ENEKS

A dark brown granite headstone with a heart-shaped top. A central horizontal plaque, appearing to be a different material or finish, contains the name 'ENEKS' in a serif font. The plaque is flanked by decorative scrollwork. The headstone is mounted on a wide, low base. To the left of the base is a small, dark, cylindrical object, and to the right is a circular, dark object, possibly a light fixture or a marker. The background shows a grassy area, a building, and bare trees.

REED

Bryan's great-great grandfather was William Reed whose family came to Arkansas from Kentucky in 1827. The family homesteaded in Cane Hill and had nine sons. They were pioneers of the community and were charter members of the Cane Hill Presbyterian church where William served as an elder. William and his wife Margaret lived at Cane Hill until their death and are buried in the Cox Cemetery south of Cane Hill.
