordon, Slim Taylor, Dr. Rdonsis, Charles Tansey, J. C. Murphy, Curt Jones, Roy Walker, John Henbest, Don Hoyt, Jerry Hinshaw, Garvin Martini, Lawrence Harris, Rudy Moore, Sr., Hallie Adcock and Charles Stump.

Similiar horses were required to be ridden, equipped with identical tack, down to the matching chaps. This group traveled to promote the Rodeo of the Ozarks by riding in parades as far from northwest Arkansas as Cheyenne, Wyoming, Colorado Springs, Colorado and Albuquerque, New Mexico. One trip was made by chartering 2 railway coaches and 1 stock car to transport the horses and riders to a parade.

The organization was not a "law enforcement body" so no weapon proficiency was required, but the Mounted Patrol could be called out by the Circuit Judge when needed to assist in civil disasters such as tornados, floods, fires, etc.

A horse, horse trailer and a vehicle to pull the trailer had to be at the disposal of the member. By 1965 and 1966, the membership began to lessen. Older members were no longer physically able to participate in the ardous trips and lengthy parades.

The Washington County Sheriff's Posse originating from the Springdale Mounted Patrol functioned for a time under the supervision of Sheriff Arthur Davidson.

April, 1967, a meeting was held in the home of Jerry Hinshaw near Tontitown, Arkansas, where 12 men met to reorganize this group. New Articles of Incorporation and a new charter brought into official being the Washington County Sheriff's Posse. Bill Long, sheriff at that time, Jerry Hinshaw, Guy Terry, Ben Glover, J. T. Hathorn, Lawrence and Lloyd Cate, Jesse Jones, Dean Harger and J. D. Snow were 10 of the 12 men that met that evening. J. D. Snow was retained as the president. At this time, the members were still required to maintain horses and ride in the Rodeo of the Ozarks parade, and other parades within a 75 mile radius.

Monthly meetings were held and soon law enforcement training began as the purpose was to assist the sheriff's department in every way needed; floods, lost children, man hunts, storms, traffic control and other times when asked by the sheriff to help out.

Presidents that have served since the re-organizations are J. D. Snow, Guy Terry, Bruce Ledford, Larry Dalrymple, Bill Brown and Manny Backstrom.

In 1988, to be a member of the Washington County Sheriff's Posse, certain qualifications must be met. A physical and physchiatric examination must be passed; must be over 21 years of age and under 55; have been a resident of Washington County for 3 years immediately prior to membership; must attend a prescribed 100-hour course on law enforcement and pass a test at the end of the course; qualify on a firing range with weapon to be used while on duty with the sheriff's department; and wear the uniform required by the Posse.

The first year of membership is called a "probation period". During this time, a novice member is asked to be on patrol only with a full-time deputy or with another Posse member who has completed his probation period.

All Posse members are required to volunteer a minimum of 100 labor hours per calendar year. Most Posse members give many, many more hours than this to the sheriff's department.

Annual dues of $10.00 per member, with a maximum of 50 members allowed to join, financially support the work of the Posse. This is augmented by the proceeds from the Junior Rodeo, which the Posse has sponsored for 14 years; and other fund raisers chosen by the group. This money maintains a command post (motorhome) to be used on locations such as manhunts, lost child searches, etc. The Posse also purchases and maintains hand-held 2-way radios for the members to use as needed. A van is also maintained. Each Posse member purchases his/her own uniforms and weapons. The only item furnished by the sheriff's department is a bullet-proof vest.

Sheriff Herb Marshall

Volunteer work done by the Posse many times relieves the sheriff's department (and the county taxpayers) of much overtime by performing tasks normally assigned to regular deputies such as transporting prisoners, traffic control at the University of Arkansas football games, security at the Washington County Fair and at the Rodeo of the Ozarks. All monies received for working the Rodeo of the Ozarks goes into the Posse funds.

Approximately 40 members make up the Posse, in 1988.

Sheriff Bud Dennis summed up the gratitude of the taxpayers of Washington County when he informed the Posse that insurance coverage was obtained for them while they were on duty for the department. "This is the least we can do in return for the thousands of free man-hours given to Washington County by the Posse. This organization gives freely of their time and dedication to the sheriff's department", Sheriff Dennis said.

In mandatory volunteer hours alone the Posse gave 4,000 free hours in 1988.

Washington Lodge #1 F & A M

Washington Lodge #1 was not the first lodge established in Arkansas but is the oldest lodge in Arkansas, having the longest continuous existence of any lodge in the state. The first lodge was established at Arkansas post under authority of a dispensation given by the grand master of Kentucky in 1819, chartered in 1820, surrendered charter in 1822 when the capital was removed to Little Rock, Arkansas and the lodge ceased to exist. According to several historical sources, a charter was granted to Washington Lodge #82 by the grand lodge of Tennessee on November 5, 1835, although some contend that it was later.

First Masonic Hall - 1839.

Washington Lodge No. 1, Masonic Temple - 1986.

From October 1836 proceedings of the grand lodge of Tennessee page #336 "A dispensation to Washington Lodge #82, to be held in Fayetteville, Arkansas territory, issued on the 24th of December 1835." October 1837, page #344 "That a dispensation has been issued by the grand master to Washington Lodge, #82, renewing a former dispensation, and bearing Date November 12, 1836, to be held in Fayetteville, Arkansas." Page #345 "On motion, resolved, that the grand lodge give to Washington Lodge, #82, a set of jewels for use of said lodge and that the grand secretary hand over the same to the representative of said lodge. Resolved, also, that a charter issue to Washington Lodge, #82, and that Onesimus Evans be the first master, James McKissick first senior warden, and Matthew Leeper the first junior warden of said lodge." We believe that November 5, 1835, was the date when the first steps were taken for organizing a masonic lodge in the city of Fayetteville, or was the first dispensation that was issued and the charter issued in 1837.

The grand lodge of Arkansas was organized November 25, 1838, and four charters issued to Washington Lodge #1, Western Star Lodge # 2, Morning Star Lodge #3, and Mount Horeb Lodge #4 on December 13, 1838.

Archibald Yell gave the land for the first masonic lodge hall on the corner of Rock and Block Street in Fayetteville, Arkansas, and the first $100.00 to the building fund. A two story frame building was completed about 1840. He also made several pieces of furniture for the hall including the alter for the lodge.

In 1875 the building was remodeled and in 1907 the masons moved to the third floor of the Wolf building on Mountain street. Contract dated September 10, 1906 for labor and material for the third floor was $4479.84. The lodge property was sold to Dr. J. F. Stanford, veternarian, November 23, 1914, for $1800.00 and he used the building as a veterinary college for about six years. The college closed and he converted it into his own residence until it sold in 1959 for commercial property.

On October 1, 1904, the Masonic Lodge had a part in the laying of the cornerstone of the new county courthouse and a list of the lodge officers was placed in the cornerstone.

In the spring of 1905 the lodge considered purchasing the third story of the Fayetteville Bank for $3500.00, but was later dropped because of terms.

November 5, 1935, Washington Lodge #1 F&AM observed it's one hundredth anniversary with a banquet and appropriate program at the Mountain Inn Hotel, Fayetteville, Arkansas. It was attended by over 250 people, many prominent masons from Arkansas and other grand jurisdictions. Officers of the lodge were: A. C. Jaggars, worshipful master; Davis Richardson, senior warden; Samuel B. Thorpe, junior warden; C. B. Franke, treasurer; and R. P. Nifong, secretary.

April 1962 lodge purchased a piece of property from M. N. Graue on Highway 71 north (90' frontage by 250' deep) for $6750.00 and April 29, 1965 sold it for $10350.00 because we could not purchase additional land that joined the property.

March 4, 1964 Washington Masonic Building Corporation received official certificate of incorporation of domestic non profit corporation from state of Arkansas, Kelly Bryant, secretary of state. Formation of this had started in November 1961 by Edward B. Meriwether, Herman Hartman and Harold Norwood.

March 8, 1964 land was purchased from Miss Audie V. Millsap for $15000.00 and immediate plans started on a suitable building and funds for the temple by the board or directors. Ground breaking ceremonies were held September 14, 1968 and Washington Lodge #1 held their first meeting in the new location at 1106 Masonic Drive on June 8, 1970. Officers were John T. Weir, worshipful master; Elton Dial, senior warden; Donald W. Barker, junior warden; Tom Eads, treasurer; and Gerrit DeBoer, secretary. June 9, 1970 an open house was held and dedication of a new organ, a gift of Miss Audie V. Millsap.

October 7, 1978 dedication service for Washington Lodge #1, which marked the fact that it was debt free.

September 1985 settlement was reached with the city of Fayetteville for the west half of the third floor of the Wolf building for $20000.00.

November 2, 1985 Washington Lodge #1 F&AM observed their sesquicentennial (1835-1985) with an open house, a program with Frank Mitchell, worshipful master, presiding. The address was given by the most worshipful grand master of the grand lodge of Arkansas, Arthur J. "Buddy" Mhoon, followed by a dinner.

Current officers of Washington Lodge #1 are: Lloyd Hester, worshipful master; Joe Rouse, senior warden; John I. Mehrholz, junior warden; Eugene H. Schmitz, treasurer; George Presley, secretary; Paul Marinoni, chaplain; William B. Rudasill, senior deacon; William J. Wertens, junior deacon; and Ronald D. Harrell, tiler.

Following is the Notice Proceedings of the convention that formed the Constitution of The Grand Lodge of Arkansas, A. D. 1838, A. L. 5838.

The Convention of the Ancient York Rites, met in the city of Little Rock, Arkansas, in the month of November, in the year of Christ, 1838, A. L. 5838, composed of the following delegates:

From Washington Lodge #82, working under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, Onesimus Evans, P. M., Washington L. Wilson, Robert Bedford, A. Whinnery, R. C. S. Brown, Samuel Adams, and Williamson S. Oldham.

From the Western Star Lodge, #43, working under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana William Gilchrist, P. M., Charles Jeffries, P. M., Nicholas Peay, P. M., Edward Cross, P. M., Thomas Parsel, Alden Sprague, and John Morris.

From Morning Star Lodge #42, working under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, John W. Pullen.

From Mount Horeb Lodge, working under a dispensation from the Grand Lodge of Alabama, James H. Walker, Allen M. Oakley, Joseph W. McKean, and James Trigg.

Which Convention, on the 21st day of November, A. D. 1838, by unanimous consent of all delegates, adopted a Constitution for the government of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas: whereupon, a Grand Lodge was opened in due and ancient form, and the officers thereof were elected and installed according to the most ancient usages and customs of the Fraternity: when on the 27th day of November, aforesaid, the Convention adjourned sine die.

Attest: John Morris, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas.

Welcome Wagon

The famous Welcome Wagon "Greeting Service" was organized in 1928, by Thomas Briggs of Memphis, Tennessee, who saw the need for "old-tyme" cordial hospitality that existed in the early days of America. He used the symbol of the Conestoga Wagon that went out to help and greet newcomers in America, especially in the West. The plan quickly spread across America, Canada, United Kingdom, Australia, Puerto Rico, Trinidad and gradually into northwest Arkansas—first in Rogers and then in Springdale as Robert Moore, President of the First National Bank, Springdale, in 1959, decided that this city also need such a greeting service for the large number of people moving in each year. Gladys Gilmore, a recent widow, was chosen to be the first hostess and of her original sponsors of the program, five are still greeting the newcomers: First National Bank, Harp's Food Stores, Sisco Chapel, Springdale News and Springdale Cable. Gladys' term of service was from March 1959 until January 1960 when she married Warren Harris and turned the duties over to Bertha Tonne, who is still active in the greeting of newcomers.

Since part of the duties of The Welcome Wagon Hostess is to provide a club where newcomers can get acquainted, the first meetings were held in the Tonne living room and as the weather warmed up, was carried outdoors to the front yard. Later, as the organization's membership grew, meetings were held in the Hospitality Room of the First National Bank, where coffee meetings are still being held today.

The number of monthly calls increased as more and more people found new homes in northwest Arkansas. In 1960 only 230 calls were made but by 1965 the calls were averaging 400 a year with a slight increase since then as no calls are made to the lake or other outlying areas.

The original Welcome Wagon Club consisted of both retired and younger housewives so about 1962 the club was divided into a Senior Club and a Junior Welcome Wagon Club with the first meeting held at the home of Winifred Clark, who had joined the ranks of Welcome Wagon hostesses, and later became area supervisor, traveling throughout the state of Arkansas and parts of Missouri.

Today there are three Senior Welcome Wagon Groups and one Junior Welcome Wagon Group. The Jr. Welcome Wagon does not grow fast because most women seek work shortly after getting settled in their new homes. The retired group stays in the Newcomer Group a few years until the club gets too crowded for "easily getting acquainted" and then they are transferred up into the Shiloh Settlers Welcome Wagon Club and finally into the Alumni where they continue to stay and which club will eventually be the largest. All of the retired folks have become active in various civic services: Volunteers at the Hospital Auxiliary, Thrift Shop, Hospital Gift Shop, volunteers at the Museum and Library, Meals on Wheels, R. S. V. P. and many individual services including a "Helping Hand" where club members offer their various skills to help other club members. The clubs all meet twice monthly: one coffee/business meeting and the other a luncheon where various programs are presented. All club members say that the clubs have helped them with the adjustment period of a new location and have given them new and cherished friendships (faster than through their church or other organizations) because the main purpose of the club is to help folks get acquainted as quickly as possible and a series of house parties are held each winter for that purpose. The club also tours various factories and charters buses to visit various areas of interest on one-day trips.

It is believed that Springdale was the first place in the country (United States) where a Welcome Wagon Club was provided for the retired married couples. This has contributed to the great success of the Senior Clubs as the retired men and women work together in the club and share in all the new friendships, meeting folks with like hobbies and interests. Total membership in the four Welcome Wagon Clubs is close to 400. The present hostesses for 1988 are Bertha Tonne and Anna Mae Ellstrom.

Winslow O. E. S. #361

February 25, 1911, a preliminary meeting was held at Winslow to organize a chapter of the Order of Eastern Star as an affiliate of the F. A. M. Summit Lodge #530.

The name Clyde Chapter was unanimously agreed upon, since Clyde Karnes and his half-brother George A. Winn had built the hall in which the meeting was held. Its second floor was dedicated for the Masonic Lodge already in existence. The Masons had contributed funds toward the erection of the building and continued to pay rent for their occupancy. The Clyde Chapter name was a fitting tribute since Clyde Karnes, at 27, died a year after the building's completion.

Recorded in the 1911 "Proceedings of the Grand Chapter", it is determined that on April 1, the Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Nora Rushing, Deputy of the Sixth District, Mrs. Minnie Maxwell, the Clyde Chapter was formally instituted. According to Maxwell's report: "On April 1st, by special request on Clyde Chapter, I went to Winslow and assisted them in perfecting their organization." The charter was received in November of 1911.

Charter members listed were: Mrs. Etta (F. F.) Black (First Worthy Matron); Mrs. Christina Bogan, Mrs. Martha (C. A.) Brown, Mrs. Audie (J. M.) Crider, Miss Maude Guinn, Mrs. Rachel (Wm.) Guinn, Mrs. Scrilda (S. A.) Guinn, Mrs. Etta (W. W.) Mahan, (sister to Clyde Karnes); Mrs. Rose (Elmer) Miller, Mrs. Clara (D. H.) Morgan, Mrs. Z. T. Porter, Mrs. Maggie (G. W.) Reed, Mrs. Ollie (A. E.) Stockburger, Mrs. Laura (J. A.) Winn, A. W. Brown, C. A. Brown, James M. Crider, S. A. Guinn, W. W. Mahan, D. H. Morgan, A. T. Porter, G. W. Reed, A. E. Stockburger, J. A. Winn (First Worthy Patron).

Zion-Oak Grange #826

The Grange is the oldest farm organization in the country with its origin in Washington, D. C. in 1867. Known as the "Father of the Grange" is Oliver Hudson Kelley. It serves as an agricultural, community, family and fraternal organization with its parent branch "The National Grange" located in Washington, D. C.

Ralph and Fay Morrison came to Springdale in 1950, and with the help of Carol Kemp organized several granges in this area. Zion-Oak Grange #826 was organized in 1952. Charter members were: Lois and Harold Heckel, Nora Bea and George Lingelbach, Neva and Flavy Powell, Pat and Bert Donaldson, Peg and Bob Overton, Shirley and Eugene Eddy, Art and Erma Hylton, and Cora and Golden Ivey.

Meetings were and are still held at the old Zion-Oak School building on County Road 87, southeast of Springdale. Meetings are held twice a month. The first is a closed business meeting for members only. The second is held as a social with visitors welcomed to join in a pot luck supper. At times prominent citizens, such as government authorities, are asked to speak on a given subject for the public's interest.

Members have served the community by helping the sick, elderly, and persons who have suffered a fire loss, etc. They have helped to get the Zion road blacktopped. Zion Grange helped Boy Land of Winslow become self-sufficient. They served dinners including homemade pies at the Stage Coach Inn in Springdale during Rodeo time. They still serve dinners and run a food booth at the Washington County Fair. They use skits for comedy while visiting other Granges.

Once a year a State session is held, presided by representatives from the National Grange and attended by representatives from Granges all over Arkansas. Sewing and craft contests are held during the session with prizes awarded to winners.

Community Service committee collects, makes and distributes toys and games to children in hospitals. Clothing and food for the needy and lap robes are made for nursing home patients. Used books are taken to different libraries. Each month several members serve coffee at the Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville.

Zion-Oakland Extension Club

The Zion-Oakland Extension Home Demonstration Club was organized in 1945 after the Victory Club was split into two clubs, as it became too large. Peg Overton was the first president of Zion-Oakland.

Charter or early members were: Peg Overton, Neva Powell, Lena Powell, Pat Donaldson, Faye Morrison, Christine McCain, Cora Ivy, Charlotte Couch, Anna Terry, Mertle Fowler, Allinett Burge, Sara Hulsizer, Mrs. O. E. Williams, Lula Dodd, Virginia McPherson, Mary Cooper, Claudine Fletcher, Eilene Anderson, Mrs. Giles, Mrs. Shively, Erma Hilton, Lois Heckel, Isabell Meeker, and Loretta Simmons.

Zion Oakland was very involved with Springdale and County civic affairs. The 4th of July and Rodeo activities, serving food at the Stagecoach Inn in pioneer costumes; they tabulated old and new cemeteries in the county; gave clothes and school books for needy students; scholarships for Home Ec students at the University of Arkansas; held a benefit for a small boy with a terminal disease; gave flowers, cards, and reading materials to patients in the local hospitals, and many, many hours in volunteer work at the Veterans Hospital. In 1968 a United Nations Luncheon was served with the help of the Grange women. Recipes that were served were compiled in a book and given to guests and members. A permanent marker was put up on the corner of Highway 68 and County road 87, to mark the route of the Stagecoach from Missouri to Fort Smith, Arkansas.

Present members are: President, Vera Peterson, Martha Gulley, Bea Gulley, Charlotte Couch, Neva Powell, Zelma Ostendorf, Shirley Eddy, Morene Mabry, Anna Berry, Ann Giese, Carole Martin, Anna Bell Schwab, Wilma McGinty, Ruby Warren, Diana Morse, Susan Jones, and Mildred Vaughn.

Families

Introduction

There are more than 1,000 family stories in this book, and the same threads of hope and inspiration, struggle and suffering, ambition and creativity, and most of all, will to survive run through the rich and colorful fabric of life in what is now Washington County. Family relationships were extremely important in early days, as each member of the family was dependent upon the others in difficult and dangerous situations and sometimes for life itself.

Looking back upon the lives of our ancestors, we come to believe that we too can overcome the stresses and problems in our lives, just as they did in an earlier time. We are inspired by their successes and saddened by their failures. By learning of our family backgrounds, we can better understand our character traits, beliefs, thoughts, ideas, and feelings, which have surely been shaped by our ancestors and by the environment in which they lived and worked.

To make this county the exceptionally fine place that it is today took the dedication and devotion of the families who have lived here from pioneer days to the present.

Families submitted their own stories, told in their own words.

Amos Franklin Adams

Born near Magazine, Arkansas, in 1894, Amos Adams is living a long life and has resided in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and California. When his mother passed away while he was 4, he decided to be raised by his grandparents. Life on the Ellington farm was enjoyable, the scenery was spectacular, and Amos remembers much about Mt. Magazine, his mule (Kate), and friends and relatives close to him. He is a mild, mellow man, meticulously organized, honest and neat. His gardens are always the envy of the neighbors.

In the early 1900s Amos had a "taxi" service (hack and mules), transporting tourists to the old hotel at the top of Magazine Mountain. In those years people visited there from all over the nation. In 1916 Amos married Emma Lee McCormack of Blue Mountain. She was shy 5 days being 16 years old. Her family originated from the area and owned a cotton gin. "Doc" and Henryetta were her parents. The McCormacks originally came from Ireland to South Carolina in the early 1700s, and then migrated to McNairy County, Tennessee, in the 1800s, they moved to Baxter County, Arkansas.

In 1919, Jason Charlie Adams was born, and Wilma Evaline Adams came in 1923. It is reported that "Mom Emmer" did not want to have more children. It was unusual in those times to have small families, but she bucked the trend. In 1926 Amos bought his first car: a 1924 model Chevrolet Tourister.

Emma was a Baptist, but in 1916 Pentecostal meetings came to town. From that time on she was Assembly of God, raised her family in the church, and later influenced Goldie Adams, Charlie's wife, to join the fold in 1942. Baptist and Pentecostal religions were and are a strong influence upon the Adamses. The Masons also wielded influence upon the men of the family. Their ancestors of notoriety were all members of the Lodge; so, it followed that the Masonic tradition be passed on.

The boll weevil had a devastating effect upon farmers. Even during the prosperous 1920s, Arkansas was depressed. Granddad Amos and Mom Emmer were affected by the economy as they struggled to raised their children. Tourism to Mt. Magazine had dwindled, and crops had failed. In 1931 Amos drove out to Elk City, Oklahoma, to scout for work. The boll weevil for some reason was not as destructive out on drier plains. His sister and brother-in-law, Myrtle and Claude Hasty, were already there. In 1932 Amos returned to Magazine to move his family west in the old family truck. On the flat-land they continued to raise their family and sharecrop. It was still a struggle because of the Depression and Dust Bowl, but the family still looked for better days.

In 1951 Amos, Emma, Wilma and daughters, moved to Pampa, Texas, where Amos was a finish carpenter. And in 1954 they moved to Bakersfield, California, where Amos was a carpenter at Edwards A. B. F. in Mojave Desert. On Cypress Street in Bakersfield he grew fruit trees and gardens which caught everyone's eye. Amos purchased a 1955 Ford pickup that he kept in excellent condition for 20 years. Mom Emmer was known as the best cook in the world. Her pomegranate preserves and jelly were a tasty delight, and the family remembers her holiday feasts.

After several years in California, Granddad Amos felt that the grandchildren needed to be in the better social environment that Arkansas offered. Amos and Charlie, in their point of view, were concerned about their children becoming "wild" like so many Californians they observed. In 1961 Amos bought a farm 3 miles east of Siloam Springs and did much improving of the property.

In 1977 Amos Adams and Wilma (Adams) White moved to Fayetteville to be nearer to other family members already residing in the city and to take advantage of shopping, and other conveniences. Granddad Amos continues to be physically active despite setbacks occasionally brought on by illness. At 94 he is quite alert, and the family is proud of his strength.

George Adams

The Adams families of Washington County, Mr. Amos F. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Loren W. Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Adams, are direct descendants of George W. and Jason A. Adams. Jason Arthur Adams was the father of Amos F. Adams, who presently lives on Crossover Road in Fayetteville and is 94 years of age. This brief account of the Adamses is a historical picture of a family tracing its roots to generations in the past centuries. At the time this is being written, the family is conducting extensive research about its history in preparation for a family history book.

The known history of the Adamses began in medieval England when the name "Adams" was the second most popular Christian name. About the time that people began choosing surnames, there were suddenly a great many Englishmen with names like "John Adam", "Jacob Adam", "David Adam", and "Thomas Adam". Later, when scribes started to write in a more natural form, a final "s" began to appear on many names, "Adam" among them.

Adams is a common name in present-day England, particularly in Bucks, Devon, Hants, Staffordshire, Shropshire, and Monmouthshire. The name was more common in the Middle Ages and was the 17th most common name in America at the end of the 1700s. By 1964, according to the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, it had dropped to the 31st in rank.

The precise ship and the name of the direct ancestor to the Adamses of Fayetteville to first migrate to the colonies are not known at this time. The most distant ancestor about which we have records was of George Washington Adams, born February 15, 1840, in Meigs County, Tennessee. From documents researched, it is believed that his father's name was Thomas Adams from North Carolina.

Around 1852 George migrated with his family to Arkansas, and in 1860 he was living near Dardanelle working as an apprentice to Solomon Cline who built wagons.

On November 28, 1861, George married Louisa Rogersin Clarksville.

Louisa's family was reportedly full-blood Cherokee who moved from Hamilton County, Tennessee, on the Trail of Tears. Her mother, Mahala Rogers, and 2 sisters died on the Trail, and her father, Henry, and other brothers and sisters survived and settled in Shoal Creek Township of Johnson County, now a part of Logan County on the north slope of Magazine Mountain.

In March 1863 George W. Adams, Henry Rogers and 4 of Louisa's brothers joined the 1st Infantry, Company "I" of the Union Army in Fayetteville. Louisa's father was killed in battle, but her husband and brothers survived.

On their 40-acre farm on Shoal Creek after the war they gave birth to Jason Arthur (1867); and after moving to Yell County in 1871 Charles Marion (1872), Simon Wylie (1873), James Franklin (1875), and Lovina (1882) were born. The mother, Louisa (also called Eliza) died on November 16, 1882, and the youngest child may have died with her.

George, it is reported, moved his family often after her death. In 1893 he married Nancy Jane Hall of Logan County (formerly married to Johnston Hall). She owned 10 acres on the Petit Jean River. In 1902 George left her and moved in with his son, Charlie, in Latham, Oklahoma, in LeFlore County. Charlie was the town sheriff of Bokoshe. In July 1909 George Washington Adams died of kidney infection and is buried in the Milton Cemetery (northeast corner). Amos Adams of Fayetteville is the first grandson of George and is a healthy 94.

Jason Arthur Adams

On January 2, 1867 Jason Adams was born on Shoal Creek in Johnson County, Arkansas (now a part of Logan County). In 1892 he married Amanda Sonora Ellington who was the daughter of Lewis Ellington of Magazine. This union began the life of Amos Adams. They settled near the Brazil River southeast of McCurtain, Oklahoma. The river's stagnant water is believed to be the source of the malaria causing Nora's death in 1898. Jason Adams then opted to leave their two children with the maternal grandparents to be raised.

Jason returned to the Indian Territory and married Margaret Trahern of the Choctaw Nation in 1899. Nine children were born of this marriage: Curtis (1900), James (1903), Samuel (1905), Pauline (1907), Rena (1909), Bertha (1911), Hatti (1914), Roverta (1917), and Olena (1919). From the Indian-U. S. Government agreement Margaret received 3 sections (1,920 acres) of pine timberland west of McCurtain.

Bertha (Adams) Geesman wrote of Mr. Adams: "My father, Jason, was a short man, always wore a mustache, cowboy boots and overhauls. He chewed tobacco and was a horse trader who always would get the 'short end of the deal'. He was a farmer, but his real trades were carpenter and blacksmith. He shod horses and mules and worked at the sawmill on the homestead." Jason was also known for his fiddle playing. Amos remembers the family gathering around to hear him in the evening hours.

The Adamses moved to the farm and built a two story colonial-style home, but in 1916 the home burned. The family Bibles, records, and other valuables were destroyed. Jason had built a fire of pine knots in the stove and then left it to complete his chores. The stovepipe became red-hot and the ceiling caught fire. The family was helpless since they could only carry buckets from a distant well. The family was uninjured, but it was nevertheless a tremendous hardship with no insurance.

Another tragedy developed when Jason borrowed money from a loan shark around 1920. Margaret had warned repeatedly, "The day we take a loan out on this place is the day we lose it." It happened just as she predicted. In those early days of Oklahoma there were few banking regulations, and even with the few laws on the books, the young state was unprepared to enforce them. The loan shark convinced Jason of the need for fences and other "improvements," but Margaret questioned him, saying, "Why do we need fences anyway? This is all open range." Jason finally pressured Margaret into signing. In only 18 months the crooked company foreclosed and forced the family out. Descendants remember this as actually the saddest day of their lives. Years later after Jason's death relatives encouraged Margaret to reclaim the land through a U. S. government law (exp. 1945) to protect Indian land against swindlers. But Margaret was so hurt that she didn't want to go through all the papers again.

Evidently Jason was not frugal in business. His skills and talents were among his redeeming qualities. He helped construct a bridge over the Arkansas River at Bixby in 1925. He opened a large blacksmith shop where he shod horses, built wagons, wagon beds, coffins, and other furniture. In 1928 Jason worked at the Phillips refinery near Barnsdall until a stroke paralyzed him on the right side, which led to his death a year later.

After being evicted from their land near McCurtain, Oklahoma, the family moved to Cowlington. The children have fond memories of the school near their home. They became active in the church, and Jason sharecropped for a living. It was a step down from their birthright land, but the family still cherished good memories of Short Mountain and being together.

In 1930 Jason was hit with another stroke. His son, Sam, committed him to the hospital in Vinita. On November 1, 1930, Jason passed away, and he was buried in Barnsdall. Margaret passed away in Tulsa in 1955. The family has since settled over the entire country, and the eldest son lives in Fayetteville.

Jason Charlie Adams

Born on September 1, 1919, Jason Charles Adams now is retired on his farm south of Elkins. He is the son of Amos F. Adams, now 94, who lives in Fayetteville. J. C. or "Charlie" has lived an exciting life traveling over the world many times on construction projects.

He began his early life in Magazine, Arkansas and at age 12, moved to Elk City with his family. In 1939, he married Goldie Louisa Jordon of Canute, Oklahoma. She was raised on a farm with seven other brothers and sisters. Her father was murdered in 1929 because of a dispute with a son-in-law. Goldie's mother, Momma Jer (as they called her), was left to raise the younger children on the family farm, which was in the Dust Bowl during the depression. The hardships of that time are widely published.

In 1942, Charlie enlisted with the U. S. Navy in the Seabees and was stationed in the Pacific arena during World War II. His engineering training and high school related courses qualified him to be in the construction battalion. It was a fierce struggling time during the war, as men lost their lives. Families at home had to undergo rationing and the fear caused by not knowing the fate of their loved ones in battle.

The children of Charlie and Goldie Adams are Patrick Charles (10/27/40), Loretta Lou (Adams) Ivey (8/5/47), Loren Wayne (1/23/50) and Mary Kathleen (Adams) Riley (11/4/51). Patrick Adams has resided in Fayetteville since 1974 and is employed as a diesel mechanic at Case Tractor Company, Incorporated, in Springdale. His wife, Marlene of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania is an RN at Washington Regional Hospital. Pat and Marlene have a son and daughter. Loren Adams returned to the city in 1983 and is employed at the University as a research assistant at the GENESIS Project, a science and technology program sponsored by the state. His wife, Joyce of Wytheville, Virginia is a real-estate agent and office manager at Century 21-Frances Langham Realty in Fayetteville. They have two sons. Charlie and Goldie's oldest daughter, Loretta Ivey, is living with her husband, Bob in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. She has one daughter. Kathy Riley resides in Moore, Oklahoma with her husband and three sons. Charlie's sister, Wilma (Adams) White, also lives in the city. Her daughter is Mauritta (White) Gray, who is the manager of Plaza Travel in the Northwest Arkansas Mall. She has been priviliged to travel around the world many times. Her husband, Harry Gray is a civil engineer and owns his own firm. Wilma's younger daughter, Charlotte (White) Robinson, is an office manager in a medical facility in Vinita, Oklahoma.

After World War II, Charlie and his family moved to California in 1952. The opportunities seemed to be more available in that state. Charlie began to work for major construction projects from Edwards Air Force Base in the Mojave Desert. From there, the family moved with each of his transfers to Idaho, back to California, Colorado, Texas and Arkansas. In 1962, the family settled with the grandparents on their farm near Siloam Springs while Charlie was appointed projects around the world: Iran, Jamaica, East Pakistan (Bangladesh), Panama, Saudi Arabia and Puerto Rico. His oldest son, Pat joined the same construction firm and had assignments in Afghanistan (just before the Russian invasion), Guatemala, Iran, and Venezuela. Some have said that the adventurous spirit of the earlier pioneer, George W. Adams was passed on. Charlie's profession as a construction superintendent continues into his retirement: his former company occasionally calls upon him for management consultation in Dallas.

In 1983, Charlie purchased the land south of Sulphur City and retired in 1984. The farm is located on Trace Creek near its convergence with the Middle Fork of the White River.

Jane Stevenson Alexander

Jane Stevenson Alexander, wife of John Alexander, was born soon after the signing of the Declaration of Independence of the United States. Her parents, Alexander Stevenson and Margaret Graham Stevenson, married in Virginia about 1762.

Someone continued keeping a family record even after Alexander and Margaret Stevenson were dead. The Stevensons lived in South Carolina when Jane and John Alexander married.

The following list of Stevenson children was included in a letter dated September 2, 1837, from Sarah Stevenson Patterson of Illinois to her sister Jane, living in Arkansas: Eleanor Stevenson b. September 15, 1764; Mary Stevenson b. September 29, 1766; Elizabeth Stevenson b. March 27, 1768; John Stevenson b. June 15, 1770; Sarah Stevenson b. August 18, 1772; James G. Stevenson born July 14, 1774; Margaret Stevenson b. December 12, 1776; Jane Stevenson b. April 28, 1779; Mary Stevenson b. July 6, 1781; Samuel Stevenson b. October 12, 1785.

The first child of Jane and John Alexander was born while they lived in South Carolina. The next child was born in Georgia, then back to North Carolina for the birth of the first son. They probably stayed there a few years, then went through Tennessee and Kentucky to spend several years in northeastern Arkansas, where they found other Stevensons located.

The last child of Jane and John Alexander was born in Lovely's Purchase in 1823. In this new country, people had to know how to do their own work. With the help of the children, Jane made clothes and bedding from skins of wild animals. Children at play would load the hides with the younger ones riding and pull the hides over the ground until the hides were soft as cloth.

Water was carried from the springs for household use. The cool water coming from rocky crevices served to keep food supplies cool. Once, a bear cub was trying to get to that food when captured by the children and made into a pet.

The daughter Jane Alexander was married to W. C Sparks and was living near Nacogdoches, Texas, when her mother Jane Stevenson Alexander rode horseback to visit her. Years later it was reported by the Armstrong family in Texas that Grandma "sat her horse like a young woman" on this ride from Arkansas.

The last days of Jane Stevenson Alexander were spent with her daugher Fannie Baker. In the 1870 census of Washington County, Arkansas, Jane was listed in this Baker household.

Jane Stevenson Alexander died February 18, 1873. She was buried beside her husband John Alexander in Black Oak Cemetery near their Arkansas homeplace. Their eleven children were: Sarah Alexander b. in South Carolina, October 12, 1798; Abigail Alexander b. in Georgia, September 14, 1801; Samuel Stevenson Alexander b. in North Carolina, August 23, 1804; Jane Alexander b. January 28, 1807; Tempa Alexander b. May 18, 1809; Menerva Alexander b. June 26, 1813; Narcissa Alexander b. northeast Arkansas, September 26, 1815; Fannie Alexander b. northeast Arkansas, October 26, 1817; John M. Alexander, Jr. b. northeast Arkansas, November 6, 1819; Polly (Mary) Alexander b. northeast Arkansas, November 15/20, 1821; William Long Alexander b. Lovely County, Arkansas, November 15, 1823.

John Alexander

John Alexander was born in North Carolina on January 27, 1777. He was married to Jane Stevenson, who was born in South Carolina in 1779.

John had a younger brother, name unknown, and the two boys lived with another family and worked for their keep. When John became old enough to work, he ran away from this family and went to an aunt's home, where he lived and went to school.

He married Jane Stevenson there, and their first child was born in South Carolina. They then moved to Georgia, then to North Carolina and on to Kentucky in 1809. The young couple set out to locate somewhere else. About 1815 they were in northeastern Arkansas, near Batesville, where Stevenson relatives lived.

After a few years there, they moved on to Lovely's Purchase in northwestern Arkansas, where the last of their eleven children, William Long Alexander, was born in 1823.

In 1826 John and Jane Alexander and their children, some of whom were married, joined five other families (two McGarrahs, two Simpsons and a Shannon) to settle in what is now Washington County, Arkansas. They were trespassing on Indian land. They each had a small log cabin and a field of corn not quite mature when a command of soldiers came from Fort Gibson and used swords to cut down the corn and try to move the families off the land. As soon as the soldiers returned to the fort, the six families shocked up their corn and remained in their homes. They had no bread stuff that year, so reported John's granddaughter Ella Alexander, but they planted the immature nubbins the next year and had plenty and for seed.

John Alexander had flaming red hair. When he learned that Indians in the nearby Indian Territory wanted to take his scalp, the family moved to the east and settled at Twin Springs, built a more substantial house of logs, two-story with a double fireplace, and lived there the rest of their days. The 52-year old John Alexander was a Representative in the very first Territorial Legislature in 1829 and was reelected in 1833.

According to the 1836 tax records in Little Rock, Arkansas, John Alexander had 240 acres of first quality land, as well as one horse and eight neat cattle. His total tax bill was $5.00. The tax records for him the following year showed him with 320 acres valued at $3.00 per acre and capital invested in merchandise listed as $12,000, to raise his tax to $30.00.

Records show that John paid taxes on several slaves. One slave was Nancy, about 39, and her child Ellen, 5, auctioned and sold to John Alexander by James H. Stirman for Riggs and Company on September 5, 1845.

John Alexander died May 27, 1860, and was buried in Black Oak Cemetery near the Arkansas homeplace.

Samuel Stevenson Alexander

Samuel Stevenson Alexander was born in North Carolina on August 28, 1804. He was married March 9, 1826, in Lovely County, Arkansas, to Miss Thurzy Ross. The young couple soon joined his parents in a move to the Cane Hill area and later to the present Campbell section of Washington County. He at once joined the Territorial Militia to control the Indians.

References to various papers are given here to reflect events of Alexander's life and the times in which he lived.

A September 3, 1827, tax receipt signed by Jas. Wilson shows that Samuel Alexander paid 75 cents in full for that year. For the year 1828 he paid 81-1/4 cents in full payment of tax, with the receipt signed by B. S. Moore, pty. Sheff.

A certificate shows that on May 18, 1929, Samuel was appointed justice of the peace for the Township of Cane Hill, County of Washington, by Robert Crittendon, acting Governor of the Territory of Arkansas.

Taxes for 1830 were $1.37-1/2, paid to L. Evans, Collector. In 1833, Samuel paid $1.25 in tax to L. Evans, listing a dwelling at 6-1/4 cents; seven head of cattle at 6-1/4 cents, all for 50 cents; and two horse beasts at 25 cents each and one poll at 25 cents, $1.25 in all.

In 1836 Samuel had 238 acres of land in Washington County, a dwelling house valued at $25.00; three horses and mules; five meat cattle; and poll tax of 25 cents. In 1887 he had 200 acres of land valued at $3.00 per acres; four horses valued at $240; and four meat cattle valued at $40, for a total tax of $2.20.

On July 6, 1836, Washington County Commissioners sold, granted and conveyed and confirmed to Samuel Alexander, his heirs and assigns forever, blocks number 33 and 37 as laid down in the plan of Fayetteville, for $29.00. Signers were Lewis Evans L. S., John Woody L. S., L. Brodie, John West, Larkin Newton L. S., and Samuel Vaughan L. S.

Also among Samuel Alexander's papers is a certificate giving him the right of preparing and using for himself and his family the medicine and system of practice secured to Samuel Thamson by letters of patent from the President of the United States on January 28, 1823. Samuel Alexander was constituted a member of the Friendly Botanic Society, Etc., in the document dated June 16, 1837.

A Fayetteville court house record states that Samuel Alexander sold to David Walker Block 33 in Fayetteville "for the sum of 25 d. good and lawful money in hand, on the 7th day of July, 1837." Signing was witnessed by W. L. Oldham and Sebourn G. Sneed.

About this time Samuel Alexander began to look around for more room. Arkansas had become too crowded. He looked a "right smart" before moving to Texas.

Samuel bought a 20-year-old Negro woman named Tabbitha for $475 on September 20, 1844, in Washington County, Arkansas. After his move to Burnet County, Texas, Samuel returned on business to Washington County, Arkansas, where he bought a Negro woman for $750 on June 27, 1857, and a Negro man for $1,350 on July 18, 1857.

Samuel found a salt spring on the Colorado River when he first arrived in Texas. He bought large kettles to evaporate the salt water.

As soon as the Indians were under control, he and his sons began to make and sell salt. About 1855 the new land was put in, and Thurzy and the family members who were still at home moved from Williamson County to North Burnet County, where they spent their remaining days. Indians were still in the area but were not much of a treat.

Samuel died as a result of a wagon accident on May 7, 1863, and was buried in Mesquite Cemetery on family property in Burnet County, Texas.

Thurzy Ross Alexander

Thurzy Ross Alexander was born in Tennessee on April 15, 1810. With her family, she moved to Missouri where her sister China Ross was born. She had at least one other sister who lived and died in present-day Crawford County, Arkansas.

Thurzy was married to Samuel Stevenson Alexander in Crawford County. They bought land in early Washington County and lived for several years near his parents. They were one of the couples who helped to organize the first local Church of the Disciples of Christ, following the teaching of Alexander Campbell. At first, the group met under a tree near West Fork, Arkansas.

The eleven Alexander children all were born in Washington County, Arkansas. They made good, substantial citizens in Texas when they moved to that new state in 1848. At first, they settled in Williamson County, then moved to the northern part of Burnet County, near Lampasas Springs.

The children were: Robert born March 6, 1827, James born January 29, 1830, Martha born September 6, 1831, John Ross born April 3, 1833, Franklin born April 17, 1834, Marion born June 22, 1835, William born February 10, 1837, Joseph born January 29, 1839, Eliza born November 5, 1841, Elizabeth born October 19, 1842 and Stephen born March 22, 1844.

The Arkansas Alexanders and those descending from Thurzy Ross and Samuel Alexander exchange visits to this day. A family reunion is held each year at the site of the old home on Mesquite Creek in Burnet County, Texas. The land, a new house, an old rock granary built by Samuel and the eight boys in the family, rock fences put up by slave labor are still in use by descendants of Marion Alexander.

Thurzy died in Burnet County in 1889 at the home of her daughter, Martha Alexander Lewis. She was 79 years old and was buried near Samuel in the family plot on Mesquite Creek, a short distance from their home.

William Long Alexander

The youngest child of Jane Stevenson and John Alexander was William Long Alexander. He was born in Lovely's Purchase on November 11, 1823. His father and mother moved their family to the Cane Hill section of Washington County in 1826 and then on east of that to Twin Springs, where William grew up.

At that time, buffalo roamed in great herds. In his later years, William told of the buffalo trails he had seen, about 18 inches deep and very narrow, in the vicinity of Fayetteville. At that time, also, the mountains in that area were bare of trees. He helped clear the way for the first telegraph wire on the Old Wire Road, which extended from Fayetteville to Van Buren.

In the days of his youth, William was a noted singer and taught a singing school for several seasons, a popular activity in that community.

Before he married, William built his home with slave labor on a part of the Alexander resettled land, not far from his parents house. William's house had large rooms with high ceilings and two fireplaces. The lumber was made locally, and the large hewn beams that could be seen on the front porch in the 1960s were in perfect condition.

At that time, also, the house contained its original furnishings: spinning wheel, loom and reel and gourds, bedsteads. Several trunks and a quilt box held treasures of the past: quilts, coverlets, dresses, knit (and darned) socks, beautiful handwork, many letters and pictures. On the floors were home made carpets and rugs. In a tool shed near the back gate were two side saddles, one with its red lining still in perfect condition.

In 1881, William married his first wife, Luvicy Jane Cate. Their children were: James Robert, born December 1, 1852; died November 9, 1853, John Charles, born September 18, 1854; died November 19, 1943 (married Bettie Graham) and Samuel Henry, born February 25, 1857; died June 2, 1935.

William's second wife was Mary Elizabeth Johnson, born March 2, 1843 and died August 4, 1908. Their children were: Mitilda Jane, born October 3, 1860; died April 16, 1862, Tempe Alice, born February 4, 1863; died July 18, 1903 (married Joshua B. Webb), William Sherman, born August 28, 1865; died December 26, 1882, Mary Elizabeth, born August 26, 1868; died October 7, 1884, Alta Lucinda, born August 13, 1873; died December 1, 1966 (married Charles Karnes), Laura Ella, born November 2, 1876; died March 17, 1973, Ida Leona, born January 24, 1879; died August 18, 1932 (married George Moneyhun), Everett Leonidas, born February 13, 1881; died October 9, 1957, Benjamin Franklin, born August 4, 1883; died December 18, 1979 (married Jeffie Jewell Reed) and Baby Boy born July 11, 1886; died September 1, 1886.

At his old home, William Long Alexander died on Good Friday, April 5, 1912. His children Ella and Everett never married, took care of their parents, and continued to live in the family home. They are buried in the locality. Among many descendants in the Fayetteville, Arkansas area were the late Carrie and Mary Alexander. Georgetta Alexander Smith and her daughters continue to reside nearby.

Hiram Robert Allen

In October, 1926, my parents, Hiram Robert (Bob) and Nella Lynn Allen, moved our family from Cave Springs to 1319 West Emma Avenue, Springdale. Our home had been purchased from the Ivey family, and daddy had remodeled it. It still is there today, standing the third house west of the present site of the Springdale High School, the second house west of Pleasant Street. None of the high school buildings were there then.

The sidewalk ended at the east edge of our yard, so we placed our mailbox on a tree at that spot in order to qualify for city mail delivery. Going on west, there were only two houses on West Emma, but much farmland, including orchards. West End Street was the boundary and where West Emma now goes further west, there stood in those days the two-story home of the Clyde Solt family. My brothers and I picked strawberries on that farm.

I attended the first two grades at the Old Grammar School on Allen Avenue. The present South Central School building then was the high school. It became my grade school when the three-story high school building was erected on the north side of West Emma Avenue in 1929.

Our neighbors included the Ed Cummings Sr., the Dave Browns, the Elmer Linebargers, the Tom Fowlers, the Hoods, the Holderreads and the Byrds, among others. We actually had a postage-stamp farm there on Emma Avenue, including a large barn and barnlot, a cow, chickens, pigs and large garden. We burned coal in the livingroom heater and wood in the cookstove and the dining room fireplace. We had a well in the yard.

A bricklayer and stonemason, daddy had needed to be nearer the site of most of his work, and my older brothers needed more job opportunities than were available at Cave. Daddy did the masonry work on many of the buildings of the Springdale-Fayetteville area in those days. I recall playing in the sand at the job site when he was building the Dodson Memorial Home Ec Cottage after that acreage became the high school plant.

Mother washed on a washboard and boiled the clothes in a washkettle, hanging them on a backyard clothesline. Her irons were heated on the cookstove, and on that stove she cooked our food and canned hundreds of quarts of fruits and vegetables in season.

In 1933, we moved to Combs in Madison County, returning to Springdale three and a half years later.

I was second from the youngest of a family of 12 children. Daddy and his first wife, Rosa Bluejacket, had four children: Amy Catherine Allen, born in 1895 at Vinita, I. T. and died there in 1897. Eva Vesta Allen married John Murdock at Cave Springs. Both died at Springdale, he in 1979 and she in 1985.

Mayme Lanona Allen married (1st) Carl James and (2nd) Warren Clark. She died in California. Theodore (Ted) Allen died at Tulsa in 1964. Rose died in 1903. In 1904, Bob married Nella Lynn at Adair, I. T. Their children: Lynn Allen married Gerald Taylor. She died at Lubbock, Texas in 1959. Robert Allen married Norine Carpenter. They reside at Anacortes, Washington. Dean Allen married Leanore Hicken. She lives in Springdale, and he died at Springdale in 1975.

Chester Allen married Jewel Dean White. He died in 1941 at Springdale. Harold Allen married (1st) Louinza Gabbard and (2nd) Marie Domke. He died in 1985 at Bonners Ferry, Idaho.

Franklin Allen was born in 1917 and lived one week. Billie Sarah Allen married (1st) Russell Shipman and (2nd) Earle Jines. Russell died in 1944 and Earle in 1984. Billie lives at Pea Ridge, Arkansas.

Gwendolyn Allen married Russell Seay. They reside in Springdale. Our parents lived out their lives at Springdale, where Daddy died in 1947 and Mother in 1958. Both are buried at Cave Springs.

Daddy's father, Elijah L. Allen, a native Georgian, came to Arkansas in 1852. Daddy's mother, Ellen Townsend, a native of South Carolina, came to Arkansas as a child. Elijah L. was a Union veteran.

Mother's father, Lewis Lynn, also was a Union veteran. Her mother was Sarah Ann Holt. Mother was born at Chautauqua Springs, Kansas.

Thomas P. Allison

Thomas Pinkney Allison was born July 7, 1831. His early life was on the old Allison plantation on Clarks Fork Creek in western York County, South Carolina where he was born.

Thomas is the fourth generation of Hugh Allison, Sr. who was born in 1714. Hugh came from Scotland at the age of 22. He landed in America September 13, 1736. Hugh settled in Harford County, South Carolina where they farmed their land and had seven children. Hugh willed his plantation to his son Robert Allison ESQ., which he passed to his son, Dr. Robert Turner Allison, one of seven children.

Thomas Pinkney Allison is the second of seven children of Dr. Robert Allison and Martha Burnett Clinton. Thomas married Martha Ann Meek November 11, 1858. They moved to Arkansas in 1860 and settled in Johnsville on the Snake River and engaged in farming.

Thomas entered the Confederate service in 1862 joining Cleburn's Division of Hardees Corps. He fought in four battles.

He took part in operations against Federal gun boat on the Tennessee River toward the close of the war. Thomas was severely wounded in the arm. He returned to his farm at Johnsville after the war. They sold out in the fall of 1876 and moved to Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Thomas bought another farm in the fall of 1877 at Cane Hill, Arkansas. He lived there and farmed until his death February 21, 1897. His grave is marked at the Cane Hill Cemetery. Martha, his wife, died September 23, 1885, twelve years before her husband. She is also buried at the Cane Hill Cemetery. Thomas had nine children, two of them were born native of Washington County.

James Amzi Allison, born November 18, 1865, was 11 years old when his father moved to Arkansas. He worked on his father's farm until he married his first wife. James married Fannie Elizabeth Parks on February 17, 1889. Her family owned the Parks Corner General Store and Stagecoach Stop. The house, barn and smokehouse are still standing today.

James and Fannie bought a farm at Apple Hill. They had one son, Randall Parks Allison, born February 25, 1899. Randall was 23 when his mother died. She is buried in the Parks Family Cemetery at Parks Corner.

James Amzi married again November 1, 1925 to Mary Bell Chamberlain. He bought another farm in Lincoln where he and Mary lived. They had no other children.

Randall Parks Allison went by R. P. He went to school at Apple Hill. Randall, age 25, two years after his mother's death, married Rixie Crisp in March 1926. He moved back to his father's farm at Apple Hill. They had two sons, James Randall and John Allison. Their mother, Rixie died in the winter of 1932. She is buried near Fayetteville.

Randall was a carpenter by trade. He was a perfectionist down to the last nail. Many of the homes he built are still standing. He died December 1976 at 77 years. James Randall Allison, born June 8, 1928 went to Apple Hill School. He married Bonnie Tatum. James served in the U. S. Army. They had four children. David Randall, Shirley Mae, Michael Wayne and Sharon Azzalia. James and Bonnie live on the Parks place that his father left to him. It has been in the Parks family for 159 years.

John, born in 1932 married Kathaleen Bartholomew. They had three children. They live in Prairie Grove. Sharon Allison Richina remembers her Grandfather Randall very well. He would tell some of the funniest stories. He had a lot of them. My favorite was the one about the panther that followed him home in the dark along the railroad tracks just when he had our hearts thumping good, he would scare us grandchildren. Of course he would laugh at us. Grandpa always laughed at his own stories, even after the 100th time. As I got older, I would laugh at him laughing.

God bless all of our pioneers, who fought bravely from the time they came to this country. Generations that fought battle after battle, war after war for our freedom.

Julia Anglin

Julia Ann Anglin was born September 2, 1850 to John and Nancy Anglin. She had four brothers and three sisters. Julia and her husband George Washington Lankford grew up together in the same community in McMinn County, Tennessee. After George returned from serving in the Civil War, they courted only four times, each time at her house and in the presence of her parents and brothers and sisters. It was on February 22, 1864 that they ran off and married, Julia was not yet fourteen years old.

They had been married approximately ten years when they decided to relocate. They went to Arkansas in a covered wagon pulled by oxen. The day they left, Mrs. Moses Lankford, George's mother, cried so hard she could no longer see them as they drove away. This was the last time she saw her son and his family.

Upon reaching Arkansas, they settled in Wedington Gap of Washington County. Here, they finished having their family of thirteen children, twelve of them surviving. George and Julia farmed the land and raised cows and chickens. Julia sold the extra milk and eggs and Georges' army pension brought them cash money.

Lawrence Lankford was the oldest child who was born in 1865 in Tennessee. He married first Bertha and by her had these children: Leonard, Denver, Clarence, Hawley and a daughter they called Cissy. Lawrence second married Addie and by her had George, Henry, Fronie, Doanie and Julie. Lawrence lived in Texas.

John Lankford by his first marriage had Amanda, Miney and Ollie. By his second marriage, he had Eugene.

Nancy Ann Lankford married Dan Layne and lived in the Wedington area. Their children were Denton, Dan, Jr., Jessie, Nollie and Anna.

Mandi Lankford married a Carlisle and had Myrtle, Carvel and Nick.

Elizabeth "Lizzie" Lankford married John Hutchison and they had Susie, Lola, Orvel and Willie.

Charlie Lankford was born in 1879 and married Annie who had a son, Harold Warren, from her previous marriage. Charlie and Annie adopted a daughter, Flora Dean. They lived in Texas.

Susie Lankford was born in 1877 and married Jake Cusenberry. They lived in Missouri and had three children: Chester, Albert and Ada.

Flora "Fronia" Lankford was born in 1879 and by her first marriage had Beulah who married a Christianson. Fronia second married William DeGraff and they lived in Texas.

Olen Lankford was born in 1883 and married Hattie Kinnap. They lived near Wedington and had Meanard who died an infant, Zelma, Reba, Howard, Donald and Gladean. These children all now live in California.

William Parrish Lankford born in 1886 married twice and had thirteen children. William lived in Fayetteville the last twenty-five or thirty years of his life. Many of his children still live in the Washington County area.

Pearl Lankford was born in 1890. She married Jim Brough and at one time lived in Wheeler. These are their children: Gracia, Gertrude, Louise, Eleanor, Esther, Mable, Johnny, Billy Gene, Donald Lee and Clifford.

Clyde Lankford, the youngest of George and Julia's children, was born in 1892 and was a twin of which the other had died. Clyde married Leola "Lee" Holland and lived around the area of Wedington. They had Lois and Lonnie.

There are many descendants of George and Julia Lankford who still live in this area.

Albert Banks Anthony

Albert Banks Anthony, my great-great grandfather, traveled to Washington County, Arkansas about 1834 at the age of twenty-seven from Tennessee.

When the town of Fayetteville was surveyed, he was one of the first to purchase lots - purchasing fifteen of them. One of the lots purchased was what later became the Boston Store Corner. This lot was purchased for one-hundred dollars.

Anthony, in association with Lodowick Brodie, was a merchant and a successful one. He evidently was civic minded and a believer in education. In 1836, he and Mr. Brodie built the first brick house in Fayetteville for school purposes on the lot where the high school now stands. Grandfather Anthony was also one of the incorporators of the Fayetteville Female Academy. His wife was one of the charter members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Albert B. Anthony left Fayetteville between 1840 and 1845 and moved to Leon County, Texas. There he lost most of the wealth he had accumulated. His oldest daughter, Laura, was born in Fayetteville in 1838. She was my great-grandmother. She married James E. Gardner, an attorney in San Antonio, Texas and lived out her life there. The children of Laura and James E. Gardner were: Albert, Katherine (my grandmother who married Henry Stepken), Jamie, Jane and Robert. Katherine, or Kate as she was known, lived in Weatherford, Texas and had the following children: Elizabeth, Laura, Mose, Albert (my father), George, William, Abbie and Edwin.

The last record I have of Albert B. Anthony was in San Antonio in 1854.

As stated before, Anthony was in business with Lodowick Brodie whose wife was Matilda Anthony. I believe Matilda was the sister of Albert Banks Anthony. Brodie and Matilda had a daughter who married Stephen K. Stone. If anyone can add to my story of Albert Banks Anthony - who was his wife, where in Tennessee did he come from, who were his parents - I would appreciate them contacting me at Route 21, Box 632, Tyler, Texas 75709.

Raymond F. Ash

Raymond F. Ash was born February 9, 1898 in Mundell, Carroll County, Arkansas, the first-born of William Joseph Ash and Ida Essie Wray Ash. Will Ash was a farmer and a hotelkeeper, and at one time was a member of the Arkansas State House of Representatives. He was born in Eureka Springs, Arkansas and except for a short residency in Texas, was a lifelong citizen of Carroll County, Arkansas. Ida Wray was born in Blade, Arkansas and was the mother of seven children, four daughters and three sons, by Will Ash. Both Will and Ida are interred in Eureka Springs, Arkansas.

Raymond F. Ash was educated in the Mundell and Eureka Springs Public Schools and worked the family farm with his father and younger brother, Herbert (Jack) during his young adult years. In 1918, he met Lillian Turner, who was then a student at Crescent College, a woman's school which was located in what is now known as the Crescent Hotel in Eureka Springs. Lillian Turner was born on June 20, 1900 in Wheeling, West Virginia, the oldest of three children (one daughter, two sons) of Blanche Butler and C. Edward Turner. Her brothers were Earl and Gerald and both lived in the Tulsa, Oklahoma area. At the time Lillian met Raymond Ash, the Turner family was residing in Dewey, Oklahoma, where Ed Turner was a superintendent in the oil fields. Raymond Ash and Lillian Turner were married in 1919 in Eureka Springs, lived a short while in Bartlesville, Oklahoma where their first daughter, Lillian Maurice was born October 31, 1920. They moved to Fayetteville, Arkansas in 1921, and their second daughter, Rhea, was born in 1927.

Before his marriage to Lillian Turner and for a short while thereafter, Raymond Ash taught in the Mundell School, where he had received his early education. He worked for a while in Oklahoma, as a truck driver, hauling nitroglycerin to oil well drilling sites, where the nitroglycerin was detonated to "bring in" the wells. After moving to Fayetteville, he started the first taxi cab company, hauling, for the most part, Frisco train passengers from the depot to the local hotels and return. As this business developed, it became apparent that a truck was needed to haul large steamer trunks and large packages for railroad passengers. So, Raymond acquired a truck, and later was able to secure a freight handling contract with the Frisco Railway Company, thus providing additional work for what was then a very expensive truck. Raymond always felt that the railroads were the final answer to the area's transporation needs, therefore, he zealously guarded his contract for handling freight for the Frisco Railroad. Later, he saw an opportunity to extend his activities, and after purchasing the first moving van to ever appear in the northwest Arkansas area, entered the household goods moving business. His company was named Universal Moving Company, and was later changed to Washington Transfer and Storage Company. As time went on, Raymond joined the Arkansas Bus and Truck Association, a state-wide organization with central offices in Little Rock, which was originated to assist all bus and trucking companies with lobbying efforts and other matters mutually important to its membership. Raymond affiliated his moving company with Mayflower Transit Company, a nation-wide household goods company, with offices in Indianapolis, Indiana. Raymond also started Ash Transfer Company in Ft. Smith, and later sold that company. Raymond was active in the Fayetteville and Springdale communities, and in northwest Arkansas. He was a member of Rotary International and at one time, was President of the Arkansas Bus and Truck Association. He was one of the founders of the Fayetteville Riding Club, and was its first president. He was President of the northwest Arkansas Calvacade which engaged in many cross-country horseback and wagon rides. He was an organizer of the Arkansas Mounted Patrol, Incorporated of Springdale, in February 1956, and was its first president. Raymond and Lillian were members of the Central Methodist Church of Fayetteville.

Raymond Ash died October 1962 and is interred in Fairview Cemetery, Highway 45 East, Fayetteville, Arkansas. Lillian Ash died June 1971 and is also buried in Fairview Cemetery.

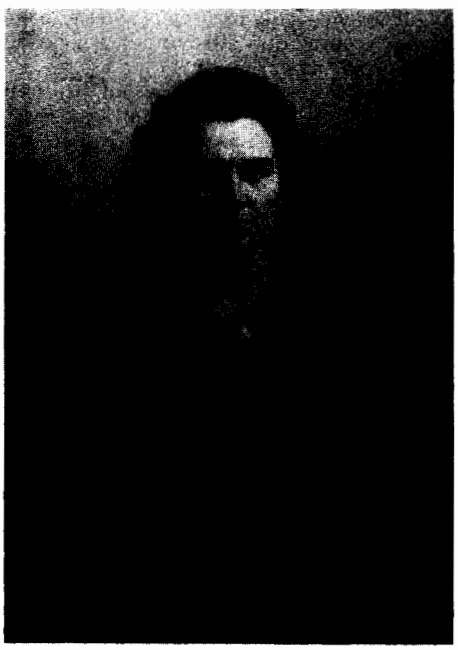
Miss Eva Atwood

When someone mentions the name of Miss Eva Atwood, many of us remember many things about a wonderful person who passed this way. Eva Atwood was born January 2, 1890 in Saline County, Arkansas, the daughter of Robert I. and Ada Shockey Atwood. She was a retired registered nurse, who had served in the Army in France during World War I.



Eva Atwood

"Miss Eva", as she was known by her friends, was one of the few nurses in Springdale in the early days. She told of going with one doctor in his buggy as far as Rogers, to help someone in need of their care. Often it was so late when they returned, that the doctor would put the lap robe over Miss Eva, and they would go to sleep, letting the horse find the way home. Often she would stay on with the patient if she was needed.

Vivian Perry remembers Miss Eva telling her about going with a doctor to the home of Perry's uncle, who had been shot three times; in the mouth, neck and stomach. They operated on him on the kitchen table, but he died. Miss Eva said she was only 18 years old and had just started nursing. "They wanted me to shave him. I was scared to death. Imagine, I was just 18 years old and they wanted me to shave a dead person." Shaving would have been easy compared to the operation she had just helped with.

Mildred Overton recalls when Miss Eva sat with her brother Theron Todd, in 1917, when four children in the family, including Mildred, had Typhoid fever. The doctor said there was no hope for Theron, but Miss Eva said she wouldn't give up on him. "Where there's life, there's hope." She stayed beside his bed day and night, leaving only to stretch her legs or take a short walk to the spring, keeping him alive on a teaspoon full of toddy every two hours, for two weeks.

There is also the story of a mother and her children who came to Miss Eva's door, looking for help. Miss Eva gave them food, clothing, and even the shoes on her own feet. When Floy Scroggins came to visit, and asked her where her shoes were, Eva replied, "There was snow on the ground, and Bessie was barefoot. I was inside and could keep my feet warm so I didn't need them. But Bessie had no shoes."

Eva used to ask people to save their bacon drippings. She said if someone didn't have any milk, they could make gravy with the drippings, some flour and water. "Those kids have got to have some grease in their bellies."

At Christmas, Miss Eva would try to give a little extra to those in need. She would say, "At Christmas, maybe they won't have any toys. But ah, an orange or apple, and maybe a piece of candy." She loved the children, the needy, and the sick, as if she knew that it was her duty while on this Earth to help them the best she could. "She never turned anyone away that I ever heard of," recalls Quick.

As for herself, she never married or had children. She fell in love in World War I, in France, but her fiance' was killed. She kept his picture on her dresser all her life.

Her family consisted of two brothers, named Charlie "Pooch" and Clyde. When they went to war, she joined the army too because she wanted to be with them. She always had a little dog to keep her company also. When one would die, she'd get another. Male or female, they were always named "Shug", short for Sugar.

She was also a collector of antiques. She had one room full of little bells, individual salt and pepper shakers, and individual butter dishes. So tiny and delicate. She also had some beautiful antique furniture, which included the bed she slept on. It was a high trundle bed, with the mattress all hollowed out. Dr. Friedman Sisco told her once that she should get a new mattress for that thing. "Are you crazy? It took me 50 years to get this one broke in." She spent many years in a wheel chair because of bad knees. It was her father's chair, on a wooden platform with wheels. She pulled herself along with her feet.

Atwood was the superintendent of nurses of Sparks Memorial Hospital, Ft. Smith and of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium. She was an administrator of Springdale Memorial Hospital and served as the first president of the Springdale Memorial Hospital. She was also the chairman for the First District of the American Legion, was active in the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and was a director for welfare of the Springdale Community Fund. She received the Jaycees 1956 Outstanding Citizens Award. An Eva Atwood student nurses loan fund was established in her honor in 1960.

She had many friends. Charles Elmer was a close friend. He visited her every morning, taking her the newspaper and checking to see if she got any mail.

It used to be a ritual that every Armistice Day and Memorial Day Eva, Charles Elmer and Ulyss Lovell would put flags on all the graves of World War I and World War II soldiers in our area. George Owenby was also a good neighbor and friend who checked on her every day.

Mrs. Ebling, a German lady, cooked her meals and took care of her when she became bedridden.

Eva finally went to live at Springdale Memorial Hospital in her own room, where she died March 28, 1974, at the age of 84. There is a beautiful garden in her memory at Springdale Memorial. She is buried at Bluff Cemetery.

She traveled a long journey, and touched many on her way. We'll never forget you Miss Eva.

Edward Andrew "Ned" Austin

Edward A. "Ned" Austin was born in February 1855 in Missouri. He was the son of Andrew and Delcinda (Lydia) Austin, both born Tennessee, whose other children were Alonza, Fred, William Albert "Bud", Eldon Byrd, Lucy, Alice, and Andrew N. who died an infant. Edward spent his bachelor years on his parents farm near Mooresville, Livingston County, Missouri. He farmed and taught school. A treasured family keepsake is the six hundred page journal he kept from 1877-1884, giving daily accounts of farming, school happenings, weather, livestock trading, area events, marriages, deaths, court trials, etc.

In December 1884, Edward Austin bought land in Washington County, Arkansas on Brush Creek, three miles west of Elm Springs. His father died of blood poisoning, while carpentering, and was buried at Elm Springs. On 22 December 1887, at age thirty, Edward Austin married one of his scholars, seventeen year old Kate Holland. She was born 3 December 1870 Arkansas, (daughter of Thomas M. Holland and his first wife Nancy E. Kerr). They had ten children, and then the young mother died 4 November 1906 and was buried at Thornsberry Cemetery. Edward died in 1940 and was buried beside his wife.

Their children were: (1) Dora, born 1889 who married Mode J. Robinson and died in childbirth. He second married Roxie Burch. (2) William Thomas Austin, born 1890 and married Edna Smith. (3) Ida Fern born 1892 and married Virgil Reems. (4) Jessie Pearl born 1894 and married Jess Clint Walker. (5) Ethel Mary born 1895 and married Everett Walker. (6) Fred Austin born 1898 and married Annis Walker. (7) Earl Clayton Austin born 1899, unmarried. (8) Minnie born 1901 and married Ralph Sutton. (9) Vernon "Sam" Austin born 1903 and married Ione Arthurs. (10) Jewel born 1905 and died 1906.

Abraham Baer

Abraham Baer was born in Pennsylvania. He married Lucy Nye 'or Ryn' and moved to central Missouri in the mid to late 1800s. Three of their children were Abraham Lincoln, John and Edward.

Abraham Lincoln lived in Linn County, Missouri and in 1944, Edward lived in Rushville, Nebraska.

John Baer was born in Randolph County, Pennsylvania August 28, 1854. He died in Linn County, Missouri where he spent most of his 90 years. In 1876, he married Averilla Compton, daughter of James Compton and Julianna Hopkins of Kentucky. They had ten children, the youngest Jeanette born 1895 is still living.

John's son, Ed Isaac was born July 1, 1883 at Marceline, Linn County, Missouri. He met and married Ocie Nell Wiseley in Wheaton Barry County, Missouri where she was born March 19, 1888 to Alfred Lee Wiseley of Illinois and Sarah Retta Donica of Indiana.

On April 18, 1909, their first son, Roy was born in Stroud, Oklahoma. The next year, they had returned to Missouri where Harold was born April 26. In 1912, they had moved back to Oklahoma, where Beulah was born May 8, and Ruby Lorene was born September 22, 1914, both in Stroud, Oklahoma. 1916 found them in Shamrock, Oklahoma where Leota was born August 19 and Muriel was born on October 19, 1918.

Ed supported his growing family by working in the Oklahoma Oil Fields. The work was hard and dangerous. While loading barrels of the oil onto a wagon, one of the barrels broke free and rolled down a ramp, pinning Ed in the ramp and breaking his back, which he suffered with until he died December 19, 1939.

No longer able to work the oil fields, he gathered his family and belongings into their Essex car and a wagon, pulled by his two mules and moved to the old cathcart place southwest of Cincinnati. James Dale 'Kenneth' was born there March 13, 1930 and Mary Nell on November 12, 1933. Ocie Nell spent the rest of her years in the Cincinnati Community where she died September 1, 1965. She was buried beside Ed and her son, Harold in the Old Union Cemetery, south of Cincinnati.

Roy and part of his children live in Benton County and others live in Oregon.

Harold died in 1950, leaving two sons in St. Helens, Oregon.

Beulah married Ernest Furer and lives in Oklahoma, near three of her four children, the other living in Texas.

Ruby married John England and lives in the Wedington community. Two of her children live in Washington County and the other in Washington State. Leota married G. B. England and lives near one son in Cincinnati. One son is in Ohio, one in Benton County, a son and daughter in Missouri. Muriel lives in Houston near three of his children.

Mary Nell, the youngest of the Baer clan, married R. C. Harris and owns several beautiful orchards in the Wenatchee Valley in Washington State. They have three sons and two daughters who all live near.

Kenneth married Frances Cheatham of Lincoln and lived on the homeplace when their six children were born. They sold the farm and bought the Frank Marcquess Farm North of Cincinnati. He and his sons moved the Old Thompson Sawmill to the farm and have put it back into operation, along with maintaining the farm and a dairy herd.

Joseph Baker

Joseph Baker, was born February 4, 1801, North Carolina, died November 14, 1859, buried in Pleasant Grove Cemetery, Benton County, Arkansas (six miles southwest of Rogers). He was the first pastor of Friendship Baptist Church near Hewitt Springs, this old church originally stood on the Huntsville Road, approximately two miles from present Springdale.

Joseph married Rhoda Rebecca Neal (Neil) about 1823-1824 probably in Tennessee. She was born August 10, 1805 and died August of 1886. She is buried in Pleasant Grove Cemetery. She was the daughter of Solomon Neal who lived in Marion City, Arkansas. Joseph and Rhoda had the following children: (1) Russell L., born 1825 in Tennessee, also a minister in 1848. He married Elizabeth Hutchins in 1845 on November 20, in Washington County, Arkansas. Their known children: Jane, born 1846; Rhoda, born 1848; Susan A., Henry, born 1859; and Caroline, born 1863.

(2) Calvin, born 1826 in Tennessee, married Malinda (?), probably in Arkansas about 1847. She was born in 1824 in Tennessee; their known children: Caleb, born in 1843; Joseph, born 1850; James, born 1852; Martin, born 1854; Marshall, born 1859; female child born 1864; and Cain, born 1867. All children were born in Arkansas.

(3) Nancy, born 1827, Kentucky; married Joshua Fitzgerald February 25, 1847, other information given elsewhere.

(4) Rebecca, born October 14, 1829, Friendship, Tennessee; married William Henry Holcomb at Shilo (Springdale), Arkansas on July 30, 1847. William Henry was the son of Reverend John and Dorothea Wilbanks Holcomb. This marriage united two of the early ministers of the town of Shilo. Their children were: William, born and died May 17, 1849 buried Holcomb Cemetery; Rebecca, born and died July 20, 1850, buried Holcomb Cemetery; Martha Jane, born August 18, 1851, died October 25, 1853, buried Holcomb Cemetery; Ellen, born Mach 25, 1854, died June 19, 1881, married October 1874 to Benjamin Franklin Deaver, son of William S. and Sarah M. Martin Deaver; buried in Elm Springs Cemetery (their children: Bertha Stella Stearns, born 1879, infant, born 1875, William Shipley, born April 22, 1877, died September 1877, last 2 children buried in Elm Springs Cemetery, Calvin B., born November 7, 1856, died May 28, 1926 and buried at Bluff Cemetery, married Margaret Eliza Huffmaster, daughter of Richard M. Huffmaster, February 8, 1877 (their children): James Richard, Ethel May, Sarah Ellen Nichols, Henry Leroy, Joseph Ernest, Calvin Franklin, and Hugh Horace, whose descendants are still in Elm Springs area), John, born July 9, 1859, died August 9, 1866, buried Holcomb Cemetery, William Henry, II, born October 29, 1861, died June 22, 1935, buried in Bluff Cemetery; married Mary Augusta Givens on October 24, 1883 (their children were: William Henry, III, born January 14, 1867, died December 10, 1923, DeWitt, Arkansas, married Mae Bell Williams in 1889 in DeWitt.

(5) Mary Ann, born 1831, married September 18, 1850 in Washington County, Arkansas, Obediah Kendrick, born in 1829 in Alabama, the son of John and Eliza Hines Kendrick. Their known children: Melissa, born 1852, Washington County, Arkansas, Melanda, born 1854, Martha, born 1857 and Lydia, born 1859, Benton County, Arkansas. The family lived in Benton County in 1860 next door to Mary's mother, Rebecca Baker and her brother Joshua Baker. Earlier, Obediah and Mary had homesteaded around the Hewitt Springs area, east of Springdale. On unknown dates, Mary and Obediah Kendrick had twins named Zaida and Zimri Kendrick. Later research of the Kendrick family reveals that Obediah Kendrick lived on a large farm in north Missouri and died there sometime after 1920. It was said that he could still dance a good jig when he was more than 90 years old.

(6) Caleb C. Baker, born 1834, Tennessee, married by 1867 is thought to have gone back to Missouri to live as nothing further is known.

(7) Joshua Baker, born October 6, 1836 in Claibourne City, Tennessee, married by 1856 to Mary (?), born 1840. In 1860, Benton County census, their children were listed as: Henry, born 1856, James, born 1858 and Liza, born 1859. He became a missionary Baptist preacher and according to his own statement came to the northwest part of Arkansas in 1837 at 11 months old. He said he was born in Tennessee, yet we know the Baker family was in Missouri before coming to Arkansas. In 1907, Joshua lived in Cedar Creek Township, Marion County, Arkansas. Also, he stated his family lived on Illinois Creek in Washington County, Arkansas, a mile above Prairie Grove in early 1838.

According to Joshua Baker, "As late as 1840, the Indians roamed the countryside of northwest Arkansas. We lived at Cane Hill, Arkansas at that time. I remember once when the Ridge and Ross parties were out scouting for each other (whites would hide), for three days we stayed in a cave. In the cave called Pawpaw Cave was Ned Talkington and his family of eight children, John Strickland and his family of two children and my family. My brother Russell, who was six years older than I, rode to Cane Hill, eight miles from camp to see if it was all clear".

(8) Joseph S. Baker, Jr., born in Tennessee according to a census, married January 19, 1860 to Adeline Johnson in Washington County, Arkansas by his brother-in-law, William Henry Holcomb who was a Justice of the Peace. Census (1860) shows him living with his wife and widowed mother, Rhoda, in Benton County, Arkansas. No children were born.

(9) Rhoda Louisa Baker, born 1843 in Missouri according to census was not married in 1860. No further information. Reverend Joseph S. Baker joined the church in Harlan City, Kentucky. He lived in Clear Creek Township, Washington County, Arkansas in 1850 next door to Reverend John Holcomb. The church minutes of Friendship Church indicates that Reverend Baker took a part of the flock (51 members) of the church of Sugar Creek and formed another Baptist Church, sponsored by Benton County (Robinette Prairie) in 1853 to become the Pleasant Grove Church presumably the Pleasant Grove Cemetery area.

Royal Neil (Neal), born 1819, is believed to be a brother to Rhoda Rebecca (Neal) Baker. These Neil descendants of Royal still live in the Lowell area today. Rhoda Baker lived with her son-in-law William Henry Holcomb in 1880 in Washington County, Arkansas.

Robert (Uncle Bob) Baker

The trailblazers to Washington County for the Baker Families were William Newton (1868-1896) and his parents, Jefferson and Rebecca (Frederick), from Knox County, Kentucky, who came about 1890. Jefferson's nephew, Robert Baker, and Rebecca's sister, Rosanah Morgan (Frederick), and their seven sons came later. Rosanah (known as Aunt Rose) and three sons came by train to West Fork in 1908. Burl Clinton and Oliver Perry were already there. Robert (known as Uncle Bob) with son James Pope, and a Mr. Powell, made the trip in thirty days by covered wagon.

Robert purchased a farm from Lewis Stokes Ferguson one mile south of Onda—later to become R. R. 1, West Fork, and one-half mile south of Dripping Springs school. The house was one large log room with fireplace and lean-to kitchen. There grandchildren romped and played and made happy memories to be recalled throughout their lives. The writer's earliest memories include the transition from the old log house to the new and larger one constructed adjoining it. Today there is nothing left but a cement slab from the porch and foundation stones. The farm is a pasture, all buildings gone, and only a few struggling fruit trees and flowers from the yard survive.

The eldest son, Addison White, with wife Phoebe Ellen (Lingar) and five surviving children, came to West Fork by train in 1913. He homesteaded near what is now Devil's Den State Park, a few miles south of Zinnamon school house. Two years later, after the eldest child, Mossie Belle, died of typhoid fever, he sold the homestead for $50.00 and moved to Fayetteville. There Roy Denver and Enola Fern were born. The house where Denver was born still stands and is occupied; the birthplace of Fern is now a part of the University campus.

The six younger sons of Robert and Rosanah; Burl, Oliver, James, Edmond Roscoe, George Wallace and Joe Cephus, moved to Iowa, and all except George married and reared their families and are buried there. George married Bea Males of West Fork in 1928, and lived in Kansas for a time before moving to California where both are buried.

Others of the seven brothers married girls of different states. Burl married Margaret Ann Hayes of Iowa. Oliver married Nellie Ferguson, the daughter of the man from whom Robert purchased the farm. James married Gertrude Hall of Arkansas, Roscoe returned to Kentucky and married his boyhood sweetheart, Ora D. King, and Joe married Orpha Jane Best of Iowa. Many of their descendants into the third generation now live in Iowa.

Addison never left Arkansas for more than a few months at a time. Following the death of his wife in 1922, he moved back to the mountains and shared his parents farm until the children were older, then moved to other farms of the county. In 1929, he married Emma Parlee (Shaw) and three years later moved to Arkansas City, Arkansas.

Albert, the eldest son, settled on farms of the Onda and Hogeye areas until his death in 1980. He and his wife of forty-seven years, Goldie (Sharrock), are buried in Prairie Grove. His surviving second wife, Grace (Strickler) Geiger, lives there. James Desmond married Billie Harper of Illinois and moved to California where he spent many years before returning to Prairie Grove in 1976. He and Myrtle (Redfern) Bottoms were married in 1978. At age 80, he is the patriarch of the family. Willie Rovirgie married Noah O. Hughes. During the Great Depression years they moved to Indiana where they lived until their deaths—he in 1978, she in 1987. Robert Earl also moved to Indiana where he married Mabel Jane Smith, and they still live there.

Denver served four years in World War II, and later settled in California and Nevada. Fern's first husband was Dale M. Van Drew of Indiana where he is buried. She later married Donald Marcom of Oklahoma, and they live in California.

Addison died June 29, 1951 and is buried in the Onda-Baker Cemetery beside his wife Phoebe, daughter Mossie, and near his parents, Robert and Rosanah who died in December, 1933 and February, 1942.

All of Addison's children, at various times, attended the one-room Dripping Springs School where water was taken from an open stream and all drank from a common tin cup.

George Ballard

In 1856 George B. Ballard and his wife Elizabeth Ballard had a farm in White River Township 15, section 33, Range 28. Other acreage was also listed for them in the same area.

Elizabeth evidently died after the birth of their last child as her name did not appear in the 1860 census. There was a Washington County Court hearing about their property where most descendants names were given.

Two of their sons, George Washington and William Riley Ballard married daughters of Peter Mankins, Jr. and Narcissa Mills. George married Sarah Mankins and W. R. married Rachel Mankins.

Both George Washington and William Riley Ballard were in the Civil War.

In the pre-dawn hours on April 28, 1919, three generations of Ballards burned to death. From the position of their bodies when found, it appeared that eight of the eleven people in the two story frame farm house, died asleep in their beds. There had been an explosion of a five-gallon can of kerosene spreading oil and flames in every direction. There had been no screams of horror, no panic in trying to escape the inferno. Could the explosion have taken all the oxygen out of the air—way up-stairs where most Charlie Ridenour, G. W. Ballard's son-in-law, was the only one who got out alive.

It was in 1968 that Ed Hubbard, Leonard Ridenour, Sarah Graham, Ann Lambert, Sarah Garrison and Bessie Taylor told me of the tragedy. (Bessie was the last living child of George Washington Ballard).

The Ballard and Ridenour farms were located about a mile east of the Verdegress river, between Talala and Chelsea, Oklahoma. Now in the Oologah Lake Basin.

Living in the Ridenour home was Charlie Ridenour, his wife Maud their three children, Della aged 10, Andy aged seven and little Hazel aged 1-1/2. Maud was also taking care of two children of Charlie's brother Ira, whose wife Carry had died: Sarah aged 10 and Ina aged 8. (Ira had two other children, Jerry and Mack, who were staying with some of the other folks).

In February, George Washington Ballard (son of George and Elizabeth Ballard) had lost his wife, Sarah (daughter of Peter Mankins Jr. and Narcissa Mills). As G. W. was lonesome he was staying with his daughter, Maud Ridenour. That fateful night he was sleeping with his little grandson Andy. Tommy Ballard (son of G. W.) his wife Opal (daughter of John and Hallie Davis) and their daughter Flo, stopped by the Ridenour house to spend the night. Tommy was on his way to Romonia to see about his team of horses he had working on a public works there. Wanting to get an early start, Tommy got up about 4:30 to start the fire in the wood stove. It was the custom to keep a gallon of coal oil in a can with a little spout about the size of a pencil for filling oil lamps. A small potato would be put over the spout to use as a stopper. A few drops of the oil would sometime be used as a fire starter. Evidently, Tommy could only find the big five gallon reserve can. It is surmised the weight of the oil made the can tilt suddenly, causing a big splash of oil to gush out, hitting an unseen live ember. A big flame flared up, exploding the kerosene with such force, Tommy afire, was blown out the door. The house went up in flames like match sticks. Levi Level took Tommy to the doctor in Chelsea, but Tommy remained conscious only long enough to tell what happened.

Charlie and Maud Ridenour were sleeping up-stairs in a room with a big window. Maud, awakened by a noise, got up to investigate. When the door opened, she was met by a wall of flame roaring toward the open window. 'Burned some' Maud awoke Charley, telling him the house was on fire. But there was no way out, except thru the window. Charlie was going to try to get out the window and catch Maud when she jumped. Grabbing a pole leaning against the house, he did get to the ground, but Maud did not jump. She had disappeared from the window. Any mother would understand she would try to reach the children, hope to drop them one at a time to Charlie. She was not about to leave those children. For the rest of his life, Charlie blamed himself for not going back into the inferno. All ten are buried in the Chelsea, Oklahoma Cemetery in three caskets. One big headstone lists all their names. George Ballard was placed next to his wife, Sarah Mankins Ballard.

William Riley Ballard

State of Arkansas - County of Washington. "I, Jonathan Stout, an acting and duly commissioned Justice of the Peace, certify that I joined in marriage on the 19th day of April, 1855 William Ballard, aged 19 years to Rachel Mankins, aged seventeen years by the verbal consent of their parents, all of the county of Washington and the state afore said."

William Riley Ballard was son of George B. and Elizabeth Ballard. Rachel was the daughter of Peter Mankins, Jr. and Narcissa Mills.

W. R. and Rachel Ballard had 13 children - eight girls and five boys, all born about two years apart. The first was Nancy Jane, born March 1, 1856 who married Nelse Wood. Mary Lucy Josephine, born June 26, 1858, was called Lucy and married William Allen Daniel. Peter Bird, born June 30, 1860; William Henry Jackson, born July 1862 was called Jack; George Houston, born July 28, 1865, called his wife Mary. Priscilla Louisa, born March 2, 1867 was Mrs. Bob Davis. (In the census records, Louisa was listed as Elija, a man—probably cause she was called Liza).

Then there was John Nicholos, born September 25, 1869. Sarah Ann, born October 2, 1871 was the one called "Sis", and Martha Myrtle, born August 28, 1873 was known as Matt.

Lydia Abie, born January 6, 1875, married Chris Groniger. Samuel Ira, first married Alice Payton and second, Marie Lindsay who raised their younger children. Alice Bell, born December 24, 1879 was Mrs. Edgar Cate. The youngest, Francess Odessie Maud, born May 10, 1882 married Jim Dunn.

The above information was given by Alice Payton Ballard, who copied it from a family Bible.

While William Riley Ballard was a soldier in the Civil War, his family lived in the home of Peter Mankins. Most of his children were born in Washington County.

In the early 1870s, homestead land was available in Texas. Land was cheap. W. R. and Rachel saw the golden opportunities for themselves and their children. The 1880 Census shows the W. R. Ballards living in Stephen County, Texas. They were living near Breckenridge when Lucy married William Allen Daniel. (She sure got teased when Will rode up to call with his little five year old motherless daughter on the saddle with him.)

Rachel enjoyed family gatherings, especially for big Sunday dinners, was loved by all who knew her, and most especially by her husband, William Riley. After Rachel's sudden death on November 17, 1901 in Throckmorton, Texas, W. R. visited around with his children in Texas and Oklahoma. In his last years he became very feeble and rather senile. When found wandering out in the yard, he said he was looking for Rachel. He died on October 7, 1913.

Albert Felix Baltz

In September 1963, Albert Felix Baltz came to Fayetteville from Pocahontas, Arkansas to attend the University of Arkansas. He is the son of Phillip and Flora Riney Baltz, the third of eleven children. At the same time, Jean Louise Zimpel entered the U of A after having spent her first year of college at The College of the Ozarks in Clarksville. She is the daughter of John and Virginia Burke Zimpel of Clarksville and is the second of five children. Albert was born in Pocahontas on October 14, 1942 and Jeanie in Okmulgee, Oklahoma on February 14, 1944.

Albert majored in business management and Jeanie in Mathematics at the U of A. They dated the years they both attended the University. She was a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority there. She graduated in May 1966 and went to work as a computer programmer for Western Electric Company in Chicago. After a year, she returned to Arkansas and married Albert on August 12, 1967 at the Holy Redeemer Catholic Church in Clarksville. Albert continued his studies at the U of A and she worked as a programmer for First National Bank in Fayetteville. He graduated from the University in May 1968 and was employed by Bear Brand Hosiery Company in south Fayetteville as training director.

They bought four acres of land off Old Wire Road northeast of Fayetteville three-quarters of a mile out of the city limits. Their address became 3640 Skillern Road. Albert began a 20-year project of building a native stone/west-coast cedar home for his family in his spare time. They raised most of their own food every year and, off and on, raised beef, hogs, rabbits, pheasants and a family dog.

On July 4, 1968, Kevin Christopher was born to Albert and Jeannie. Philip Keith was born on January 12, 1970. Around this time, Albert became active in the Fayetteville Jaycees and Jeanie in the Fayetteville Jaycettes. He served on the Board of Directors and was chairman of several community projects, some of which were given state awards. She served as treasurer and president of the local Jaycette chapter and as district vice-president for the northwest area of the state.

In 1970, they bought 100 acres of land with his brother Ruben on Highway 170 south of West Fork on the road to Devil's Den State Park. Here they planted pine and Christmas tree seedlings and harvested firewood.

Albert became audio-visual director for Bear Brand Hosiery and on May 7, 1972, Kyle Louis was born. After seven years of employment with Bear Brand, Albert left to begin work with Ozark Steel Company. He then worked for Sea Side Pools in Springdale and Heckathorn Construction Company in Fayetteville. In the fall of 1974, Jeanie returned to work after staying home to raise their boys for eight years and Albert quit his job to concentrate full time on building their home. She worked as a programmer for the Department of Computing Services at the University of Arkansas for four years and for Computer Resources Corporation for one year. In 1981, she began her employment as a programmer/analyst for Tyson Foods, Inc. in Springdale where she continues to work. Albert has become a custom home builder.

The Baltz family are members of St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church near the U of A campus. Kevin attended Butterfield Trail Public School through the fourth grade and Keith through the third grade. They then finished their grade school years at St. Joseph's Catholic School. Kyle attended that school throughout his elementary years. They all attended Woodland Junior High School. Kevin attended Fayetteville High School one year, but completed his high school education at Subiaco Academy in Subiaco, Arkansas. After a year of work, he is entering the U of A in the fall of 1987. Keith (now Philip) is attending Fayetteville High School and will be graduated in June 1988.

Susan Deloris (Fort) Bandera

June Deloris was born on June 25, 1934 in Bloomfield, Iowa. She is the second child of Toney Wilson and Gatha Gladys (Divily) Yates. Note: See related story. Toney Wilson Yates, Sr.

Glenn Melvin Marvin Fort was born on December 22, 1931 in Decatur, Illinois. Marvin and June were married on September 22, 1951. From this union, there were six children born. First of the six was Linda June, born October 2, 1952 in Decatur, Illinois. She met Richard Earl Calico born October 25, 1946 in Huntsville, Arkansas. They were married on May 12, 1972. They have two children. June Maria born June 8, 1973 in Huntsville, Arkansas. Richard Earl, Jr. born on July 9, 1975 in Huntsville, Arkansas.

The second child is Donald Glenn born on January 16, 1954 in Garnett, Kansas. His first marriage was to Margie Alberta Harp on April 27, 1973. They had four children. Note: See related story Margie Alberta Fort. His second marriage was to Karalee McMilan born on July 7, 1962 in Colorado City, Texas. They were married on October 31, 1981 in Texas. They have two children: first, Jamie Leigh born December 7, 1983 in Colorado City, Texas. Second was Kaleb Don born August 17, 1986 in Colorado City, Texas.

The third child is Susan Deloris, born on March 12, 1956 in Lawrence, Kansas. When I was 22, I met a young man who worked for my dad. His name was Alejandro (Alex) Bandera, born on May 2, 1955 in Apipilulco, Guerrero, Mexico. He proposed in December, with a beautiful diamond engagement ring and I said "Yes". We were married on March 2, 1979. We have three beautiful, lovely children. Our first child is Alejandro (Alex) Jr., born on January 23, 1981 in Huntsville, Arkansas. Alex, Jr. is in the first grade at Calvary Holiness Church School. He loves going to Grandpa and Grandma's farm and like to help milk cows. Our second child is Deloris June born on July 13, 1982 in Rogers, Arkansas. Deloris is in the first grade, she loves school. She also attends Calvary Holiness Church School. She too, likes going to Grandpa and Grandma's. Our third child is Benjamin (Benji) James born on July 26, 1985 in Springdale, Arkansas. He just started talking and every time we pass by McDonald's restaurant, he says, "frvies, frvies." We reside in Springdale and attend Glad Tidings Assembly of God Church.

The fourth child is Marvin James born on June 22, 1960 in Mattoon, Illinois. Note: See related story his wife's Rose Anna Granado Fort.

The fifth child is Junitta Maria born on August 27, 1964 in Belton, Missouri. She met David Shockley who was born on January 30, 1965 in Bentonville, Arkansas. They were married on November 28, 1986. They have one child, Dustin Andrew born on September 6, 1984 and they are expecting a baby in March of 1988.

The sixth child is Glenda Jean, born on October 2, 1968 in Huntsville, Arkansas. This is her first semester at Jimmy Swaggart's Bible College in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. She misses her family but she loves attending college and she reports she's getting so much from God. Our family moved from Kansas City, Kansas to Clifty, Arkansas in April of 1967. Dad and Mom and five children bought a farm. When we first moved to the farm, Dad drove a truck.

One of my childhood memories which I'll never forget is when we moved into the farm, the 28 ft. deep well was dry. Mom had the well cleaned and it took water to clean it. The man who cleaned the well told Mom it was dry. So Mom prayed and asked God to fill the well with water, he gave the Israelites water from a rock and he could fill a well with water. When Dad was home from truck driving, Mom asked him to put in the pump, he was skeptical at first, but he put the pump in. When we turned on the faucet, out came beautiful, clear water, and we thanked God. We had water plentiful. We watered 75 head of milk cows and the well never went dry as long as we lived there. When we sold the farm in 1972, the man we sold the farm to asked Dad if he knew the well was dry. Dad was shocked.

We didn't have a television while we were growing up, we played games, worked, laughed, fought, talked, sang around the piano and loved each other.

In 1977, our parents bought a smaller farm between Huntsville and Eureka Springs on Highway 23, and that's where our dad and mom reside at this time.

Jordan Banks

"Thomas Robert Banks' grist and saw mill was located at a large spring a few miles northwest of Springdale, Arkansas. The spring now is owned by the city of Springdale and is part of their city water supply. Thomas Robert was the son of Samuel Banks and Verlinda Austin. Samuel was brought to Virginia at the age of 11 years by his parents and Verlinda Austin, an indentured bond servant. Later, she married the son, Samuel Banks.

"Suzannah was the daughter of Reziah Jarvis and Elizabeth Rose of Surry County, North Carolina. Thomas and Susannah moved to Kentucky with his parents for a short time then to Warren County, Tennessee, then to northern Alabama, back to Hardin County, Tennessee, then to Benton County, Arkansas.

"In 1852 Thomas sold his mill and joined a wagon train of 102 wagons bound for Oregon Territory with his wife, Susannah and 2 sons, Sebine Irwin and Hilkiah. Thomas and Susannah died soon after reaching the Oregon line. Jabez remained in Benton County at the old home place and was well known there. Rhoda Ann married Lowry Davis son of Solomon Davis a Methodist minister who lived nearby. Solomon and his wife, Winnie J. are buried at the Goad Springs Cemetery near Lowell, Arkansas. Rhoda and Lowry moved in 1859 to Wise County, Texas, then back to Limestone County, Texas, where he was called to the door one night and murdered." by R. Allison Smith, Canyon, Texas.

Banks Family Bible

The Bible is now in the possession of Nolan Banks of Hindsville, Arkansas, grandson of Jordan and Susannah Lee Banks, son of James Mayfield Banks. The Bible belonged to Rev. Jordan Banks who was a well known Methodist minister and circuit rider in the 1850-60s and perhaps earlier period.

Rev. Banks served as Chaplain in the Civil War for years for the south. His first wife was Susannah who gave birth to all the children listed hereafter.

Nolan Banks' mother was Nancy Elizabeth Horn, second wife of James Mayfield Banks, and they are both buried in Zion Cemetery in Washington County, south of Springdale, Arkansas. Jordan and Susannah were married 5 September 1837. Jordan married second Hannah Baker. Jasper Newton and Ellen Roberts weremarried 1860. Tirzah Ann and Duncin Pace were married 6 September 1866. Mary Michal and R. W. Cardwell were married 15 October 1867. Jordan, son of Samuel Banks was born 30 September 1816. Susannah was born 3 May 1816. They are shown on the 1850 Prairie Township, Washington County, Arkansas census. Jordan was a brother of Thomas Robert. Their children were: Jasper Newton Banks, b. 2 August 1838 in Arkansas; Mary Michal b. 24 August 1839 in Arkansas; Tirzah Ann b. 14 August 1841 in Arkansas; Lydia Margaret b. 26 March 1843 in Arkansas; Andrew "Andy" Hunter b. 24 August 1844 in Arkansas; James b. 1846; and Susan b. 1848.

The baptismal record page was very difficult to read and therefore not copied. The 1860 Prairie Township census shows Jane b. 1852, Ewing b. 1854, and Samuel b. 1856. The 1880 Prairie Township shows that James Mayfield Banks' first wife was Martha b. 1848 in Missouri. They had no children at that time.

Sarah Sherrod Banks b. 16 November 1824 Tennessee/d. 27 August 1860 Arkansas, married Jabez B. Banks b. 7 December 1825 Alabama/ d. 14 April 1910. Their children: Nancy Elizabeth b. 1846 in Arkansas/d. before 1889, married John Moore August 1869; Benjamin F. b. 1847 Arkansas, farmer and merchant, married Mary F.; Henry Jordan b. 1848 Arkansas/d. before 1889, married Hannah Baker17 May 1871; Martha Charlotte b. 3 September 1849 Arkansas/d. 24 December 1851; David F. b. 1851 Arkansas, married Sarah E.; Thomas Arthurb. 1852 Arkansas, married Melissa A.; Hilkiah Wesley b. 29 June 1854/d. 17 March 1857; Susan Verlinda b. 1855 Arkansas, married John McCluskey; Margaret b. 1859 Arkansas, married Wiley B. Johnson; George Lafayette b. 1860 Arkansas, married Alice Hewitt 18 October 1875.

Second wife Elizabeth Gamble b. 1830 Tennessee/d. 8 February 1897 buried Elm Springs Cemetery, married 5 September 1861.

Their children: Jabez Jefferson b. 21 March 1863 Arkansas/d. 19 May 1937, married Edith A. Thomas 23 December 1886, b. 29 June 1864/d. 3 January 1929; Samuel Green b. 1865 Texas; John Reziah b. 1867 Arkansas; Sarah F. b. 1870 Arkansas, married Brice Terry 25 November 1888.

Jabez B. buried in Bluff Cemetery. Jabez Jefferson buried in Bluff Cemetery. Sarah Sherrod is buried at Goad Springs. Martha C. is buried at Goad Springs. Hilkiah W. buried at Goad Springs. Elizabeth Gamble found in the Springdale Township, Washington County, Arkansas, 1880 census. Sarah and Jabez found in Osage Township, Benton County, Arkansas, 1850 and 1870 census, was in Colville Township in 1860. He was a Democrat, farmer, Mason, and Methodist.

Nancy Elizabeth Banks and John Moore b. 1850, Arkansas, were found on 1870 Washington County, Arkansas, Prairie Township census. They had Helen b. 1879, Arkansas, and Ollie b. 1875, Arkansas, at that time. John ran a "Greenback" paper called the Blade.

Benjamin F. and Mary F. b. 1848, Missouri, are found on Texas census in Wise County, 1870 census and in Wise County Precinct 4 in 1880 census. Their children were at that time Sarah F. b. 1868, Texas; William A. b. 1869, Texas; Susan A. b. 1876, Texas; James B. b.1878, Texas; and Benjamin F. b. May 1880, Texas. Thomas Arthur was living with them in 1870 and Riddle Highley b. 1850 Tennessee was living with them in 1880 shown listed as sister-in-law.

David F. and Sarah E. b. 1849, Tennessee, are found in justice precinct #2, 1880, Johnson County, Texas, census and T8R2W Noble, Oklahoma, in 1890 census. Their children are Laura M. b. 1874, Texas; Maggie A. b. 1876, Texas; Susan A. b. 1877, Texas; Oscar b. 1883, Texas; Otto C. b. 1887, Texas; and Elmer b. 1889, Texas. John W. Sherrod b. 1855, Arkansas, was living with them in 1880.

Thomas Arthur and Melissa A. are found in precinct 4, Wise County, Texas, 1880 census. Melissa A. was b. 1857, Texas. Thomas was farmer. Their children were Margaret L. b. 1877, Texas; Benjamin F. b. 1879, Texas.

George Lafayette and Mary Alice b. December 1860, Arkansas, are found in Mt. Vernon Township, Benton County, Arkansas, 1900 census. Their children are Samuel L. b. December 1886, Arkansas; Burton G. b. February 1894; Arkansas, and Ivan N. b. December 1896, Arkansas.

Jabez Jefferson and Edith A. are found in the city of Springdale, Washington County, 1900 census. Edith was born in Indiana and was buried in Bluff Cemetery. Their children were Bertha b. December 1887, Arkansas; Winnie b. July 1889, Texas; Clyde b. June 1880, Arkansas; Grace b. December 1894, Arkansas; Arthur B. b. June 1897, Arkansas, d. 1950 and married Bernice Y. b. 1899/d, 1949 and Hugh b. April 1900, Arkansas. Jeff, Winnie and Virginia Banks were teachers at Johnson along with Addie Lynch and Mary Craig.

John W. Sherrod b. 1855, Arkansas, married Bettie b. 1866, Alabama. They are found 9 June 1890 on the Oklahoma census at T8R2W (close to Noble). Their children were Ereula C. b. 1887, Texas; Wilmuth H. b. 1888, Texas; and a baby boy unnamed at the time that was b. December 1889, Texas. John was the son of Samuel and Ursula Gamble Sherrod who were married 10 August 1854. Ursula was shown on the Osage Township, Benton County, Arkansas, 1870 census as a widow with John as only child given. Ursula was b. 1934, Tennessee.

The 1880 Prairie Township, Madison County census shows Allen Sherrod b. 1853 farmer and wife, Sarepta b. 1854, no children. This census and township also shows Garland W. Sherrod age 1 adopted by Mary M. and Robert L. Johnson.

The 1870 Washington County, Arkansas, Richland township census shows 4 Sherrod boys; J. A. b. 1853; J. W. b. 1855; W. L. b. 1856; and S. C. b. 1858, all living with William and Mary Caldwell.

In White Oak Cemetery we find Bettie Jane Sherrodb. 24 December 1845/d. 2 September 1924 and James Allen Sherrod b. 29 April 1853/d. 19 February 1927.

Sarah Elizabeth Banks

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Banks was born at Sycamore Springs on Clear Creek southwest of Springdale, being the daughter of Ben and Susan Littrell Pollock. Shortly before she passed away at the age of 98 years and 4 months, we did some reminiscing about the "old days".

"We lived at Sycamore Springs during the Civil War and saw much of the War", she recalled. "I saw General Price's army in retreat. I saw my own father taken prisoner by the Feds while he was home on furlough. He was ill at the time of his capture. He had had hiccups for fifteen days. We thought they were caused by the cornbread diet that was almost the entire ration of the Confederate Army in northwest Arkansas at the time. He was hurried off with some other Confederates who had been made prisoner and we never expected to see or hear of him again. However, as he passed through Elm Springs, he succeeded in leaving a message with Ab Wasson who got it through to our family. A second message came as he was on the march to a prison camp, this one being sent through "Doc" Arment.

"While my father was with us before he was captured", the old lady went on, "the smallpox hit our household. My mother, the baby and I took it. Smallpox was something to really be afraid of in the old days. Word was gotten to a doctor in Fayetteville, but I guess he was too busy to come see us. My father took care of us. He kept a washtub of hot water in our bedroom and made and applied poultices of slippery elm bark. All three of us recovered. My scars remained with me, though, for many years."

"As I was getting over the smallpox, a squad of Feds appeared in our yard and headed for our smokehouse. Just then, I appeared in a window with all my scabs. The Feds saw me and stopped in their tracks. One of them yelled, "If you come out here, we'll shoot!" I saw how afraid they were of me and I could not resist the temptation to open the door. The squad of Feds ran and I had saved a few hams left in our smokehouse. You know the old saying, 'It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.'"

Sarah Elizabeth recalled that when the fires went out on the farm at Sycamore Springs in the "old days", they had to be rekindled by igniting cotton by means of sparks from flint. This method of rekindling fires was a hard chore for the women when the men were not about.

Sarah Elizabeth recalled Springdale in the "old days" when it was Shiloh, a village with a post office and one store. She died on an autumn afternoon in 1949 at her Emma Avenue bome in Springdale. The well-known retired Methodist minister, William Sherman, spoke at her funeral. A daughter by her first marriage to James B., May Funk, survived her by less than four years. Sarah May Funk was born May 29, 1884 and died February 22, 1953. Sarah Elizabeth and Sarah May are both buried at Bluff Cemetery.

William Barclay

Willam Barclay (also Barkley and Bartley) was born in North Carolina about 1797. (He was 53 in 1880 census.) He was married to Phebe (Pheba) Poston, daughter of William Poston, a Baptist preacher. Phebe was born about 1804 in Kentucky.

By 1823 William was in Lawrence County, Alabama, where in March of that year a "bench warrant" was issued to take the body of William Bartley and have it in court three days prior to the third Monday of March next, to answer to the complaint of one Mark Ellage. Ellage said that Barclay had sold him a horse which was "unsound" and suffered from the glanders, of which it later died, and he sued for $200 damages. The case was in court until 1828. At the first trial Barclay lost and the jury awarded Ellage some damages. Barclay appealed, calling in character witnesses. He lost again and was required to pay Ellage $251.86?? (From court records, Lawrence County, Alabama). We do not know whether or not the above was the reason William Barclay left Alabama. Neither do we know exactly when he arrived in Washington County. Certainly he was here before 1843, for on 10 March 1843 he received patents to 120 acres of land in S2T16NR32W in Washington County. I do not know that William ever lived on this land. When his estate was divided, his son William Poston Barclay, seems to have bought all William's land from the other heirs, and it was in S27T16NR33W, which is 12-15 miles southwest of the first tracts. It is our belief that William was living on this land S27 etc. about 3 miles east of present day Cincinnati, Arkansas, when he again "pulled up stakes" and moved to Texas with most of his family. Only his son William Poston remained behind.

We do not know exactly when William went to Texas, but it was probably prior to 1860. He does not appear on the Census of that year in Washington County. Mr William Carroll Poston of Mineral Wells, Texas, has told us that William Barclay died 27 October 1857 and is buried in the Poston-Odle Cemetery at Mosheim, Bosque County, Texas.

William and Phebe's children listed on the 1850 census of Washington County, Illinois Township were: Eliza, Pitson (?), Carroll, Enesimus (?), and Cyntha (or Cynthia). In addition we can list William Poston, who married Rebecca L. Thornberry, (See Walter Thornberry, Sr. and George Gibson, Sr.) and Barsheba who on 24 January 1861, married Peter Mankins, Jr. Also Malinda Jane, who married James W. on 9 November 1847. From deeds obtained by William Poston Barclay it appears that Eliza married 30 October 1850 to Thomas Matthews, Cyntha married Henry Fine, about 1864 (See Fine, WCHS pg. 50), Elizabeth Ann married J. W. Phipps, and Mary C. married John B. Jones. Deeds were also obtained from Carroll Jackson Barclay. A. B. and Eliza Jane Smith, and W. P. and Sally Yeary of McCulloch County, Texas. (This last deed was to Eliza Jane Smith and Mary Elizabeth Gibson). We do not know of any descendents of William and Pheba Barclay who now live in Washington County. The Fine Genealogy by Emerett G. Fine, Washington County Historical Society mentions another son of William and Pheba, Evans Barclay who was killed by Union sympathizers during the Civil War. He was at William Poston Barclay's house on the 1860 Census.

Henry and Cynthia Duff Barclay Fine died in Texas and are buried at Davilla, Milam County. They had nine children.

William Poston Barclay

William Poston Barclay was b. circa 1819 (we believe in Lawrence County, Alabama) the son of William and Phebe Poston Barclay. We have no date of arrival in Washington County Arkansas, but he may have accompanied his parents Wm. and Phebe Barclay. He was certainly here prior to 3 September 1845, for on that date his first child Eliza Jane was born. The marriage record of Wm. P. (also called "Porter" and Poston) and his wife Rebecca L. Thornberry b. 20 March 1825 has been lost. It would be reasonable to suppose that they married in 1844. Wm. P. died 28 October 1891 and Rebecca d. 1 August 1898. Both are buried at Old Union Cemetery Cincinnati, Arkansas.

It appears that after Wm. P.'s father moved to Texas Wm. P. took over his father's farm which lay in S27 T16N R33W. Deeds in our possession show that between 1834 and 1871 the following "heirs at law of William Barclay, deceased" deeded their interests in William's estate to Wm. P. Barclay; Thomas and Eliza Matthews, 1/10; Carroll Jackson Barclay, 1/10; J. W. Phipps and Elizabeth Ann, 1/10; Henry and Cynthia D. Fine, 1/8; John B. and Mary C. Jones 1/10. Also W. P. and Sally Yeary of McColloch County, Texas, deeded their 1\20 share to Eliza Jane Smith and Mary Elizabeth Gibson, daughters of Wm P. Barclay. We believe that Wm. P. Barclay, Eliza Matthews, Carroll J. Barclay and Cynthia D. Fine are children of Wm. Barclay but are uncertain of the rest.

I believe from the tales my father told me about my great-grandmother Rebecca L. that she was something of a "character." She liked to smoke her clay pipe. William P. did not believe in women smoking, however, and refused to let her smoke in the house. Rebecca then kept her pipe and tobacco in the springhouse, and used to steal a smoke when she went for a bucket of water. My father and his brother used to "blackmail" Rebecca into baking cookies by threatening to "tell Grandfather" about her smoking. She "put a stop" to that finally but that is another story.

Wm. P. seems to have been a fairly prosperous farmer. His farm was a good one of nearly all level land. It is known that he lost $1000 in the 1950s when his brother-in-law, Martin Wood Thornberry "went broke" in his mercantile business at Cincinnati (Sylva), Arkansas. We do not know whether or not he recovered any of it. He was a trustee of Old Union Church and Cemetery, Justice of the Peace. It is said that he and Rebecca took in several orphan children and raised them. No one knows who they were or what became of them. I think one was Fannie Roberts who m. Frank Wilson. Wm. P. and Rebecca's oldest daughter Eliza Jane m. 5 December 1872 Alexander Baker Smith, son of John Galbraith and Mary Evins Smith, b. 31 August 1844, d. 6 June 1913. Their children were Henry Smith, b. 1877, d. 1924, m. 26 June 1907 Beulah Jackson Vann of Collinsville, Alabama and Anna Smith who never married.

Henry Smith became a Methodist preacher and was a missionary in Cuba for about 16 years. He attended Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas and seminary in (I think) Nashville, Tennessee. Shortly after his marriage he left for Cuba with his wife. Henry is buried at Old Union Cemetery, Cincinnati, Arkansas, but Beulah is at Conway.

Beulah and Henry's children were Anna Laura Smith b. 3 February 1913 Pinar del Rio, Cuba, d. 15 February 1936, Conway, Arkansas, never married; and Beulah Jane Smith de Arce b. 28 August 1911 Havanna, Cuba m. 24 June 1943 Miami, Florida to Oscar Luis Diaz de Arce Trenzado b. 11 July 1917 Cardenas, Cuba. 4 children: (1) Marie Jane Diaz de Arce b. 31 March 1944 Havana, m. Eric D. Kennedy b. 22 March 1942 Bartow, Florida, 2 children: Eric Daniel and Ansley Marie. (2) Luis Henry de Arce b. 9 October 1946 Havana, m. Cecilia Ripoll de Arce b. 22 October 1951 Matanzas, Cuba. One child: Christina Marie de Arce. (3) Ana Celia de Arce b. 23 January 1948 Havana, m. Nestor S. Garcia b. 8 October 1947 Havana. Children: Nestor Luis and Ricardo Jose Garcia. (4) Carlos Augusto de Arce b. 22 January 1952 Havana m. Susana Marrero de Arce b. 31 August 1954 Havana, 1 child Angela Marie Diaz de Arce.

Anna Smith lived with an uncle Hanibal Smith on the William Barclay farm most of her life only moving to Cincinnati in her later years. She was a fine musician and played the piano in church (Methodist) at Cincinnati for many years. Anna was b. October 1879, d. 27 November 1966, buried Old Union Cemetery Cincinnati, Arkansas.

William P. Barclay's youngest daughter Mary Elizabeth m. Samuel H. Gibson and her family is recorded under that name.

Rollin A. Barnes

Rollin A. Barnes graduated from high school at El Dorado, Kansas, May 8, 1891. Shortly after, he went to Lehigh Choctaw Nation Indian Territory (Oklahoma). He worked one year for Katy Railroad as bill clerk in the depot, then on a ranch for an Indian named Slewart, among other jobs. Also, he was often with his brother who had drug stores in Wagoner and Muskogee. When oil was first found around Tulsa, he worked there from 1894 until 1916. At the time he met Fay F. Foster, he had a farm and sawmill on Cedar Island on Verdigris River.

Fay F. Foster left Mountain Home, Arkansas in 1909 with her mother, two younger brothers and baby sister in a covered wagon. She had attended school at Mountain Home and Oakland, living in the Buzzard Roost Community at one time. (Also, Newport, Arkansas until she was six years old.)

They traveled with another family crossing by ferry to Missouri. They worked their way across into Kansas on their way to Colorado's best harvest. They met folks coming back reporting more workers than needed, so turned down into Oklahoma and cotton. (My mother later termed this "the thirteen-month-a-year job.")

They picked fruit and picked up pecans along their way, and her mother cooked for harvest hands. She even raised as much as two acres of cotton of her own, plus potato patches and gardens. In winter months, they lived in town where she worked as cook for a hotel. She also did sewing and handwork for people in her "spare time."

Some of the towns in Oklahoma in which they lived were Beggs, Okfushee in Deep Fork River Bottom, Haskell and Coweta on Arkansas River, Stone Bluff, Eram, Morriss and Yahola, but mostly Haskell. Fay Foster met Rollin Barnes when she was working as a waitress in the Tulsa area.

Rollin Barnes had once visited northwest Arkansas on a strawberry picking job and liked the area. Also, he met people from here who declared a fellow could make a living growing crops in the fence corners here. Fay Foster was a misplaced homesick Arkansawyer. They were married in Greenwood, Arkansas as Fay Foster's mother lived at Lavaca at the time. He had an Overland car in which they made their first trip here.

He bought the farm with money he had saved plus his share of the sale of his family's land at El Dorado, Kansas to an oil company. They selected the farm in the northwest part of Hog Eye partly because of its seven springs and scenic view of mountains and valley. They were so tired of floods, sandstorm dust, hot winds and bad tasting water in Oklahoma.

This farm was home where their five children were reared later. We had a freedom that I fear will never be experienced by our children and grandchildren of today.

Tracy H. Barrett

Tracy Halford Barrett was born near Blue Hill, Nebraska in 1892, the son of George Herman (1864-1917) and Myrtie May Buker Barrett (1873-1960). Soon after Tracy's birth, George developed severe rheumatism, and the family moved to Eureka Springs, Arkansas, hoping for a cure from the winter there. By 1893 George's rheumatism was greatly improved, so, hearing of great opportunity in Indian Territory, the family moved there. George worked hauling timber, with land to be his eventual wages, while Myrtie supplemented their income by trading homemade biscuits for their needs or by selling them for $.25 peck. After two years of supplying labor, his own horses and wagon while his family slept on a wagon bed placed on the ground sheltered only by a canvas wagon cover, George was left empty-handed when the man he worked for went bankrupt and left the area. The disappointed family returned to Nebraska to farm.

By 1908, George was again becoming incapacitated by rheumatism, so George, Myrtie, and their five children moved to Grandview, Arkansas permanently. Tracy didn't enjoy farming, so, in 1910, he persuaded his father to build a canning factory—the first in Carroll County. He was able to can only what the family produced, but it was a start.

In 1915 Tracy married Ida Ruth Burnett (1894-1973). Their daughter Ruth Marie was born in 1917. Tracy attended business school and, in 1918, began working as a real estate and insurance agent. As he visited throughout the area, he talked with farmers and convinced many of them to plant tomatoes. He then established a commercial canning factory with his own railroad siding and registered label. His son, Tracy, Jr. was born in 1921.

Since the canning factory was a seasonal business, Tracy accepted a postion as a regional sales representative in Little Rock with Dixie Can Co., the company from which he purchased his cans. Ruth Marie died in Little Rock of spinal meningitis in 1924, shortly after her sixth birthday.

After a short stay in Little Rock, Tracy accepted a position with Heekin Can Company of Cincinnati, selling cans in northern Arkansas and southern Missouri. He moved his family to Green Forest and became very involved in civic affairs. A second son, Donald Gene, was born there in 1936.

During the depression, many canners could not open when the season began because they could not pay cash on delivery for their cans. Tracy arranged to furnish them cans in exchange for a share of the final product which was later sold in Springfield, Missouri under the label Canner's Exchange.

After a number of years of working for Heekin, Tracy presented to his friend, Dan Heekin, a plan of incorporating Canner's Exchange with several Heekin enterprises, resulting in increased efficiency. The plan was approved, and Springdale was selected as the site for the new plant. Tracy and Ida Ruth moved to Fayetteville to be nearer the plant as it was completed.

Tracy and Ida Ruth were active members of First Baptist Church in Fayetteville. Their son Don (or Gene as he was known in school) graduated from University High School in Fayetteville and received a geology degree from the University of Arkansas where he was a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He worked for a time with the Corps of Engineers in Heber Springs as they began work on Beaver Dam and Lake. Don retired from the Army as a lieutenant colonel and now lives in Shawnee, Kansas. His son Michael Don is a lieutenant in the Army stationed in Italy, and his daughter Tracy Dawn is a student at the University of Kansas in Lawrence.

Tracy, Jr. had graduated from Green Forest High School in 1938 and then from Ouachita Baptist College in Arkadelphia in 1942. The same year he married June Orene Jenkins (1922) of Sparta, Missouri.

After the war, Tracy and June moved to Springfield, Missouri where both of their daughters, Jennifer Ilene (1946) and Mary Jeanine (1949), were born. In 1950 Tracy moved his family to Columbia, Missouri where he received his master's degree in agricultural chemistry at the University of Missouri. After a two year stay in Atlanta, Georgia, Tracy, June and their daughters moved to Springdale, upon the death of Tracy, Sr. in 1955. Tracy, Jr. opened a feed ingredients brokerage, changing to real estate as the poultry industry switched to ready-made feed and larger feed mills became the norm. Tracy and June were active members of First Baptist Church in Springdale and later, Elmdale Baptist Church. Tracy was a member of Kiwanis Club, and they were both actively involved in school activities as their daughters progressed through Springdale's schools. June has also been a volunteer at Springdale Memorial Hospital. Tracy died in 1979.

Jennifer graduated from Springdale High School in 1964, from the University of Arkansas in 1968, and received her master's degree in education from University of Arkansas in 1977 and has continued with additional postgraduate work. She married Arvil Eugene McCulley, Jr. in 1966, and they have three children, David Eugene (1970), Debra Jeanine (1971), and John Morris McCulley (1977). David graduated from SHS in 1988 and is attending the University of Arkansas. Debbie is Springdale's 1989 Junior Miss and is a senior at SHS. John is in the sixth grade at Jones Elementary School. Jennifer has taught in several elementary schools in Springdale since 1973 when she and her husband returned to this area after Gene had served seven years in the Army. She is currently Assistant Principal at Jones Elementary School. Gene is a CPA in the Ken Lance accounting firm in Fayetteville.

Jeanine graduated from Springdale High School in 1967 and from the University of Arkansas in 1970. She received a master's degree in library science from the University of Oklahoma in 1973 and did postgraduate work in English at the University of Arkansas. She married James Leslie Brown in 1969, and they have two children, Jamie Ellen (1977) and Kirk Barrett Brown (1978). Jamie and Kirk attend Kirkwood Elementary School in Coralville, Iowa. Jeanine has worked for the Veterans Administration since 1971—including three years as Chief, Library Service at the VA in Fayetteville—and is currently the Chief, Library Service at the VA Medical Center in Iowa City, Iowa.

Andrew Thomas D. Barron

Joseph L. and Flemmon (Femmon) Sharp Barron came from Campbell County, Tennessee to the Washington County, Arkansas area about 1848. Joseph was the son of Joseph and Sarah Murray Barron and was born about 1800 and died in 1897. Flemmon was the daughter of Richard and Nancy Sharp (maiden name unknown). She was born about 1802 and died about 1876.

The Barron land was in Section 11, Township 14, Range 31 West. They are listed in the 1850 census in the Mountain Township.

They were the parents of thirteen children: Calvin, Nancy, (they both remained in Campbell County, Tennessee) Hiram, John Alford, Andrew Thomas, Richard S., Joseph, Lewis, Emily, Flemmon, Elizabeth, William Marion and James Madison. My ancestor is the fifth child, Andrew Thomas D. Barron. He was born about 1830 in Campbell County, Tennessee and died on October 16, 1865. He married Wincey Carmelia Stevenson on January 23, 1851 in Washington County, Arkansas. She was the daughter of Samuel and Nancy Pittman Stevenson and was born about 1832 and died in 1909. She is buried in the Sharp Cemetery in Prairie Grove. It is my belief that she is buried beside Thomas, but I have not found a record of his burial place. Their daughter, Nancy Barron Hill Thurman is buried beside her. One tombstone marks the graves of Carmelia, Nancy and John Hill, the husband of Nancy.

Andrew Thomas and Carmelia had five children: Lavina, Lamesa Madeline, William Ferrell, Nancy F. and Calvin J. Barron. My great-grandfather was William Ferrell. He was born June 15, 1857 and married Annie Elizabeth Morrison on July 18, 1881. The place of residence listed on their marriage license was Billingsley. Annie was the daughter of James Richard and Elizabeth Brotherton Morrison. She was born January 12, 1863. They had eight children, the first six being born in Washington County. They moved to Grayson County, Texas about 1894 where William engaged in farming until his death, January 27, 1908. Annie continued to live with her son, Macie until she died February 9, 1932. Their children were: Nora Ethel, Macie Rellas, Willie Ommer (died as an infant) Virgil, Avery, Ada, Minnie Alma and Henry Clay.

Nora Ethel was born December 24, 1883 in Prairie Grove. She was my grandmother, only four-feet-eleven-inches tall, but full of love for her family. Nora married Samuel Lee Gurley on September 15, 1901 in Grayson County, Texas. Sam was the son of Daniel Woodard and Mary Jane Fielder Gurley. They had two baby boys that died as infants and one daughter, Eunice Pearl born on June 17, 1911 in the Farmington Community of Grayson County. Sam died in 1935 and Nora died on December 18, 1957. Eunice married George Clay Hall on July 28, 1928 in Denison, Grayson, Texas. George was the son of Wilburn Henry and Minnie Porter Hall. Eunice died January 5, 1970 and George died August 17, 1972. They had two children, Donald Everett and Margie Nell. Donald was born July 2, 1929 in Sherman, Texas and married Peggy Ann Moore on October 24, 1953. Peggy was the daughter of Gary Autrey and Nell Craven Moore. They had three children: Denis Don, Hal Lynn and Bettye Diane. Donald died March 13, 1976. Denis married Regina (maiden name unknown) in May 1984 and they had a daughter, Samantha Lynn, born August 12, 1986. Betty Diane married Doug Wright September 1, 1984.

Margie Nell married William Lee Abbe on February 24, 1951. William is the son of William Ralph and Gladys Foster Abbe. They had three children: Maury Lynn (died at birth), Devin Lee and Carey Mark. Devin Lee married Laren Sue Buchmeyer on January 9, 1976. Laren is the daughter of Henry and Alice Graves Buchmeyer. Carey Mark married Lynn Lorraine Gahl on March 20, 1982. Lynn is the daughter of David and Jean Peters Gahl. Mark and Lynn have one son, Todd Alan born on April 16, 1984.

Hollis Roscoe Barron

Hollis was the sixth child of Walter Grey (W. G.) and Sarah (Lewis) Barron. He was born October 30, 1904 at Crosses, Arkansas. His grandparents were William Marion and Nancy Jane (Hanna) Barron. His grandparents on his mother's line were William and Amanda (Hurst) Lewis.

In 1920 Ernest Leslie Bell and his family moved to Fayetteville. Ernest became ill and died January 5, 1921. Grandmother Bell, Gertrude Lenore, and the children; Vivian Lenore, born January 18, 1904; Harry Edward, born December 4, 1904; Charles Raymond, born January 9, 1909; and Virginia Agnes, born May 24, 1913 decided to stay in Fayetteville. It was here that Hollis met Vivian and they were married August 27, 1922.

Hollis said that his days of courting Vivian were not all easy, an example was when W. G. let him have the new Model T Ford for a date. Everything went well until he started home when an Owl flew into the car on the driver's side and couldn't get out because the side curtains were down. Hollis said he drove with one hand and fought the Owl off with the other, as a result he turned the car over. W. G. wouldn't believe this and "grounded" him for a year

W. G. Barron and Sarah (Lewis) Barron

Hollis R. Barron and Vivian (Bell) Barron

Although first home was in Fayetteville they lived at Combs and Pettigrew for several years when Hollis was working for W. G.

Hollis and Vivian had an instant family when Grandmother Bell died on April 30, 1924. Mom's two brothers and sister came to live with them at Combs.

The years we lived at Combs were among the most enjoyable for our family. In that day family and friends were very close and when help was needed friends and neighbors came to "sit" with the family and help. Hospitals were unknown in that area.

In 1937 our family, along with Dad's brother, Rollin Lewis and his wife, Enid (Shofner), daughter Betty Jo, born April 13, 1926 and who married O. L. Daily; and son Rollin, Jr., born April 3, 1928 and married Faye Miller, moved to Rogers to start a new lumber mill.

Hollis and Rollin lived the remainder of their lives at Rogers. Rollin died January 18, 1948, and Hollis on June 4, 1977. Enid lives at Springdale and Vivian at Rogers.

Jack Leslie, the first child of Hollis and Vivian was born February 19, 1924; their first daughter, Jobell was born March 13, 1927; Robert Clayton, was born June 27, 1937; and the late arrival, Donna Gayle, was born November 28, 1945.

In 1942 Jack joined the Navy and was sent to Fort Smith to fly J-3 Cubs; then to Bunker Hill to fly Searmans, then to Pensacola where he received his commission as an Ensign and his Navy wings.

After the war he returned to Rogers where on July 12, 1948 he married Gloria Lura Fentem, daughter of George Martin and Lura Elizabeth (Blanchard) Fentem. David Martin, their first child was born July 7, 1949; John Hollis, the second son, was born on February 27, 1952; and Susan Adel, was born August 20, 1958.

David married Nancy Fenton. Their children are: Brent Thackery; Stephani Renee; and Heather Elaine.

John married Victoria Jean Smith. Their children are: Caleb John; Joseph Grant; Bethany Ann and Hannah Lynn.

Susan married Mark Randal Schafer and their children are: Alexander Catherine and Kathleen Nicole.

Jobell, the second child of Hollis and Vivian, married Bill F. Troxell on August 4, 1946. Their children: Vivian Lynn who married Mickey Hargett have two children, Mathew and Kristen; Patricia Kay married John Carr, their daughter is Katie Lynn; and Cynthia Jane who married Joe Clark.

Robert Clayton married Mary Ellen Parker on August 17, 1958, their daughter Theresa Gayle is the family's only MD.

Donna Gayle married Vernon Cecil King in February, 1967, they have two children; Tresta Leigh and Jonathan Barron.

Clayton is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and now lives in Fort Worth and is an Electrical Engineer with General Dynamics Corp.

Donna is also a graduate of the University of Arkansas and lives in New Orleans and is employed by Merrill-Lynch.

Mack, born April 29, 1884, married Mamie Wilson on January 17, 1906. Mrs. Doris Wells of Elkins, Ted Barron of Fayetteville, and Wayne Barron are the children of Mack and Mamie.

Walter Grey (W. G.), my grandfather, was born July 21, 1873 at Billingsley. He was the sixth child of William and Nancy.

As a boy Walter often took his nearly blind grandfather

Joseph swimming and it was at times like this that Joseph would tell Walter of his life in Tennessee.

As a young man, Walter worked at the country store owned by "Uncle Gus" at Combs. It was here that he met Sarah Lewis, daughter of William Lewis and Amanda Hurst Lewis. Sarah was living in the home of her uncle, Dr. D. U. Hurst, the town Doctor of Combs. Walter and Sarah were married January 31, 1894. Nearly all their married life was spent at Fayetteville, but their final years were lived at Rogers. Walter and Sarah had a large family, the children: Lena Mae, born April 5, 1895, married Frank Thorpe; Walter Paul, born September 14, 1896, married Lena Frank Bowers; Victor Dewey, born April 16, 1898, married Hazel Francis Foley; Gladys, born October 13, 1900, never married; Rollin Lewis, born September 9, 1902, married Enid Shofner, daughter of Fred and Ethel Shofner, who lives at Springdale. The children of Rollin and Enid are, Rollin, Jr., of Springdale and Betty Jo. Hollis Roscoe, born October 3, 1904, married Vivian Lenore Bell, daughter of Ernest and Gertrude Bell. Vivian lives at Rogers. Their children: Jack Leslie, Jo Belle, Robert Clayton, and Donna Gayle.

Oswald, born March 15, 1907, died as a child; Buster Marcus, born November 16, 1909, married Dorothy Hixson. Their son Jerry lives at Joplin.

Wade Barron, born December 9, 1911, married Lela Anderson. Lela lives in Fayetteville. Their son, Pat Phillip, was born December 14, 1937, and married Ruth Bent. Two daughters survive them: Michalle and Katrina.

Max and Maxine were born July 25, 1914. Max married Margaret Reeves on September 12, 1937. Their children are: Marilyn Louise, Max Reeves, and Margaret Gene. Margaret now lives in Fayetteville. Maxine married Stanley A. Madison and now lives in Washington, D. C.

Amey Gene, born December 11, 1916, died in an auto accident on October 19th, 1938. Joseph and Femmon came to Arkansas with a large family, but at age ninety plus and blind, he alone returned to his boyhood home in Tennessee to live his last days with his son Calvin.

Walter Ancy Barron

Barrons who came to Washington County, Arkansas, from Tennessee in the late 1840s were descendants of Barrons who immigrated to what is now the United States sometime in the 18th Century. Progeny of these immigrants included Barrons who fought for the colonies in the Revolutionary War, for the U. S. in the War of 1812, on both sides of the Civil War, and in subsequent wars. The Barrons are believed to have originated in Ireland sometime in the 1500s when a branch of the Fitzgerald clan, for reasons now unknown, changed its name to Barron.

Walter Ancy Barron, born at Brentwood October 27, 1893, was a grandson of William Marion Barron. William came to Washington County with his father, Joseph L. Barron, in 1849. Ancy's father, David Marshall Barron, was born August 25, 1867 during his parents' temporary sojourn in Missouri. Ancy's mother was Arkansas-born Eliza Caroline Hutchens whose father, William Miles Hutchens, fought for the Confederacy at Pea Ridge. On the Barron side, six of Ancy's great-uncles fought for the South (and one died in the War), while two other brothers including Ancy's grandfather William Marion Barron, joined the Union forces. Thus, Barron brothers were on opposing sides at Wilson Creek, Missouri, and at Pea Ridge and Prairie Grove in Arkansas.

At Brentwood, November 11, 1916, Ancy married Mildred Lee Cress, daughter of Everett Lewis and Bessie Mae (Boten) Cress. Mildred was born May 25, 1897, Council Grove, Kansas. Children born to Ancy and Mildred were: Woodrow Lynn, born November 14, 1917, at Brentwood; Vivian Daneth, born July 27, 1923, Fayetteville; Rex Leon, born June 4, 1921, Brentwood; Robert Hoyt, born June 15, 1923, Fayetteville; Walter Ancy, Jr., born July 14, 1925, Fayetteville. These children grew up in Fayetteville, where Ancy, Sr., was employed for many years by the Frisco Railroad. Ancy and Mildred had three sons in the military services during World War II. Ancy died October 14, 1949, Long Beach, California; Mildred died August 23, 1985, Vinita, Oklahoma. Both are buried at Fairview Cemetery, Fayetteville.

October 20, 1938, Lynn married Grace Frances Black, born at Baron, Oklahoma, May 18, 1918. Their children were: Carol Lee, born January 16, 1940, Fayetteville; Woodrow Lynn, Jr., born January 1, 1943, Tacoma, Washington. In 1964, Carol married Charles Pierce, their children, born in Long Beach: Pamela Lee, born January 3, 1965; Robert Lynn, born May 2, 1970; Jeffry Allen, born October 10, 1972. In 1964, Lynn, Jr. married JoAnn Myers; their children, born in Long Beach: Woodrow Lynn, III, born November 25, 1971; Keri Rose, born October 5, 1976. Lynn, Jr., died at Long Beach of leukemia, February 22, 1977, at age 34, and is buried at Forest Lawn Cemetery, Cypress, California.

July 5, 1940, Daneth married Robert Jarrard Lester, born February 8, 1919, Hill, Oklahoma. Their children: Danny Barron Lester, born April 12, 1941, Fayetteville; Bobby Caroline, born December 11, 1942, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Linda Kathryn, born May 27, 1946, Hobbs, New Mexico; David Mace, born April 7, 1949, Compton, California; Alan Shaun, born February 1, 1955, Compton, California. Danny married Margie Szal, Janaury 1, 1981. Caroline married Harold Rosenberg, born March 26, 1981. Linda (now Ann Kathryn Cooke) married Steve Cooke, December 1982, divorced 1986.

June 21, 1952, Rex married Mary Alene Smith, born August 6, 1925, Orange, California. They had no children, presently live at Springdale.

July 3, 1946. Robert married Nadene Herbert, born November 4, 1927, Madison, Kansas. Their children: Jacqueline Sue, March 16, 1947, Fayetteville; Bettina Jane, born July 15, 1950, Fayetteville; Ardith Anne born October 22, 1953, Fayetteville; Robert Hoyt, Jr., born September 24, 1956, Long Beach, California; Mary Elizabeth, born July 7, 1959, Lakewood, California. Jacqueline, married Rodney James Sunderland; their children: Shannon Elizabeth, Andrew James. Bettina married Dale Frederick Hills; their children: Joshua Byron, Martina Marie, Stefanie Bettina. Ardith married Lawrence John Tenison. Mary married William Jeffrey Morrison.

September 2, 1949, Ancy, Jr., married Wilma Jean Morriss, born September 3, 1929. Their children: Dana Ancy, born July 31, 1950; Debra Lee, born February 6, 1954. Dana married Debra Ann Beilke (later divorced); their child: Dena Shawn, born February 8, 1971. Debra Lee married Thomas L. Meredith, born October 28, 1978; their children, Jeremy Thomas, born December 8, 1979; Eric Wesley, born November 10, 1981; Scott Christopher, born August 10, 1984.

David Basden

The first Basdens migrated to Texas from Onslo County, North Carolina where David Basden is found with his family in 1830, then to Dade County, Georgia and on to Tarrant County, Texas sometime between 1871 and 1872. The Basden family came to Lincoln, Washington County, Arkansas in 1926 from Dallas, Texas. Charles Walter Basden, son of John Henry and Martha Basden, was born 2 June 1872 in Tarrant County, Texas and died 24 April 1933. He was the 5th child of John Henry and Martha Ann Wakefield Basden, b. 12 March 1845, d. August 1927. Charles Walter Basden married Mary Elizabeth Ragsdale, b. 12 February 1877, d. 15 July 1965. In 1926 Charles Walter asked his son, Blucher Jackson Basden, if he would go with him to Arkansas and help him get started on a farm. B. J. was born 15 January 1904 in Indian Territory, so when he came to Arkansas with his father and mother he was a young man of 22. They bought 40 acres in Lincoln, 2 miles southeast of Lincoln and 1 mile north of Cane Hill. They had 5 acres of apple orchard and they also raised grapes and vegetables. But times were poor and Charles Walter and Mary Elizabeth could not make a living farming. So in the fall of 1928 they went back to Dallas where Charles Walter could work as a carpenter. While B. J. was helping his parents on the farm he met his future wife, Delpha Lueller Rodgers. He was on his way to a University of Arkansas football game in a Model T Ford, went into the Bank of Lincoln to cash a check and Delpha waited on him. He and Delph Rodgers were married on August 7, 1927 at the Presbyterian Church in Lincoln. B. J. and Delpha rented an 80 acre farm with an apple orchard and grape vineyard 3 miles of Lincoln. He rented it on shares - 50% split. He worked the farm and she at the bank until they started their family. B. J. farmed until 1929 then worked at the Rodgers Motor Company selling cars. The coming depression took its toll on everyone in northwest Arkansas and by 1931 the motor company was out of business and B. J. went back to farming, then in the winter he worked at the lumber yard. In 1941 Nath English came to the lumber yard and asked B. J. if he would come to work at the Bank of Lincoln. In February, 1941 B. J. went to work as a bookkeeper and teller at the bank. He has served in every office of the Bank of Lincoln. He started as a bookkeeper, teller, assistant cashier, loan officer, vice president, president, vice chairman of the board, and finally chairman of the board. He worked at the bank until his retirement in 1984.

B. J. has contributed much to the growth and betterment of Lincoln. He was one of the first volunteer firemen in Lincoln. He also worked to get the first Lincoln water system. In 1940 he was elected director of Lincoln School District and served as director for 10 years. During this time the school consolidation program was developed. He is a charter member and past president of the Lincoln Kiwanis Club. During the time he was in the Bank of Lincoln the bank helped with blacktopping roads and many other projects in West Washington County. He served for two years as commissioner for the local Boy Scout troop. He helped organize the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce. B. J. has always maintained that a community has to work together to get things done. He is a 32 Degree Mason and has served as each officer in the Masonic Lodge.

Delpha Rodgers Basden, daughter of David Ausborn and Minnie Myrtle Roller Rodgers, taught in the Lincoln Public Schools for about 25 years. She was at one time the Librarian at Lincoln High School and later taught English in the same school. According to her former students, "She was an inspiration and encouragement to us. She always presented a ladylike appearance and was a good teacher who made her literature classes interesting and her English lessons clear."

Woodson W. Bassett, Sr.

Woodson William Bassett, Sr., was born April 24, 1880 in Iantha, Missouri. On January 23, 1919, he married Bertha (Bee) Irene Knerr, born August 19, 1893 in Allerton, Iowa the daughter of George Frederick and Ida Corbett Knerr of Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Woodson and Bee had four children - Betty Jane, born January 8, 1920, Dorothy Sue born February 20, 1921, Trixie Bee born October 30, 1922 and Woodson William, Jr., born November 7, 1926. The family moved to Fayetteville in 1936.

Woodson's ancestors originated in Virginia and migrated to Kentucky. His grandfather, Thomas Bassett, moved westward to Clay County, Illinois in the mid-1800s. He was a veteran of the Mexican War. When he returned from the war, he became a wagon master, guiding settlers and herding cattle to California. His first trip out and back took two years. He attempted a second trip by boat to establish a homestead for his family. He sailed from New York around the "Big Horn" to the Isthmus of Panama where he "took a fever" and died. Thomas was married to Nancy Ann Smith. They had three children - John Wesley, a teacher, Sarah Ann and Nathaniel.

Nathaniel "Than" Bassett was born March 18, 1854 in Clay County, Illinois. He married Elma Jane Williams, born in 1858. They went even farther west to Iantha, Missouri. They had three children: William Oscar, Woodson William and a daughter, Irkle Bell. Jane died when her youngest child was but two years of age. "Than" then married Anna Nance. They had one son, James D. (Jim) Bassett. A measles epidemic in 1901 caused the death of Irkle Bell. She was only seventeen. "Than" homesteaded a two-hundred acre farm in Haines Grove, Missouri. Editor of the Lamar Democrat"" often referred to him as the democratic leader of Barton County - a political avocation, all three of his sons and one great-grandson would inherit. Both Woodson and Oscar served as Clerks of Barton County and Jim spent a major portion of his life as elected sheriff of Barton County. Oscar moved to Okmulgee, Oklahoma where he was elected to two terms as County Commissioner. He was joined there in the early 1900s by Woodson and they became successful, even quite wealthy, in the independent oil and gas leasing business. However, the 1929 market crash and ensuing depression swept their fortunes away and forced them to emotionally and economically restructure their lives. Oscar died of "a heart ailment" in 1934 and his family moved to California. In 1935, Jim witnessed the bizarre death of his nineteen year-old son, Maurice, who was a passenger in a monoplane which crashed near his father's office on the downtown square of Lamar, Missouri.

Family tragedies, economic depression and the pressing need to provide for and educate their children, were all factors which motivated Woodson and Bee to move their family to Fayetteville in 1936. They could be near Bee's family and near a state university. All their children would eventually attend the University of Arkansas.

Woodson opened an office on the Fayetteville square and sold insurance and real estate and made appraisals for the Home Loan Bank. When their youngest child entered the University of Arkansas, Bee became an assistant to the registrar there, handling all World War II student veteran's affairs.

Woodson died December 6, 1964 and Bee, on September 7, 1971. Both are buried at Fairview Memorial Gardens, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

The only remaining males in the Bassett geneological lineage of Thomas, Nathaniel and Woodson W. Bassett, Sr. are Woodson W. (Bill) Bassett, Jr. and his two sons.

Bill is the senior member of the Bassett Law Firm, 221 North College Avenue, Fayetteville, Arkansas. On December 16, 1950, he married Marynm Shaw of Homer, Louisiana. They have three children: Woodson William (Woody) Bassett, III, born November 3, 1951 in Monroe, Louisiana; Beverly Marynm Bassett, born May 29, 1953 and Tod Corbett Bassett, born September 8, 1955 - both in Fayetteville, Arkansas. All are attorneys. Woody and Tod are members of the Bassett Law Firm. Woody is chairman of the Washington County Democratic Party. Tod is married to the former Mary Helen Sugg of Fayetteville. Beverly was a member of the Mitchell Law Firm of Little Rock, Arkansas until her appointment by Governor Bill Clinton as the Securities Commissioner for the State of Arkansas - first woman to hold this position in Arkansas. She is married to Archie Schaffer III of Little Rock and they have one daughter, Eliot Shaw Schaffer, born June 11, 1987.

Williston Bates

Williston Bates of Pocahontas, Arkansas, b. 31 August 1830 Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; d. 2 July 1897 Pocahontas, Arkansas; had relatives in Cane Hill, Arkansas, as well as a brother in Fayetteville, Arkansas. His brother was Norman B. Bates b. 1 January 1823; d. 1906 Navasota, Texas. He married a Vermont girl, Susan Melissa Sawyer b. 8 July 1833, Brattleboro, Vermont; d. 15 March 1909, Fayetteville. Susan's relatives in Vermont bought the Butterfield stage line and Norman Bates was sent to Fayetteville to take care of it. They went to Texas where their only child was born. Lena Bates was born 1865 Brenham, Texas, died 21 October 1950, Fayetteville. Lena Bates married John Reed in 1883 in Fayetteville. They had three children: Clifton Reed b. 1884, d. 1952; John Reed b. 13 August 1890; d. December 1979 and Bates Reed b. 1892; d. 1922. Clifton Reed married Morgan McMichael, (1884-1936) and they had only one child, "Tip" Clifton Morgan McMichael, who was a victim of polio, but after college here in Fayetteville, went to Pennsylvania and worked in the office of the U. S. Steel Corporation, where her uncle John Reed was an engineer. Later the two returned to Fayetteville. They sold the big Reed home to Southwestern Electric Power Company for their offices and John took furniture for a two story house on Lafayette Street and furnished the upper floor for himself and the lower for "Tip". many of the things were antique. He had a part of the bedroom suite his grandparents brought from Vermont. His house was very interesting as he showed one after another the things that had belonged to his family.

Well, as I was saying, Williston Bates came to Fayetteville to visit his brother and while here met and married his second wife, Susan Jane Bennett, who spent part of her life here in Washington County and part in Randolph County. Susan Jane Bennett had a sister in Fayetteville, Mrs. John Pearson and a brother in Springdale, John Bennett and although she married three times, she was a widow most of her life and so would come to live near relatives. Susan Jane Bennett was married first to Mart Adams in Pocahontas, Arkansas. They did come out here in his lifetime, for one son told me of living in the Indian Territory and he played with the Indian children and learned to talk their language. Susan Jane b. 25 March 1847 Tennessee; d. 28 July 1923 Pocahontas marrried Mart Adams 21 April 1867, Randolph County. He died in Randolph County, and was buried in Thompson Cemetery, and when Susan Jane died she was buried by him. Their son, William Harrison Adams b. 4 March 1871, made his home in what was later known as the Fulbright Mill on Highway 62 west. He lived west of town and died there 16 July 1934. His wife was Matilda Carnahan b. 25 October 1867; d. 17 December 1939. Their only son was Noah Harrison Adams b. 29 June 1891; died 18 April 1927. Noah was married to Bess Phillips (1892-1922). Bess was the daughter of C. C. Phillips. Two children were born to them: 1- Martha Ann Adams b. 9 May 1918 who is married and lives in San Antonio, Texas and Phillip Harrison Adams b. July 1920; d. 1983 was married to Winnogene Hickox and also lived in San Antonio where they went with their stepmother, who raised them. She also died in 1982.

Susan Jane married the second time in Pocahontas to W. G. J. Bryan 7 March 1875. This time she had two children to live, 1- Finis Bryan b. 29 January 1877; d. 5 January 1957. All of his family lived in Oklahoma. 2- Gertrude Essie Bryan b. 28 July 1882 in Prairie Grove. Her husband was L. Gay McElhaney. Of their children, one lived in Washington County for several years and lives in Springdale now. Her husband was Carl Hudson b. 5 July 1912; d. 31 March 1973.

Now we find Susan Jane meets and marries again to Williston Bates. I didn't know where she married my grandfather and was surprised to find in the Washington County records this: Williston Bates, a Pocahontas, Arkansas man, 54, took Mrs. S. J. Bryan, 39, of Prairie Grove for his bride. So back to Birdell, Arkansas, near Pocahontas, they go to live. They have 3 daughters and the middle one was born in Prairie Grove. 1- Lucy May Bates b. 22 October 1886, Birdell; d. 2 February 1959, Oklahoma. Lucy was married to Walter Lemmons and their family lived in Oklahoma. 2- Inez (Ina) Bates b. 14 March 1888 Prairie Grove; d. 7 November 1964, Oklahoma was married to Will Walker and they made their home for many years in Fayetteville. He ran the Star Grocery on Dickson Street, I believe it was where the Majestic Lounge is or the store east of that one. Then a dairy west of town for a while before they went to Oklahoma in 1931. 3- Lillie Bates b. 11 August 1892, Birdell, Arkansas; d. 28 January 1978, Fayetteville. She married Earnest Chris Blanton in 1909 in Mammoth Springs, Arkansas, and they lived there until all their children were gone, then came to Fayetteville to live close to their daughters. They had 6 of their own and raised a niece and of them, two daughters live in Fayetteville. The younger (Johnie) Juanita Maxine Blanton, b. 14 November 1923 married Jerome L. Rommell in 1946 in the old Baptist Church on Dickson and College. Jerome and Johnie have a son, Jerome Williston Rommell b. 2 November 1951 was married to Judith Ann McClelland, and their daughter, Letisha Ann, b. 11 September 1971, lives with her mother in Prairie Grove, Arkansas. The other daughter of Earnest and Lillie Blanton is Cleffie F. Blanton, b. 24 April 1913. She is married to Walter Franke, so our families join one another. So, we will get her history in the Franke record.

Freeman R. Battershell

There were three Batticella brothers that came over from Ireland to fight in the Revolutionary War between England and the United States. One brother went back after the war and the other two stayed and married.

One of the wives had a speech impediment, and when a census was taken, they couldn't understand her, and the closest to Batticella they could get was Battershell. They settled in Tennessee and eventually moved to Arkansas.

Freeman's dad died when he was very young and he became the head of the household. He worked to help support the family. He put all six of his brothers and sisters through school. Most became school teachers.

Freeman Rex Battershell, born 1896 in Stone County, married Agnes Mary (Horton). She was born in 1902 in Marshall, died February 1, 1980. They had three children: Billy Jack Battershell, born January 19, 1930 in Marshall, died October 22, 1986. He was in the Army and married Hannah Verlene (McIntire), born March 23, 1941. They had three children: a. Ronnie Dale Battershell, born July 17, 1958 in Rogers. Ronnie was a corporal in the U. S. Army from August 1, 1976 to August 1, 1982. He married Saturday, November 1, 1980 at the First United Methodist Church in Springdale at 6:00 P. M. He married Annette Marie Cannon, born May 15, 1962 in Lynwood, California. They had two children: Jennifer Marie, born May 28, 1982 in Springdale Memorial Hospital; Melanie Lynn, born June 16, 1983 in Springdale Memorial Hospital. (b) Michael Ray, born October 28, 1959 in Rogers, married August 21, 1986 to Regina Covette Riddle, born December 31, 1964 in Manchester, Tennessee. (c) Teresa Gail Carr, born October 9, 1964 in Springdale, married on August 21, 1983 to John Wesley Carr born January 19, 1962 in Russellville. 2. Vernell Loretta (Battershell) Wells, born May 18, 1922 in Marshall, married December 28, 1942 to Virgil Lee Wells, born September 23, 1921 in Goltry, Oklahoma. They had four children: (a) Lee Ray Wells, born February 28, 1948 in Marshall, married September 23, 1962 to Virginia B. Natier. They had three children: a. Bobby Lee, born 1968; b. Kevin Ray, born 1970; c. Clifton Earl, born 1971. B. Linda Kay (Wells) Horton Teague, born January 1, 1946 in Marshall. There are four children: a. Elizabeth Kaye (Horton) Hailey, born April 13, 1966 in Harrison, married July, 1986 to Steven Newton Hailey III; b. Jeffery Wayne Horton, born September 12, 1963 in Springdale, he has one child; Mary Beth Horton; c. Kelli Lei Horton, born October 15, 1969 in Springdale; d. Kerri Shannon Teague, born March 7, 1973 in Springdale. C. Jackie Virgil Wells, born September 23, 1950 in Marshall, married September 23, 1968, died August 25, 1969, married Joye Bowers. D. Terry Gail Wells, born September 25, 1955, died September 26, 1955 in Harrison. 3. Raymond Rex Battershell, born June 8, 1924 in Marshall, died May 28, 1952. He was in the Navy in World War II married Gretta. They had two children: a. Raymond Rex II; b. Infant daughter that died.

Peter Beal

Peter Beal was born January 26, 1804 in Maryland or Virginia. His death was between September 1872 - 1880, perhaps in Benton County. The exact place of burial is unknown. His parents were John Beal 1st and Eva Kiefer. They were married September 11, 1792. John was born November 11, 1774 in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and died in 1840 in Hawkins County, Tennessee. Eva died after 1847 in Tennessee. John Beal's parents were Nicolas, born 1745 and Maria Elizabeth Kiefer, born March 7, 1750 and died after 1790. The Beal family came from Germany and were Lutherans.

The children of John and Eve Kiefer Beal are the following: John 2nd, born October 12, 1793. George, born November 24, 1794. Martin, born December 8, 1796. Jacob, born March 10, 1798. Frederick, born February 8, 1800. Elizabeth, born March 28, 1802. Peter, born January 26, 1804. Katherine, born March 10, 1806. David, born May 1, 1808, Maria, born March 11, 1811, Anna, born October 5, 1814. Margaret (Peggy), born March 18, 1817.

In 1826 Peter and Sarah Elizabeth Painter were married by Reverend Wiehl probably in Hawkins County, Tennessee. Sarah was born in 1805 and died August 4, 1880.

The following are children of Peter and Sarah Beal: Mary Jane, born February 15, 1828, died November 8, 1876; married James Henry. Margaret, born March 16, 1830, died 1911 and married Joel Webb December 7, 1848. Albert, born April 18, 1832 married Hannah Woods, Melvina, born August 8, 1835 married Lafayette Robinson, Eliza Ruth, born January 4, 1837, died July 16, 1893, married Edward Dalton an Indian. Anne, born February 2, 1839; married William Rick. John Wesley, born May 24, 1841; married Sadie Riggins. Harriet, born December 2, 1843; married John Woolsey. Francis Augusta, born April 17, 1846; died November 6, 1865. Sidney, born December 23, 1849. All the above children were born in Tennessee except Sidney, so they are in Washington County, Arkansas by 1849.

On October 9, 1848 we find the Mount Zion Baptist Church records (Washington County) that Peter, Elizabeth and Margaret and Jane Beal were charter members, also Madison and Mary Painter. Could they be relatives of Elizabeth?

In Benton County, Arkansas 1860 Census we find the Albert Beal family and James Henry family listed with the "Harmonial Vegetarian Society" families, by September 11, 1872, we know that Peter Beal was living in Maysville, Arkansas, since we have a copy of a letter he wrote to his nephew, Elias Beal, in Hawkins County, Tennessee. Thus far, I've not been able to find a record of his death. He might have died in Oklahoma, since Maysville was a border town.

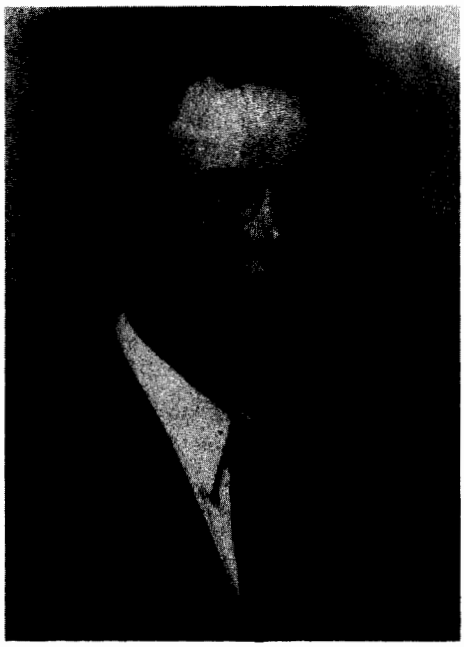
George Franklin Beaver

Frank, as he was called by his family, was born on May 18, 1887 in Farmington, Arkansas, the son of Tobe and Mary Henderson Beaver who were married on December 14, 1884 in the Cherokee Nation.

Mary Henderson Beaver and W. Tobe Beaver were long-time residents of Farmington, Arkansas. Mary was originally from Farmington and Tobe, who was a successful and prominent farmer in the area, was born in Missouri. Some of his relatives settled the town of Beaver near Eureka Springs.

Ten children were born to Mary and Tobe, eight of whom grew into adulthood. Frank was the eldest son. The brothers and sisters who grew up with him were Bertha Ethel Beaver Talkington, born December 17, 1886; Robert C. Beaver, born October 7, 1893; Mamie Loree Beaver Broyles, born August 7, 1896; Lester Beaver, born in 1900; Myrtle B. Beaver Crowder, born December 17, 1905; and Mary Opal Beaver Huenefelt, born January 4, 1908.

Frank, being the eldest son, felt a great responsibility to his family and this carried over throughout his whole life. His home was always open to all of his family when they needed help of any kind.



George "Frank" Beaver

Picture taken by Northup, King and Company, fieldman - showing G. L. Beaver and his cows.

In his early life, he worked with his father on the family farm planting spring crops, chopping weeds and harvesting whatever was in season. During the slack time on the farm, Frank attended the local school when he was not needed at home. In later years, he claimed to have a fourth grade education. His formal schooling was just the beginning for Frank. He was self-educated by a curious, everseeking mind wanting to learn new ways to experience life. He wanted a better life for himself and his family. One of his first ventures in the world of business was mule trading. With a few cents in his pocket, he would buy a poor old mule, bring it home, fatten it up and sell it for a profit. He also went into the horse trading business in this manner.

Frank got a lot of practical experience on the family farm, and in a few years he became a builder in and around Farmington and Prairie Grove. He built barns for neighbors and sometimes a house. This was his way of life until he became a member of the Fayetteville Lumber and Cement Company and moved to Fayetteville around 1925.

Frank became the manager of the lumber company under the ownership of the Baggets of Prairie Grove. An ambitious young man, he once again got involved in building while being gainfully employed. Frank built or renovated several houses in the Fayetteville area. His trademark was in the style of brickwork on each house, and can still be found on some of the houses in Fayetteville.

Frank was very interested and involved in the growth of Fayetteville. He was a member of the Board of Governors of the Chamber of Commerce in Fayetteville, and at the time of his death, the Board of Governors described him as a citizen who was faithful to duty, calm and safe in his judgement and unselfish in community welfare planning. He had a friendly attitude, great integrity of character, and a constructive enterprise which were all invaluable assets to the city and county.

Frank was also an active member of the local Lions Club, served on the Board, and selected delegate to several conventions. In November of 1933, he was made a key member of the International Associations of Lions Clubs. This membership is issued for exceptional service in building the association.

In May of 1930, Frank was one of the successful delegates of the U. S. Highway 71 Association who met in Fort Smith to consider and plan for the present highway over the mountains.

In addition, Frank was a member of the Fayetteville School Board, a member of Fayetteville Realty Company and had been nominated for President of the Chamber of Commerce in 1933, but had declined because of ill health.

In November of 1909, Frank married Ila Pettigrew and from this marriage, there was one child, Sallie Beaver Stubblefield, born August 3, 1910. On March 7, 1919, Ila Pettigrew died. Frank was now a widower with a growing daughter to raise.

On April 24, 1920, Frank and Gillie Ferguson were married while seated in Frank's car in the churchyard of Little Elm Baptist Church.

On May 12, 1921, Gillie presented Frank with a son, Graydon Leroy Beaver, and on August 7, 1926, a daughter, Mary Ella Beaver Lee, became the newest member of the family.

Frank and Gillie lived in the Farmington area until around 1925. At this time, they moved to Fayetteville, where he and his family resided until his death on December 25, 1933 of an undiagnosed illness.

Gillie Ferguson Beaver, born April 9, 1900, died February 27, 1979, Frank's widow, continued to live in Fayetteville and raise their two children.

Mrs. Lawrence S. Stubblefield, the former Sallie Beaver, moved to Miami, Oklahoma with her husband and two daughters, Joan and Shirley.

Mrs. Shelburn Lee, Frank's daughter Mary Ella, moved to Pine Bluff after marrying and had three sons, Brent, Lloyd Frank and Kim Shelburn.

G. L. (Leroy) Beaver lived all his life in the Fayetteville-Springdale area. G. L. was a graduate of the University of Arkansas where he became interested in the Holstein Fresian breed of cows. Because of this interest, he brought the first Holstein dairy herd to this area and by selective breeding, he was able to produce milk with 3.5 to 3.8 butterfat ratio.

The first all-electric home in Fayetteville and the use of the heat pump was another of G. L.'s accomplishments. In his farsighted outlook, he had one of the very first round balers in the area.

G. L. and Elma M. Kahlstrom's direct descendants are Muria Lee Beaver Whitaker, born November 8, 1946, of Springdale, Arkansas and Michal Celia Hicks, born August 9, 1952, of Goshen, Arkansas.

Grandchildren of G. L. and Elma Beaver are Muria's sons, Weston W. Walker, born September 10, 1970 and George E. Whitaker, born March 15, 1977. Michal's daughters are Amy Celia Quinton, born December 18, 1975 and Carrie Ann Quinton, born March 27, 1983.

Laborne Beavers

Labe and Lucy were both born and raised in Marion County, Arkansas. They were married in 1908, in the Hall home in that County. They gave birth to nine children. Ona, Erma, Louis, Austin, Lyd, Warren, Mabel, Geneva and Ray. They were all born in this area, with the exception of Warren who was born in Oklahoma and Ray was born in Benton County.

The family moved to Benton County in 1927 after two tries in Oklahoma. In 1932 they moved to Washington County. After living in the Renick and New Home School districts about four years, we moved to the Cincinnati area on the old Bunnell place.

The five youngest children attended the Cincinnati schools. In 1940 they moved to Lincoln where the three children attended school. Geneva and Mabel finished there. Ray received his diploma in the Navy in San Diego, California. After serving his term in the Navy he went to Redwood, California where he attended Junior College two years. He then became a police officer there. He is now retired and makes his home there. There were 16 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren came out of this union, but so soon Mother and Dad were left alone after raising their family.

At the beginning of their marriage my father worked in the mines for awhile, then forever after he was a tenant farmer; therefore he never really established roots, so to speak, for any of his children to cling to.

Eventually they all migrated to California with the exception of Louis, who made his home in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania until his death in 1972.

All four boys served in the services of our country. Both Ray and Austin were in the Navy. Louis the Army and Warren in the Army Air Force and Warren did service overseas.

In July 1962 my father came to California to visit his children. He immediately suffered a stroke. He lived ten days and passed away in Concord, California.

My mother came to visit the children in 1965. She also became ill and her heart gave out. She was with Lyda in San Diego in 1966 when she passed away.

Our parents always instilled a deep sense of Christian love and concern in us children. Therefore we have remained a closely knit one, even tho we have scattered afar we still get together as often as possible. With transportation and communications as they are today, we are never more than a telephone call and two hours away from each other. We thank God for our part in this family.

James William Glen Becker, Jr.

James William Glen Becker, Jr. born April 25, 1907 in Boston, Massachusetts was the son of James William Glen Becker, Sr. and Margaret Becker. James was an only child. His mother died when he was born.

He and his father moved to Springdale, Arkansas in 1911 to farm and open a machine shop. James' father learned his trade as a pattern maker, carriage wood worker, machinist and blacksmith at an early age in Kansas City, Missouri. His father was born on September 8, 1866 in Springfield, Illinois. His work took him to many cities to work including Manchester, England for two years.

In 1911 James and his father settled in Springdale and began building a machine shop with living quarters above which was known as Becker Machine Shop. James attended school in Springdale serving his apprenticeship as a machinist after school and on weekends. At 25 years of age, James was doing most of the work in the machine shop.

In 1929 James married Elizabeth Caroline (Carrie) Webster, daughter of John and Nannie Webster of Elm Springs, Arkansas. Carrie grew up in Elm Springs, where she was born July 31, 1906. There were nine children in the Webster family, including Nolen, Reed, Dollie, Vey, Carrie, Nannie, Moselle, Jack, and Jim. All of the Webster children grew up in the Elm Springs and Springdale area.

Carrie and James had two children; Mary, born June 11, 1930 and Margaret, born May 20, 1934, both born in Springdale. They attended school in Springdale.

Mary, married James King on July 17, 1948. They have three sons; David, Howard, and Jimmy. David is 37 years old and married to Dorothy Sanders. They live in Flippin, Arkansas where Dorothy teaches school. They have three children; Amy, Adam and Abram. Howard, 34 years old lives at Johnson, Arkansas and is not married. Jimmy, 26 years old lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Margaret attended the University of Arkansas. She married Dick Lester on June 13, 1959. They have three children; Liz, 26 years old, Dickie 25 years old and Danny 15 years. Liz is a professional musician, now residing in Fayetteville where she teaches at the University. Dickie operates a computer store in Rogers. He is married to Tina Flatau. They live in Springdale and have a six year old son, Stephen. Danny is fifteen years old and a student in Springdale school.

James worked in the machine shop alone after his father passed away on June 13, 1959. Carrie passed away April 17, 1964. James lived alone and worked at the shop until a few months before his death on July 26th, 1981.

The Becker Machine Shop is a landmark in Springdale, still standing on Highway 68 East on a road known by all oldtimers as Becker Lane.

Eli Wesley Beeks

In the latter 1870s Eli Wesley Beeks came to Washington County Arkansas settling northwest of Prairie Grove in the Prairie View Community. Eli was born in Louisiana, June 1855. His father Henry was born in Louisiana and his mother Melvina Margaret in 1826 in Georgia. Eli had at least two brothers. Two of his nephews were Marshall M. born 1866, John Lowe born 1868, a niece Elizabeth P. born 1868. They were born in Texas.

Sometime in the late 1870s Eli married Alwilda Brunito (Nettie) Rose. She was born in Arkansas November 25, 1861. Her family also lived in the Prairie View Community. Nettie's father James Rose was born 1813 in Illinois. Her mother E. J. (Elizabeth I think) was born in Arkansas in 1831. Nettie had several brothers and sisters all born in Arkansas. Her sisters: S. B. 1852; A. M. S. 1864; Alpha C. 1865; Ollie 1867; and Margaret S. 1870. Her brothers: Thomas 1854; Marion Dee 1872; and William L. 1874. Nettie's step-mother was Susan born 1835 in Tennessee and died December 20, 1884.

Eli and Nettie's children are Robert Lee, February 12, 1880; Melvina Jane, July 25, 1881; Henry 1887; Tiff Thomas 1889; Oliver 1893; Eli Wesley, August 1896; Marion Alwilda, January 31, 1889 and Frank. Henry and Frank may have been the same person.

Nettie's family donated the land for Rose Cemetery. There are several Beeks' and Rose's buried there including Eli and Nettie, several of their children, grandchildren and parents.

James Rose lived across the road from the cemetery. Eli lived there sometime later. Eli's last place that he lived and he also owned was on a road going west from the Prairie View School then take the first road to the right, go on down the hill cross the Muddy Fork Creek, go on upon top of the hill. He had a house, barn, and chicken house. He had spring water. Later a dug well-80 feet deep. Water was hand-drawn with bucket on each end. Cherry lived to the east and Bowlin lived north.

Nettie died when her son Marion was born. Later Eli remarried Mary and they had a son James Allen.

Eli was a farmer, cultivating his crops with horses. He grew apples, berries, tomatoes, wheat and corn, milked cows for their own use.

Eli's children went to school at Prairie View. Church was held in the same building.

On Christmas 1933, Eli's children and grandchildren came in wagons to spend the day with him. Later in the day Eli's arms and legs started cramping him. He died the next day.

Melvina married a Grimes.

Tiff Thomas married Lillie Bell Rhines August 1, 1909. Their children are Hugh, Earl Thomas, Irvin, Howard, Margie, Virgie and Ivy. Tiff was a farmer. He died February 16, 1955.

Oliver married Eliza Thurman. Their children are Mamie, Robert Orville, and Myrie. After Oliver's death Eliza remarried and had a daughter Lucille.

Frank was killed when a team of horses had a run away pulling a new Springfield wagon.

Eli Wesley, Jr. married Nancy Kirk. Their children are Lora, Viola, Elsie, Preston, and Imogene. Eli was a carpenter.

Marion married Della Conduff, daughter of John Wheeler and Huldie Elizabeth Keller Conduff on June 3, 1923 at Prairie View. Their children are Marvin Alwilty, Zelma Lucille, Garland Eugene, Ira Dean, and Ollie Faye. Marion was a farmer. Most of the time living around the Prairie Grove area. He raised corn, wheat, and tomatoes. He had cows, pigs, horses, and mules. He has cultivated his crops with horses, mules, and tractors. He milked cows and sold milk. Some of the time he raised broilers. He and his wife raised their vegetables and usually had a real good garden. She canned lots of fruits and vegetables. Marion liked to squirrel hunt. Marion and Della both enjoyed fishing. Della still enjoys her flowers and piecing quilts and lives alone in her home at Prairie Grove. Marion died January 4, 1972.

Allen married Marie Kinion February 27. They have one baby that died as an infant and a daughter Bonnie. He later married Rilda. Their children are David and Mary. Later in his life he married Inez. He died in 1986.

Eli and Allen moved to California and lived the last 35 to 40 years of their life.

One time Marion's step-mother had some sweet potatoes baking in the fireplace. He threw some of the hot sweet potatoes on the pigs that were in the front yard.

Tiff Thomas Beeks

The youngest Rhine daughter, Lillie Isibell married Tiff (son of Eli Beeks and Nettie Rose Beeks) of the same community, July 27, 1909 and made their home in the Prairie View community north of Prairie Grove. They later moved to Westville, Oklahoma with Lillie's brother Issac. When Lillie and a son had typhoid fever, Tiff moved them back to Arkansas and settled in the Bethel Grove community, east of their old home, about 1921. He then purchased a farm in that community and raised strawberries and truck crops. His children attended school at the Bethel Grove School. They were: Hugh Adam 1910, married Ortha Lena Kinion; Gracie Marie 1913, who married Earnest Kinion; Virgie Elizabeth 1916, married John I. Pearson; Iva Monroe 1919, married Arizonia Pike; Willard Ervan 1922, married Ella Rea Robertson; Earl Thomas 1925 - 1926; Marjorie Lorian 1927, married James Grant; Howard Dane 1933, married Gladys Donaghey. Gracie and Earnest Kinion moved to Chino, California to raise their family and stayed there. The rest of the children made their homes and raised their families here in Washington County, except for short periods when they travelled to find work elsewhere. Most of them being rural land owners and working in Fayetteville. Hugh was the Prairie Grove blacksmith with his own shop.

Tiff and Lillie are botb buried at the Rose Cemetery as is Earl Thomas - baby. This cemetery is named after Tiff's mother, Nettie Rose Beeks.

Charles Jefferson Bell

Charles Jefferson Bell, born 4-25-1848 at Thorney, Arkansas, in Madison County. Married Mary Holmsley, 4-24-1870, at Thorney, Arkansas. They had 8 children: (1) Luther F. Bell, born 6-1-1874, married Mary Lucas; (2) Erin Bell, born 12-10-1874, married William F. Riggins; (3) Millie Bell, born 1877, married Noah H. Jeffers; (4) Willis Bell, born 3-10-1878, married Mary Fritts; (5) Robert Malinthy Bell, born 12-15-1880, married Chloe Agnes Counts, 3-4-1905; (6) Thomas Alexandra Bell, born 6-14-1882, married Emma L. Pippin; (7) Lenord H. Bell, born 2-10-1887, married Allie S. Gardner; (8) Effie Bell, born 1885, married Reoder. All these children were born at Thorney, Arkansas.

Arthur Hopper, Goldie (Bell) Hopper

The fifth child of Charles Bell and Mary Holmsley is my grandfather Bell, Robert Malinthy Bell, who married Chloe Agnes Counts, 3-4-1905. This union had 5 children who were all born in Washington County: (1) Carl Bell, born 2-22-1905, died 1973, married Viola Foster. They have two children: Bill Bell, born 5-22-1935; and Berl Dean Bell, born 6-30-1927. Carl Bell was a farmer and a carpenter. (2) Fern Bell, born 5-17-1907, married Earnest Merritt and he died. Fern later married Joel R. Spence. They had no children. (3) Ford Bell, born 9-20-1908, married Nancy Elizabeth Gage. Ford and Elizabeth have three children: Annette (Bell) Frost, Carole Bell, and Mike Bell. Ford Bell was a farmer and a carpenter. They lived in the Mount Olive Community. (4) Clayton Bell, born 1-20-1912, married Mary O'Neil. They have two daughters: Rose (Bell) King and Betty Joe (Bell) Disney. Clayton was a farmer and worked and retired at City Lumber Company in Fayetteville. They still live in the Mount Olive Community. (5) Goldie Bell, born 7-10-1914, married Arthur Calvin Hopper, 12-25-1933, at Elkins, Arkansas, by Justice of Peace Claud Williams. They lived at Thorney in Molly and T. L. McFee's cabin until the fall of 1934. Molly

Dian Hopper, 8th Grade, Elkins School, 1955.

(Hopper) McFee was, by the way, Arthur Hopper's grandmother's sister. Arthur was from Attalla, Alabama; came to Arkansas to visit Mollie and get a job. He lived there and at E. A. Count's (Goldie's grandfather) house doing chores for his keep and also went to Kansas to work in the wheat harvest. After Goldie Bell and Arthur were married, the next fall they traveled by bus to Alabama City, Alabama, where they lived with Arthur's sister for awhile. Arthur got a job digging ditches for $3.50 a week and later got a job at the cotton mill for $11 a week. Goldie also worked at the cotton mill some. Goldie (Bell) Hopper and Arthur had five children: Donald Eugene, born 3-20-1937; Mary Dian, born 6-1-1942; infant boy, born and died 12-24-1943; Myra Priscilla, born 9-26-1945; and Dan Arthur, born 7-20-1947.

Hard times hit the cotton industry approximately 1952. Arthur moved to Detroit, Michigan, where he worked and retired at General Motors, Inc. He stayed in Detroit. Goldie (Bell) Hopper fell to ill health for some time. The children were separated for 18 months to 2 years and stayed with different friends and relatives, never knowing when they would be reunited. Donald, the oldest, lived in Detroit and married Susan Marshall. They have four children: (1) Brenda Sue, born 12-16-1957, married Ron Taylor and they have two sons, Jonathan and Christopher; (2) Sherry Gail, born 9-24-1960, married James Lochard; (3) Kennan John, born 11-30-1963; (4) Donald Edward, born 5-19-1968.

Back to our move to Washington County. Goldie (Bell) Hopper's health improved, and she and daughter, Dian, left Alabama by bus to Welch, Oklahoma, where Goldie's sister, Fern (Bell) Spence, had been taking care of Priscilla. This was around June 11, 1955. After an overnight stay in Welch, Fern and husband, Spence, took Goldie, Dian, and Priscilla, who were all reunited after approximately two years, to Elkins, Arkansas, three miles east, to Robert M. Bell's home, Goldie's father. As we had no place to stay, we lived there until early 1956. I don't think Grandpa much liked having his household disrupted by children. I was 13 and Priscilla was 10. Now Priscilla and I were from the city, so all this was new to us. We were really in the sticks. I got to meet lots of new cousins, aunts, and uncles. Mother had to cook on a wood cook stove. I can still remember how hot it was in the kitchen that summer, but Mother cooked delicious meals despite the heat. We lived in a whole new world, feeding chickens, gathering eggs, picking huckleberies, blackberries, and grapes from Grandpa's vineyard. He even milked cows, so we had fresh milk. How different it tasted, and we even churned our own butter. We helped shell corn for the chickens and cows. Grandpa even made us a tire swing under the old oak tree out by the smokehouse where we spent many hours.

In the fall, Donald, my oldest brother, brought Dan, my youngest brother, to Grandpa's from Detroit where they had been living with our father. They came by train to Fayetteville, then to Grandpa's by car. We all went to school at Elkins by bus. I went one year to part of my classes in the old white schoolhouse where my mother had attended school.

Early in 1956 we rented the house next to the Mount Olive Community House, where we also attended church. The rent on the house was $10 a month. Mother later bought the house and 10 acres for $1000. As we had no house furnishings, relatives and friends furnished our house, complete with furniture, bedding, and dishes. Uncle Ford, Uncle Carl, and Uncle Clayton Bell's family helped us out a lot during our time of need. They brought us our winter supply of wood, as we heated with a wood stove. Roy and Ellis King and other neighbors were always there to help too. We had no T. V. then. We kids played games and read a lot. We had no indoor plumbing, and how I remember running to the outhouse in the winter time. Monday was wash day, and before we went to school, we always had to draw 10-15 buckets of water. Our washing machine was a wringer-type, and Mother washed the white things first, on down to the darkest colored clothes, and, of course, our clothes were starched very stiff as Priscilla and I wore can-cans that stood out so far we could hardly see our feet.

My mother did not work outside the home, but did take care of a neighbor girl, Wilma King. We raised most of our food and canned all summer all kinds of vegetables and stored onions and potatoes. We never had much meat— occasionally, a Sunday chicken when Mother could get its head off.

In 1959 Danny was burned seriously and spent a month at Washington County Hospital where he nearly died, as they knew very little about burns then. He spent the next 3 months at Arkansas Children's Hospital in Little Rock.

My first job was picking strawberries for Elmer Ledford for five cents a quart, I think. I ate a lot while picking them. We also picked tomatoes for Uncle Carl Bell for fifteen cents to twenty-five cents a crate. We would also help gather corn to put in the barn for the cows. On occasion, Uncle Carl would take us to Springston Ford to swim. We couldn't swim and weren't allowed to wear shorts, bathing suits, or pants. We swam in regular clothes.

We had a dog named Tippy and a cat named Bugger.

We got to go to Fayetteville only a few times a year, usually before Easter, before school started, and before Christmas. As we had no car, we went with Uncle Ford Bell's family, and this was an all-day affair. The road to Fayetteville was gravel then and full of holes. By the way, my husband, Dudley Holmes, worked with the crew that paved Highway 16 to Elkins. During high school summers I baby-sat for Mick and Donna Counts for $15 a week. Later, I worked at the Elkins Cafe for fifty cents an hour and tips.

Priscilla was the first to leave in 1960 to marry Robert Pergeson of Prairie Grove, where they still live. Their children: Shelia Lee, born 9-1-1961, died 9-2-1961; Jeannie Lee, born 3-22-1963, married to John Castor; and Robert Kieth, born 8-21-1967. Priscilla has mostly been a homemaker.

Danny Hopper finished his schooling at Hot Springs Vo-Technical School for body and fender work. His first job was at Sines Body Shop and he is now employed at Lewis Ford. He married Joyce King of the Mount Olive Community. They have 2 children: Sabrina Dorene, born 9-13-1967; and Scott Arthur, born 4-16-1969. Danny still lives in Fayetteville.

I, Dian (Hopper) Holmes, graduated Elkins High School in 1960. My first job after graduation was Fairway Grocery Store in Evelyn Hills for 75 cents an hour. Town almost stopped here as there was mostly countryside from there to Springdale. I married Arthur Dudley Holmes in 1961. We moved to Fayetteville. I've worked at various jobs—Downtown Market, Baldwin Piano, Sears, Dr. Floyd Harris, and am now employed as a dental assistant at the V. A. Medical Center since 1976. We have two daughters: Diana Velvet, born 3-10-1962; and Sherrie Dawn, born 10-19-1974. Dudley is currently employed at Jones Truck Lines. We live off highway 45 close to McKeehan Corner.

Clifton Bell

Clifton Bell, son of E. E. Bell and Annie Bell, was born in Atchison County, Kansas, February 15, 1900. He was the eldest of six children. When Clifton was about eight years of age, the family moved to the little west Texas town of Arno. Clifton attended school with little Mexican children. All went well until the dam burst. Then there was no water for irrigation. So the family moved to western Oklahoma when he was about thirteen. He graduated from Sayre High School and went on to graduate from Oklahoma State University. He next went to Phillips Bible College in Enid, Oklahoma, then to Northern Bible College in Pierre, South Dakota, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Chaplain Clifton Bell

Reverend Bell was associate minister of the First Christian Church in Rogers for a time. Later he became pastor of the First Christian Church in Springdale. While he was at Rogers, he met Mabel Goree who had come with other young people from Springdale to a Christian Endeavor meeting with the Rogers youth. They became friends and later more than friends. They were married October 28, 1931.

Mabel Goree was the middle child of Oscar and Effie Webb Goree. Raymond was older and Lena Louise was younger.

Mabel was a teacher. She began her teaching career on her twentieth birthday at Skylight, a rural one-room school in Washington County. While teaching and attending summer sessions, she earned her degree in Education from the University of Arkansas. She attended Central State Teacher's College in Edmond, Oklahoma, Western State University in El Paso, Texas and Columbia University in New York City. Much of her teaching was wherever her husband was located in his work. She taught in LaCrosse, Caddo County, Oklahoma, El Paso, Texas, Almeda, California, Silver Hill and Brandy Wine, Maryland, American soldiers in Germany, Adult Education in Hot Springs, South Dakota during the Depression and more than twenty years in Arkansas.

Clifton Bell left a pastorate in Hot Springs, South Dakota, in 1934 and joined the chaplaincy. After five years as a chaplain in the Civilian Conservation Corps in Iowa, he was inducted into the Army. He was sent to Pine Camp, New York and from there to Hawaii in July 1941. He was on duty at Fort Weaver, Oahu, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

Among Chaplain Bell's army duties were assignments at Pine Camp, New York; Fort Weaver, Hawaii; Fort Bliss, Texas; Fort Devons, Massachusetts; Hospital duty in Wurzburg, Germany, Korea and Fort Bliss, Oklahoma.

Chaplain Bell was transport chaplain for a long time. He crossed the Pacific forty times with troops, the Atlantic fourteen times and made one voyage to Goose Bay, Labrador and Greenland. Among the ships he served on were the General Aultman, the General Heintzelman, the Admiral Hughes, the General John Pope, the General Maurice Rose and the hospital ships-Comfort and Hops.

Mrs. Bell retired from teaching after more than thirty years. She resides in Springdale. She has a niece, Vera Lou Goree, who is a joy to her. Mrs. Bell does volunteer work at the Hospital Thrift Shop. She is a member of the First Christian Church, Washington County Retired Teachers, the Eastern Star, Northwest Arkansas Genealogical Society, Hospital Auxiliary, Washington County Historical Society, Shiloh Museum, the Degree of Honor and the Lowell E. H. Club.

Luther M. Bell

Born March 24, 1818, in Eastern Tennessee, in the vicinity of Elizabethtown, Johnson City, and Greenville. His father, Joseph and his mother Nancy were born in Virginia. Nothing is known of him until 1840. He married a daughter of Hiram Fincher. For years, we believed her name was Elizabeth, but later it was learned that the bride was Elizabeth's sister, Miriam.

Moved to Arkansas in 1841. With his wife, and their infant daughter, and in company with the family of his father-in-law, Hiram Fincher, traveled on a flat-boat down the Nolichucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, and up the Arkansas River to the town of Ozark, then overland across the Boston Mountains to Washington County.

On the way, both Mrs. Bell and her infant daughter became ill with pneumonia. When the group reached the junction of the Mississippi and Arkansas Rivers, Luther Bell took his wife and daughter ashore to receive medical attention and rest, and the other members of the group continued on their way to their new home in Washington County. Both Mrs. Bell, and her daughter died, and both were buried in a small village in Mississippi. Afterward, Luther Bell continued his journey, joining the Fincher family in Washington County, near Maguire's Store. This was in the year 1841. He married Mary Benbrook within the next three years. They had thirteen children.

Records of the White River Congregation of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church show that Luther Bell had become an Elder in the Church by March 25, 1842. (Church records also show that Polly (Mary) Benbrook was received into the membership of the church on August 20, 1839). There were no Seminaries in those days, and training for the Ministry was done by Home Study and "Trial Sermons" at meetings of the Presbytery. He was licensed to preach (but did not become a Minister) on October 8, 1846. He was ordained a Minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church on March 8, 1850, eight years after he first became a Candidate. His name appears many times in the records of the Washington Presbytery and the White River Congregation. He served as Moderator at many meetings. He was one of the Pioneer Preachers of the C. P. Church in northwest Arkansas. He officiated at numerous weddings over a period of many years. It is said that he was "a good singer" and that he possessed a "splendid voice". He was musically inclined. He played a flute.

He served as a Justice of the Peace in the late 1840s. He also served in the 13th Legislature of the State of Arkansas, November 5, 1860 to January 21, 1861, and in Special Sessions November 14-18, 1861, and March 5-22, 1862, as a member of the House of Representatives from Washington County. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge. (Masonic Emblem is on his tomb stone.)

After the death of his second wife, Mary Benbrook-Bell, he married his third wife, Sarah Watson-Bell. They had several children, Sarah died November 5, 1874. Afterward, (date not known), he married his fourth wife, Elizabeth A. Fritts, they had eight children.

Luther M. Bell died July 1, 1885, and is buried in the Wesley Cemetery (in Madison County, Arkansas) near the community in which he had spent his later years.

Thomas Jefferson Bell

Thomas Jefferson Bell was born June 14, 1845 in Wilson County, Tennessee to Benjamin Tucker and Charlotte Bell. Thomas J. Bell was the 12th and the last child in this family. He was the grandson of John and Mary Bell of South Carolina. Charlotte Goodall Bell was the daughter of Parke and Frances Cooke Goodall of Hanover County, Virginia. She was also the granddaughter of John Goodall.

Barbara Lathington Williams Bell was the daughter of James Monroe Williams and Harriett M. Tyree Williams. She was the granddaughter of Williams T. Williams and Elizabeth (unknown). All were from Hanover County, Virginia. Harriett Tyree Williams was the daughter of Benjamin and Sarah Tyree.

Seems as all the families came from the same county in Virginia to Tennessee. James Monroe Williams, Sr. was killed fighting the bushwhackers who had just shot his son James, Jr. in the back while asleep. He backed up against a tree and fought as long as a breath of life was in him. Twelve wounds were found in his body. Comrades had sneaked away and watched from some bushes. William T. Williams, father of James Monroe refused to sign an oath and had all of his property seized which was a considerable amount. He and his sons had the Dixon Springs Inn, Mill, Tipler House, Grocery, and one son was the town lawyer.

Thomas and Barbara married 1845 in Tennessee and settled down in Wilson County, Tennessee where 9 children were born. In the spring of 1883 they moved to Washington County, Arkansas to the town called Brentwood. There Thomas J. was the postmaster and ran a store for a number of years and in 1898 they decided to move to Texas. At this time they had had 3 more children. They moved to Grapevine, Tarrant County, Texas. Here Thomas J. worked in a store until his death on October 1, 1911. He is buried in the Grapevine Cemetery. Barbara lived with her children until her death in Fort Worth, Texas July 3, 1929. She is buried along beside her husband in the Grapevine Cemetery. Their children were: 1. Mary Frances Bell, born June 4, 1866-1895, married Miles Shank and died unknown and is buried in Osage Mission Cemetery, St. Paul, Kansas; 2. Benjamin Tucker Bell, born March 3, 1869-August 11, 1929, married Myrtle Luella Beyner August 8, 1888. He is buried in Woodland Cemetery in Rosebud, Texas; 3. James Thomas Bell, born January 21, 1870-1954, married Dora May in May of 1890, died 1954 and is buried in Baptist Cemetery, Erick, Oklahoma; 4. Susan Harriett Bell, born August 14, 1872-February 29, 1960, married Ellis Hutchens August 24, 1887, buried in Grapevine Cemetery, Grapevine, Tarrant County, Texas; 5. Florence Bell, born January 1, 1875-September 30, 1962, married John C. Hutchens September 28, 1890, is buried in Maxie, Oklahoma; 6. Myrtle Drucilla Bell, born December 9, 1877-August 31, 1963, married George W. Mills August 21, 1895 and is buried in White Chapel Cemetery, Grapevine, Texas; 7. Charlotte Bell, born October 1, 1879, married John Parker is buried in Jenkins Cemetery near Brownwood, Texas; 8. Ella Blanche Bell, born April 9, 1882, married Ambrose Foster October 1, 1901 is buried in White Chapel Cemetery in Tarrant County, Grapevine, Texas; 9. Tabitha Ward Bell, born June 6, 1884-March 21, 1979, married William Edward Wall November 28, 1890 is buried in White Chapel Cemetery in Grapevine, Texas; 10. Vernon Bell, born March 4, 1887, married Mallard Kendrick November 28, 1906 and is buried in Greenwood Cemetery, Fort Worth, Texas; 11. Darance, born April 1890, died 1891 as an infant; 12. John De Witt Bell, born April 24, 1892-April 1, 1921, married Louise Bowles April 1, 1912, is buried in Grapevine Cemetery in Grapevine Texas. John was killed in Fort Worth as a policeman. He was riding a motorcycle and chasing a car and had an accident. He served in WWI on a submarine.

The Bell family have many descendants who live all over the United States. I am a descendant of Thomas J. Bell. Myrtle Drucilla Bell Mills was my grandmother. I knew several of the children and all were very wonderful people.

Herbert Hosey Benbrook

Herbert Hosey Benbrook (Herbie, Herb or Ben) born September 29, 1874 at Maguire's Store, a popular trading center for the area, located on land homesteaded by his great-grandparents, Owen and Mary McGuire, who settled and built their home there in 1820. Hosey died in 1958 while living in their home, Benbrook Cottage, in Farmington, where he and his wife moved after he retired from the city water department of Fayetteville. He had read the meters and filtered the city water there for thirty-three years. The city water plant and their home was located on Oklahoma Way, Mt. Sequoyah in Fayetteville, and both are still in use. They are buried at Cemetery Hill Memorial Park. Herbie married Sara Elizabeth (Lizzie) Shumate November 10, 1897 at the home of her widowed mother, Charity Van Hoose Shumate of Durham. Sarah Elizabeth was born November 29, 1875 and died in 1973. Her father, Bennett Shumate had lost his health in the war between the States and died when she was 9-years-old. Herbert Hosey was the fourth generation of Benbrooks to live in Washington County and all are now deceased. Four generations of Benbrooks are still living in the county, though now under the name of "Hamblen". Herb and Lizzie were the parents of three children, Juel Addie, Mildred Floy and Clyde Raymon.

Herbert Hosey and Sarah Elizabeth Shurvale celebrated their 60th Wedding Anniversary of this home, Benbrook Cottage in Farmington where they retired.

For the first year or two after Herbie and Lizzie married, he spent most of that time helping his father take care of the mules that he bought and sold on the farm with the big house after his Uncle Hosey Maguire, for whom he was named, had died. Their first baby, Juel Addie, the writer, was born here in 1899. She was named for Hosey Maguire's daughter, Addie Maguire. Several members of the Van Hoose family (Elizabeth's kin folks) were going to Montana during these times and when Juel was one-year-old, they decided to go and work with Jimmy Van Hoose, who was the Indian agent of the Crow Indian Reservation.

They stayed four or five years during which time their second child, Mildred Floy was born, in 1901. She was born in a hospital at Helena while they lived at White Sulphur Springs. They were back in Maguire Town in 1905 when their third and last child, Clyde Raymon was born.

They were ecstatic over the birth of a son — a son who would cause them the most joy and in the end, the most grief of their lives. Clyde married Aline McLain while in college at University of Arkansas. They had a daughter, Mary Sue, who had three children, and all are now living in Little Rock. One is named Robert Benbrook Gray. Major Clyde R. Benbrook was in the D-Day invasion of World War II and saw continuous action until his death July 4, 1944 in France. He is buried in the Normandy American Cemetery, St. Laurient, France. The writer and grandson, Leroy Benbrook Hamblen (Lee) visited his grave in 1985.

When I started to school in 1905, to Otis Thompson, Mildred was left to play alone in the little forest by our house, and when she asked her father where he got her, he said he found her under a log. When we moved back from Montana, everyone remarked about our rosy cheeks, and once when a neighbor asked Mildred where her parents had found such a pretty little rosy-cheeked girl, she got her "logs" and "sticks" mixed up, and told him "papa found me under a stick". Mildred married Ray Murphy of Oklahoma, deceased and has fourteen great-grandchildren, (one great-granddaughter is now attending college in Germany). She writes letters and makes afghans for all the family.

Major Clyde Raymon Benbrook, the youngest of Herbie and Lizzie's children was a serious, responsible child, like his great-grandfather, Ewing Benbrook. When he was a small boy, he proved his bravery. His sisters, Juel and Mildred, who wouldn't get ten feet from the house after dark, dared him to go to the barn and back. He said he was not afraid of the dark, and pretty soon he returned with three ears of corn from the crib in the barn. Needless to say, in war he was a brave soldier and all of his family was so broken-hearted they would never recover from the loss suffered in his death. Herbie and Lizzie had quit the farm and gotten the job at the water plant to educate their son, and he had a master's degree from the University of Arkansas. While employed there, Herbie named the little street south of the Confederate Cemetery on Huntsville Road, "Barton Street" for the Barton family who lived on it.

The motto of Herbert H. Benbrook was, "live and help others to live". Though only a blue collar worker with small pay from the City Water Department, with a son in college and two daughters planning to be married, he found ways to do many small things for people. His most expensive protege, among several was his parents. He bought them a home and three acres of land at Harris, where Hosey farmed as long as he could see. After that, Herbie moved them to an apartment on the corner of College and Lafayette, where the new IGA store is now. When they could no longer make it there alone, Herbie moved them to his home on Mt. Sequoyah for the last years of their lives. Hosey did draw a small Confederate pension for his two years as a Confederate soldier.

Hosey Maguire Benbrook

Hosey Maguire Benbrook — born November 8, 1846 at Harris, Arkansas and died October 10, 1943 at nearly 98-years of age. Named for his uncle, Hosey Maguire Benbrook, he was the third generation of Benbrooks in Washington County. He married Catherine Irvin January 1, 1870. She was the daughter of John and Susan Windsor Irvin of England and Maguire's Store.

By trade, Hosey was a farmer, fruit and stock trader: mules and apples being his specialty. He sometimes had a partner, J. K. Pool, Y. J. Byard and Jim McIlroy being three that I remember him speaking of. His markets were in Louisiana, Texas, St. Louis and Missouri mostly. After the death of Hosey Maguire, his nephew and namesake, Hosey M. Benbrook bought the farm and Big House (big in comparison with the 1820 log house of his parents). Both houses are still standing: the log house now owned by Mrs. L. L. Rowley. No one lives in the Big House at present. Hosey M. Benbrook was doing well financially when he decided to mortgage the Big House and farm and buy 1,000 head of shoats to fatten out and "get rich quick". About that time, hog cholera was getting started over the country — he bought the hogs at the stock barn in St. Louis, where they had contacted the highly contagious disease and when he got them home, most of them died in a very short time. He was never able to overcome this loss financially and lost this part of his grandfather, Owen Maguire's ancestral farm.

Buying mules over the country made Hosey a knowledgeable local historian, and with his Civil War experiences, he could talk indefinitely. A neighbor boy, son of Walter Smith of Harris, wrote his college thesis on "The Life and Tales of Hosey M. Benbrook". Talking was nearly the only past time he had as he was blind in his later years and couldn't read, and there was no radio in those days for the common people.

Hosey's war experiences began when he was only 16, as a scout corraling mules and horses in the south, until the Confederacy needed them. Later, when he was 18, he entered service as a soldier on April 20, 1864 at Elkins under Captain Tuck Smith's Company, E. I. Stirman's Regiment (City Library in Fayetteville), serving until the end of the war.

He was the last and oldest Confederate veteran to die in Fayetteville, where he spent his last years with his son, Herbert Hosey Benbrook. When he was 92, he wore a Confederate uniform and attended the three-day Gettysburg Reunion of the Blue and the Grey, accompanied by his step-grandson, Albert Adrian Hamblen, Sr. (another reunion is to be held there next July 2, 1988).

Being the oldest son of Ewing, Hosey stayed on the farm and helped his father "pick up the pieces" from the war's devastation. During the war, Union soldiers were scattered through that area. Their stock was all confiscated and rail fences burned by the troops for warmth and cooking. Ewing had five cellars, probably dug by his predecessor William Shumate who had slaves to help dig them out of the hillside surrounding the house. Ewing was a southern sympathizer, though he did not believe in slavery. Both William and Ewing had big families to feed. I've watched these cellars through the years and two of them can still be seen, though nearly full of junk, and like the others will soon be covered over with soil and grass and no sign of them will be seen. During the war, Ewing stored meal, fruit, vegetables, molasses, lard and home made lye soap in barrels, crocks and flat-topped gourds. Ewing, with help from the women when he was away, sold these items during the war to the Union soldiers. Ewing was too near fighting age to be seen by the Federal troops; but he had a good Union friend who owned the land between his and the Middle Fork of White River, Major Thomas J. Hunt, who saved Ewing's life by warning him when Union troops would be in the area. Major Hunt even kept Ewing's money in his own name for safety during the war and they remained fast friends throughout the war.

One of the ca dozen proteges who Ewing helped to a better life was his nephew, Harvy Doak Wood, whose mother, Katie Fincher Wood was a sister of Ewing's wife, Mahalia. Ewing was instrumental in helping "Doak" through medical school, and to show his appreciation, Dr. Wood said he would never charge a Benbrook a doctor bill, and he never did.

Dr. Wood in turn did a little protege work himself. He kept his mother Katie during her last days. When he was about ready to finish his new home, "Katie" complained about the noise. Dr. Wood sent the carpenters home and vowed he would never finish the house as long as his mother lived. When she died in 1884, he completed the house and it is standing today on north Washington Street with the name "Wood" etched in the glass of the front door. Dr. Wood also adopted his half-brother, Tom Wood's infant baby, Ruth when her mother died. She would make a nice little "sister" for his own daughter, Cora, he said. His other three children were boys. His wife was Annette Dickerson, a Van Hoose descendant, (my mother's cousin).

Ewing had another protege, Jane Moulden, widow of Smith Moulden and the mother of Pat Moulden who played a political role in the county. Jame was a sister of Mahalia and Dr. Wood's mother, "Katie". Jane was widowed early in life and when Mahalia became very ill, she came to Ewing's home to care for her. When Mahalia died, she continued to make Ewing's home her home as long as Ewing lived, to care for the Benbrook household. When he died, he left her $400.00 in his will, the same amount of cash he left each of his own eleven children.

The costliest protege of Ewings of course, was his little brother, John Quincy, who he sent to the local schools, then to Cane Hill College. Quincy became a dry goods and drug store merchant in Fayetteville. He lived on North School Street and sometimes held school in his own home and was on the board when the University of Arkansas was built. He married Mary Campbell and they had several children. All these proteges, and their own big family to feed, kept Hosey and Catherine on the farm until his father's death and the farm was sold.

Hosey and Catherine had two sons: Peter Clyde, (no descendants here now) and Herbert Hosey, the last blood descendant to bear the Benbrook name in Washington County. The next four generations are named Hamblen and live in Fayetteville and Farmington. The last Benbrook name, though no blood kin, in the county was Dorah Burns Benbrook, who lived on Lafayette Street. She was a music teacher and widow of William Lincoln Benbrook, son of John Quincy Benbrook, who is buried in Evergreen Cemetery. "Will" was murdered in his drug store on the east side of the square. His murderer, Wadkins was convicted but left the area and was never heard of again. Charley Benbrook, Hosey M. Benbrook's brother, then took over the Benbrook Drug Store. Hosey and Catherine celebrated their 66th Wedding Anniversary. They are buried in Strain Cemetery.

William Hamilton Benson

William Hamilton Benson was born March 11, 1858, in Tennessee, the son of Isaac Benson and Rebecca (McDonald) Benson. Isaac and Rebecca had nine children: Robert C., Riley, John P., Nancy A., Naomi, Martha Jane, John Calvin, Isaac and William Hamilton. In 1863 the Bensons moved to Ouachita County, Arkansas, from Tennessee. Following Isaac's death in 1866, Rebecca moved to the Son's Chapel area of Washington County purportedly to live in a more favorable climate than south Arkansas. Rebecca died November 27, 1869. She and her son John P. are buried in the Son's Chapel Cemetery. Robert C. and Riley died serving the Confederacy during the Civil War: Riley at Camp Butler near Springfield, Illinois, and Robert in Little Rock, Arkansas.

William Hamilton married Julia Ellazene Kelly of Goshen on February 20, 1890. Julia, born December 5, 1870, was one of nine children born to Dr. Jesse R. and Elizabeth A. (Richards) Benson. Dr. Kelly was born November 29, 1833, in Habersham County, Georgia, to Hiram and Elizabeth (McGee) Kelly, who were originally from North Carolina. Elizabeth was born in South Carolina on October 9, 1835. After marriage in 1855, Dr. Kelly studied medicine and was graduated from the Atlanta Medical College in 1859. He and Elizabeth then moved to Hindsville, Madison County, where he established his medical practice. Dr. Kelly's father, Hiram, had moved to Huntsville, Madison County in 1858, where he was a farmer and blacksmith until his death July 13, 1862.

In 1862 Dr. Kelly's medical practice was interrupted by the Civil War when he was detailed to Texas by the Confederate Government to practice. In 1878 the Kellys purchased a 360 acre farm located two miles east of Goshen. Dr. Kelly, in addition to farming and medicine, was postmaster, Methodist minister and general store owner in Goshen. The Kelly's other eight children were: John T., Alexander, Mary, Sarah, Marcus, Lydia, Jane, Edward and Hettie. Dr. Kelly died January 2, 1897. Elizabeth died April 19, 1924. Both are buried in the Goshen Cemetery.

the Kelly farm, where they also raised nine children: George Lee, Lola Earl, Elsie Irene, Rebecca Ann, Clyde Walker, Jessie Hazel, Lennie Velma, William Bryan and Woodrow Wilson. William Hamilton died October 5, 1937, of pneumonia. Julia died January 15, 1952. Both are buried in the Goshen Cemetery.

George Lee Benson was the oldest of William and Julia's children. He was born December 31, 1890. George never married and lived at home helping to run the family farm and peach orchard. He died October 31, 1943, of a heart attack while milking cows.

Lola Earl Benson was born December 27, 1892. She married George Washington "Mike" Sawyer of Eureka Springs on February 12, 1919. Lola and Mike had one daughter, June Rebekka, born July 3, 1920. June is married to David Roberts Henson, and they live on the Henson family farm immediately west of the Son's Chapel area off Fox Hunter Road. Mike Sawyer died May 10, 1930, and is buried in Eureka Springs. Lola died September 3, 1983, and is buried in Fairview Cemetery in Fayetteville.

Elsie Irene Benson was born October 8, 1896, and married William Freeman Boatright of Wesley, May 2, 1923. After several years in California, the Boatrights returned to Arkansas, where they bought a farm five miles southeast of Goshen. Freeman and Elsie had two daughters, Frances Ruth and Beth. Ruth married James Phillip Parker, and they live in Hobbs, New Mexico. Beth married Charles Hicks of Conway, and they live in Hamburg, Arkansas. Freeman died July 10, 1979. Elsie died January 28, 1985. Both are buried in the Boatright Cemetery near Mountain Springs, Madison County, Arkansas.

Rebecca Ann Benson "Beck" was born September 25, 1898, and married Roy Lee Glaze of Eureka Springs, June 4, 1921. Roy and Beck lived in Phoenix, Arizona, and had four children: William Dale "Bud" and Julia Grace, Kathleen and Betty Jo. Roy died in 1955. Beck continues to live in Phoenix, as do Bud, Kathleen and Betty Jo. Grace was married to Loy Lewis of Hindsville until his death. She is now married to Tommy Logue, and they live in Springdale.

Clyde Walker Benson was born December 25, 1901. He married Eleanor Schultz of Salina, Kansas, November 24, 1937. Clyde operated the Arkansas Forestry Commission's fire tower located on the Benson farm until his retirement. Eleanor continued to operate the tower until it was decommissioned. Clyde and Eleanor had three children: Richard Clyde, Rose Ellen and Timothy Marshall. Clyde died July 23, 1986, and is buried in the Goshen Cemetery. Eleanor continues to live on a portion of the Benson family farm.

Jessie Hazel was born April 26, 1904. Jessie married Randall Harbison in 1937. They lived both in Fayetteville, Arkansas, and Los Angeles, California, where Jessie was a stenographer and court reporter. Jessie died October 16, 1955, and is buried in the Goshen Cemetery.

Lennie Velma Benson "Lynn" was born October 9, 1906. She married Charles Thomas Dyer "Buster" of Wyman, November 24, 1954. Lynn and Buster lived in Fullerton, California before returning to live on the Benson family farm. Buster died December 22, 1966, and is buried in the Goshen Cemetery. Lynn continues to reside in the same house built by her father, William Hamilton Benson, before the turn of the century.

William Bryan Benson "Bill" was born April 3, 1910. Bill was inducted into the Army in 1942 and participated in the Normandy Invasion and the Battle of the Bulge in Europe prior to his discharge in 1945. Bill married Dorothy Mae Totty of Spiro, Oklahoma, on October 27, 1945. They had three children: Julia Ann, Bobby Joe and Betty Jean. Bill and Dorothy lived in Spiro, Oklahoma; Lead Hill, Arkansas; and Cape Fair, Missouri where they operated several restaurants prior to retiring to a portion of the Benson farm in 1973. Bill died January 18, 1975, and is buried in the Goshen Cemetery. Dorothy had remarried to Warren Cate of Mayfield, where they now live.

Julia Ann, born September 25, 1947, in Fayetteville, is married to William Gustafson of White Pine, Michigan. They have two children, Stacey and Wayne.

Joe and Betty were twins born September 27, 1949. Betty is married to Billy Thompson of Mount Vernon, Illinois. The Thompsons now live on Beaver Lake near Sonora, Arkansas.

Joe served in the United States Air Force as a helicopter pilot for four years after graduation from college. He graduated from the University of Arkansas School of Law in 1980 and married Amelia Skinner that same year. Amelia, born July 24, 1951, in Prescott, Arkansas, is the daughter of Billy and Ollie Fay Skinner of the Morgan community of North Little Rock. Joe and Amelia live in Fayetteville where Joe practices law.

The youngest child of William Hamilton Benson and Julia Ellazene (Kelly) Benson was Woodrow Wilson Benson "Wood", born September 22, 1912. Wood married Hazel Keeney October 29, 1941. Wood served in the Pacific Theatre during World War II. Following the war, Wood and Hazel made their home in Fullerton, California. They had one son, James Michael. Wood died July 31, 1970, and is buried in the Goshen Cemetery. Hazel and James continue to live in Fullerton, California.

Part of the Benson farm, settle originally by Dr. Kelly in 1878, is still owned by children and grandchildren of William and Julia Benson. The farmhouse in which they raised their nine children still stands and can be seen in the background of the family portrait taken around 1914. This history prepared totally from work and research of Ruth Parker, whose efforts made this contribution possible.

Albert Travis Bentley

My father was Albert Travis Bentley, born the third day of August, 1875, in Montgomery County, Missouri. His parents were Robert Willis and Frances Buckner (Purvis) Bentley.

Sometime in the 1880s, his family moved to Louisiana, Missouri, where he went to work at an early age for Stark Brothers Nursery and Orchard Company.

In 1900 he moved to Farmington, Washington County, Arkansas, to become foreman of a newly established branch plant of Stark Brothers. Four years later, he became the manager, a position he held until his retirement in 1946.

My father was married three times. He married my mother, Josephine Williamson, daughter of Marion Michael and Rebecca Frances (Arnold) Williamson in 1904. A son, Edgar (named for one of the Stark Brothers), was born in 1907. He died in infancy. Richard Charles was born in 1912, and 18 months later William Arnold was born.

Josephine died in 1922. Three or four years later, Albert married Eva (Barron) Neal, widow from Prairie Grove. She had a son who was with the Marine Corps and a daughter, Reba Dale, who came with her mother and attended Farmington High School.

Albert Travis Bentley.

Eva and my father were divorced after about a year of marriage. About 1929, he married Winnie Elizabeth (Vandergriff) Pettigrew, widow of James Pettigrew. Winnie had two small children, Paul Ales and Mary Frances.

Albert was a member of the Farmington School Board for several years. At one time he was a candidate for a position on the County School Board. At that time, the consolidation of small rural schools into a central school was a hotly debated issue. My father was pro-consolidation and lost the election. He also served as the Democratic Central Committeeman for the Farmington precinct.

In time, the Bentley children and step-children married and left Farmington. Richard's wife was Dolly Sitton. William (Billy) was twice married; first to Melba Lou Sykes of Rogers, and secondly to Paula Morris of Goshen and Fayetteville. Reba Dale married Lloyd McConnell. Paul's wife was a Georgia girl and Mary Frances married Frank O'Donnell who was from Pennsylvania.

My mother, Josephine, was a very sociable and outgoing person, active in church, Red Cross, and other activities. Her obituary made mention of her bringing roses from the Bentley rose garden when she visited friends.

My father was always called "Al". Even his personal and business mail was addressed to Al Bentley. He was a kind and generous man, and an able manager of his employees. At times during work peaks, there would be as many as 200 men of varying backgrounds and temperaments under his supervision. He knew when to discipline and when to "look the other way".

The Bentley residence had a large room (wide and long) and my father was often prevailed upon to have dances, which he enjoyed as much as anyone else. People from Prairie Grove, Fayetteville, and Farmington would attend. Shades were up and windows open and there were always on-lookers watching the dancing.

Music was furnished by a pedal pump player piano which played rolls of music (fox trots, waltzes, two-steps, etc.). As someone had to pump the pedals and change rolls, "yours truly" was the one usually "volunteered".

Often, live bands would come out from Fayetteville. A popular one was a band composed of black musicians.

My father died in 1949 in Fayetteville. Winnie lived for many years afterward, active with sewing, housekeeping and visiting relatives in California.

The Bentley children and step-children had varying careers. I was a surveyor and highway engineer. Billy was employed by aircraft firms (Consolidated, Hughes and others). Paul was in the Army Air Corps. Mary Frances was a bank employee. Frank, her husband, was an employee of Arkansas Western Gas Company. Reba Dale worked for Campbell Bell in Fayetteville. Lloyd her husband, held several county positions, both elective and appointive.

Stark Brothers Nursery has been long gone from Farmington. Two of the old land marks persisted until a few years ago, the big old nursery shed by the railroad tracks and the large old red barn (in Farmington) with the black bear trademark of Stark Brothers, "Stark Trees Bear Fruit".

Judge Joseph D. Bevers

From the day he was mustered out of the Union Army until he died over fifty years later, Joseph D. Bevers always had a life-sized portrait of Ulysses S. Grant hanging at the head of his bed. Joe had been a teenager in Morgan County, Illinois, when he had taken the place of a man who was drafted and did not want to serve.

Joseph D. Bevers Family. Back row - Amy, Albert, Cora, Ada. Front row - Judge Bevers, Pauline and Ada Ann.

A month later, in his first battle, the Battle of Franklin, Tennessee, he was wounded when a mini-ball lodged in his leg. The ball could not be removed, and eventually he became unable to walk without the aid of crutches.

He was born in 1845 in Illinois, the oldest son of George and Elizabeth Halliway Bevers. The other children were Elizabeth, James, George, Benjamin, Louisa, Robert, and Charles. The father, George, and his two brothers, William and Benjamin, had been born in England.

After his discharge from the Army, Joe came to Hindsville in Madison County, Arkansas, where he taught school and married Ada Ann Isabelle Vaughan. Before he and Ada Ann retired and moved to Springdale in 1900, he had been postmaster at Hindsville and was Madison County, County Judge for many years.

They had five children: Amy (Mrs. Joe Sutherland), Cora

Ada Bevers Slaughter

(Mrs. Henry Sutherland), Albert Washington who married Lisle Glass, Ada Estelle (Mrs. Lona Slaughter), and Jo Pauline who married Charles Kincade, and then John Paschal.

His wife, Ada Ann Vaughan, was the daughter of George Washington and Elizabeth Vaughan. Both Ada Ann's father, George, and grandfather, Samuel Vaughan, had been County Judges in Madison County.

Samuel had come to Washington County prior to 1830, with his parents, William and Fereby Benton Vaughan (Cherokee Indians) and had been one of the men who surveyed and laid out the town of Fayetteville.

Joe and Ada Ann are buried in Bluff Cemetery, Springdale. Still living in northwest Arkansas are a granddaughter, Frances Slaughter Smith, and a great granddaughter, Ada Lee Smith Shook.

Benjamin R. Bingham

Benjamin R. Bingham was born in Culpepper County, Virginia in 1797. In 1817, he married Nancy Prophet born in Wilkes County, North Carolina, in 1798. The 19-year-old Nancy married the 20-year-old Benjamin in Wilkes County, North Carolina. They reared nine children in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. (Jack) White

In 1850, Benjamin and Nancy immigrated to Washington County, Arkansas, (Elm Springs area) from Rhea County, Tennessee.

The Civil War dealt cruelly with this family.

William Dow Bingham died in the Mississippi Campaign, near Corinth, after fighting the Pea Ridge Battle. He died in May, 1862, just twenty-six days before the birth of his daughter, Lottie.

Thomas A. Bingham died in Green County, Missouri in May 1863. His wife died six days before at the same place. Presumably, this was a double murder. Thomas and his wife are buried in Johns Chapel Cemetery, with grave markers.

Nancy Jane Bingham died in childbirth near Elm Springs, Washington County, Arkansas.

Benjamin Bingham's oldest daughter, Carolina, married Calvin Sherrel Dudley in Rhea County, Tennessee, in 1841. They migrated to Fannin County, Texas and lived there during the Civil War.

Then, as a final chapter, Benjamin R. Bingham died at Elm Springs in 1866 at 69 years of age. Nancy, his wife, died in 1874. They are buried in the Elm Springs Cemetery.

Another daughter of Benjamin and Nancy Jane is believed to have married an Ingram at Elm Springs around 1855 and died in childbirth when daughter Tempe was born in 1863. The husband died in 1870, burial place unknown. Tempe was their fourth daughter, they had no sons.

Tempe was buried in Stuckey Cemetery near Johnson, Washington County, Arkansas.

One of the four daughters was adopted and the other three were raised by neighbors. The adopted daughter was lost to her sisters forever. Tempe is the only one of these children known by the present generation. She lived in the Oak Grove and Stoney Point districts and was married twice.

Tempe's first husband was Tom Woods. They reared four daughters and two sons; Maud Blackwell, Esther Lockhart, Ruth Waldrip, Pearl Martin, Arthur and Riley Woods.

Tempe's second husband was Joseph White. They reared four daughters and one son: Lucy Brown, Roxie White, Margaret West, Irene West, and Elbert White.

Elbert lived on the farm with his family between Elm Springs and Stoney Point. At the age of 9, Elbert was nicknamed "Jack" by a kindly neighbor, Uncle Bob Farish. Elbert liked the name Jack better, so he used the name from then on.

At the age of 22, Jack was married by Rev. Shep Luper to Viola Francis Brezendine, who had moved to Springdale, Arkansas in 1920 from Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Jack went to work for Washington County as a heavy equipment operator, during Judge I. R. Rothrock's term in office. He worked at this through several judges' terms, retiring during Judge Bruce Crider's term of office at the age of 67.

After retiring, he enjoyed fishing and the care of his property which had a yard of beautiful flowers. After a lengthy illness, Jack died at the age of 86 in his home, February 14, 1987.

Married Sarah Bouton Bishop.

Joseph Bishop, born January 1, 1763 at Salem Township, New York, died 1845 at Mulberry Gap, Tennessee. Married (3) Lucy Weaver Bishop. He enlisted in the Revolutionary War on January 30, 1777 at the age of 14 and served until March, 1780.

William Bishop, born February 15, 1801 in Claiborne County, Tennessee died December 17, 1851 at Springfield, Illinois. Married Nancy W. Clark Bishop. His son: Joseph Jackson Bishop, born July 10, 1827 in Lee County, Virginia, died June 15, 1896 in Washington County, Arkansas. Married (1) Polly Ann Hopkins Bishop (2) Matilda Bishop. He moved to Appanoose County, Iowa by 1850 with his first wife and their two oldest children. In 1866, they moved on to Washington County, Arkansas. His son: Thomas Jefferson Bishop, born July 29, 1862 in Appanoose County, Iowa, died September 6, 1940 at Grand Junction, Colorado. Married Mamie Catherine Comfort Bishop. His daughter: Celia May Bishop, born May 5, 1902 in Garfield County, Colorado. Married Zerrell Byron Scott.

At the start of this story, it was mentioned that Joseph Jackson Bishop had a brother named William Washington Bishop. His Lineage will be traced on down to Vincil C. Bishop. William Washington Bishop, born March 12, 1831 in Lee County, Virginia, died May 24, 1895 in Appanoose County, Iowa. Married Martha Elizabeth Clancy Bishop. He left Lee County, Virginia for Appanoose County, Iowa with his parents in 1851. His son: William Kenneth Bishop born March 4, 1874 in Appanoose County, Iowa, died April 25, 1946 at Brookings, South Dakota. Married Lena Baertsch Bishop. His son: Vincil C. Bishop, born April 6, 1915 at Leola, South Dakota, married Ethel Sohm Bishop.

Joseph Jackson Bishop

My grandfather; Joseph Jackson Bishop 1827-1896 married Polly Ann Hopkins in Lee County, Virginia about the mid 1840s. They appear on the 1850 Appanoose County, Iowa Census with their two oldest children Archibald Taylor and William Butler. They lived near Centerville, Iowa until 1866. During that time four more children were born. Ursula 1852, Nathan 1855, Celia 1857 and my father Thomas Jefferson Bishop 1863.

About 1866, they moved to Washington County, Arkansas with all of their children except the oldest; Archibald Taylor. Another child was born in Arkansas, Rhoda Ann 1867. Polly died in the late 1860s. Joseph Jackson Bishop then married Matilda? 1842-1880 and had three more children by her. Hugh born 1870 and Kitty and Lucy born later in the 1870s.

William Butler married Minnie and moved to Little River, Kansas. Ursula married Alex Frasier and moved to Pampa, Texas. Nathan married Nancy and in 1912-15 were living in Grove, Oklahoma. Celia married Daniel Boone Smith and stayed in Washington County until 1912 when they moved to Southwest

Joseph Jackson Bishop Born 1826, Lee County, Virginia Died 1896 Washington County, Arkansas.

City, Missouri. Their children were Lewis Hayden who was a cashier in the Elkins Bank, Hoyt, Daisy, May, Verg, Grover and Calla. Thomas Jefferson; my father; Rhoda Ann Married Ed Wilder and moved to Colorado. Hugh married Nancy Smith, a sister of Daniel Boone Smith. They lived in Arkansas for many years before moving to California. They are buried in Rose Hill Memorial Park at Whittier, California. Their children were Clyde, Joseph, Clifford Ray, Calloway Lawton, Robert Nolan, Lillian, Emmett, Walter and Hazel. Kitty married Charles Mahan. In 1912 they were living in Wapato, Washington, but later moved to Sulphur Springs, Arkansas. Lucy married a Towler and in 1940 were living in Tyler, Texas. My father; Thomas Jefferson Bishop 1863-1940 born near Centerville, Iowa lived in Washington County from 1866 to 1887 when he went to Little River, Kansas to work in the wheat harvest with his brother William Butler. He then went to Cripple Creek, Colorado and then on to DeBeque, Colorado in the spring of 1888, which he always called God's Country. He died there 6 September, 1940.

On 6 June 1898 at Glenwood Springs, Colorado he married Mary Catherine Comfort. She was born 4 July 1876 at West Chester, Pennsylvania the daughter of Patrick and Annie Norton Comfort. They had five children all born in Garfield County, Colorado. Rhoda Ann 1899-1944 married Walter Crittenden 1918. William Thomas 1900-1981 unmarried. Celia May (Me) 5 April 1902 married Zerrell Byron Scott 1 June 1921. Rachel Mary 1904-1986 married Lawrence William Reed 1927. Edna Florence 1906 married William Lee Snider 1927.

My mother; Mary (Mamie) Catherine Comfort Bishop died 11 October 1907 when I was five. My father tried to keep the family together but in 1910 he had to put us in an orphan's home in Denver, established for half orphan children. After two years there, I went to live with my Aunt Celia Bishop Smith in Southwest City, Missouri for three years. After that my father took me back to Colorado to live with him.

Zerrell Byron Scott and I were married 1 June 1921 in Glenwood Springs, Colorado. Our children: Hayden Arthur 25 March 1922, died 22 September 1986 married Daphne Alvaretta Haughtelin 22 September 1945. Edith Norma 26 October 1923 married Donald Dean Aper 21 November 1945. Howard Earl 17 April 1925 married Ruth Elizabeth Cannon 16 June 1946.

Eloise Veramay 14 December 1931. Adopted. Unmarried. Died 19 February 1972. Lydia Catherine 30 May 1933 married Juan K. Casunduan 28 November 1962.

Zerrell Byron Scott was born 3 September 1899 at Roan Creek, Colorado son of Andrew Jackson and Lydia Coombs Van Cleave Scott. Zerrell passed away 9 April 1987 at Loveland, Colorado. I have twelve grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

We think that Joseph Jackson and Polly Bishop lived on the middle fork of the White River, near White House Cemetery and may be buried there. This would be about eight miles south of Elkins. His son Hugh also probably lived in that area and may have taken over his father's home place when he died.

Robert Blackburn

The Robert Hamilton Blackburn family came to Washington County from Gibson County, Tennessee, in March, 1869. The family at that time consisted of "Ham", his wife Margaret and three children—Bill, Kate and Mary —and they had Tom after they settled near Viney Grove. (For each surviving child one was lost; three had died before leaving Tennessee and another after coming to Arkansas). Their home was a four-room log house. A quilt made by Margaret, brought from Tennessee believed to be a part of her trousseau, is now on display in the Prairie Grove Battlefield Museum complex.

The Blackburn house near Viney Grove, recently rebuilt after a 1916 fire. Pictured on the porch: William H. "Bill", T. E. "Tom" and Mabel W. Blackburn.

After Ham's death, the homeplace was shared by his second wife (nee Polly Taylor, known to her step-children as "Aunt Pop"), his son Bill, his son Tom, Tom's wife Mabel (daughter of Capt. George H. Willis, CSA) and Tom and Mabel's eventual children. Around 1905 Bill built a two-story clapboard house nearby (see photo). This house burned in 1916 and another was built on the same foundation. It still stands but is derelict.

The Blackburn's main source of income was first a peach orchard and later, apple orchards.

Other Viney Grove families of the day were Beatys, Buchanans, Carnahans, Cavins, Crawfords, Gillises, Pyeattes, Shaffers, Wests, Woodruffs and Zellners.

It is clear that a top priority of the Ham Blackburn family was education. Both of Mary Blackburn Tilley's children, Floyd and Irene, were graduates of the University of Arkansas. Mary ran a boarding house near the campus during the years when they were there. They had gone to Cane Hill College to prepare. Floyd became an electrical engineer and was employed by General Motors in Cincinnati, Ohio, all of his working life.

The oldest of Tom Blackburn's brood, Robert, had his education cut short by World War I service but all four daughters were college educated. In those days both the Viney Grove and the Prairie Grove schools went only to the 10th grade. The older girls went on to Cottey College at Nevada, Missouri, to finish high school and junior college. Lillian then went to Washington University School of Nursing, St. Louis, Missouri; Kathrine to the University of Arkansas and Oklahoma A&M College (now OSU); Mildred to the University of Arkansas and Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois. Irene finished high school and went to Northwestern from a home made with Robert in Chicago until her untimely death at 26.

Robert had become a construction boilermaker and served in this profession over 40 years in Illinois. The Tom Blackburns moved to Lodi, California in 1920 with the only child left at home, William. He joined the Navy at 17 where he remained for 30 years.

When Katherine was just 18 months old she went to live with her Aunt Kate and Uncle Jim Tilley who reared her as their own thereafter. Jim died when she was about nine. "Miss Kate" and "Katie" moved in to Prairie Grove. While in college, there was an apple crop failure one year so Kathrine taught school in Kansas for a year before resuming her schooling.

And when it was time for Mildred to go on to school, Mabel helped out by adding a flock of turkeys to her many responsibilities as the woman of the house.

The vital statistics on the Blackburns: Robert Hamilton Blackburn, born December 1, 1827, Washington County, Indiana; died August 3, 1903, Viney Grove, Arkansas; married Margaret Gibson, born March 6, 1851, Monroe County, Tennessee; died April 28, 1886, Viney Grove. Children who survived to adulthood: William Harvey ("Bill") Blackburn, born October 30, 1855; died April 18, 1927, Prairie Grove; married Della Matthews late in life. No issue. Margaret Catherine ("Kate") Blackburn, born February 17, 1858; died April 18, 1937, Prairie Grove; married James C. Tilley May 12, 1887. No issue. Mary Shannon Blackburn, born March 24, 1867; died June 10, 1947, Fayetteville; married Whitefield Crawford ("Fee") Tilley, January 28, 1886. Two children survived to adulthood: Robert Floyd Tilley, born February 17, 1888, Rhea; died February 21, 1973, Tampa, Florida; married Charlotte Weatherwax in 1917. Their children: Mary Frances Tilley Echo, now of Pocatello, Idaho; Martha Tilley Long, now of Tampa, Florida; and R. F. "Bob" Tilley, Jr. of Detroit, Michigan. Annie Irene Tilley, born March 12, 1890; died March 28, 1971, Springfield, Missouri; married Russell Leonard in 1914. Three children: Robert Tilley Leonard, born September 3, 1915, now living in Springfield, Missouri; James Whitefield "Sam" Leonard, born December 24, 1916, now of Champaign, Illinois; and Mary Leonard Powell, born October 4, 1919, died October 12, 1964, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Thomas Eugene ("Tom") Blackburn, born July 20, 1874; died October 26, 1926 (in a car accident, Bakersfield, California); married Mabel Alice Willis, born March 20, 1876, Marrs Hill; died July 18, 1936, Chicago, Illinois. Six children, all born in Viney Grove: Robert Henry Blackburn, born January 1, 1896; died April 12, 1978, Nashville, Illinois; married Sylvia Dintelman March 21, 1935, no issue. Mary Lillian Blackburn, born August 5, 1897, now living in Lincoln. Ada Kathrine Blackburn, born December 21, 1899, now living in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, married William Soloman Hall, Jr. of Whitefield, Oklahoma, December 24, 1925. Three children: Caroline Margaret Hall (Mrs. Robert R.) Basore, born July 13, 1927, now of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; William S. Hall, III, born September 20, 1930, married Barbara Pogue, now of Tulsa, Oklahoma; and Mary Alice Hall (first marriage to J. O. Hammond, second marriage to Richard M. Young), born February 14, 1936, now of Lawton, Oklahoma.

Mildred Melinda Blackburn, born April 27, 1901; died July 4, 1972, Clarksville, Arkansas; married Ralph Woods Misenhimer in 1931. No issue.

Myrtle Irene Blackburn, born February 11, 1906; died August 26, 1932, Danville, Illinois. William Eugene Blackburn, born September 14, 1907; died July 11, 1980, Laguna Niguel, California; married Luella. One adopted son, Gordon Lee Blackburn, Southern California.

The above contributed in June 1987 by Caroline Hall Basore, a great-granddaughter of Robert Hamilton Blackburn, with the help of her mother, Kathrine Blackburn Hall, 87, her aunt, Lillian Blackburn, 89, her second cousin, Robert Leonard, 71, and longtime family friend Alec Ralston, 91.

William Tolliver Blake

The name Blake is of Anglo-Saxon origin and in early history was derived from the word "blaec," which meant "black". Through the centuries the name has had various spellings but "Blake" is the spelling most commonly used now in America and England.

When the ancestors of William Tolliver Blake arrived in America is not known. Family tradition connects his lineage with a Benjamin Blake, who with his brother, Admiral Robert Blake, emigrated from the British Isles to South Carolina about 1683. Benjamin had a son Joseph, who was purported to be the great, great, grandfather of William Tolliver (better known as Bill) Blake. Limited geneological research has not confirmed this tradition. However, beginning in 1806, when Samuel Blake was born in North Carolina, the lineage of William Blake can be described.

Little is known of Samuel Blake (The name Samuel was a common given name, contributing to difficulty in geneological research). Beginning at an early age he evidently was a roving spirit, residing in Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri before migrating to Arkansas.

It appears that Samuel was probably married twice but the name of the first wife is not known. The second (?) wife Gilla or Gilley was born in 1820 in North Carolina. Samuel had eight or more children. These were Rebecca, born in North Carolina, 1830; Mahala, 1833, in Tennessee; Sarah, Woodson, Francis and Augustus born in Kentucky and Cordelia and Gilley (Gilla) born in Newton County, Missouri. Thus Samuel lived in North Carolina to the early 1830s, was in Tennessee briefly in the 1830s before moving to Kentucky for several years, then to Newton County, Missouri around 1850 for a few years prior to migrating to Benton County, Arkansas in the mid-1850s. How long Samuel remained in Benton County or whether he died there or moved to another state is not known.

Woodson was born October 3, 1837, in Kentucky. After the family moved to Benton County, he married Julia Phillips who was born in Tennessee April 18, 1836. Following their marriage February 3, 1860, the couple established a home in Osage Township, Benton County, Arkansas. Shortly after their marriage the Civil War erupted. Woodson enlisted in the Confederate

Mary Elizabeth (Mollie) Phillips Gilliland, granddaughter of Rial Williams and mother of Mrs. William Tolliver Blake, wife of Strather Lawrence Gilliland, born March 3, 1851, died July 22, 1928, buried at Goshen Cemetery.

Army of America, October 31, 1861, at Bentonville, Arkansas. He was assigned to Company G, McRae's Battery, 11th Arkansas Volunteers and was stationed at Camp Donelson, Mississippi in February, 1863. Serving almost four years, Woodson was released from service in June, 1865. He returned to Benton County to rejoin his family and to struggle through the economic disruption following the Civil War years.

Woodson and Julia had five children, four daughters and one son. Sopha, the first, was born March 18, 1861. An invalid, she lived with her parents until her death, February 18, 1905. Shortly after returning to Benton County from the Civil War, Woodson and his family moved to "Mudtown", near the present location of Lowell. Here, William Tolliver was born March 30, 1866. Soon after his birth the family moved to Texas and lived briefly in Hopkins County where Jantha ("Annie") was born January 5, 1869. Helen, born December 15, 1872, lived less than two years and died January 10, 1874. Mary Belle, the youngest child, born April 1, 1876, in Madison County, Arkansas, married and moved to Oklahoma Territory where all contact with her was lost. Jantha married Polk Langley, a Methodist minister. She had three daughters, Hester, Naomi, and Josephine. Jantha and her family established their family home in Foard County, Texas, near the communities of Crowell and Thalia. Jantha could recall the trip back to Arkansas by ox wagon and how her father Woodson was a crack marksman while hunting game for food.

Woodson and family returned to Arkansas in the early 1870s, and settled near Brush Creek, in Prairie Township, Madison County. He was active in the Brush Creek Baptist Church and served as a delegate numerous times to the Fayetteville Baptist Association in the late 1870s and the early 1880s. Woodson lived in this community until poor health afflicted him. He spent his final years in the home of William at Goshen. Julia Ann died December 1, 1903, Woodson June 28, 1917. Helen, Sopha, Woodson and Julia were buried in the Martin Johnson Cemetery located about midway between Hindsville and Wesley on a ridge above the community of Buckeye.

Of the adolescent years of William, we know but little. He assisted his parents on the farm where they produced most of their basic foodstuffs. He developed a strong interest in the outdoor life and was an accomplished hunter and fisherman. He obtained an elemental education and was an avid reader for all of his life. William also developed skills as a carpenter and blacksmith which enabled him to enhance the income from his farming activities.

According to family tradition, William first met Louisa Ellender (Lula) Gilliland, a descendant of Rial Williams and John Bessy Phillips, pioneer settlers in this area, at a singing convention held at the Langles schoolhouse in western Madison County. Lula was born November 15, 1871, at Goshen William had served as an apprentice in smithy work at Whitener and had purchased tools and was ready to establish his own blacksmith shop. Searching for a location to set up shop he journeyed to Goshen where Lula lived with her parents. Coincidentally her mother, "Mollie" Gilliland, kept roomers to supplement family income. Thus William lodged at the Gilliland home. A romance developed resulting in the marriage of William Blake and Lula Gilliland, November 1, 1891, at Goshen. The officiating minister was Reverend Madison Slaughter, a Baptist minister and brother-in-law of Lula. Life was never easy for the Blake family and they moved about in the general area, farming and blacksmithing to provide for the basic needs of the family. During the first years of their married life, William and Lula lived at Goshen where their first child, Pearl was born August 15, 1892. She was followed by twin daughters, Mary Bessie and Julia Dessie, June 3, 1894. Moving to Hale Mountain near Goshen, the family increased through the addition of a son Lawrence, born November 12, 1896. Later a move was made to a farm near Spring Valley but after a season William moved the family to Draketown on Richland Creek. Here Nona Eva was born December 9, 1898. Evidently, the volume of work for a blacksmith was inadequate at Draketown for in 1902 William went to Thompson, a community on the East Fork of the White River above Elkins for employment. He apparently worked for Pool and Thompson, Dealers in General Merchandise, including Railroad Ties, Oak and Locust Posts. Writing on letterhead stationery William wrote that he was satisfied with working conditions and that he was well-fed. He gave some indication that he was considering moving his family to Thompson. He found the Baptist faith to be a strong element in the community which he felt was an attribute to the religious focus of the local citizens.

William did not remain long at Thompson before going back to Draketown. The family decided to return to Goshen, eventually settling at the foot of a hill on property abutting an 80 acre tract homesteaded in 1884 by Lula's grandmother, Sarah Gilliland. Lula's father and mother, Strather and Mollie Gilliland, had assumed control of the property after Sarah returned to Texas. A portion of the farm was dedicated to apple production. An apple dryer was constructed in which sulphur was burned to bleach and cure the drying apple sections. The packaged apples, both dried and fresh, were shipped to markets in the Northwest Arkansas area and Eastern Oklahoma, then the Indian Territory.

At Goshen, Lena Ada was born January 18, 1907, and Orion Eugene, December 24, 1908. William engaged in farming and smithy work. Still, the family needed additional income so in the early 1900s he traveled to western Kansas where he found employment working in railroad construction and maintenance in the Scott City-Ness City area. William, a robust person, occasionally related stories about his experience in Kansas, particularly when the work crew members engaged in contests requiring a display of strength. During his absence, Woodson, now widowed, frail and feeble, moved into the home of William. He drew a small stipend as a Confederate veteran which helped to sustain the family. Although he was difficult to please and to care for he lived with the family until his death in 1917.

William and Lula's children were reaching maturity thus one by one the siblings began to marry and establish homes of their own. Pearl married? Davis and moved to Redland, Oklahoma. This marriage did not last long as Mr. Davis deserted his home and disappeared. In the 1920s Pearl experienced another short and unhappy union with Robert McLeod. Again she was abandoned and left alone. On June 30, 1929, she married William Fifer of Huntsville. To them was born a son Billie, now retired from the U. S. Marine Corps. During the World War I period, Pearl attended the Nursing School, Fayetteville City Hospital and graduated as a Registered Nurse. She served as a nurse in the U. S. Army, World War I; as Washington County Health Nurse in 1928 and 1929 and as a nurse in Carroll and Madison counties and served as superintendent of the Huntsville hospital. She died in December, 1956, and is buried at Huntsville.

On July 12, 1914, Julia Dessie married James Hezzie Warren of near Fayetteville. To them were born six children, Marylou, Harold, Blake, Linda, Joe and Billie. Due to the economic situation, James and family moved to California in 1929, where he worked until retirement for the Goodrich Tire and Rubber Company. All of their children established homes in California. James and Dessie were killed in November, 1962 near Santa Rosa, New Mexico, while returning home from a visit to Arkansas.

Nona Eva, on December 22, 1914, married Elliott Loyd Warren, a brother of James. To this couple were born five children, Lloyd, Helen, Charles and Velma. One son, Chester, died in infancy. Nona and Elliott spent their entire lives as farmers and residents of the Fayetteville area. Nona died October 6, 1979.

Lawrence, on December 6, 1917, married Muriel Culwell of Goshen. To them was born a daughter, Phyllis. Lawrence and Muriel lived in the Goshen area until the mid 1920s, when they moved to California settling eventually in the Santa Barbara area. Lawrence worked in the oil fields and other heavy industry throughout his life. While working for oil companies he spent some time in Columbia, South America, helping to develop the oil fields in that country. Lawrence died in the 1970s at Santa Barbara.

Lena Ada married Waymon Sparks, May 29, 1925. Two sons were born to this union, Don Richard and David Eugene Sparks. The marriage did not last and in the mid-1930s Lena and Waymon were divorced. In 1939, Lena married Harold Carroll but again, the union did not last. Lena and sons migrated to the Los Angeles area where Lena still resides. Don and David have had very successful careers in the business world and have established roots in Los Angeles.

Orion Eugene married Lilliam Armstrong May 14, 1930, at Fayetteville. Seeking better employment, Orion moved to California, settling in Ventura. He was divorced from Lillian in 1945. In November, 1946, he married Oleta?. Orion served in the U. S. Army during World War II. After discharge from the Army he worked 23 years for the MAACC Corporation of Ventura, then in 1958 began employment in the Ventura County Public Works Department and worked until his death on September 30, 1965.

Bessie did not marry and spent her active life as a registered nurse. She graduated from the Nursing School, Fayetteville City Hospital about 1919. During her career she worked at various hospitals in northwest Arkansas, Oklahoma, California and Washington. In the 1930s she was superintendent of the hospital at Hominy, Oklahoma. Soon after World War II, due to the health of William and Lula, she returned to Fayetteville to care for them. Following their death in 1947, she resumed nursing, both as a special and regular nurse, until retirement. She died at the age of 80, July 2, 1974. She truly exemplified the ideals of the nursing profession.

William and Lula not only cared for his father Woodson during his declining years but also cared for Lula's parents, Strather and Mollie Gilliland, during their aged years. About 1922, William moved his family to Goshen. With Orion's help, he rebuilt the Goshen school house which is used now as a Grange Building. He had a blacksmith shop near the Methodist Church. One could hear his pounding away at the anvil from the home. In slack periods, he would play horseshoes or checkers with other men who had time for leisure. He loved competition and his laughter could be heard a good distance across the fields.

In 1927, with his children in homes of their own save for Orion, William and Lula moved to 205 West South Street in Fayetteville. William opened a blacksmith shop west of the square. After a few years, he moved his equipment to a back lot building at his home and would work on request for clients who needed his services. Finally, due to his age and lack of demand, he sold much of his equipment, finishing a lifetime of service to the public. During much of the time he and Lula lived at 205 West South, they kept a milk cow. The animal would be led to a pasture near the present Walker's Park for daytime feeding. William found it convenient to return by an open lot at the intersection of 6th and South School Street where older men in the neighborhood would gather on mild days to pitch horseshoes or just gossip. James Putnam, founder of the VFW and a nearby neighbor, was a good friend and they often compared notes on the events of the day. William was a rabid Democrat and enjoyed reading party material. He had been, at one time, a member of the Klu Klux Klan. In his later years on warm days he frequently sat on his front porch, talking with passerbys. Among those that regularly passed by was a James Hoover, a black, who worked for years at the City Hospital and for whom one of the new hospital wings has been named. There was deep mutual respect between the two men and they developed a strong friendship over the years. William was prone to be a dreamer and stories of buried treasure fascinated him. He sometimes felt he had a "hot tip" and would strive to substantiate a story of buried money or gold. On one occasion, he persuaded two of his grandsons who were living with him to a site near the former location of Weirs' Canning factory northwest of Fayetteville. William located a certain tree, made some directional measurements, then instructed the grandsons to dig at a certain point. This was done about dusk to avoid detection. After excavating a sizeable hole and moving hundreds of pounds of soil, William agreed that no treasure was apt to be found at that location. On another occasion, William was taken for an afternoon ride toward Lincoln. The driver noticed he was watching the edge of the horizon very intently. On inquiry, William remarked that unfound treasure was buried on one of the mountain ridges.

Along with fishing and games, William loved to sing. He had some appreciation for the rudiments of reading music and he had a great bass voice. As a member of the Goshen Baptist Church, he sometimes would be called upon to lead congregational songs. A few years after moving to Fayetteville an aged friend and bachelor Baptist minister, Elder J. A. Stone, boarded with William and Lula until his death about 1940. It was not unusual during the long winter evening hours for William and Elder Stone together to sing old familiar tunes. Sometimes grandsons, two of whom lived part-time with William and Lula during this time would be requested to sing with them (what pathos these memories bring!).

On November 1, 1941, William and Lula celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. This was a memorable event, for all the family members were present along with a number of grandchildren. In a few weeks, World War II broke out and soon eligible grandsons were entering various branches of the Armed Services. As time progressed, poor health afflicted Lula and on July 31, 1947, she passed away. In discussing Lula's death with two of the grandsons, William remarked that "Lula is gone and I'm going too and soon." Being chided for his remark, for he still was robust and seemingly healthy for his age, he said, "yes, but I will be going". It was almost as if he willed it so for on October 25, 1947, William did join Lula in death. Thus came to an end a long and colorful life. A life of service, of compassion, of honesty and integrity that continues to inspire his descendants. I am grateful for the inheritance of idealism, of humor, of the work ethic and of compassion that he bestowed on we, the continuation of the Blake Tradition.

Adeline Blakeley

Adeline was born in 1850 in Hickman County, Tennessee to John and Leanna, slaves of John P. A. Parks. They had been bought by Parks when they were just children. According to Adeline, she was "the first little Negro in the Parks kitchen. From the first they made a pet out of me. I was like a little doll, and they treated me like a plaything — spoiled me — rotten".

In 1852, the Parks family came to Washington County and in 1855, Adeline came to Fayetteville to live with Elizabeth Jane Parks and her husband, John L. Blakeley. When the first Blakeley child was born, it was decided that Adeline was too young to be of much help. She was assigned to look after a 4-year-old Fannie Parks. Thus began Adeline's caring for four generations of family children. When the second Blakeley child, Nora, was born, 9-year-old Adeline returned to care for her.

Once during the war, the family and their visitors took refuge in the cellar while the fighting was raging closeby. Rain and melting snow had seeped into the middle of the cellar so they put Nora, a visiting child, and Adeline in a washtub to float, while the adults clung to the wall. A rather portly northern woman took refuge with them, and in trying to climb up the slick wall she slid down, and almost into the tub. Adeline giggled, and Elizabeth Jane slapped her. According to Adeline, "It was one of the few times she struck me. I was glad she did, for I would have laughed out, and it didn't do to laugh at northerners."

After the war, the Yankee soldiers accused the Blakeleys of keeping Adeline against her will, but she told them the Blakeley's were her people. The Negroes resented her and tried to fight her and called her names. She related this incident, "There was a well near the square from which everybody got water. Between it and our house was a Negro cabin. The little Negroes would rock me. I stood it as long as I could. Then I told Mrs. Blakeley. She said to get some rocks in my bucket and if they rocked me heave back. I was a good shot and they ran. Their mother came to Mrs. Blakely to complain, but she told her that I had stood all I could and the only reason I hadn't been seriously hurt was because her children weren't good shots. They never bothered me again."

Adeline later lived with Nora Blakeley Hudgins and her family in Hot Springs and Fayetteville. When fire destroyed their Hot Springs home Adeline and 7-year-old Dean saved the child's Christmas porcelain doll, as the family fled in their nightclothes. The doll is still a treasured family possession. After the fire, the family moved to Fayetteville into the Blakeley home place just off the square.

Adeline was there for the births of all seven Hudgins children. In 1900 when she carried two babies out of the birthing room, older sister, 16-year-old Bess fainted, as was appropriate for genteel young ladies of the day.

She was at the death bedside of John and Elizabeth Jane Blakeley and their two children, Albert and May, of two Hudgins children. Dean and Jack, Nora Blakeley Hudgins in 1917, Harvey Hudgins in 1934 and Wade, one of the twins, in 1942.

When the only Hudgins grandchild, Ann was born in 1930, to Helen Hudgins and C. B. Wiggans, she became the fifth generation to know Adeline's loving care. After Harvey's death, Adeline continued to live in the Hudgins home until her death in 1945. Pallbearers were long-time family friends, Frank Lewis, Leland Bryan, Frank Suttle, Jim Vaughn, Ralph Dowell, Jack Phillips, Jim Parks and Ted Wylie. She was buried in the Blakely-Hudgins plot in Evergreen Cemetery.

Adeline's cooking skills extended from cooking rations for Yankee soldiers, which provided the Blakeley family ample food in war times, to entertaining friends and family in later years. Besides the Hudgins large family, there were usually cousins from down state living with the family while attending the University of Arkansas as well as friends spending the night. It is said that Adeline had to count the noses in the beds to know how much breakfast to prepare.

As she never learned to read or write, all recipes as well as telephone numbers had to be memorized. Before the war, it was against the law to teach a slave and afterwards, 15-year-old Adeline "tossed her head" and wouldn't let them teach her. In later years, she said "If I had a million dollars, I would give it gladly to be able to read and write letters to my friends."

John L. Blakeley

In 1852, John L. Blakeley, a 24-year-old cabinet maker, came from Tennessee to Fayetteville, where he found work in the town's one cabinetshop. In 1855, John married Elizabeth Jane Parks. As was the custom, the bride chose a slave from the family holdings. She chose 5-year-old Adeline, who remained with the family through five generations.

In 1856, Albert L. was born. In 1859, Leonora Izetta "Nora" was born in the house the Blakeleys had built at 103 West Rock Street, just a block from John's own cabinet shop on the south side of the square.

During the Civil War, just before the battle of Prairie Grove, some Yankee officers stopped and wanted the Blakeleys to cook for them. One man took little Nora on his lap, and almost cried. He said that she reminded him of his own little girl that he might never see again. He gave her a cute little ivory handled pan knife. He asked Mrs. Blakeley if he could leave his pistols with her until he came back through. She told him it was too dangerous, as she might be found with the weapons in her possession. But he argued that it was only for a few days. She hid them under a tub in the basement, and after a year, gave them to her brother when he came through. They always thought the soldier was killed at Prairie Grove.

The huge building across the street was one of the oldest buildings in Arkansas. During the war, it was used for a hospital. Albert was sick with fever in the hospital one night when both Yankees and Federals were storming about town burning strategic buildings to keep the other side from getting them. Elizabeth Jane and a friend, who was a Northerner, positioned themselves at each doorway and pled with the men as they came to burn the building. They stood vigil all night to save the building, and their homes nearby, and the life of little Albert and others in the hospital.

But tragedy came to the family when Albert died in 1864. He was buried in Parks Cemetery at Parks Place on Highway 265. In 1870, another daughter, May was born. She lived only seven years.

After the war, John continued his cabinetry work, and in 1869, advertised that he made coffins "on short notice and manufactured of good timber". In 1883 the paper announced that "Mr. J. L. Blakeley, who has been a cabinet maker in this city for the past thirty-one years, is now setting up work for the Southwest Furniture Company".

When she was 14, Nora was asked to teach at a subscription school being held in the big building across the street. After one year of teaching, she entered the University of Arkansas, but had to drop out and teach again to make money. At this point, the family decided to take in boarders so that Nora could continue her education. Among the student boarders was Jeff Davis, who was later Governor and then Senator.

Nora graduated in 1879. In 1880, the paper announced, "Miss Nora Blakeley. . .has been given a professor's chair in the A. I. U. Miss Nora. . .(is) a most estimable young lady, and in every way competent for the position".

In 1883, Nora married Harvey Mashburn Hudgins. They were married in the Baptist Church by Reverend John Mays. The invitation announced that they would be "East two months, at home, Hot Springs, cor. Washitaw and Orange Avenue, October 8, '83".

The Hudgins presented the Blakeleys with two grandchildren before John died in 1887. Elizabeth Jane, taking Adeline with her, went to live with Nora's family in Hot Springs. She died a year later. Nora brought her mother's body back on the train to bury her in Evergreen Cemetery beside her husband and her child, May.

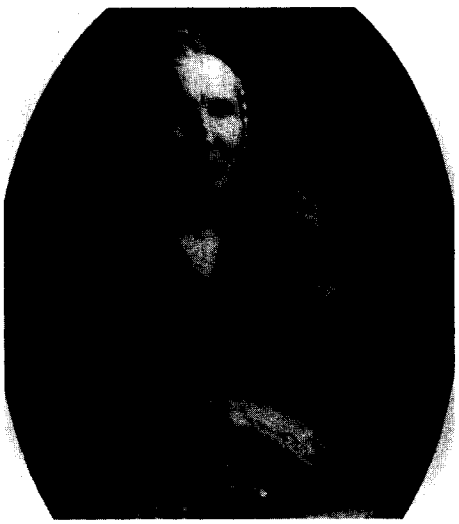
James Bledsoe

The third child of Stark and Mathenia Mullin Mhoon was Sarah Elizabeth, called "Betty". She was born in Tennessee 18 February 1835, and came to Arkansas when she was a little over a year old. She died 23 May 1911, at age 76. She was married at age 18 to James Bledsoe, who gave Tennessee as his birthplace on the census record. They were married 10 March 1853, in the presence of her father. James was born 3 March 1826, and died 22 March 1890, at age 64. Both are buried at Round Mountain Cemetery located about 8 or 9 miles east of Fayetteville, Arkansas.



Sarah Elizabeth (Betty Mhoon) Bledsoe, born February 18, 1835, died May 23, 1911.

After their marriage, this young couple moved to Illinois, riding horseback all the way. They probably went to Jefferson County the same time her parents went. Their first three children were born there. They returned to Washington County, Arkansas about 1859, and made their home at Round Mountain, on their homesteaded 120 acre farm. Their home was a log house with two large rooms. They added another room as the family increased. There couldn't have been much privacy for any of them, with 10 children and two adults in a three room house.

Their children were: I. Surfronia Rebecky b. 8 July 1854 Illinois, d. 18 November 1931 in Seattle, Washington. Married 20 August 1882 Arkansas, John William Howard, son of George Washington and Abigail Sparks Howard, b. 9 March 1853 Missouri, d. 17 August 1923. John had been married before and had three children: (1) Franklin, (2) Elizabeth, and (3) Amanda F. He and Fronie had seven children: (1) Alpha Omega b. 1883, d. 17 August 1917. Married January 1900, William Wilson. (2) James Edward b. 31 October 1885 Arkansas, d. 27 May 1958. Married 28 July 1912, Inez Karsetter. (3) Betty Abigail b. 1 November 1885 Arkansas, d. 4 June 1928. Married 15 February 1905, Samuel B. Jones. James and Betty were twins, but James was born before midnight and Betty after, thus the different birthdays. (4) Jesse Green b. 1887 Arkansas, married Florence Ross. (5) Ida Magalee b. 1889 Arkansas, d. 1981. Married Jack Harris. (6) Samuel Augustus b. 1891 Arkansas, married Olive Donahue. (7) Adalaide F. b. 1893 Arkansas, married Jerald Smith.

II. William Augustus b. 29 February 1856 Illinois, d. 28 October 1909. Never married. He was epileptic and of course there was no medication for it in those years. It eventually caused his death. He had a seizure and fell into a fire. He was so badly burned it caused his death. He is buried at Round Mountain.

III. Margaret Emiline b. 13 February 1858 Illinois, d. 15 January 1926, buried Inola, Oklahoma. Married (1) 5 November 1879 Arkansas, C. C. Williams. They had one child, George Williams. Married (2) William F. Howard b. 11 January 1856, d. 3 January 1939, buried Inola, Oklahoma. Their children were: Hugh, Claude, Sissy, Marvin, Augie, Sarah, and Wesley. William may have been a cousin to John William Howard.

IV. Thomas Hugh Lawson b. 10 March 1860 Arkansas, d. 25 June 1932, buried Hollis, Oklahoma. Married 6 January 1887 Arkansas, Millie Mae Curry b. 19 November 1870 Arkansas, d. 8 August 1951, buried Hollis, Oklahoma. She was the daughter of John James and Sarah Elizabeth Ferguson Curry. Children: (1) Hosea Montgomery b. 16 December 1888 Arkansas, d. 17 January 1919, buried Eldorado, Oklahoma. Married Annie Seal. (2) James Odis b. 15 October 1890 Arkansas, d. 9 August 1956, buried Olton, Texas. Married Molly Mae Adams. (3) Nobie Gertie b. March 1895 Texas. Married Bert Miller. (4) Avery Haree b. 9 July 1897 Texas. Married 24 December 1917 Vela Dee Nelson. (5) Burlin Arthus b. 24 April 1899 Texas, d. 22 July 1966 Wellington, Texas. Married 25 December 1922 Jessie Emma Montaque. (6) Sarah Idella b. 24 May 1901 Oklahoma. Married 16 August 1919, James Earl Melvin Miller. (7) Opha Danella b. February 1903. Married Verdie Wilson. (8) Hugh Lawson b. 20 June 1905 Texas, d. 5 July 1984 Texas. Married 11 March 1925 Arkansas, Jessie Pearl Wilson. (9) Eula Mae b. 11 August 1908 Oklahoma. Married 13 June 1931 Charles Henry Miller.

V. James Washington b. 3 March 1862 Arkansas, d. 1863. This was during the Civil War and James wouldn't join either the northern or southern army. When the family was on the way to bury the baby, some men rode up and threatened to kill James for that reason. He begged them to let him bury his baby first. When they finished with the burial, the men had all disappeared.

VI. Mary Frances b. 3 January 1864 Arkansas.

VII. Sarah Ann b. 3 June 1866, d. 15 December 1934-35 Oklahoma. Married 4 November 1883 Arkansas, William Wesley Crow, son of George W. and Nancy Ann Howard Crow, b. 30 October 1864 Kansas, d. 23 April 1946 Oklahoma. Children: (1) Hattie Mae b. and d. 29 September 1884 Arkansas. (2) Katy Emmaline b. 22 January 1886 Arkansas, d. 6 May 1910 Oklahoma. Married 30 March 1902 Oklahoma, Franklin A. Westfall. (3) Charles Francis b. 16 April 1888 Missouri, d. 10 September 1968 Oklahoma. Married 18 December 1909 Oklahoma, Laura Ethel Hildreth. (4) Nettie Evalyn b. 24 November 1890 Texas, d. December 1982. Married 22 November 1910, Frank Arnold. (5) Minnie Dula b. 23 August 1894 Texas, d. November 1958 Kansas. Married 11 February 1911, Charles C. Weast. (6) Douglas b. and d. 13 February 1897 Texas. (7) William Garfield b. 20 February 1900, buried Chouteau, Oklahoma. Married Nellie Dukes. (8) Sherman Curtis b. 12 February 1904 Texas, d. 17 November 1906 Texas from diptheria.

VIII. Arnettie Dee b. 11 December 1868. Married 28 December 1886 Arkansas, Joseph William Curry, son of John James and Sarah Elizabeth Ferguson Curry, b. 25 November 1868 Illinois. Children: (1) Rene Mae, (2) James Marvin, (3) Charles B., (4) Jewell, (5) Ernest, (6) Roy, (7) Arvella and (8) Amella.

IX. Emly Hannah b. 9 March 1871, d. 18 May 1873.

X. Mattie Roenner b. 14 January 1874 Arkansas, d. 13 December 1949, buried Round Mountain. Married 12 September 1894 Arkansas, John Washington Crow, son of George and Nancy Ann Howard Crow, b. 23 January 1873 Kansas, d. 9 November 1948, buried Round Mountain. Children (1) Cela died infancy. (2) Leauler Rebecky b. 9 July 1896 Arkansas, d. 12 May 1900, buried Round Mountain. She died from popcorn that lodged in her throat. (3) Dona Mae b. 15 May 1898. James Bledsoe and his son-in-law, Robert Ferguson were attempting to cross Richland River near Sanders Mill 22 March 1890. The river was up from rain and somehow the wagon bed floated off. Even though James was considered one of the best swimmers around, he drowned. Robert caught hold of the wagon bed and floated to shore, even though he could not swim at all. James was believed to have been badly hurt by the horses. His body was not found until the 16th day following the accident when it floated to the surface only 50 or 60 yards from where he was last seen. After that tragic accident, Robert and Molly moved in with her mother to help on the farm and help care for the younger children.

Agnes Thomas Blew

Washington Lafayette Wilson was born in Verona, Oneida County, New York on May 8, 1810. He married Catherine Drysdale in New Albany, Indiana. Miss Drysdale had been born in Calender, Scotland. Both died in Fayetteville and are buried in Fayetteville in the Wilson Plot across from the Confederate Cemetery. Washington L. Wilson was one of Fayetteville's early merchants, operating a dry goods store on what is now the north side of the square. He probably came to Fayetteville in the early 1830s. His first land purchase recorded was on June 27, 1839. Records show that he was a representative of Washington County to the General Assembly of Arkansas in 1838, served in the Mexican War, and was a charter member of the Masonic Lodge. He died in 1864; Catherine Drysdale Wilson died in 1860.

One son born to Washington and Catherine Wilson was named Drysdale. He was only 14 years old when he volunteered for service in the Confederate Army. His leg was shot off the second day that he was in the army and it was amputated by candlelight. He lived a few years and is buried in the Confederate Cemetery in Fayetteville. One daughter born to Washington and Catherine Wilson was named Harriet E. Wilson, born September 3, 1833 in New Albany, Indiana; died October 22, 1876. Harriet married John Thomas. Another daughter named Sarah married Henry Rieff, who was a colonel in the Southern army. He built and lived in a red brick house which is still standing and being used as Moore's Funeral Home.

John Thomas was born in Kentucky in 1825. His father died when he was only 3 years old. His mother moved the family to Marion County, Missouri, then later to Fayetteville, Arkansas, where she bought a farm. The house stood where the railroad depot now stands on Dickson Street. He attended college at Canehill and served in the Mexican War. March 5, 1849, John Thomas married Harriet E. Wilson. When John Thomas' older sister, Milissa Pulliam, died she was buried in the family plot on the farm. This was the beginning of Evergreen Cemetery in Fayetteville. He later sold his farm in Fayetteville and moved to the country. John Thomas worked very hard to improve his farm and gave a portion of land for a school building in 1870. He, no doubt, with the help of neighbors, built the school building which was known for years as the Thomas School House. John Thomas served on the school board for several years.

Among the children born to John Thomas and Harriet E. Wilson Thomas was Harry Taft Thomas. On August 27, 1865, Harriet E. Wilson Thomas went to the home of her sister, Sarah Wilson Rieff, wife of Col. Henry Rieff, for the birth of her son, Harry Taft Thomas. This home is on West Center Street in Fayetteville and now houses Moore's Funeral Home. This home was used as a commissary during the Civil War. Harriet E. Thomas passed away October 22, 1876. At that time, Harry, 11, had three younger siblings at home. Their father took them to the Elm Springs community to live with another family. March 7, 1877, John Thomas married a Miss Caroline Mitchell and later moved to Texas.

During his manhood, Harry T. Thomas worked on cattle drives in Texas. He later came back to Arkansas and married Margaret Anne Cassat on December 27, 1889. Their first baby died in infancy in Sherman, Texas. Their other six children were born and grew to adulthood in Washington County, north of Fayetteville. Margaret Anne Cassat Thomas died March 4, 1910 and is buried in Mt. Comfort Cemetery, as are 5 of her children and her husband. Harry Thomas died April 27, 1912. This death left the six children without parents. Minnie had married a few months after her mother's death; Johnnie and Ollie grew from teenagers to adults quickly. These older children assumed much responsibility for the younger children. Their Uncle Charlie Cassat was their guardian.

The oldest child, Minnie born September 8, 1892; died

December 17, 1962; married Sterling D. Holland of Farmington, Arkansas and moved to Sherman, Texas in a covered wagon around 1912. Later, they moved to Greeley, Colorado. Their three children were Floyd, Lewis and Ima Rae. Ima Rae died when she was about 18. Floyd died in 1984 in Cheyenne, Wyoming. He had been mayor of that city. Lewis is still living in Cheyenne.

The only son of Harry and Margaret Anne Cassat Thomas, Johnnie Nelson Thomas was born November 23, 1893; died January 31, 1980. He married Elva Hulse December 12, 1915. Their children are Lucille McDonald and Zara Lee Thomas, living in Fayetteville; Lois Satterfield, Russellville; Lillis McCurdy, Houston, Texas; and Wilson and Margaret Ann, deceased.

The second daughter of Harry Thomas was Ollie Thomas, born December 1, 1896; died June 15, 1950. She was married to Clyde Pearson. There were no children.

The next daughter was Pearl Thomas, born February 12, 1901; died November 12, 1966. She married Ely Murphy, then Emmett Blackman, then Clyde Pearson. Her children are Marian Murphy Downum of Palisades, Colorado; Betty Jo Murphy Hughey of Elm Springs; Vaudine Murphy; James Murphy of Fayetteville; and Robert Blackman. The next daughter was Velma Thomas, born March 22, 1903; died June 23, 1987. She married Garland Lierly on October 25, 1919. Their children are Carmen Lierly of Fayetteville; Vernon Lierly of Albuquerque, New Mexico; Thomas Lierly of Tulsa, Oklahoma; Maxine Osborn of Little Rock; and Bobby, deceased after serving in the Korean War.

The last child born to Harry and Margaret Anne Cassat Thomas was Agnes Thomas, born March 13, 1908; died November 16, 1985. She lost her mother at age 2 and her father at age 4. Her brother and older sisters assumed the responsibility of raising her. She began her teaching career at age 19 at the White Rock School west of Fayetteville. She taught in several of the one room schools in Washington County during the 1920s and 30s. She taught at Farmington School several years before her retirement in 1970. March 18, 1931, Agnes Thomas married Floyd Lee Blew of the White Rock community. Their children are Betty Ruth Tollett of Springdale, Maribelle Williams of Farmington and Ronnie Lee Blew, deceased at three weeks of age.

Betty Ruth Blew married Leland Tollett of Nashville, Arkansas June 2, 1961 and resides in Springdale. Their children are Terri Lynn Tollett and Gary Dwayne Tollett, both living in Springdale. Maribelle Blew married Donald Williams of Farmington, Arkansas on August 25, 1957 and resides near Farmington. Their children are Douglas Williams, Newport, Arkansas; Wade Williams, Fayetteville; Paul Williams and Dwight Williams, both of Farmington. Douglas Williams married Candace Rhea Carder of Pine Bluff, Arkansas on August 10, 1985.

The above material was gathered mostly by Agnes Thomas Blew, Marian Murphy Downun, and Harrell Mason, Jr.

Floyd Lee Blew

Floyd Lee Blew was born in the White Rock Community west of Fayetteville on January 5, 1907. The parents are Charles Gurdner Blew and Vinnie Lee Earp Blew. Parents of Charles G. Blew were Charles William Blew and Mary Ann Bement.

Charles William Blew was born at Trenton, Missouri on December 29, 1843, and died September 18, 1892 near Wheeler, Arkansas. He is buried in Mount Comfort Cemetery. On November 6, 1872, he married Mary Ann Bement, born near Louisville, Kentucky, March 8, 1853. She died near Wheeler on April 25, 1935 and is buried in Mount Comfort Cemetery. Her parents were Reuben S. Bement, born in Massachusetts in 1824; and Mary Ann Perkins, born in Kentucky in 1836. Reuben S. Bement died in 1904; Mary Ann Perkins Bement died in 1890. They came to Arkansas in 1882 with Charles W. Blew family. Charles W. Blew fought in the Civil War on the northern side. The Charles W. Blew family settled on Clear Creek in the Wheeler Community in 1882. The log home had been called the Old Pollack House and had been built before the Civil War. During the war, the Southern Army left supplies in a hollow east of the Blew house, between the Blew home and the Arthur Cassat place. They burned these supplies to escape from the Northern Army.

Children of Charles William and Mary Ann Bement Blew were: William T. Blew, born November 6, 1873, died September 13, 1875; Claude D. Blew, born March 11, 1876, died 1963, married Ida Rheuhoma Winters; Charles Gurdner Blew, born December 8, 1877, died September 30, 1953, married Vinnie Lee Earp; Colonel S. Blew, born June 11, 1881, married Izora Wilson; Mary C. Blew, born April 7, 1886, married George Barnett; Effie May Blew, born May 13, 1889, died October 22, 1906.

In October, 1904, Charles Gurdner Blew married Vinnie Lee Earp. They were married in the minister's home, which was located in what is now the bottom of Lake Wedington. Vinnie Earp had been born in Butler, Choctaw County, Alabama, January 14, 1886. She died at Fayetteville City Hospital, December 5, 1969. He died at his home west of Fayetteville on September 30, 1953. Both are buried in Mount Comfort Cemetery. Vinnie's parents were Mack Duffy Earp, born May 15, 1856, at Butler, Choctaw County, Alabama; and Martha Alice Wright, born March 2, 1861 near Butler, Alabama. He died at Bixby, Oklahoma on July 25, 1926; she died at Savoy, Arkansas on April 27, 1904. She is buried in White Oak Cemetery. They were married November 20, 1877 at Butler, Alabama. Children of Mac Duffy and Martha Alice Wright Earp were: John Wesley Earp, born December 15, 1879 near Butler, Alabama; married Allie Wright; Silas Anders Earp, born August 11, 1883 near Butler, Alabama; Vinnie Lee Earp, born January 14, 1886 near Butler, Alabama, died December 5, 1969, married Charles G. Blew; Margaret Ethel Earp, born May 5, 1888 near Butler, Alabama married Rube Rollins; George Hiram Earp, born October 29, 1890 in Tulsa, Indian Territory; Anne Holice Earp, born April 14, 1893, died May 14, 1969; Ada May Earp, born June 24, 1899 at Savoy, Arkansas, died September 26, 1953, married Charles Shellenbarger; Emma Earp, died February 12, 1956, married Joe Graham.

Mack Duffy Earp's father was Charles Wesley Earp, born March 4, 1828, died July 6, 1856; his mother was Martha Amison Johnson, born March 4, 1839 married April 29, 1855. Mack D. and Martha A. Wright Earl left Alabama in the late 1880s and traveled to Colorado to work in mining operations. They remained there only a short time and moved to Arkansas on Clear Creek. After about five years, they moved to Bixby, Oklahoma and remained about five years before moving back to Arkansas.

Children of Charles Gurdner Blew and Vinnie Earp Blew were: Ila Mae Blew, born October 12, 1905, died March 26, 1985, married Winfield Holland on September 27, 1925; Floyd Lee Blew, born January 5, 1907, married Agnes Thomas on March 28, 1931; Russell Blew, born March 11, 1908, died April 18, 1909; Ada Marie Blew, born December 7, 1909, died 1966; Paul Richard Blew, born February 6, 1921, died October 21, 1951, married Mildred Shreve. Paul died in Korea, serving as a Captain in the Arkansas National Guard. Captain Blew and his orderly were captured by the North Koreans. He was shot and died instantly, according to his orderly. The orderly was imprisoned in a cave, beaten severely, and given no medical attention. The young man later was released in a prisoner exchange, but lived only a few years. Captain Blew had also served in World War II. His body was not returned to the United States.

Floyd Blew recalls traveling as a young lad with his family to Bixby, Oklahoma to visit relatives, the Earps. The trip was made in a covered wagon. The men of the family were outside town watching for their wagon to appear. The trip took about five days. In the mid 1920s, Floyd worked on a highway project on the west side of Fayettevillee. He recalls working on Highway 16, cutting the road around the north side of the mountain, that is now Wedington Drive between the 71 Bypass and Garland Street. He remembers helping put in the culverts at what is now Wedington and Porter Road. After this project, Floyd went to Oklahoma and worked picking cotton. In 1929, Floyd made a trip to California with Ray Davis, where they leased a service station in Los Angeles. He only stayed in California about six months.

In 1926, Floyd Blew was residing in the White Rock community, west of Fayetteville. A young lady named Agnes Thomas had come to teach in the White Rock School. Floyd's younger brother, Paul, was in the first grade at White Rock. Floyd began to frequent the school to, so he said, check on the progress of brother. Five years later, he married that young teacher. She continued to teach in schools in Washington County, while he worked at building up a farm.

Floyd owned a farm on Owl Creek, west of Fayetteville. There were years of growing tomatoes and strawberries. Floyd also had some milk cows and hay to harvest. There were a couple of years in the late 1930s that he raised turkeys, but decided that was not for him. One year, he got the baby turkeys from Gold Medal, the others he got from Charlie Dodd. Floyd was among the first men in northwest Arkansas to raise broilers on a volume basis. Approximately fifty years ago, he began with one house which held about 250 chickens. Shortly, he added another house and doubled his capacity. Baby chickens were purchased from Brown's Hatchery on West Center Street in Fayetteville.

On the day after Christmas in 1934, an unusual event took place. Agnes was at school, teaching at Salem. Floyd was on his way to the wooded hills he owned. Both heard loud, rumbling sounds, but saw nothing. Two men who had been chopping wood investigated further and discovered a meterorite had fallen on Floyd's farm. They found a hole that was smouldering and began digging. The five pound meteorite was found about twenty inches deep. It was donated to the University of Arkansas Museum, and is possibly still on display there.

Floyd's two daughters, Betty Ruth (Mrs. Leland Tollett) and Maribelle (Mrs. Donald Williams) were born in 1938 and 1939. A son, Ronnie Lee, was born in 1940, but lived only three weeks. The babies were delivered in the home by Doctor P. L. Hathcock.

The farm on Owl Creek was sold to Linus Burton in 1946 and is now owned by his widow, Doctor Mary Burton. The Blew's moved to another farm on Highway 62, west of Farmington. Floyd and his brother-in-law, Garland Lierly, had built a new house and barn there. Farming enterprises included milking cows for a few more years, then mostly raising broilers and beef cattle. Retirement years approached and Floyd tore down the chicken houses in the 1960s. By the early 1980s, he was no longer raising beef cattle. He now leases his farm to a neighbor, Mr. Lloyd Box, and a grandson, Dwight Williams. Floyd lives alone (Agnes died in 1985) on the farm in a brick home he had built in the late 1960s. (For more information, see family history of Agnes Thomas Blew in this book.)

Eli Bloyed

Eli Bloyed was one of the first settlers along the west fork of the White River in what is now Washington County, Arkansas. He was born April 25, 1786, the son of William and Keziah Barsheba Lord Bloyed, both of whom were born in Scotland. They first settled in Maryland where their children were born. On records, it appeared they landed in Virginia as there were early Bloids living there as the name was spelled at that time by census takers. William and Keziah came to Green County, Kentucky in 1805 with the following children: Stephen, Eli, Martha, Jacob, Purnett, Barsheba, Tobias, William and Hester. These children are all mentioned in the will of William Bloyed and also on the early marriage records of Green County, Kentucky and census records, so it has been proved.

Eli was married to Mary "Polly" Graham in Green County, Kentucky on April 27, 1806. The following children were born to Eli and Mary, all in Kentucky except Pernetty, the youngest who was born in Izard County, Arkansas. 1. Matilda Bloyed was born July 27, 1807 and married Nathan Caughman who came to Washington County, Arkansas with the family. They had Alfred W. who married Rachel Anderson, Elizabeth who married William Anderson, Mary who married Zadok Winn, William, who married Lear Mannon, Seaborn who married Pauline Dill, Nelson B. who was killed in Civil War, Taylor Isaac who was also killed in Civil War, Nancy Ann who married Thomas J. Davis. 2. Peter Bloyed was born March 8, 1809 and married Sarah Tennison and they had the following children: William who married Delilah Lofton, Eli who married Sarah Jane Gilbreath, Margaret who married Giles Lofton, Elizabeth born October 15, 1845 died unmarried, Mary born 1847 also did not marry, Lucinda married W. E. Shanks, second: J. C. Oldham, Henry married Antonia Gilbreath, John married Lydia McDonald. 3. William Bloyed was born October 7, 1811 and married Cynthia Wolf. They had the following children: Finis born 1832, James born July 22, 1836 married Sarah Jane Gilbreath after his cousin, Eli died, Nancy Ann married John P. Reed, Lucinda married William Karnes, Martha married Lafayette Bird, Elizabeth married Thomas McKnight. 4. Kizie Bloyed was born December 25, 1813 and married Conrad Yoes. Their children were: Mary Ann married Wilson Tegard, Rosana married McTroy House, Margaretta Jane married Alexander Anderson, Jacob married Mary Ann Reed, James Russell married first: Mary Elizabeth Short, second: Martha Gilstrap, Cynthia married Jefferson Quinton. 6. Pernetty Bloyed was born June 29, 1825 after they had gotten to Izard County, Arkansas. She married Joel A. Combs and they had the following children: Twins, Caledonia and Saphronia on May 11, 1854. Caledonia married Calvin Rutherford and Saphronia married Joel Fallin, Mary Matilda married John Winn, Milas married Susan Reed, Frances Elizabeth married Henry Martin. 5. Fifth child was actually Nancy Bloyed born May 10, 1816 in Green County, Kentucky and she married James Minor Winn, V on March 17, 1833. Their children are the following: Rachel born December 1843 married John Karnes, Eli married Matilda McKnight, Zadok married Mary Caughman, Matilda married William Graham, Marinda married Clayton Winn, Mary married Sam Hale, Cynthia born 1852 died unmarried, Edmond married Magdaline Martin, Joel married Howey Dearing, Margaret married James Reed, John married Mary Matilda Combs.

The Bloyed family came to Arkansas before it became a state and the family has increased and married into so many long-time Washington County families that Eli has more descendants than we even know about. There is a street named for Eli in West Fork, Arkansas, the hometown of many of the Bloyed families. Along with Mary, wife of Eli, came her parent Peter Graham and Nancy and many of her brothers and sisters. They also settled in the West Fork and Springdale areas of Arkansas and were from Kentucky before they came to Arkansas in the early days, but the original immigrants were from Ireland.

Eli Bloyed lived to the ripe age of 91 years, 11 months and died April 22, 1878 and is buried at West Fork, Washington County, Arkansas. Mary was born December 5, 1788 in South Carolina and died October 16, 1861 and is also buried at West Fork, Arkansas. Polly seemed to be the popular nickname for Mary and that was the way she was known.

There are letters to Eli from his brothers and sisters in the Museum in Kentucky. His own brothers and sisters did not come to Washington County with him, but kept in touch through letters which he and Mary faithfully kept. He had to be a hardy pioneer to have survived with his family off the land and building their first log cabins and the nearest settlement at that time was at Natural Dam, Arkansas. Evidently, he got along well with the Indians who at that time lived in Washington County as he is mentioned in the books about the Cherokees by James Manford Carselowey with respect.

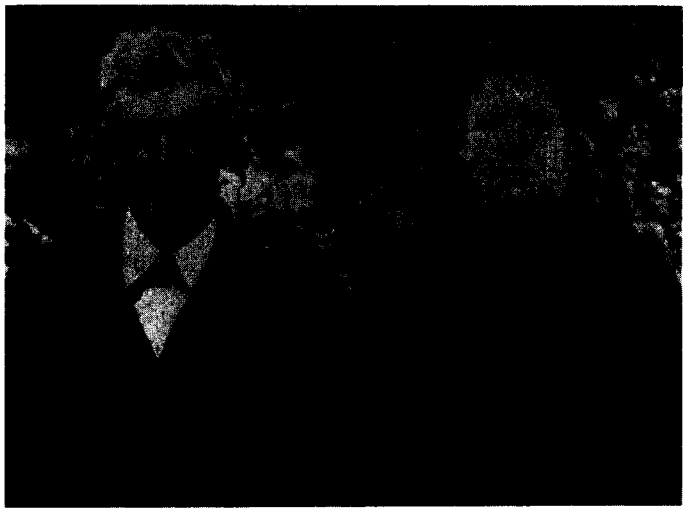
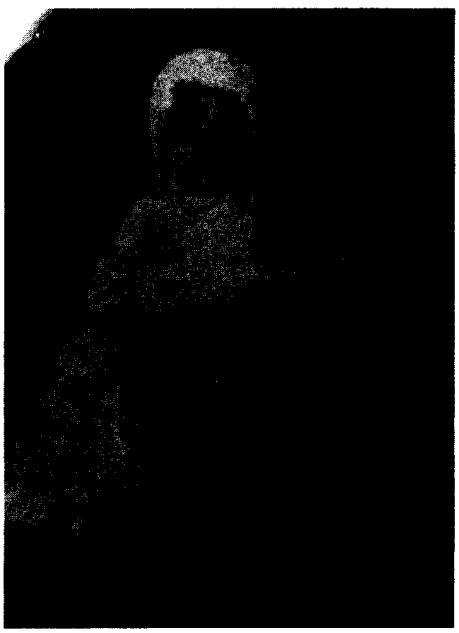
Loyd W. Bohannan

Loyd was born June 26, 1906 in Madison County, Hartwell, Arkansas. My pa was John "Bunt" Bohannan, born January 8, 1863, died April 4, 1941. His pa was Lige Bohannan, born 1843. He served in the Civil War and then married Mary Ann Smith who was born in 1844.

My ma was Lissie Dyer Bohannan, born July 14, 1870, died



Viola and Bill Dyer



Loyd Bohannan, 1906 Baby Picture

December 20, 1948. Her pa was William Dyer, born in 1848 and also served in the Civil War, then married Viola Phillips Dyer born in 1853.

My great grandpa was George "Bucket" Phillips and great grandma was Ann Margaret Long Phillips.

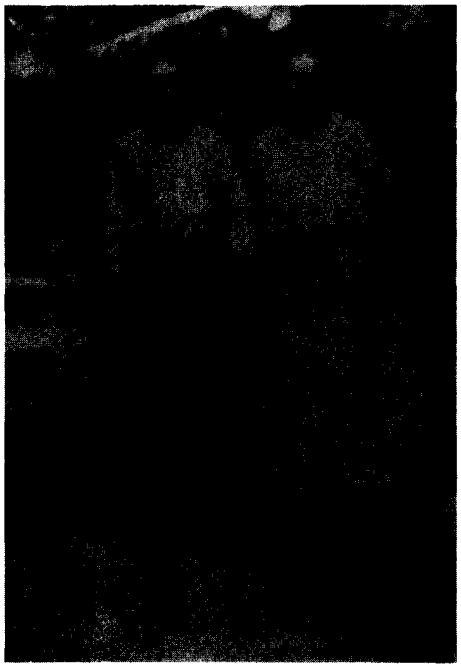
My great, great grandpa and grandma were James Phillips and Patsy "Martha" Sanders.

Pa had seven brothers and sisters, Joe 1865, Elizabeth 1869, Sam 1870, Lilly 1873, David 1875, Marion 1877 and Ben 1879.

I had three sisters, Bertha, Eva, and Vigelee and two brothers, Clyde and Sam. I am the only survivor.

As a boy I attended school in Madison County at Peaceful Valley through the third grade then continued at Pleasant Home (Popcorn) school. It became known as Popcorn because one year we had no Christmas decorations, so we strung popcorn for all the trimming, thus it became known as Popcorn School. We walked over three miles each way to school.

My parents, grandparents and great grandparents were all farmers, we had many chores to do at home, Ma and I milked the cows and we carried all our water up a very steep hill from the spring.



John "Bunt" and Lissie Bohannan

I can only remember one toy that Pa bought for my brother and me for Christmas, it was a little red wagon. We were so proud of it. I played baseball on the school team as a pitcher.

As a very young man, my friend, Elbert Butler and I rode our horses from Madison County to Frisco Springs to attend church which is where I met Pearl Sutton in 1923. I would ride my horse and lead another one from Madison County to Springdale while I courted Pearl so she would have one to ride. Pearl and I got married November 29,1924 at Rogers, Arkansas. We have seven children, Gearldene married Verlin Sutherlan, Willa (Dorothy) to Charles Silmon, Oma Lee to Kenneth Bates, Betty Lou to Beryl Wheeler, Eulamay to Albert James, Zeldene to Ray Harbour and Floyd to Betty Wade. We have seventeen grandchildren, twenty-seven great grandchildren and two great, great grandchildren.

While raising our family, Pearl and I had our share of hard times especially during the depression but we also had good times. I walked to work which was approximately eight miles one way and it was so cold I would wrap my feet with towsacks trying to keep them warm, when I got home at night the kids would pull icicles from my ears.

On Saturday nights, many of the neighbors would gather at our house and listen to the Grand Ole Opry. Then on Sunday after church we would gather and play baseball or other games. I remember one time especially, we were playing blackman and as I jumped from the porch to keep from being tagged I broke my big toe. We also camped some on the big bluffs overlooking White River fishing and swimming.

We moved to Washington County in 1936. I farmed for several years, worked on the WPA, Steele Canning Company, Campbell Soup, Hiland Dairy, owned a grocery store, a service station and am now retired.

My favorite hobbies are bowling, fishing, baseball and gardening.

Floyd, my only son retired in 1980 as the assistant Fire Chief of Springdale, he was very instrumental in getting the very fine paramedic program started and holds the Arkansas Emergency Medical Technician number 0007.

He worked with Columbia Pictures on "The Blue and Grey" and is still on the Northwest Arkansas Film Commission.

He was on Governor Frank White's transition team. He is the Executive Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce of Siloam Springs.

Pearl Sutton Bohannan

I was born on a farm in Alpena Pass, Carroll County, Arkansas on October 15, 1906. My mother, Hattie Bailey Sutton was born December 25, 1880 in Kansas and her mother was Louise McGehee Bailey born December 20, 1860. My father was Richard Harvey Sutton born November 27, 1873 in Clay County, Kansas. His parents were Jane South Sutton and Richard Sutton. My mama and dad had nine children, Nora, Louella, Becky, Jake, Freddie, Pearl, Bud, Carrie and Calvin. Calvin and I are the only two survivors and we both still live in Springdale.

Hattie and Richard Sutton and their children.

I went to school at Fry until it closed then to Big Spring which is west of Alpena. We only got one pair of shoes each year so many times we would walk to school barefooted and my feet would get so cold I would set down and wrap my feet in my dress to warm them. We only had school three months each year.

We went to church at Dogbranch. Dad Sutton read the Bible through twenty times. I spent many evenings sitting around the fireplace singing hymns with the family. Mama had a spinning wheel and a card to card wool on. I would card her some wool and get the mats and knots out and spin it into thread then mama would make many things for us. We had two big fireplaces and did much of our cooking on them. Dad raised his own tobacco and we would sit around the fire stemming it for him, he also made his molasses, had bee hives for our honey, took our corn to the mill and had it ground into meal. Mama and I would hunt for ginseng, yellow root or golden seal. We made our own lye soap in the ash hopper. Dad also helped build many of the old stone buildings which are still standing in Alpena Pass and Berryville. We did not have it easy as a child because dad always had things for us to do like helping saw wood, clear rocks from the fields, milk the cows.

In 1919 dad and mama decided to move to Ridgefield, Washington so we sold our things except what we would take in two covered wagons (which mama and dad drove) and headed west. When we got to Springdale, they had an extra good apple crop so they had what was called a wagon yard which had buildings with bunks for us and a place for the horses. We spent one night and dad wanted to work some in the apples for Elbert Graham. We liked Springdale so much that dad finally bought a farm from Mr. Graham which was located northeast of Springdale.

Later in 1923 I met Loyd W. Bohannan who was raised in Huntsville, Arkansas.

Loyd's father was John B. Bohannan, born January 8, 1865 and his mother Lizzie Dyer Bohannan, born July 14, 1876. They were farmers in the Huntsville area.

Loyd and I got married November 24, 1924 in Rogers, Arkansas. We had seven children, Gearldene, Willa, Oma Lee, Betty, Eulamay, Zeldene and Floyd. We lived in the Hindsville area until 1930 then moved out by Frisco Springs moving into Springdale in 1936. My children are all married and live in Springdale except Zeldene who lives in Bartlesville, Oklahoma. I have been blessed with seventeen grandchildren, twenty seven great grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

As a child I had no dolls except what we made but I was always very fond of them. When I retired from public work in 1968 I began making china and porcelain dolls which I have sold in almost every state. I made them by myself for about twelve years and it grew so big that I now have two of my daughters working with me. I have had many hobbies such as tatting, crocheting, knitting, china painting, punch needle, making rugs and things on a big loom, making plastic and chenille flowers and more.

I have been blessed with a very good and healthy life. I thank the Lord each day for my children being close to me as I see them almost daily. My church is the most important thing in my life right now.

W. E. Bond

Among the earliest settlers of Washington County were Hugh and Jane Morrow Simpson, settling near the headwaters of the Illinois River around 1830. Hugh was born in York District, South Carolina, December 18, 1787. He was the son of Hugh Simpson, a Scottish immigrant who came to America in the early 1700s, traveling in a home-made sailboat with his brother, John.

Jane was born in Abbeville, South Carolina, April 23, 1795, daughter of John and Mary Calhoun Morrow. Hugh and Jane were married in Bowling Green, Kentucky, January 1, 1818.

In 1826, there were six families who decided to migrate further west from Kentucky: two Simpson brothers, two McGarrah brothers, one Shannon and the Alexander family. These families, with their personal belongings and whatever equipment they had, were loaded on a flat boat and were sent down the Tennessee River, into the Ohio and then into the Mississippi. They had their raft towed up the Arkansas River to Phillips Landing (now Van Buren, Arkansas). They decided to stop in western Arkansas where land could be theirs by fencing it.

Hugh and Jane had seven children: John Morrow, Elijah, Mary Ann, George, Margaret Catherine, Elizabeth Jane and Hugh. Hugh died January 2, 1852; Jane died May 7, 1881. They are buried in Brewster Cemetery, south of Prairie Grove, Arkansas.

Their son, George, was born February 27, 1827 in the Sugar Loaf Valley, Sebastian County, Arkansas on September 9, 1850, he married Mary Ann Edmiston, daughter of David Crawford and Rebecca Thornton Edmiston.

The Edmistons were another of Washington County's early families, moving here in 1835 from Clark County, Arkansas. David was born July 21, 1805 in Tennessee, died September 17, 1887. Rebecca was born November 22, 1807 in Illinois and died August 3, 1881, being the second person buried in Edmiston Cemetery, Morrow, Arkansas.

George and Mary Ann had thirteen children: Rebecca Jane, John, William Henry, Hugh White, James L., Thomas Jefferson, Mary T., Sarah D., Fannie Bell, Martha Irene, George David, Elizabeth Annie and Hattie Mae. They settled their family in the Cincinnati, Arkansas area around 1880, moving there from the Prairie Grove region.

During the War between the States, George served as a member of the Confederate Army, and saw action in the Battle of Prairie Grove. He devoted his life to agricultural pursuits and was very successful in his life work. He died October 16, 1908 of Bright's Disease; Mary Ann died June 17, 1895. Both are buried in Edmiston Cemetery.

Their daughter, Martha Irene or "Rena" was married July 9, 1886 to William Elijah Bond, son of William Thomas and Salina Walker Bond, who came to Washington County with his parents sometime in the late 1870s from Beersheba Springs, Tennessee.

The elder Bonds first settled near Rhea's Mill. After Salina's death February 1, 1882, W. T. moved his family to Cincinnati. They lived in a cabin that was built before the Civil War. It was built of "blackjack" and native pine. W. T. Bond was born August 28, 1828 in Tennessee, died July 17, 1901, and is buried beside his second wife, Nancy Smith, in Harrell Cemetery at Cincinnati.

W. E. and Rena Bond had two children: Lillie Kate, born May 16, 1887 and George William, born April 6, 1891. In 1900, W. E. and his brother, John, built a fine two-story house on 247 acres of land. The family farmed this land for over 70 years. Just south of the house was a spring branch, and around the road was a vacant space where wagon trains once camped. These people frequently bought chickens, milk, butter and feed for their stock from the Bond farm.

In 1923, George Bond married a beautiful, young lady named Mary Bost, daughter of John Simeon Able and Callie Watson Bost of western Washington County, and a distant cousin of his. He had a successful career in the education field, starting out teaching in schools at Cincinnati, Springdale and Cane Hill in Washington County. He moved on to eventually become President of Louisiana Tech University and Southeastern Louisiana College. Mary has said that educators today don't know what hard times are. George became president of the Louisiana Tech during the depression and the college had no credit. Those were hard times. After retirement in Louisiana, he taught several years at Harding College at Searcy, where he established the advanced degree program in education. George and Mary retired in Fayetteville. In 1973, they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. George died in 1974 and is buried in Fairview Cemetery. Mary, also a retired teacher, is very active in First Baptist Church and many civic organizations.

Lillie Kate Bond married, September 22, 1907, William Homer Dodson. They lived on the Bond farm most of their married life. They had one son, John William (see Dodson family).

Cattle, hogs, horses, mules and a few chickens were raised on this farm. Meat was smoked using various kinds of wood, but the things that made the unique flavor were corn cobs, hickory chips and sassafras branches. Nothing tasted better than a piece of this thinly sliced smoked ham in the middle of a big biscuit. A few fruit trees (apple, plum, pear and cherry) grew on the farm and made excellent preserves and dried fruits. Beautiful quilts made by Lillie and Rena were backed with material dyed yellow with walnut hulls. Their door was always open to friends. They never knew how many people would show up for dinner, as W. E. was always inviting people to eat with them.

The depression years were not as hard for them as for some. They were out of debt, but lost all savings in bank failures. The farm was fairly self-sufficient, except for a few items like salt, baking powder, etc. Lillie gathered eggs and sold them or traded them for these few staples. Her egg basket (with the Dodson name penciled on the handle) is among the family heirlooms.

The Bonds and Dodsons were very active in their community, being leaders in the Presbyterian Church, Masonic Lodge, Eastern Star and Extension Homemakers Organizations. W. E. Bond was a member of the Anti-Horse Thief Association (also known as Knights of the Horse).

John Solomon Bookout

John Solomon Bookout was born in Cherokee County, Georgia, 5 June 1841. His father was William E. Bookout born in North Carolina about 1810. His mother, Nancy Rollins, was born in South Carolina 16 August 1815. His parents married about 1834 in Cherokee County, Georgia, where they farmed for over 20 years. About 1859, the Bookouts moved near Hillsboro, Texas. William apparently died during the Civil War.

John Bookout served in Confederate Company "K", 8th Texas Infantry. While a soldier, he learned the trade of a blacksmith and traveled in northwest Arkansas. After the war, John married Ada J. Bridenthal, the daughter of David and Lucella Ashford Bridenthal.

About 1869, the Bridenthals, the Achilles Fosters and all the Bookouts (except a brother, Jesse) moved to northwest Arkansas. Achilles Foster was married to John's oldest sister, Martha. The Bookouts and Fosters settled in Benton County near Maysville. Nancy Rollins Bookout died 5 April 1897 at Maysville. Census records indicate she and William had 8 children: Martha, Jesse, John, James, Lewis, Charles, Narcissa, Elizabeth, and Elijah.

The Bridenthals settled in Washington County, Arkansas, near Johnson and established Clear Creek Academy. David Bridenthal was a well known early day educator.

Ada Bookout was never a strong woman, so John bought a farm adjoining David Bridenthal's property so his wife could have help with the children. He built a large house and blacksmith shop near the excellent spring which fed Clear Creek. (Most of this property is now under Lake Fayetteville.) He hired Amanda Francisco to care for Ada and their children (Amanda, married at age 14 to James V. Gear, had been deserted by her husband). John, a good farmer and blacksmith, stayed too busy to finish ceiling their home. This had annoyed Ada for a long time. She suspected that John was attracted to Amanda. Jealousy prompted Ada to extract a promise of John that he would never finish the house. Shortly afterwards, Ada died in 1881. John and Amanda married 22 August 1882, which displeased his children; so they stayed mostly with the Bridenthals. In later years, two sets of grandchildren hardly knew each other. (Amanda was born 4 October 1860 near Springdale, the daughter of James and MaryAnne Gibson Woolsey Francisco.) John visited in Texas years later and the children seized the opportunity to finish the house for their mother. John had always been "moody" and high tempered. Daughter Lola told of the cabin on the hillside where he stayed alone when his wife or children displeased him. John's homecoming was not a joyous occasion, as his children's handiwork resulted in an extra-long seige of "pouting". Dissatisfied with the house, he sold the farm and had a new home built at 606 Virginia Street in Springdale. His health began to fail and kindhearted townspeople often brought the disoriented, white bearded old gentleman home in the evenings or searched for him when Amanda couldn't locate him.

John suffered a stroke and died immediately 26 June 1921. His funeral was conducted in his home by E. F. Rice, a Baptist minister. Amanda died 20 March 1948.

John and Ada's children: 1. Edward F. (married 1. a Bradley. 2. Helen Eason; children of first wife: Edgar, Olen, Buell, Burl, Lela; children of second wife: Millard); 2. Fred Ashford (wed Ella Peerson; children: Lemuel, Leroy, Pauline, Irene, Fred Williford, Betty, Frank, John Henry); 3. Effie Dean (married John A. Creager; children: Adlai, Harry, Herbert, Jewel, Floyd R., Carrie Lee, Manuel W., Hollis A., Alyne C., L. Avonne; 4. Hoeval Carrie (wed Vaughn Williford; one daughter, Buford Williford Burgess). John and Amanda's children: 1. Naurma (married William Andrew Drain; children: Jewell Oval, Cloe Eugene); 2. John T. (wed Nettie King; children: Herman, Raymond, Florence); 3. Sophia (married Lester Harvey; children: Dorothy, Margie, Elbert, Duane, Clarence); 4. Carl (wed Rose Harvey; children: Arvella, Willard, Robert; 5. Polk (married Clara Ivey; no children); 6. Mabel (wed Clyde Cardwell; children: Helen, Virginia, Barbara; 7. Lola (married 1. Frank Graham; daughter, Elsie. 2. Kelcie Cooper; children: Marjorie, Mary Virginia, Charles, Richard, Patricia; 8. Beatrice (wed Horace John "Gabe" Julian; children: John Carl, Mary Anne, James Horace).

Benjamin Ewing Boone

Benjamin Ewing Boone was born on the family farm at Boone's Grove near Elkins on 7 March 1876. The Boone family headed west in a covered wagon in 1879, out to west Texas, where a man could homestead a ranch and hope for a better life than in the poverty-stricken and ravaged southern states. D. T. Boone was 26, Ellen Benbrook Boone was 27, Norah was six and little Ben was three. They lived in San Angelo, Plano, and Hillsboro, where D. T. had a butcher shop and a cattle ranch. Ben had little formal schooling. . .he told us that he got through the "Fourth Reader". Boys had to stay home and work when they were needed; school was secondary. His favorite subjects were always mathematics and geography, subjects which certainly influenced his later life. In 1890, when he was fourteen years old, he took a year's trip by horse with his.22 rifle, his dog and his six-shooter. As he traveled, he tried to find a corn patch by dark so that he could feed his horse. He lived mostly on rabbits and slept out all year, getting odd jobs anywhere he could. He had wanted to see the ocean, but saw the Gulf at Corpus Christi instead. He learned a great deal about the cowboy life which stood him in good stead in later years of independent and solitary living in the Alaskan wilderness.

After his return to Hillsboro, the family moved north into what is now Glacier National Park, where they ran cattle on a homestead. Ben heard about the gold diggings in Cripple Creek, Colorado, got a job on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad as a "news butch", selling papers and candy to travelers. In Cripple Creek he worked in a saloon and heard a lot about gold and where to find it and the methods used in mining. The excitement of this famous camp whetted his imagination for further adventures. The family moved on to Helena, Montana, where Mr. Boone had a butcher shop. Ben learned the trade there. Meanwhile, the gold fever was raging in the Klondike and Yukon Territory. The family wanted to go, but could afford only to send Ben on ahead. In Seattle, he contacted a leading meat packer and persuaded him to let him take a shipload of cattle to Nome, Alaska. Thus Ben got his grubstake and headed north on the cattle boat. People in Nome and on the trail were eager for fresh beef, so the venture was a big success.

Ben traveled all over Alaska by dogsled in winter and by horse during the short summer months, prospecting for gold from the Arctic Circle, along the Yukon River and its tributaries to Dawson City in the Yukon Territory of Canada. His big strike was at Clary, 27 miles north of Fairbanks. The family joined him at the mine site. I have pictures of log cabins with sod roofs, of the barren country-side, denuded of trees, as they had been cut down for firewood to keep the earth in the mines from freezing while the miners worked out the ore; of Ben and his father standing beside piles of gold dust and nuggets and stacks of gold bricks - all hard won.

Ben knew many of the colorful characters called "sour doughs" during those exciting times. The famous author, Jack London, lived with him one summer. Later, in Seattle, London presented Ben with a leather-bound copy of his book, Burning Daylight, with a page written in appreciation of their friendship. It was not London's most successful novel, but there is no doubt as to the identity of the main character, as many tales of Ben's life in Alaska are portrayed.

He returned to Seattle in 1910, after his family had gone back to Arkansas. He realized that he needed more education in order to compete in business, so traveled to New York City where he enrolled in a "bankers college". This training and application of knowledge led him to financial success in various business enterprises, including real estate, automobiles and trucks, finance and lumber operations.

He had always wanted his own cattle ranch and found an ideal place northeast of Seattle where he recreated a bit of the "old West". When he was 43, Ben and his pretty twenty-one year old secretary, Lila Rogers, were married. She was a Canadian girl, raised in Seattle and San Francisco, not a country lass. But she soon adapted to Ben's lifestyle; they hunted, fished, rode horses, camped in the wilderness and enjoyed life to the fullest. I was born in 1919, Bonnie May in 1921 and Barbara in 1922. Our parents moved permanently to the ranch from a city apartment. My father added to an already existing hunting lodge, creating a large white frame home, reminiscent of his father's home near Elkins, atop a hill overlooking a lovely valley with two streams and tall forests of fir, cedar and hemlock near the home. He brought in white-face herefords from Texas and Montana, the first in the damp Northwestern Pacific area. His herds survived and multiplied and his registered strain is known all over Washington state.

Benjamin Franklin Boone

Benjamin Franklin Boone, born in 1828 in Tennessee, second son of pioneer Doctor James Boone, attended Mount Comfort Academy, was a graduate of the University of Louisville Law School, passed his bar exams in 1851 in New York City at the age of twenty-three. A diary written when he was 25 years old tells of a long and arduous trip by horseback, on foot, by coach and by train and on various steamboats up and down the Arkansas and Mississippi Rivers, the Tennessee and the Potomac up to Washington, D. C., down the Ohio from Pittsburgh and the Mississippi River back south to Memphis. This was the tale of a young lawyer "riding circuit" while he worked for Judge Jonas Tebbetts; later, he joined the firm as a partner, and was considered one of the leading attorneys in Arkansas. He also represented Washington County in the State Legislature for three sessions. In 1852, he married Sarah (Susan) Ann Roberson, daughter of John and Priscilla Howry Roberson. Their children were: my grandfather, DeWitt Turenne, Leroy Bernoulli, Mary Inez and Edwin Greenwood.

Ben was tall, with very dark hair and deep blue eyes. He was a leading member of the I. O. O. F., a staunch Democrat and a Baptist. His farm near Elkins, a general merchandise store and Post Office on the property, known as Boone's Grove, plus his legal practice, kept him and the family busy. He joined the Yell Rangers under General Ben McCulloch before the war. . .they engaged in spying for the Confederate Cause. He enlisted in Colonel Brook's 20th Regiment of Arkansas Militia; rose to First Lieutenant, then Captain, before being appointed as its Judge Advocate. His oath as Judge Advocate related that he had not fought any duels in Arkansas within the past two years of that bygone era.

In the fierce conflict of the Battle of Prairie Grove on December 7, 1862, he was hit in the thigh by a cannonball which shattered the bone. He lived for three months, suffering excruciating pain. His Regimental Chaplain wrote in his obituary: "The Master is come and calleth for thee", but he bore it with manly fortitude and Christian resignation. . .. sleep on brave man - his spirit has winged its way to God." His younger brother, Lafayette, also a lawyer, fought in this battle and was seriously wounded, being a cripple until his death in 1900. Ben died on March 1, 1863, less than fifty miles from his home and family. A man of such great promise and talent, dead at thirty-five, leaving a young widow and four children.

Susan became Postmistress at Boone's Grove, raised her children to adulthood and died in 1906. The whole family is buried in the small cemetery on the farm property near Elkins.

Sarah (Susan) Ann Roberson, my great-grandmother, was born in 1833 in Hawkins County, Tennessee on the Virginia border. Her father, John Roberson, was born in North Carolina and came to Washington County before 1840, with seven children and wife, Priscilla Howry. Seven more children were born in Arkansas on the farm on the west side of Highway 74 near Carter's store. Priscilla was born in Botetourt County, Virginia in 1808. Both of Susan's parents are buried in the Howry-Roberson Cemetery.

My great-grandfather, Benjamin Franklin Boone, and Susan were married in 1852 by the famous Presbyterian preacher, Reverend Luther M. Bell, who became a relative through marriage later on.

Their children were all born on the family farm near Elkins. (1) DeWitt Turenne, born 1853, married Harriett Ellen Benbrook, daughter of county pioneers, Ewing and Mahalia Fincher Benbrook. (2) Leroy Bernoulli, born 1855, died at age 20. (3) Mary Inez, born 1857, married Richard Dee Robbins in 1881. Their children were: Lenore Ellen, born 1881, married Charles Stockburger; Ruth Nancy married Clinton Harrington of Plano, Texas. Their son, John and wife, Janice live in Frisco, Texas. Bernoulli, Beulah Susan, Richard D., Agnes M., Laura L., Boone and Mary Inez. The fourth child of B. F. and Susan Boone was Edwin Greenwood, born 1859, who married Sarah Ann Harris. Their children were: Hugh, born 1893, married Ollie Carrigan. He was the last of the Boones to farm the old properties. Olive, born 1900, married Mac Jones of Baldwin, and Nora Alice, born 1902, married T. Arthur Moore.

Susan was only 29 when her husband was killed in the war. She raised her four children under great hardships and deprivation. She was Postmistress of the little community of Boone's Grove. . .one of the early women to have such a position. She died November 7, 1908 at the age of 75 in Elkins, where she had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Nora Alice Boone Moore.

DeWitt Turenne Boone

DeWitt Turenne Boone was the eldest son of Benjamin Franklin Boone, born in 1853 on the family farm at Boone's Grove, 1-1/2 miles south of present-day Elkins. He helped his widowed mother with the farm and with his younger brothers and sisters, attended school, and weathered the terrible times and devastation after the War. In 1872 he and Harriett Ellen Benbrook, daughter of Ewing and Mahalia Fincher Benbrook, were married. They were neighbors in the community. A close cousin wrote, "When it came to beauty of face and form, Ellen was considered the most attractive of the four Benbrook sisters. . . She was devoted to her family, was somewhat reserved by nature. . ." Their daughter Norah, was born in 1873, son Benjamin Ewing, in 1876 and baby Ula Loys in 1878, who died nine months later. In 1879 "Tu", as he was known by family members, decided to move westward. The family left the lush White River Valley in the Ozark foothills for the great windswept plains of Oklahoma and Texas, traveling in a covered wagon. Gentle Ellen rode with a shotgun across her lap as they crossed Indian country. The pioneering spirit of the Boones was once again in action.

They ranched near San Angelo, then moved to Plano. "Tu" ran a meat market for awhile, then bought a ranch near Hillsboro. About 1890 the family moved north to what is now Glacier National Park in Montana to homestead a cattle ranch; then on to the city of Helena, where "Tu" bought and ran a meat business in 1900.

Meanwhile, great gold deposits were found in the Klondike River Valley of the Yukon Territory in 1896. The family helped stake Ben for the trip north. The Boones returned to Arkansas to prepare for the long trip to Seattle on the west coast by train and on to Alaska by ship when Ben was settled in one place. They joined him in 1902 in the small boom town of Clarey, 27 miles north of Fairbanks. Mr. Boone and Ben and several young men of the Benbrook family who had joined them worked the mine, brought out gold and formed it into gold bricks for transportation to Seattle. The family usually went "out" during the bitter winters, back to Arkansas or to Seattle, where they owned a hotel. They left Alaska for good in 1908 and returned to the old farm at Boone's Grove. Mr. Boone built a fine large white frame home with many pillars and porches on his property across the road from the family cemetery where his parents, brother, sister and baby daughter are buried.

During World War I, he raised beef cattle for the Army. He had four large barns, each painted and with a large number on the roof a landmark in the White River Valley. Ellen's hearing failed and despite numerous trips to noted specialists on the east coast, nothing could be done to help her.

D. T. Boone was a tall man, in later years, rather corpulent, with fastidious clothing, a tall-crowned hat, gold spectacles, who rode about the countryside in his buggy with a spirited horse pulling it. As all the Boones, he had fair skin, blue eyes and dark hair. He died of a heart attack in 1924 after returning from a visit to son Ben and family near Seattle. Ellen and daughter Norah lived together until her death from cancer in 1931. The family certainly lived in many exciting places and participated in much history of the west and Alaska. The Boones and daughter Norah Carlisle, and her daughter, Inez, one of the first white children born in Alaska, are all buried in Fairview Cemetery in Fayetteville.

Dr. James Monroe Boone

Shortly after the national census of 1830, Dr. James Boone came over the mountains from Tennessee with his young family: Sophronia Smith, from Murfreesboro and two small sons, Daniel Thales Beya and Benjamin Franklin. This family, my great-great-grandparents and sons, settled near present-day Elkins on the west side of the White River.

Dr. James Boone, Washington County, Arkansas Pioneer

James had been born in Rowan County, North Carolina in 1788 to Benjamin and Mary Wilson Boone. A good part of Rowan County on the Yadkin River had been settled by the Boone family, who had been given large land grants by King George, II of England and the State of North Carolina in the 1750s. Dr. Boone's grandfather John, and Daniel Boone were first cousins and pioneer settlers in North Carolina. James' father was an itinerant Baptist preacher and farmer, as well as a Revolutionary soldier, who moved from one church to another, raising his family in both North Carolina and Tennessee.

James and his younger brother, William, joined the Army in 1812 and fought the British under General Andrew Jackson. After the war, James studied medicine and became a physician in Tennessee. Dr. "Jimmie" Boone was one of the first physicians in Washington County, where his skill and knowledge were needed and appreciated. He owned the entire west side of the rich river valley which he farmed with the help of his slaves. The family increased by two more sons and a daughter, Cornelia Venturia. He built a fine two-story brick home where the family lived comfortably. Great personal tragedy struck in 1835. His beloved Sophia died at age 27 and 3-year-old Cornelia succumbed to the dread scarlet fever later that summer.

The ability and force of character of Dr. Boone had long been recognized by the people of the county. He was called to take part in public affairs incident to the formation of the government of the new country, was elected to the Constitutional Convention of 1836, which framed the first Constitution of Arkansas. He was also a Representative in the first Legislature of the State which sat at Little Rock on September 12, 1836, where many important laws, still in force, were passed. After that, he declined further public office and turned his attention to his motherless children, his medical practice and his farm or plantation. He was remarkably successful in his endeavors and accumulated a large estate. In 1854, he freed all his slaves and paid them to work and furnished houses for their families. He sold some of his land and was moderately self-sufficient with the help of his former slaves.

On an evening in late May 1856, he was at home alone except for his negro housekeeper, "Aunt Thursey" and her husband, "Uncle Edmund". He heard a commotion at the west door and went to investigate. He was surprised to see two of his former slaves, Anthony and Aaron, with Randall, who belonged to his neighbor and brother-in-law, David Wilson Williams. The men told him they had come for his money, and he refused them. They beat him to the porch floor with wooden clubs and left him for dead. He was able to tell his housekeeper and her husband the names of his assailants before he died on June 11.

The negroes confessed, were brought to trial in July, and Randall was hanged after being found guilty of first-degree murder. Anthony and Aaron were accomplices and could not be convicted on testimony of another accomplice, so they were discharged. Dr. Boone's sons, Ben and Lafayette, hanged the two killers on a tree between the Boone farm and Fayetteville. Fear of rioting and unsettled conditions prevailing before the War was sufficient reason to hush up the whole tragic chain of events. Therefore, a much-loved and respected doctor to humanity lost his valuable life to men of insatiable greed.

Harriett Benbrook Boone

Ellen Benbrook was the fourth of eleven children of Ewing Benbrook and Mahalia Fincher, who were pioneers in the White River Valley. Ewing was a native of Simpson County, Kentucky and Mahalia, of Tennessee. They were brought to Arkansas as children, wed there and raised their family near what became Elkins. Their children were: Hosea Maguire Benbrook, born 1846, married Catherine Irving; Nancy Jane, born 1848, married Henry M. Wood; Jarrett T. Benbrook, M. D., married Anna Lee Vernon; Harriett Ellen wed D. T. Boone; Charles Lowman, born 1854; John Henry born 1856; Lavada Catherine, born 1858, married John Williams; Clementine, born 1861, married Hosea G. Rutherford; Smith L., born 1864; Robert Ewing, born 1866, married Anne Crawley; and Pike, 1869, who drowned in the Yukon River in the spring of 1902. He had joined the Boones in their gold mining venture in Alaska, as had his brother, Smith.

Ellen lived in west Texas, Montana, Seattle, Wisconsin, early settlements at Clarey Creek and Fairbanks in the Territory of Alaska, before returning to her birthplace in Arkansas. She was a strong family woman, much loved and respected by all her relatives and descendants. Her daughter, Norah, born in 1873 in Elkins, was married to J. T. Carlisle. They had a daughter, Inez who grew up in Alaska and Fayetteville, married Jake Taylor. Ellen's son, Benjamin Ewing, my beloved Father, taught his four girls much which he had learned from his fine parents. Ben married Lila Rogers, a lovely young Canadian girl, in Seattle in 1919. Their fortunate daughters were: Lila Ellen, born 1919, married ensign Willard Michael in Seattle in 1940. Our daughter, Bonnie, born 1941 in the U. S. Canal Zone, married R. Matsumura in Hawaii - they have four children: Michael, Christy, Shane Boone and Dawn; our son, Roger Boone, married Sandra Aucott of Seattle in 1967 - they have two daughters: Wendy Ellen and Kristin Noreen. Bonnie May Boone, born 1921, married Stanley Huey from Belfast, Ireland. Their children are: Michael Boone Huey of El Paso, Texas married Judith Murray and have three sons; Sherry Huey married Stephen Koon of Seattle and are parents of Kelly and Kimberly Koon. Nicholas Alexander Huey also lives in Seattle. Barbara Boone died in 1963 leaving no children. Beverly Ann, born 1927 married Richard Truly, Jr. in 1953. They had three sons: Ty Truly, single; Jeff married Carol Mensick; they live on the old Boone Ranch and have three children: Sarah, Stephanie and Benjamin; youngest son Brad, is single. Ellen Benbrook Boone's youngest granddaughter, Beverly, died in 1986 of the rare disease, Lupus.

Hugh Boone

The name "Boone" can be traced back to England and the time it was taken into the country by the Normans during and following the Conquest of 1066, however, it did not become prominent in America until the 18th century. George Boone III and his family emigrated to America, settling in Berks County, Pennsylvania in 1717. As his children matured they migrated south and west, settling mostly in North Carolina and Tennessee. From Tennessee they made their way to Arkansas. In general they appear to have been a sturdy, foresighted and adventurous race, of simple tastes and independent actions. They were looking for a special place to put down their roots, and they found it in northwest Arkansas.

James Monroe Boone, was born in North Carolina, December 12, 1788, married Sophronia Smith in Tennessee on September 1, 1825. In the spring of 1830 after the birth of two of their children, they packed up their meager belongings and started on the long trip toward the west. They located around what is now known as Cane Hill. Dr. Boone became a prominent leader. He was very active in politics, and served one term in the House of Representatives, where he assisted in establishing the guidelines for the young state of Arkansas. He was chosen and served as a delegate from Washington County in the Territorial Convention that framed the first constitution of the state of Arkansas. In 1856 Dr. James Boone was brutally murdered by three slaves, two of whom belonged to him, and one the property of a neighbor. The negroes conspired to kill him, and going to his house at night they created a disturbance to bring him to the door, where they felled him with a blow from a bludgeon, and continued beating him until he died. When accused they confessed to the crime, and a band of men, led by the sons of Dr. Boone, took the two negroes belonging to him from jail and hung them. The third was tried at the next term of the circuit court, and was also hung.

Benjamin F. Boone, second son of James, was born in Tennessee, December 29, 1828, and was only two years of age when his father brought him to Arkansas. He grew to maturity in Washington County, where he studied law and practiced his profession a few years. Later he owned a general store, and served as postmaster at what was known as " Boone Grove". It was located approximately two miles from where the town of Elkins is now located. He married Sarah Ann Robertson in 1852, and they became the parents of four children: Dewit, Leroy, Mary Inez and Edwin. Benjamin Boone was a Lieutenant in Brook's Confederate Regiment. Those of you who know the history of the battle of Prairie Grove will recall what a bloody battle raged on December 7, 1862. Benjamin Boone was among the casualties, he received a gunshot wound from which he died March 1, 1863.

Edwin Boone, the youngest son of Benjamin F. was born on December 16, 1859. He was only four years of age when his father was killed. Benjamin's widow and his four children remained on the farm where Edwin grew to maturity, and married Sarah Ann Harris on March 5, 1893. They became the parents of five children: Hugh, Everett, Susan Euna, Olive and Nora Alice. Edwin died of natural causes at a young age, leaving his widow and young son Hugh to carry on the farming responsibilities. Everett and Euna died in their young years. Olive and Nora taught school in a number of Washington County schools. Olive, after a long teaching career, now resides in Fayetteville at Apple Tree Inn content to let the rest of world handle the problems of the younger generation. Nora married Arthur Moore and they became the parents of two children: Ruth and Mary Alice. Nora and Arthur were proprietors of a general store at Baldwin, Arkansas for many years. Arthur passed away, but Nora remains active in her arts, garden and clubs. Her old-fashion dolls have become quite famous, and are cherished by all lucky enough to own one.

Hugh married Olive (Ollie) Carrigan, December 25, 1917, and they were the parents of five children: Ruby, Edna, Hubert, Clifford and Clinton. Hugh was a farmer and a fisherman. He knew all the fishing holes in White River, as well as all the surrounding streams, and could tell you where to catch the fish and when they'd bite. He remained on the Boone farm as long as he was able to take care of it. He passed away August 12, 1986, at the age of 92, after several months of slowly fading health. The younger generation moves on to conquer new frontiers but here our roots remain.

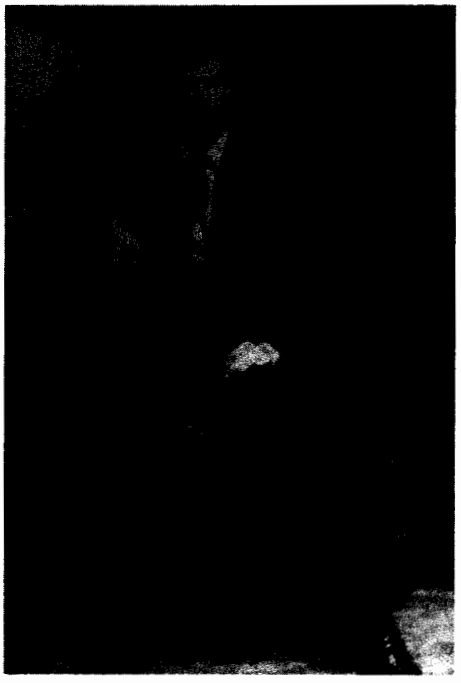
James Arthur Boone

My Boone grandparents died before my parents were married. My father, Arthur Boone, never knew his own grandparents, but I remember him telling family history stories he remembered from his father. During the depression, those stories seemed humorous or fantastic and entertaining. Dad had a "knack" for story telling. We vacationed in the Smoky Mountains in 1964 and made a side trip to Athens, Tennessee, to check out Dad's stories.



Granddad Boone - James Arthur Boone early 1900s.

My husband, William H. Duncan, our children, Georgena and Allen, my parents, Arthur and Elsie Boone, and I packed into the car for adventure. We felt elated in Athens when we visited Mamie Boone Copeland, an unknown first cousin. Dad, then 80, remembered the same early stories that Mamie remembered. She took us to the old homestead where their grandfather, Allen Boone, had been prosperous raising mules. The setting matched the stories down to the prickly pears in the yard. The Allen Boone family had 14 children. December 1, 1986 William H. Duncan died and is buried at Fairview

Memorial Gardens. We visited the old cemeteries to view graves and learn relations. We obtained records of the long missing line of Boones not included in Spraker's book, The Boone Family. This line is now a large bound 1969 volume, The Descendants of Israel Boone, by Alice H. Boone.

We are descended from Israel Boone, the older brother of the famous Daniel Boone. They were the sons of Squire Boone and Sarah Morgan. Squire Boone was the son of George Boone, III, and Mary Maugridge. They came from England, settled in Pennsylvania in 1720, and united with the Quakers. Squire and Sarah had 11 children. When Sarah, the oldest, married out of the church, Squire was reprimanded. Five years later, Israel, his oldest son, married out of the church. This brought about the move to North Carolina.

Israel and his wife had four children, Jesse Boone, b. 1748, Jonathan Boone, b. 21 November 1750, Elizabeth Boone, b. 28 November 1752-53, Sarah (Sallie) Boone b. 1754. Their parents died before age 30, leaving the children with relatives.

Jesse, the older boy, raised by his Uncle Daniel, had a son named Israel, who was the father of Allen Boone, in McMinn County, Tennessee. John Winslow Boone, my grandfather, was a son of Allen Boone and Ann Hardy. John Winslow Boone married Mary Margaret Tennessee Fry at Athens, Tennessee. They had one son, Baxter Lee, when they moved west with the Fry family. My father was born 16 January, 1884, in Ava, Missouri, where the family settled.

The Missouri land was rockly and fragile. John and Tennie traveled by wagon to northern Arkansas, finally settling in Harrison. Around 1901 they moved to Springdale. They had nine children. All moved away except Lee and Arthur. Their parents are buried at Friendship Cemetery in Springdale.

Dad is the only one that spent his life in Springdale. Lee moved to California in 1954. As a child, Dad had red sore eyes and measles simultaneously. This left him with severe eye problems. As a young man he had an operation to shorten his eyelids. There was no anesthetic so the pain was great. He could at last be fitted with glasses. Dad's education was limited but he was quick and had a fabulous memory. He was especially good in mental arithmetic. He loved maps and geography, and enjoyed traveling. He also had a gift for music, and could play any string instrument by ear.

Dad bought land in 1908 from Dr. Martin on what is now Highway 68 East, Springdale (Boyer Sign place now). At the time he was working on the railroad and buying mining material for G. W. Thompson. Later he built a house on the land and planted a fruit farm.

In 1920, my father married Elsie Neeley at Mansfield, Arkansas, and brought her to this home. They had three children, Juanita Demarious, James Vannes, and Rosellen Arletha. The three of us grew up in Springdale, graduating from Springdale High School.

I was married to William Houston Duncan at the First Baptist Church in Springdale in 1942. Our children, Georgena and Allan, were born in Fayetteville, Arkansas.

Vannes married Mary Virginia Bell at the Gaston Avenue Church in Dallas, Texas, in 1943. Their son, James Vannes Boone, Jr., was born at Dallas.

Arletha married Frank Gilbert Honeycutt, Jr., at the First Baptist Church, Springdale, Arkansas, in 1947. They have three sons, Frank III, John Boone, and James Boone, all born in Dallas.

Georgena actually spent more time with her grandparents than did the grandsons. She and her Granddad Boone were "big story buddies". Her repeated requests were always met sitting in his lap in his rocking chair. My parents' lives are filled with stories of hard times, depression years, war times, good and bad crops, hard work and little money. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1970. It was a proud day.

After the war, they owned a cafe and later a small motel. Those years were rewarding but lots of work.

Dad died in 1972 and is buried at Friendship Cemetery in Springdale. Mother died July 13, 1987 and is buried alongside Dad at Friendship Cemetery.

There are two great-grandsons to enjoy, Van Boone, III, and Thomas Houston Duncan.

Sophronia Smith Boone

Sophronia (Sophia), wife of Dr. James M. Boone, was born near Murfreesboro, Tennessee in September 1808. Her father, Thomas Smith and her mother, Rebecca Wilson were pioneers to Washington County from Tennessee and Rowan County, North Carolina.

Sophia's elder sister, Sarah Jane, married David W. Williams. They owned the farm or plantation adjoining that of Dr. Boone. Her brother was Wilson R. Smith, who married Temperance Smith; sister Rebecca married Richard Bean; Evaline married James Tuttle; Nancy Ann wed Aaron Parks; Mary N. married Leroy Cunningham and Andrew Jackson Smith married Mary Jane Trammell . . . all the families well-known in the area.

Dr. Boone met young Sophia while practicing medicine in Murfreesboro. A well-known Washington, D. C. genealogist, Dr. James B. Childs, wrote to me: "In some notes I have from Tennessee, made about 1860, it is noted that Sophia Smith was an educated woman, very uncommon in the 1820s." They married in 1825 when she was only 17 and he was 37 years old. The unusual names of some of their children were taken from Swiss scientists and mathematician and physicians whose works Dr. Boone had studied.

The couple had five children. Daniel Thales Beya Boone was born in Tennessee in 1826, married Ann Eliza Hayden Trammell in 1848. They moved to Texas before the war, where they raised their family: James Monroe born 1849, married Ella Bray; Rhoda Emma, born 1854, married Wesley Gladish; Sanford Lafayette, born 1856, married Mildred Josephine Barber. (Their grandson, Joe Sanford Boone, lives in Springdale); Minerva Ann Loise, born 1859, married R. L. Graham; Madison Rudolphus, born 1862, married Theodosia Ballard; Senora Maybelle, born 1866, married Reuben Talley; Ann Eliza Hayden born 1869, married William Ford and Daniel Thales Athol, born 1873, married Ida Belle Lewis. This Daniel Boone family lived in New Mexico and raised Daniel, Edna Hester, Lewis Athol, Raymond, Jeff, Howard Taft and William.

Daniel T. B. Boone died in Austin at the Texas Confederate Home for Men in 1910. Mother Ann Eliza H. Trammell, who was 1/2 Cherokee, died in 1880 in Seymour, Texas.

Third son of Dr. Boone and Sophia was Eular Bernoulli, born in 1831 in Washington County; married a Miss Jones of Missouri, moved there and died in 1860. Fourth son was Lafayette, born 1834, who became a well-known and respected lawyer after graduating from the University of Louisville Law School, married Nancy Skelton in 1864. She died in childbirth, leaving no issue. "Lafe", as he was known, was badly crippled in the War. He died in 1900 and is buried in the Confederate Cemetery in Fayetteville.

Within five years of the Boone family's arrival in Washington County in 1830, they were torn by the untimely death of the young mother, in May of 1835, followed three months later by the death of three year old Cornelia Venturia from the dread scarlet fever. Dr. Boone, Sophia and small Cornelia are buried in the Boone Pioneer Cemetery near Greenland.

Geneva Haney Boswell

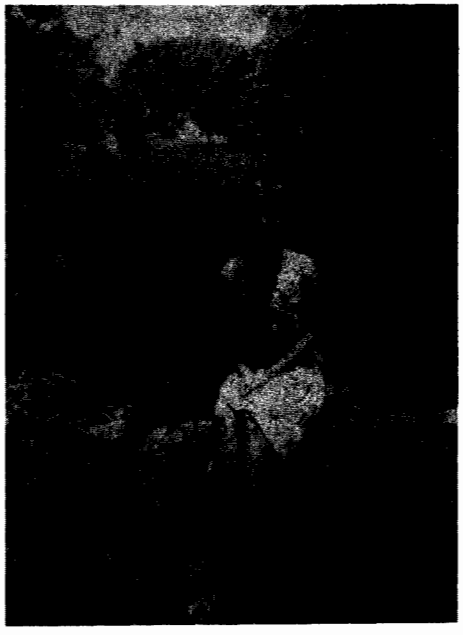
I was born in Mingus, Palo Pinto County, Texas March 7 1906. My twin sister, Jeanetta, died just before our second birthday.

My mother, Minnie Lee Goff Haney was born December 27, 1876 near El Dorado, Kansas. In 1878, her family and my grandmother Mary Binder, moved to Texas in two covered wagons and homesteaded some free land in Eastland County, Texas.

My father, Frank Leslie Haney was born October 18, 1878 in Montgomery County, Mississippi near Duck Hill. His family

James Richard Boswell - Old stripped down Ford used for traveling between Hot Springs and the University of Arkansas. 1928.

Minnie Lee and Frank Leslie Haney and granddaughter Martha Boswell taken in 1941 at 14 N. Duncan St., Fayetteville.



Geneva Haney Boswell - In wedding dress. Taken in 1929 at 14 N. Duncan St., Fayetteville, Arkansas.

moved to a farm in Eastland County, Texas near the Goff family about 1894.

We moved to Fayetteville in 1923 when I was in high school as my father had bought a 35 acre farm north of town at the end of Old Missouri Road. We loaded up a small Ford truck and an old Hupmobile with what belongings we could carry and the nine of us, my three brothers, Norris, John, and Maurice and three sisters, Corinne and the twins Phyllis and Glenda, my mother, father and myself started off for Arkansas. My eldest sister, Mildred, stayed in Texas and went to school there. The trip took twelve days to go about 450 miles as the car and truck kept breaking down. Our meals consisted mostly of crackers and sardines. When we arrived at the farm, we were unable to take possession for a few days, so we camped on Clear Creek close to where Old Missouri Road and Zion Road meet.

I attended high school for one year, went back to Texas for my senior year then returned to Fayetteville.

That summer my mother, sister Corinne, and I walked across Clear Creek to Johnson, Arkansas to work at the canning factory peeling tomatoes. My sister and I used the money we made to buy some old used furniture and rented a room on Dickson Street and she started High School and I enrolled at the University.

In the spring of 1928, I met my future husband, James Richard Boswell from Hot Springs, an electrical engineering student. To earn money he worked part time for Mr. Stephens, the campus electrician. Ironically, when Jim retired from the Air Force, we returned to Fayetteville and eventually bought a house on the street named for Mr. Stephens.

Professor Loy E. Barton, Jim's instructor and mentor, was doing radio research and Jim helped him to install the first loud speakers in the Palace Theater that was located on the east side of the square and thus introduced the first talking picture show in town.

My husband and I met when the old KUOA radio station was installed in the south tower of Old Main and he became the operator, broadcasting football and basketball games as well as other programs. At the same time, I was a PBX operator in an office in the basement of Old Main.

I majored in Botany and in my senior year, I became the student assistant in the Botany Laboratory.

On July 20, 1929, Jim and I were married in Stilwell, Oklahoma. In 1930, he received his EE degree and was commissioned as 2nd Lt. in the Army Reserves as a result of 4 years of ROTC. He was hired by RCA Radio Company as an electrical engineer and in the summer of 1930, he went to Camden, New Jersey, where the company was located. As I had 3 more credits to take to receive my BSE, I stayed an extra semester and went to New Jersey in February of 1931. We rented an apartment in Collingswood, a suburb of Camden. Later, Professor Barton and two of Jim's classmates came to work for RCA and we all lived near each other and formed a long standing friendship.

We had our first daughter, Martha Lou, who was born March 1, 1934, and on January 18, 1938, we had our second daughter, Margaret Jean.

In the spring of 1941, Jim resigned from RCA and accepted a job with the Communications Department in Washington, D. C. to supervise installation of transformers for the Government. As a result of this job, we left New Jersey and spent the spring and summer in Fort Wayne, Indiana and Redding, Baxter and El Cajon in California where Jim was installing these transformers.

On the way back to Washington, D. C. we stopped in Fayetteville to visit my parents who now lived in a two story white house at 14 North Duncan. They had made a couple of apartments in the house and rented these and rooms to University students. My father rented some land at what was then the end of California Drive, now it is the location of the University Married Student Apartments. He grew vegetables and had a cow so we had a daily supply of milk. My mother skimmed off the heavy cream to make butter but most of it she collected and took to the creamery on Center street to earn a little extra money.

We lived in Fayetteville twice during WWII as Jim was in the Army and was required to travel overseas and within the U. S. and Canada. In between, we lived in Arlington, Virginia where our third daughter Elizabeth Ann was born on April 29, 1943 in Washington, D. C.

Jim had a very interesting and varied career in the military which required living in many places including Los Alamos, New Mexico where he was one of a team that went to the island of Enwetok in the South Pacific for the first atom bomb test, he was in charge of the communication systems. We also spent 3 years living in Japan. Before moving to Japan, our daughter had attended the University of Arkansas and after living in Japan for one year she returned to continue her studies in the fall of 1954.

Jim's last duty station was at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico and he retired from there in 1965 and we returned to Fayetteville as this was always home to us. Jim died in January 1982 and is buried in the National Cemetery in Fayetteville. In 1984, I sold my house and moved to Tampa, Florida to be near my daughter Martha Avery. She has a son James and one daughter Sheri. My daughter Margaret Helfinstine is married, has one son Randy, and resides in Dayton, Ohio. My daughter Elizabeth Baudisch is married and lives in Jackson, Wyoming.

John Boswell

John Boswell was born 22 December 1833 in Newton County, Indiana. He was the son of Edward Boswell (1796-1866) who was born in Albemarle County, Virginia and Mary Polly Gibson (?) who was born in Stokes County, North Carolina. John moved with his parents to Clay County, Illinois. There he met and married Lodemae Adaline Colclasure the 29 November 1855. Lodemae was the daughter of Abraham Colclasure (ca. 1799-1849) who was born in Indiana and Margaret (Gordonier?) (ca. 1800-1877), birthplace not known.

After John and Lodemae were married they decided to move to Washington County, Arkansas. John like his father before him was a farmer and heard of good land in Arkansas. They brought to Arkansas Lodemae's mother Margaret Colclasure and Margaret's children which were still living at home: Jacob, Susan, and Abigail Colclasure. John and family group settled in the Richland township near Elkins.

John Boswell served in Company B, 1st Arkansas Cavalry as a private from 31 August 1863 till 23 August 1865. John and Lodemae had several children: Edward, Mary, Pearlina, Dona, Garrett, Susan, and Effie. After the Civil War ended John and Lodemae and children moved to near Springfield, Greene County, Missouri and then to rural Barry County, Missouri where John became a successful farmer. John died 24 of October 1912. Lodemae died 29 January 1923. Both are buried in the Osa Cemetery, Barry County, Missouri.

Margaret Colclasure lived the rest of her life in Washington County, Arkansas. She died 6 July 1877 and is buried in the Strain Cemetery near Elkins.

Susan Colclasure married James Fincher 12 January 1865. James was the son of Hiram W. Fincher and Harriet _____?. James Fincher served in Company D, 1st Arkansas Cavalry. Susan died 23 June 1914. Both she and James are buried in the Strain Cemetery.

Jacob Colclasure was united in marriage 18 September 1858 to Lucinda Williams in Washington County. Lucinda was the daughter of John Williams of Tennessee. Jacob served in Company D, 1st Arkansas Cavalry during the war. Jacob and Lucinda had several children: Hannah, Margaret, Wealthy, John, Abraham, Becky, Makala, Sarah, William, Moses, and Elsie. I do not claim this as a complete accurate list. It was taken from various census records. Jacob Colclasure died in 1913 and Lucinda died in 1917. Both are buried in the Salem Cemetery. It is my belief that perhaps grandchildren or great grandchildren of this family still live in Washington County.

I haven't as yet researched Abilgail Colclasure to find out what happened to her, whether she remained in Washington County, or moved away.

The name Colclasure dates back to 1729 and Johann Heinrich Kalkglosser, his wife Anna Maratetha, his children and possibly two brothers who came to America on "Mach's Refugee Ship" from Germany and settled in Pennsylvania. The name is spelled many ways. I have used only one of the spellings in this article.

Joe Bowling

Joe and Betty Bowling came to Washington County in 1980. They lived in Little Rock prior to moving to Springdale. Even though their time in northwest Arkansas is relatively short, their roots lie deep in Arkansas history.

Joe grew up in Van Buren County near Clinton where his family had migrated from Tennessee during Reconstruction. His grandfather, William Thomas Bowling, had been a Confederate soldier, serving under General Nathan Bedford Forrest. He married Lula Josephine Durham, a daughter of Thomas J. Durham, who had also been a Civil War soldier, but in the Union Army.

Joe attended Arkansas State Teachers College at Conway after graduating from high school. His education was interrupted by the Korean War. While he was in the U. S. Navy, he made two trips to the Far East. One trip involved a cruise aboard the aircraft carrier, Oriskany, while it operated in Korean waters. He returned to Japan a year later with Patrol Squadron 50 stationed at Ewa Kuni.

After being discharged from the Navy, Joe settled in Little Rock and attended Little Rock University (now UALR) where he received a degree in accounting. He became a revenue agent with the Internal Revenue Service in 1961. He was transferred to El Dorado in 1968 where he met Betty. She was the daughter of William F. and Annie M. Via of Union County, in a company run sawmill town named Huttig, situated in the southern part of the county near the Louisiana line. Betty's family came to Union County as the timber industry was migrating into the rich Arkansas virgin pine forests. Her great-great-grandfather was a Confederate soldier, who died in the Battle of Atlanta.

Joe and Betty have two children, Lori (Lori Lane) and Freddy (Joel Frederick). They were both born in El Dorado. Freddy was in the 4th grade and Lori was in the 6th grade when they enrolled in the Springdale School System. They attended Elmdale, Central and Springdale High School. Lori is now a student at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, where she is a member of Tri-Delta Sorority and is a majorette with the Arkansas Razorback Band. Freddy is a senior at Springdale High school, where he was a member of the Bulldog football team. He plans to attend the University of Arkansas this fall.

Betty is secretary for the Shiloh Museum where she has worked since 1981. Joe is group manager in charge of the Fayetteville Internal Revenue Service office.

Artie Boyd

The Boyd story continues with the fourth child of Benjamin Edward Boyd and Easter Florence Graham (Artie Boyd) who was born 12 December 1895. The home was located on a farm in the Goshen Community (Washington County, Arkansas). She attended a one-room country school, Pleasant View School, and probably didn't get beyond the sixth grade. Like her brothers and sisters, she helped on the farm wherever needed. There were always things to do like cooking, washing dishes, making rugs on hand loom, washing, ironing, feeding chickens, canning, milking, quilting, sewing and embroidering. When she was a little older, she picked strawberries for her uncles (Ras, Ira, and Jasper Graham) who lived in the vicinity of Springdale, Arkansas. Also during this time she worked for various families in Fayetteville doing housework.

Mrs. Artie (Boyd) Sicard

Her brother, Jesse, brought a handsome young man home for Sunday dinner. Jesse and Frank R. Sicard worked together on building a bridge across White River on Highway 45 not very far from their home. Artie and Frank fell in love. Upon completion of the bridge, Frank went to work in Oklahoma. Artie joined him there and were married in Muskogee, Oklahoma, on 21 April 1919.

They established a home in Richardville, McIntosh County, Oklahoma. Their first child, Eugenia Mae, was born there on 10 January 1920. Shortly thereafter they moved to Hitchita, which was only a few miles away. The family next moved to Bristow, Oklahoma, during the opening of the first oil field there. In 1925 they moved to an oil lease outside of Beggs, Oklahoma. Another child was born, Lonina Louise, on 6 April 1925. For her confinement, Artie went to her parent's home in the vicinity of Goshen, Arkansas, so Lonina was born there. She was the third generation to be born on the Boyd farm. (There have been eight generations who lived on or visited this Boyd homestead.) Frank was transferred to an oil field close to Shidler, Oklahoma, in 1927. Then he was transferred by the Sinclair Oil Company to the Wewoka/Seminole area (Oklahoma) and the family joined him there in 1929, and they remained there until 1936. They then moved to an oil lease near Stonewall, Oklahoma. They moved to Gainesville, Texas, in 1939, where he still worked for Sinclair.

During this period of time Artie remained at home as a homemaker. She took care of the cooking, cleaning, washing, ironing, sewing, marketing, nursing, and whatever else might have been necessary. She was always there and devoted herself completely to her family.

Frank died on 3 April 1942. Shortly afterwards Artie and daughter, Lonina, moved to Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, since Eugenia and her husband, Reinhart Olsen, (m. 11 December 1941) were living there. Lonina married Rollin Delbert Moore on 12 March 1944, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Artie was now alone, and she found it necessary to work outside the home for the first time. After much searching and heartache she found employment doing alterations on military uniforms and military supplies. Somehow she forced herself to continue working after she developed a heart condition as she didn't want to be a "burden" on anyone. Her health deteriorated and she was forced to retire in 1959. Her enlarged heart finally gave out on her on 22 July 1961. Artie Boyd Sicard was laid to rest on 25 July 1961 in Memorial Park Cemetery, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

After the death of their father, Benjamin Edward Boyd, on 5 July 1945, her unmarried sister, Lou Boyd came to live with her. Artie supported her a great deal of the time. Loy and Artie continued to live together for the remainder of Artie's lifetime.

Artie had the following descendants: Charles Eugene Olsen, born 26 May 1951, and Linda Karen Olsen, born 16 September 1963; and a great granddaughter, Jennifer Nichole Olsen (father-Charles Eugene), born 10 August 1983. Also, an adopted daughter of Lonina and Rollin Moore, Denise Louise Moore, born 17 January 1956.

This couple (Artie and Frank) had simple tastes, thinking mainly of their family, neighbors, church, and country, but what is so wrong with that. They strived to rear their two daughters in the best way they knew. They were honest and hard working people. They made whatever sacrifice necessary in order to supply the needs and wants of others. We are eternally grateful for such wonderful parents.

Ben Boyd

Scotland, 950 AD, and Ewarin, Count of Dol, seem so far away from Washington County and 1987. However, the first recorded ancestors were from Scotland. It was not until the 1200s that Sir Robert Took the surname "Boyt" or Boyd, and a coat of arms was granted to him in 1206.

Benjamin and Florence Graham Boyd, photo taken about 1932.

We can follow the ancient Boyds to our immigrants: William, Willis and Ezekiel. These brothers sailed for America in the 1700s. William's son (also named William) was born August 11, 1760, in Southampton County, Virginia. He enlisted in April 1777 as a Revolutionary soldier, while a resident of Rowan County, North Carolina. After the war he lived in Montgomery County, North Carolina; Warren County, Tennessee; Lauder County, Alabama; and McNairy County, Tennessee.

William arrived in Washington County the latter part of 1829 or early 1830. He was not on the "Sheriff's Census of 1829" but was in the 1830 Census. He was listed with one female between age 15-20 and two females under 5. His sons: Mack, William Daniel, and Willis appear in the 1840 Washington County Census (Prairie Township).

Willis and wife (Lucy Surratt) are in the 1840 Census with these children: male: two under age 5 (Ezekiel and unknown); one between 5-10 years (William); and one between 10-15 years (Jacob); and a female between 10-15 years (Margare). About 1843 Willis married Lucinda Waldrip (wife of Willis' brother, Ezekial, deceased). They had the following children born in Washington County: Amanda, John Thompson, "Bud", Darcadia, James, and Martha.

William, and his son Willis (plus other Boyds) received land grants and purchased several tracts of land which would be between present day Goshen and Springdale. This would indicate they were basically farmers. Tradition has it Willis was also a veterinarian.

William (Wid) was born in Washington County on July 1, 1833. He married Mary Jane Mitchell (daughter of Richard Mitchell and Cynthia H. Owenby - see Mitchell story) on November 8, 1855. They were married by Rev. Moses Dutton. They had the following children, all being born in Washington County: James C., Margaret L., Cynthia Katherin, Benjamin Edward (born October 25, 1863), William Ann, and Thomas Wright. Wid was deceased by January 1888, and his widow later moved to Westville, Oklahoma, where she died on April 1, 1917.

Upon his father's death Benjamin Edward (Ben) had to assume the responsibility of farming and supporting his mother, brothers, and sisters. Ben married Easter Florence Graham (daughter of Peter Graham and Temperance Wilson) (see Graham and Wilson histories) on December 14, 1888. Rev J. Thomp Boyd (Ben's uncle) performed the ceremony. To this union were born the following: Winnie Ethel, Loy, Jesse, Artie (born December 12, 1895), Elwin Seward, and Charlie Hill. Ben was a hard-working farmer and all the children did their part by working on the farm and for local farmers. Winnie and Loy who never married continued to live with their father until his death on July 5, 1947. Florence predeceased Ben, having died on May 6, 1934. Both are buried along side their son, Elwin, in the Goshen Cemetery. Jesse, Charlie, and Artie (m. Frank R. Sicard) married and moved to Oklahoma in the early 1920s, where they lived until their death.

A few reflections on Ben and Florence: Buggy rides, carrying water from spring, his homegrown tobacco, weaving rugs on loom, sorghum-making time, delicious home-cured ham and bacon, beautiful flower garden, making apple cider and lye soap, sassafras tea, "washing feet" and "dinner on the ground" at Buckner Primitive Baptist Church, and so much more. Their grandchildren spent many wonderful summers with these very special people.

The Boyd family had possession of the land for about 90 years with four generations of Boyds being born there. The Boyd name not only disappeared from land records but also this old northwest Arkansas family disappeared too. There was no male progeny from Ben's children to continue the name.

William David Boyd

William David Boyd, the second son of William Boyd and Martha MacGregor was born in North Carolina on April 22, 1806, and the following year moved with his family to McMinnville, Tennessee. On January 18, 1827, he married a fifteen year old, half-breed Cherokee, named Elizabeth Oxford. Sometime after their first child was born in McMinnville, they made the trip to northwest Arkansas by flat boat. The boat trip was quite an experience. The boat, 12' x 25' had crude living quarters at each end. William Boyd had sold everything he had and carried only a couple of trunks and a leather bag of gold. To the pioneer families, floating westward through the wilderness, particularly along the Ohio, presented a constant threat. Indians, eager for a scalping party lurked in the canebranches, and the forested banks of the river were alive with river pirates. Once the flatboats shoved off downstream, they landed no more than necessary. Farmers turned riverboat captains learned quickly how to keep away from shore as they drifted through the darkness of night. An old navigation trick was to whack the side of the boat with the flat side of an ax, and listen for the echo. The time it took for the banks to bounce the warning back to the boat, told him which way to steer to keep to midstream. This method of dodging the danger is typical of the special skills the pioneer had to learn to keep his family safe. The family floated down the Tennessee River to the Ohio, thence down the Ohio to the Mississippi, thence down to the mouth of the Arkansas, where William Boyd hired a tugboat to pull him up to the site of present day Van Buren, Arkansas. There he sold the scow, bought horses and wagon and made the trip over the Boston Mountains to what was then Washington Court House (Fayetteville). They arrived in early February 1830 when his wife was heavy with their second child. There was not much of a town, but there was a wagon yard where they camped. During the day William Boyd scouted the area for a desirable place and finally settled on White River about five miles east of town, later to be known as Oxford Bend, named in honor of Elizabeth's brother. The second baby was born in a wagon on February 23, 1830, no doubt among the crudest of surroundings and little if any care, but this seems by no means to have been a detriment to the baby's good health, for she, Mary Ann Boyd Barr, lived to the ripe old age of 93.

Elizabeth Oxford Boyd and William David Boyd (date unknown).

The Boyd's sent word back to Tennessee that there was plenty of free land for all and later that summer a large number of family and friends arrived from McMinnville, Tennessee.

William Boyd built a large two story log house for his family which stood for over on hundred years. His grandson, the late Drury Boyd, told of seeing the house in 1936 and heard later that in 1942, government men were out scouring the country looking for walnut logs to be made into gun stocks for the army. They heard about the Boyd log cabin and virtually forced the owner to sell it. The logs were in perfect condition. The logs were cut into six foot lengths and shipped back east to the gun factories. Drury Boyd often wondered if any of the logs, as M1 stocks had reached Omaha Beach at Normandy or perhaps gone ashore at Iwo Jima in the Pacific.

The ten children of William and Elizabeth Boyd were: Nancy,

b. 1828 in Tennessee; Mary Ann, born 1830; Malinda, b. 1833; Ben Franklin, b. 1835; Lavina, b. 1838; Francis Marion, b. 1840; Rebecca Margaret, b. 1843; Albert Washington, b. 1845; William A., b. 1850; and Clementine, b. 1852. The many descendants of the Boyds include families named, Henson, Stone, Johnson, Walker, Reynolds, Barr, Davis, Woolsey, Flood, Bagby, Reed, Livingston, and of course more Boyds.

Mary Ann, the first born descendant in Washington County, married John Franklin Barr, on July 2, 1850, and to them were born nine children. Two sons died young and are buried in Oxford Bend Cemetery. Those that married and raised families of their own were Nancy, twins Melle and Belle, James Humphrey, Dora, Ida, and Oscar Franklin. Frank, well known in the Fayetteville area in the filed of music, formed childrens bands throughout the county and taught at the University. James Humphrey married Willie Arnold in 1893 and for several years taught Indian children on reservations in Indian Territory (Oklahoma), Oregon and Colorado before returning to Lowell to raise their family. Their son Harry was killed in a train accident, while working as a fireman in Idaho. Hazel married Aubrey Pinkston and had no children. Olivia married Roger Reed and they raised a family of five boys, Bruce, Louis, Richard, Vernon, and Harry. Mildred married Glen Livingston and they raised two boys, Jack and Marvin.

Elizabeth Oxford Boyd died in 1877 at the home of son-in-law and daughter John and Mary Ann Barr. About 1880 William Boyd married a widow, Jane Moody, who preceded him in death. He died Christmas Day 1891. He and Elizabeth are buried in Oxford Bend Cemetery.

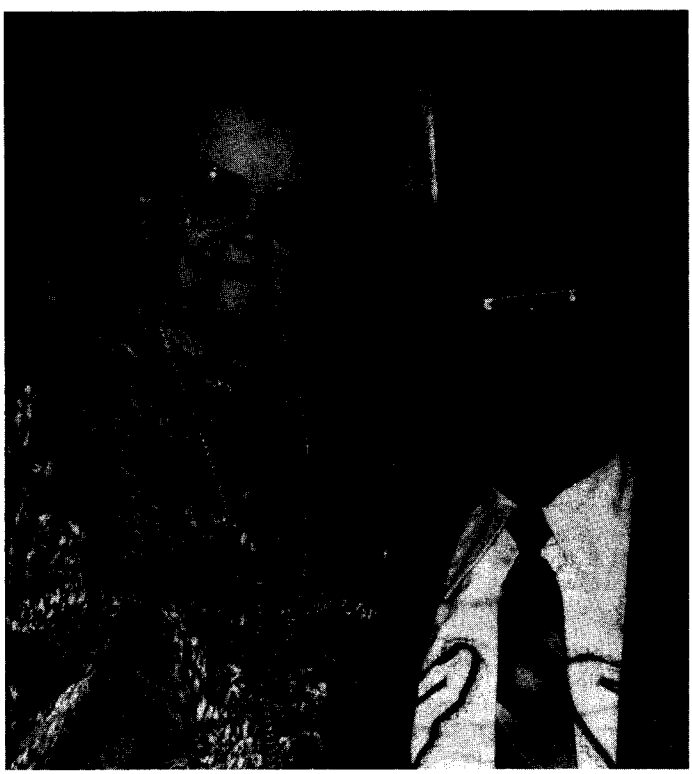
Algie Braly

Leonard Adam Mischler is the name on Algie's baptismal certificate listing his parents as Adam and Olga Mischler. Sponsors, Leonard Mandry and Miss Lizzie Heuly are on the certificate also. Leonard Adam was born September 1, 1905; baptized (looks like) nineteenth of November, 1905, at the Church of the Holy Comforter in New York.



Shirley and Algie Braly - 1989.

Algie Braly, Johnny Brant and Madeline (last name unknown).

December 28, 1909, Leonard Adam, his brother John (b. October 2, 1906) and sisters, Madeline (b. July 4, 1899), Elizabeth (b. June 7, 1900), Barbara (b. May 20, 1901), were placed in the Brooklyn Industrial School Association and Home for Destitute Children at 217 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, New York.

The children remained here until May 18, 1912, when the Children's Aid Society took over their care. A letter from the CAS dated December 5, 1988, stated the parents, for various reasons could not care for the children.

The letter gave further information about their mother being from Sweden and her full name as being Alger Essex Mischler.

In 1913 the children were brought to northwest Arkansas with a group of homeless children and placed in several different homes until each was grown. This unique program of removing children from eastern institutions to new homes in rural America became known as the Orphan Trains after a book and movie by the same name was written and produced in 1979. Not all children were true "orphans", some were abandoned, some lost and others homeless for various reasons. The Mischler children were placed in an orphanage due to family circumstances.

In 1986, after learning about the Orphan Trains, I interviewed Algie Braly and from this interview and subsequent visits, I have written his story for this Washington County History Book using my notes and a wonderful writing of Algie's life by his wife, Shirley Braly.

Algie remembers his grandfather as being a German Merchant Marine Captain visiting with the family every time his ship came to the New York Port. Madeline would pull a red wagon with Algie in it to the dock to meet him.

Another younger brother was not taken to the orphanage but Algie later got information on Fred's whereabouts and what happened to him.

Many brothers and sister taken on the Orphan Trains were separated never to find each other again. The Mischler children were among the lucky ones to know about each other, eventually.

In 1988, a television program "Unsolved Mysteries" filmed a short piece with Algie and Johnny telling about finding each other. It was aired nationwide on NBC. Johnny flew from South Carolina to Arkansas for the production.

Leonard Adam Mischler was eventually adopted by Frank Braly living in the community of Clyde near Cane Hill.

The "western" agent for the CAS handling the Mischler children's placements was P. C. Morgan. Algie described Morgan's horse and buggy as having fringe around the black top of the two-seat buggy. Morgan's job was to check on the children from time to time and to remove them if conditions were not satisfactory. To secure Leonard Adam's position in the Braly household, he was adopted and his name changed to Algie Braly.

Algie's first wife was Violet Walker, a widow with three children. Algie and Violet's children are Gay Patterson married to Howard Patterson and they have one son, Reggie Patterson; and Ray Braly is married to Marsha Curtis. Violet died in 1973.

Ray's children are Paul and Glen Ray.

Ray bought the old historic Vinzeller Farm where he now raises horses.

Algie and Shirley Hanon Tucker were married. Shirley Hanon (b. 2/24/1914 in Vernon County, Missouri) married Earl Wesley Tucker and their children were/are Dallas, Betty, Rosanne, Sherrie Sue, Steven and Bonnie. Earl passed away at the age of 36 with Malta Fever. Sherrie Sue lived only until 3 years and 8 months old and died from rheumatic fever.

Rosanne is Rose Wallace and is in business with her husband, Herschel Wallace, Wallace's TV Repair Service in Fayetteville.

Shirley and Algie live in Prairie Grove where Algie still works part-time for Jones' Lumber Yard. It is within walking distance of their home.

Algie is a great animal lover and can visit for hours relating stories of his pets over the years and some of his experiences.

Algie once walked from Fayetteville to Cane Hill carrying a pressure cooker for Violet. For years after the depression he worked for Tune Construction.

In October 1988, Algie and Johnny were photographed for the front page of the Northwest Arkansas Times during the first annual Reunion of the Orphan Train Heritage Society of America, Inc., (OTHSA).

Algie has graciously allowed his personal family story to be preserved as historical data with OTHSA's open research files. In 1989, Shirley and Algie worked together getting all of his remembrances on paper in order to preserve it. A book may be written as a result of this work. Disney Studios in Hollywood, California, considered it for a segment on the Wonderful World of Disney but at this writing this has not been confirmed.

The 'kith and kin' of Algie, Johnny, Madeline, Elizabeth, and Barbara can be very proud of the five brave little children brought to Arkansas on an Orphan Train in 1913.

Elizabeth Brantley

Elizabeth Brantley was born about 1806 in Maury/Williamson County, Tennessee to John Brantley and Rebecca Hill. Elizabeth's brothers and sisters: Blake married Margaret Dotson; Phillip married Jemina Box (Cox); Harriet married 1/h David Anderson and 2/h George W. Strumbler; Nancy married Moses Bumpass; Frances H. married Perry G. Nabors/Neighbors; Joseph married Susannah Clayton; William J. married Nancy A. Glass; Martha married John Vickers; and Mary Casee.

Elizabeth married 20 May 1826 in Hardeman County, Tennessee, to John M. Graham/Grayham. (Refer to Graham/Grayham). As a young bride, she moved to Washington County, Arkansas about 1827 where three of her children were born. Margaret Rebecca Graham was born about 1829, Jesse Hill Graham was born 27 May 1833 at Nob Hill in Washington County, Arkansas, and John Graham, Jr. born about 1837. During this period, Elizabeth was caring for her children alone as her husband was serving in the Texas Cavalry during the Texas War for Independence. He was discharged 30 September 1836.

John moved the family to Washington County, Texas about 1838 and Elizabeth gave birth to her daughters, Jane Elizabeth and Mary Ann.

Elizabeth's death occurred prior to 1850 as stated in Mary Ann Graham's guardianship paper filed in Burnet County, Texas. It is believed that Elizabeth died in Washington County, Texas. Elizabeth's children settled in Texas and her sons helped settle the new state of California and the Oregon and Washington Territories.

Margaret Rebecca Graham - (Refer to John M. Graham or Grayham).

Jesse Hill Graham died 5 May 1816 at Wahkiakum County, Washington. He married Juldah M. Hathaway about 1864 in Oregon Territory. Children: Nellie Ellen Burton; Orpha E. Foster; Jessie Maude Jones; Edward R.; Phebe E. married 1/h a McCracken and 2/h a Alverson; and Martha "Toots" Smith.

John Graham, Jr. was listed on the 1860 U. S. Census in San Joaquin County, California with his son, John age 5, his father, John M., and his brother, Napoleon D. Graham.

Jane Elizabeth Graham born about 1839 in Washington County, Texas and died 27 February 1924 in Texas. She married 16 November 1855 in Burnet County, Texas to Louis Harlow. Children: Samuel A.; William R.; Elizabeth; Josephine; Jesse; and Nancy Jane. All these children were born in Texas.

Mary Ann Graham born 14 October 1841 in Washington County, Texas and died 31 January 1935 in Fresno County, California. She married 1 January 1860 in Burnet County, Texas to N. John Smith Akers. Children: John Harvey; Margaret Jane married 1/h Edward A. Dooley and 2/h George Whitlock; Mary D.; Albustus; Albie Ann married John Michiel Garton; Nancy Frances; and Rosylee married William Wayne Wimmer.

David Bridenthal

The earliest Bridenthal to come to Washington County was "Hon". David Bridenthal who was born on July 7, 1823 in Johnstown, Pennsylvania, the son of John Anthony Bridenthal and Elizabeth Hoevel. John Anthony Bridenthal was from Darmstadt, Germany and was a weaver by trade. His son, David, married Catherine Lucella Ashford of Oakland Plantation, Courtland, Alabama on August 3, 1849, after he met her while teaching at Union University in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. In 1850, David Bridenthal established the Mountain Home Female Academy in northern Alabama, living there for several years. He then moved to Texas, was admitted to the bar and then enlisted in the Confederate Army in 1862 and served for two years. David Bridenthal then came to Washington County and accumulated 700 acres of land. (This land is where the Northwest Arkansas Mall is located today—between Fayetteville and Springdale.)

"Hon" Bridenthal established the Clear Creek Academy and operated it until the 1870s. He was a Baptist and served as a deacon in the Shady Grove Baptist Church. He was a Democrat and represented Washington County in the State Legislature in the 1873-74 session. He was a great orator and spoke at many school graduation ceremonies around the county as well as the 4th of July celebrations.

David Bridenthal and Catherine Ashford had five children. They are as follows: Ada J. (1850-1881) married John S. Bookout; Thomas John (1851-1927) who married Laura T. Rader; Elizabeth Hevel (1854-1897) who married Thomas William White (they built one of the finest Queen Anne homes in the Washington-Willow Historic District in Fayetteville in 1889 at 503 North Willow); David Augustus (1855-1893) who married Artelia M. Couch and Maud Elgin (1860-1930) who married Alexander Bird Henson. David and Catherine Lucella are both buried at Gehring Cemetery, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

David Augustus, son of David and Catherine L., died very suddenly and unexpectedly at the age of 33 on September 27, 1893. He left his wife Artelia "Artie" and five small children, the youngest being an infant. These children were David Ernest (1885-1922) who married Grace Brogdon; Homer "Gus" Augustus (1887-1950) who married Julia Morton; Ewell Alfred (1888-1966) who married Caroline Courtney; Virgil (1890-1902) and Harry Lee (1894-1964) who married (1) Sarah Lillie Carl and (2) Lucille Comer. David Augustus Bridenthal was also buried at Gehring Cemetery as was his son Virgil, who died at the age of 12. David Ernest is buried in Evergreen Cemetery in Fayetteville and the other sons, Homer Augustus, Ewell Alfred and Harry Lee are all buried at Fairview Cemetery along with their mother Artelia.

Descendants of Harry Lee Bridenthal and Sarah Lillie Carl are one son, Carl Lee Bridenthal (1915-) who married Hazel Sweetser and their three daughters. These are Mary Emily (1937-) who married Marion L. Clark; Sara Lee (1939-) who married Jack Sanders and Robbie Jean (1943-) who married Peter Braunfisch. Carl and Hazel Bridenthal have nine children.

Harry Lee Bridenthal and his second wife, Lucille Comer, had one daughter, Beverly (1933-) who married Louis J. Kocotas.

Rev. Thomas Brinson

From 1839 until 1987 - a period of 148 years - Washington County, Arkansas, has been the home to six generations of Brinsons, all in direct line of descent.

First of the family in Arkansas was the Reverend Thomas Moss Brinson, an ordained Baptist minister, and a native of Wilson County, Tennessee. After a year's sojourn in Illinois in 1838, Thomas, his wife, Polly, and their two young children, traveled to Washington County to rejoin Polly's relatives and to live near old friends again.

Thomas had been born in 1813 near Lebanon, Tennessee, to Jesse C. Brinson and his wife, Susanna. The young couple had married in 1812, and Jesse kept busy, endeavoring to be a farmer, businessman, and assistant to his father, Reverend James Brinson, Jr., who was active in two churches. Jesse's career was cut short in 1817, perhaps by the deadly "cold plague" which decimated families in northern Tennessee counties that year.

At seven, young Thomas was being brought up under the guardianship of his maternal grandfather, Dr. William Moss, who lived in or near Lebanon. His mother had wed again to one Joshua Bradbury. His Brinson grandfather, with all his kith and kin from North Carolina, had departed for northwestern Louisiana where, after 1820, he became the first and foremost pioneer minister and a founder of churches. Perhaps he had told his little grandson, before leaving Tennessee, that he was on a pilgrimage west to spread the Gospel. Perhaps he explained that he had financed his expedition with the sale of five hundred fertile acres in Pamlico County, North Carolina, his heritage from his father, James Brinson, Sr. (1730-1790), also an ordained Baptist minister who was acclaimed up and down the Neuse River for his good works. Perhaps he mentioned that the boy's great-grandfather had been Cason Brinson, Sr., a devout man and legendary planter of the New Bern area in Craven County, North Carolina.

To return to "Polly" Brinson, she was born Mary Rieff, August, 1814, in Wilson County, Tennessee. Her parents, John and Hannah Ross Rieff, accompanied by at least five other children, one of John Rieff's brothers, a nephew and various related wives and children arrived in Washington County in 1838. They were accompanied by wagons of household belongings and farming equipment under the supervision of several slaves. The Rieff men set about buying land, and among other tracts, John acquired Keasler Mountain. His home was erected at Cato Springs.

Here Polly could bring her children to visit their grandparents. Thomas Brinson settled southeast of Fayetteville, presumably on land he acquired with government patents. He was accepted to serve with the Middle Fork Baptist Church of which he was to become an Elder. Through the years, he officiated at many marriages of young people of the community and beyond.

In those days, Baptist preachers knew little of financial success. His family probably lived in a log house very similar to those of their neighbors. For Thomas, farming was necessary to support his ever increasing family. It was a life of challenge but not of ease.

On November 11, 1853, Polly Brinson died leaving motherless six or seven children, the eldest of whom was John Martin, 18. Polly was buried at Rieff's Chapel Cemetery on the hillside of Keasler's Mountain, being placed beside her mother and in a similar sandstone vault. Hannah had preceded her in death by only five months.

Her sandstone marker bears this inscription: "Here lies Hannah, the wife of my youth, the mother of my children Born December 12, 1781. Died April 17, 1853. John Rieff."

In 1854, John Martin Brinson set up a household of his own, probably not far from his father's domicile. His bride was Cyrene Kincade Wood, daughter of Sarah and John Wood, Jr. of the Middle Fork of the White River. The Woods were on the first census of Arkansas in 1829. The first names of Sarah's parents are not known, but she was born in Arkansas to an early Crawford family.

John and Cyrene were to become the parents of eight children, three of whom died young. They lived all of their long lives in Washington County with the exception of a few years spent on a farm in Benton County. Cyrene liked the new homestead with rock free, level acres. John missed the hill country, and to their old abode they returned, or to that of his father.

Managing to preach and counsel through the trying days of the Civil War, Reverend Thomas died in 1865. He asked to be buried beside Polly, and so he was. At the head of his grave was erected a marble pedestal showing his name and an open Bible.

In the years between their father's death and the year 1880, with the exception of John, all of the children of Thomas and Polly Brinson, left Washington County. The West was opportunity land, and most of these young Brinsons, male and female were claimed by Commanche County in midwest Texas. James, a younger son, became a preacher. And in due time, following their uncles and aunts, the elder sons of John and Cyrene established themselves in Commanche County. One of their descendants became superintendent of the school district and another, mayor of DeLeon.

Thomas Andrew, or "Tom," the third son of Cyrene and John, lived on his father's farm until the age of 21 when he married Amanda Gollahar, 20, on August 19, 1886. Amanda was the daughter of Eliza Jane Gollahar, second wife of the late Henry Gollahar (1814-1878). The Gollahars had moved into Washington County from Illinois County 1830-1835 and settled on a farm near West Fork.

Oklahoma and Arkansas alternately served as a place of residence for Tom and Amanda. They were living in Tahlequah, Oklahoma, when (Thomas) Everett, their fifth and last child was born on November 29, 1893. Soon after this, the parents returned to Fayetteville where Tom found work with Bates Brothers Grocers. As a teen-ager, Everett remembered going out to the old Brinson farm and hunting the various game birds that could still be found there.

On March 21, 1910, Cyrene died and was buried at Rieff's Chapel Cemetery. John was not to join her for another nine years, living until August 16, 1919. He was 83 years old. Dr. Harvey Doak Wood, Cyrene's cousin, wrote as to the cause of his demise: "Arteriosclerosis - old age and hard work."

In the meantime, after spending a year or so visiting relatives and working as far west as California and Oregon, young Everett Brinson had returned to Fayetteville on November 24, 1917. He married Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Jeff and Molly Davis. The Davis family had moved to Fayetteville in 1896 from northern Mississippi. Jeff Davis was an ardent Mason and later became Grand High Priest of the Royal Order of Masons for Arkansas. Among other things, he was a realtor and farmer. His son-in-law worked with him in these vocations and later, himself, owned the Waffle House Cafe, a popular restaurant on the Fayetteville Square.

Everett Brinson died October 17, 1939. Elizabeth, his widow, lived until 1962, proud to see their three children graduate from the University of Arkansas; Marian in 1939, and the boys, Pat and Paul after World War II. when both returned to Fayetteville after their years of military service.

Marian married Bill Lisman, who graduated with a geology major from the University of Arkansas in 1940. For the past 30 years they have lived in Shreveport, Louisiana. where Bill has pursued his career as independent geologist and oil producer. They have a daughter, Diane Lisman Camp, of Dallas, who also graduated from the University of Arkansas.

Paul Brinson is retired in Gainesville, Georgia, after serving years as District Sales Manager for Saulsbury Poultry Products. He is married to Margaret (Mickie) Walther of Fayetteville, and they have four children, Phillip, George, David, and Carol Brinson Cox, all of whom are graduates of the University of Georgia, and all of whom live and work in Georgia. Paul and Mickie, in addition, have seven grandchildren.

Pat received a BS degree from the University of Arksansas. As an Honor Graduate he accepted a regular commission from the AFROTC in the Air Force. His military career has spanned World Was II through the Vietnam Conflict. He retired with the rank of Lieutenant - Colonel and returned to Fayetteville. He is married to Freda Greathouse of Fayetteville and they have two children who both reside in Fayetteville: Jan Carol Brinson, wife of Martin Russell, will receive her Masters Degree in education from the University of Arkansas this year; and Gary Brinson, who attended the University, and now works in health care at the Veteran's Hospital in Fayetteville. He is a Registered Nurse in ICU. Gary is the sixth generation Washington County Brinson.

Pat and Freddie have recently built a new home on South Mountain, in Fayetteville. Theirs is a house of windows that almost any day offers a grand view of Kessler Mountain and almost any night of the sparkling lights of Fayetteville.

Sidney Moore Britton, Sr.

Sidney Moore Britton, Sr. born: North Carolina, May 1920. Katherine Kostangelopes Britton born: New Jersey, January 1926. Children: Sidney M. Britton, Jr. born: New Jersey, October 1946. James Richard Britton born: North Carolina, May 1950. Mary Elizabeth Britton born: North Carolina, November 1955.

Sidney and I, along with our daughter Mary Elizabeth, first came to Lincoln in June 1972. We visited with Clyde and Peggy Wood, and their family. We fell in love with the sunsets, the quietness, most of all, the people. We returned twice a year until we purchased the old James place five miles northwest of Lincoln in August 1978. Our children, Sid Jr., Rick and Mary Elizabeth, were grown, out of school, all living in Florida. Sidney and I felt as though we were coming home. But before we were to move in 1980, the house was burned. That didn't deter us; we pulled in a mobile home, re-added the previously built room and hauled our belongings nearly 1400 miles from Glen Burnie, Maryland. Our petite sized daughter-in-law, Anita, Sid Jr.'s wife, did most of the driving. She shifted gears like a pro. This was November, and of course it snowed.

"Sidney had been a printer, working on Apollo and Gemini projects, I was a circulation supervisor with the Anne Arundel Library system. That explains our interest in books.

Clyde Wood, George Sievers, Henry Jordan, Art Capeheart, along with others, helped Sidney get our place habitable. First, the clean-up after the fire, then the new pump, mobile home, new room, new wood heater. After we made it in, Henry and Sidney began cutting wood. We had to hurry and build a sturdy hog pen. Peggy had raised two hogs for us from the pigs we had purchased from Ed Graves. Got them bred and we felt we were on our way. How little we knew.

We purchased two Holstein calves from Brian and Charlene Weaver that were to be bottle fed. Our first sight of the size of the bottle shocked us. Ossie Sievers came to the rescue. She showed us the way to mix milk replacer and how to put the nipple on without the bottle slipping and pouring milk everywhere. She never did tell us how to keep the calf from butting.

Well, we learned a lot. These two senior citizens have had a lifetime of hard work, fun and much love, all shared with our neighbors. We've learned about working in chicken houses; learned to milk (very short period); learned about calves becoming steers. Also, we learned about dumb turkeys. We've had beautiful vegetable gardens - Sidney's pet projects. We have canned hundreds of jars of fruits and vegetables.

I went to work for EOA Housing in Fayetteville. My traveling all over Washington County made me realize even more how much I love this place called northwest Arkansas. One of our favorite people has been Cora Barnett Trustle. She's a long-time resident. We have enjoyed her excellent memory in relating events in Gem Community since they made the trip by wagon from Texas.

Now, in 1987, we're in the process of renovating our barn. We had the roof torn down by Ken Jordan, Henry and Irene's son. The posts and center of the barn are still intact. It has been standing for close to sixty years. Heaviest oak boards ever made. We have become proficient in dragging posts and boards; picking up nails; and fetching ice water.

Soon will be time for Henry and Irene, Sidney and me to cut our winter wood. I love these times, but I realize very quickly that though the "spirit is anxious, the body has slowed somewhat."

Our efforts have produced seven cows who yearly give us a calf apiece, thanks to cooperation from Shorty, Irene Jordan's beautiful bull. We have our food for the coming year; our hay for our cows' winter feed.

Our only regret is that our grandchildren have not yet been able to be with us. Sidney and I wouldn't enjoy living anywhere else. Big cities, noise, dirt, impersonal people are left behind. We're living and loving our home, our neighbors, our church. As my brother-in-law, John, said on his visit here, "This is how God meant people to live; loving and caring for each other."

Wilburn H. Brock

Wilburn Hamilton "Major" Brock was born 1827 in North Carolina of German descent. His wife, Sarah Emmeline Siniard, was born 1825 in North Carolina, to James and Abigail (Jourdan) Siniard, of French-Indian descent. Major and Emmeline married 1850 in DeKalb County, Alabama. Their children were Amanda married Howard Redman; Hoyt married Mary Calvert; Kittie married John Brown and Brinkley Lassiter; Martha married John Redman and Add Dobbins; Mollie married Joseph McCutcheon.

When Mollie was about one, the mother died, about 1866. In 1868, Major brought his family to Washington County, Arkansas and in December married Ann (McClendon) Gilstrap. They lived near Lee's Creek and on Caudle's Bluff near Hoyt. Major ran a mercantile store in the 1880s. He is one of several men listed in the Goodspeed's History of Washington County, 1889, to have brought the old watermill plant from the head of the creek to West Fork in 1875, and built a steam mill there.

Major and Ann had children, Wade, married Flora Smith and Seraptha Kennedy; Charles married Edna Hale; Della, married Mr. Jacob or Jobe, and Caviness; Ella married Gordy Dakin; Eva, died at age eighteen of typhoid fever; and Omar, married Altha Winn.

Major was a sad man, having a hard time getting along with his wife and children as he grew older. He spent much time in Scott County, Arkansas, where his older children were, as well as old friends from Alabama. He passed away in 1912 and is buried near Eva in Blackburn Cemetery, near Winslow.

William Hoyt Brock, born 1852 Alabama, married 1874 Mary Elizabeth Calvert. She was born 1851 in Arkansas to Milford and Permilia (Skelton) Stelle Calvert. Hoyt was stocky-built, fair skin, blue eyes, and wore his black hair in long braids. Mary was a very dark-skinned woman with black, curly hair. He was a farmer. She was a midwife, herb lady, and fine seamstress. Their children were William Franklin "Will", married Cassie Tanner, moved to Fairland, Oklahoma about 1907; Charles Rivers "Buddy", married Mary Florence Tanner, lived in West Fork; George Austin, married Theora Cate; Lennard Lee, died age sixteen; Minnie Ellen, married Lou Tanner, lived Fayetteville; John Thomas "Keely" married Ida Lona Chastain, moved to Fairland, Oklahoma, also; Etta Luvinia, married Edward Smallen, lived in Stilwell, Oklahoma; Alfred, died at age two in Canon City, Colorado; Lillie Ann, married Frank Loftin, lived in Fayetteville.

George Austin Brock, born September 23, 1877, Van Buren, Arkansas, married in 1898 to Theora Docia Cate. She was born August 17, 1879, Prairie Grove, Arkansas, to James and Elizabeth (Rutherford) Cate. They moved to Stilwell, Oklahoma after 1911. They also lived at Fort Smith, Sapulpa and Pawhuska, Oklahoma before moving back to West Fork in 1932. Their children were Pansy Manila, married Lloyd Hightower; Marvie Ellen, married Lee Ketcher, lived in Stilwell; Millie May, married John Catcher, lived in Stilwell; James Carthel "Banjo", married Clara Whistler and Beulah (McHaffie) Gamble; Loyd Austin and George Loy, twins, (last to be born in West Fork), married-Loyd to Ethel Pittman and Loy to May Goodson, both in Wynona; Gladys Lucretia, married Leo Stanton, lives in Wynona; Walter, born and died in 1919, Stilwell. Austin and Theora died while living in Stilwell, Oklahoma. Austin's sister, Minnie, requested to be buried by him and so she is. They are in Charlie Reese Cemetery near Peavine, Oklahoma.

Pansy Manila Brock, born May 24, 1899, West Fork, married in 1917 to Lloyd Eratus Hightower, both of Barron Fork, Oklahoma. He was born September 2, 1894 in Lanagan, Missouri to George and Mary (Slankard) Hightower. They lived at Barron Fork, Stilwell, Wynona, Pensacola and Kenwood, Oklahoma before settling in Vinita, Oklahoma in 1932. He was a construction worker, and was the foreman of the cleaning crew on the Pensacola Dam project. She was an ordained minister of the Full-Gospel organization. They were well-known for their singing ability. Lloyd passed away in Vinita July 19, 1963. Pansy remarried in 1978 to Alfred VanGundy. She passed away January 6, 1985 in Vinita. They are buried in the Spavinaw, Oklahoma Cemetery. Their children were Roscoe Edward, Lloyd Denzil and Lloyd Melvin. Denzil and Melvin both died as infants.

Roscoe Edward Hightower was born September 23, 1919, Stilwell, Oklahoma. He married in 1943 to Eunice Sarah Swift, daughter of Ela and Gertie (Taylor) Swift. He was in both the World War II and Korean Conflict. He operated a garage in Vinita afterwards. He worked for both the MK&T Railroad and Rock Island Railroad, while Eunice maintained their home in Vinita. All of their children graduated from Vinita. Eunice spent 23 years as a school cook and nurses' aide and cook at nursing homes in Vinita before her retirement in 1982. Roscoe retired in 1982, also. They spend their extra time fishing near Bernice, Oklahoma.

Their children are Eunice Eddene married Newt Thompson, lives Broken Arrow, Oklahoma. She was founder and first president of the Broken Arrow Genealogical Society. They have four children, John, David, Janet and Debra, and four grandchildren; Lavon Aliene, married first Robert Coleman, had one son, Robert Jason, married second, Michael Lewis, have one daughter, Sarah Michelle. She has been working for Bell Phone Company for over fourteen years, lived in Vinita, Oklahoma; Frances Manila, married Johnnie Johnson, has four sons, John, Jerry, Joe, and Josh, is retired now from computer operations, lives in Vinita; Ross Edward, married Donna Gleason, has one daughter, Shana Lynn and one son, Brett Edward. Ross is assistant manager of Safeway Store and lives in Vinita.

A few pages written in a history book cannot possibly portray a story of a family spread out over one hundred fifty years. Generations come and pass on by, just as genealogies in the Holy Bible. A few of them stand out a little brighter than others perhaps, but all are just a link in a chain going back in time to our Blessed Saviour, Jesus Christ, of whom most all of these people partook and claimed to be part of. Their lives stood for something, to be remembered, to be loved, to be followed if possible, as we walk forward in time to a new reunion day for all of us.

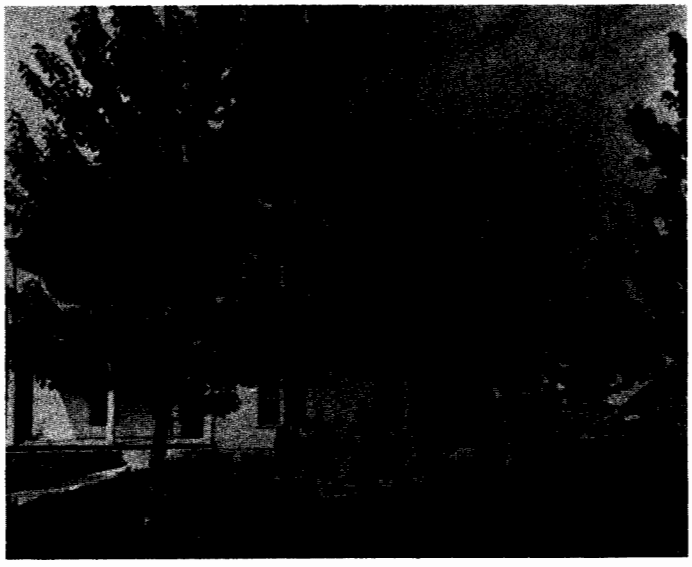
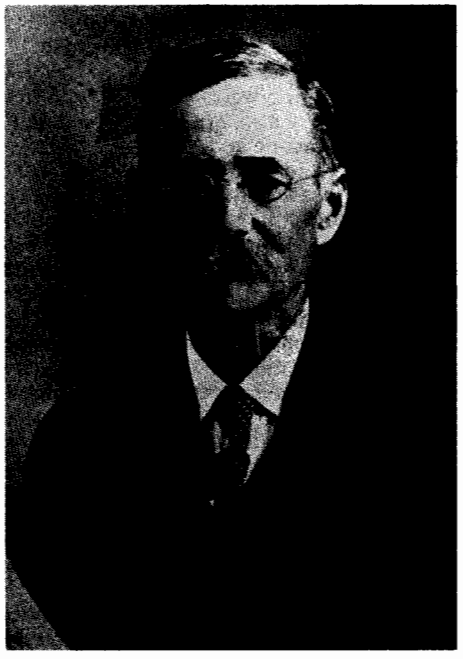
Dee Brogdon

How W. B. Brogdon met Dee Jackson, none of us ever knew. We knew she was raised in an orphanage. When they were married, I'm sure that helped her to be a very happy mother, and she welcomed each new baby. They were married in Corsicana, Texas, February 8, 1880. A letter was found by someone in Springdale who gave it to one Brogdon, in which W. B. had written to Dee, asking her permission to take her to church. It was a beautifully written letter and one we all loved to read. W. B. and Dee had seventeen children, with two dying in infancy. Eleven were born in Springdale. (1) Will, Jr., married Alice Jones. They had three children: Clifford, Lolita and Grace. (2) Cordelia Ann died in infancy; (3) Byron married Kate White. They had two children, Dean and Kathryn. (4) Eva married J. H. Bateman and had one child, Betty Lou. (5) Dee died in infancy. (6) Harry married Letha Epperson. They had six children: Hulen, James, Max, Mary Louise, Molly Jean and Carl. (7) Mary (Bess) Elizabeth married Will Ingrum. They had six children: Jack, Dan, Richard, Virginia, Mary Bess and Bob. (8) Charlie married Willie Caldwell and they had one son, Bennett. (9) Otto never married and died at age 23. (10) Grace married Ernest Bridenthal and they had no children. (11) Naomi married J. H. Williams, and they had one daughter, Sara Sue. (12) Bernice married Claude Charlesworth, and they had one son, Bill. (13) Paul married Lela Gilliam, and had two children, Preston and Gilliam. (14) Lofton married Gladys Yeargin, and had four children: Lazelle, Marjorie Dee, Madelyn and Joe. (15) Midge married Howard Rounds and had no children. (16) Frances married Levis McDowell and they had no children. (17) Hal married Edna Myers and they had one daughter, Nena Jean.

Dee Jackson Brogdon (A descendant of President Andrew Jackson)



Brogdon Home (NE of Springdale), Brogdon family.



William Bennett Brogdon

It was one lovable, lively family life we all had. It was a very religious home. I'm sure Father Brogdon would have loved to have one of his boys called to be a Baptist preacher. The nearest was Lofton, who was elected a deacon in his early years and was active at his death. We all had wonderful times. Of course, all the children were not at home at one time. Lofton had a nephew his own age.

Two Brogdon boys, Paul and Lofton, their wives Lela and Gladys, lived in separate homes on the large apple orchard northeast of Springdale. All of us would go down to the family home several evenings a week - just to visit. Father Brogdon always went to bed early. We always had a time for prayer before he retired. Mother Brogdon stayed up - talking, laughing, and enjoying all of us. If anything made her any happier, it was knowing one of us was going to have another baby. How she loved them all - and had no favorites The Brogdon family had two homes later - one on the farm and one in town - very same house plan: five bedrooms upstairs, two downstairs, a large living room, a big dining room, large kitchen with pantry, and two big screened-in porches, one on the west and one on the north. I can still see Mother Brogdon sitting on the porch, cutting up potatoes to be planted - and saying, "Papa, it's in the light of the moon. Have one of the hired men plant these tomorrow". He would say, "Now, mama, these potatoes are going in the ground, not the moon". But she always had them planted when due time. Later in life, Father and Mother Brogdon bought a lovely new home and moved in town to live. Lofton and I, with two children, moved in the big farm home. Madelyn and Joe Henry were born there. Mother Brogdon died in 1927, only 65 years old. Father Brogdon died in 1929, leaving a sad, broken family of many adults and many grandchildren.

Lofton Brogdon

Lofton Brogdon married Gladys Yeargin. I moved to Springdale in 1918. As a high school junior, a bunch of girls always ate sack lunches at noon, then walked down main street one time and back to school. I saw Lofton drinking a coke at the drug store counter. I looked at him - so good looking - and said to my friend, "Who is he"? They told me, and I replied, "I'm going to marry him". I knew his niece in high school and I told her to tell him I would love to have a date with him. Within two weeks we went to the picture show. I dated him off and on until 1920, then we dated steady. After graduation from high school, I went two summer semesters at the University of Arkansas, getting a first grade teacher certificate, which at that time was what Springdale teachers had. We married and I taught school at Cross Roads School, 1/4 mile west of the Yeargin home. We lived at my home. Lofton drove back and forth to work on the farm, until it got too rainy and cold. So I resigned my school; we moved in a 3-room house on the Brogdon farm. We thought we were something - (nice furniture). Two of our children, Lazelle and Marjorie Dee, were born there. Later we moved to the 7-bedroom Brogdon home. Lofton's parents moved to Springdale. We had wonderful times while living on the farm. We were always having co-operative dinners, eating on tables in the north yard. Paul and Lela, their two children, Lofton and I, our four children, had lovely times. The children were like brothers and sisters. Always some Brogdons were home on vacation, and we had our share of company - also my sister Grace, her husband Reed, and their two girls Ravone and Vivian.

We had lots of joy and sadness. I lost a brother-in-law, mother, father, brother, sister and niece while living there. One time Lofton was out north of the house, trying out a gun. It backfired and the shot went in his eyes. He thought he had gone blind and much crying took place. He was rushed to the doctor and Fayetteville Hospital where he spent a couple of days and nights. His eyes were alright in time. Another time he went to town on business, came home on crutches. I was frightened to death. Just a muscle spasm and he was on crutches for several weeks. The few accidents we had were frightening. One time Paul ran over Madelyn with his car. She wasn't hurt bad. One time Marjorie Dee fell off a wagon tongue and broke a collar bone. Madelyn was sitting in an up-stairs window. I was always careful to keep all screens locked, but there's always a first time. The screen was unlocked, and Madelyn fell from a second story window. I ran downstairs screaming for help. She fell between a radio rod and a big rock. She was unconscious, but no broken bones. From then on, the screens were firmly fixed.

When Joe was 4 years old, we moved to town. Lofton bought an Esso station with a large garage. We lived across the street from the high school for seven years, then moved on South Thompson and lived there seven years. Lofton bought the big beautiful Brogdon home on Maple Avenue. There were four bedrooms and three other large rooms. Only Joe was at home. At times, different girls and their babies were with us. Dee Ann Bullock was born when we lived on Thompson Street. Her daddy was in service, and Marjorie Dee, her mother, worked at Welch's as a chemist. Lofton and I raised Dee Ann, and she still seems like one of my children. When the girls' husbands came home from the service, we had converted a large red brick building behind us into a duplex, and two girls lived in it. Joe left for Kemper Military Academy, and we were alone. Many things happened, sadness, and lots of joy. How we did enjoy our three grand-children: Lazelle and Ram Page's two boys, Gail and Dana, and Marjorie Dee's Dee Ann. Lofton and I saved enough money to buy a 40-acre grape vineyard north of town; then later the 200-acre Welch farm. We had such lovely time there. Lazelle and family lived in Oklahoma City, but came home often. Later Lofton asked Ram if he would like to help on the farm. They were elated - especially the boys. But before this Joe and Alice moved to a small house on the farm. She worked and Joe attended the University, got his B. S. and Masters degrees, then moved to Florida to get his PhD in Psychology. The Pages moved and lived where Joe and Alice had lived.

Lofton was elected Vice-president of Welch's Co-op, of Westfield, New York, and spent many weeks there at meetings. I stayed home to keep the hours and pay our hired help.

Lofton Brogdon Family - Madelyn, Marjorie Dee, Lazelle, Gladys, Lofton and Joe.

We were active in First Baptist Church. Lofton had always been there - converted, joined and was a deacon for many years. I joined in 1921, and our four children were converted and joined the Baptist Church. But sadness came. Lazelle and Ram had eaten lunch with us. Ram and Lofton went out the back door to start spraying, when Lofton had his one and only heart attack. He was rushed to the hospital, but didn't respond to anything. Just the day before, on Mother's Day, we had all eaten dinner at Marjorie Dee's, and the next day Lofton was gone. We harvested that big grape crop, and I knew I couldn't handle that big farm. So I sold to Charlie George, and soon he had all the grape vineyard pulled out, sowed grass and put cattle on the 200 acres. One could imagine the tears I shed as I watched that happen. I moved in with Marjorie Dee, Buster and Dee Ann while I built a two-bedroom home west of the big Brogdon home, which I had torn down; also built a two-bedroom duplex. I was as happy as one could be after losing the one man I truly loved, living with him 38 years. But time has to pass and we have to adjust and accept. So ended my wonderful Brogdon life in 1958.

Our children are (10) Lazelle - married Gordon (Ram) Page and they had two boys, Gail and Dana. (2) Marjorie Dee married E. E. (Buster) Bullock, and they had one daughter, Dee Ann. (3) Madelyn - married Roylee Curry and they had one daughter, Lea. (4) Joe Henry - married Alice Godbold, and they had two boys, Kelly and Matt. There are three original Brogdon daughters-in-law living at this time (1986) - Lela, Paul's wife; Gladys, Lofton's wife; and Edna, Hal's wife.

Paul Preston Brogdon

Paul Preston Brogdon Sr. and Lela Florence Gilliam were married in Fayetteville, Arkansas, on June 14, 1921.

After a short visit to her parent's Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Gilliam of Spiro, Oklahoma, they returned to Springdale, Arkansas, to live on the Brogdon family farm, 2-1/2 miles northeast of Springdale.

While the three-room house they were to live in was being painted and papered, they went to Fayetteville and bought their furniture. The total cost was $525.00.

On March 29, 1921, the temperature dropped way below freezing. The apple trees were in full bloom. All apples, peaches and cherries were killed. A few strawberries and grapes were left. Their share of the farm profit that year was $125.00.

Their first son, Paul Preston Brogdon, Jr., was born in their home in 1922. Their second son, Byron Gilliam Brogdon, was born in St. John's Hospital in Fort Smith, Arkansas, in 1929.

The summer of 1929, Paul Sr.'s health broke. They continued to live on the farm until 1941, when they moved into Springdale. They built a home on Allen Street in 1942.

Paul devoted all his time to the warehouse business, buying and selling car and truck loads of vegetables and fruit and packages.

The next nine years were very busy ones. Paul Preston Jr. graduated from Arkansas School of Medicine and did an internship at Baptist Hospital, Little Rock, Arkansas. He spent two years in military service in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and San Antonio, Texas. After completing a residency in surgery at Ohio State School of Medicine, he set up his practice in Springdale in 1949. He moved to Mitchell, South Dakota in 1953, joining the Drs. Gillis. Fifteen years later he moved to Oklahoma City to set up a Family Medicine Specialty Clinic at the Oklahoma School of Medicine. In 1970, he moved to Decatur, Alabama.

Preston had two daughters and two sons. Lyndall Jane was born in San Antonio in 1946. Lecia Gay was born in 1950 in Fayetteville General Hospital, Fayetteville, Arkansas. Twins sons Paul Gilliam and Preston Sullivan were born in Methodist Hospital in Mitchell, South Dakota, in 1954.

Lyndall graduated from Kansas State University. Lecia graduated from Vanderbilt and received her Masters from University of Alabama. Paul and Preston graduated from Vanderbilt.

Byron Gilliam Brogdon graduated from Arkansas School of Medicine in 1951 and completed a residency in Radiology at Bowman-Grey in Winston Salem, North Carolina. He completed four years of military service in Livermore, California, and San Antonio, Texas. Since then, he has moved to Baltimore, Maryland to join the Radiology Department at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, to Albuquerque, New Mexico, to set up the Radiology Department at the New Mexico School of Medicine. In 1977, he moved to Mobile, Alabama and is head of Radiology at the South Alabama School of Medicine, where he now resides.

Gilliam has one son, David, who was born in Winston Salem, North Carolina.

Paul Preston Brogdon Sr., died in Sparks Hospital in Fort Smith, Arkansas on July 11, 1951. He is buried in Bluff Cemetery in Springdale, Arkansas.

His widow, Lela Brogdon, lives in Decatur, Alabama.

William Bennett Brogdon

William Bennett was born in "West Tennessee", near Milan, March 7, 1854. While a child, his father died. During the Civil War, armies of the Blue and Grey fought back and forth over western Tennessee soil. Food at the Brogdon home was scarce. Throughout his life, W. B. wasn't physically strong. He told his family, "I firmly believe lack of robustness is due to lack of food when a child. I haven't been able to get over malnutrition I suffered then".

In his late teens, Brogdon took a wagon team, went to Texas, where he hauled freight over plains, through the chaparral and mesquite of that southwestern land.

W. B. established a general merchandise store in Cleburne, located on a cattle drovers' trail: said to be the famous Chisholm trail, from south Texas to Kansas railheads. One day he bought apples off a wagonload from Cane Hill, Arkansas. Before selling those apples, he looked at them many times. They were big, red and beautiful, and made him think. Thoughts which had flitted through his mind several times previously came back with greater vividness. He was not satisfied at Cleburne. The store was too confining, and his health wasn't as good as it should be. Perhaps a move to the Ozarks would help him. He made up his mind to move. He and his family came to the health resort of Eureka Springs in 1888. They resided above the big spring at Basin Park. In August, the Brogdon family moved to Springdale. After looking about, W. B. purchased a farm south of town, where Highways 71 and 68 West now meet. This 40-acre farm was one of the oldest settled places thereabouts, having been cleared before the Civil War. It had a small apple orchard, but its soil was worn out. Arkansas made fun of this Texan buying the old place and planting more apple trees. But this Texan had ideas in the head which rested on his not too sturdy shoulders.

In Springdale were several livery stables. One, standing at the corner of present Holcomb and Meadow Streets, had had before it a pile of manure as large as a small house. Other stables had their piles too, and all of them were glad to get these piles hauled away. W. B. had several hauled to the orchard land.

While waiting for his apple trees to bear, Brogdon had to provide for a large family. He was one of the pioneer strawberry growers of northwest Arkansas. He also grew raspberries, blackberries and beans. As there was no local market, he shipped vegetables and small fruits by express. Other farmers, following his example, grew the same produce, and Brogdon bought much of it to ship away. In this way was originated what became an extensive produce business of Springdale.

In time, the Brogdon homestead was shifted from the southwest corner of Springdale to the northeast of town. W. B. made considerable plantings of apples, peaches and cherries. Apples and peaches went out by carloads, cherries by express only. For years there was a long list of cherry customers to whom W. B. would ship standing orders of crates each year. He was always trying out a new apple and peach varieties by experimentally planting any which came to his attention which he considered might prove commercially feasible. Anything and almost everything pertaining to northwest Arkansas horticulture, he did.

He didn't neglect his family or his duties as a citizen because of his engrossment with horticulture. He was president of Washington County School Board and a chairman of the Springdale school board. He served as a Washington County Road Commissioner. For more than 40 years he was deacon in the Baptist Church, being chairman of the board of deacons, First Church, when he passed away. He helped organize the Sunday school of Springdale Baptist Church (later First Baptist) in 1890, and was superintendent during the first 25 years of its existence. He was a member of Board of Trustees, Mountain Home Baptist College, Mountain Home, Arkansas.

Dee died January 11, 1927 and William Bennett missed the companion of many years and ventures. He survived until June 10, 1929. Both are buried in Bluff Cemetery in Springdale. All of their seventeen children are deceased.

Thomas Brooks

This is a picture of the old school that Mr. Brooks built. Mr. Brooks and his youngest daughter Effie are identified while Susie, Margaret and Nora are not.

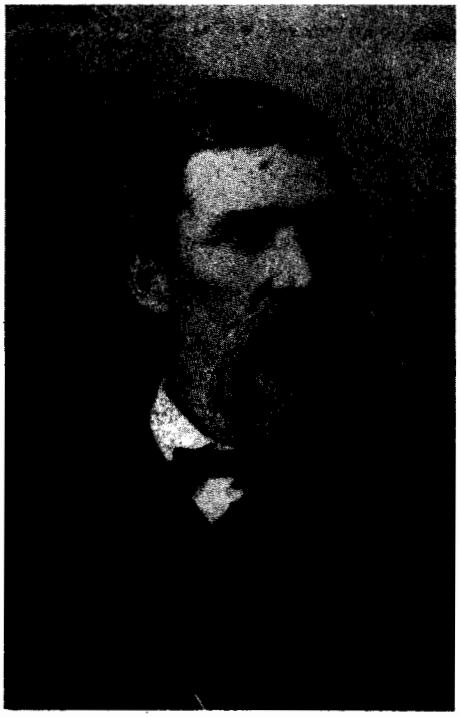
Thomas Brooks, my grandfather, was one of the most prominent farmers and business men in the early history of Washington County. He was the grandson of Thomas Brooks (same name), who was one of the two first settlers of Hawkins County, Tennessee. William D. and Susan Price Brooks were his parents. They were both born in Hawkins County and lived there until their deaths having lived long beyond the given three score years. They reared seven sons and seven daughters to adulthood. The Brooks family were farmers by profession and of English descent. Their son, Thomas, was born April 6, 1832.

On April 6, 1854, at the age of 22 years, my grandfather married Lucinda Maddox, also of Hawkins County, and moved to Newton County, Missouri, where his father, William D. owned some land. It is not known just why he had property there but three years later, his brothers, John and Lafayette came to Missouri and the land was sold. John left, returning the money to his father shortly before his father's death. Their mother was deceased about the time Thomas and Lucinda departed to Missouri. There seems to be no record as to what happened to John after he returned to Tennessee in about 1857.

From Missouri, Thomas Brooks and wife moved to Washington County and settled where Brentwood now is and was living there when the Civil War broke out. He went to Springfield, Missouri and enlisted in Company B, First Arkansas Calvary United States Volunteers. During his tenure he was promoted the last being the First Lieutenant. He was a brave and gallant officer and served his country well.

Families of Union and Confederate soldiers had a hard time surviving during the war days. At least part of the conflict it was said that wives of both Union and Confederate officers were housed in the Old Stone House that is now called the Colonial Apartments just west of the square. This served as a measure of safety.

After the battle of Prairie Grove, my grandmother Lucinda was told her husband had been killed, so she mounted her half starved mare and, with her little daughter, Mary and an infant rode to Prairie Grove in search of his body, but to no avail. On returning to Fayetteville she found him there.



This photograph of Thomas Brooks was taken probably very near 1900.

At the close of the war, Thomas Brooks was given a grant of land around 400 acres and was to erect on it beside his home a church and a school. The lumber was cut, the bricks were made, and even the plaster was all derived from the land. This was what is now Combs Chapel, but then was known as Lick Skillet. My grandfather purchased another 140 acres in 1866 and records show that he paid $520.00 for it. It is where the Country Club is now.

He was a master Mason, and was Commander of Travis Post No. 19. He was a firm Republican, having been a Whig before the Republican Party existed. He was a Republican when it tried mens' souls.

For several years, he edited a couple of Washington County newspapers. He and Damon Clark were owners and editors of the Fayetteville Republican and were very successful in their efforts. The paper was enlarged and had 1,500 subscribers. Other Republican news sheets were started, all of which were short lived. Two were the Radical and the Mt. Echo. In 1892, Thomas Brooks established the Washington County Review on the east side of the square. After my grandfather started a career in the newspaper business, he moved his family into Fayetteville. The children who were still at home attended North School (now Washington), the only city school according to the records. Later, they attended the Arkansas Industrial University (now the University of Arkansas). The three youngest daughters assisted their father in the office of the Washington County Review, until around his retirement in 1905.

There is an issue of the paper still in the family dated Thursday, November 19, 1896, and is very fragile and yellow with age. The cost of a subscription was $1.25 yearly cash in advance. Royal Baking Powders and Raymonts Liver Pills are advertised for sale along with an announcement that Dr. H. D. Wood had located over Dale's Drug Store for business.

When Mr. Brooks retired, he built a lovely home in what was then called Oxford Bend about six or seven miles east of Fayetteville on Highway 45, where he owned a large acreage and farmed until his death, May 15, 1910.

Thomas and Lucinda Brooks were the parents of eleven children, eight living to adulthood. They were as follows: Mary, married Willis Ryder, their children were Lucy, Laura, George, Charles, Walter, Ethel, Margaret. Francis, married to Georganna Rutherford, children; Gertrude, Albert, Tom, Leslie.

James S., married Ollie Jones, children; Claud, Odus and Fred.

M. D. Lafayette, married Etta Jones, married Lola, Alpha, Carl, Frank, Ruth and Wilma.

Susan never married.

Margaret, married Ed Johnson, children; Grace, Mildred, Howell, (two died prematurely).

Nora, married Frank Elliott, children; Frank, Jr., Mae, Herbert, Howard.

Effie, married James H. Cate, children; Evelyn, Madeleine, Lela, Brooksie.

All the children of Thomas Brooks are deceased. At this date, 1987, only ten grandchildren survive. Those still living in Washington County are Ruth Brooks Platt, Wilma Brooks Gray, Grace Johnson Polk, Mildred Johnson, Howell Johnson and Madeleine Cate Thomas. Evelyn Cate Ward lives in Little Rock, Arkansas, Lela Cate Wiseman lives in DeMoines, Iowa, and Brooksie Cate Lawson lives in West Point, California.

H. E. Brown

To begin my family's history I should begin with my parents and how they met. My father Harlan Eston (H. E.) Brown was born in Earl Prairie Community (Sebastian County) in 1915. My mother Hilda (Moore) Brown was born at Barber, Arkansas. They met at church and were married at the Booneville Arkansas cemetery on April 18, 1936. They spent their first night of married life with my great uncle and aunt, Byrd and Mary Bates. Byrd was the sheriff and they lived below the Booneville Jail. My parents later lived at Ione, Arkansas where my father drove a school bus and later they worked for Mr. Michael's Traveling Picture Show. They traveled all over Arkansas with Mr. Michael's. My father helped set up the tent for the show and sold tickets etc. He made 50 cents a day and lived in the back of a truck made into living quarters, (sort of an early Winnebago). In 1937 they moved to Ft. Smith, Arkansas and my father worked in the furniture factory, and my mother worked at the canning factory for 10 cents an hour and later worked at Bowmans's Egg Breaking Plant for 15 cents an hour. In September 1940, my brother, Harlan Wayne Brown, was born. In December 1940 they bought a little trailer house and moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma where they both worked at Douglas Aircraft during the war years. In 1946, everyone seemed to think California was the place to be, so they sold out and went to California; stayed nine days and came back to Arkansas. They came to Springdale and bought 5 acres at the junction of Highway 68 East and Highway 71 (now 71B). They came here because of relatives who had property near there. More about them later. They built a grocery store with living quarters in the back of it. They had a brush arbor on the side of the building where they had a watermelon stand. You could go there and buy a slice of ice cold watermelon for 20 cents and sit at a table and eat it, or you could bring the whole family and pick out a whole watermelon and buy it by the pound and have it cut and eat it there and take what might be left home with you. Either way it was a real treat-take it from someone who ate their share of watermelon. The tables they had at the watermelon stand were bought at an old army camp in southern Missouri that was closed down after the war and the tables were out of the mess hall. My father hauled chat from southern Missouri back to here and he would bring a couple of the tables on top of the load of chat each trip until they had as many tables as they needed. The grocery store, even though it was a long way from downtown, did very well and back then they sold beer in the store and the beer sales grew into a new business next door called Brownie's Tavern, (later Mike's Bar & Grill) with the best hamburgers and sandwiches in town. This is along about the time I came along - March 1949. I was born Doris Jeanette Brown (now Durham) and I have been called Susie most of my life. After a while they leased these businesses out to other people and in 1952 they bought Brock's Motel located just north of the corner of then Highway 71 and 68 west and lived there about 2 years and the Brocks moved back and bought it back. My family moved back to their original place here and remodeled the store building and in 1954 Brownie's Sporting Goods came about. 1957 saw the beginning of a motel and a new house for us, and one the first mobile home parks in Springdale and the store building turned sporting goods store then housed various businesses including Bob's Take-Out Fried Chicken and Photography studio and it was a laundromat for several years. In the 1960s my parents bought 200 acres of farmland at Tontitown where they lived in the early 70s for a few years and raised cattle. Through all these businesses my father had dump trucks, tractors, bulldozers, etc and the gravel and construction business was a big part of our lives. He hauled gravel to build many of the streets in Springdale. The lumber for the house and motel came from Mr. West at the Van Winkle Hollow lumber mill. In 1976 George's Inc. bought the property for future expansion. My brothers' family, my mother and my family all live within a mile of the homeplace. I am married to Tom Durham and have 2 children (Amy-17 and Zachary-8). Harlan is married to the former Evelyn Harp and now has the sand, dirt and gravel business (Harlan Brown Trucking).

One of the most memorable activities I remember as a child was rodeo time. In the late 40s and early 50s each year people would decorate their cars and travel by caravan to neighboring towns and sing and play music to promote the rodeo. There was a Whiskers Club and the men who didn't grow a beard for the occasion had to buy a shaving permit. Downtown there was a jail and dunking tank for those caught not wearing western dress during that time. Rodeo time has always been and still is a special time for Springdale.

The first members of my family to live in Washington County were a great uncle and aunt (Steve and Neal Phillips), who moved here and bought a farm where George's Inc. Feed mill now stands. Their farm in Sebastian County along with those of Jim Roberts and Arthur Glass families were among those taken in by the building of Fort Chaffee Army Base. The 3 families moved here and bought adjoining farms. Steve and Neal raised strawberries, grapes and cucumbers for a living. Improvement of Highway 68 East cut a small section of their property off and they donated that land for a church to be built on. Phillips Chapel was named after them for their donation.

Jefferson Lafayette Brown

Jefferson Lafayette Brown was one of ten children of Abner and Lucinda Swayne Brown. The parents and all children were born in McNary County, Tennessee. They moved to Randolph County, Arkansas in 1858, using oxen and five wagons. Abner had been State Representative in Tennessee, and his brother Billy ran a store in Randolph County, Arkansas.

The three daughters of Jefferson Lafayette Brown of Harmon, Arkansas; Lucy, Fanny (sitting) and LaDona, the youngest.

Jeff and his wife Ellen Hale, moved with his father and sister Belle, to Washington County in 1876. His father, Abner, died in 1883.

Jeff and Ellen had one son, Rolandus. After her death, he married Talitha Ann Lewis Moore July 1874. She was the daughter of William Lewis of Randolph County, Arkansas. Seven children were born to them: Lucy Ellen, Sarah Fanny, Charles A., LaDona Belle, Frank Washington, Willie and Ephriam. They settled in the Harmon Community.

Jeff was only 13 at the start of the Civil War, and was saved from the Union soldiers, looking for eligible boys, at church. The women with their large hoop skirts surrounded him, singing all the time, and the soldiers never found him.

LaDona (Dona) remembered at age five how wild and beautiful the country was. She saw wild turkeys, hogs, deer, mink, and beaver. She was afraid of the hogs, and was told to stand very still if she saw one so it wouldn't attack. Her most "fun" was climbing with her brother Charlie, up tall saplings and riding them to the ground.

Rolandus married Ida Haddock. They had seven children and moved to California. Lucy married John Mayes from Kentucky. Their children: Maggie, Arch and Sam. The two sons were farmers, and Arch later became a successful realtor in Springdale.

Fanny married Sam Marrs. They moved to Oklahoma and had eight children. Charlie married Pearl Ritter. They had one daughter, Nona, and moved to Benton County, Arkansas.

Frank married Ruth Stanley. Their children: Earl, John, Lester, Anna and Herbert. Willie married Alice Fitzgerald. They had one child, Nina, and moved to Oregon.

Ephiram married Nettie Fox. Their children: Rosa and Kenneth. Rosa still lives in Springdale. Earl, Frank's oldest son, and family lived in the Harmon Community. He was a successful farmer having orchards and grapes. The rest of his family left the state.

Dona married David Arthur Steele December 1908. (His history is found under Marion D. Steele's history in this book). Six children were born to them: Herbert Brown, Cooper Arthur, Elmer Eugene, Hattie Belle, Charles Dale, and Dorothy Maurine, the youngest, who is submitting this history.

Talitha Brown died in 1928, and Jeff in 1938, age 90. Dona and David's children were all born in Elm Springs, in the old Steele homestead, built in 1851. All were taught how to work and do their share. With the depression, it was hard, but altogether, they made it. Dona even mended their shoes. David never was on WPA, but with renting extra land and everyone helping, they were never hungry.

Herbert married Daisy Mae Larsen April 1930 in Detroit, Michigan. Their children:: Shirley, Patricia and Richard were all born there.

Hattie and John Beal, married May 1935 and moved to California. Their children: Brian, Gerald, and Ronald, also live there.

Cooper and Katherine Davis were married March 1939 in East Liverpool, Ohio. Their children: David and Michael. They live in Oklahoma, and the sons live in Florida and Alaska.

Elmer died November 1941. He was never married. Dorothy and William Delford Fine were married September 1, 1945. He is a World War II veteran. One child: Philip Alan. They live in Fayetteville.

Dale and Enia Winn were married July 1950 and moved to California. Their children: Dale, Dorothy and Johnny.

Dorothy and Delford's son Philip, started taking piano lessons at age 4 1/2, becoming really good and winning first place in Key Board Solo Teen Talent of Arkansas at age 19. On January 30, 1971 he was killed in an accident in Tulsa, Oklahoma, enroute back to Oral Roberts University, where he was a student. He had just taped a medley of music for a church service.

Cooper (Dona and David's second son) tore down the old family home in 1946 to build a new house for his parents. David died before it was finished. . .age 66. Dona continued to live in the new home until one year before her death. She was 96 years old.

The only Brown descendents now living in Washington County are: Rosa Sims, Sam Mayes, Leetha Lee, and Dorothy Fine, Philip and James Mayes, Linda Hamilton, Sharon, Kennard, and Larry Sims.

Vance Montgomery Brown

Vance M. Brown, better known as "Gum", was born near Sparta, Tennessee, White County, in 1830. His parents and family were unknown by descendants, since Vance M. was killed by bushwhackers during the Civil War, and the three sons remembered little about their parents. The one thing the eldest son did remember was that his parents came from White County, Tennessee and his mother was Hannah Dearing. The marriage record in Sparta, Tennessee reveals that Vance M. Brown and Hannah Dearing were married on January 18, 1850.

They came to Washington County in 1850, and settled in West Fork Township, exact area unknown, but the 1860 census record reveals the fact that they were still there. Three sons were born: William Crockett, 1850; Waymon, 1855; and Samuel Vance, 1858. Hannah died that same year, and was buried somewhere in this area.

After 1860, they moved to Illinois Township, two miles north of the present site of Lincoln. Vance M. was a bootmaker by trade. It was here he was killed about 1862 and was buried in the Beaty Cemetery. There is no date on his stone which is inscribed "Gum Brown".

Aunt Polly Weaver who was related and had lived with them for a number of years, reared the three sons.

Aunt Polly was the wife of Benjamin Weaver, and they came to the area very early. Benjamin was a soldier in the War of 1812, and an Indian agent in the Gong Snake district until his death.

William Crockett Brown married Mary (Sallie) Holt on January 21, 1870. They bought a farm near Aunt Polly's where they made their home, and where their children were born. Alice, born in 1870, married William Jobe. Benjamin, born 1872 married Katherine Rhea. Rhaze L., born in 1878 married Nettie Green. Catherine, born 1881, married Samuel Starr. Ambrose Edward, born 1882, married Edna C. Beaty. William Frank, born 1890, married Anna Moore. Dona, born 1893, married Kelly Armstrong.

William Crockett and family moved to the new town of Lincoln in about 1895, and started a general merchandise store—Brown's Cheap Store. In 1902, the town of Lincoln, composed of a few stores, moved about three blocks southeast and began to build the present town of Lincoln. Here, Crockett Brown purchased one of the first two-story stone buildings and moved his general merchandise store, operating it until his death in 1921.

His son, Rhaze L. Brown, had been in business, operating the first boarding house and restaurant. In the front room of the restaurant was the first beautiful marble soda fountain, very decorative.

Rhaze L. took over his father's store for several years after selling his own business.

Ambrose Edward, known as Edd, was a carpenter and stone mason, but he bought the farm his father and grandfather had owned.

Cathrine Brown married Samuel Starr. He, too, was a carpenter and many houses and churches in Lincoln were a part of his labors. Frank and his wife Anna were in business in Tulsa all their life. Alice and family had also spent most of their life in Tulsa. Dona and Kelly Armstrong were in business in Pea Ridge, Arkansas all of their lives. Waymon Brown, the second son of Vance M. and Hannah Dearing Brown, married Rebecca Holt on January 5, 1873. They purchased the farm from Aunt Polly Weaver, and lived there some time. All of their children were born there. They moved to Oklahoma for a short time, then to Fayetteville, where he spent the rest of his life.

During the early days in Fayetteville, he owned a livery stable and kept only the finest of horses and carriages, for he admired beautiful horses. He was also one of the first to purchase an automobile. His was one of the first to venture to Lincoln, and was the first one we ever saw. Waymon lived in a large, two-story house on College Avenue for many years. After his death, his lovely house was one of the first to be torn down to make a place for a gasoline station. His and Rebecca's children were: Mary, who married a Pyeatte; Emma, who married Fred Pyeatte; Elizabeth, married O. P. Stern; Earl; John; Roscoe; Ethel; Mac J.; and Robert L. (Bob), married Nellie George. They owned a business on Lafayette Street for many years, and lived nearby. For several years, he was County Revenue Collector. Except for Robert L., Waymon's children all lived in Oklahoma and Texas.

Samuel V. Brown died in 1875.

William Joshua Brown

William Joshua Brown and his wife, Melissa Jane Adock, left Tennessee soon after the birth of their first child William Riley, born March 10, 1873. They formed a wagon train of most of his brothers, sisters and their families and headed for Arkansas.

After the birth of their second child, Sarah Jane, born May 16, 1874 in Washington County, Arkansas, the family took to the road again and moved to Hill County, Texas. There, George Henry was born October 27, 1876, Margaret Lovina, born July 11, 1879 and Dora Lee, born June 3, 1881 were born.

Then, the family went back to Washington County where Cora Elizabeth (some say Lizbeth) was born on April 6, 1883 and Aaron Newton, was born May 22, 1885 before the family moved to Indian Territory.

Fannie Josephine, July 10, 1888, Grace Ann December 23, 1891 and twins, Martha Isora and Mary Elzina December 4, 1893 were born in what is now Garvin County, Oklahoma before the family settled near Allen, Oklahoma.

It is believed that William Joshua's father Reubin Brown and his second wife, Mary Jane Cathy came from Tennessee with him. Reubin's first wife, Mary Jane's sister, Marguarite, mother of William Joshua, died in 1855.

Before coming to Arkansas, three generations of Browns lived near each other in Tennessee. Although John Brown, Sr. and wife Martha Gilbert died at Burns Station in 1849-50, his son John Brown, Jr. and his second wife Margaret Luther (first wife Margaret Laws died in 1845, Reubin and William Joshua—along with all the Brown uncles, cousins and brother—made a large community in Dickson, Hickman and Williamson Counties.

On May 5, 1901, Cora Brown married David Columbus Risley Blackhawk. He was born January 6, 1883. His parents were Edgar Charles Risley of Washington County and Matilda Thornsberry who was born in Madison County about 1859 of parents recently from Virginia. David C. Risley was adopted by Matilda's third husband, Charles Blackhawk. David was a "hard-shelled" Baptist lay preacher and carpenter.

Cora and David lived in Allen where Josie May was born May 7, 1902. Twins Bertie Estella and Bertha Louella born October 26, 1905, Alfred Newton, May 18, 1912, Iva Lee, born December 6, 1916 and Rachel Magdalene, born November 14, 1914, were born in Sasakwa, Oklahoma.

When the children were small, Cora and David, "Lum", moved to Francis, Oklahoma where Bertie Estella met and married Kenion Vardiman Cooper who was born in Franklin County, Arkansas on September 15, 1887. They lived in Wetumka when sons James David, born November 6, 1924 and Arthur Dale, was born January 4, 1928. Bertie and Kenion moved to Ada, Oklahoma where Kenion worked building houses and furniture.

James David Cooper serviced as Navy Flight Instructor during World War 11, following which he attended Tulsa University. He graduated from the school of Petroleum Engineering in 1950. Jeanne graduated from East Central University with a degree in Education.

Jeanne Ellen Cooper was born to James and Jeanne July 7, 1947 in Ada and James David, Jr. was born in Tulsa January 11, 1949 while James was in college. James, Jr. is unmarried, and an actor residing in New York City.

Jeanne Ellen married Kimo V. White of Hawaii and to them was born Stancia Nicole, November 13, 1966 in Tulsa, Daymon Kimo, May 9, 1968, Tulsa and Alika Forrest August 13, 1969, Hawaii, none of whom are married.

James Cooper, Sr. and wife, Jeanne, adopted Kimo White while living in Midland, Texas in 1971 and changed his name to James Damon Cooper.

Alika will be a senior in High School in the fall of 1987 and Stancia and James Damon are still trying to decide what to become as they sample college. Jeanne Ellen gave up critical care nursing to return to college and seek another profession.

The large Brown family has shrunk tremendously but one hopes this warm, loving family of hard-working men and beautiful women does not fade completely away.

Arthur D. Browne

We are a "first generation in Arkansas" family, having moved here in 1971 when my husband was attracted by the offer of the position of Vice President for Academic Planning and Development at the University of Arkansas under President David W. Mullins. Arkansas—of all places, that was our reaction then.

We were not at all sure what we were doing in Arkansas, my husband being a native Californian, and I having been raised in Nova Scotia and having become a naturalized American in New York in 1952. It didn't take us long, however, to learn the merits of this lovely area. And now, sixteen years later, we feel very much at home here in the Ozarks.

When we moved here from Wisconsin (one of a half-dozen states we've lived in) we found the southern heat and humidity quite taxing, but the mild and invigorating winters were a pleasant change from the interminable northern cold. We know why so many retired couples are moving this way. Another big plus has been the "small town" atmosphere—a good place to raise our children. When we came, the youngest of our seven was just beginning kindergarten. He went all the way through school in Fayetteville — Root, Woodland and Fayetteville High — and the fact that he earned a full-tuition scholarship to a major university speaks well for the quality of the education he received here.

Our children are Carolyn (Reed), Stephen, David, Victoria (Pearson), Dale, Laurel (Hasson), and Clifton, the youngest, known to all as Kip. Vickie and her husband, Chad Pearson, live in Springdale, but all the others live in distant states. Both Chad and Vickie have attended the University of Arkansas, and Chad has taught at Jefferson Elementary for the past six years. While my husband has been winding up his work at the University, I have been attending classes, and on May 9, 1987, he retired on the same day I graduated with a B. A. in English—I was possibly the oldest member of the class of '87. So this state has helped me achieve a life-long goal, as well as providing a good living for our family.

Since retiring, we have not noticed any reduction in our schedule of things to do. We do make time to visit our older children and to enjoy our twenty-one grandchildren, and to travel wherever we have a "hankerin" to go. This wanderlust necessitated selling "Blueberry Park", a hilltop farm in West Fork which we had purchased in 1975 as a "pick your own" blueberry business. We learned a great deal working the farm—mostly a real "sweat-and-blister" appreciation for those who labor on the land and gamble with nature's caprices. Our place was one of those struck by the 1985 tornado, and we lost many beautiful trees and a shed. Fortunately, nobody was on the property at the time, but it is a terrifying experience, nonetheless. We take our hats off to those who make it as farmers.

All in all, northwest Arkansas has been a fine place to live. We owe it much and trust we have paid our dues by being responsible citizens. My husband has served on committees and supported the Chamber of Commerce, and I have served as a Patroness of Sigma Alpha Iota, a national music fraternity with active chapters at the University of Arkansas. Both of us have given years of support to the children's schools, to the public library, and to our church. We'd recommend Arkansas to anyone looking for that certain "out-of-the-way but up-to-date" place, and have done so frequently. We haven't found a better place than this to call our "home".

Madison J. Broyles

Madison J. Broyles arrived in Washington County in December 1880 together with his wife and the families of two of their sons. The Broyles family acquired land southwest of the city of Fayetteville. Today this property is within the corporate limits of that city.

For Madison, life began on March 12, 1823 in Middletown, Jefferson County, Kentucky, the son of William Broyles and Elizabeth Wilhoit who were both born in Virginia. Madison's ancestors on both sides came from Germany and arrived in America in 1717, settling in Spotsylvania County, Virginia. William, his father, died in 1826 leaving Elizabeth to care for their family.

Madison married Harriet Robinson on July 20, 1847 at Middletown, Kentucky. Harriet was the daughter of Gabriel Robinson, who fought in the War of 1812. Madison learned the blacksmith trade in order to provide for his family. To this union were born the following children: 1. John W. (b. 23 April 1848 d. 25 May 1926) married 10 November 1867 Dinah Caroline "Carrie" Cummings, daughter of Joseph and Malinda Faubion Cummings of Lawrence County, Indiana. 2. George Rice (b. 23 September 1850 d. 29 November 1932) married 11 April 1869 Nancy Caroline Whitted, daughter of John Whitted, Jr. and Rosannah Cummings of Lawrence County, Indiana. 3. Enfield E. (b. 8 May 1853 d. 9 March 1941) married ca. 1877 George Jerome Hinkle, son of Will and Susan Day Hinkle — This family is buried in Denison, Texas. 4. William Cravens (b. 9 June 1856 d. 11 July 1929) married (1) Nancy Caroline Cummings; (2) married 28 December 1887, Lillie M. Combs; (3) married Mary Dolphmire. 5. Madison J., Jr. (b. 4 April 1863 d. _____) married 1 January 1883 Annie Barnes in Grayson County, Texas. 6. Hattie (b. 29 May 1866 d. 13 October 1886) married ca. 1885 T. L. Barnes.

Madison and Harriet moved from Louisville, Kentucky around 1852 and settled in Flynn Township, Lawrence County, Indiana where he followed his trade and farmed. After 1876, Madison and his sons moved their families to Grayson County, Texas near the city of Denison. They continued farming and sold farm implements. The father and sons again moved their families in 1880 to Washington County, Arkansas. A daughter and son remained in Denison, Texas.

Madison followed an honored family tradition when he answered the call to colors in the Civil War. His two grandfathers and three of his great grandfathers served this country in the Revolutionary War. Madison served in Company A of the 31st Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry and was wounded in battle near Nashville, Tennessee.

Fayetteville became home to Madison and Harriet Broyles for it was here they settled down to farming. The families of their sons John W., George Rice, and William Cravens were close at hand and many pleasant hours of happiness filled their remaining years. The grave sites for all of these family members are located in the Combs Cemetery at Fayetteville.

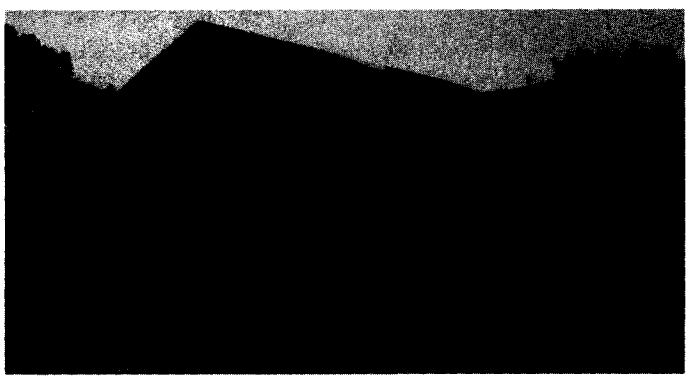
William "Al" Bryant

William Alfred "Al" Bryant b. 6-1-1920, Cato, Arkansas, (son of William Henry and Ellie McPike Bryant) m. 7-31-1942 Addie Catherine Taylor (Kay) b. 7-6-1921, Jacinto, Arkansas, (daughter of John Hilmon and Blanche Ewing Taylor).



Bryant Park Building, 1007 West Sunset, Springdale, Arkansas.

Al grew up in North Little Rock and after 3 years in Air Force, he returned to his previous job with Big Rock Stone and Material. In 1948, he moved his family to Malvern where he owned B & T Mercantile. For the convenience of their children to attend the University, Al and Kay made the decision to relocate and in 1964 moved to 1503 South Morlan, Springdale. They were living there when the 16" snow came in March, 1968. Desiring to live in the country, 20 wooded acres were purchased just north of Highway 68 on Oak Grove Road-a building site cleared-but before the new home could be built, the 1970 Tornado roared through, uprooting 30 large trees, destroying the farmhouse and covering the acreage with much debris. After a year of clean-up, the new home was built, but just as completion came, it was learned the right-of-way line for the new 71 Highway ran through the entry way and kitchen of the Al Bryant Home. Bowing to progress, not wanting to leave the area, 503

South Oak Grove was remodeled to accommodate the new highway. Al and Kay are members of Faith Assembly of God and are active members of Springdale Camp and Auxiliary Gideons International. Al received the 1977 Sertoma Service to Mankind Award. They are the parents of three children listed below:

William Alfred, Jr. (Fred) b. 5-29-1944, Little Rock, graduated Malvern High School, received BSE University of Arkansas, 4 years United States Navy, teacher Prairie Grove School, has a Master in Administration University of Arkansas, Principal, McDonald County School, Southwest City, Missouri 8 years. Fred m. 9-7-1974 Jimmie Lou Dillard, graduated Springdale High School, BSE Southern Missouri State. They have 2 daughters - Tiffani and Christina.

Sharon Kaye b. 6-4-1946, Little Rock, graduated Malvern High School, BSE University of Arkansas, PE teacher, Lake Village. Sharon m. 8-15-1970 Jerry E. Mazzanti, former Razorback, BA and School of Law University of Arkansas, Chancery and Probate Judge, 10th Judicial District. Sharon and Jerry have 3 sons: Dean, Todd and Scott.

Douglas Robert b. 9-3-1955, Malvern, attended Lee and Southwest Jr. High, Springdale High School 1973 and 1979 graduated University of Arkansas School of Architecture; is Senior Architect for Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. Doug m. 8-10-1979 Stephanie Hanna (daughter of Fred and Anne Hanna, Fayetteville) graduated Fayetteville High School, BSE University of Arkansas, taught in Northwest Arkansas schools. Doug and Stephanie have 3 children: Ashley, Blake and Cole.

Al has been in construction and real estate, owning SAV-IT Paint and Supply, Al Bryant Company and Al-Kay Realty. In 1983, he built Bryant Park, a professional office building, pictured. In his retirement years, he is doing some traveling, gardening and managing rental property.

Family History: Al's great, great, great grandparents were Michael and Leah Graham Bryant, who lived in Moore County, North Carolina where their over 200 year old home has been restored by the Historical Association. Their son, Elisha b. 19 December 1781, Moore County, North Carolina, m. Sarah Autrey, June 1812 and were the parents of 10 sons—the youngest, Thomas J. b. 1837, was Al's great grandfather—he moved with his parents to Hardeman County, Tennessee c. 1849. He m. Mary Jane Walpole (daughter of Gilbert Harrison and Lourena C. Walpole—a descendant of the Walpole Family of England). Thomas J. was in the Company E, 22 BN Tennessee Cavalry, Confederate States Army, and after the death of his parents in 1864, he moved to Arkansas. In 1880 he had a General Mercantile Store, Carriage and Wagon Yard, in Little Rock. Robert Walter, his oldest son (Al's grandfather) was associated with the Mercantile Store and in 1-2-1878 married Mattie E. Whitehurst. Al's father, Wm. Henry, was their youngest son. Henry Bryant was a farmer, trainer of horses, construction foreman and a fruit and vegetable wholesaler.

Ernest Buchanan

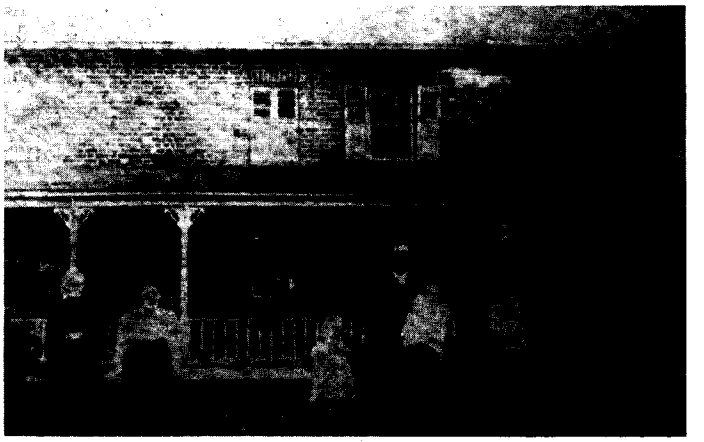
Samuel Buchanan came from Ireland in 1702 and settled in Pennsylvania in the early 1700s and moved on to Virginia. He died in Washington County, Virginia in 1774. He was the father of John Buchanan the great, great grandfather of Ernest Buchanan and the other children of Samuel Newton Buchanan and Rachel Ferguson Buchanan.

John Buchanan was married twice and had the following children: Thomas, Samuel, James, William Edmiston, Matthew, Robert, Andrew, Martha, Ann, Elizabeth, Alexander, and Nancy.

According to Washington County, Arkansas history, six brothers came to Washington County from Lincoln County, Tennessee and settled in the vicinity of Cane Hill. Their names were; James, John, Andrew, Alexander, Robert and Isaac.

Andrew and John were Ministers of the Presbyterian Church. These pioneers organized the first church and Sunday school in northwest Arkansas at Cane Hill, August 30, 1828.

Andrew Buchanan settled in Prairie Grove. Robert "Bob" Buchanan on Richland Creek near Wesley, Arkansas.



Buchanan home, a mile east of Tuttle, built from bricks made on farm by slave labor. L to R: Mrs. Augustus P. Buchanan, Mary Eva Buchanan, Irene (in chair), Samuel Buchanan holding Homer and Rachel Ferguson Buchanan.

Robert "Bob" Buchanan married Mary Stagner on September 14, 1819. One was from Kentucky, the other from across the line in Tennessee. Bob was 19 years old and Mary was 16. They came to Arkansas on horse back with the other Buchanan families in 1827. They had two sons, Newton Lafayette Buchanan and Augustus Pierson Buchanan. Their sons were born in Arkansas.

Robert "Bob" Buchanan was a government surveyer. The county lines of Washington and Madison Counties originally followed the White River and Richland Creek. Robert "Bob" Buchanan helped to establish them in their present location.

Augustus Pierson Buchanan, son of "Bob" Buchanan was a county surveyer. He helped to survey property lines.

Augustus Pierson Buchanan was wounded in the war of the states. He made his way back home and hid in a cave near by. The slaves carried food to him. When the war was over and the slaves were free, they did not want to leave. They were treated well and it was a sad parting. Some of them chose the Buchanan name.

The old brick house that Augustus Pierson Buchanan hired a mason to build, is still standing firm and proud. It was started before the war and finished after peace came. The bricks and the mortar which were used to bind the home together were made on the farm. It is located on Highway 74, between Tuttle and Wesley. The present owner is John Murphy.

The early settlers came looking for cheap land or land to homestead. They had to build their first homes of logs. Some had earthen floors and later some had split log floors called "puncheon floors".

The Buchanan family did not want low land near the creek or river where the flood waters could carry their rail fences away.

They had to depend on food they could raise and game they could hunt in the woods. The chores had to be done before dark. Fire light, betty lamps, and a few candles were their source of light after dark.

They saved all the scraps of fat to make soap. Lye was not available in stores, they had to make their own. The wood ashes were saved and put in an ash hopper. Water was poured on so the dripping would fall into a container. That was drip lye, this was mixed with the fat and cooked to make soap.

I remember, when I was a child, traveling all the way to Eureka Springs in a wagon with Mother and Dad and some of my brothers and my sister. I was fascinated by the rushing water in the springs. These springs are covered now. It was a long trip by wagon and the road was rough. I thought we would never get home.

A stranger who came along asking for a night's lodging was not turned away. My mother made pallets on the floor and made room for them. I remember my mother washing bed clothes for a week after some of these guests had departed. She was afraid they might have left some little unfriendly critters or the "itch".

Augustus Pierson Buchanan: born January 7, 1836 and died March 30, 1881.

Martha Emily Pierson: born January 20, 1838 and died December 1920.

Their children, Lavina Augusta, Robert Pierson, Fulton, Mary Eva, Isabella, Samuel Newton.

Samuel Newton Buchanan: born October 11, 1878 and died January 8, 1961.

Rachel Ferguson Buchanan: born July 30, 1882 and died March 6, 1936.

Their children, Irene, Homer, Ernest, Augustus, Lawton, Fulton, Clemma, and Marie.

John Buchanan

There was this somewhat stocky young man walking along a dusty road, somewhat expectant and yet dejected. His clothing was that of a gray uniform, patched and ragged, having seen long and rugged service. He was limping on a bandaged leg having about recovered from a war wound. He passed lots of vacant houses (some had been burned), and overgrown fields - once plowed, but now with brush and weeds. Glad the war was over and to be back home, but only to find his father with the soles of his feet burned so that he could not walk. Bushwhackers had tied him to a rocking chair and pushed the chair over so that his feet touched hot plow shears trying to extract information on gold reported to be buried near, but had long since been removed by the owner.

The Buchanan clan was historically mentioned in Scotland as early as 1016, but apparently were not on good terms with the English King. In later years some moved to North Ireland and then to Pennsylvania. My ancestors went to Western Virginia, then into Tennessee and Kentucky; from there to Crystal Hill near Little Rock. At Crystal Hill the dreaded disease Malaria was severe and many died. They sent scouts to investigate stories of northwest Arkansas. They returned with glowing stories of the beautiful country. The area they selected was Canehill where there were abundant springs, excellent woods of walnut and oak trees and rich land reported as having river bottom cane growing on the hilltops. This prompted the move up the Arkansas River to Fort Smith, then north to Canehill along what is now State 59. My great-grandfather was in the group and the year was 1827, some nine years before Statehood.

John Buchanan (1806-1880) was a farmer and preacher. As a circuit riding preacher, he supported himself by selling Bibles for the American Bible Society in Arkansas. Their first years must have been difficult, building log cabins, clearing land and planting meager crops. Cornbread and wild game was no doubt the main fare. The most amazing part was how soon they built a church-meeting hall-school. Listed in the poll tax for the year 1836 was one John Buchanan who declared 2 horses, 4 meat cattle, 1 tanyard ($.50 poll tax); total tax $1.50. But the most valuable assets were slaves that appeared in a few declarations. It is also obvious that hogs were included in the migration as bacon slabs were a source of what little income they had.

James Albert Buchanan (1844-1904) received his education in Canehill College mentioned above, including English, History, Latin, Greek and Math. His basic mathematics was adequate to qualify him as a surveyor, and he served as Washington County Surveyor for a number of years.

The Bellview School and Church were located near Lincoln, Arkansas on County Road 33, the Lincoln to Wedington Road. However, it was better known as Bucksnort, and how it got its rich name is the story I will relate. It seems that there was a prayer meeting being held in the school one evening, and there were several young men gathered around the entrance as the meeting was in progress inside. The usual stories were being swapped, and one of the outside group was my Uncle Walter known as Buck. He was bragging about his horse Dick, who he claimed would do anything he asked him to do. This piece of bragging led to a dare which was to ride the horse Dick through the door into the meeting. The challenge was accepted and as Dick got his head into the meeting room he snorted. So the word spread that the new name of Bellview was "Bucksnort". Uncle Walter quietly took up residence in Oklahoma for a period of time.

The early settlers had their problems: three Buchanan brothers were ambushed and killed by the Pin Indians; the incident of the murder of the Wright family by a group of desperadoes; then somewhat later the bushwhackers robbed and burned homes during and after the Civil War. We can't leave this without a story about Mike Nail, the Will Rogers of his time (circa 1850). Mike was transporting a load of corn into town on a hot fall day when his team of ox sulled, just layed down in the road and would not respond to coax or the whip. When Doc Campbell appeared on one of his many house calls, Mike explained his problem and Doc replied that he could solve that. He fished down his black medicine case, took out a small bottle of liquid. He poured some of the solution along the back and rear end of the ox and stepped back. The old ox raised up its head, switched his tail a few times, jumped up, broke out of the traces and took out over the hill Mike stared at the sight of the disappearing ox, then turned to Doc Campbell. "Say Doc, how much did that bottle cost?" "Oh, about 10 cents." "Then, put about 25 cents on me because I have to catch that ox."

My father, Herbert Earle Buchanan (1881-1974) was born near Canehill, the last of five children. He had a very difficult time getting his education as his family had little money. He attended the University of Arkansas through odd jobs and teaching assignments. His Masters and PHD degrees were awarded from the University of Chicago (he was later awarded an honorary LLD degree from University of Arkansas). He taught Math at the University of Tennessee, then headed the Math Department at Tulane from 1920 to retirement in 1950. Retirement was to the county he loved in northwest Arkansas and to the Tilley homestead.

The writer, John Andrew Buchanan, was born in Knoxville, Tennessee in 1912, the youngest of 4 children, we moved to New Orleans, Louisiana in 1920 and that was my home until retirement in 1969, which brought me to the Tilley home where we cared for my mother and father who were in their 80s.

In New Orleans, I attended Tulane in the College of Engineering, married a wonderful woman, Marjorie Hayward, a transplanted Mississippian. Service in the Navy 1940-46; retired from Navy Reserve 1967 as a Commander. Also was employed as the 8th Naval District Fire Protection Engineer for 1946 to 1969 when I was retired. In the tradition of the family on both sides, four of our five children are school teachers. The last child is an electronic technician.

I do not have much information on my mother's side of the family. Her grandfather John Tilley came to Arkansas in 1835 from Tennessee. He was married to Elizabeth Henderson who died in 1853, and then to Martha Crawford. The John Tilley antibellum mansion was built in 1853-1855 by slave labor, and is located five miles west of Prairie Grove on the old Stonewall Road. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

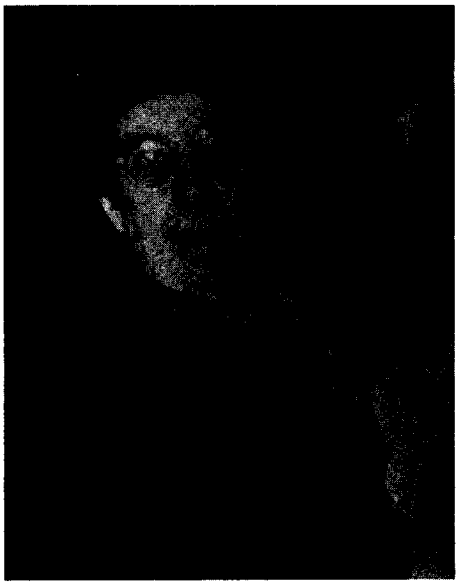
Anna Worthington Buford

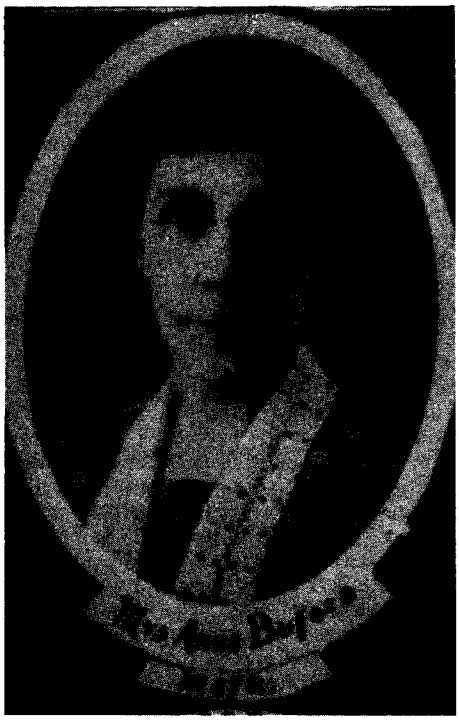
Anna James Worthington was born November 12, 1876, in Maysville, Kentucky. Her parents, John Gaither and Eva Withers Worthington, moved to Lexington, Missouri when she was an infant. She graduated from Lexington High School and received her Bachelor of Arts Degree from Lexington Baptist College in 1898. She did graduate work in Central State Teachers' College, Warrensburg, Missouri, University of Missouri at Columbia and the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. She taught two years in a private school in Galena, Kansas in 1898-1899 and five years in the Lexington High School before moving to Fayetteville, Arkansas in 1907.

Anna Worthington married Manville Twyman Buford June 7, 1905. They were the parents of Manville Twyman, Jr., Lynn Gordon (who was a casualty of WWII serving on the USS Helena which went down in the Pacific, July 5, 1943), Bonnie and James Allen.

This impromptu picture of Anna W. Buford was taken by Floy Scroggins at the Springdale Public Library for the Jaycee Pioneer Citizen Award in 1951 (age 75 years). A painting copied from the picture acquired by her children and grandchildren hangs in the Arkansas Room at the Library.



Anna Buford was a member of the Elmdale Baptist Church and had mentioned the need for a library there, shortly before her death. Many memorials were given for this purpose and the library was established in her memory naming it the Anna Buford Memorial Library in 1964. An enlargement of the enclosed photograph was presented to the Library by her children.



Mrs. Anna Buford, Math teacher, Springdale High School 1923-24. Photo from class picture.

The Bufords were attracted to Fayetteville, Arkansas in the fall of 1907 by the beautiful sugar maple trees and the impressive homes on College Avenue and the eastern part of Fayetteville. They settled on "East Mountain" (what is now known as Mt. Sequoyah) along with the Zolls, Curtises, Booziers, Dunns and Leightons. They moved to Springdale in 1921 where Mrs. Buford began a 27 year span teaching mathematics in the Springdale High School. All but one year was confined to straight algebra. When she finished college in the late 1890s, she wanted to become an engineer, but that was unheard of at that time — a woman engineer. She then decided to be a mathematics teacher.

J. O. Kelly wrote: "A Tribute to a Superior Teacher". "When I became Superintendent of the Springdale Public Schools, July, 1944, one of the first teachers I met was Mrs. M. T. Buford. She was a mathematics teacher from September, 1921 to June, 1947, having served 2 of those years as high school principal. Mrs. Buford was one of those rare teachers who had the qualities to give stern, but kindly instructions to her students with a personal interest in the success of each one. I was impressed as the boys who returned from Military Service in visiting their school, always wanted to be directed to Mrs. Buford's room. I remember Mrs. Buford as one of the most successful teachers I have known and worked with in the many years I have served as a superintendent of Arkansas schools. The Senior Class of 1947 dedicated their Yearbook in honor of her years of service to them and to the school. Mrs. Buford was also honored by the School Board naming the first cafeteria detached from other buildings on the high school campus as Buford Hall".

After Mr. Buford's death in 1949, and 35 years as a school teacher, Mrs. Buford became a librarian at the Springdale Public Library, at the age of 73 years. She served in this capacity until her sudden death in 1963 at 87 years of age. Most of the time she walked the 8 blocks from her home to the library and back. Her physical activity dates back to her youth — she won the State Championship in tennis at the University of Missouri back in the 1890s. Her cheery attitude and pleasant helpfulness made her a great favorite with the reading public, and she was considered practically indispensable by the other librarian. The Library Board received the following tribute from a co-worker: "I would like to present my book How Fast Can It Go? in memory of Anna Buford. I owe a great deal to this wonderful woman who did so much not only for me but for many, many others". (Derlyne Simpson Gibson). The family of Anna Buford presented the Library with a portrait of her and received this response: "The Board and Staff of the Springdale Public Library and I am sure the citizens of our community, want to thank you for the lovely portrait of Anna Buford which we have placed in the Arkansas Room".

In 1951 the Springdale Junior Chamber of Commerce chose Mrs. Buford to receive the first "Pioneer Citizen Award". To receive this Award, the citizen must be 70 years of age or older and to have given at least 25 years of service to the community. The nominating committee said in their presentation, "We believe no other person has had more widespread influence on the community over the past 30 years.

From Chapter G, P. E. O. Sisterhood: "In loving memory of Anna Buford, we offer this tribute of love and praise: Mother Buford, as she was known to her Sisters, was a P. E. O. for 30 years. Her life exemplified the qualities of Faith, Love, Purity, Justice and Truth. She was a faithful Christian and active in the Baptist Church for 70 years. God was very real to her and a "very present help in trouble" as she experienced family sorrows throughout her lifetime. She seemed to always keep serene inside, possessing something in mind and spirit that strengthened in times of stress. She was a devoted wife, mother and grandmother. She knew the purpose of living and imparted this knowledge to the members of her family, always finding time to counsel with them as they had need. Mrs. Buford was an educator. Former students remember her as an inspiring teacher, always patient and understanding, stating "she taught much more than the text for her teaching was the opening of doors to a fuller, more satisfying life". Her memory lives on in the hearts of her grateful pupils. Her co-workers at the Library during her 14 years there, recall their busy hours together with happiness, as she gave to others the fullness of her resourceful life. She possessed the individualism and humanitarian characteristics of the pioneer type. Practicing the love of man in her public relations, brought Mrs. Buford the honor she so rightly deserved when she was named Springdale's Pioneer Citizen in 1951. The world is a better place to live for many because of her dedicated life of service to others. Those whose paths crossed hers, know well that in her life, Mother Buford achieved vast spiritual riches. Knowing her enriched their lives. She has left her footprints on the sands of time and her name will evoke memories of a lovely person who has been an inspiration and blessing to all who knew her. Revelations 14:13 - Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth, yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them.

In 1961 Mrs. Buford inspired the membership of Elmdale Baptist Church to benefit from a Church Library. She was asked to be Chairman of such a committee along with four other members of the congregation and they were making progress in the establishment of a library when Mrs. Buford passed away. The Committee carried on and established the library, having received many, many memorials for this purpose. The library is named the Anna Buford Memorial Library. Again, her children presented a portrait of her to be hung in that library.

Billie Jines, writer for the Springdale News, tells of her version in her column "The Way I Heard It". If you've ever read a particularly delightful book that you finished with a mixture of sadness and yet gladness for having read it, then you know how I felt when they told me that Mrs. Anna Buford had slipped quietly out of this life a few days ago. It's a satisfying experience to follow a story along to a beautiful conclusion, but there's a reluctance to turn the last page and know that you won't be hearing more from the characters of the book. Finally of course, you close the book and put it eventually out of sight and out of mind. But you don't actually put it out of your life. You can't. For, as Tennyson so aptly put it, "I am a part of all that I have met. Yet all experience is an arch where-through gleams that untravelled world, whose margin fades forever and forever when I move". Years after you've read the book or known an outstanding person, you are sometimes unconsciously prompted by a bit of philosophy by that one.

A few months ago, I saw Mrs. Buford graciously serving cold drinks at a committee meeting in her home. She sat the tray down and without dimming the smile that was so much a part of her, she turned to her pastor and said, "Well, now you've been telling us about the wrath of God and about His unerring judgement. Now I want you to preach us a sermon on the wonderful love of God". Very soon afterward, she was to find herself drawing heavily upon that faith she so abundantly possessed. They told me later that word of the tragic death of the second son she had lost took its toll of her physical stamina. I wouldn't question that, but what I thought I saw when I went to offer sympathy was a maximum Christian accepting the will of God without a trace of doubt.

The last time I saw Mrs. Buford was on a Tuesday night. Having heard that she would be leaving the next morning to go to her daughter's I felt that I should see her before she left. She met me at the door and laughed at me for thinking that she would be going away for the winter. Oh no, she said, she would only stay a week. She couldn't be away from home so long. She hustled me in to sit by her fire and before I could inquire about her recent illness, she was asking, "how is everything at the Church? Is it going well? Are new people coming? Do you think our pastor is happy here with us?" It was a cozy December evening for a chat with a friend — a friend, who at 87 was almost exactly twice my age. Soon though, I thought best not to tire her with more conversation, so I arose to leave. She followed me to the door, and stood silhouetted against the light watching to see if I were all right as I got into the car on the dark street. As I drove away, she closed the door. I didn't see her again. Exactly a week later they buried her.

The more I've thought about it, the more that door I saw her close gets to looking like the back cover of a well-written book. You don't open the same book and start to read again. Instead, you search to see if the book has a sequel, where you can re-new your acquaintance with the folks of the story. Not all books do have sequels, but somehow, I feel that one day I may run across one on Mrs. Buford. It will be all bound in a brand-new cover, and the story it contains will go on and on forever.

Ronald E. Bumpass

Ronald E. Bumpass was born January 6, 1948 in Lubbock, Texas, has been a resident of Fayetteville from and since 1965, and serves currently as the Vice-Mayor for the City of Fayetteville.

He is married to Karen Lewis Bumpass, a Fayetteville native, and they have two-children, Bart born April 21, 1969 and Buckley born March 10, 1980.

Ron traveled to Fayetteville with his parents, Dr. Donald E. Bumpass, a Professor of Graduate Education at the University of Arkansas (1965 to date) and Edna Pricer Bumpass, employed at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Fayetteville from 1965 through 1986, who were both natives of Lubbock, Texas.

He met his wife, Karen, at Fayetteville High School and they married in July of 1968 while both attending the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. Karen received her BS degree in Education and taught at the Fayetteville Public Schools for several years. Ron received his Bachelor of Public Administration in 1970 and Juris Doctrate in 1974 at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. Ron was a member of the University Student Senate for several years and the Law School designate to the University Council his senior year. As a member of Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity, the nickname "REB" stuck based upon his initials and outspoken representation.

Karen is the daughter of Herbert Anderson Lewis, Jr. and Bettye Carolyn Martin Lewis who currently resides at the Lewis home on Washington Avenue. Following his graduation in 1974 and an internship with the Putman, Davis and Bassett Law Firm of Fayetteville, he opened his office as a private practitioner located in the Cravens Building on "Smokey Row" - Center Street in Fayetteville. During his early career, he taught Judicial Process, Criminal Justice and American National Government to political science students at the University.

He became a member of the Washington County, Arkansas and American Bar Associations. He was named an Outstanding Young Man of America by the Jaycees in 1977. He was named to Who's Who of American Law in 1980. His political career began in an unsuccessful race for Justice of the Peace for the constitutionally revised Quorum Court of Washington County in 1978.

In 1980, he was elected as an At Large member to the Fayetteville City Board of Directors (council) and served as chairman of the Police and Fire Commission, Police Pension Plan, the Street and Public Works Committee, the Fayetteville Advertising and Promotion Commission and the Washington County Jail Advisory Board. He was re-elected in November 1984 and elected Vice-Mayor in January of 1987.

He has served on the boards of Downtown Fayetteville Unlimited, Pride in Dickson Street and he and his wife are lifetime members of the Washington County Historical Society. Ron has lead the community in the renovation and restoration of buildings to preserve the historical and cultural heritage of the Fayetteville Community. In association with his parents, and other, he was a prime developer of the Old Post Office Restaurant purchased from the Fayetteville Urban Renewal Authority in 1978. After a limited participation in the restaurant and the Old Post Office Gathering Place, he sold his interest to H. Keith Cearly, Jr. The Old Post Office building is still owned by Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Bumpass and is leased to a restaurant corporation.

In addition, Ron served on the Fayetteville City Council Committee for the renovation of the Fayetteville City Hall located on Mountain Street completed in 1984. In addition, he has represented the Lewis Brothers Land Company and Mr. John Lewis in their efforts to become listed on the National Register of Historic Places which will be leased to the newly formed Bank of Fayetteville, N. A. He has struggled to lead the renovation of Dickson Street and the location of the University of Arkansas/City of Fayetteville Civic Auditorium and Fine Arts Complex in the area. He has served as a consultant to the Dickson Street Central Business Improvement District during its formation in 1987.

A member of the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce since 1974, he has attended the committee of 100 leadership conference for the past ten years. Introduced to St. Paul's Episcopal Church by his wife, he became confirmed in the Episcopalian/Anglican faith and participates in the spiritual community as well. Karen is a Sunday School teacher and a member of the Altarguild at the Church. His son, Bart served as alter boy for ten years. Ron was inducted into the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States of America in August of 1986 based upon the nomination of Woodson W. Bassett, Jr., a long-time friend and confidante.

As an active participant in Rotary, Ron has served as Sargeant at Arms and Director of Programs since his induction in 1980. January 1986 was a special month as Ron worked for well over a year and succeeded in hosting Governor Bill Clinton, United State Senator Dale Bumpers and United States Senator David Pryor, on three successive weeks in Fayetteville. Governor Clinton was a former professor of Ron's at the University of Law School and they continue to have a strong personal relationship which has grown over the past fourteen years. Senator Bumpers refers to Ron as his "cuzzin" and shares with everyone in their company the fact that his grandfather spelled his name the same as Ron.

In tracing the family history, Bumpass is now spelled some thirty-six different ways. The name was given by the French to English Goose Stepping soldiers who invaded the continent in the early 1600s - "Bumpass" (pronounced Boom-paz).

Governor and thence Senator David Pryor first met Ron in the company of his long-time friend Randal Tyson when fishing for blue marlin in the Bahamas in 1976.

Currently the law practice is expanding at a rapid rate and includes legal associates Laurie Hanson and Jeannie Johnson Hill. The office is managed by Vickie Presley Hassell, formerly of West Fork. Karen also works at the office on a regular basis and the practice is expanding rapidly and currently serves as general counsel to Rose Care Nursing Homes headquartered in the State of Arkansas, owned by J. T. Rose of Rogers, an individual who currently serves as the Democratic National Committeeman for the State of Arkansas.

Ron states, "I have been a student of government and law since the eighth grade and chose it as a career in order to have the flexibility to serve the community in a profession as well as becoming active in community interest projects. I can think of no other career which would have allowed this flexibility and am appreciative of my broadbased educational background. In its simplest terms, I want to be the best at whatever I do, provide the highest quality professional services to my clients, and to always keep in mind that everything I do must be done with a plan to maintain and improve the quality of life for all of Fayetteville, northwest Arkansas and the entire state. With the support of my immediate and extended family, I will strive to succeed in my goals".

John Burkett

The writer is indebted to Mr. Rodney Burkett Whitaker of Frederic, Maryland for most of the Burkett information.

Henry Earl Burkett and horse Lightfoot.

John Burkett (also Burket) was born July 10, 1813, place unknown (Germany is given by some, doubted by others) the son of George Burkett and Elizabeth Till Burkett. He married, probably in Mississippi, Mary Barnes, born 1817 - died 1862 on the way to Arkansas. John died June 4, 1904 and is buried at Old Union Cemetery in Cincinnati, Arkansas. He remained a widower following Mary's death. John and family arrived in Washington County, Arkansas after 1862 and first stopped south of Lincoln, Arkansas near Bethesda Cemetery, soon moving near the Harrell Cemetery north of Cincinnati, Arkansas and then to a house near the Quince Marquess place on Ballard Creek and then half a mile up the creek to a spot in S8T15NR33W, (per Valley Dalton Smith, great grandson), where he remained. John was an expert carpenter, cabinetmaker, blacksmith and pipe fitter. The writer has a "wardrobe" made by Mr. Burkett of Wild Cherry Lumber; it is pegged together, with some square nails being used. He also made looms, etc. and had a foot-powered "turning lathe" on which he made table legs, etc., a real all around craftsman.

His children were (1) John William, born 1836; (2) Lavina born 1837, remained in Mississippi married a Stamps of the Stamps-Baxter singers; (3) Andrew Jackson, born in 1839; (4) Sarah Ann, born 1842; (5) Nathan Lamiel, born 1844; (6) George Washington born June 1846, died May 12, 1938 buried Gibson-Parks Cemetery; (7) Elizabeth Till, born 1847-1940; (8) Martha Haseltine, born December 24, 1849, married on September 1875 to Travis L. Beaty, born 1842, died 1950 (?); (9) James Madison, born 1851; (10) Adelia Caroline, born August 1853, died January 1, 1931, buried Old Union, Cincinnati, married May 21, 1876 to Mead Smith, born October 18, 1852, died March 7, 1928, both buried Old Union Cemetery; (11) Mary Susannah, born 1857.

Since writing the above, I have found John Burkett's obit, which states he was born in South Carolina, was buried June 5, 1904, belonged to the Baptist Church and the Masonic Lodge. The funeral was conducted and the obit written by D. A. Squyres.

George Washington Burkett was born June 5, 1846 at Monticello, Lawrence County, Mississippi and died May 13, 1938 in Summers, Arkansas, married 13 (or 30) October, 1873, to Matilda Ann Gibson, born October 28, 1850, died January 13, 1889, daughter of John and Virginia Phoebe Carnahan Gibson. Both buried Gibson-Parks Cemetery. Children: (1) Mamie Burkett, born September 20, 1874, died August 10, 1915, never married; (2) Henry Earl, born 1877, died about 1957, buried Haskell, Oklahoma never married; (3) Ethul Dee, born October 19, 1876 - died 1956, buried in Haskell, Oklahoma. Children: (A) Rodney Burkett (Joe) born March 17, 1904 married on July 17, 1930, Ila Marie Parsons born March 17, 1909, Dothan, Alabama. One child, Hazel Ethelwyn, born November 12, 1940; (B) Harry LaVern (Pete) Captain USA, born July 22, 1907 died May 3, 1970, buried National Cemetery Ft. Gibson, married Eunice, one child Mary Kay who married a Booth; (4) George G., born and died September 7, 1881; (5) James Ralph Burkett born February 10, 1883, died June 22, 1916 (or 1918) buried Gibson-Parks Cemetery, married February 5, 1911 to Ethel M. Funkhouser, born 1884, died 1974, daughter of Henry and Mattie Maxwell Funkhouser. Buried. As Ethyl Brewster without Henry Brewster. No children; (6) Lizzie Kate, born June 7, 1885, died July 31, 1886; (7) Beulah Irene born June 8, 1887 - died September 26, 1888.

G. W. Burkett later married Ocie Bost, 1870-1950, daughter of a neighbor, John Bost, divorced. One son, J. Gulledge Burkett born 1900 - died 1965, married Zella Stevens Cann, born 1904. Gulledge buried Prairie Grove, Cemetery. It is believed that George married a third time, probably 1920 to a Texas woman, but this too ended in divorce.

Joseph Marion Burnett

Joseph Marion Burnett

Joseph Marion Burnett, born approximately 1832, was the son of John and Sarah (Oliver) Burnett of Virginia. Joseph married Lula Jane Gault in 1856. They were the parents of nine children: Sara Ann (born 1856), married Francis Clawson; James Roland (born 1858), married Lucy?; William (born 1860); Mary E. (born 1866); Matson (born 1868); Joseph Meredith (born 1870), married Orah Alice Fitch; Nancy (born 1873) married? Widdows; Florance (born 1876); Charles Ephraim (born 1882), married Nora Bell Dawson.

Joseph was a sharecropper and followed work in Arkansas and Missouri. He eventually moved to Claremore, Oklahoma where he died in 1893. Lula Jane died in New Mexico in September 1913.

As a young man Charles Ephraim moved from Washington County, Arkansas to Indian Territory. On July 16, 1905 he married Nora Bell Dawson, daughter of George Thomas and Mary Elizabeth (Blanton) Dawson. George Dawson was a Baptist preacher. He and his wife were born in Georgia. Nora Bell was born on a riverboat in Paducah, Kentucky.

C. E., as Charles was known, and Nora were the parents of ten children: Grace Marie (born 1906), married Willis Jamison; Thora Jane (born 1908), married Taylor White; Carl Ephraim (born 1910), married Hazel Hasselthel; Mary Eunice (born 1913), married William Chumley, James Roland (born 1916), married Ruth Bea Phillips; Jeremiah Maston (born 1919 - died 1920); Herbert Talmage (born 1921 - died 1921); Joseph Perry (born 1922), married Jaqualine Hix; Lonnie Lee (born 1925), married Wanda Pearson; Oliver Dawson (born 1928).

C. E. was a sharecropper like his father. He worked and moved his family in Arkansas and Oklahoma. Nora had bad sinus problems and on advice of her doctor the family moved to Phoenix, Arizona for a few years. After her health improved they moved back to Oklahoma.

Nora and C. E. died in Tahlequah, Oklahoma. They are buried in Blue Springs Cemetery in Gideon, Cherokee County, Oklahoma.

Grace, oldest daughter of C. E. and Nora, married Willis Ezra Jamison on November 9, 1924 in Eldon, Oklahoma. Willis, born May 28, 1902, was the son of Garland Price and Mary Ellen (Smallwood) Jamison of Missouri. The children of this marriage were: Norwood (born 1925); Emma Jean (born 1927); Jessie Dewitt (born 1929); Ezra Eugene (born 1931); Perry Vernon (born 1933); Bethel Ludena (born 1935); James Harvey (born 1937); Nora Marie (born 1939); Willie Robert (born 1941); Jimmie Ray (born 1944); Edward Arnold (born 1945); Dessie Fay (born 1947); Donna Ellen (born 1948) and Dorene Patricia (born 1952).

Willis worked as a farmer, sharecropper and in the oil fields. Grace worked hard helping her husband and raising their fourteen children. Willis died on July 16, 1982, just one year after Grace on Juiy 28, 1981. They are buried in the Blue Springs Cemetery in Gideon, Oklahoma. A small white frame church stands on a hilltop beside the cemetery.

Emma Jean Jamison married Donald Eugene Rice on February 2, 1946 in Spring Hill, Texas. They are the parents of four children. (See Rice family).

Reuben Beele Burrows

My family appears in Goodspeed History of North Western Arkansas, written 1889, page 1129. It lists Isaac Gilstrap and wife Locky (Davis) Gilstrap. They left Knox County, Tennessee between 1836-1838, going to Macon County, Missouri, to Washington County, Arkansas by 1850 census. They had nine children, and appear in 1850 census Cove Creek, Washington County, Arkansas. Isaac and family were farmers, but Gilstraps built and operated several lumber yards in Washington County. In 1855, their youngest daughter, Nancy M. Gilstrap married Reuben Beale (or Beele) Burrows, from Tennessee County unknown. They had three children, John Wesley, Mary Ann, and Locky Jane. Then came the Civil War and three sons of Isaac: Jesse, Benjamin and Thomas J., along with son-in-law, Reuben B. Burrows, all enlisted on Union side. As results of the war, Reuben B. Burrows killed April 18, 1863, Battle of Prairie Grove and buried on battlefield and later moved to National Cemetery, Fayetteville. Jesse, Benjamin and Thomas J. all died as results of Civil War and are buried Woolsey Cemetery, Highway 71, West Fork, Washington County, Arkansas. Isaac and Locky broke up over the Civil War and never lived together again. She died in 1873 and he in 1877 and are buried in Washington County, Arkansas. On January 24, 1870, the three children of Reuben were granted a pension from the government of $400.00. Since their mother died in 1867, these children were more or less on their own. My grandmother, Locky Jane, was passed from one family to another. Many times she had no shoes and had to squat so her long dress would cover her feet to warm them so she could walk a little more. She worked in the fields with the men, then came indoors and prepared meals, washed clothes and other chores before she could go to bed. The pension was a life saver for her. Now she was able to charge against her money for shoes, dress material and school books. I have vouchers showing where she purchased these things. John Wesley went out on his own at age 13, to work where ever he could. Mary Ann must have died young of tuberculosis, like her mother, as I have been unable to find anything about her. When I looked up their pension records, I found them in the oldest records at the Fayetteville, Arkansas Court House. Life was very hard in the years after the Civil War. Most families had very little.

Locky Jane married at age 17 and had ten children. Only three lived long enough to marry and have families. John Wesley became a Methodist Protestant Minister. He traveled and ministered to West Fork and Saint Paul churches. If he had a horse he took it, but, if not he walker over the hills, which was around fifteen miles to preach. John Wesley and wife Phemy York had eight children. Some of their grandchildren still live in and around Washington County, Arkansas.

I have not been able to find parents or siblings of Reuben Burrows. The Gilstraps came to this country in the early 1700s from England. They were friends of the King of England and he granted them land grants when they arrived. My line came from Peter, one of three brothers to arrive together. They fought against the King of England in Revolutionary War. Peter married a widow, Mary, and had nine children. Son, Benjamin, born 1766 North Carolina is my line. Benjamin married Winifred Mumford 1788. He died, a widower, 1805 Saint Louis, Missouri from a steamboat accident. His four children were then taken into brother Bright and Lelah (Mumford) Gilstrap household to raise. Benjamin's son, Isaac born 1799, North Carolina was my Nancy M. Gilstrap's father. Isaac Gilstrap and Locky Davis were married Knox County, Tennesse, March 22, 1822. Married same day, one of Locky's triplet sisters, Lacky Davis to Isreal Gilstrap. Witnessing these two marriages was third triplet, Larky. Isaac and Locky had nine children; Mary, Jesse, Malinda, Elizabeth, James, Benjamin, Thomas J., Nancy M. and Wesley H. Isaac Gilstrap was first cousin to Andrew Jackson Gilstrap, great grandfather to William W. Keeler, past Elected Chief of Cherokee Tribe, past President of Phillips Petroleum Company.

George Washington Burson

George W. Burson was born July 27, 1833 in Alabama. The Burson family moved to Grapeland, Texas after slaves were freed. One slave by the name of Ann refused to leave them, and she came to Texas with them.

In 1869 George W. Burson came to Washington County, Arkansas. He purchased a tract of land containing 60 acres. The story is, he traded a team of mules for the land, George W. Burson married Naomi Benson August 25, 1870. She was the daughter of Isaac and Rebecca (McDonald) Benson. George & Naomi were the parents of five children of which two died when they were young. Their second born Robert Christopher (Bob) married Laura Alice Bennett August 30, 1893. Laura was the daughter of Allen H. and Miranda A. (Watson) Bennett. They were my grandparents.

Bob and Laura were the parents of eight children. Artie Mary Burson was their fourth child. Artie Mary Burson married James Earnest (Jim) Calico. He was the son of George W. and Elizabeth (Bailey) Calico. James E. and Artie M. were the parents of three children of which I am the youngest. Sharon K. Calico married Arvle Gene George May 30, 1959. We have two sons, Preston James and Ronnie Gene George. We have three grandchildren.

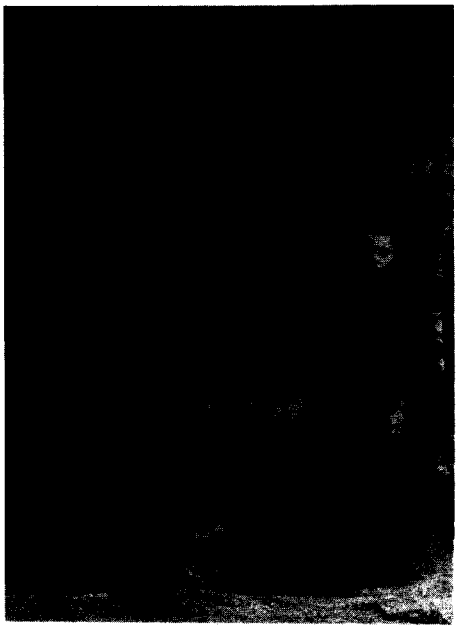
John R. Byas

This is the family history of John R. Byas, born 1861 and died 1931. He was the son of Armstrong Byas, born 1825 in Kentucky, and his wife Catherine Hawkins Byas was born in 1838 in Indiana and died in Arkansas in 1876.



The family of John Redding Byas

With the exception of John R. Byas, born 1861 in Waco, Texas, in the picture, all were born in Washington County, Arkansas. Left to right in the picture are: daughter of John R. Byas, born 1861, in Waco, Texas and wife Melissa Stone Byas, born 1861, in Arkansas, Hattie Marie, born 1886, daughter Estelle (Stella) Byas, born 1884 in Washington County, Arkansas, son Stoney Howell Byas, born 1891 was a World War I Marine veteran. The family of six all died in California. John R. Byas is buried in Pacific Grove, California (1931).

Melissa Stone Byas, born in Washington County, Arkansas in 1862, she was the daughter of Joseph Stone, a Confederate southern army soldier, born in 1824 in Missouri and Melissa Jane Hash Stone, born in Springfield, Illinois. Joseph Stone and Melissa Jane Hash were married in Washington County, Arkansas in 1848. They are both buried in Friendship Cemetery, Arkansas. They had six children: daughter, America Elizabeth, died in Missouri, son, Frances Lafayette, died in Arkansas, daughter, Nancy Ann, died in California, son, Henry Newton, died in Arkansas, daughter, Melinda Keziah, died in California (never married), and Melissa who married John R. Byas in Arkansas in 1882. Melissa and John R. Byas had three children: daughter, Estelle Byas, daughter, Hattie Marie Byas and son Stoney Howell Byas.

John R. Byas was a farmer and loved the earth and horses. He had a diplomatic personality and enjoyed many friends far and wide. His marriage to Melissa Stone was in 1882 in Washington County, Arkansas. He enjoyed his three children of which my mother, Estelle, was the oldest and wife of William Knight. They were married in 1904 in Stockton, California and had five children: daughter, Laura Melissa, son, William Howell, daughter Frances Marie, daughter, Nora Leola (a registered nurse), and son, Fisher Randall (master mechanic-journeyman).

Shortly after the John R. Byas family removed to California, from Arkansas, Melissa died in 1898. After many years he married again. There was no issue. He died in 1931 and is buried in Pacific Grove, California.

Michael Wayne Byrd

Michael Wayne Byrd moved to Springdale, Arkansas with his father and mother, Homer and Pearl Byrd in the summer of 1956. Michael and his parents along with brother Dennis Allen and sisters, LaDonna Kay and Dianna Sue had been living first in Maderia, California, and then Tulsa, Oklahoma. Michael's father was a truck driver and moved to the Springdale area because of the trucking industry.

The Byrd children attended school in and around Springdale. Michael and his sister LaDonna went to school at Bethel. Bethel no longer exists due to consolidation of schools. The country schools have been eliminated. The Bethel school building was used for several years as a community building for the people of Bethel Heights. Bethel Heights is a small community on Highway 264 that goes to the Hickory Creek recreation area on Beaver Lake.

After Michael married Donna Jean Reed, they traveled to several states while Michael served his tour of duty in the Army. Donna had moved to Springdale from Lamar, Missouri. See the Thomas Boyd Reed family history for more information on the Reed family. After Michael's tour of duty in the army, they came back to Springdale. Michael and his family purchased their present home after their lake home was destroyed by fire in 1978. Their home is in the rural area known to some as Scott's Hollow. Scott's Hollow is just east and a little north of Springdale industrial park. One of the Byrd's neighbors, Gilbert Graham has told some of the things that have happened in Scott's Hollow and of the people that lived there. He remembers when the well was drilled on the property now belonging to Michael and his family. Mr. Graham says that oil ran out and down the hillside for about three days when the well was drilled. They had to wait for it to slow down so they could case past it. The water still has an oily film reminding the residents of the original drilling.

The same homesite has an old spring tank down by the creek. This tank at one time had supplied the area with good drinking water. Now due to area chicken houses the water is no longer good for drinking. Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Robbins, long-time residents of the area, can remember hauling water from the tank when their children were growing up. The Robbins have raised 20 to 21 children in the hollow. If you had been in Scott's Hollow previously to the present time, you might think things were quite different now. The road that runs thru the hollow has even been changed over the years. It used to run on the top of the hill and now runs down the middle of the hollow. We are glad that not everything has changed. Some of the original people are still living there such as the Grahams, Robbins, Arentz family, now the Douthits and others. When you visit the area, you still can enjoy a little peace and quiet that is so typical of the rural areas. This is true and yet you are just a few minutes from the downtown area and business area.

Michael's family is still living in Washington County. Although his father and mother have since retired, they stay busy within the county. His brother Dennis married a local girl, Frances I. Barens. They have one son, Christopher Allen. Michael's sister LaDonna married a young man from Little Rock, Lowell Douglas Clifton. They had two children, Holly Renae and Eric Douglas. LaDonna's husband was killed in a Naval air accident. She has since married John Moncees of New York. They are now living in San Diego, California. Michael's sister Dianna Sue married a boy from Van Buren, Rick Basham. Dianna and her husband have one daughter, Priscilla Leigh. They also are living in Springdale. There is one particular incident that Michael recalls in coming to Washington County. He can remember when bananas were only ten cents a pound. Michael was given ten cents a week allowance and was so astounded, as young children are at times, that he could buy a whole pound of bananas with his allowance. Prices, as Michael recalls, were so much higher in Tulsa.

Henry Clay (Whig) Caldwell

A barrel of apples shipped from Springdale, Arkansas, to Colorado City, Texas and the harsh weather of West Texas seem to be the prime movers that caused Henry Clay (Whig) Caldwell to move his family to Springdale in 1907.

Whig Caldwell, born September 7, 1851 at Warrensburg, Johnson County, Missouri was the fifth among eight children of Jane A. Jackson and William Philpot Curran Caldwell. W. P. C. Caldwell, born July 25, 1810 in Russellville, Logan County, Kentucky became a Baptist minister. He then migrated westward in 1845 and served as an evangelist throughout southwest Missouri. He died December 19, 1875 and is buried in Greer Cemetery at Leeton, Missouri. The parents of W. P. C. Caldwell were Ann Balch and Samuel Caldwell of North Carolina. Ann's father, Hezekiah James Balch, a Presbyterian minister, was one of the founders of the Orange Presbyterian in North Carolina and was one of the framers of Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

Whig Caldwell went from Missouri to Texas as a young man to live with his brother, Samuel (Cap) Caldwell. Whig met and married Henry Etta Johnson June 20, 1880; they were living in west Texas when their seven children were born. Henry Etta/Henrietta Johnson was born to Amanda Eliza Shumate and William Henry Harrison Johnson in Winn Parish, Louisiana September 5, 1862. Eliza, born September 22, 1845, was Dutch by her mother, Rebecca Seitz, born March 23, 1816 in Holland and Scotch-Irish by her father, Toliver Shumate, born April 18, 1807 in North Carolina. W. H. H. Johnson, born July 29, 1839 in Ohio or in Indiana, married Eliza on December 20, 1860. He enlisted in the Confederate Army at New Orleans March 16, 1862, about six months before Etta was born. He was taken prisoner at Vicksburg; once was chained to a log to prevent his escape. He was exchanged to freedom at Shreveport April 4, 1864.

Etta's grandfather, George Washington Johnson, born December 29, 1817, was a medical doctor and a Methodist Protestant minister. Her great grandfather was Samuel Johnson, born September 15, 1772 who fought in the Revolutionary War. Documents in the Adjutant General's Office in Washingon, D. C. attest to the war records of Randolph and W. H. H. Johnson.

Whig Caldwell engaged in a variety of farm business enterprises. He homesteaded land near Colorado City, Texas; his last business there was a wagon yard, progenitor of modern motels. Bunk houses served as sleeping quarters and provisions were for sale to travelers.

After receiving a barrel of apples from a former business associate, J. H. Fletcher of Springdale, Whig decided to visit the fruitful Ozarks farmlands. During the visit, he decided to move his family and bought a home place in Springdale. He returned to Texas for his family; they moved by train in March 1907.

The children of Henry Clay and Henry Etta Caldwell were: Ruby, b. March 27, 1881 (d. 1972) married Andrew J. Culpepper September 3, 1906, married Albert W. Greiser June 24, 1933; Roy, b. November 22, 1883, died in infancy in Texas; Nina, born June 25, 1888 (d. August 6, 1963), married Lee Christian August 31, 1908; Willie, b. June 11, 1892 (d. April 11, 1969), married Charles Clifton Brogdon November 11, 1913; Lula, b. August 20, 1895 (d. November 8, 1972), married Fred Edwards Reed November 8, 1920; John Henry, b. July 18, 1898 (d. 1972), married Anna Horn December 25, 1920; Mary Elizabeth, b. July 25, 1903, married Evylyn Ebb Trissler March 6, 1920.

One day, less than a year after the family moved to Springdale, Whig had a bad cramping spell while milking the cow. He appeared healthy but had encountered occasional abdominal pains for quite some time. At this spell, all the doctors in Springdale were consulted. The diagnosis was appendicitis. Dr. Ellis of Fayetteville was called and he agreed to come on the 11:00 p. m. train and attempt an operation. The dining room table and kerosene lamps were the meager furnishings in the "operating room" near midnight. In spite of all efforts, death occurred before morning January 28, 1908.

Henry Etta returned to Texas following Whig's death; after a while, she returned again to Springdale. She supported herself and her young children as a seamtress. Etta died January 8, 1929 and is buried by her husband in Bluff Cemetery in Springdale. Three of their daughters, Ruby, Willie and Lula are also buried there.

James Caldwell

In Goshen Cemetery there are many tombstones with the names Caldwell, Coldwell and Culwell. Despite the various spellings these are all descendants of James Caldwell, born 1-10-1803 in Tennessee. James came to Arkansas in 1834, from Alabama, with his wife Almedia Nixon, born 1-15-1809 in Alabama.

They brought with them six very small children and a niece, Rebecca Caldwell. (Rebecca married Jacob Oxford of Oxford Bend, near Goshen. She has many descendants still in the county.)

He settled on a farm about two miles south of Goshen on Richland Creek. James owned four slaves and was reputed to have kept his gold buried beneath a door step. His seventh child, Elizabeth, born 4-5-1835, could remember going with him to a slave sale at Hindsville, Arkansas. She could also remember hearing a negro woman crying at night, grieving for a child that she had been separated from.

The young mother, Almedia, gave birth to her 8th child Hezekiah, on 12-4-1836. She died two weeks later.

On May 25, 1837, James married Nancy Lamar, born 1-1-1812. They had either nine or eleven children. (Two listed in the family Bible may have been grandchildren)

Very little personal history is known of most of these nineteen children. The seventh child, Elizabeth, never married. She lived to be 99 years old and some of her stories are still remembered. At the beginning of the war James decided to remove his family from the dangers of the war and so packed up and went to Texas. Elizabeth went to Benton County to stay with her sister, Martha Ann who had married Edward Stringfield. Later she decided to join the family and she and two other women, Dorcas Boyd and Kit Williams started out on horseback. They had many frightening experiences but arrived safely in Fannin County, Texas. (See Flashback, January, 1958)

In 1865 the Caldwells came home. Allen Wood Caldwell, aged 17, was ill and died just as the wagon pulled into the yard.

Elizabeth, after her father's death, lived with various relatives. She spent two years in California and her last years with her niece and her husband, Ora and Lee Trammel. She is buried in Goshen Cemetery under a headstone with "Aunt Liz" engraved on it. Her death date is 6-27-1834.

Richard Jasper Newton Caldwell, the 13th child, had a granddaughter, Fern Culwell who also married. She was a teacher and taught in many country schools in Washington County.

The third child, William, born 12-27-1828 died 3-26-1876, is the only one whose descendants lived here until recently. He married three times. His third wife, Nancy Combs, was the mother of Hezekiah "Joe" Culwell and Thomas Nixon (Nick) Culwell.

Nick's son Lee, lived in the Goshen area until his death a few years ago.

The sixth Caldwell child, Martha Ann, b. 10-9-1833 married Edward Stringfield, b. 10-28-1835. Edward was in the Confederate Army for two years, was released to run the Sander's Mill on Richland Creek in Washington County.

Martha Ann's fourth child, Phydella Almedia, b. 10-20-1861 married Huston Scott, b. 1-25-1853 in Decatur County, Iowa.

They lived in Benton County for a few years, were in Madison County in 1883, then owned a store in Goshen, Arkansas, in 1885. Phydella had eight children, two dying in infancy. Huston died in 2-14-1891 of typhoid leaving Phydella with five children and another on the way. She raised them at Mayfield, Arkansas. Her humble home was a warm and loving place for all her grandchildren to visit.

Phydella's seventh child, Fannie Rachel b. 11-22-1889, married Benjamin H. Mayes, b. 9-3-1890. They lived their lives in the Mountain Home Community. (N. W. of Goshen) They raised two children, Kendal and Mayme. Kendal lived most of his life on the Mayes home place. Mayme married Joseph Clint Ferguson and they lived near Goshen. (1986)

Dennis Callaghan

In 1828, when Dennis Callaghan came to northwest Arkansas, it was inhabited by Indians. After crossing the Allegheny Mountains from Virginia in a covered wagon, he settled near Columbia, Missouri in 1820. He acquired about 400 acres of land there. A stream which flowed across the property is still known as Callaghan Creek. On June 3, 1824, he married Sarah E. Jewell, daughter of George and Mary Jewell and sister of Hannah and William Jewell.

Early in 1828, a treaty was made with the Cherokees giving the right of settlement to the whites. Before this treaty, settlers were considered trespassers and removed by the army. Settlement was rapid although people had to go to Missouri or Fayetteville to trade. Among those early settlers were Dennis and Sarah Callaghan and their two daughters, Cynthia and Mary Margaret.

On October 7, 1828, Washington County was organized to include all of what is now Benton, part of Madison, part of Carroll and all of what is Washington County today. Dennis bought land in the original townsite of Fayetteville directly back of the present courthouse. In 1840, he sold this land to John Keller for $1,000.00. Goodspeed's 1889 History of Washington County lists Dennis Callaghan as Coroner, 1836-38.

Arkansas was admitted as a state September 30, 1836. The same day an act of the General Assembly made Benton its 34th county. Not long after the sale of the Fayetteville property, the Callaghans moved to Benton County. They built a house on a hill above a big spring which has been known ever since as the Callaghan Spring. The house and spring are now in the city limits of Rogers. The house is located at 506 East Spruce Street. It is built of three layers of brick made at John Myler's brickyard. Using a ram pump, water from the spring was pumped to their home and to the stables.

Callaghan's was the first official stop in Arkansas for the Butterfield Overland Mail which made its first trip September 15, 1858. The stop was used until the line was discontinued at the outbreak of the Civil War. Other stage lines also stopped at Callaghan's.

Dennis Callaghan's Bible lists five children. (The children dropped the "g" from their name and used Callahan.) Cynthia Jewell Callahan born April 16, 1825, married Lampkin, one daughter, lived in Joplin, has not been heard from since 1910.

Mary Margaret born November 12, 1826, died May 8, 1918 in Chandler, Oklahoma, married Frederick P. Simms, born March 18, 1818 in Ireland, died October 26, 1886. Their homestead was sold to Jim Grimes in the late 1880s. The house is still standing. It is on Old Highway 12 on the edge of Beaver Lake. Children: Hugh, William, Ed, Sarah Helen, Mary Biddy, and Rose.

George born May 7, 1828.

Elizabeth Ann born September 10, 1832, died 1900, married William Pier, went to Santa Barbara, California before the Civil War. Mr. Pier died there. Elizabeth died in Shawnee, Oklahoma.

William Jewell born January 25, 1835, homesteaded a large tract of land which became an addition to the city of Rogers. He went to California about the beginning of the Civil War and died there.

The children of Frederick P. and Mary Margaret Callahan Simms were: William, born November 21, 1852, died January 19, 1880. Hugh, born 1849, died in Texas. Ed went to Missouri and was never again heard from. Sarah Helen, born April 16, 1856, died June 18, 1929, married Alvis Sellars Puckett, born February 6, 1850 in Tennessee, died January 31, 1909. Their home was built on a hill overlooking the White River at Puckett's Ford.

Mary Biddy married William Francis. They homesteaded land in Beaver County, Oklahoma. Their children were Charles, Geneva, Bessie and Marie.

Rose married Chastain, and when he died she married Hutcheson. Her children were Will Chastain and Geneva Hutcheson. They lived in Vernon, Texas.

The children of Sarah Helen and Alvis Sellars Puckett were: Florence born 1884, died 1886. Alvis Smith born March 2, 1886, died July 8, 1969, married Eunice Wallace; children: Ralph Neal and Laurence. Roseanna married James Barnes; children: Ellen, Fred, Robert and Russell. John F. born February 23, 1889, died March 26, 1889. Alfred E. born July 12, 1891, died July 16, 1891. Margaret Lousina born March 1, 1895, died August 31, 1975, married Alfred Thomas Eaves; children: Martha Helen and Dorthy Fay. Mary born January 18, 1896, married Harry William Kelley; children: Alvis Jefferson, Ruth, Henry William Jr., Edith, Esther and Mary Ella. Coleman Sellars married Eva Haga, one son, George.

Children of Margaret Lousina and Alfred Thomas Eaves: Martha Helen Eaves born July 16, 1918, married Paul Edgar Hays, born June 21, 1917; children: Martha Pauline born January 26, 1945, married Robert J. Brainard; their children: Paul Douglas born May 31, 1963, Laura Evangeline born July 19, 1969, and Christa Louise born September 28, 1971. Steven Edgar Hays born May 6, 1952, and Lawrence James Hays born November 12, 1953.

Dorthy Fay Eaves born September 4, 1920, married Victor J. Veroda. Their children: Carol Faye born November 11, 1949, married Richard Hall; Linda Joy born June 26, 1952, married Allan Potter. The Potters have two children: Mason Blake born May 25, 1982, and Andrea Jae born October 16, 1983.

Dennis Callaghan born July 14, 1792 in Virginia, and died January 25, 1879, and Sarah Jewell Callaghan born February 1, 1799, died April 25, 1895, also lived at Cato Springs, Scotts Mills, and Gourd Springs but the dates are uncertain.

William W. Camp

William Washington Camp was born November 5, 1875 in Granby, Newton County, Missouri, the son of Daniel Camp of Huntington, Pennsylvania and Anna Collins of Seneca, Newton County, Missouri. William had one brother, John Wesley born June 1, 1873 in Granby.

William's early childhood was spent around Seneca and Southwest City, Missouri and Pitcher, Oklahoma. He worked in the lead and zinc mines. William married Lelah Mae Williams May 24, 1902 in Joplin, Jasper County, Missouri. Lelah was the daughter of William Bowlin "Bill" Williams and Jerusha Angelina "Angie" Brazle of Wisconsin. The Williams and Brazles moved to Missouri, around Joplin.

William and Lelah Camp went to Kellog, Shoshone County, Idaho. Lelah ran a hotel and William worked in the lead and silver mines. In one mine he worked 2,300 feet underground. They returned to Joplin, Missouri and Pitcher, Oklahoma area and worked in the mine. Before 1911, they went to Marion County, Arkansas. William worked in the lead mine in the boom town of Silva. While there, a son, Ervin Philip Camp was born April 2, 1911. The town of Silva vanished after the mine played out. William took his family back to Missouri. While Ervin was little, they lived around Anderson, Southwest City and Seneca, Missouri and Pitcher, Oklahoma.

William, Lelah and Ervin moved again. This time to Washington County, Arkansas. They moved on Mill Creek, south of West Fork. Lelah Camp died December 13, 1929. She is buried in Carl Junction, Missouri, beside the two children she lost. William Washington Camp died June 23, 1930. He is buried in the Mineral Springs Cemetery.

Ervin Philip Camp moved to the Mineral Springs Community. He married Mildred Swonger, daughter of Paul Emerson Swonger and Lela Stevens of Trace Valley Community, January 1, 1934. They were married by Reverend Claude Davis. While at Mineral, William Paul "Bill" and Peggy Sue were born. In 1937, they went to Texas and New Mexico to find work. After different jobs of picking cotton and whatever they could find, they came back to Mineral Mountain. Ervin had a sawmill. He cut timber, made ties and lumber. They took care of a farm for Dr. Ray Lingelbaugh. They raised strawberries, raspberries, tomatoes, cattle, chickens and hogs.

In 1944, they moved between Greenland and West Fork on the Campbell Branch. The next year they bought a place in Mineral Springs Community, only this time it was under the hill. They lived there ten years. Linda Jane and Kathleen were born. Bill and Peggy attended and graduated from Greenland School.

In September 1954, the Camps moved to a farm on Arkansas-Oklahoma border, near Dutch Mills. They raised cattle and chickens.

John Campbell

In 1760, four Campbell brothers hired on as tenders with a cattle boat leaving Liverpool, England. They arrived in America, probably at New York, and each brother went his own way. One of them, John was the forebearer of several generations of John Campbells, each proud of his Highland Scot heritage. The John Campbell, born around 1835 was raised in eastern Arkansas. He married Miss Hubbard, and they had a son named John Randolph (1858) in Boone County. John left to fight with the South in the Civil War, and after the war, he was mustered out with a mule, bedroll and a little money. He rode home on the mule, and as he approached the old homestead, he saw his wife standing on the porch holding an infant, with their little boy John Randolph standing at her side. He asked whose kid it was, since he knew he'd been away too long for that, and she replied it was the child of "Wes" Wallace. John sat there on the mule for a bit, then nodded his head, spat over the mule's withers and then rode off toward Texas, never to be heard of again.

When John Randolph grew up, he married Sally Prince of Newport. They traveled a lot, since he was an itinerant preacher. He served as the chaplain for the State of Arkansas Legislature. They had five children, the oldest being John William (born 1877 Belfonte, died 1956 Los Angeles, California).

John William married Mary Jane Ellis, and in 1918, they moved to Fayetteville. He began a grocery at the corner of Mill and Huntsville Streets, and over the years acquired many other properties. Their children were: 1) Zacariah (Zack) born 1899, married Sylvia Davis; had Lindell (born 1916, married Helene Lucas), Jack (born 1918, married into lumber business), Mary Frances (born 1932, married Jerell Rice). 2) Zenola Gail (Nodi) born 1901, married Clyde Bryand; had Nova Lee (born 1926, married Jay Thomas). 3) Everett born 1903, died 1957 married Evalee McCurdy; had Jeannine (born 1929, married Atha Winfield McMurtrey, Jr. Their children were Atha Winfield McMurtrey, III born 1954, Ward Gerard, born 1955 and Mark Earl, born 1960. 4) John Carl - for his family see Jacob Rutherford History 5) Ruby born 1910, married Ray Williams; had Jerry. Remarried to J. R. Bennett and ran a store on Dickson Street (Fayetteville) selling groceries. 6) Dinky Ruth born 1912, married Dick Bennett; had Gary born 1932. 7) Cecil born 1914 died 1916. 8) Russell born 1922, married Wanda Blevins; had Mary Jane born 1942, Carolyn and "Rusty", Jr.

The Campbell Family lived in the Fayetteville area. The building located at 337 South School Street was Everett's business, Campbell's Supermarket (the first such fancy store in Fayetteville).

The lineage of this Campbell family continues in the section Rutherford - Campbell, where the marriage of John Carl and Opal Rutherford produced Steve Carl Campbell (the fifth child). The wife of Steve Campbell, G. Denele Campbell, is the author of these two Campbell histories.

William Hugh Campbell

William Hugh Campbell was born July 6, 1812. He left his parents home in Poplar Grove, Port Royal, Caroline County, Virginia in 1837 and came west. Described as a salesman, fair complexion, blue eyes, dark hair, 5'8" tall. William served from 1837-1840 in the U. S. Army. He was stationed at Fort Gibson, Indian Territory with the rank of 1st Sergeant in the U. S. Dragoons Reg. Army in the quartermaster division. He was a wagon and forage master. During his time in the service William met a young man named Noel Rutherford. Noel hauled produce from Washington County, Arkansas to Fort Gibson for sale. William and Noel became friends and Noel invited William to visit his family at West Fork, Arkansas. Noel's parents were John and Winifred Grigsby Rutherford. They came to Washington County prior to 1830 settling in the vicinity of West Fork, near Hogeye, about 5 miles southeast of Prairie Grove, Arkansas. Their children included: John, Winnie, Bayless, Harriet, Calvin, Julia, Elizabeth and Emiline. When William visited the Rutherford family he met Julia born January 19, 1823. Upon his discharge he settled in Washington County and he and Julia married March 21, 1843. William and Julia remained in Washington County where William farmed and at one time served as Justice of the Peace. The children of William Hugh and Julia Rutherford Campbell were:

A. John Elliot (January 5, 1844-December 14, 1887) married Mellisie Shannon. Eight children. B. James Bayless (April 18, 1845-December 5, 1940) married Ellen Ramsey. Five children. C. William Hugh (October 1, 1846-July 9, 1931) married Mary A. Hannah. Three children. D. Joseph Wilson (March 21, 1848-August 26, 1939) married Anne Macey White. Three children. E. Winnie Elizabeth (March 15, 1852-March 26, 1929) married Dr. George Washington Carter. Seven children. F. Julia (October 28, 1853-October 20, 1940) married Zachariah VanHoose. Five children. G. Thomas Harrison (February 23, 1855-?) married O'Brien. Four children. H. Mary Henderson (September 23, 1857-February 5, 1954) married Francis Ray. Three children. I. Noel Graves (August 23, 1859-April 29, 1909) married Mary Ann Ballard. Six children. J. Richard Dye (January 9, 1862-June 18, 1904) married Mary Elizabeth Ferry. Six children.

When the Civil War began, William enlisted under General McCulloch on the side of the Confederacy. Leaving November 18, 1861, William was to return home less than a month after his enlistment. While away William became ill. Knowning he was dying he wanted to return home. He died of mastoiditis on December 18, 1861. He left Julia with 9 young children and another to be born within a month. Many stories have been told of the terrible hardships which Julia and her ten children suffered during the remainder of the war. Julia and her children were invited to return to Virginia to live with the Campbell family but declined. By the end of the war Julia almost had nothing, all provisions were taken by the soldiers who came through. Julia used her provisions for the soldiers who were desperate for food. They were left with only one horse in order to take their grain to the mill where it was ground into flour. They were dependent on wild fowl for their food. She kept her family together and they got along and took advantage of opportunities and schooling of that era. They were fairly well educated and they grew up in a manner they could be proud of. Julia died July 30, 1885 in Washington County. She and William H. Campbell are buried at White House Cemetery. In 1885 their son Noel married Mary Ann Ballard. She was the daughter Andrew Jackson and Clarissa Shumate Ballard. Andrew and his parents George and Elizabeth Ballard came to Arkansas about 1844. The Shumates migrated from Harlon County, Kentucky and Hawkins County, Tennessee to Madison County, Arkansas where they settled in what was known as Richland Township. When Clarissa was two, her family moved to Washington County, where they lived near Elkins. They later lived on a farm of several hundred acres on the White River. It was at this time that Andrew Jackson Ballard and Clarissa Shumate were married on August 27, 1865. Their children were: A. Sarah Elizabeth (June 8, 1866-January 6, 1959) never married. B. Mary Ann (February 15, 1868-August 9, 1926) married Noel Graves Campbell. Six children. C. Jim never married; died November, 1950. D. John E. (died January, 1938) married Ida Johnson. One son. E. George married Mamie Deiser; he died August, 1908. One son. F. Jerod married Stella Patilla. He died in March, 1956. Three children. G. Ben Calvin married Elsie Johnson; he died in December, 1946. Two sons. H. Lydia married Jesse G. Wascom. Two children.

On the occasion of the marriage of Mary Ann Ballard and Noel Graves Campbell, four Washington County families came together. The Campbell, Rutherford, Ballard and Shumate families all having settled in the area between 1830-1845. Noel and Mary Ann lived on the White River near Durham. The children of Noel and Mary Ann Ballard Campbell included: A. William Hugh (June 8, 1886-April 23, 1918) married Tennie Rhea. B. Deverette Glen (August 30, 1887-September 19, 1964). C. Otta Dester (February 18, 1891-November 9, 1953) married Myrtie. Two children. D. Arlie Leah (August 11, 1893-July 26, 1916) unmarried. E. Clara Julia (August 30, 1896) married James William McKinney. Four children. F. Avery Ora (September 16, 1900-January, 1971) married William L. Auten. Three children.

Noel and Mary Ann lived in Washington County until the winter of 1900 when they traveled by covered wagon to Texas. Though this move first to Collin County and later to Coleman County, Texas commenced a new chapter in their lives, it did not diminish their feelings for their former home. They carried many memories and fond feelings for family and friends left behind in Washington County. Noel and Mary Ann settled in Coleman County and lived out the remainder of their lives there. Noel died April 29, 1909 and Mary Ann died August 9, 1929. They are both buried at Coleman, Texas. The lives of these people and the place that was home for our family for three generations still lives on today through the many memories of my grandmother Clara Julia Campbell McKinney. Today Julia McKinney makes her home at Granbury, Texas.

Barton Arnold Carl

Barton Arnold Carl, son of Thomas Carl and Nancy M. Sheid, was born on September 12, 1832 in Coffee County, Tennessee. His father, Thomas Carl was from Dutchess County, New York having been born there on March 24, 1802. Thomas Carl married Nancy M. Sheid in about 1823 in Coffee County, Tennessee. Thomas Carl came to Mulberry, Arkansas in 1838, where Nancy died September 1, 1839. Besides Barton Arnold, Thomas and Nancy Carl had five other children— Elizabeth Ann (born July 12, 1824, married James Nathaniel Marrs on January 2, 1840 and who died February 20, 1895 at Corn Hill, Texas and is buried at Florence, Texas); James Harvey (born August 24, 1826, married Elrena on April 12, 1852, and who died August 15, 1911 and is buried at Siloam Springs, Arkansas); Manson Augustus (born August 7, 1830, married Mahala E. Buchanan on April 12, 1852, and who died December 27, 1912, buried at Siloam Springs); Thomas Robert, Sr. (born October 7, 1834, married #1 Mary H. King and #2 Kate McPhail and who died September 19, 1917 and is buried at Siloam Springs); and Jessie Jenkins (born April 17, 1837 and who died February 14, 1927 in Benton County, Arkansas). Thomas Carl will later marry Cynthia Maxwell and will have eight more children. Thomas Carl died January 14, 1891 near Gentry, Benton County, Arkansas, and is buried at the Word Cemetery there.

Probate Court Book A, 1837-1847 in Washington County, Arkansas, shows that on April 13, 1851, Barton A. Carl, aged eight years and Manson A. Carl, became bound as indentures to James M. Tuttle until they respectively arrive to the age of 21 years, as apprentices. On July 15, 1843, the court records show that Thomas Carl and James M. Tuttle Guardian of the minor heirs of said Carl and on their motion and by agreement of the parties, the indentures by which the said minors were indentured to the said Tuttle are hereby rescinded, annulled and held for naught. Evidently, Thomas Carl took Barton A. and Manson A. back to live with him when he married Nancy Gentry.

On January 20, 1857, Barton Arnold Carl was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Sophia Parks, daughter of John P. A. Parks and Mary A. Hollabaugh, both originally from Tennessee, but then living in Washington County, Arkansas. Barton Arnold Carl and Sarah Sophia Parks had eight children. Eldridge Dudley (born November 29, 1857, married Martha A. Jones January 30, 1876 and who died October 18, 1918, buried at Prairie Grove); Atlanta Nevada (born May 21, 1859, married John H. Hannah on July 24, 1876 and who died July 12, 1879 and is buried at the old Parks Family Cemetery near Hogeye); John Thomas (born November 16, 1861, married Mary Adline Hannah on February 13, 1884 and who died April 20, 1946 at Prairie Grove and is buried there); Charles Blakely (born October 13, 1864, never married and who died September 28, 1884 and is also buried at the Old Parks Family Cemetery, Hogeye); Edward Clinton (born June 14, 1866, married Elizabeth "Lizzie" Rollans in 1888, and who died December 9, 1948 and is buried at Prairie Grove); Frank Houston (born March 22, 1868, married Gerturde "Gertie" Inman on September 26, 1894 and who died February 5, 1942 and is buried at Prairie Grove); Walter Wane (born August 19, 1870, married Mary Edna Tennant on December 29, 1915, and who died August 13, 1964 buried at Prairie Grove); and Van Willis (born February 10, 1876, married Lucile J. Powell on August 30, 1905 and who died on February 16, 1938 and is buried at Prairie Grove).

Barton A. Carl enlisted in the Confederate Army during the Civil War, serving as a member of Company K, 34th Arkansas Infantry. After the War, he returned to Prairie Grove and farmed until 1883, when he became engaged in the mercantile business in Prairie Grove. He retired from this business in 1901, and his sons Frank and Clinton took over running it.

Barton Arnold Carl was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, a member of the Masonic Fraternity and of the Prairie Grove Camp of Confederate Veterans. He was a charter member of the canning association and one of the trustees of the Prairie Grove College.

On September 2, 1915, Barton A. Carl died at 11:30 in the morning. He died peacefully at his home in Prairie Grove. He had been very ill for about three weeks prior and confined to his bed. His wife, Sarah Sophia, outlived him 10 years, dying on April 10, 1925 at Prairie Grove.

John Thomas Carl, son of Barton Arnold Carl, and his wife Mary Adline Hannah, had 6 children. Hugh Clifford (born 8 February 1885, married Addie Shelby on December 2, 1918, and died February 10, 1937); Effie Jane (born September 17, 1887, married J. Oscar Bain on September 24, 1911 and died on December 3, 1965); Annie Gladys (born February 19, 1890, married Milton "Dan" Alexander Pyatt on March 8, 1922, and who died on November 10, 1928); Sarah Lillie (born November 22, 1895, married #1 Harry Lee Bridenthal, #2 Foy M. Robertson, #3 Charles Heiss, and who died February 7, 1985); Nora May (born September 8, 1901, married #1 Roy Brumfield, #2 Hugh Hurd and as of June 25, 1987 is still living in North Little Rock, Arkansas); and Robert Harold (born December 20, 1903, married Lula Ellen Brown and who died October 11, 1976). Effie Jane Carl and Oscar Bain had two sons, both of whom are still living—Dr. Calvin Bain and Tom Bain. Annie Gladys and Dan Pyatt had one daughter—Mary Anne. Sarah Lillie and Harvey Lee Bridenthal had one son —Carl Lee. Nora May and Roy Brumfield had two sons—Jack and Tom.

There are many Carls living today in and around Prairie Grove, Arkansas, and many descendants scattered throughout Washington County as well as across the United States.

T. C. Carlson

T. C. Carlson was born January 17, 1893, St. Peter, Minnesota, son of Mary Mathilda Anderson and John Sven Carlson. One of three boys and three girls born to this marriage which had taken place June 10, 1890. John Sven made two trips back to Sweden to receive Advanced degrees. After serving with Gustavus Adolphus College, he was appointed head of the Scandinavian Language Department at the University of Minnesota.

Working his way through, T. C. graduated with distinction from the University of Minnesota in 1915 with one semester of his graduate work done. He had been Phi Beta Kappa, Scabbard & Blade, Alpha Sigma Phi and Grey Friars.

In August of 1915, in order to repay his debts and save some money, he came to the University of Arkansas as their first Registrar before going back to finish his education. To his mother, going to Fayetteville was the same as going to the end of the earth.

Six weeks into the second semester, T. C. met Rosemary Genevieve Crate. There were only 732 students then. Though they were not supposed to date, somehow T. C. dated Rosemary in 1916. In November of the year, T. C. suffered a serious case of typhoid fever, nearly dying. Drs. Ellis and Gregg operated removing all the perforated intestines. T. C. was hospitalized for two months in the four year old City Hospital.

As the highest graduating male senior, T. C. had three years to accept a permanent army commission. Having a low draft number for W. W. I, he wanted to accept this permanent commission and went back to Minneapolis to recover his health and accept the commission.

T. C. and Rosemary were married in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma on July 2, 1917 as her family was then living at 317 West 8th Street. From early pictures, we think their first home was Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas. He transferred to Camp Merritt, New Jersey. Rosemary came to 223 East Lafayette, Fayetteville, Arkansas. We know that Rosemary sent a telegram to T. C. at his camp telling him of the birth of his first born son in this house on July 27, 1918. The house is still occupied in 1987. T. C. sent a telegram saying that he had arrived safely overseas. Rosemary received it August 29, 1918.

Serving in France with the 7th Division, he spent 6 weeks on the front lines. When the war was over, he attended Queens College, Oxford University for a semester in 1919. We have his picture as a member of the Oxford Tennis Team. (The coat was so full of moth holes, I kept only the pocket).

Resigning his commission as a Captain in March 1920, T. C. worked with his father-in-law in his independent oil drilling business. The family lived at 1320 Jennings, Bartlesville, Oklahoma. Mr. Crate died unexpectedly at 51 years of age on August 3, 1920.

Their son, Eugene Cedric was born October 21, 1920 in Bartlesville, Oklahoma. Later that year, T. C. went to work as an accountant for Barnsdale Oil Company. All packed to return to the University of Minnesota. In 1921, a telegram arrived from President John C. Futrall offering T. C. the position of Executive Secretary. In 1923 he assumed the duties of Business Manager, in 1925 Treasurer and in 1927 he became Secretary of the Board of Trustees, all at the same time.

Rosemary, Jr. was born March 5, 1924 and Joel Henry followed on June 3, 1925. These were the first two children born in a hospital. The very mortgaged home at 515 Forest Avenue grew "just like topsy" as it was remodeled many times.

In 1933, T. C. began taking law courses - never intending to complete a degree - he would take a course at 8:00 a. m. or 1:00 p. m. that would help with his work. By 1943, with three sons and a future son-in-law in the service, T. C. volunteered his service to the Army. With his knowledge of German, French, Norwegian and Swedish he felt he could be useful in military government. I remember how pleased he was the day he returned from Camp Chaffee having passed his physical at the age of 50. Rosemary met him in Greenville, Pennsylvania for basic training at Fort Custer and in New Haven, Connecticut for a refresher course in German at Yale University. Early in 1944, T. C. was again on his way to Europe. First to England then on to the mainland. T. C. had mentioned in a letter that when it was all over he was going to write a book entitled "From Yale To Jail In A Year". That Christmas holiday, Rosemary was worried sick during the Battle of the Bulge. When it was over, she admitted that she had seen in Time Magazine the only habitable building in Aachen, Germany was the jail and that is where they were billeted

Serving as the Chief Fiscal Officer of the Rhineland Provincial Office as a Major, T. C. returned to Fayetteville in November 1945 and was made Vice-president of Finance in May 1946.

Since 515 Forest had been sold during the war, Rosemary and Rosemary, Jr. had been living at the Campus View Apartments while Rosemary, Jr. finished her final year at the University of Arkansas as her husband was in Europe and Japan. When T. C. came home, they moved to Col. and Mrs. Jimmy White's upstairs apartment at 3 Mt. Nord staying there until building their home at 546 Gray Avenue in 1948.

In 1958, T. C. retired to half time serving as Treasurer until 1961. At the Dad's Day football game in 1959, Carlson Terraces were dedicated in his honor. Students of today have not heard of him, but they know of Carlson Terraces.

In 1960, T. C. found he lacked only 20 hours for his law degree and again began on that. On January 26, 1963, just after his 70th birthday, T. C. received his Bachelor of Law. There were 775 students receiving degrees that day compared to all of the 732 students in 1915. It is against the rules for applause as each diploma is awarded, but the entire family stood and applauded as his name was called. Then on July 2, 1967, Rosemary and T. C. celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with their children, grandchildren and many friends.

Rosemary, Jr. and her husband, Rufus, had completed a home with an apartment for them and in March 1969, T. C. and Rosemary moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma. Their youngest son Joel and all his family also lived in Tulsa. Soon after their arrival, a notice came from the University of Arkansas saying T. C. was entitled to a Juris doctor. T. C. was not going to send for it but on Rosemary, Jr.'s insistence he did. When the "Sheepskin" arrived, Rosemary, Jr. went to their apartment all smiles calling him "Doctor" Carlson. I only remember two times that he spoke very firmly to me - that time I was told never to call him Doctor again (The other time, I was told he was my father and not my grandfather and not to call him Grampy).

Rosemary Crate Carlson died January 4, 1972 and T. C. soon followed on March 12, 1972. Years ago, I can remember going to the National Cemetery in Fayetteville and being told that was where he wanted to be buried someday. Their graves are up by the flag-pole looking toward their beloved University.

Of all the articles written about T. C. Carlson, I think the editorial of March 16, 1972 in the Northwest Arkansas Times was the very nicest.

Clyde A. Carnes

James S. W. Carnes, born November 17, 1833, and Caroline Barnes Carnes, born November 16, 1836, were married on August 18, 1853, at Maryville, Tennessee by the Reverend D. D. Anderson.

They were the parents of: William Henry Carnes - born August 11, 1854, Edward Avery Carnes - born June 30, 1861, Mary E. Carnes - born March 19, 1865, James M. Carnes - born November 6, 1870 and Walter J. Carnes - born July 2, 1873.

Edward A. "Ed" Carnes was born June 30, 1861 at Maryville, Tennessee. At the age of four, he moved to Texas with his parents, a brother and a sister. In 1866, soon after the close of the Civil War, the family moved to Neosho, Missouri, where James Carnes established a wagon factory. He was also a brick mason who built many of the oldest brick buildings in Neosho, including the old Newton County Court House in 1877. James Carnes died September 7, 1905 at the age of 72.

Ed Carnes grew up in Neosho and as a youngster helped his father and other members of the Carnes family in the family businesses. He later became a painter by trade.

When the old Newton County Court House at Neosho was torn down, James M. Carnes drove to Farmington, Arkansas for a visit with his brother Ed, taking him a brick from the old Court House to keep as a souvenir.

Charlotte Avice Meyers was the eldest daughter of John Meyers and Charlotte Hout Meyers. John Meyers was born near Rising Sun, Indiana on November 18, 1818. His early life was spent in his native state, where in 1841 he married Miss Mary Ward. They were the parents of eleven children. In 1852, John Meyers became one of the early pioneers of Iowa, settling near Washington, Iowa. Mary Ward Meyers died in 1866.

In December 1868, at Washington, Iowa, he married Charlotte Hout, who was born May 23, 1843 in Ohio. They were the parents of three daughters, all born at Washington, Iowa. Charlotte Avice Meyers - born April 28, 1870, Amrah Adelle Meyers - born November 22, 1871 and Mildred Eldora Meyers - born July 31, 1873.

When Charlotte Avice Meyers was nine years old, the family moved to Neosho, Missouri, where John Meyers bought a fine farm and also a town residence.

John Meyers died October 11, 1895 at Neosho, Missouri. Charlotte Hout Meyers died June 30, 1899 at Diamond, Missouri while visiting friends. They are both buried in the I. O. O. F. Cemetery at Neosho.

On September 22, 1886, at Seneca, Missouri, Edward A. "Ed" Carnes and Charlotte Avice Meyers were married by the Reverend Joseph King. They moved to Fayetteville, Arkansas. They were the parents of: Nora Ione "Teddie" Carnes - born July 5, 1887 at Fayetteville. She died at the age of 8 of typhoid fever at the home of her grandmother in Neosho. Claude Everett Carnes - born March 9, 1889 at Fayetteville. He died October 9, 1966 at Fayetteville. Clyde A. Carnes - born June 23, 1892 at Fayetteville. He died April 24, 1983 at Fayetteville. Rex LaRue Carnes - born September 19, 1894 at Fayetteville. He died March 3, 1953 at Wichita, Kansas. Adrian Meyers Carnes - born July 7, 1903 at Fayetteville. He died November 25, 1964 at Houston, Texas.

Edward A. "Ed" Carnes died April 15, 1951 and Charlotte Avice Meyers Carnes died September 29, 1952. They are buried at the Farmington Cemetery, Farmington, Arkansas.

Claude Everette Carnes was a painter by trade.

Rex Carnes was the father of a son, Rex Nolan Carnes.

Adrian Carnes was the father of a son, Jerry Lee Carnes.

On August 21, 1917, Clyde A. Carnes married Mamie Morton, daughter of Mack Morton and Kate Smith Morton of the Walnut Grove community in Washington County. Clyde Carnes was associated with Mack Morton in the canning business for a number of years. He and his wife, Mamie, then owned and operated Sunnyken Guernsey Farm at Farmington, where they owned a registered Guernsey cattle herd.

Clyde A. Carnes died April 24, 1983 and Mamie Morton Carnes died February 14, 1985. They are buried at Cemetery Hill, Walnut Grove community, Washington County, Arkansas.

They were the parents of two sons: Clyde Morton Carnes and Kenneth Russell Carnes. Clyde Morton Carnes married Genevieve Dean Stewart, daughter of Dr. William Luther Stewart and Mary Walker Stewart of Louisiana. Morton and Genevieve Carnes are the parents of two sons: Ronald Morton Carnes and David Walker Carnes.

Kenneth Russell Carnes married JoBelle Reed, daughter of Joe Reed and Winnie Delozier Reed of Fayetteville (Greathouse Springs). Kenneth and JoBelle Carnes are the parents of two daughters: Clydia Gayle and Lana Sue.

Clydia Gayle Carnes married Carl Eugene Combs and they are the parents of two sons: Justin Blake Combs and Lex Austin Combs.

Lana Sue Carnes married Allen Dale Turney and they are the parents of a son and a daughter: Matthew Allen Turney and Kenna Gayle Turney.

James Henry Carrigan

Philemon M. and Elisabeth Carrigan came from Ireland. They settled in Blount County, Tennessee, where James C. was born, later came to Washington County, Arkansas. Philemon M. was killed by bushwhackers in April, 1863 and was buried at White House Cemetery. Elisabeth died March 22, 1873 and buried at Mount Salem Cemetery near Durham, Arkansas. The name spelling on Elisabeth's tombstone was "Carrigin". It is unknown to us when the spelling was changed as it is today.

Jim and Nora Carrigan, Seminole, Oklahoma, 1946.

James C. met Minerva Jane Hanna and they were married in Washington County on August 4, 1854. They had two sons, Samuel Philemon born in 1855, and my grandfather, John William "Bill" born September 16, 1864. When Bill was five months old, his father, James C., was killed by bushwhackers, and was buried beside his father, Philemon M., in White House Cemetery.

John William met Susan Serina Frost and when he turned 18 years of age, they were married and were to have ten children. The first child was Mary Adeline, Minnie Emeline, Johnny M., Nora Ellen, my father, fifth child, James Henry, William Carles, Minerva Evaline, Lillie Beatrice, Silas Andrew and Bessie Ann. All were born in Arkansas except Silas Andrew, who was born in McKinney, Texas and my father, James Henry was born in Indian Territory of Oklahoma in 1891. They did a lot of moving around, sometimes pitching their tent, other times living out of their covered wagons. Being migrant farm workers, they followed "berry picking for hire", peeling peaches and tomatoes by hand at canneries, share cropping or whatever, to provide for their ever growing family.

Their first four children were born in Arkansas between December, 1888 and April, 1891. They had ventured into Oklahoma and later returned to Arkansas and had three more children between January, 1893 and December, 1898. They made another venture, this time to Texas where their ninth child was born between December, 1898 and November, 1901. They returned once more to Arkansas for the birth of their tenth child. Before 1908, they returned to Oklahoma. In April, 1910, they settled to share crop in Econtuckha Township. Also living around the Riverside area, North and East of Seminole. James Henry "Jim", met Nora Alice Hanna Stailey at Riverside Church. Nora was a very bashful, timid girl. Daddy owned a new buggy and a team of horses named "Hawk" and "Barney". He courted his little sweetheart in the buggy taking her to church. One night when he was taking her home from church, they passed a corn field and Daddy, trying to make conversation, said "that sure is a pretty corn patch", after riding another half-mile or so to her home, he helped her out of the buggy, walked her to the door, and as she stepped in the door, Mama said, "yes, sure is". Mama told me she wouldn't let Daddy kiss her until after they married. At the time they got married, Daddy was living with Uncle Jim and Aunt Em Estep, his sister. They married July 7, 1916. Daddy was 25 years old and Mama was 20. When they drove up to the Preacher's house, Mama wouldn't get out of the buggy, so Daddy brought the preacher out to the buggy for the ceremony. One of her sisters and her boyfriend were with them for their witnesses. After they married, he took her back to Aunt Em's, where they slept upstairs.

Grandpa and Grandma Stailey lived a mile east of Riverside School in a big house, the place also had a small house located close to the road. Grandpa referred to it as the "weaning house" as the children married and had no place of their own, he would let them live in the "weaning house" until they could do better. They lived there a short time till Daddy bought out a crop, one-half mile west of Riverside School. This was where their first child, Opal Irene was born April 21, 1917. They lived on various share cropping farms. Their second child, Odis Jean was born July 10, 1918. They were blessed with another son, James Carles, September 18, 1919, and then I, Susie Mable Marie came September 3, 1921. Next came Julie, stillborn, July 22, 1923, Dolly May, May 16, 1929, the last child was Ressie Mont born May 12, 1931. Their first-born died of Typhoid Fever September 30, 1929 at the age of 12 years. Daddy was a hard working, honest man and they lived all their married life in and around Seminole County.

Daddy passed from this life June 27, 1951 at 60 years of age, and Mama departed this life January 11, 1974 at age 79 years. Daddy only lived to see seven of his 22 grandchildren and since his parting, we have added 33 great-grandchildren and one great-great granddaughter, at the time of this writing.

Mama and Daddy, two of their children, three of their grandchildren, both sets of their parents, four of Daddy's sisters and one of his brothers, four of Mama's sisters and three of her brothers are all resting at Little Cemetery, located eight miles north of Seminole.

Their memories and love will always live on with us who knew them, and their teachings and traditions will be passed down to future generations.

Philemon Carrigan

In 1845 and 1846 a blight struck the potato crop in Ireland and a famine spread across the country causing a large immigration of Irish people to America. One of these immigrants was a man named Philemon Carrigan with his wife Elizabeth and two sons James and John. Their ship docked at Boston and from there the family traveled to Tennessee and settled in Blount County. While in Tennessee, John married a daughter of a William Harris. The Carrigan family and Harris family, along with several others traveled through Missouri to Arkansas in 1853. Federal grants had just made land in Washington County very inexpensive. The Carrigan family settled on land which was located 1/2 mile east of Sulphur City, 1/2 mile south of Mount Salem, and 3-1/2 south of Elkins. The Harris family homesteaded at the eastern foot of Mount Salem.

On August 4, 1854, James Carrigan married a 17 year old girl of Scottish descent named Minerva Jane Hanna from the Noel, Missouri area. At the time of the wedding, Minerva placed a silver three-cent piece in her shoe. She presented it to James after the wedding with the request it be handed down to his sons. The next year a son was born, and they named him Samuel Philemon.

Another son was born to James and Minerva nine years later and the Civil War had reached into the isolated Ozark Mountains. As the Carrigan family was sitting at the supper table late in the evening in the year 1865, a group of horseback riders were heard coming down the road. Philemon Carrigan jumped up from the table without saying a word and ran out the back of the house toward a wooded area. Just as he was crossing the fence, a rifle shot was heard. The shot killed him.

A few months later on February 19, James Carrigan was plowing in the field. His son Samuel was with him. James was a member of the Union Army and supposed to be on duty a few miles away. A group of riders came down the road and stopped and talked to James. None of the conversation was overheard. One of the riders raised his rifle and shot James, dismounted and took his horse and gun, and they rode away. A few minutes later another group of riders led by a man named Ben Johnson rode up and questioned the boy Samuel. He told him to wait a few minutes and rode on following the first group. They returned within 30 minutes leading the horse belonging to James, the horse belonging to the man who shot James as well as his rifle. Ben Johnson gave these to Samuel and rode on his way. In 2 or 3 days, his men caught up with the bushwhackers about 2 miles south of Durham and killed them.

On November 3, 1867, Minerva married a man named Daniel Ritter who was a veteran of the Union Army. Dan built a sturdy house for his new family out of hand-hewn logs in a clearing near a small creek 1/2 mile from Durham. He adopted Samuel and John and had at least five more children during his marriage to Minerva. She died in 1913 and was buried in McCord Cemetery.

When Samuel Carrigan was a young man, he hired out to work on the Ambrose Clark farm and fell in love with his 15 year old daughter Josephene. One evening she went to bed fully clothed under her nightgown. After her sisters were asleep, she climbed out the window of their two-story log house, got on a mule behind Samuel and rode to a justice of the peace where they were married. The next day they worked together hoeing corn no one suspected they were man and wife. At the time Samuel had 50 cents in his pocket and owned one mule.

Samuel and Josephene traveled around in Indian Territory for awhile living mostly out of a wagon. When Judge Isaac Parker needed a force of United States Marshals to help control crime in the Indian Territory, Samuel signed up. He and another deputy escorted the notorious outlaw Cole Younger from a prison in Oklahoma territory to one in Detroit. They stopped off in Chicago to attend the Chicago World's Fair. They paid one dollar to see an expedition boxing match at the Hay Market Theater on West State Street performed by the World Heavy Weight Champion Jim Corbet (Gentleman Jim). When the border of Oklahoma was opened for settlement in 1889, Samuel was on the line with his horse waiting for the shot to be fired. He was disappointed when he saw that the best land was already staked out when he got there. He decided to leave Oklahoma and come to Arkansas. Samuel bought the Clark Place and settled down in the log house where Josephene had lived as a child. There they raised eight children and sent them to a one-room school at Mount Salem which was established on January 4, 1885, on land that had been donated by the Harris family.

In 1905 Erza Carrigan, son of Samuel and Josephene married a teacher of the Mount Salem School. Her name was Julia Francis Harris. They first lived in a log cabin 1 mile south and 1 mile west of Durham. Julia Francis (Fannie) continued to teach in subscription schools even after the birth of their child, William Arlie in 1906. Ezra and Fannie moved often and finally settled in the town of Elkins. They had eight children William Arlie, Bert, James, Ida Irene, Millie, Rada Mae, Wilma Jean, and Nell. I married the son of Irene.

Dazzel Carter

Dazzel Carter, born 20 September 1821 in Greene County, Tennessee was the first of this line of Carters to move to Washington County, Arkansas.

Charlie & Cora E. (Bruner) Carter family ca 1922 Backrow: Nell, Charlie Fay, Ruetta & Geraldine front: Charlie, Ona Erma "Toots" & Cora Edna

His great grandfather, John Carter, Sr., born 1726, came from England with many other Carters to New Jersey, about the end of the Revolutionary War. His oldest son Daniel, born 1748, married a Pennsylvania Quaker girl named Ann Jones. They moved from Pennsylvania to Tennessee where he owned 400 acres. Their children were Elisha, Ellis, Polly Keller, Sophia Rogers and Jemima Williams. After Ann died, Daniel married Sarah Weems. He died 1832 in Greene County, Tennessee age 84.

Daniel Carter's son Ellis served in the War of 1812, and on 14 March 1814 married sixteen year old Susanna Anderson. He was one of the Trustees of the Carter Station Methodist Campground in Greene County, Tennessee. They had one girl and several boys, one named Dazzel. By 1850 only Dazzel and his widowed mother were left in the household. They moved, with other Carters, to Shoal Creek in Newton County, Missouri where Dazzel and his mother bought a farm. Many of Elisha's descendents still live in Neosho, Missouri.

Dazzel and his mother moved to Viney Grove, this county, where he had a general store. His mother Susan died 12 December 1869. At the age of fifty, Dazzell Carter married 15 February 1871 the much younger Sarah Ellen Burrows, born in Tennessee. Her parents were Soloman Burrows and Millie Cabe, a Cherokee Indian who was also born in Tennessee.

Dazzel and Ellen had two sons, Roney born 19 September 1871 and died 27 January 1878, and Charlie born 9 October 1879. Dazzel sold his store and bought an Illinois River Valley farm, between Howe, east of Lake Weddington in Washington County, and Robinson in Benton County. A rock bluff above the river nearby became known as Carter's Bluff (at the cement bridge now). Dazzel died 11 September 1890 and was buried at Prairie Grove, Arkansas. A wrought iron fence encloses the graves of Dazzel, his mother, his little son, and his wife Ellen.

Charlie was reared by his widowed mother, who hired people to work on the farm. He completed the eighth grade at Robinson, then finished his education at a military school. On 9 June 1899 he married Cora Edna Bruner of Robinson. She was born there 9 June 1880, daughter of Daniel Lanning and Penelope (Litteral) Bruner. Her father, a farmer and Civil War veteran, built the two story Methodist Church at Robinson, and died of pneumonia at the age of 52.

Charlie and Cora Carter's first child Nell was two years old when her grandmother Ellen died 1 July 1903, age 58. Ruetta was born the next year. When the girls reached school age, the family moved to Robinson, hiring men to run their farm. In their Robinson home, they kept "drummers" (now called salesman) in a spare bedroom, and kept their horses in the barn. Geraldine and Charlie Fay were born here. Later Charlie and Cora moved to Siloam Springs, where their last child was born. Charlie had a grocery store for many years and was also a Justice of the Peace. He was very active in the Democractic Party. Cora died 16 October 1954, and Charlie died 16 June 1970, at age 90. Both are buried at Oak Hill Cemetery at Siloam Springs. Arkansas.

Their children were: (1) Penelope "Nell" born 7 April 1901. She married Corley Thompson and had James Corley, Jr., and Coralee. They had the Thompson Funeral Home in Neosho, Missouri where Nell still lives. (2) Ruette born 30 September 1904 and married Leck Carman. They had a drug store in Prairie Grove, Arkansas. (3) Geraldine born 4 March 1907, married Caswell Wilson and they farmed near Prairie Grove, with three girls, Faye Jeanette, Coretta, and Linda Sue. (4) Charlie Fay born 1910 married Catherine Allen and had Reverend Lynn Carter Eagen and Mary Sue Thomas. Charlie Fay died 1944 and his widow married Van Eagen. (5) Ona Erma "Toots" born 21 December 1914 married first Noah Johnson, Jr. and had one daughter Carter Rebecca. After Noah died she married Ed Tinsley and had Kaki and Edward, and lives at Lamesa, Texas.

Dr. George W. Carter

George Washington Carter was born on May 7, 1852, shortly after his family had arrived in Washington County from Tennessee. He was the only child of the second marriage of his father, Dr. George W. Carter (1800-1875), to Nancy Emmaline Arnold (1815-1894).

George and two older half-brothers all learned medicine as apprentice to their own father until they passed the test to be licensed to practice. George had an office in his home and a drug store in Durham. Many patients came to his house when they were able. He was called out to see patients in their homes in

On June 16, 1985, some Carter cousins attended church together. Shown on the steps of the First Christian Church, Fayetteville, Arkansas: Front row: Millie (Carter) Duggar, daughter of Witt Carter; Edith Carter, daughter of Von Carter; Jane (Perkins) Overshiner, wife of George; Marian (Carter) Ledgerwood, daughter of Von Carter; Billie (Mallard) Carter, wife of V. R. Carter. Back row; George Overshiner, son of Nama (Carter) Overshiner; Bill Ledgerwood, husband of Marian; A. D. Miller, husband of Mary; Dr. Mary (Overshiner) Miller, daughter of Nama (Carter) Overshiner; V. R. (Dick) Carter, son of Von Carter.

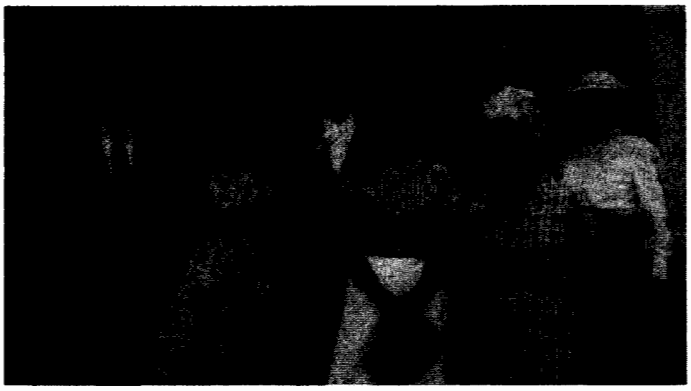
Hazel Valley, Brentwood, or Arnett, as well as the area about Durham and Sulphur City. He was on call at all hours of the day or night, regardless of weather. He always kept several good horses and was careful to rotate their use, so that one horse was not worn out.

By his first wife, Louey Ann Young (1857-1879), George had a son, Joseph (1877-1916). Children by his second wife, Winnie



Some of the cousins attended services at First Christian Church in Fayetteville on Sunday morning, June 17, 1984. The picture is taken in front of the church. Pictured, left to right: Front row: Janis (Carter) Farr from Broken Arrow, Oklahoma; Millie (Carter) Duggar of Fayetteville. Middle row: George W. Carter from Wheaton, Illinois; Jane (Perkins) Overshiner, wife of George Overshiner, Fort Worth, Texas; Billie (Mallard) Carter, wife of V. R. Back row: Ruth (Ledgerwood) Warren, Hockley, Texas; Nan (Duggar) Falkner, Lenexa, Kansas; V. R. (Dick) Carter, Muskogee, Oklahoma; Marian (Carter) Ledgerwood, Houston, Texas.

Elizabeth Campbell (1852-1929) were: Laud Austin (1881-1977); Noah Dilford (1883-1952), a doctor; Nama (1885-1963); Witt (1887-1960); Von (1889-1982); Ral (1891-1975); Millie (1896-1979).

On June 16-17, 1984 several cousins who were grandchildren of Dr. George W. Carter, convened for a reunion in Fayetteville, Arkansas. Spouses, children and gradnchildren of the cousins also were invited. It was through the persistent efforts of Rex B. Carter, son of Joseph Carter, that the reunion was accomplished. Some of the cousins had not seen one another since childhood. Interesting tours to old family home places and cemeteries were a feature of the reunion entertainment.

A history of the Carter family was prepared and distributed by Marian Carter Ledgerwood. The line was traced from the earliest-known forefather, a Quaker named James Carter (c1670-1714), who was in Bucks County, Pennsylvania as early as 1704.

Two subsequent reunions were held in Fayetteville on June 15-16, 1985 and on June 14-15, 1986. Of those who attended one or more of the reunions, Lucy Carter from Corpus Christi, Texas, widow of Dr. Dilford Carter was the sole representative of the first generation.

Those grandchildren of Dr. George W. Carter who attended one or more of the reunions included: Rex B. Carter and wife, Jimmie from Wink, Texas (later from Mineola, Texas) son of Joseph Carter; George Overshiner and wife, Jane from Ft. Worth, Texas, son of Nama (Carter) Overshiner; Dr. Mary (Overshiner) Miller and husband, A. D. from Orange, California, daughter of Nama (Carter) Overshiner; Jerry Carter (died 1984) from Rogers, Arkansas, son of Witt Carter; Millie (Carter) Duggar of Fayetteville, daughter of Witt Carter; Edith Carter from Tulsa, Oklahoma, daughter of Von Carter; V. R. (Dick) Carter (died 1987) and wife, Billie from Muskogee, Oklahoma (later from Tulsa, Oklahoma), son of Von Carter; George W. Carter and wife, Barbara from Wheaton, Illinois (later Tulsa, Oklahoma) son of Von Carter; Marian (Carter) Ledgerwood and husband L. W., Jr. (Bill) from Houston, Texas (later Hot Springs Village, Arkansas), daughter of Von Carter.

Great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren of Dr. George W. Carter who attended one or more of the reunions included: Ray Carter and wife Myrna from Mexia, Texas with children Brian, Glenn and Rachel; Janis (Carter) Jesse and husband, Stewart from Garland, Texas; Nan Claire (Duggar) Falkner and husband, Michael from Lenexa, Kansas with sons Steven Eugene, Brian Evard, Christopher Scott and Keith Robert; Ann (Carter) James and husband Alan from Mandeville, Louisiana with sons Zachary and Scott; Allen Carter Duggar and wife, Paula from Springdale, Arkansas with sons, William Allen and Paul Carter; Amy (Chapman) Hamby from Little Rock, Arkansas; Janis (Carter) Farr from Broken Arrow, Oklahoma; Ruth Ellen (Ledgerwood) Warren and husband, James from Hockley, Texas with children William and Kelley; Robert Lynn Carter and wife, Trish from Tulsa, Oklahoma with daughter, Tiffany Ann.

Elijah Carter

Elijah Carter lived in Arkansas for many years yet no record has been found after he sold land in Washington County in February and October of 1857 and after an 1857 Washington County Bounty Land Claim in which he stated he enlisted in War with Great Britain October 1813 as an Ensign in the 4th Regiment, Virginia Militia Infantry commanded by Col. Koontz. (Copy of Muster Roll shows he did serve one month. Dated September 16 to October 21, 1813, at Norfolk).

Elijah was born in Virginia circa 1779. On April 20, 1788, Indians came to the Rye Cove settlement at Carter's Ford and stole Elijah, his cousin, Morgan Carter, and a slave boy. They were later restored to their parents through the efforts of the Governor of South Carolina. They had been captives for several years. In a letter dated July 30, 1798, William Fatham wrote that one of the boys had been returned.

After his return, Elijah married Anne and settled down in Rye Cove. He had two children, Matilda, born November 22, 1801, and Allen, born circa 1809. In 1813 Elijah sold his land to his brother, evidently to go to war and go west.

Elijah was in Arkansas in 1820. Matilda married John Emberson (tradition is December 20, 1820 in Cincinnati, Arkansas - no record has been found). John was born May 22, 1798, son of Hezackier and Elizabeth (Webb).

John and Allen Carter had gone to Texas in 1818 to a place later called Emberson Prairie (now in Lamar County and still called Emberson). They returned to Arkansas where John and Matilda married.

In 1825 John "Emmerson", Allen and Elijah Carter signed a petition (along with about 300 others) in Miller County asking the Government to purchase their land from the Choctaw Indians so that they would not lose their farms and homes. John and Matilda Emberson later went to Texas and lived at Emberson. John died December 18, 1859. Matilda died August 5, 1840.

The 1840 Washington County Census lists Allen Carter with wife (he had married Louisa Neal - family records say she was born in Illinois but I believe through the years a mistake was made and she was really born in Illinois Township because that is where Elijah lived). Allen had two children: male age (0-5) who was Andrew Jackson Carter, who was born in 1836; and a female age (0-5) who was Mary Ann Carter (born April 3, 1839), my great grandmother. It also listed Elijah Carter age (60-70) with one female age (20-30). It is not known when his wife, Anne died but this appears to be a second wife because the 1850 Census of Washington County Illinois Township lists Elijah as 74, born in Virginia; Eliza Carter 33, born in Virginia; and Josiah 10, Columbus 6, and Mary 2, all born in Arkansas.

By this time, Allen and Louisa had moved to Texas to the same area as John and Matilda. Allen died June 13 or 15, 1882 in Lamar County, Texas, and Louisa died there March 11, 1901.

Does anyone know where/when Elijah Carter died, where is buried, and what happened to Eliza, Josiah, Columbus and Mary Carter who were on the 1850 Census with him? We have searched off and on for years but we cannot find Elijah. Tradition is he came to Texas alone, on a horse, when he was 83 to see his children. What a fantastic life he lived only to disappear from his descendants who want so much to find him. I know Elijah did not die in Lamar County, Texas or Earle Carter would have known. She was so thorough and professional in her research and always lived in Lamar County, Texas. If you have any information please write me. Mrs. J. B. Waggoner, 409 Frontier, Fort Worth, Texas 76114

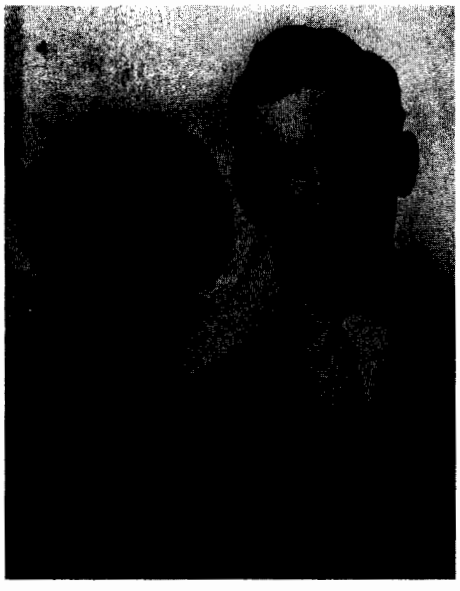
Von Carter

Von Carter, born September 2, 1889, Durham, Arkansas; died May 7, 1982, Muskogee, Oklahoma and Ella May Jones, born September 24, 1893, Durham, Arkansas; died April 8, 1982, Muskogee, Oklahoma) were married at Elkins, Arkansas on March 22, 1913, by Reverend David Hood. They moved to Muskogee, Oklahoma, where they resided the rest of their lives. All of their ancestral lines had settled in Washington County at early dates. Some of them are listed below.

Charles Matthew Jones, age 19, Civil War (Federal) note fancy scarf, 4 pistols. b. April 11, 1842.



Von Carter (1889-1982) and his bride, Ella Mae Jones (1893-1982), taken May 27, 1913. They were married at Elkins, Arkansas, March 22, 1913.

Dr. George Washington Carter (1852-1928) was the father of Von. He was born near McCord Cemetery, where he and his parents, a grandmother and other family members are buried. He practiced medicine at Durham; in his later years he moved to Sulphur City. He married (1) Louey Ann Young, daughter of John Wesley Young and Nancy Rutledge. She died in 1879, leaving a young son. In 1880, Dr. George married (2) Winnie Elizabeth Campbell (1852-1929). They had eight children, including Von. Winnie was born near West Fork, daughter of William Hugh and Julia (Rutherford) Campbell.

The father of Dr. George was also a country doctor. Dr. George W. Carter, Sr. (1800-1875) was born in Laurens County, South Carolina. He moved to Franklin County, Tennessee before 1821, when he married Nancy Hasty. They had 10 children before she died in 1850. Two sons of this marriage, Dr. John Carter and Dr. Jordan (Jerd) Carter, also practiced medicine in Washington County. George (Sr.) married (2) Nancy Emmaline Arnold in Wayne County, Tennessee on July 8, 1851. That fall the family (including many of his children by first marriage) moved to Washington County, Arkansas. Part of the trip was made by barge. Family tradition tells of the barge breaking as they crossed the Mississippi, and the family being separated.

George (Sr.) was carried downstream some distance. The family settled near McCord Cemetery, where George (Jr.) was born the following spring. He was the only child of the second marriage.

The father of George (Sr.) had died in South Carolina in 1805 and his widow, Zibiah (Isibiah) Carter (born 1772, in South Carolina), married (2) a Ramsey. Isibiah Ramsey died January 7, 1861 and is buried in McCord Cemetery.

Ella Mae Jones, wife of Von Carter, was the daughter of William Ambrose Jones (1869-1922) and Edith Jane Shumate (1872-1922). Will Jones was born at Harris, Washington County; he died at Fayetteville and is buried in McCord Cemetery. Edith Jane Shumate was born near Durham, daughter of Bayless Shumate and Elizabeth Cole. Edith died near Wagoner, Oklahoma; she is buried in the Shumate Cemetery near Durham.

The father of William A. Jones was Charles Matthew Jones (1842-1922). He was born in Jackson County, Alabama and came to Washington County as a child. Matt listed his post office as Cincinnati when he enlisted in the Union Army in 1862, a Private in Co. B, 1st Ark. Cavalry Volunteers. He married Esther Caroline Clark (1848-1922) in Washington County in 1865. They are buried in McCord Cemetery.

William Jones (1820-1886), father of Charles Matthew, married Grizzie Riddle (1826-1876). Both were born in Alabama. They came to Arkansas from Jackson County, Alabama about 1846 with her parents, Mathan (Matthew) Riddle (1798-1883) and Rhoda Cooper (1806-1874). William and Grizzie settled on south side of Sugar Hill near Dutch Mills, Arkansas, and are buried in White Rock Cemetery between Sugar Hill and Dutch Mills. The Riddles first settled near the state line dividing Arkansas and Indian Territory (now Oklahoma). They later moved into Crawford County, where they are buried.

John E. Casey

John Edmond Casey and his wife, Virginia Clyde Eagle Casey, moved to Fayetteville in 1924 from Little Rock, where he had been chief deputy to Jim G. Ferguson, Commissioner of Mines, Manufacturing, and Agriculture.

John E. Casey was born July 21, 1886 at Boxley, Arkansas (Newton County), next to the oldest of nine children of Alexander Franklin and Miranda Brooks Casey. He was born on the farm which was established in 1838 by his grandfather, Abner Ellsberry Casey, two years after Arkansas became a state. (Abner Ellsberry Casey was born in Roane County, Tennessee).

The A. F. Casey home stands today essentially as it was rebuilt following a burnout after the Civil War by the bushwhackers. It has been called a handsome example of its type of architecture, a two-story frame house with fireplace at both sides, and dog trot in the middle. The living room bears underneath its exterior some of the original log construction. The home has been considered for the National Historic Register. It remained in the direct A. F. Casey line well over 100 years. It now is referred to as the "Casey-Clark House" by the National Park Service. One of its chimneys can be seen from the Boxley Community building, Baptist Church, and Boxley Cemetery, places now familiar to many tourists who go to Newton County, perhaps primarily to hike through "Lost Valley".

The annual Boxley Reunion, held the third Sunday in October for the past thirty-four years, for those who have roots in the area, was filmed in 1985 by Ted Turner for his network's television series, "Portrait of America".

John E. Casey first came to Washington County as a student at the University of Arkansas. His mode of travel was partly by horseback, partly by mail hack and partly, in his words, "by jerkwater train". Some of his fraternity brothers were later to ask him how "in the h__ __ __" he'd ever heard of the University, coming from Boxley. Because he was a farm boy who had to work his way through school, it took him approximately ten years to get his bachelor's degree in agriculture. (Many years later, in 1935, he obtained a Master of Science Degree in Rural Economics from the University of Arkansas). As a university student, he was a member of the Men's Glee Club, President of the YMCA, and a three-term President of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He was an Army veteran of World War 1.

He married Virginia Clyde Eagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Eagle, of Harrison, Arkansas on May 23, 1922 and they made their first home in Little Rock. Mrs. Casey, who had attended Ouachita Baptist College, Arkadelphia (now Ouachita Baptist University), was born in Bellefonte, Arkansas (Boone County) on September 15, 1889, where her father operated a flour mill, carding factory, and gin. (The Eagle family moved to nearby Harrison, Arkansas in 1913 where J. B. Eagle platted sixty-three acres of the town, an area known today as Eagle Heights).

When the Caseys moved to Fayetteville in 1924, he was named head of the State Seed Laboratory under the Arkansas State Plant Board. His office and laboratory were in the agri building at the University. where he was closely associated with the Agronomy Department. Mr. Casey held this position of State Seed Analyst until his death on February 9, 1951. Mrs. Casey died March 21, 1971. She and her husband had been long time members of First Baptist Church of Fayetteville. They were buried in Harrison.

The Caseys became parents late in life of a son and a daughter.

John Eagle Casey, the son, was born in Fayetteville on July 26, 1928. He holds B. S. and M. S. Degrees in geology from the University of Arkansas. As a young man growing up, he was known as Eagle Casey. Following service in the Army, however, he preferred to be called John after his father. He was married to Annette Inge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Inge of Fayetteville, North Carolina on September 8, 1954. They had met when he was stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, prior to being sent overseas for six months' service in Korea. Annette Inge Casey was graduated with a degree in music from Greensboro College, Greensboro, North Carolina. The John Eagle Caseys have lived all their married life in Midland, Texas where he was associated with Gulf Oil Corporation, seventeen years, then became district geologist approximately fifteen years for Jake L. Hamon, oil producer. He now maintains his own office as an independent geologist. The Caseys have two sons, Patrick Samuel Casey, of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina and John David Casey, who with his wife, the former Leah Owens of Midland, and their two sons, presently live at Holloman AFB, New Mexico (Alamogordo).

John David Casey was graduated with military distinction from the United States Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colorado in 1981. His initials "J. D." reflect the name of a favorite uncle, the late J. D. Eagle of Fayetteville. John and Leah's two sons are Joshua and Jonathan.

Virginia Nell Casey, daughter of John and Clyde Eagle Casey, was born July 22, 1930. She graduated from the University of Arkansas in 1953, with a B. A. Degree and a major in English. She retired in 1985 after thirty-two years' service with Southwestern Electric Power Company, as secretary to the Division Engineer. She was married to Jack Tuck of Fayetteville on September 4, 1971. (He retired in 1985 from First Federal of Arkansas). She is a member of Chapter S of the PEO Sisterhood. The Tucks have no children. They live in Fayetteville where they are active members of First United Presbyterian Church.

They have been members of the First United Methodist Church for the last thirty years.

Jim E. Cate married Sharon Conway from Kansas. Their children are: Brian, Mart Allen, Kelly and Amy.

Stephen W. Cate is the father of Jason and Jenipher.

Alph and Cash fussed and fought and quarreled every day of their lives about anything, everything and nothing (mostly jealously). Frequent "not speaking or associating bouts" occurred. This situation existed all their days upon this earth with no one able to settle their disputes for long - except the Lord when he took them from this place.

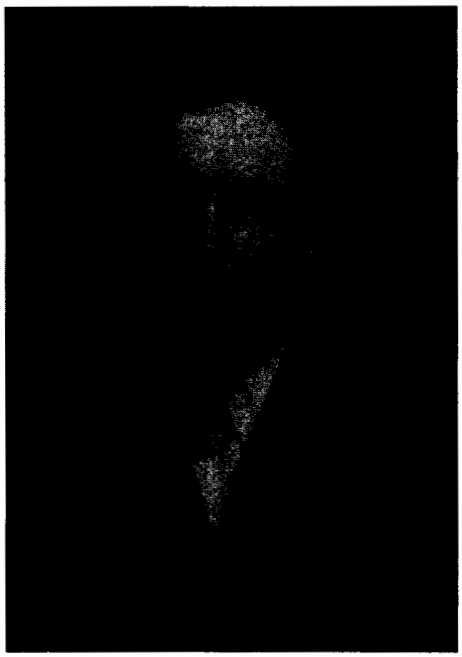
Newton Jasper Cate

Newton Jasper Cate arrived in Washington County in 1870. Coming from Meigs County, Eastern Tennessee, he found the terrain here much to his liking. With no skills, other than farming, he became a tenant on a farm bordered by Richland Creek, near Goshen. While remaining a tenant, he had no opportunity to buy the land where he resided; but he did buy other farm land. In addition, he became part-owner of the flouring mill at Goshen. This mill, a four story structure, was a vital part of the busy trading center of Goshen around the turn of the century.



Newton Jasper Cate

He was born in 1846, being the eleventh of twelve surviving children of Daniel and Ava Elder Cate. He was the great-grandson of John Cate, Sr., who, along with two brothers emigrated from Wales to the colonies in 1752. In 1875, he was married to Mary A. Davis of Madison County. One daughter and three sons were born to this union, with all the births being in the log house on the tenant farm. Newton Jasper died in 1907, and his body was buried in the Goshen Cemetery. The children grew up, married, reared families, died and were buried within the county.

The children in order of birth: Noah Benton 1876, Ora Elmetta 1878, James Harvey 1881 and Charles Bazzel 1884.

Marriages and births: Noah Benton to Luti Maud Kennan of Madison County - 1906. Wayne Alexander 1907, Mildred Alva 1910, Warren Eugene 1913, Newton Lee 1918 and Dorothy Ann 1923. Ora Elmetta to Joseph E. Meredith - 1902. James Adolphus 1903, Enid Mary 1905, Joseph Darrell 1913, Millie Ruth 1916, Ora Virginia 1920 and Ralph 1909-1920. James Harvey to Effie Brooks. Mary Evelyn 1909, Martha Madeline 1911, Lela Marie 1913, Brooksie 1920. Charles Bazzel to Ida Catherine Miller 1905. Alice Berneice 1906, Ina Catherine 1909, Madge Esther 1911, Julia Alaire 1917.

The majority of the grandchildren of Newton Jasper married and reared families within the county. Attesting to the fact that the Cate Family stayed on the land is the fact that the four daughters of Charles Bazzel and Ida Catherine were born in the log house, on the tenant farm, where their father, their aunt, and two uncles had been born.

Family and contemporaries of the three Cate brothers, "Bent", "Harve" and "Charlie" attested to their superb sense of humor. There is one incident of mischief which this writer has enjoyed telling across the years. "Harve" and "Charlie" were driven from the field where they had been plowing, by a sudden rain shower. They took refuge, along with their teams, in the barn, which was close. Presently a mare, with her mule foal, came seeking shelter. Their stepmother's brother, Uncle Mont, had left a pair of jeans in the barn, following his assistance with the sheep shearing. The two young men looked at the mule, and the jeans hanging on a nail. They decided that the jeans would fit the mule. After much effort, the jeans were on the mule's hind legs and snugly buttoned around the flank. Let loose, the mule kicked and bucked until the jeans were in shreds. These shreds were hung back on the same nail. On the next visit, Uncle Mont thought to retrieve his jeans. Upon entering the barn, he uttered his only expressive by word: "By Shacks! What happened to my jeans?"

The three brothers and their sister remained close, sharing in family matters, and relished visiting in one another's home. Harve and Charlie each fathered four daughters, and they remarked, "We have to rely on Bent to carry on the family name". At the present time, there are two sons, two grandsons and six great-grandsons of Bent, bearing the Cate name and residing in the county. Wayne A. spent his entire life in the county, dying in 1983.

Bent, Harve and Charlie were responsible citizens of their respective communities Goshen, Baldwin and Round Mountain, taking part in the social, political and religious activities. Their descendants take pride in the legacy of honesty, integrity and piety bequeathed to them.

As the writer of this history and the only grandson to bear part of Newton Jasper's name, I take the privilege of telling a bit of my story. I lived away from the county for slightly more than twenty-four years, being in school at Hendrix College, Southern Methodist University and serving pastorates in other parts of the state. During my pastorate at Jacksonville, Arkansas, 1955-58, I had the privilege of being Chaplain of The House of Representatives during the Sixty-first General Assembly, State of Arkansas. In 1969, the opportunity came to return to the county, when I was elected by The Board of Trustees, and appointed by my bishop to be Administrator of Mt. Sequoyah Assembly, Fayetteville. This retreat center serves an eight state area of The United Methodist Church. I retired from this position January 31, 1985. On June 1, 1985, Hendrix College conferred the Doctor of Divinity Degree on me.

Life of service to God and humanity has been grand. It is great to be back home again.

The Cate Family.

Walter Cate

Charles Cate moved to Washington County, Arkansas, from Jefferson County, Tennessee, in 1847. His parents, John and Elizabeth Cate were of English descent. The earliest recorded names and dates for the Cate family being in America is 1776.

Charles Cate, born September 9, 1805, married Rachel Thornburgh, born January 21, 1808, on September 7, 1826. (Charles is believed to have been a nephew of Isaac Cate who moved to Washington County from Alabama in 1830. Isaac and Susannah Maynard Cate were the parents of ten or twelve children).

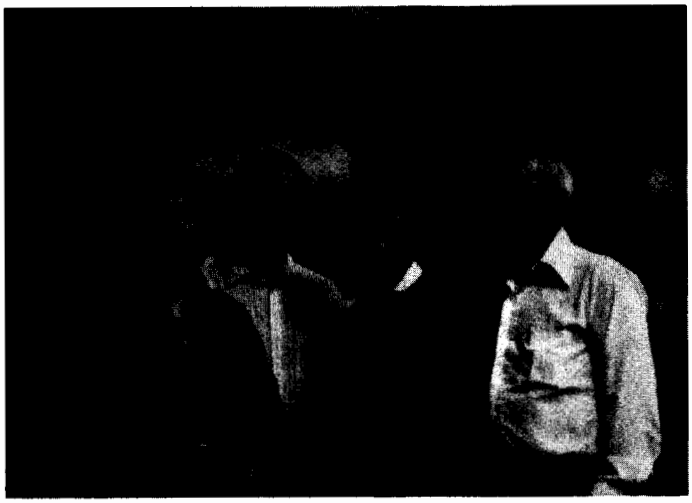
Charles and Rachel brought six children with them when they moved to Washington County in 1847. They bought 320 acres of land located five miles south of Fayetteville, Arkansas, from Sam Alexander for $1,600.00. In the 1900s, this land was known as Cook's Orchard. A portion of the original 320 acres remained in the family until around 1930 or 1932.

Charles and Rachel's son, John Houston Cate, born May 17, 1836, married Mary Belle Mankins, born October 27, 1844. Mary Belle was a daughter of Peter Mankins, Jr. and Narcissus (Mills) Mankins.

After Rachel's death, February 14, 1863, Charles married Martha Ann Harrison. After Charles' death in 1869, Martha married Wilson Risley.

In a document found by Walter Cate, the following information was "certified": Houston Harvey, born April 25, 1883 and Rosa Gertrude Nickell, born June 8, 1897, both of near Fayetteville, Arkansas, were united in Holy Matrimony, December 22, 1912, at the residence of John D. and Medora Ann Nickell, parents of the bride near Fayetteville, by the Rev. John H. Kelly. Witnesses John D. and Medora Ann Nickell.

Births from this marriage were twins: Harold John and Carroll Hugh, born November 30, 1913; Everett Paul, born June 10, 1915; Richard Leroy, born and died September 2, 1916; Violet Annabell, born February 6, 1918; Gordon Lee, born August 29, 1919; Walter Edward, born October 17, 1920; and Charles Otis, born April 29, 1923.



Steven, Jim, Marjorie and Walter Cate.

Marriages of these Cate children were, Everett Paul first married August 24, 1935, Thelma Simpson, second marriage was on June 12, 1947 to Louise Lenora Atkinson (died in 1949) and third marriage was November 22, 1951 to June Logue; Harold John married Lela Teague on April 17, 1937; Gordon Lee married Mary Louise Eden on January 8, 1942; Walter Edward married Marjorie Beasley on November 16, 1943; Carroll Hugh married first to Marine Jensen, February 4, 1946 and second to Erma Cleo Smith on May 5, 1951; Charles Otis married Pearl Irene Phillips on April 16, 1949; and Violet Annabell married Theodore R. Simmons on January 19, 1952.

Walter Edward and Marjorie Beasly Cate, born March 10, 1925, had two sons, Jim E. Cate, born October 10, 1944 and Stephen W. Cate, born April 16, 1953.

Jim E. Cate married Sharon Conway from Kansas. Their children are Brian, Mart Allen, Kelly and Amy.

Stephen W. Cate married Sally Merk in 1978 and is the father of Jason and Jenipher.

More history of Walter and Margery's family can be found in the Marjorie Beasley Cate story in this history book.

Charles Eli Caudle

In 1869, my great-great grandmother Mary Caudle and her three sons, Samuel, Sion, and John Henderson settled in Washington County. After the death of her husband, Dr. John Caudle, Mary moved from Scotsville, Illinois, to open a sawmill and grocery store along Winn Creek. Her sons did the timberwork and homesteaded their own land in the Winslow area.

Sam Caudle married Mattie Stonesifer and they had three children: Lucy C. Harp, Annie C. Pitkin and Bill Caudle. Sam served as county sheriff in the early 1900s. After Mattie's death, he married Annie Bunyard and they had seven children. Henry, was a pharmacist; Jewell, a school teacher; Juanita, a school teacher and principal at Washington and Leverett Schools in Fayetteville; George, county assessor and judge for Washington County; Mildred, secretary to Congressman Fuller; John Tarlton Caudle and Berniece C. Puckett.

Sion Caudle married Amy and had one son, Minor. John Henderson Caudle married Sarah Winn and had three sons, Edgar, Albert, Eli, and one daughter Mary, who died in early childhood. After Sarah's death, John married Harriet Kittrell who had two daughters, Josephine and Minnie. John and Harriet had three children: Emma C. Stonesifer, Martha C. Doyle and Isaac Caudle.

My grandfather, Eli Caudle, married Dessie Southern in 1911 by D. C. McClain in Winslow. They raised 12 children on a farm in Oak Grove, Arkansas. In 1940, they moved to Winslow where West Fork Church of Christ steps, August 1961, 50th Wedding Anniversary.

Eli owned and operated a service station. Dessie operated a restaurant in downtown Winslow, made baskets, quilts and needlework, all in addition to raising the children. After the children were grown, the Caudles moved to Greenland, Arkansas, in the early 1950s where Eli again owned and operated a service station until his death in 1964. Dessie operated a restaurant for a short time and continued her craft work until her death in 1972.

Dessie Caudle was preceeded in death by her 7th daughter, Imogene Parrish, in an automobile accident in 1969. Oldest sons, Sherman, Ralph and daughter Mildred Preston have since passed away. Daughters Gladys Davis, Edith Tomlinson, Thelma Smith and Ruby Center live in Greenland. Ed Caudle lives in Brentwood, Arkansas; Delford Caudle in Poller, Georgia; Lois Carson in Capitola, California; and Betty Carson in Watsonville, California.

At the time of Dessie's death in 1972, there were a total of 126 descendants. The Caudle legacy lives on as the descendants have increased to approximately 350, with more being added as time goes on. During a recent reunion of the Caudle family, more than 200 relatives, covering four generations gathered to renew acquaintances.

Ruby Caudle Center, my mom, married Lonnie Center in 1940 and they have lived in the Winslow/Greenland area all of their married lives.

They now live in Greenland, where they are both retired and spend much of their time organizing reunions of the Caudle and Center families. My husband Tom and four daughters have only recently returned to Fayetteville in order to raise our family among relatives and friends. You can take the person out of Razorback country, but you can never take the Razorback country out of the person. It's good to be home.

James Cavin

Ananias Cavin and wife Polly (Jones) Cavin came to Arkansas, Washington County, early in the 1800s from Tennessee. They settled here and raised a large family. James L. Cavin, my grandfather, was one of their sons. He served in the Civil War A 9th Kansas Cavalry. Born April 1, 1839, died February 1, 1924. Ananias Cavin died in 1897; wife Polly Jones Cavin died in 1893. Another son, John Lewis Cavin, also served in the Civil War, Co. H 9th Cavalry. Born July 12, 1843, died December 10, 1918. All the Jones and Cavin generations are buried in Howell Cemetery at Hogeye, west of West Fork.

James Cavin and Matilda Owens Cavin

My grandfather, James Cavin, married Matilda Mallicoat Owens on January 15, 1860. (She was the widow of the late Abner Owens). To this union was born three sons and one daughter, Will Cavin, Nelse Cavin, Newt Cavin and Martha Cavin, my mother. She married my father Henry Clay McDonald on September 17, 1893. They had seven children, six girls and one boy. They were Maud, Mae, Minnie, Louella, Lillian, Ida and James (Jim). I, Lillian, married Earl Curtis in 1924. We had two girls, Wanda May and Hildra June. I have eight grandchildren (one deceased, Larry Arnold), four great-grandchildren. Also three great-great-grandchildren, my cousin Joy Fay Telford, and Lillian Curtis, are the only living grandchildren of our grandfather, James Cavin.

Claude R. Center

The Center family name has been known throughout the hills of Winslow since the mid-1850s. Our ancestors served as soldiers in the Revolutionary War and moved westward from their home in Georgia. The Center name comes from Normandy, France and in 1160, our ancestors became English subjects during the invasion of England by William the Conqueror. Still using the European spelling 'Senter', the family moved to America in 1652 and settled first in Virginia and finally in Georgia. Guilford Center, my great-great-grandfather, homesteaded on Blackburn Creek in Winslow in 1856, thus planting the roots of the first Center generation in Washington County.

Guilford Center and his wife, Lyverna Pittman Freet, were farmers and had one son, John Henry, on July 9, 1858, before Guilford enlisted in the Union Army. Guilford had 14 children total with three wives before he died in March, 1895. He is buried in Collier Cemetery.

John Henry Center, my great-grandfather married Victoria Wilson (D. O. B. 4-13-1864) in 1881 and lived on a 160-acre homestead on Bunyard Road. John was a farmer, worked blacksmithy for the community, and raised fruit produce, in addition to helping Victoria raise their 13 children. He also helped dig the Winslow railroad tunnel.

John and Victoria's daughters were Dora Rush of Texas, Cordelia Rosencrans of California, and Mae Bunyard, Elsie Jones, Victoria Testerman, and Bertha Caudle of northwest Arkansas. Their sons were George of Texas, and Bill, Charles, Otto, and Claude of northwest Arkansas. Two children, James and Sara, died in childhood. John Henry passed away in 1942 and Victoria followed in death in 1961. Both are buried in Hart Cemetery.

Claude Center, John and Victoria's fifth child was born February 25, 1889. He married Ica Robinson (D. O. B. 4-12-1894) on April 24, 1917, and they made their home on a mountain ridge in Bunyard Community overlooking the Howard Creek Valley. Claude and Ica had eight children. Grandfather Claude worked most of his life, from age 17, for the Frisco Railroad in Arkansas. He and Ica spent lots of time working on their homesites, raising beautiful flowers, shrubs and gardens, which were enjoyed by the entire community of Winslow. In their retirement years, they relocated in south Fayetteville, where they remained until Claude's death in 1974. He is buried at Brentwood Cemetery. Ica Center resides at City Hospital Geriatric Center where she remains in stable health. At present, Ica shares five generations of Center family with Washington County including son Lonnie Center, granddaughter Reba Center Squirrel, great-grandson Steven Morton, and great-great-grandson Shane Morton.

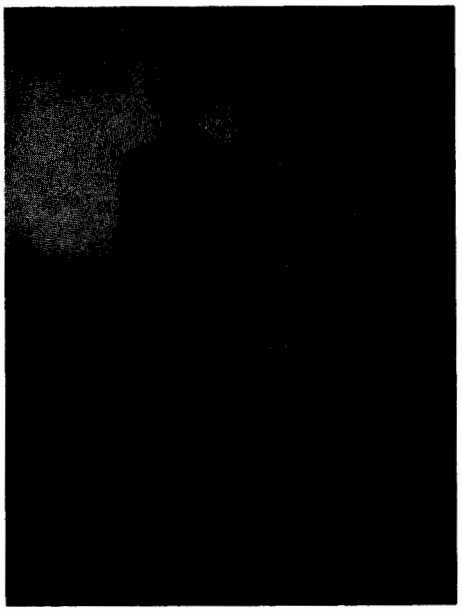
Claude and Ica's two daughter, Mildred Shackelford and Berneice Talley live in Fayetteville. Their sons are Jim of Cedar Hills, Texas, and Bob, Jack, Ted and Lonnie of the Greenland/Fayetteville area. Valentine Boyd passed away in May 1973.

Lonnie Center, my dad, born December 23, 1920, married Ruby Caudle (DOB 9-30-21) in 1940. They lived most of their lives in the Winslow/Greenland area. Lonnie worked as a carpenter, both self-employed and for the University of Arkansas, until his retirement in 1979. He now spends his spare time farming his land around the old White Schoolhouse, raising cattle and gardening.



John Henry Center and Victoria Wilson

John Henry Center Family

Lonnie and Ruby Center have four children. Carl and his wife Shaaron Beard Center live in Greenland; Reba Center Squirrel and her husband Franklin reside in Fort Smith; Randy Center lives in Gravette, and I, Cheryl Center Bramlett and my husband Tom, live in Fayetteville. After living out of state for fourteen years, I am truly proud to be back in the land of my heritage and enjoy seeing and getting reacquainted with my family—The Center Family. Lonnie Center has copies of family genealogy.

William Chandler

John Chandler, oldest child of William Chandler and Hetty Cassidy Chandler, was blind most of his life. His parents first went to Illinois where John was born. Then they moved to Washington County in 1833 when John was a small baby. Hetty was Cherokee Indian. As they traveled to Washington County, they would camp at night at Indian camps. At one camp, this Indian woman noticed John's eyes were red from the sun and she said she had something that would clear them up. Instead, whatever she put in his eyes blinded him for life.

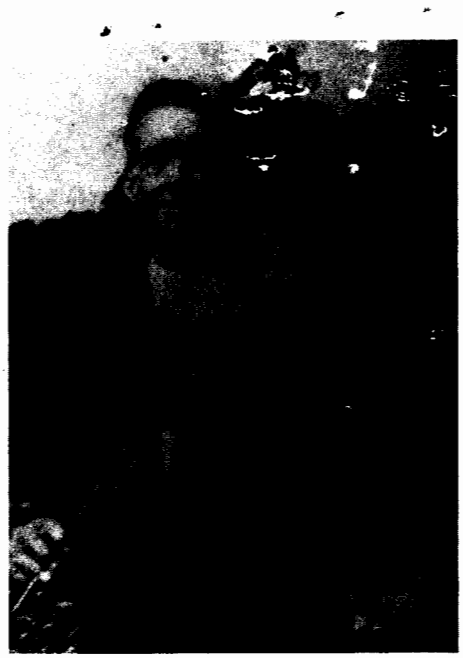
William Oliver Chandler

My Grandfather, William Oliver Chandler, was a third generation native of Washington County, Arkansas. He was born September 10, 1871, and died on Christmas Day, 1945. The son of Jeremiah Chandler (5/21/1847-6/10/1919) and grandson of William Chandler (3/17/1811-5/27/1895) and Ester "Hetty" Chandler (about 1821-1886). Hetty was a Cherokee Indian girl. I have no other information about her ancestry. Their journey brought them to Washington County in 1850 and census records have them listed in Floyd County, Kentucky, prior to that date. They settled in a small community established about 1835 surrounding the Union Church House and a burying ground located on the upper middle fork of the White River in the foothills of the magnificent Ozark Mountains. Recorded in their family Bible were: John (September 9, 1832), Sereaney (February 8, 1838), Clerinda (July 11, 1842), James M. (May 7, 1844), Jeremiah (May 21, 1847), Elizabeth (April 13, 1849) and Mary Jane (June 25, 1853).



William Oliver Chandler. Early 1900s.

William Oliver was the oldest of nine children born to Jeremiah and Malissa. Recorded in their family Bible were: William Oliver (September 10, 1871 - December 25, 1945), Moses Wilbern (March 3, 1873 - January 17, 1948), Susan Ester (May 25, 1877 - December 24, 1964), George (1879 d. infant), Rodey Columbus (July 11, 1881), James A. Garfield (August 31, 1883 - December 26, 1952), Epherferam (November 7, 1885), John D. (February 12, 1888), Elizabeth "Lilla" (May 25, 1890 - July 21, 1949).

He married Lula Bernice Arnold on March 25, 1894. Born September 12, 1872 at Howard City, Kansas, the daughter of Lewis and Louise Henson Arnold. She died June 1, 1955, and was buried in the Whitehouse Cemetery next to Grandpa.

Grandpa Oliver and Grandma Lula had four children. Claud (March 10, 1895 - November 6, 1918) married Vicie Robertson and their children are Claude Jr. "Coonie" and Wanda Wiley Chandler. Daughter Dollie (1879-1933) married Lester Hutchens and they had four children: Ellis, Ira, Maxine and X. G. Their third child was my father Dessie McKinley (October 12, 1900 - January 11, 1980). He married Mary Bell Hutchens (April 5, 1896 - August 4, 1985) at Brentwood, Arkansas, on June 14, 1919. They had two children: Ruth Odesa (August 17, 1920 - August 25, 1930), and me, Oliver Hutchens (January 24, 1925). The youngest child (of Grandpa Oliver and Grandma Lula), James P. "Jim" (1903-1966) married Vernie Watkins (1906-1925) and had one child, Waymond. Jim later married Dorthy Axford (1908-1940) from Montana. They had two children, Vernon Claud and Kennith Logan.

The economy was good during the early years of their marriage. Grandpa found good markets for his timber products, furs, and produce in nearby Winslow and Brentwood. They would travel to Fayetteville, twenty-five miles away, twice yearly to stock up on major supplies. Grandpa spoke many times of the preparation and excitement of those trips. It meant staying over night in the wagon yard, and giving them another half day to shop before the long journey back home which at best would be sometime after dark.

They purchased eighty acres of land from John Paschal (part of a federal land grant) in Whitehouse community, built a house, farmed the land and raised their children. The house was built on the bank of Greasy Creek, near a spring of good water, where they lived the rest of their lives. Their children attended church and school at Whitehouse and some have carried on the family traditions, living their entire lifetime on or near the same land.

Grandpa was a tall, slender blue-eyed man with a kind, gentle, easy-going nature, always ready to help anyone who needed it. He loved his family and they all loved and respected him. He was active in community affairs and projects, and his home was base for relatives and friends far and near. The Chandler ancestry leads back to England. The Chandler shield has three gold lions on a black horizontal stripe across a background of red and silver squares. Grandpa was a member of the 1700 England founded "Independent Order of Odd Fellows."

Grandma was a pretty, small brown-eyed woman, and quite the opposite of Grandpa in nature. She had a fiery, quick temper and was known to raise her voice to an unusually high pitch when things didn't go to suit her. However, Grandpa seemed to have a way of handling these situations and keeping peace in the family. One well remembered expression he often used was, "Aw shaw, now Maw."

He will best be remembered for his music. A self-taught, and accomplished fiddle player, he traveled for miles around on horseback or buggy entertaining professionally, or entertaining family and friends. He played for several years at the Mountain Lodge located high on the mountain above Winslow where the rich people came to spend their summers. Family and community get-togethers were a common form of entertainment in those days with the men folk talking politics, planning projects, or just matching wits, while the women planned parties, exchanged household hints, prepared food, discussed the local news and enjoyed catching up on the latest gossip.

One such bit that made the rounds was the root cellar Grandma had insisted on getting started when Grandpa was really not in the mood to do at the time. Well, digging a hole in the bank big enough for the winter food storage can be a tiring, monotonous job. Grandpa began to think about that bottle of cure-all hidden out in the barn and pretty soon, when its medicinal power began to take over, another magic po'tion seemed to come out of that bottle—a strong urge to make music—and the fresh mound of dirt seemed like the perfect place to practice an Irish jig. That turned out to be the penchant for all evil as the music reaching Grandma's ears wasn't so sweet. It triggered her temper to a degree that got the best of them both. Not only did it put a stop to "such foolishness," she made him fill the hole back up. This delayed the root cellar for the time being, but not permanently, as the cellar near the old house site, now remodeled, is still in use. Grandpa's old Stradvari lies silent today, but all who have heard him play can still hear his music and find it hard to keep the toe from tapping.

My wife was Joyce Gladys Jones (February 2, 1925). She is the daughter of the late Larkin Enoch Jones (1885-1973) and Lula Lee Castleman Jones (1899-1978). Her family moved to Washington County in 1939 from Palo Pinto, Texas, when she was fifteen years old. We met in school at Brentwood in 1942 and were married May 1, 1943. We had two children: Barbara Jean (1944 d. Infant) and Sandra Jo Chandler (April 4, 1946).

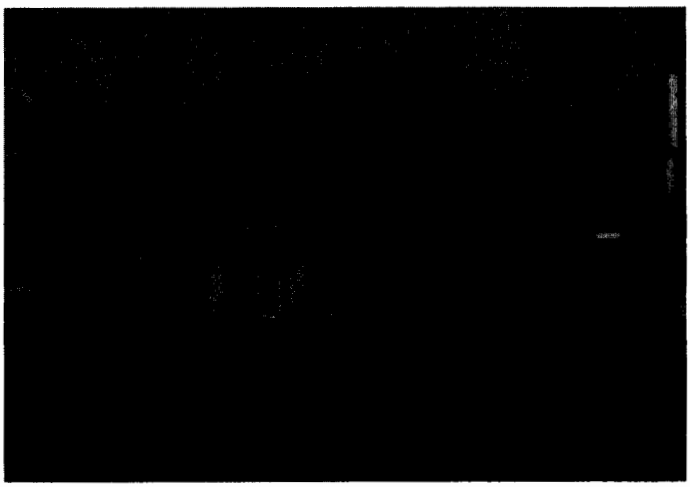
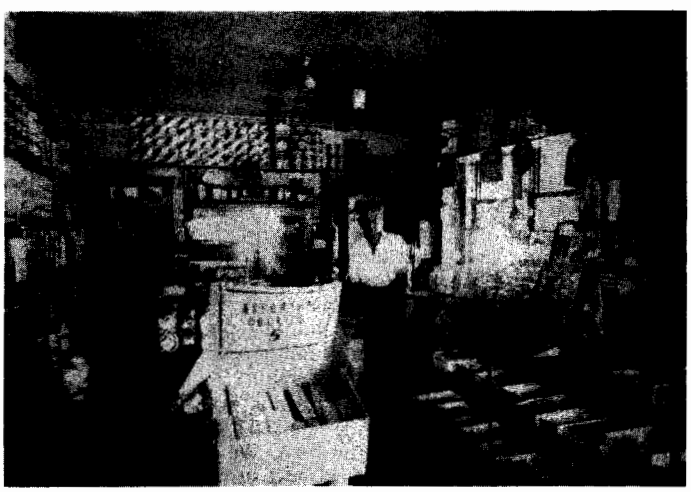
William Charlesworth

The name of Charlesworth can be traced back to the early Eighteenth Century when 2 Danish brothers moved to England and after arriving changed the spelling of their names and took on the Anglican spelling.



Was-Charlesworth Pontiac Company built 1949, 471 South. Block south of original filling station and grocery store. Now-Steve Smith Pontiac.



Jim Charlesworth grocery store, filling station with living quarters in back S. E. corner, Maple and 471. Approximately 1935.

In 1820, three brothers came to America, James, Moses and Russell. Moses settled at St. Charles, Missouri, Russell died at New Orleans while on his way back to England and James settled at St. Clairsville, Ohio.

It was from James that the Charlesworth name came to Washington County. His son, William Charlesworth was born in 1859 at Fortsmouth, Ohio. He left Ohio at the age of 21 and traveled to Abilne, Kansas. From there he traveled with a family in a covered wagon through Coffeyville, Kansas, Southwest City, Missouri and through Siloam Springs, Arkansas where they settled in a small box house near the Illinois River close to Fisher Ford. During that winter he worked at a saw mill owned by a man named Brown, a Grandfather of Mrs. William D. Brown of Siloam Springs. In April of 1881 he moved to Siloam Springs where he worked as a carpenter. The next fall he moved to Winslow, Arkansas where he was employed as a clerk in a general store. He worked there about 2 years and then left, going on the road for McDaniel Brothers, as inspector and shipping clerk in the tie and lumber business in Washington County. He was in the employ of the latter concern for 5 years and at the expiration of which he formed a partnership and engaged in the grocery, wholesale lumber and post business as a member of the firm of Charlesworth and Yount, with business located at St. Paul, Madison County, Arkansas. He subsequently engaged in general business at that place and when he had gathered together sufficient capital he came to Fayetteville in 1901 to engage in the hardwood lumber business establishing the firm known as the William Charlesworth Hardwood Lumber Company. During this time his business kept him near Pettigrew and St. Paul so he maintained his home at St. Paul. He felt his children had the need for a higher education so he moved his family to Fayetteville on March 6, 1902.

In 1884 he married Calona Yoes in Carthage, Missouri, and from this marriage were born nine children of which 4 died in infancy. The other five were Claude Chadwick, Darwin C., James R., Myrl Vesta and Yevonne.

In 1906 he constructed a hardwood handle factory with the capacity of one hundred dozen handles daily. He was a stockholder in the Dutton Mercantile Company at St. Paul, a Vice President of the bank at St. Paul and a stockholder in the Arkansas National Bank at Fayetteville.

During the next few years he owned various properties. He tried the new car business for a short time. At one time owned the building located on the north side of what was the Ozark Theatre. Houston Taylor Motors was located there originally. His son, James R. stated that he had learned to drive in the basement of this building now a private parking lot. William's dealership was located either on the north end of the block where now stands the McIlory Bank or very nearby.

In the early twenties, financial misfortunes befell him and in May of 1920 he and his wife moved to Siloam Springs where he built and operated a small grocery on South Mt. Olive Street until his death in 1941.

Claude married Bernice Brogdon of Springdale and later moved to California where he was employed in the fruit industry. They had two sons, Chadwick (Chad) and William (Bill). Chad died while a small child and son Bill now lived in Ojai, California. Darwin married Naomi (Pegs) Mills of Muskogee, Oklahoma, they established their home in Muskogee. There he was employed in the wholesale grocery business for a number of years. He later returned to Springdale for several years operating a small grocery. After that he worked for his brother, Jim, in the parts department at the dealership. They later moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma. They had one daughter, Mary Martha, who now lives in Rogers, Arkansas. Myrl remained unmarried and lived in Fayetteville all her life and worked many years as a secretary in an office of the College of Agriculture at the University. After retirement, she lived in Fayetteville until her death in August 1986. Yevonne also remained unmarried but taught school in Wynne, Arkansas for a while and later was employed as a dietician by American Airlines in both Denver, Colorado and Tulsa, Oklahoma until her retirement. She and Myrl then lived together on Lindell Street in Fayetteville where Yevonne currently lives.

James Russell, (Jim) the youngest son, ran off and joined the Navy when he was 17 years old, served in the First World War in Europe and afterwards was given an honorable discharge. He married Marguerite Carter of Springdale in 1924. They moved to Okmulgee, Oklahoma where he was employed by a lumber company. They later moved to Bristow, Oklahoma, where he was manager of a filling station. It was in Bristow where a son, James Russell, (Jr.) was born to them on August 3, 1928.

In 1929 they moved to Springdale where they purchased a small grocery and filling station located on the south east corner of Highway 471 (previously Highway 71) and Maple Avenue where the Rainbow Cleaners building now stands. In the back of the grocery were their living quarters. It was shortly after they moved to Springdale that they saw Highway 71 change from a gravel road to a 2 lane concrete road. In 1936 Jim Charlesworth was successful in acquiring the Pontiac franchise. For 2-3 years he had no shop building so in 1939 he had a frame, rock veenered building erected south of the filling station on the same block facing Highway 71. Along about the same time the family purchased a residence diagonally across from the station. At that time, Maple Street did not extend west of Highway 71. The grocery and station was closed and the building converted into an auto supply. In was in 1940 that the franchise for International Harvester trucks was acquired. It was with the allocation of a few trucks, repair parts and a few truck tires that Charlesworth Pontiac Company as a business, managed to survive throughout the Second World War without closing its doors. After the war he received few cars, being a small dealer. He purchased a tamden truck, hired a driver and the truck hauled coal, corn, watermelon or whatever. He bought a threshing machine and tractor, hired workers and did custom threshing of grain. Whatever he could find to earn dollars. In May 1944, he was offered the opportunity to purchase a 10 acre plot just to the south of his present dealership from a family named Young. The purchase price was $8,000. It was bounded on the north by what is now Searcy Street, only a dirt alley at that time and bounded on the south by Quandt Street. On this acreage was considered one of the best grape vineyards anywhere. It was 3 wires high and over six feet tall. Currently Steve Smith Pontiac Company is located on the 471 Highway side and the Springdale Memorial Hospital in on the east side. In 1949 the dealership facilities became much too small so larger facilities were constructed where it still stands. The original shop was used as a body shop until 1964 when it was demolished to make way for the widening of Highway 71. In the early fifties, having an interest in farming and farm machinery, he acquired the franchise of Minneapolis Moline farm machinery. It was later dropped in the sixties. International Harvester was pressing the dealership to start selling the West Coast type of trucks but he did not want to so this franchise was given up. In the late fifties, economy cars were selling good so the American Motor Rambler franchise was secured followed by Light Duty GMC trucks in 1964. Jim, or J. R. as many knew him, died on October 13, 1967.

Son, Russell, finished Springdale High School in 1946 and attended the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville until 1951. On March 16, 1951, he married Donna F. Vanzant of Springdale. Her father was L. O. Vanzant, the High School Principal for several years. Her mother is Glo Vanzant, an English teacher in High School. She still lives on Mill Street in Springdale. Graduation followed in May of the same year. In August Russell was inducted into the Army and spent one year at Camp Roberts, California and the next year in Fairbanks, Alaska. In August 1953 he was honorably discharged and returned to Springdale where he joined his father in the dealership. He continued to work with his father until his father's death in 1967. At this time Russell became the franchised dealer.

In 1974 it appeared that the Jeep franchise would be a good one to have along with the others. It was secured at that time and was an outstanding success then as it still is. The years passed with their ups and downs and on August 6, 1984, after the dealerships had remained in the Charlesworth family for 48 years, Russell sold to Steve Smith of McAllister, Oklahoma, who currently owns and operates it now.

From the marriage of Russell and Donna came 4 children. Glenn M. was born on December 19, 1951 while Russell was in the army. Glenn graduated from Springdale High and attended the University of Arkansas where he graduated with a degree in accounting. He married Vickie Clark of Little Rock where they now reside. Glenn is a full partner of a CPA firm in North Little Rock. They have 2 children, Adam and Olivia. Susan G. was born on October 9, 1955. Susan graduated from Springdale High and attended the College of the Ozarks in Clarksville. She obtained her degree in elementary education and now teaches a 4th grade class at Elmdale Elementary School in Springdale. While still in college she married Dan Dovell of Fayetteville. Susan and Dan have two children, Sarah and Caleb. Jeffery (Jeff) was born November 30, 1958. He finished Springdale High and attended Arkansas Tech in Russellville, Arkansas. While in the Springdale schools, he was starting center in basketball from the 8th grade through his senior year. He also still holds the Springdale high jump record of 6' 9". Jeff developed cancer while a Sophomore at Tech and passed away while a Junior at the age of 21. Nancy was born January 11, 1962. She also finished Springdale High and attended Arkansas Tech for a year and a half. She then transferred to College of the Ozarks in Clarksville. There she graduated with a degree in Marketing. She went to work for Wal-Mart as an assistant manager in Hot Springs. After a year working in the area of 60 hours a week, she decided there was a better way to make a living than having to work that many hours. She elected to return to the College of the Ozarks where she is now completing her degree in Secondary Education after which she hopes to teach math in Junior High.

Russell is now retired and after working 6 days a week for 31 years, he finds it difficult at times but still enjoys being able to do what he pleases when he pleases. Donna had worked at the dealership part time before it was sold and still works part time for Steve Smith in the office.

Thomas Jefferson Cheatham

My grandfather Thomas Jefferson Cheatham, who was born 20 June 1839 in what later became Winston County, Alabama, was a descendant of immigrants who came to Virginia in or before 1670 and whose progeny in subsequent generations moved to North Carolina and then to Alabama. He was the youngest son of Wyatt Duke Cheatham, Sr. and came to Washington County, from Winston County, Alabama after the death of his father in 1856. The three youngest sons—George Washington, Francis Marion and Thomas Jefferson and their young sister, Susan Elizabeth, arrived before the Civil War. Early land records state that Francis Marion bought forty acres of land in Cane Hill Township 7 May 1859. He married Martha Carlisle, a native of Tennessee, 26 September 1859 and was killed on his land by bushwhackers. Francis Marion was the first to be buried in the Cheatham Cemetery east of Lincoln. He was buried there on 2 December 1862.

Both George Washington and Thomas Jefferson fought for the Confederacy in Fagan's Brigade at the Battle of Prairie Grove. Thomas Jefferson was shot above the knee while driving an ammunition wagon. A black soldier named Fisher hid him until he could be safely removed from the battlefield.

Thomas Jefferson married Mary Elizabeth Hicks 24 February 1869. Mary Elizabeth was born in Hempstead County, Arkansas 4 August 1850, a daughter of Austin and Lavina Jane Nickols Hicks. Their children were: Mary Elizabeth Susan 5 December 1869-6 February 1870. James Henry 19 March 1871-4 January 1900. Rebecca Isabell 12 April 1873-9 February 1896. Lewis Austin 7 March 1875-30 August 1949. Joseph Marion 8 September 1877-25 December 1894. Mildred Melvina 25 March 1879-27 June 1910. Albert James 23 January 1881-11 February 1881. Annie Ruth 26 April 1883-27 October 1884. Wyatt Stephen 9 August 1885-2 June 1961. George Marcus 30 December 1887-18 January 1972. Dollie 20 June 1890-5 November 1915. All but three of these children died before their mother did.

Thomas Jefferson homesteaded 160 acres east of Lincoln in Cane Hill Township. This land adjoined that homesteaded by his brother George Washington and that bought by his brother Francis Marion. Grandsons of Thomas Jefferson, who are sons of Wyatt Stephen, still live on the property. Thomas Jefferson died 13 March 1893 of pneumonia. His wife, Mary Elizabeth, remained a widow until her death 18 November 1933. Both are buried in the Cheatham Cemetery as are many of their children.

Thomas Jefferson Cheatham (1839-1893) and Mary Elizabeth, the boy on his father's lap is George Marcus. Dollie, the youngest child, is on her mother's lap. Boy on right is Wyatt Stephen. Standing are: Mildred Melvina and Joseph Marion. The original is 8"x10", taken by an itinerant photographer(c.) 1892.

These pioneers were most self-sufficient. They kept horses for transportation and for tilling the soil, cows for milk and beef, pigs for bacon and ham, chickens for eggs and meat and geese for plucking to make pillows and feather mattresses. They hunted such game as deer, squirrel and opossum for meat and hides. They made their own soap. Every home had a large vegetable garden, apple and peach orchards and a strawberry patch. They gathered wild berries and nuts. They made molasses from cane. It is said Thomas Jefferson Cheatham made most of the wooden sorghum mills used at Summers. Molasses was the main type of sweetener. Honey was relished when a hive of bees was found. These pioneers grew corn and wheat, some of which was used to feed the poultry and animals and some of which was taken to Moore's Mill for grinding into corn meal and flour for family use.

My father, George Marcus Cheatham, was the youngest son of Thomas Jefferson. He lived on the homestead with his mother and worked the property until October 1920, when he and wife and children moved to California. On 3 December 1914 he married Bessie Louise Sondgrass, who was born 10 July 1890 at Summers, Arkansas. Bessie was a daughter of Thomas Lafayette and John Dee Nunly Snodgrass. I, Hazel Cheatham Blankenburg, was born 13 October 1915 in a frame house a few yards from the log cabin my father was born in. My sister, Doris Dee Cheatham Banek, was born 5 May 1917 in the same house. Two other children, Thomas Elwyn Cheatham born 15 December 1921 and Olive Bernice Cheatham Adams born 9 September 1925, were born at Lodi, California. My mother died 28 June 1963 at Lodi. My father died there 18 January 1972. Both are buried in the Cherokee Cemetery south of Lodi.

After he moved to California, George Marcus bought a vineyard. He became very efficient at grafting vines, fruit trees and walnut trees. He was a good farmer and improved the soil rather than depleting it. He kept family and neighbors supplied with fruit and vegetables. He was a pioneer whose life covered the span from the horse to the airplane. He was respected and well liked by everyone. His word and a handshake were his bond.

Dr. Dodson Christian

Dr. Dodson Christian lived and practiced medicine for most of his adult life in Springdale. Born in Warren County, Tennessee on April 5, 1851, he died at his home, 405 Holcomb Street, in Springdale from a heart attack after an illness of three days on January 12, 1918.

Dr. D. Christian, who practiced medicine in Springdale from 1884 until his death on January 12, 1918.

The Dr. D. Christian home at 405 Holcomb Street in Springdale. The first building on the site was a log cabin built by William Louis Stokes. It consisted of two rooms and an attic. Dr. Christian lived in the existing log cabin until he built the large three-story house and used the log cabin as the back rooms.

His full name was Sampson W. Dodson Christian, although he was always known as Dr. D. Christian. He was the son of William Thornton Christian and Lucy Dodson Christian. William, the son of Peyton and Sarah Neal Christian, died January 25, 1863 in the CSA and is buried in the Confederate Cemetery in Little Rock, Arkansas. After his death, Lucy married John Archibald McLeod, son of Murdoch and Barbara Matthew McLeod. They moved from Warren County, Tennessee to Lawrence County, Arkansas when Dr. Christian was only six months old. From there, they moved to a farm, west of Lowell when Dr. Christian was 16 years old, and there he grew to manhood. A sister, Samantha Jane, was born March 9, 1856, married Mood Mayes and lived the rest of her life on a farm west of Lowell.

On June 21, 1862, Dr. Christian married Miss Emma Cowan, and from this union, three children were born. Walter and Eddie died in childhood. Dr. Otto Christian, the third child, was born in 1880. He graduated from St. Louis Medical School and practiced medicine in Springdale for a number of years before World War I. Dr. Otto entered the Army Medical Corp as a 1st Lieutenant, served in Europe with the 1st Division, and retired as a Major in San Antonio, Texas. He and his wife, Flossie Gregory Christian, lived there until their deaths, both in their 90s. Their only child, Lella, born in 1905, married W. E. Dunkelberg on February 7, 1927. W. E. is a retired Brig. Gen. of the U. S. Army, and they live in San Antonio, Texas. Their children are W. E. Dunkelberg, Jr., born March 30, 1928 and Judy Gray, born July 17, 1930.

Before taking up the practice of medicine, Dr. Christian spent four years teaching in the public schools of Benton County. During this period, he read medicine as was the custom of those who aspired to the medical profession. In 1876, he moved to Elm Springs where he practiced medicine and pursued his studies. He went from there to the St. Louis College of Medicine, graduating from that institution in 1880. He continued the practice of medicine at Elm Springs until 1882 when he moved back to the farm and took care of his farming interests in connection with his practice. After two years on the farm, he returned to Springdale and bought out the practice of Dr. W. H. Young who was the only physician in Springdale at that time. From that time, he constantly practiced in this area. He did, however, decide to continue his medical education further. He entered Bellview College in New York City for post graduate work and received his diploma from this institution in 1888.

Dr. Christian's wife, Emma, died in June, 1899. More than three years later, November 16, 1902, he married Miss Bessie McLeod of Smithville. She was born February 4, 1875, the daughter of Simon and Sally Judkins McLeod, both pioneer Lawrence County families.

Children of this marriage are Carroll Dodson, born December 15, 1904 and Marjorie, born August 21, 1907.

Carroll Dodson (C. D.) was married August 21, 1929 to Margaret L. Obermiller of Jackson, Missouri. Mr. Christian was a teacher and athletic coach at Springdale High School in 1925 - 27 and again from 1929 - 1936. He then entered the Agricultural Extension Service and worked in this Service until his retirement July 1, 1972 as County Agricultural Agent of White County. He and his wife, Margaret, live at 106 N. Hickory Street in Searcy.

They have two sons, James Carroll and Donald Edward, both born in the Washington County Hospital while the parents were living in Springdale. Jim attended Hendrix College two years and graduated from Harding College in Searcy. Jim married Jamie Neaville of Griffithville, and they have four daughters, Neaville Ann, Mary Margaret, and twins, Caroline and Catherine. Their home is in Griffithville. Don played quarterback on the University of Arkansas' football team, and graduated from that institution in 1958. He married Sheffield Lander of Little Rock; their three children are Donald Dodson, Andrew Lander and Amelia Sheffield Christian Duke, all living in Little Rock. Sheffield Duke is the mother of two children, Helen Sheffield and Rebecca Riley. Don is now married to Pam Daniels Anthony and they reside in Little Rock.

After attending the University of Arkansas, Marjorie Christian was employed by the University of Tulsa, in Tulsa, Oklahoma. She was married April 26, 1931 to John Jacob Davis, who was born March 2, 1906, the son of James B. and Tura Hamill Davis. They owned and operated the Davis Mirror and Frame Gallery in Tulsa, but both are now retired. They reside at 2654 East 15th Place, Tulsa, their home for a great many years.

John J. and Marjorie have one son, John Jacob Davis, Jr. born March 25, 1934. John, Jr. was married on June 23, 1956 to Sandra Janice Locke, who was born on December 20, 1935, the daughter of James M. and Gayle Mohler Locke. John, Jr. received his degree in Business Administration and Marketing from the University of Tulsa in 1957. Since then, he has been employed by Sinclair Oil and Gas Company. John, Jr. and Sandra have a son, John Christian Davis, born April 13, 1960.

Dr. Christian was active in civic affairs; at the time of his death he was City Health Officer, a member of the Springdale School Board, Vice President of the First National Bank and a part owner of the Springdale Cash Dry Goods Company.

Religion was a big part of the life of both Dr. Christian and his wife, Bessie. Dr. Christian joined the Baptist Church on October 28, 1890 and was ordained a deacon June 28, 1892.

Bessie Christian was a devoted wife and mother. After Dr. Christian's death, she bore the responsibility of raising and educating her two children. Besides caring for house and family, much of her time was spent in working with the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church and in other activities of the church. Her death, also caused by a heart-attack, occurred March 5, 1941.

An extract from his obituary in the Springdale News of Friday, January 18, 1918 states that the schools were dismissed for the afternoon of his funeral and that the First National Bank and Springdale Cash Dry Goods were closed for the entire day.

And, "it is not a mere empty phrase to say that Dr. Christian will be missed in Springdale".

W. C. Clack

W. C. (Bill) Clack and his wife, Arlene, and five children moved to Springdale in 1937, after having lived in Erick, Oklahoma four years. They originally came from Selmer, Tennessee, near Memphis.

Clack Family - W. C. (Bill) Clack and Arlene Clack on front row, sister of Bill on left, aunt of Arlene on right. Back row-Virginia, Gerald, Marie, Robert, Martha and sister of Arlene. Picture made about 1940.

Rev. James Clack came to Virginia from England in 1679 with his uncle Nicholas Spencer. Spencer Clack, a great grandson, was born in Virginia in 1746 and died in Sevierville, Tennessee in 1832. He was an officer in the Revolutionary War. He was a member of the committee that wrote the constitution of the State of Tennessee and was a state legislator.

Rawleigh Clack, son of Spencer, was married to Mary Randles in 1791. After her death, he married Martha Kerr in 1816. He had a total of sixteen children from the two marriages.

John Spencer Clack was a grandson of Rawleigh. He was in the Civil War, was wounded at Gettysburg and taken prisoner and later sent west to fight the Indians. The family had no word all that time and assumed he was dead. When he came home, his wife, Nancy Susan Boshart, was so shocked she fainted. His son, William Rick Clack, was born in 1854 and married Indiana McGee. He later died in Tennessee in 1932. Bill Clack was one of six children of William and Indiana.

Bill Clack's children are Martha, born 1919, Robert, born 1921, Marie, born 1922, Gerald, born 1924, and Virginia, born 1926. Martha married Fred Norton and has three children, Bill,

Billie Clark

I was born on July 14, 1915 at the home of my parents, Durham, Arkansas (Washington County), the eldest son of and second child of Elbert Clark and Irma McKee Clark, I grew up on the farm where I was born, attended and graduated from the Durham School. We had a large farm on White River, and much of my younger years were spent helping my father and mother with farm chores. For the pastime, I loved to swim and fish in the White River. During the Depression years we hunted for wild game to help feed the family. A special friend, Bill Ratliff spent much time fishing, hunting and swimming with me. In my teen years I spent much time going to Hazel Valley to church and dating some of the pretty girls that lived up there. On my trip home, from a date there, I met up with a polecat. He became excited and sprayed my Sunday Go To Meeting Clothing. I did everything to rid the clothing of the odor, but nothing seemed to remove the stench, so I finally buried them in the vegetable garden. I remember when I had the measles and my five brothers and sisters had them at the same time.

After graduation from Durham High School, I moved to Muskogee, Oklahoma and worked there for awhile, then returned to Fayetteville and went to work for Campbells Grocery Store where I learned the meat cutter's trade.

About 1942 I attended aircraft school in Tulsa, Oklahoma. After that I returned to Fayetteville and married Dorothy Griffin in 1943. By that time I was drafted into the U. S. Army, received training at Camp Gruber near Muskogee, Oklahoma. After training, I was shipped to New York for embarkation to Europe to serve in combat duty. I served in Italy for about two years. After the war ended, I was sent home for discharge, attaining the rank of Sergeant in the Medical Corps. After discharge from the service, I returned to Fayetteville and attended Fayetteville Business College on Dickson Street and worked as a butcher for Gray's Grocery Store. In 1947 I moved to Stockton, California. Dorothy and I resided at 40 East Harper Street in Stockton for almost 40 years. I am now a retired meat cutter, I still like to visit and have visited my parents and relatives and friends in Arkansas many times. I still like to swim and fish on the farm where I grew up. All of my brothers and sisters are still living. My sister, Vera Kelber lives here in Stockton, California. My sister, Velma Williams lives near Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. My sister, Mary Todd lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas. My brother, Carl lives in Fayetteville, Arkansas. My brother, Rollin (Pete) Clark still resides on the family farm near Durham, Arkansas.

Carl Gaston Clark

Carl Gaston Clark was born April 8, 1919 to Elbert and Irma McKee. He was born at Durham, Arkansas, outside of Elkins. He was one of six children. His brothers were Billie Clark (born July 14, 1915 - now of Stockton, California), and Rollen Clark (born October 14, 1926 - now of Elkins, Arkansas). His sisters were Vera Kelber of Stockton, California; Velma Williams (born December 30 - now of Rolla, Missouri) and Mary Todd (born January 14, 1924 - now of Fayetteville, Missouri). Carl attended school at Durham grades one through twelve. The school was a one room building that still stands. After he finished high school, Carl was drafted into the army and served 3-1/2 years. He was injured and came back to the states. Soon after he met my mother, Jo Dean Downum of Springdale. Mother was working at Levi Strauss with Mary, Carl's sister. Mary took Jo Dean to a pie supper and here she met my dad. They were married on November 23, 1946. She was about 18. Carl was around 28. Carl went to business school for awhile. He drove a cab for awhile also. On April 23, 1956 a son was born to Carl and Jo Dean. Sadly, the child did not live. He was named David and is buried at McCord Cemetery. On March 12, a daughter, Cheri Lynn was born. Carl also worked for Montgomery Ward's for awhile and a couple of other places. He retired from Jones Oldsmobile after being there 15 years. Cheri Lynn graduated from the Fayetteville Public Schools in 1977, the University of Arkansas in 1985 and is employed by Southwestern Telephone Company. She is married to David Allen Coley the son of Allen Coley (died in 1985) and Sherry Cheek Coley Rochester of Ozark. David was born August 25, 1957. David and Cheri were married on September 1, 1985. Carl stays busier now than when he was working. He drives a mail truck for Pat Salmon of Little Rock, Arkansas, and when they can catch him, he drives for Hertz Rent-a-car. He's a great gardener, a fisherman and a good Daddy.

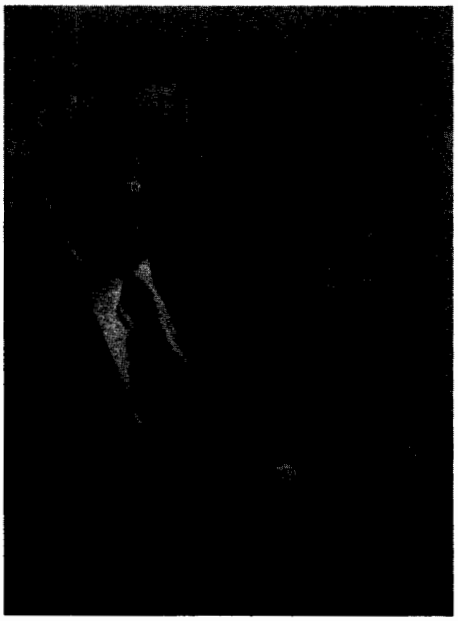
Irma McKee Clark

She was born December 8, 1892 at Brannon Mountain Community. She was the oldest child of Samuel and Mary Brannon McKee. Samuel was born in Missouri on June 5, 1863. Mary was born October 30, 1869 at Health, Arkansas (now known as Brannon Mountain-near Elkins). She was one of fourteen children born to John S. and Elizabeth Carlisle. John established the first post office at Health. Irma had lots of brothers and sisters: Berneice Brown, Stockton, California, died 1985; Bertha Stewart, Elkins, Arkansas, born November 29, 1894; Paul McKee, Fayetteville, Arkansas, born February 17, 1897; Silva McKee, Modesto, California; Ruth Hammond, Fayetteville, Arkansas, born January 24, 1900; Eula Adams, San Andreas, California, born June 1, 1902; Teddy McKee, born January 1, 1904, died July 15, 1905 buried at Brannon Mountain.

Mary died in 1906 and is buried at Brannon Mountain Cemetery. Samuel remarried in 1913 to Ermal Akers. Two children resulted from this marriage: Bill Dave McKee, Downey, California and Naomi Fagundes, Hayward, California. Later Ermal left Samuel, remarried and died in California. Samuel died on September 28, 1948 at the Fayetteville City Hospital. He was 85 years old. He is buried at Brannon.



Irma McKee Clark and Elbert Clark about 1950.

The McKees went to church every chance they got - this is where Irma met my grandfather, Elbert Clark. Grandmother was dating a guy named Manford but Elbert wooed her away. They were married on June 8, 1912. She was 20, he was 30. Elbert was born February 12, 1882 at Durham, Arkansas, the son of William and Dollie A. White Clark. Dollie's parents were John and Mary Meloy, they were both born in Tennessee and were of the early settlers in the upper White River Valley. Elbert had one brother, Will A., deceased and two sisters; Nora Lewis Guntery, buried in Corning, California and Mary Selina Vance, born 1877, died January 6, 1932 and is buried at McCord Cemetery.

After Irma and Elbert's marriage, they moved into a house on Highway 16 east of Durham. Elbert's mother, Dollie lived with them. Elbert's father had died in 1906 of heart failure. The couple's first child was a girl, Vera Kelber of Stockton, California. Vera was soon followed by Billie (born July 14, 1915 - now of Stockton, California); Carl Gaston (born April 8, 1919 - now of Fayetteville, Arkansas); Velma Williams (born December 30, 1920 - now of Rolla, Missouri). At this point the family moved into a house about a hundred yards down the road, minus Dollie. Here Rollen (born October 14, 1926 - now of Durham, Arkansas and Mary Todd (born January 14, 1924 - now of Fayetteville, Arkansas) were born. Dollie died on January 14, 1933 of pneumonia. She is buried at McCord Cemetery.

The Clark children grew up and went their own ways. in 1955 on June 1, Elbert had stroke and passed away. Rollen was in the army in Japan at the time. He was brought home where he remained with Irma until her death on May 28, 1985 of a stroke. At the time of her death, all of her brothers and sisters were alive. She was also survived by her children and five grandchildren: Judy Peterson of Sebastopol, California; Ron Williams of Coco Beach, Florida; Cheri Coley of Fayetteville, Arkansas; Terry Todd of Springdale, Arkansas; Janice Galgiani of Stockton, California. She also had five great grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. She was laid to rest next to Elbert at McCord. She was 93 years old.

John Clark

The earliest recorded Clark was John b. 1800 in Tennessee. He married Martha Hunter and they moved to Greene County, Arkansas. Their son John "Jarvey" Clark Jr., b. 1834, married Mary Ann Smelser and their seventh child was Joseph Henry Clark b. 1867. Not much is really known about these people, except that they were God-fearin' simple folk, not taken to drinking or swearing.

Joseph Henry Clark grew up in the Greene County area of Arkansas. He met and married Zeulia Cordelia Hall, whose family history is written up in great detail in the "History of the Life of Armina Lavonia Eubanks Futrell Hall". This history includes the fact that Arkansas Governor Futrell was Zeulia Cordelia Hall's half-brother, and for this reason the University of Arkansas Special Collections Section of the Library holds a copy of that history. There is also a copy at the Fayetteville City Library.

Zeulia and Joseph Clark began their family in Greene County, then travelled to Texas, then to Mena, Arkansas, and then into Washington County in 1910 where their seventh child was born near the train station in Springdale. Joe soon gave up "trying to farm on rocks" and they moved on again.

Later, some of their children settled in Washington County. Their oldest child, Sylvia Exer b. 1896, married Thomas Elihu Morrow, and they were in and out of Washington County many times, raising the last few of their nine children here. Sylvia and Tom's children were: (1) Durward Clark b. 1916 m. Lavina Bookout of Johnson; had Katrina 1952 and Cynthia (by adoption) 1955. All stayed in Washington County. (2) Douglas Elton b. 1917 (3) Golvia Augusta Tomazine b. 1919 (4) Graydon Samuel b. 1921 (5) Carmyn Gem b. 1923 m. Floyd Pitts (see Pitts) had Gemma Denele 1948, m. Steve Campbell - (see Campbell and Rutherford-Campbell). Demara Lisa (1952, m. Marvin Banks, had Summer Sonnet 1983) now of Fayetteville. Thomas Winter (1956), Autumn Samuel (1958), and Peri Scarlett (1967). Carmyn and Floyd reside in Fayetteville. (6) Clowyn Joy b. 1925, (7) Una May b. 1928, (8) Sula Jo b. 1932 m. Max Leroy Traphagen of Fayetteville, had Joe Max (1951, m. Zoe Tisdale, had Max Lazer 1985), Garry Kip (1955) (resides in Fayetteville), Lindsay Ky (1956) and Tanya Malia (1957). Sula and Max reside in Fayetteville. (9) Thurston b. 1935 had Gregory Allen (1957) and Phillip Omar (1959) by Pat Tedford of Fayetteville. Then had Graydon Dion (1967), Darren Christopher (1969) and Tyler Matthew (1973) by Karen Witherspoon of Prairie Grove. Thurston and Karen reside near Prairie Grove.

Zeulia and Joseph Clark's next child Marvin Randolph stayed in Greene County. Their third child, Golvia Ursal, settled in Washington County with her husband Dotson Garton Lewis. Their children were: (1) Dotson G. Lewis Jr. b. 1928 (2) Tryon Clark b. 1939 m. Corinne Stevens of Fayetteville, had Rosanna Lynn (1955) and Tryon Clark II (1957), (3) Evelyn Grace b. 1934 m. Jim Bryant of Fayetteville, had Linda Beth (1962 m. Michael Masterson and had Heather 1982 and Courtney 1984), Laura Lee(1966) Eva Grace (1968) and James "Jimmy" Dotson (1969). (These families reside in Washington County.) and (4) Zahn Alfred b. 1936 m. Shirley Smith of Farmington, had Kevin Zahn (1957) and Joey Alfred (1959) (m. Laura Siegal, had Amanda Barby 1978 and Mary Jill 1980).

Zeulia and Joseph's next six children settled elsewhere, but their tenth child, Joseph Hall b. 1921, lives in Fayetteville. He and his wife Mary Ellen Murphy had Joe Murphy (1949, m. Laura Selph had Joey by birth and Tevian by marriage), John Marion (1952), Sarah Ellen (1954), Mark Allen (1956) and Benjamin Hall (1958).

John H. Clark

My mother, Martha Elizabeth Clark, was the daughter of John Holcomb and Julia Ann Smith Clark. She was born at Goshen, Arkansas April 22, 1880 and died March 23, 1968. She grew up at Goshen, the oldest daughter in a large family. Being the oldest daughter, she began to teach school when she was quite young. However, the schools were near to her parents' house, and she went back home each weekend to help with housework always needed by a large family. Despite the lack of formal training, even through high school level, with study and perseverance, young people could, and did, become very good teachers in the days when my parents taught in small country schools.

John Holcomb Clark/ Goshen P. O. and General Store about 1900.

Martha Elizabeth Clark's father, John H., was the son of B. F. Clark, a prominent citizen of Goshen Township in Washington County. He was born in Conway County, Arkansas April 1, 1834 and was the son of Norris and Lucinda Jones Clark. He was the first child of his parents and he lived at home until he was about 21 years old. Then he began to farm near Goshen, Arkansas close to his parents' house on his own 140 acre farm.

He married Miss Martha A. Counts on March 22, 1855. She was born October 13, 1838 in Madison County, Arkansas. They had twelve children. Two of their children died quite young: John H., George H., (who died in early manhood), William N., Benjamin F. Jr., Henry M., Ashley, Lawson, Eliza J., Mary and Sarah and the two babies who died unnamed.

B. F. Clark was always a firm believer in politics. He was in the Confederate service for four years. He was wounded in the right leg and carried the ball in his leg for six months. He received the wound at Fayetteville and was crippled for the rest of his life.

The father of B. F. (Benjamin Franklin) Clark was Norris Clark, who was born in Tennessee August 22, 1809. He grew to manhood within thirty miles of Nashville, Tennessee. Then he came west to Conway County, Arkansas when he was a young man.

In Conway County, he met and married Lucinda Jones who was born in Kentucky in 1811. Norris Clark died on his old homestead near Goshen December 29, 1869. Lucinda died at the same homestead December 9, 1873.

The nine children of Norris and Lucinda Jones Clark were all born on the old homestead about one mile south of Goshen: Susan H., wife of Levi Phillips; Polly, Nimrod (both died young), John J., Elizabeth M., widow of Charles Phillips; Richard M., Norris (died young) and Ellery W.

My grandfather, John H. Clark, son of Benjamin Franklin, was a farmer but also had a general store for many years, and he was the Postmaster. He was appointed January 28, 1889 and continued to serve for more than thirty years with the post office in his store building.

Julia Ann Smith and John H. Clark were the parents of nine children. There were two who died in childhood. They were Homer M. who died in 1884 at the age of three years, and Etta Lavada who died in 1889 at the age of eleven years. The other sons and daughters were: Howard Andrew, who was born November 13, 1876 and died January 14, 1970; he married Eliza Sharp, born March 24, 1879 and died May 25, 1969; Martha Elizabeth, born April 22, 1880 and died March 23, 1968; she married George Winfield Hayes, born January 14, 1867 and died August 31, 1932; Elmer born August 22, 1884 and died January 25, 1966; he married Pearl Neill, born November 6, 1888 and died May 17, 1956; Richard A. born January 12, 1887 and died April 17, 1982 married Lena Roberts, born October 4, 1888 and died April 12, 1959; Lina Pearl, born December 6, 1889 and married Alva J. Rush, born November 25, 1889 and died December 25, 1981; Lake Erie, born June 25, 1894 and died February 1, 1932 and Carolyn Faye, born January 29, 1896. John H. Clark was born in 1860 and died September 23, 1930. Julia Ann Smith Clark died May 21, 1925. Both Julia Ann and John H. Clark are buried in the Smith Family Cemetery on Richland Creek near Goshen.

Many years ago on March 30, 1911, John H. and Julia Ann Clark gave one-half acre, more or less, for school or church purposes. Richland School was built on that land and their younger children attended that school for a few early years.

Julia Ann Smith Clark

One of the leading citizens of Richland Township was Captain David Tucker Smith — known familiarly as Captain Tuck Smith.

Mrs. Julia Ann Smith Clark - about 1920

He was born in Henderson County, West Tennessee, November 7, 1824.

Captain Smith's parents, Merideth and Elizabeth Tucker Smith were both born in North Carolina. Their families moved to Tennessee when they were children. After living in Tennessee and growing up, they were married and lived in West Tennessee for a few years. Later, they moved to Bedford County, Tennessee, where they both died in 1853. He died at the age of 63, and there were only a few months difference in their ages.

Merideth Tucker was a blacksmith all of his life. He was a natural mechanic who could make almost anything from steel or iron. He made money rapidly but spent it freely. He was a soldier in The War of 1812.

Merideth and Elizabeth Tucker Smith were parents of eight children. David Tucker Smith was their youngest child. He lived at home and learned his father's trade until about 1850.

Then he moved to Arkansas and lived in Madison County near Huntsville for a few years.

Then he moved to Richland Township, Washington County, and worked at his blacksmith trade for several years and also farmed.

Early in 1861, he enlisted in Captain S. Inyard's Company, for two years as Home Guards. This company was later known as Captain Palmer's Company. They first went out as State Troops but were later Home Guards.

For the last two years of the Civil War, David Tucker Smith was Captain of a company which carried his name. It was in Colonel Brooks' Regiment.

Captain Smith was in many battles and numerous skirmishes. He was wounded twice by bursting shells: Once in the thigh and once below the knee. Two days later, he was back in service and in another battle.

Captain David Tucker Smith was married to Miss Elizabeth Trollinger, a native of Bedford County, Tennessee on June 5, 1844. She was born October 5, 1824, the daughter of John Trollinger. Their large family of children were: twins: Joseph M. and Andrew J. born February 25, 1845; Rebecca Jane, born July 13, 1847, married Willoughby Duncan; George W. born July 15, 1849; Pleasant Franklin born July 18, 1853; Daniel F., born March 21, 1855; Julia Ann, born April 2, 1857 married John H. Clark (my grandmother and grandfather); Birdine Tennessee, born April 7, married Charles Gordon; Jefferson Davis, born April 18, 1863; Nancy J., born May 18, 1866 married Hugh Bishop; Susan E., born November 9, 1868. Two little girls died, one at age one and the other at nine years old.

Families at that time seemed always to have had many children and frequently lost at least two babies in death. We are not always aware of the advantages of our increased medical knowledge.

My mother, Martha Elizabeth Clark Hayes, was the granddaughter of two dedicated early families who were strong Democrats and were totally interested in their new homes.

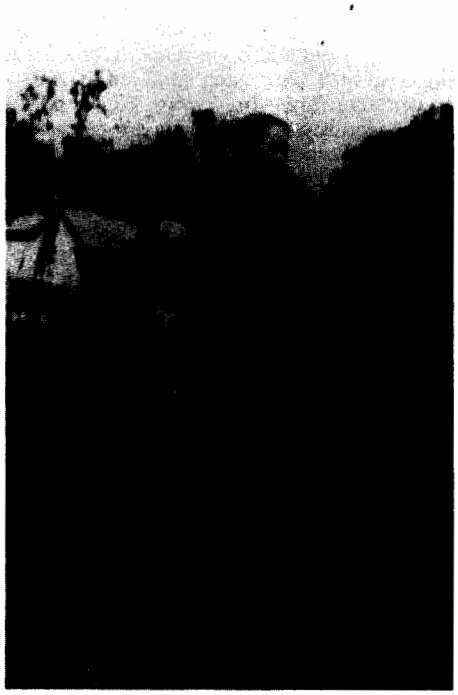
Le Roy Clark

Le Roy, son of Mary Hash Clark and Cyrus Clark was born on April 21, 1848. He and Mary Jones, born June 30, 1857, were married about 1876. His sister, Viola and Clint Trammel were married about the same time. His brother, Alonzo, joined other family members in California to escape the Civil War. Because Le Roy was big for his age of thirteen, Mary hid him when the soldiers came through the valley.



Lee and Molly Jones Clark

The Clark farm was acquired by Mary Polly, who bought sections of land from the other heirs of Alvin Hash. He came to Arkansas about 1836, and settled in the Richland View Township. Mary told one of her great-granddaughters that she could not figure her interest with a pencil but said, pointing to her head, "I pretty well had it figured out up here".

When Le Roy and Viola were married, the farm was divided again as evenly as possible. Mary made her home with Viola and Clint. Le Roy and Mary built a T style house with a wide hall down the center and rooms on either side.

Le Roy, a robust heavy-set, stubborn man, was an excellent farmer. Mary was a quiet, kind, loving wife. It was said Mary knew how to handle Le Roy. Their three children were Betty, Silas and Eunice.

Betty married Ed Dutton. Margaret and Oren were their children. Oren went to El Segundo to live. Betty, Ed and Margaret are buried in the Goshen Cemetery.

Silas married Rachel Everett on November 1, 1903. Their five children were Ezra, Emele, Clifford, Alvin and Mary Frances. Eunice married Herbert McMinn, a short time before her mother's death.

Mary died on June 13, 1913. It was her wish that Silas get the home place. Le Roy made his home there with Silas' family. With Mary gone, this was an unhappy time for him. Later, when Eunice's husband left her and their two small boys, Arliss and Armen, her father went to live with her to help with the boys and farm work. Since Eunice's personality was similar to their mother's, Le Roy was happier there. He lived there until his death on January 13, 1929. Le Roy and Mary are buried in Tuttle Cemetery, about three miles south of the Clark farm.

Eunice and Armen went with Arliss' family to Norwalk, California.

World War I brought prosperity to the farmers. Silas was anxious to buy a car. Rachel insisted that there was no way they were walking out of an old house to get into a new car. Eric Bodine, a local carpenter who had immigrated from Sweden, was called in to talk about building the new house. After studying the floor plan, he informed them a roof could not be put on that house. The family moved into the new house on Thanksgiving Day in 1918. Rachel said she had a lot to be thankful for; Silas did also, for he went to Fayetteville to have Abshier-Bryan order a Ford touring car.

Mary Polly went to live with the seven grandchildren after Clint and Viola died. She was moved in a wagon with her backed rocking chair and humped back trunk from one to another, staying a month with each grandchild. She was easily pleased and never interfered in family life. On Sunday, she dressed in her grey woolsey dress, a white apron, a white cap and her best button shoes. That is the way she kept the Sabbath. She would ask someone to read letters written years before by her sister Carolyn. She kept these letters with her Bible and other possessions in the humped back trunk. She died on December 10, 1921, at the age of ninety-four.

After fifty years of marriage, Rachel and Silas Clark celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary, which was hosted by their children and families.

Family members continuing to live in Washington County from 1836 - 1987: Clifton Boyd Colwell, born January 2, 1984, son of Wade Clark Colwell born June 11, 1961, son of Philip Jerome Colwell born January 16, 1933, son of Emele (Colwell) Laner born November 9, 1906, daughter of Silas Clark born August 17, 1881, son of Le Roy Clark born April 21, 1848, son of Mary Polly Hash Clark born January 13, 1827, daughter of Alvin Hash born March 18, 1800.

The last of the land settled by Alvin Hash in 1836, the Silas Clark farm, was sold in 1971, because Ezra, the only farmer in the family, was terminally ill at that time.

Silas Clark died August 12, 1958. Rachel Clark died on January 26, 1970. Ezra Clark died on July 3, 1971. Their graves are in the Buckeye Cemetery, three miles east of Goshen, Arkansas, off Highway 45.

Mary (Polly) Hash Clark

Mary (Polly) Hash Clark was born January 13, 1827 in Sangamon County, Illinois, the daughter of Alvin and Esther Drake Hash. (Esther was the daughter of Jacob Drake).

About 1836 Alvin and Esther Hash came to northwest Arkansas, Washington County, with their family—Salina, Livonia, Mary (Polly), Fielding, Phoebe, Martha, and the twins, Caroline and Emeline — five more children were born to them after they came to Arkansas, Susan, Alvin C., Viola, Benjamin F. and Esther E.

Viola was born in 1839 and died in 1844 the same night that Alvin Hash, died from typhoid fever.

When Alvin and Esther came to Arkansas they settled directly west of the Richland View School house. There was no school house there when they came. Many years later the first school was built one half mile west of the present site. Someone called the place "Frog Level", the name stuck. Many people recall the name though they remember the later building.

Silas and Rachel (Parents) Left - Ezra; Right - Emily

Mary "Polly" Hash Clark

About 1846 Mary (Polly) married Cyrus Clark, born September 7, 1823, Ross County, Ohio. The brother of Ambrose Clark, who married Salina Hash and Ezra Clark who married Livonia Hash, Polly's sisters.

Polly and Cyrus had five children, Alonzo, Le Roy, Alvin, Viola, Cecil and Ezra. Alvin and Ezra died as infants.

Polly and Cyrus took over the farm at Richland View. Esther and the younger children lived a short distance northwest, near a spring, on what became the Silas Clark Farm.

Cyrus Clark died December 11, 1859. Said to have died from cramp colic. His death was sudden and unexpected this left Polly alone during the Civil War. Like most of Alvin Hash's children she was opposed to slavery. Much of Washington County felt that way too, so the area was a prime target for, "Bushwhackers". Polly sent Alonzo to California to live with Emeline and Caroline. Le Roy was not old enough to be in the army. She kept him hid. She took Le Roy and Viola to Kansas for a time. She and some other families went from Arkansas, driving oxen, whipping with out mercy, trying to stay ahead of some freight wagons so no one would know how defenseless their group was.

Polly said, "during the war, it was so cold one winter, the ice on White River was thick enough for ten soldiers to cross with their heavy artillery wagons", she also said, "I washed my clothes and hung them across the beam of my loom. They froze there and did not thaw out for six weeks", Tucker Smith's men were camped near Sander's Mill. She said, "They would take the last mess of flour or any food I had, they would drive off my cattle". "I buried my salt".

One time, she, a sister and a neighbor woman drove oxen to Missouri to buy salt. They could buy only a peck each when they got there.

She spun wool and wove some blankets. She crawled under the bed, lifted up a loose board and pushed them under the floor. When the soldiers came, one of them found the loose board and the blankets. She had not washed them, and they smelled like a sheep, he just pushed them back under the floor.

After the peace came, things slowly returned to normal. About 1876 Viola married Clint Trammel and Le Roy married Mary Jones. Alonzo stayed in California. He married Hattie Peck, the farm was divided between Viola and Le Roy.

Polly made her home with Viola and Clint. There was an agreement between Le Roy, Clint and Polly. She was to have her own cow and each of them were to give her a load of corn at harvest.

Viola and Clint had five children. Elery born 1878, Cyrus born 1880, Oren died as a small child. Pearl born 1888, Hosea born 1891.

Polly was a spunky woman who at a rather advanced age went to California by train. She took her feather bed with her in a big wooden box. She visited her son Alonzo, her sisters Emeline and Caroline and her brother Alvin C. She stayed a year or so and came back to Arkansas bringing her feather bed in the same big box.

My mother, Pearl lived in the family with Polly from the time she was born until her marriage to Harve Lee Ferguson, January 23, 1910. The large part of this story is from her memories.

Clint Trammel died December 1915 and Viola died July 1916. Polly was left without a home at the age of 89. The solution was to have her live with her seven grandchildren one month each in turn.

She died at the age of 94 at Eunice McMinn's. I remember her coffin was made of walnut and cherry lumber by a local carpenter. It was lined with white cotton cloth by her request.

We made the journey, about ten miles, by wagon and team. Her body was carried in a wagon also. It was a cold cloudy December day with a few snow flakes falling. It was a fitting tribute to one who had lived so simply and so long. Her grave was the last one made in the old Hash Cemetery.

Mary Hash Clark

Mary (Polly) Hash, daughter of Alvin and Esther Drake Hash, was born in Sangamon County, Illinois, January 13, 1827. After coming with her family to Washington County, Arkansas, she married Cyrus Clark, born September 7, 1823, Ohio. The son of John and Nancy Humes Clark and believed to be a brother of Ambrose and Ezra Clark who married Salina and Livonia Hash, Mary's sisters.

Cyrus and Polly lived for a time near War Eagle Mills, then purchased the Alvin Hash Farm and lived there. They had five children, two of whom died in infancy. The living children are: Leroy, ca. 1848, married Molly (Mary) Jones. They lived in Washington County, Arkansas. Viola Cecil, born February 20, 1856, died July 1916, married Edward Clint Trammel. They lived in Washington County, Arkansas. Alonzo C., oldest child, married Mrs. Hattie Peck. They lived in California.

Cyrus died near Huntsville, Arkansas, December 11, 1859, said to have died from cramp colic (appendicitus) Polly had quite an experience during the Civil War; like most of Alvin Hash's children, she was opposed to slavery and was a supporter of the Union. Much of Washington County felt that way too, and so the area was a prime target for, "bushwhackers." For a time during the war, Polly took her children to Kansas for safety.

In her old age, Polly lived with her daughter Viola Trammel, and after Viola's death, she lived with her grandchildren. She was a spunky woman who, at a rather advanced age, went by train to California to visit her son, taking her feather bed along with her. She did not stay long and came back bringing her feather bed.

She died at age 94, December 10, 1921, and was the last person to be buried in the old Hash Cemetery.

Her great granddaughter, Nina Ferguson, a child at the time, remembers that her coffin was made of walnut lumber by a local carpenter. It was lined with white cottom cloth as she had requested. We made the journey by wagon and team, although we had automobiles at the time. It was a cold cloudy day with a few snow flakes falling. It was a fitting tribute to one who had lived so simply and so long.

Rollin (Pete) Clark

I was born at the home of my parents, Irma McKee Clark and Elbert Clark on October 14, 1926, the youngest of six children.

I grew up on my parents farm, near Durham, Arkansas in Washington County, attended school at Durham and graduated from the Elkins High School, was drafted into the U. S. Army and served combat duty in Korea. After discharge I came home to run my parents' farm. My mother and I ran the farm after my father died. I now reside at the family farm, as my mother died when she was 93 years of age. I have added some acreage to the family farm where my grandfather and my father raised their families.

By: Mary Clark Todd

John Sumner Clary

My 3rd great-grandfather was John Sumner Clary, who was born 23 October 1800 somewhere in Tennessee. We are not sure who his parents were, but Vera Abbie (Mitchell) Foster my cousin, received her information from J. Aaron Edens her cousin who was a great-grandson of John Sumner Clary, saying that his father was also named John, but there is no proof of this at this time. But there is a theory that John Sumner's father's name was William. Also from the same source, we are told by family tradition, that John Sumner's mother lived to be about 107 years old. Could she have been the same person, Clarrissa Clerry, found in the 1840 and 1850 census for Washington County, Arkansas. For I cannot find her after 1850.

A family legend says that three Clary brothers along with two of their wives, were all hung, probably during the Civil War, by what the family calls "bushwhackers". These could have been younger brothers of John Sumner Clary.

It appears that John Sumner, was the oldest child of his parents, for I know for sure that these were some of his younger brothers; William J. Ransom P. and Gillington Carrol, for these could have been other younger brothers and sisters; Elijah C., Mary (Clary) Womac, Julia Ann (Clary) Carter, and Blueford Lawrence Clary, for they were all born in Tennessee.

Both John Sumner and William J. Clary, were married on 4 July 1822, by the same minister at Lawrence County, Alabama. John Sumner's oldest child and son Ransom Hamilton, was also born in Alabama, but the next five children were born in Washington County, Arkansas.

Ransom Hamilton Clary's great-grandchildren, Mildred Lucille (Clary) Clark and Obediah Beene Jr., tell the story that their great-grandfather Ransom, was killed during the Civil War, over a new saddle by people who were pillaging the area, before the birth of Joseph Calvin Clary, the youngest child of Ransom Hamilton Clary. After the birth of Joseph Calvin, and as an adult, he went looking for his father's killer, whom he did find. At on time Joseph Calvin Clary, had been a deputy U. S. Marshall.

A family Bible of John Sumner Clary, was printed in 1825, and was bought in 1827 for one dollar. It was bought at Bolivia, (probably Bolivar, Tennessee), and is still in our family today. John Sumner, also wrote 28 songs, the last song he wrote for his own funeral. Also with this Bible, is a poem written on 2 January 1874, written by John Sumner's younger brother William J., to James Reed Clary and his wife Sophronia A. (West) Clary, James Reed being the second child and second son of John Sumner. This poem of William J. Clary, to his nephew and his wife, was signed "Uncle Billy". Washington County records also show that, John Sumner Clary, was a deacon in the Regular Baptist Church, called the "Bethlehem Church" in Washington County.

The Arkansas Tax List for 1830 to 1840, shows many of my Clary families in Washington County, but none of them are to be found before 1830. For the 7th child of the eleven children of John Sumner and Sarah (Reed) Clary, was their daughter Eliza Marelda (Clary) Cathey, who was born 15 June 1833 in Washington County, Arkansas. Child 7 through 11, were all born in Washington County. (See the Benton County history book, that is coming out soon, regarding my Cathey family.) For two Clary daughters of John Sumner and Sarah (Reed) Clary, married two Cathey brothers, sons of my 3rd great-grandfather George Wiley Cathey Sr. and his wife Jane, for they and their children had lived in both Benton and Washington Counties.

After John Sumner Clary and his family left Arkansas, they settled in what became Bell County, Texas, for many of my family lived in Bell County, as does some of the present generation today.

I have a picture of John Sumner's two youngest sons, Steven Stricklin and John Poston Clary, for they look to be young men in their 20s or 30s when the picture was taken, unless I am wrong. For both of these brothers were shown as Texas Rangers for the 1860 census for Bell County, Texas. In my family, my second cousin Dorothe (Edwards) Bailey, has a picture, which we believe to be of my 2nd great-grandmother Martha Malvina (Clary) Cathey, a younger sister of Steven S. and John P. Clary, but this picture is not in as good shape as her brother's picture.

My 2nd great-grandmother Martha Malvina (Clary) Cathey, died the 30th of October 1867, and is buried at Rhea's Mill, for this data comes from the family Bible of William Jackson Cathey, my 2nd great-grandfather, for maybe Martha, might have been buried in the same cemetery as was Fayetteville's first mayor P. V. Rhea. Martha, was the first of three wives of William Jackson Cathey, for his 2nd and 3rd wives were the Spears sisters; Anna and Nancy Caroline, whose family were living at Marrs Hill Township, Washington County, but not until 1870. For Marrs Hill Township, was the same location where both my Cathey and Clary families had lived at during the 1850s. For all three of these families had lived in Tennessee before coming to Arkansas.

William Price Clary

William Price Clary, son of John and Susannah Price Clary, was born about 1800 in Tennessee, one of seven children. The family moved to Bond County, Illinois in 1818 where William met and married Sarah Greene, the daughter of James and Sarah Hicks Greene, on January 27, 1819. William resided with his family in Clary's Grove, Illinois where he ran Clary's Grocery. He served in the Black Hawk War under the command of Captain Abraham Lincoln, a long-time family friend. In late 1832, William, Sarah and their six children left Illinois and traveled by covered wagon to Arkansas Territory. They lived in Benton County for awhile, but moved on to Washington County where their last five children were born. Their first child, Mary, was born in Illinois; in 1840 she married William McAdams in Washington County. Their second child, Falby, was born December 10, 1822 in Illinois; about 1841, she married John Daily. They had two children born in Missouri and two born in Arkansas where John died in 1848. Falby, then married Jacob Sinclair on November 17, 1850 in Washington County. Falby and Jacob came to Texas with William and family and had two children born there. Jacob was killed by a boar hog he owned and Falby then married Isaac Laymance in 1865. Duke K. Clevenger

Duke K. Clevenger was born in 1823 at Georgia or Jefferson County, Tennessee. His wife, Nancy Jane Travis, was born in 1826, at Jefferson County, Tennessee. They were married September 6, 1844 in Jefferson County, Tennessee. Duke's parents were Isaac Clevenger, born 1780-90 in Virginia and Lavina, born in Missouri. Duke's occupation was a blacksmith and he and Nancy had eight children in Tennessee: Mary E., William N., Harriet, George, Debbie, Delia, James Andrew and Emmit. Nancy was buried in Bolivar, Missouri about 1870. Duke's daughter, Delia married William Taylor Howell in Huntsville, Arkansas March 17, 1878. Duke's son, George, married Sallie Foust in Farmington, Washington County, Arkansas March 9, 1883. Duke married his second wife, Mary Ann (Stone) Jackson, in Farmington August 20, 1883. James Andrew Clevenger, born December 30, 1866 married his step-mother's daughter, Sarah "Cora" Elizabeth Jackson, born December 27, 1873 about 1887. James and Cora lived near Farmington on a place called "The Company Farm". Their crops were apples, cane and molasses. James could not read or write, but Cora could so she taught him to read a little and to write his name. The family attended Bethel Grove Baptist Church and the children went to Bethel Grove School. James and Cora had eleven children in Farmington between 1888 and 1912: Sidney Frank died in Sand Springs, Oklahoma; Julie Mae died in California; Minnie Lee died in Miami, Oklahoma; Emma Mary died in Greenly, Colorado; Clifford William married Katie Thurman, had ten children and lives in Sun Rise Manor, Fayetteville; Della Loree lives in Oklahoma; James Steven lives in California; Paul Beaurett is dead and Lee Collin lives in California.

Ethel Bertha, born July 2, 1903 married James Baird Cook, October 30, 1920 at the Muskogee County, Oklahoma Courthouse. Ethel had gone to Oklahoma to visit her sister, Emma. Jim Cook followed her there in his pickup and proposed to her. She accepted and they lived in Oklahoma for awhile, then moved back to Farmington. Ethel and Jim had six children: Collin Leroy Cook, now living in Prairie Grove, married Frances Keeling. Jimmie Leon Cook, born January 27, 1945 married Shirley. They live in Lawrenceville, Georgia and have three daughters, Jacquee, Jamie and Jerrie. Collin Leroy then married Helen and had Carol, Chris, Ronnie and Sharlyn. Lester Claud Cook, born November 22, 1923 now lives in Joshua Tree, California. Maggie Elizabeth, born June 7, 1925 married Dail Napier and lives in Bell, California. They had one daughter, Louise, now deceased. Lucille Frances, born September 19, 1928 married Loyd Taylor Jordan and lives in Prairie Grove. Lucille owns an antique shop, "Antique Cupboard", in Prairie Grove and Loyd is retired from the postal service. They have five children: Linda Sue, born April 26, 1947 married John L. Kelley, Jr. They live in Prairie Grove and have Kendra Sue, born August 27, 1969 and Jason Scott, born December 31, 1972.

Karen Ann, born August 20, 1950 married Gerald Pershall. They live in Prairie Grove and have Stacy Resee', born May 10, 1971 and Cameron Jeryl born March 31, 1978.

Ronald Joe, born April 23, 1955 married Gail (Reaves) Shaver. They live in Springdale and have Corrina Shaver, born April 8, 1978 and Charles Taylor, born June 20, 1983.

Patricia Lynn, born March 21, 1958 married Darrell Prater. They live in Rhea's Mill Community and have Nathan Cole, born December 8, 1982 and Logan Kyle, born August 23, 1986.

Tessa Leigh, born March 1, 1963, married Blake Campbell. They live in Prairie Grove.

Earl Ray Cook, born August 15, 1935 died; July 2, 1968.

Martha Louise, born September 29, 1938 married John Max Thurman. They live in Tulsa, Oklahoma and have three children: Teresa married Charles Roberts and they have Brandon and Angela. Becky married Billy Porter and they have Jeremy and Brandice. Greg married Angie and they have one daughter, Amber.

James Andrew Clevenger died March 30, 1941, Siloam Springs, Arkansas and is buried in Farmington, Arkansas. Sarah Cora Jackson Clevenger died January 2, 1938, Siloam Springs, Arkansas and is buried beside her husband. Sarah Cora's mother, Mary Stone Jackson Clevenger, is also buried in Farmington, Arkansas.

George Cline

George Cline of Virginia (1786-1868) served as a Lieutenant of a Company of Infantry in the First Regiment, Virginia Militia, during the War of 1812. He was drafted 4 August 1814 at Stevensburg, Virginia, for six months but was honorably discharged 17 December 1814 after only four months.

After the war, George married Elizabeth Shackleford (1797-1878). She is believed to be the daughter of Benjamin Shackleford (circa 1767-1819) who moved to Jeffersonton, Culpeper County, Virginia. His parents were Colonel Lyne Shackleford and his first wife Elizabeth Taliaferro for whom Benjamin named a daughter. Colonel Shackleford was the Burgess from King and Queen and a member of the Virginia Board of War during the Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson terms as Governor.

The Clines migrated to White County, Tennessee, before 1826. The 1840 Census reveals they had one son under five years; three, between 10 and 15; two females under five; and two about 15. The 1850 Census, Prairie Township, Washington County, Arkansas, shows George Cline, a farmer with children Thomas, 22; Elizabeth and Margaret (twins), 18; Emily, 16; Martha, 14; and Amanda Wilson, 2. They attended the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. This family resided on land later sold to their son-in-law Nathan Combs who built a two-story, red brick, Italianate-trimmed farm house southeast of Fayetteville on what is now Black Oak Road (Flashback, March 1971). This property continues to be owned by the Combs family although not descendants of the Cline family.

George Cline served three terms as Representative of Washington County in the State Legislature (4th, November 1842 - February 1843; 8th, November 1850 - January 1851; and the 9th, November 1852 - January 1853). The following is from the Arkansas State Gazette and Democrat (Little Rock) 3 January 1851: Mr. Clyne (sic), of Washington, is a good honest old man, and the people of his county need not have the slightest fear that the 'orders of the day' will be neglected, whilst he has the honor of a seat in the House.

George M. (1821-1876/78), a son, married Amanda. According to the 1850 Census, John R. Wilson was living in his household. It is believed John and Amanda (listed in Father Cline's home) were relatives of the Clines and that she is the Amanda who married Samuel Wilks, died 1 June 1907, and is buried near Thomas A. and the Combs family plot. The 1860 Census indicates George M.'s children were Thomas, John, Elizabeth, Virginia, and Margaret. George M. served as County Surveyor from 1868-1872 but was unsuccessful in two later attempts for election.

The 1860 Census lists Thomas' children as John, Martha, George, and Mary. Thomas was a farmer but in the 1880s taught in one of the two first-class private schools located in the old Seminary Building in Fayetteville. Although his grave marker indicates he died 23 February 1896, Thomas (born 13 January 1827) is listed in the 1900 Census as being 73 years of age. Also, listed were Margaret, 65, his wife of 49 years and mother of 12 children—all living; daughter Maggie, 32, son Garland, 22, and daughter Jennie, 20. Other Clines living in proximity were Isaac, 22, and Marshall, 29, who were probably sons of Thomas or his brother George M.

Elizabeth (1832-1900) married Nathan Combs on 7 June 1854. They had one son—Isaac G. (1855-1925) who married Martha Cowen (1860-1940), daughter of Anthony and Georgiana (Hurt) Cowen. They had no children. Isaac was engaged in teaching, farming, and other enterprises, and was Washington County Sheriff for two terms (1888-1892).

Margaret (1832-1891) married Thomas Eldridge Featherston of Bentonville, Arkansas, on 27 August 1856. He was the son of Jesse and Lavinia (Loftin) Featherston both of Colonial ancestry.

The author of Elizabeth Cline's obituary who had known the Clines since 1846 expressed his gratitude to their encouragement and assistance to him (a poor boy) who was trying to obtain an education and employment. He also mentioned that he had never heard anyone speak an unkind word of either of them, that they won hearts to them by their liberal hospitality and gentle words, that their chief delight was in doing good and making those about them happy, and that the needy poor never left their door empty handed. They are buried in the Nathan Combs family plot, Combs Cemetery, Fayetteville, Arkansas.

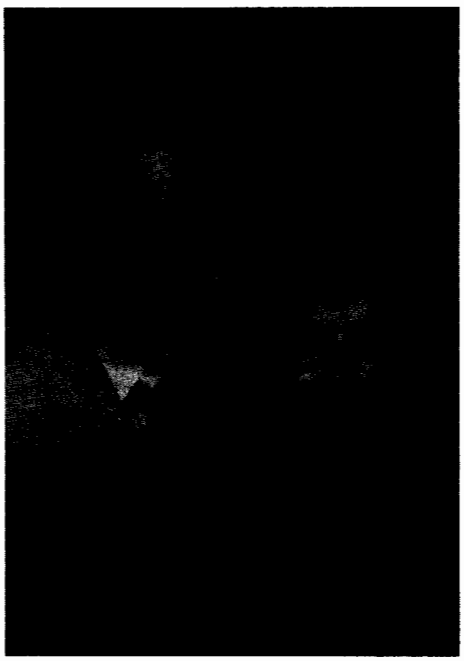
Norman R. Clizer

Norman Ralph Clizer and Gayle Caldwell Clizer moved to Springdale in 1974. Their son, James Michael Clizer and wife, Janice May Clizer, also live in Springdale. A daughter, Cheryl Lynn Esarey, lives in Greenville, North Carolina with her husband, Michael Lewis Esarey and two sons, Daniel Ryan and Keith Alan. Norman and Gayle were both born and reared in north Missouri; Norman in Savannah and Gayle in Trenton.



Norman R. Clizer and Gayle Caldwell Clizer
July, 1988

After graduation from the University of Missouri, Norm served as County Extension Agent in Trenton, Missouri where he met his bride to be, Gayle Caldwell.

Norm served his country as a officer with the 776 Field Artillery Battalion during World War II. After the war, he was Extension Poultryman for the University of Missouri for two years. In 1948-50, he was engaged in the commercial feed business with Hales and Hunter Company working in northwest Arkansas with ten dealers in Springdale, Rogers, Fayetteville, Bentonville, Prairie Grove and Elm Springs. It was then the idea of retiring in northwest Arkansas first occurred to them.

In 1951, the family moved to the Chicago area where Norm continued his association with Hales and Hunter and later Allied Mills, and Anderson Box Company in Evansville, Indiana.

Gayle and Norm moved to Springdale in 1974 and spent the next ten years as Brokers with Homestead Realty Company. In Springdale, Gayle has been active in the P. E. O. Sisterhood and an active volunteer with the Springdale Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. Norman has been active in Springdale Kiwanis, Shiloh Museum and the Arts Center of the Ozarks. Both are members of the First United Methodist Church in Springdale.

Gayle's parents, W. R. and Bernice Caldwell live in East Texas, at Mount Vernon and one sister, Billy Jean Oren, lives at Scroggins, Texas. Another sister, Mary Louise Lockee lives in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Norm's brother, Kenneth lives in Savannah, Missouri and his sister, Virginia lives in Kansas City, Missouri.

Calvin Green Cole

Calvin Green Cole, was born June 16, 1816, Sumner County, Tennessee, was the first child of his parents, John and Polly Cole. Soon after, five more children were born in either Sumner or Robertson County, Tennessee: Malinda, on February 22, 1818, Lucinda, on August 29, 1821, James Madison, on January 1, 1823, Eliza Jane, on May 11, 1825, and John Higgs, on January 24, 1827.

By 1829, the Cole family moved to Crawford County, Arkansas. They were the first white family to settle in the area now called Summers, Washington County, Arkansas. In this area, they built a one and one-half story log house. Five additional children were born to John and Polly Cole: William Alfred, July 14, 1829, Louisa Elender, March 8, 1832, George Washington, September 28, 1834, Martin Van Buren, January 2, 1837, and Joseph Larkin, March 2, 1842. Their second daughter, Lucinda, died November 15, 1830, before the family moved to Texas.

In Washington County, Arkansas, Calvin Green Cole married Elvira Ann in Illinois Township, May 19, 1836. Her parents were Noah Reeder, born 1795, died 1846 in Washington County, Arkansas and Dorcas Blair, born circa 1802, died 1887, in Bosque County, Texas.

Calvin G. Cole first owned land in 1838 in Washington County by original entry land grant. This was 33.36 acres in Section 1, Township 15N, Range 34W. This according to County tax records. By 1840, he had accumulated 232 additional acres, mostly in Section 31, T 16 R33. They moved to the Cedar Springs colony, Dallas County, Texas, prior to July 1, 1844. He was issued a land certificate by Thomas William Ward in 1850 and patented 516 acres in Dallas County. The remaining portion of the certificate, 124 acres, was patented also in Dallas County.

Calvin and Elvira Cole's children were: 1. Green A. (born 1839, Arkansas). 2. John Calvin (born 1840, Arkansas, died June 13, 1929) married Eliza Ann Smith, June 3, 1869. 3. Tennessee C. (born 1842, Arkansas) married George H. Brandenburg, December 25, 1856. 4. Emily "Emma" (born 1844 Dallas County, died 1873 Dallas) married W. L. Wood. 5. Mary Ellen Cole (born December 5, 1845, Dallas, died July 4, 1928, buried at Western Heights Cemetery, Dallas) married William Thomas Tuggle. March 17, 1865. The Tuggles had ten children: Alice Medona, Minnie Lee, Annie Florence, Ada Elizabeth, D. Wilton, Maggie Laura, William Witcher, Cora Elnora, Ella Pearl and Albert Wayne. J. W. and Cora Brannon's son William Thomas Brannon, Sr., married Emma Vernon Veach. William Thomas and Emma Brannon's daughter Mildred married John Collins. 6. James Cole (born 1847, died single and in Mexico). 7. Albert Cole (born 1849, died 1934, buried at Laurel Land Memorial Park) married Rebecca Nance, November 15, 1871. 8. Sarah E. (born 1851) married H. C. Harrell, December 24, 1868. 9. William Preston Cole (born August 8, 1852, died November 29, 1912) married Vienna Smith and later married Mary Elizabeth Sager. One line of descendants from William and Vienna Cole was daughter, Eliza Elvira Cole (born February 4, 1877 in Texas, died March 17, 1927) married William W. Ainsworth, November 25, 1894. They had a daughter, Lillie Isabella (born February 18, 1897, Graham, Texas, died August 17, 1973, in Antlers, Oklahoma) married May 3, 1914, Colonel Elmer Guthrie; their daughter, Ruby Faye Guthrie married January 4, 1941, George Washington Freels, Jr. Their son, Colonel George Freels, who married Sandra C. Wise, is the father of Mike Freels, of Centerton, Arkansas. 10. Minerva Ann (born 1855), married John Preston, October 18, 1871. They had two children, Anna Pearl Cole (married Milton Harry Moore) and George Preston.

Cole Park and Cole Avenue of present day Dallas are named in honor of the family. When one walks along Cole Avenue today, it brings to mind distant reminders of a man and his family who settled there in the 1840s. Calvin G. Cole is this writer's great, great, great, great grandfather.

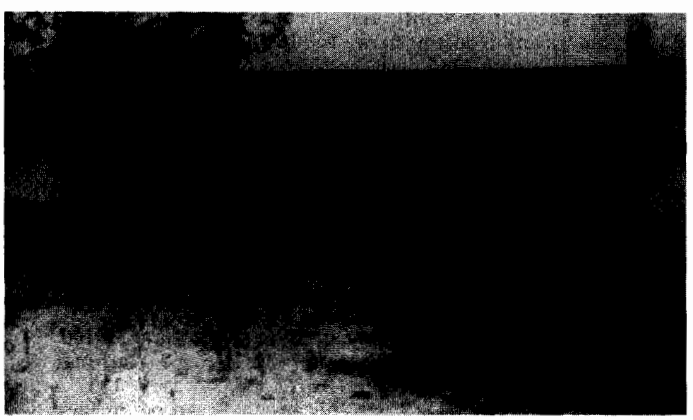
John Cole

Dr. John Cole was born 15 June 1795 in Virginia and died 15 May 1850, Dallas County, Texas. According to family records he married in Virginia, 24 June 1815, to Mary (Polly) McDonald, b. 9 June 1794, Virginia, d. 27 November 1869, Dallas County, Texas. It is believed that Polly McDonald Cole was the daughter of John McDonald who served with General Greene during the Revolutionary War.

William Alfred Cole



John and Polly Cole's log house near Summers, Arkansas. Picture shows front of house which faced north. Later frame addition shown on the left. Picture taken a short time before 1935 when the house was demolished by then owner Henry Tennant.

Family tradition is that Dr. Cole's mother was a Higgs and that Cole had three brothers named Jim, Housand and Reuben

Cole. Housand's son, John Lipscomb Cole, married Cassandra White. Dr. Cole had a sister who married a Berry and lived in Franklin County, Tennessee.

Records at the Tennessee State Archives in Nashville, Tennessee show that Dr. Cole served in the War of 1812. He enlisted as a private, 9 January 1813 in Caption Drake's Riflery and served as a sergeant, 20 June 1814 in Captain Strother's company.

John and Polly Cole were in Tennessee by 1816 when their first child, Calvin Green Cole was born 16 June 1816. Six of their children were born in Sumner County or Robertson County, Tennessee. The 1820 census record shows the family to be in Sumner County. The other five children were: Malinda, b. 22 February 1818, Lucinda, b. 29 August 1821, James Madison, b. 11 January 1823, Eliza Jane, b. 11 May 1825 and John Higgs, b. 24 January 1827 in Robertson County. They moved to Arkansas between 1827 and 1829 and are found in the 1830 census of Crawford County, Arkansas, which borders Washington County.

John and Polly Cole are thought to be the first white settlers of the Sumners community in Washington County, Arkansas. John Cole was granted a patent of land in 1836-1838 of 160 acres by Certificate of Entry from the United States Government and bought 40 acres from James Cole, believed to be his son, who acquired the 40 acres in like manner. This land is now owned by James and Frances Gibson. John Cole's house was built in 1831 on the site of Mr. Gibson's present home. It was a log house 20 feet by 24 feet and was a story and a half. On the west side the house had a large room of frame construction. A stack chimney between the rooms provided a fireplace in each. Logs for the house were hauled by ox teams from a community about eight miles north of the house. The community was called the Colony and is not far from Cincinnati, Arkansas. The logs were hand hewn with broad axes to a uniform thickness of about eight inches. Some were two feet wide, Mr. Cole's construction was durable because the log portion of the house stood firm and strong for 102 years until it was torn down in 1935 by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tennant who built a home on the site. John Cole's house could have stood another hundred years.

John Cole's house was unusual because the fireplace required logs four feet in length. The post office was established in 1838 and was called Sylva Post Office. The post office was built into the inside wall beside the front door of the house. It consisted of a four-shelved cupboard complete with door and wooden latch. Cole was the first postmaster and continued in that office as long as he remained in Summers. His successor was appointed, 29 November 1843.

The post office was preserved when the Tennant family tore down the Cole house. It can still be seen at the home of James E. Gibson. The office continued in operation until February 1857 under several postmasters. In 1857 the post office was moved to Cincinnati, Arkansas and later to Summers where it was renamed Summers Post Office for John F. Summers. (Zella Cann and James Eugene Gibson, a History of Summers Community).

John Cole also owned other tracts of land in the Summers community. In 1839, he was appointed administrator for the estate of Littleberry Cole which held 160 acres of land in Section 20 one mile south of Section 8, Township 15 North, Range 33 West in which John Cole's home was located. The record does not show the relationship, if any, between Littleberry and John nor does the record show the heirs of Littleberry Cole.

The Cole children born in Arkansas were: William Alfred, 14 July 1829; Louisa Elender, 8 March 1832; George Washington, 28 February 1834; Martin Van Buren, 2 January 1837 and Joseph Larkin, 2 March 1842 who became a Texan before he was two years old.

By 1843 the oldest son, Calvin, had married Elvira Reeder and started a family of his own and lived on a neighboring farm. The second oldest girl, Lucinda, had died 15 November 1830. John and Polly sold their land, 200 acres to Larkin Nall, and with the other nine children moved to Texas in December 1843. They settled in Nacogdoches County of the Republic of Texas on Cedar Springs Creek a mile or so from where the creek joined the Trinity River. Calvin Cole and his family left Arkansas and joined them the following year.

John Cole bought two lots in the little settlement that had started up along Cedar Springs Creek and organized a town that was also called Cedar Springs. He bought a nearby 160 acres of land from William Grigsby. The area was two or three miles north of John Bryan's trading post on the Trinity River.

Dr. Cole installed a store and pharmacy combination in a log structure in Cedar Springs and began to establish his practice of medicine. He also began farming and looking for more land. He applied for a certificate for 640 acres adjoining the 160 acres he had bought from Grigsby. He bought land from Henderson Couch who was his neighbor to the west. When Dallas County was established in 1846, after Texas had been annexed by the United States, the county included the part of Nacogdoches County that Cole, Bryan and others had chosen to settle on. When the Dallas County government was formed, John Cole, who had probably been the first doctor in the area, was chosen to be the judge of the first probate court.

John Cole died, 15 May 1850 and was probably buried in his family graveyard near his home. The present-day location of his graveyard would be on the west side of Preston Road at about Bordeaux. He was later moved to Greenwood Cemetery.

Polly Cole continued to live at the homestead with her younger sons after the death of her husband and until her death on 28 November 1869. She is buried at Greenwood Cemetery in Dallas.

William Alfred Cole was the seventh child of John Cole (born 1795) and Polly McDonald Cole (born 1794). He was the first of their children to be born in Crawford County, Arkansas, July 14, 1829. Within a few years, the family moved to Washington County, Arkansas. They resided here on a 200-acre farm, north of Summers, until leaving for Texas, arriving there in December, 1843.

William received a 320 acre Peters Colony Certificate but transferred it unpatented June 15, 1853 to J. C. Hawpe. William lived at home with his mother and five brothers until early 1851. Between then and 1855, he went to Bexar County and settled near San Antonio. It is believed that William went to Bexar County with his brother, James and his brother's wife, Sarah Ann (Bennett) Cole and Mary Jane Bennett. James bought land in Bexar County in the summer of 1851, but returned to Dallas taking his family in 1866.

In San Antonio, on November 8, 1858, William of Medina County, married Mary Jane Bennett at the residence of Mr. James M. Cole on the Cibolo River. Mary Jane's father and mother were Hiram Bennett and Dosia Dobbs, the heads of a pioneer Dallas County family from Georgia. She was born in Arkansas December 23, 1842.

William Cole served in Co. D., Captain Charles de Montel's Frontier Regiment of Texas during the Civil War. Earlier, he was with the Texas Rangers during the Mexican War (1846-1848). The family moved from Bexar County to Medina County where the family is found in the 1870 and 1880 census.

A record naming their living children is recorded in U. S. District Court in San Antonio. The story was that William Alfred Cole had instituted claim through the U. S. District Court against the government of Mexico for cattle stolen by Mexican Nationals and driven across the border. Before the claim was settled, Mr. Cole died, and in order to continue to press the claim, the heirs had to do it, and had to prove their heirship, all of which went into the record. All the children are listed in the following: 1. Margaret C. "Maggie" Cole, born May 19, 1859, died September 13, 1945 in La Habra, California. Married Thomas B. Meek and resided in Tularosa, New Mexico. They had two sons, three daughters. The first child, Alfred Clinton had a son, Stirman Meek who now lives in Roswell, New Mexico.

2. Sarah Malinda Cole, born January 7, 1861, died December 11, 1908, Roswell, Chaves County, New Mexico. Married January 21, 1880, John Wesley Conn, born March 31, 1859, Coffee County, Tennessee, died February 6, 1928, Roswell, New Mexico. He was the son of Reverend W. W. Conn and Hannah Dougan. They had six children: William Frederick; Walter Coapland, died age 2 from snake bite, Lottie Lou; Ollie Otelia; Wesley Woodward and Ida Inez Conn. This family moved to Roswell, New Mexico, circa 1901, traveling first by wagon and second part by railroad boxcar. Sarah Malinda Cole married at her parents residence by Reverend J. C. Russell, Medina County, Texas.

William Fred, married Lucille Laws: children, Carlyn married James Simpson, live in Odessa, Texas, children two sons, and Thelma Inez, married Ed L. Safford, lives in Houston, Texas, two sons. Ollie O. married William August Hoffman: children, Wilba Malinda, married Robert Earl Groves, live in Midland, Texas, one son; Clarence Woodward Hoffman, married Mary Jane Murray, live in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, two sons; William A. Hoffman Jr., Chicago, Illinois and Dorothy Marie, married John W. Wright, live in Odessa, Texas, two sons and one daughter.

3. Ida W. Cole, born March 20, 1865, died Marathon, Texas, married Tom F. Rackley.

4. Arthur B. Cole, born March 1, 1867, died four, Devine, Texas.

5. Alfred C. Cole, born May 27, 1869, died age 2, Devine, Texas.

6. Mary Alice Cole, born May 27, 1869. George West, live Oak County, Texas married Lee W. Rackley.

7. Hiram Columbus Cole, born July 29, 1871, married Alice Halyard and lived in Coleman, Texas.

8. John William Cole, born February 4, 1874, died Carrizo Springs, Dimmit County, Texas. Married first, Fannie Holcomb, married 2nd time and lived in San Antonio, Texas.

9. Abbie Diana Cole, born February 16, 1875, married Benjamin Franklin Winters.

10. Archa Dobbs Cole, born February 12, 1877, died 1959, Houston, Harris County, Texas, married about age 40 and had no children.

11. Joseph Bennett Cole, born January 1, 1879, died Commerce, Oklahoma, married twice.

12. David Cole, born July 1, 1881, died Albuquerque, New Mexico, lived in Cimmaron, New Mexico.

13. Unnamed daughter who died at birth in 1883.

14. Lillian M. Cole, born February 6, 1885, died January 4, 1963, Gainesville, Cooke County, Texas. Married William Arthur Brooks. She lived in Taylor and Dallas, Texas. Two sons. This data from Lillian "Lillie" Cole Brooks and Census Records.

Mary Jane Cole died in San Antonio, December 18, 1895 and is buried in Devine, Medina County, Texas. William Alfred Cole died while living at the home of his daughter, Ida Rackley, in Marathon, Brewster County, Texas, on May 26, 1914 and is buried in Marathon.

William Preston Cole, Sr.

Our grandfather was born in Dallas, Texas August 8, 1852, the son of Calvin Green Cole and Elvira Ann Reeder. Calvin was born in Tennessee, June 16, 1816. Elvira Ann was born in Louisianna Territory in 1821. Calvin was the son of John Cole and Mary "Margaret" Polly McDonald. John Cole fought in the Revolutionary War of 1812, when the British burned the "then" White House. He moved his family to Summer, Arkansas in 1829. He left there in 1843 and went to Cedar Springs, Texas, later Dallas. In Dallas he became the first doctor, and the first probate judge. A Mr. Ellis, assitant to Probate Judge Bartlette, found a book of minutes of that court, first notation dated Monday, September, 1847-1851, signed by John Cole.

"Cole Family". Back row, left to right: Nina Pearl "Cole" Martin, Mary Anna "Cole" Mathis, standing on a stool, Luela Leona "Cole" Guthrie, Elizabeth Elvira "Cole" Aimsworth. Center row, left to right: Oro?, Great-great Grandmother "McAdams" Branson, Grandfather William Preston Cole, Sr., Grandmother Mary Elizabeth "Sager" Cole, Ethel Gussie. Front row, left to right: John Calvin Cole, Margaret, Baby Charles Clinton in grandmothers lap, William Preston Cole, Jr. Picture taken in 1894, Dallas, Texas, Dallas County.

Calvin left Arkansas in 1844, he bought land that connected with Dr. John's and Mary Polly's. He built a two story log cabin, Calvin died in 1854, Elvira and children stayed there for many years.

Grandpa married Vienna Smith in about 1873-1874. Their children were: Lucien, born 1875, he was a twin to Luela Leona. He died when he was five. Elizabeth Elvira, born February 14, 1877, died March 18, 1927, Nina Pearl, born October 7, 1881, died June 17, 1966. Vienna died when Aunt Pearl was born. They were born in Dallas. After Vienna died Grandpa married Mary Elizabeth Sager. Their children were: Ethel Gussie, born January 1884, William Preston, Jr., called Bud, was born December 1886, John Calvin, born December 1888, Margaret, born August 1890, Mary Anna, born April 1, 1892, Charles Clinton, born May 1894. Aunt Margaret died three days after her first child was born. All the children were born in Dallas, Texas. Grandpa and Vienna were in McLennon in 1900, but was not there very long. Grandpa moved his family to Jacksboro, Texas.

Information from Dallas Library, 1860 Dallas census, 1900 McLennon Co. census and 1900 Jacksboro, Texas census and Nina Pearl's Bible and from our mother Mary Ann "Cole" Mathis.

Mary "Cole" Mathis was our beautiful, wonderful mother. She was raised in Jacksboro, Texas, Jack County, as she put it. I had the best daddy in the world, and am proud of being a Cole. The years she was growing up were happy. Grandpa had a big farm and a few cattle. They went to a little red school, it had one room. She told of the trips to Dallas, and of all the pretty clothes she bought and had their pictures taken, and about visits to the family. They had big birthday parties, since she was born on April Fool's Day they always played jokes on her, the one she repeated every birthday was when they baked her a cotton cake and came in singing "Happy Birthday" then when she cut it, found out it was made of cotton, she cried, then they brought the real one. Grandpa hired a lot of men at certain times of the year, and the older girls had to help Grandma to cook for them, Aunt Pearl took care of her. They had a lot of music in their home. Her daddy played the violin and mom played the piano, they played for the town functions. Mom could play the French harp, too. We used to marvel at her playing "Red Wing" on it. She told me about her very old grandmother, grandma "McBride" Branson, I think she was her great grandma, mom said she would sit in her rocker upstairs all day smoking on a corn cobb pipe, when company came from out of town to stay, she had to sleep with her and she would wrinkle her nose and say "my she smelled awful". The older girls married and moved to Oklahoma. Aunt Maggie died three days after her child was born. Grandma Mary Elizabeth, born January 3, 1854, died March 17, 1908. After grandma died, grandpa married Cora Singleton, Aunt Maggie's mother-in-law. Grandpa died November 29, 1912. The children buried him next to Grandma with a double headstone, with beautiful inscriptions of poems on each.

Aunt Pearl said "even though Grandma was their step mother, she was the best". Grandpa took a boy to raise by the name of Oro, no one knows who he was. But it shows what mom said, "William P. Cole, Sr. was a good man".

Dorothea Meek Coleman

My first encounter with Washington County was 1942 from the back seat of a 1939 Oldsmobile sedan as we drove down the tree lined North College Avenue early one spring morning just as the sun broke the horizon. A most memorable experience

I was coming to Fayetteville to make my home for the next several years with Mrs. Laura Hastings on South School Street. My mother, Elnor Lea Cook Meek had passed away the fall of 1940, and my father, Ilo S. Meek had married Lillian Hastings, the youngest child of Mrs. Hastings. She was better known to the family as "Tommie" or "Boots". My father worked for AT&T and moved quite frequently making it impossible for me to keep up with school changes it necessitated.

I attended Jefferson School on South College, remembering well teachers, Miss Kara Jordan, Miss Nita Berry, Mrs. Kantz, and Mrs. Annabell Bates, before leaving the area to attend private schools in Abilene, Texas, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma and St. Joseph, Missouri.

It is a delight to remember the days on South School. Granny Thorpe who lived to the south of Mrs. Hastings had the greatest "Big Little Book" and funny book library around and I borrowed from her constantly. Cambell's Grocery on the corner where Grandmother sent me with eggs to sell, and a list of groceries to buy. Joy Lichlyter who came to visit nearly every day. Dixie Lee Rogers who lived across the street and Lula Faye Hanshew who lived next door, the Laynes who lived on the corner to the north and the Hawkins who lived on the corner to the south. We used to play games in the summer counting all the semi-trailer trucks that came up School Street Hill, US Highway 71; that grinding and growling sound as they shifted down to make the hill in front of the City Hospital and try to get up enough speed to make the next grade and sharp right turn on to Mountain Street before they crossed the southside of the square and made the left turn on College Avenue in front of the old County Jail heading north in front of the Court House. I wish I knew how many didn't make it, that had to back down and try it again.

It was a pretty good hill to pull on foot every Saturday going to the movies at the old Royal or Palace theater, or the old Fayetteville City Library on the second floor of the City Administrations Building, with their many fascinating books to read of far away places.

I returned to Fayetteville in June 1951 when Mrs. Hastings fell and broke her hip. Dr. P. L. Hathcock admitted her to the City Hospital where James Hoover applied the traction and Dr. Coy Kaylor, new at that time, pinned her hip. I stayed to give Aunt Roxie Campbell a helping hand not realizing at the time the matchmaking Mrs. Hastings had in mind. A young man who had roomed with her while I was away at school had captured her fancy and she set about to introduce us. She sent word that she had fallen and wanted to see him. He returned her call with a visit. He asked me to a movie at the drive-in on North College and a malt at Jug Wheelers Drive-In on West Dickson Street (the in-thing to do) on the fifteenth of July. After the date I told Aunt Roxie that I was "setting my cap" for him. On the fifth of August I became Mrs. Nelson Edwin Coleman after the regular church services at the New First Baptist Church of Farmington where Nelson's brother, Rev. Jesse M. Coleman was pastor at the time, and performed the ceremony while his wife Kathleen Reed Coleman accompanied during the service on the piano.

We made our home in Washington County ten miles west of Fayetteville and ten miles north of Prairie Grove for twenty-five years before moving to Prairie Grove ten years ago. Our children were educated in the Farmington and/or Prairie Grove systems. Toni Lynn, our eldest, married Billy Lee Young, son of Chester and Wanda Young of Farmington. They lived west of Fayetteville with their two daughters, Sarah Elizabeth and Mallory Lynn. Our eldest son, Douglas Edwin is in the US Army. Our middle child, Neena Janell married Michael Anthony Madden, son of Richard Madden, Fayetteville and Lucille Miller, Springdale. They lived west of Fayetteville with their son, Michael Craig. Our youngest son, Jesse David married Cindy Roberts, daughter of Erma Lee Slaughter Roberts. They recently moved from Tuttle to Prairie Grove with her two daughters Erica Jarnagan and Brandy Tucker. Our youngest child, Tammy Renee married Steven Lee Beaver, son of Beal and Lynn Tyler Beaver of Alma, Arkansas. They have one son, Tyler Alan and have recently moved from Prairie Grove to Houston, Texas.

I have come to realize that I was afforded a great advantage as a child when I traveled from place to place by myself on bus or train, though at the time I did not see it that way. I feel that I am a better person because of the experience. I have worked with various church groups, school organizations, social organizations, as well as 4-H, home demonstration groups, Quilting Clubs, Eastern Star, Rainbow Girls, though I am not active with any of them at the present time. I have a full time job at the Fayetteville Diagnostic Clinic where I have been employed for the past eighteen years. I feel this job and what Nelson and I enjoy best, just being together, is sufficient.

Jacob Coleman

An excellent example of the frontier people who settled Washington County was my father-in-law, Jacob Coleman. He was the youngest son of Jesse and Mary Catherine Sexton Coleman, better known as "Kate". He was born in Murray County, Georgia on June 22, 1867 where Jesse Coleman had moved the family at the height of fighting during the civil war from Duck Town, near Chattanooga, Tennessee. Finding conditions not conducive for farming following the war, hoping for better conditions he again moved the family (to Arkansas) in 1871. Jacob Coleman remembers his mother shaking the straw out of the bed-ticks on the shoulder of the creek where they left on a flat bottom boat with a side wheel. His last glimpse of Georgia was fondly recalled from his youth, of his dog left behind sitting in the mound of straw. Their first crops were put in at Marianna, Arkansas. The mosquitos were so bad they had to build bon-fires at night in a ring around the livestock so they could have rest, enabling them to be worked the next day. His brother John died October 27, 1871 at Cravens Hill of yellow fever. Fearing the loss of another family member, Jacob's father moved the family up the Arkansas River to Cardon Bottom, making the second crop in 1873. Not faring much better and hearing of good water and air up 'on the mountain' he hired John Watson who had a large wagon and team of oxen to move him to Van Buren County where he had obtained a land grant of 160 acres. Drought of 1880 prompted moving the family again, this time to Harrison (Boone County), Arkansas. They lived in the area of Mountain Home, Bellefonte, Money's Run (now known as St. Joe) and Valley Springs where Jacob graduated from the eighth grade obtaining high marks to qualify him for a teaching certificate. He also worked for a Col. Fulbright in that area. Jesse again moved the family to Going Snake, just west of Westville in Indian Territory; Jacob freighted from there into Fayetteville and back. His father, getting up in years and not wanting to endure hardship moved back to the Fayetteville Area just west of town off Porter Road in what is now known as the Giles addition. He said the land to the south of Wedington Drive would be purchased for fifty-cents an acre at that time.

Fall brought a desire to return to the mountain and Jacob decided to prove up on the land grant of his father in Van Buren County, Arkansas. He purchased a pair of mules from Mr. Bell of the Bell Dry Goods on credit, promising to return the following year after making a crop to pay for them, which he did. He moved the family back, proved up on the land, built a Grist Mill and small store, married Myrtle Lee Watson and had three daughters. Myrtle Elizabeth "Lizzie", Nina Lee, and Emma Jewell. After his parents died and their first child died, he sold the farm, grist mill and store, moved to Alma, Crawford County, buying eighty acres of bottom land where their first son, Jesse Martin was born in May 1915.

Hearing from his sister Naomi and William Fortner that the Will Diven place was for sale about 5 miles west of Fayetteville in Washington County he rode horseback across the Boston Mountain to make the deal only to learn that Mr. Diven had backed out of selling it but that the Earl Swaggerty place was for sale. It was 75 acres that laid to the east of the Diven place on the banks of Owl Creek. He had to take possession before winter set in the year was 1919, so he brought the team and wagon with household and farming tools ahead across the Boston mountain, then no more than a pig trail, while he sent his wife and three children by train. The next few years was a constant struggle to make ends meet, especially hard during the depression and drought of 1936. He had a big crop of strawberries each year and migrant farm hands camped along the creek and he made contracts with the local grocery store to redeem the strawberry tickets he paid with which the pickers used to buy commodities they needed.

He was a hard working man, very well liked and everyone relied on his word. When a man moved into the area from Oklahoma by the name of Charles Tipton during the depression years, he took him to Farmington to Mr. McNeal at the Mercantile and stood good for the seed and credit till he could make and sell his crops. The First National Bank President, father to Herb Lewis Sr., said he didn't need his signature, his word was enough.

A county official investigating the loss of county timber that was missing, came to inquire about him and its whereabouts. He had been told that Mr. Coleman might know something about it and he could rest assured that he would tell it to him straight.

He was a conservationist long before it was popular, rotating his crops, letting land lay fallow, always planting trees as he cut down others for his use. He believed in the rights of all men, regardless of their color, religion or political views. He voted in nearly all elections. He felt it was his duty as a citizen to do so and he encouraged his children to do the same. He believed in a good days work for a good days pay. He was not one for idleness. Though he never joined any church he professed his faith in God, he never worked on Sunday and he never liked to hear an axe strike or shot ring out on the Sabbath. He never drank and he never used tobacco in any form. He died at the age of 100 years and 6 months, loved and respected by family and friend alike. He was known to all as Uncle Jake Coleman.

Myrtle Lee Watson Coleman

Picture in your mind a beautiful blond haired, blue eyed girl who is petite and of good body form and you have Myrtle Lee Watson, who became Jacob Coleman's wife October 1, 1905, at Leslie, Arkansas. They have been known to family and friend alike as Uncle Jake and Aunt Myrt ever since. She was born the day after Christmas 1889 to Lucius McGuffy Watson and Eliza Jane "Lizzie" West on Bear Creek near Witt Springs, Searcy County, Arkansas. Their parents were from Georgia and North Carolina.

Jacob and Myrtle had five children. Myrtle Elizabeth "Lizzie" died nine days after birth in 1906. Nina Lee was born July 7, 1907 in the little community of Archie Valley where Mr. Coleman had proved up on his father's land grant. Mr. Coleman was freighting vegetables down the mountain with team and wagon to Russellville, a distance of fifty miles. Mrs. Coleman was attended at birth by a maiden aunt who did not have any experience in child delivery. Myrtle had the aunt place the baby next to her and to bring her some black silk thread, and she proceeded to take care of the matter herself, stating she did not intend to lose this baby. All the way back up the mountain the ladies would go to the road to tell Uncle Jake of his new daughter and to wish the family well.

Emma Jewell was born October 31, 1909 at the same place, just before they sold it and moved to Alma where Mr. Coleman bought a good bottom land farm. This was where Jesse Martin was born May 30, 1915. He was named after his grandfather Coleman and the doctor who delivered him and they always joked about it later, stating they waited nine days to name him and then did it wrong, saying they should have named him after Mr. Coleman' brother, Rev. Moore Coleman, a Baptist minister.

When we would travel by car across the Boston Mountains in the 1950s, Mr. Coleman would tell of the trip across them to buy the place west of Fayetteville, and the places where he stopped along the way with wagon and team and belongings in 1919. He sent Myrtle and the children by train from Van Buren to Fayetteville.

Myrtle Coleman was a dutiful wife, working as hard as any man or woman, caring for her family both inside and outside the house. She was a very meticulous person, a very clean person as was evident by the dresses the girls wore to school that were made by hand (sewn on her fingers) starched and ironed. She made sure they had new shoes for school and packed lunches to eat.

An example of her endeavoring spirit, an Alma banker who frequented their home told her that was the cleanest cabin he had ever been in, and he had been in many a fine house. She had a one room cabin that held two big beds and a lean-to with a slide window for a kitchen, very up-town she used to say. The floors were made of split logs and pegged so they would not roll or move, and she had bleached and sanded them with a home made broom and sand she had carried from the creek. When Jesse was a senior in high school at Farmington in 1933, he had only one change of clothes, so she would wash them each day by hand, mending, patching and ironing them with flat irons heated on the wood cook stove. They were always ready for him.

Nelson Edwin was born October 1, 1923 on the farm west of Fayetteville. He loved to read and would walk miles to borrow reading material. Mrs. Coleman sold an old hen to pay for a subscription to the Saturday Evening Post for him.

She would put the girls to bed, and after they were asleep and her other household duties finished for the day, she would sit by their bed and roll their hair for the next day. Years later she repeated the scene with a little variation with my children. When they went to sleep and she thought the pillow was not right or when they were lying in a crooked way, she would fix them, saying "they'll rest better that way."

She had so much love to give and she took this teenage girl from the city-who couldn't figure out where or why to put the water to bake a cake so it would not burn- and taught me how to cook on a old coal-oil stove. She introduced me to a way of life that is fast disappearing from these Ozark Mountains. Besides her home duties that included baking hot bread at every meal, cleaning, washing-which meant boiling water in a wash pot and pouring in a wringer outside, as late as 1954-milking the cows, canning, etc., she always found time for club meetings that included home demonstrations and quilting, where there was a mixture of good food and excellent companionship. She was always available to tend the sick, walking miles on foot. It pleased her to be of service to anyone.

A fitting tribute was paid to her by a nurse at the Sunrise Manor where she died April 18, 1974 who said "I never have to worry about the patients on that wing where Mrs. Coleman is. Every night she tucks the patients in, fixing their pillows, being sure they were covered up. You can hear her as she shuffles from room to room."

Many women in my life have taught me many things but Myrtle Coleman taught me how to care and to persevere.

Nelson Edwin Coleman

Nelson Edwin Coleman was the fifth child of Jacob and Myrtle Lee Watson Coleman, born in Washington County about five miles west of Fayetteville in the White Rock Community October 1, 1923.

He attended Sunday School at Double Springs Methodist Church and preaching at the Old Providence Baptist Church just off 16 highway. The Methodist church was off the Willy Winters place at the foot of the hill just before you cross Owl Creek across from the Will Diven place. The Baptist church was about one-quarter mile south of 16 highway right in front of Willy Winters house.

He attended White Rock School under the guidance of Mrs. Lottie Couch who considered him one of her better students. He was deferred to work on the farm during the second World War, raising chickens on a government contract. At the close of the War and the death of his sister Emma Jewell, the family sold the farm and bought a place just out of Siloam Springs in Oklahoma. The family was unhappy with the move and soon returned to the area buying forty acres in the Highland Community where his brother, Rev. Jesse M. Coleman was then pastoring.

Nelson left the state briefly from time to time as a child and as an adult. He made several trips to California to visit his sister Nina and to New Mexico to visit his sister Jewel. He went to Detroit, Michigan, Greensburg, Kansas and Pomona, California to work, always returning to the way of life he loves best, farming in northwest Arkansas. As it became increasingly harder to make a living on the farm he turned to various jobs in Fayetteville to supplement the income. To name a few, Ferguson's Cafeteria, Baldwin Piano, Campbell Soup Experimental Farm, Bear Brand Hosiery and Deputy Assessor of the County Assessor until his retirement in 1984.

Nelson is a very family oriented man, putting his family before everything. He enjoys his grandchildren and loves being with them. Nelson might not have married had it not been for Mrs. Laura Hastings who set about finding a suitable husband for her step-granddaughter. Nelson married Dorothea Meek August 5, 1951 and to this union were born: Toni Lynn married Billy Lee Young and they have Sarah Elizabeth and Mallory Lynn. Bill is a veteran of Vietnam and works maintenance for Tree and Trench. Tony is an abstractor and is employed by Bronson's Abstract. They live west of Fayetteville. Douglas Edwin, the eldest son, graduated University of Arkansas with high marks, obtaining a BA and MA in history and is presently serving in the U. S. Army. Neena Janell married Michael "Mike" Anthony Maddan, they have a son, Michael Craig. Mike is in the Satellite business and Neena started in retailing at Lewis Brothers before joining First National Bank and is now in bookkeeping at Northwest National Bank. Jesse David, the youngest son, is married to Cindy Roberts who has two girls, Erica and Brandy. Jesse started with Love Box Company before going to Campbell Soup Company where he works maintenance. Tammy Renee, the youngest, married Steven Lee Beaver and they have one son, Tyler Alan. Tammy was employed with McIlroy Bank as a teller before moving to Houston, Texas where Steve is employed with Sonat.

All in all we are quite pleased with all our children, their spouses and children, as well as their endeavors. It just goes to prove that all the hard work, the teaching has not been in vain. We can trace the Coleman family from England to Virginia to Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, to Arkansas and finally to Washington County. You can find the same spirit, the same determination, be it the forging of a new frontier in Virginia or the new frontiers our children face today. We are proud of what we are and of what we may become tomorrow.

Kirby Collett

Kirby Collett, was born on June 15, 1887 in Denver, Indiana, to Schyler Colfax and Effie Katherine Kirby Collett and moved by covered wagon in 1900, with his father, to Indian Territory. After growing up near Lawton and Oklahoma City, he worked as an engineer with the Oklahoma Bell Telephone Company.

He moved to the Robinson Community in 1914 (Washington County) and to the Steele Community in 1922.

Susan Elizabeth Sutton was born October 10, 1906 to William Laslie and Mattie Gentry Smith Sutton, formerly of near Shelbyville, Tennessee, at the Steele Community.

Kirby asked "Susie" for a date for the first time in 1930, a local dance, and she said "no, thanks." He asked her for a date the second time in late 1939. They were married on October 25, 1940. Their only child, Kay Gentry Collett was born on August 7, 1941 at Fayetteville City Hospital.

In the meantime, his parents had passed away and he bought their farm, where he and Susie lived out their lives until his death on September 5, 1972 and hers on October 15, 1972, what would have been their thirty-second wedding anniversary. Kirby was a garden and dairy farmer, who also kept several horses, mules, yard dogs, barn cats and laying hens. He served on the local school board, on the Agricultural Stabililzation and Conservation Committee, as an election official and as Sunday School Superintendent at Sycamore Missionary Baptist Church.

Kay graduated from Springdale High School in 1959, the University of Arkansas in 1963 with a bachelor's degree in political science and in 1966 with a master's degree in political science. She also completed all requirements for a Ph. D. in political science at West Virginia University in 1968-1969 and 1971. She has served on the faculty of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville in 1966, and 1968-73; Westark Community College in Fort Smith in 1966-68; University of Arkansas at Little Rock as an adjunct professor off and on since 1968.

In late 1972, Kay moved to Washington, D. C. where she worked for then Congressman Ray Thornton and Congresswoman Patricia Schroeder. On April 25, 1975, she married Oscar E. "Gene" Goss, long-time Administrative Assistant to Chairman of the United States House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur D. Mills.

On August 9, 1976, their daughter, Susan Laura (named for Kay's mother Susan and Gene's mother Laura) was born. Her godparents are the Honorable and Mrs. Wilbur D. Mills of Washington, D. C. and Kensett, Arkansas.

After Mr. Mills' retirement from Congress, Kay and Gene returned to Arkansas, where Gene has worked as Director of Public Affairs for Worthen Bank, Executive Vice President of the Arkansas Oil Marketers Association and on the Management Team at the Arkansas Educational Television Network.

Kay has worked for state government, both the executive and legislative branches, a constitutional convention and for the Association of Arkansas Counties. For the last five years, since 1982, she has served as Special Assistant to Governor Bill Clinton for Intergovernmental Relations.

Susan's interests include dance (jazz, tap, ballet), flute, violin, piano, handbells, church choir, Girl Scouts.

Kay also has a step-daughter, Elaine Goss, who is married to James Calhoun, formerly of Little Rock and lives in Waynesboro, Virginia, where she serves as a Special Education Consultant for mainstreaming blind students. Elaine and Jim have a son, James Alexander Calhoun, who is one and one-half years old. Jim serves as a librarian at the Waynesboro City Library.

Schyler Colfax Collett

Schyler Colfax Collett, named for the Indiana Congressman, Schyler Colfax, Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives while Abraham Lincoln was President, and his wife, Effie Katherine Kirby Collett, moved to the Robinson Community in 1914 and to the Steele Community in 1925 from Oklahoma City. They had four children—Kirby Collett, born in 1887 in Denver, Indiana; Herschel Collett, Robert Collett, Mary Esther Collett, born in 1897.

The Colletts moved to Oklahoma in 1900, with S. C. and Kirby leading the way from Indiana to Indian Territory via covered wagon. They had owned a dairy in Indiana. In Oklahoma, they farmed and Kirby worked for Bell Telephone Company.

Robert was handicapped and died in Arkansas at an early age.

Herschel married Charlotte Capper shortly after the family moved to Arkansas, moved to Wilmington, North Carolina, to work in the furniture industry. They had one child, Winifred Collett. Herschel died of a heart attack at age 40. Winifred Collett married Walker Hunter of Winston Salem, North Carolina, and moved to Rochester, New York in 1938. They had two sons, Walker F. Hunter, III, now an accountant and entrepenuer in Dallas and William Herschel Hunter, who is with Eastman Kodak in Rochester, as was his father.

Effie, who had been born on February 29, 1866, died of Bright's disease at age 64 in 1930 in Steel Community and was a Christian Scientist. She was the daughter of Benjamin Kirby of Ohio. Schyler died in 1933 of a heart attack. Kirby Collett, a farmer, married Susan Elizabeth Sutton of Steel Community on October 25, 1940. Kirby served each election as a judge or clerk, as a member of the local school board, Sunday School Superintendent at Sycamore Missionary Baptist Church, and on the Citizen's Committee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Corps. Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Collett passed away in 1972. They had one child, Kay Gentry Collett, who lived in Washington County, graduated twice from and served on the University of Arkansas faculty until 1972, at which time she moved to Washington, D. C. to work for then Congressman Ray Thornton; married Oscar E. "Gene" Goss, who was then Administrative Assistant to the Chairman of the U. S. House of Representative Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur D. Mills; had a daughter, Susan Laura Goss, whose godparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mills. At the present time, Gene is now on the Management Team of the Arkansas Educational Television Network and Kay is Special Assistant for Intergovernmental Relations to Governor Bill Clinton.

Mary Esther Collett graduated from University High School in Fayetteville, where her math teacher was a future Congressman, James W. Trimble. She married Ben Porter of Fayetteville, who was a farmer and later head of the Street Department. They had two children: Mary Francis Porter, who graduated from the University of Arkansas and married Clyde Pinkerton, a pilot and a military professional. They had two children: James Maxell Pinkerton, a graduate of Auburn University Veterinary School, presently a Memphis Veterinarian, and Susan Pinkerton, who graduated from Enterprise State Junior College, attended Auburn University, lives in Birmingham, and is married to Ray (Worthington). James has two children: Jennifer and Jeffery. Susan has two children, Craig and Mary Beth.

Robert Porter was their son. A graduate of the University of Arkansas in electrical engineering, he was in charge of the electrical system of the Sealab project manned by aquanauts and sponsored by the U. S. Navy. He and his wife, Betty, reside in Panama City, Florida and have three sons—Robert Porter, Jr., a Jacksonville, Florida architect, and twins, Randy and Terry Porter, who are in retail sales.

Alfred Collins

Great-grandfather Alfred Collins (1823-1903), lived in Washington County, Arkansas, with his wife Amanda and their children, from 1870 until his death in 1903. He was born in North Carolina, son of William (1790-1860) and Mary Endsley Collins (1796-1881). The family moved to Rhea County, Tennessee around 1840.

Alfred first married Patsia Ann Snodgrass (1832-1855) on 22 August, 1849, Rhea County and two children were born to this union - Ira, known as Tobe, (1852-1956) married Elizabeth Ash (1855-1938) and Mary (1855-1956) married James A. Jones, grandson of my gr-gr-grandfather, Rev. Riley Jones of Washington County. Patsia died shortly after the birth of Mary.

Alfred's second marriage, 11 October 1855, was to Amanda Henry (1836-1899, daughter of Hyram, born 1804 and Delila Harwood Henry, born 1800). They lived on a farm next to his father and his brother, Pinkney, on the west side of the Tennessee River near Washington, Tennessee. It was on this farm that seven children were born to Alfred and Amanda, two died while very young. During this period of time Alfred served with the Confederate Cavalry, Carter's Tennessee Volunteers, later drawing a pension while living in Arkansas.

In 1869 the "fever" was raging along the Tennessee River and the family decided to move to Arkansas. Amanda had been ill, was so weak that she had to be carried aboard the boat on a stretcher for the start of their journey. They traveled up the river, then west and over the mountain, staying the first winter in Madison County, Arkansas. In the spring of 1870 the family moved on to Washington County, settling on Trace Branch in the Middle Fork Valley, with their children Ira, Mary, John (1859-1941 married Mollie Jones 1871-1946), Addison (1861-1935 married Nancy Cornelieus Gilliland 1870-1959), Martin (1865-1947 married Phoebe C. Maloy 1872-1939), Adelia (1866-1936 married Samuel Frazier 1852-1912) and Susan (1869-1940 married Charles Johnson 1870-1956).

Four children were born to Alfred and Amanda in Washington County. They were Ida (1872-1952 married John Green Boaz 1870-1938), Alfred (1874-1951 married Amy (last name unknown)), James (1877-? married Della Mason) and Antha (1879-died infant).

Some of the neighbors in Middle Fork Valley were John and Rachel Edwards, Bill and Louise Hanshaw, Paul and Lucinda Buxton, Mary Gilliland (widow), Noah and Mary Cambell, Emmer and Melissa Swonger, Samuel and Martha Watts, Henry Nelson, Zacharian Kinion, Peter Mankins, H. D. Fawbush, Dennis and Sarah Perry and Sam and Anise Harris.

All of Alfred and Amanda's children were married in Washington County. Around 1900 Ira, Mary and Adelia, with their families, moved to Checotah, Oklahoma, and Addison and family moved to Payne County, Oklahoma.

My grandfather was Addison Collins, who married Nancy C. Gilliland, daughter of Carol and Amanda (Mary) Gilliland, on 31 January, 1889 in Sulpher City. They were married by Nancy's grandfather, Rev. Riley Jones. Their children born in Washington County were Clarence (married Merle Stokes), Osa Maxine (1890-1975), Oma Delila (1892-1973 married Irl Vance), George Carol (1893-1971 married Beatrice Foster) and Mart Allen (1895-1963 married Ethel Grace Rich 1898-1973). Four children were born after their move to Oklahoma, Zelma Ruth, Zella (both died 1903), and Alonzo (Bill) (1906-1965 married Hazel Filmore) and Verna Marie (born 1908 married 1st Amos Sloan, 2nd Charles Johnston).

My father, Mart Allen (Pete) Collins and Ethel Grace Rich (daughter of Major Jacob M. and Sarah Jane Little Rich) were married 22 February, 1922, Yale, Payne County, Oklahoma. Their children were Marvin Allen (1923 - died infant), Richard Lee (1924 married Velma Franks), Wanda Zoe (1926 married Lance F. Richardson), Mary Lou (1928 married J. D. Lawrence), Jack Albert (1930 - killed USAF 1953) and Gerald Dallas (1935-36 polio).

Lance and I, Wanda Richardson, have one daughter, Deborah Nan (1947) and one granddaughter, Tina Grace Ballash (1973), all living in Ponca City, Oklahoma.

Nine of Alfred and Amanda Collins' grand-children are living (1987) - Marie Collins Johnston, Cushing, Oklahoma, Anga Boaz Harris, Corcoran, California, Margie Frazier Lucas, Checotah, Oklahoma, Louise Frazier Pierce, California, and those living in Washington County are Dowell Collins, Pearl Johnson Walker, Fred Boaz, Alta Boaz Gregg and Ernest Boaz.

Nathan Combs

Nathan Combs was born in Breathitt County, Kentucky on September 10, 1830. He was the son of Matthew and Frances "Fannie" Brown Combs, and the youngest of their nine children. At the age of 23, Nathan decided to leave the confines of his "old Kentucky home" to seek his fortune. He arrived in Washington County, Arkansas in 1853 with thirteen dollars and a change of clothing. Northwest Arkansas appealed to the young Kentuckian, and with his decision to settle in Fayetteville, Nathan Combs became the first member of our Combs family to settle in Washington County, Arkansas.

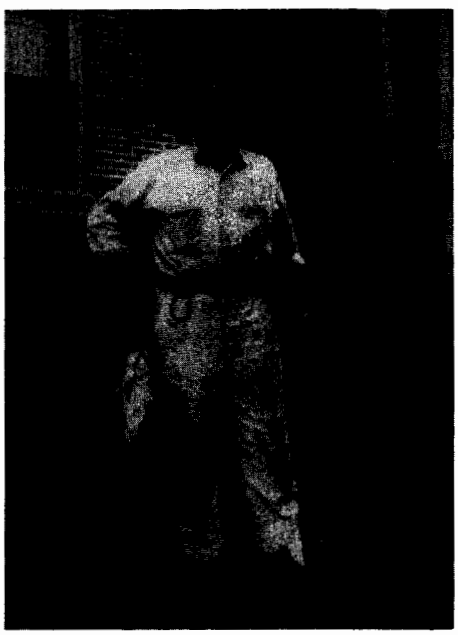
Elizabeth Dean Thompson Combs



Charles Cantrell Combs

Young and eager to work, Nathan found employment as a railsplitter for Captain George Cline, a prosperous farmer and respected citizen of the county. Captain Cline was a veteran of the War of 1812, and a two-term member of the Arkansas Legislature. He had several daughters, all of whom were well educated and refined. The oldest daughter was Elizabeth, or "Miss Lizzie" as she was known. It may have come as a surprise to some when, after several months, it was discovered that a mutual affection had developed between young Nathan and Miss Lizzie. But it was no surprise that when Nathan approached Captain Cline to ask for his daughter's hand in marriage, there were some objections. Nathan was, after all, a hired hand, with no property, little money, and no home of his own. But Nathan had proven himself to be honest and hardworking, and the old Captain soon gave his blessings for the two to be married. On June 6, 1854, Elder Lively pronounced Nathan Combs and Elizabeth Cline man and wife.

Nathan and Lizzie had only one child, Isaac G. Combs, born on June 3, 1855. In 1861 this young family of three moved to a farm purchased by Nathan southeast of Fayetteville. The farm was 757 acres in size. He began cultivating the rich bottomland, and by 1889, the Combs farm was known as one of the finest in the county. There was a total of 450 acres in cultivation, and an orchard of 1500 fruit trees. The first house that Nathan built for his family was a simple log cabin. Soon after the Civil War, Nathan began construction on a fine two-story brick home. With 18-inch thick solid brick walls, a Georgian floor plan, Italianate outer trim, and walnut interior trim throughout, the house still stands today in 1987 as a reminder of the Combs family fortitiude.

When Nathan Combs died in April of 1899, he was one of the wealthiest and most respected farmers in Washington County. An excerpt from his obituary, written by J. H. Van Hoose, reads "... he has left for his widow and only son that which is of far greater value than bank stocks, bonds, brick blocks or broad fields of fertile soil, viz: an honored name, an untarnished reputation for truth, honesty and fair dealings among men, for which they may well feel proud."

Isaac grew to manhood on the family farm. Well schooled, he attended the Arkansas Industrial University in Fayetteville. Upon graduation, he became a schoolteacher, and continued in that profession for about four years. He married Martha Cowen on October 16, 1881. Martha did not care for rural life, so the couple soon moved into Fayetteville, purchasing a house on Mountain Street. Isaac was active in many civic and political affairs of the community. He held various positions in local government, ranging from a member of the Water and Sewer Commission, to sheriff of Washington County. At the time of Isaac's death in 1925, he was the president of the Washington County Bank. Isaac and Martha had no children, so by provisions set forth in Nathan's will, the Combs farm went to the surviving sons of Nathan's brothers.

In 1929, the great-nephew of Nathan Combs, Charles Cantrell Combs, and his wife, Elizabeth Dean Thompson Combs, moved from their home in Montgomery County, Kentucky, to the Combs farm in Fayetteville. Charles was the son of Aaron Thrasher and Pocahontas Duff Combs, and Elizabeth the daughter of William Hedges and Lucinda Thompson Thompson. With all their household goods transported from Kentucky to Arkansas by rail car, Charlie and Elizabeth loaded their three children, William Aaron, Frank Allen, and Ruth Jean, into their Dodge automobile and headed for Arkansas. Soon after the move to Fayetteville, the family was blessed with another child, Mary Lucille.

I asked my grandmother Elizabeth Combs if she was apprehensive at the thought of leaving her friends and family in Italy "Well, I guess I would have ridden through fire if Charlie had loaded up the car and said, "Let's go." This type of trust and devotion to her family is as much a characteristic of Elizabeth Combs as are her blue eyes, her sense of humor, her generosity, her trust in the Lord, and her firm belief that an honest day's work is its own reward.

Charlie Combs continued farming in the tradition of his great-uncle Nathan, and everyone in the family helped keep the farm going. Charles Cantrell Combs, my grandfather, died in 1959, and like the Combs men before him, he was known for his business sense and generosity toward his fellow man.

The four children of Charlie and Elizabeth Combs all grew to adulthood, married and settled in the Fayetteville area. William married Gladys Wilcox on October 19, 1935. They had two sons, William Phillip and Charles Thrasher. William and Gladys were the owners of Combs Grocery in Fayetteville. Frank married

Wanda Rose on October 18, 1946. They also are the parents of two sons, James Allen and Larry Gene. Frank Combs is the owner of Frank Combs Trucking, and also raises cattle on the Combs farm. Ruth married Bruce Young on February 28, 1946. They had three children, Lucinda Alice, Susan Charlene, and Roger Bruce. A hard worker all her life, Ruth found her greatest joy in the occupation of wife and mother. Lucille married Jack Hayes on June 16, 1948. They are the parents of three children, Pamela Sue, Jacki Elizabeth, and Michael Stephen. Today Lucille is employed by the firm of McClinton-Anchor.

Now, "back to the future". The Combs family continues to grow with this, the newest generation:

Allen and Linda Vandiver Combs have three children, Deborah, Bret, and Jason. Larry and Libby Combs have two children, Shannon and Mel. Charles Thrasher Combs has one son, Charles Britt. Pamela Hayes Howard has one son, Adam. Michael and Jacki Hayes Mohney have two daughters, Erin Elizabeth and Lauren. Michael and Marsha Osing Hayes have one daughter, Sarah Lucille.

As I write this, my grandmother, Elizabeth Dean Thompson Combs, is 91 years old. She is a kind and gentle soul, and there are no words to describe how proud I am that there is a little bit of Elizabeth Combs in me. It is with that thought that I lovingly dedicate this Combs family history to her.

Edmond Hunton Cook

Edmond Hunton Cook, his wife, Nancy Catherine (Jacobs) Cook and two children moved to Washington County, Arkansas in 1872, settling in the community of Highland near Farmington. Edmond was born on February 2, 1837 in Monroe County, Tennessee, the son of Jacob Cook and Jane (Sheets) Cook. Nancy Catherine Jacobs was born on April 9, 1850 in Jefferson County, Tennessee, the daughter of John Jacobs and Elizabeth (Kimbrough) Jacobs. They were married in Monroe County, Tennessee on October 10, 1867 and had two daughters in Tennessee, Martha Isabel born 1869 and Elizabeth Jane born 1870. Edmond was a farmer and they lived near Philadelphia, Tennessee, where he settled after serving in the Civil War on the Union side.

They came to Washington County in a wagon to join his brother James Henry Cook and his family. Edmond and Nancy homesteaded 160 acres, he built everything on the farm which included a two-story log house, smoke house, evaporator building and a log barn. Edmond was a farmer and supplemented his income by splitting rails that were used for fences. They raised several varieties of apples, peaches, plums and had cherry trees. The fruit was dried in the evaporator building and the vegetables were kept in a deep trench.

In Arkansas, their family continued to grow. They had Margaret Elvria in 1873, Albert Newton in 1875, Mary Emma in 1877, Anna Mae in 1880, James Baird in 1881, Martin Luther in 1885, Della Elzada in 1887 and Esta Robert in 1889. Of the ten children, the only one living is Esta Robert.

Nancy Catherine became ill with cancer and was an invalid before her death on November 28, 1896, but before she died her sister Martha (Jacobs) Vincent and her family came from Tennessee to see her. Nancy was bedfast, but asked to be carried out on the porch so she could see their covered wagon at the crossroads about half a mile away, as she had not seen any of her family since moving to Arkansas. Martha's family had a big tent that they put up in the yard, part of them slept there at night and the children played in it during the day.

After Nancy's death, Edmond enrolled Esta, Della and Martin in a subscription school, he had to pay for each of them for a three month term. They were taught by anyone with the equivalent of an eighth grade education, using slates and some tablets and pencils.

In 1901, Edmond remarried to Maggie Caldwell Wright; she was a good stepmother to his children. They sold their farm in Highland around 1901 and moved by wagon to Shawnee, Oklahoma with Edmond's daughter Martha and husband, John Burrow. It took them two weeks to get there, they camped out at night and traveled during the day. On the way there, Indian's came by and wanted to take Martha's mare, saying it was theirs, one Indian pulled a gun on them, but for some reason, they never took the mare.

After arriving in Oklahoma, Edmond became homesick for Arkansas, so they moved back and bought land in Turkey Pen Hollow near Highland. It was there in February, 1903, that Edmond's youngest son, Hugh Lawton, was born. On October 2, 1903, Edmond Cook died of Dropsy. He was buried in the Highland Cemetery next to Nancy Catherine.

Edmond's children went on to marry and have families of their own. Martha married John Burrow in 1888 and they had six children: Luther, James, Dazel, Gussie, Thelma and Charley. Elizabeth married Charles Montgomery in 1893 and had Alva, Edmond, Callie, Charlotte, Martha, John, Emma and Albert. Margaret married in 1894 Elonza Burrow and had Gladys and Opal. Albert never married, he was buried at Highland. Mary Emma married Newton Aldridge in 1909 and had Esta and Howard. Anna Mae never married. James Baird married Ethel Clevenger in 1920 and had seven children: Collin Leroy, Lester, Maggie, Lucille, Charles, Earl and Martha. Martin Luther married Mary Sullivan and had Bertha, Sussie, Chester, Josphan Hubert, Florence, Daisy Elzady, Willie, George and Frankie. Della married Joel Asher in 1909 and had Ethel, Elsie, Floyd, Buford, Ulys, Joel Thomas, Geneva and Hazel. They moved to Oregon. Esta Robert married Earnest William Broughton in 1912 and they had Edith, Paula, Earnest William, Jr., Arthur and Alberta Fern. Hugh married Hazel Pennington and had James, Jacqueline and Gerald. Many of these families are residents of Washington County.

James Baird Cook

James Baird Cook was the seventh child of Edmond Hunton Cook and Nancy Catherine (Jacobs) Cook. He was born August 20, 1882, Washington County, Arkansas. "Jim" was married in Muskogee County, Oklahoma on October 30, 1920 to Ethel Bertha Clevenger, born July 2, 1903 in Farmington, Arkansas. Ethel had gone to Oklahoma to visit her sister and Jim followed her there to ask her to marry him. They were married and lived in Oklahoma a short time while Jim worked loading railroad ties. They returned to their relatives in Farmington and started their own family. Jim did farm work and at one time worked for the City of Fayetteville. Their house burned when they lived in Siloam Springs and they lost all their possessions. Ethel was hanging clothes outside and had left the baby asleep on the bed. By the time the older children got outside the house was engulfed in flames. For a few terrifying minutes, it was uncertain whether the baby was still in the house or not, but a neighbor who first noticed the flames had run in and rescued the baby.

Jim Cook liked to tease his grandchildren. He called my sister and me "Sis" or "Sister" and my brother "Toe Joe". When we spent the night, his favorite game was for me to wake up before my Mother did so he could offer me coffee "on the sly". When we heard my mother get up, he would tell me to hide under the table so she wouldn't know I was drinking coffee. Then she would enter the room and he would say, "Lucille, look who's hiding under the table ".

Jim also liked to come to our house after we got a television, about 1954 or 55, to watch "Amos and Andy" and "The Red Skelton Show". He really enjoyed watching the shows he had listened to on the radio.

Jim Cook died at the Elizabeth Hospital, Prairie Grove, Arkansas, April 27, 1956, with leukemia. He is buried in the Prairie Grove Cemetery. Ethel (Clevenger) Cook is still living in Prairie Grove, Arkansas.

James Baird Cook and Ethel (Clevenger) Cook had six children: Collin Leroy Cook, now living in Prairie Grove, married Frances Keeling. Jimmie Leon Cook, born January 27, 1945 married Shirley. They live in Lawrenceville, Georgia and have three daughters, Jacquee, Jamie and Jerrie. Collin Leroy then married Helen and had Carol, Chris, Ronnie and Sharlyn. Lester Claud Cook, born November 22, 1923, now lives in Joshua Tree, California. Maggie Elizabeth, born June 7, 1925, married Dail Napier and lives in Bell, California. They had one daughter, Louise, now deceased. Lucille Frances, born September 19, 1928 married Loyd Taylor Jordan and lives in Prairie Grove. Lucille owns an antique shop, "Antique Cupboard", in Prairie Grove and Loyd is retired from the postal service. They have five children: Linda Sue, born April 26, 1947 married John L. Kelley, Jr. They live in Prairie Grove and have Kendra Sue, born August 27, 1969 and Jason Scott, born December 31, 1972. Karen Ann, born August 20, 1950, married Gerald Pershall. They live in Prairie Grove and have Stacy Resee', born May 10, 1971 and Cameron Jeryl, born March 21, 1978. Ronald Joe, born April 23, 1955 married Gail (Reaves) Shaver. They live in Springdale and have Corrina Shaver, born April 8, 1978 and Charles Taylor, born June 20, 1983. Patricia Lynn, born March 21, 1958 married Darrell Prater. They live in Rhea's Mill Community and have Nathan Cole, born December 8, 1982 and Logan Kyle, born August 23, 1986. Tessa Leigh, born March 1, 1963 married Blake Campbell. They live in Prairie Grove. Earl Ray Cook, born August 15, 1935, died July 2, 1968. Martha Louise, born September 29, 1938, married John Max Thurman. They live in Tulsa, Oklahoma and have three children: Teresa married Charles Roberts and they have Brandon and Angela. Becky married Billy Porter and they have Jeremy and Brandice. Greg married Angie and they have a daughter, Amber.

Lon Aubrey Cook

Four generations of the Spyres - Cook family have roamed these Ozark Hills. Tall, gangly Phillips Spyres walked many a mile "preachin the work of the Lord", while his wife Rushie tilled the rich farm soil and took care of the youngins - Oscar, Doc, William, Monroe, Tillman, Sada and Oma.

While the Spyres family was farming, Garland Cook was tending to business at the War Eagle Mill Store. He had two sons, Jack and Lon. Naomi, their mother died at a very young age and left to raise two rowdy boys, Garland took another bride, Helen Sanders Putnam. Helen had a daughter Mary and into this ready made family another daughter Molly was born.

Now Oma, youngest of the Spyres clan attended the University and became a teacher. Her first job was in Blackburn, Arkansas, where she was credited with saving her school children when the school house caught fire. She began a teaching career in War Eagle, met this handsome Cook boy, Lon, and after courtin' a spell, they married. Two daughters, Jean Ann Cook Boyer and Linda Sue Cook McNatt were born to Lon and Oma.

Lon's career was a multifaceted one. He was a mechanic for Charlesworth Pontiac, a shoe salesman for Wilson Mercantile, but perhaps he is best remembered for his love of people and his civic responsibility, for he was Springdale's volunteer fire chief for many a year. The lower part of his lung had to be removed due to smoke damage incurred in one of Springdale's big fires. He was the instigator and originator of the "Springdale Fire Department Breakfast".

In 1962 he went to work as Maintenance Engineer for the Springdale Memorial Hospital and remained there until his death in 1970.

Lon and Oma have four lovely legacies, Aubrey Boyer McAlister, Kimberly Boyer Taldo, Jefferson Carr McNatt, Andrew Scott McNatt and two grand legacies, Nathan Scott McAlister and Erica Nichole Taldo.

Steeped in the Ozark Mountains, nestled among the grass roots are a multitude of memories and a harvest of bushels of love.

Henry Bascomb Cooper

Henry Bascomb Cooper was born September 4, 1850 on a plantation owned by his father, Jonathan and his wife, Mary Ann Cooper near Memphis, Tennessee.

After the Civil War, Henry Bascomb's father, Jonathan, moved his family to Washington County, Arkansas. The family's only means of travel in those days were by covered wagon and horseback. Jonathan Cooper died a few years later after having lived a good long life. Mary Ann Cooper joined her husband shortly, in death. Close friends and family truly believe Mary Ann died of a broken heart, from the loss of her beloved Jonathan. The dates of their actual deaths are unknown at this time.

Henry Bascomb Cooper and Frances Graham were united in marriage on November 11, 1879. They reared a family of two sons and three daughters. Their names and birthdays are as follows: John William Cooper, October 13, 1880; Maggie May Cooper, July 12, 1884; Lennie Mary Cooper, November 12, 1887; Auther Roy Cooper, October 4, 1889; and Sally Myrtle Cooper, November 20, 1892.

In the early part of 1880, Henry Bascomb operated a sawmill on Leathwood Creek near Eureka Springs, Arkansas in Carroll County. In 1886 he moved to a farm abut three miles south of Springdale, Washington County, Arkansas.

Henry Bascomb Cooper engaged in farming and fruit growing for a number of years. He also operated sawmills and at one time had his own grain threshing machine which he operated for a while. At this time he was regarded as a very skilled machinist in the art of steam engineering and to some extent gas engine and blacksmithing. It had been said he was one of the best sawmill operators in the business. Henry Bascomb also operated a small lime kiln at this time.

His wife, Frances, preceded him in death on August 20, 1910. She was laid to rest in Zion Cemetery, Washington County about six miles southeast of Springdale.

Sometime after the death of his wife Frances, he met and married a widow, Maggie Carter. They resided on her farm two miles north of the Zion Methodist Church, southeast of Springdale.

Henry Bascomb Cooper departed this life on September 19, 1919. He was laid to rest beside his first wife, Frances, in the Zion Cemetery, Washington County, Arkansas.

I dedicate this story in loving memory of my grandfather, Ralph Horace Cooper, by his grandson, Tommy Ray Cooper.
